Washington Masquerade

With Lionel Barrymore As Senator Opening At Ritz

Picture Portrays Political Leader Who Succumbs To Woman's Wiles; The "Inside" Of Politics

"The Washington Masquerade," a drama concerned with the lobbyist racket in the national capital with Lionel Barrymore in a domineering role as a senator who falls victim to the wiles of a woman, is the attraction at the R. & R. Ritz theatre today and Monday. The picture is based on the Henry Bernstein play, "The Claw," in which Barrymore scored one of his greatest stage performances. It was adapted to the screen by John Messersmith and the noted political writer Samuel G. Blythe, and was directed by Charles Brabin who filmed "The Best of the Best" and "The Wet Parade."

The plot of "The Washington Masquerade" is a story of a woman's wiles in the political world. The story is set in the city of Washington and follows the life of a woman who becomes a lobbyist and uses her wiles to bring down a senator. The film is a political drama and is a study of the lobbyist racket in the national capital.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN
Propaganda and Recovery

Up to this point the really effective contributions to recovery made by governments have been the politically difficult ones. It took foresight and courage to defend the dollar and the national credit, to put an end to reparations and to carry through the British debt conversion. The doing of these things has actually mattered and has undoubtedly released recuperative forces within the world. But there still remain equally difficult political obstructions to deal with before anything like a complete recuperation can be expected. Our own federal finances are by no means in order. The railroads are sick. The war debts still impend. The international currency system is seriously damaged. The commerce of the world is blocked by tariffs and other barriers as it has never been blocked before in modern times. Leaving aside all consideration of what men will demand that there be done to make a more secure economic order for the future, these problems must be dealt with to provide relief from the misery and poverty which now afflict so many.

It is to these problems that the government ought primarily to address itself. They are the problems that only government can deal with. The railroads can determine for themselves whether they need new equipment, but they can not do anything about the governmental problems which vex mankind. Yet because these problems are saturated with prejudice, the disposition of politicians is to make themselves very busy about something else. Thus Mr. Roosevelt is eloquent about the follies and the swindles of the inflation and Mr. Hoover is conferring and organizing mightily to stimulate business men to do the things which world events and their own readjusted positions would have led them to do anyway.

Great is the temptation to avoid these problems. There is no political risk in holding conferences, or in dishing out public credit, but it is a different affair to undertake to say how paths are to be cut thru the jungle of tariffs and monetary disorders, how the Federal budget is to be reduced, how the war debts are to be settled, and how the country is to manage its surplus machinery to stimulate business men to do the things which world events and their own readjusted positions would have led them to do anyway.

It would be going too far to say that the bug of activity in Washington is useless. There is some advantage in assembling bankers and industrialists and in making them feel their common responsibility. It also soothes the nerves of those whom Mr. H. G. Wells once described as the Gawdsakers because they rush about in time of crisis wringing their hands and crying "For Gawd's sake, let's do something." But it would not be going very well for the administration to set itself up as an organizer of sentiment for better business, if there are distinct and vital problems in its own backyard which need prompt attention. And perhaps, too, it would not be going too far to say that the line between assurance based upon realities and hallooing based upon speculation is a very narrow one, and it is very desirable that the administration should not inadvertently cross it.

No amount of propaganda for a recovery will serve as a substitute for the solution of the problems that impede recovery. If it seems to serve as a substitute it is either dangerous and will bring a relapse or it is unnecessary. That is no less true today than it was in 1931, when the same method was tried. The only difference is that then the propaganda failed miserably and today, conditions being ripe for some recovery, the propaganda may appear to succeed so well that in the fever of a new bull market we shall forget the hard realities which still confront us.

That danger would be much less if the administration would stop trying to blow on the sails. For the ship has a fair breeze behind it, and will proceed of our government and the others will only dredge out the sea of the wrecks that block the channel.

A CONTINUING ROMANCE

Story Of An Exiled Swiss Nobleman Whose Descendant Is Serving A Big Spring Church

W. G. BUCHSCHACHER

power. His letters containing the small remittances he was able to send his wife did not hold promise of an immediate fortune. Her replies were at first encouraging. Suddenly they ceased. One day he received word that around the boy had died.

Civil War

That was the end of the world for Dan Buchschacher. He could look only to death for relief. The civil war had just begun and the south was calling for volunteers. Dan was among the first to respond. He was fighting in Brazos, San Antonio, when the war was ended. He had lost the sight of one eye and received a hip wound that made him limp for life.

After that he drifted from one thing to another. He built up a successful florist business in New Orleans but a fire swept away his business fortune and his personal effects, leaving him as poor as the day he entered the United States. Red luck seemed to dog his footsteps and death, the only friend he had, was waiting for him.

His son, Walter Godfrey Buchschacher, was born in Switzerland, more than a century ago. Brought up to date, it continues in the life and work of the present W. G. Buchschacher, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church on North Grand street.

In 1857, Dan Buchschacher, a young man of the nineteenth century, came to America. He had a brilliant future that wealth and good breeding could assure. He fell in love with a girl of his own class, but with a beautiful peasant girl in his village. His family protested against the match in vain. Young Dan married the girl he loved, probably hoping that the strict class distinctions of his generation would be set aside in his case. He was mistaken. His father promptly disowned and disinherited him.

It was then his duty as head of a family to care for his bride. In 1857, which his life had just equipped him. The social position to which he had hopelessly sunk called his pride and the small income did not provide the comforts he had always known.

When a son was born, a son also destined to be disinherited because the great family of Buchschacher still refused to recognize the marriage. Young Dan decided to emigrate for America and make a new start in a new world where class distinctions were of a man's own making.

The new world was not as friendly as he expected it to be. New York City welcomed him as another of its thousands of small-earning, out-of the mourners were elderly men. Among them was one who had been so impressed with the sermon that he asked the name of the minister and discovered that it was the same as his own. Thus it was that the father found the son he had long thought dead and the son the father he had come to America to seek.

The two went back to Warda where the last years of the old father's life were spent in serenity and happiness.

He lived to see his son's son grow to manhood, enter the ministry and have sons of his own. He lived to see his first great grandson, Walter Godfrey, entertain ambitions of the ministry.

At the age of 92, Dan Buchschacher died and was laid to rest in American soil, far from the home of his fathers.

Dan's Son

His son served as minister of the Lutheran Church at Warda until he was 78 years of age. He passed away August 1930 after 42 years of service in that one town. He had baptised children, watched them grow to manhood, married them and buried them. He had seen Lutheran churches to which he traveled monthly on horseback grow into prosperous parishes with ministers of their own and buildings surrounded by automobiles every Sunday. He had seen his own congregation increase to 1000 members, and most of the men were home-made men become almost as fashionable as a city church without losing any of its friendliness.

In this environment he reared his oldest son, Ernest John Godfrey, who became pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church at St. Louis, Mo., after serving congregations at Zulch and Swiss Camp, Mo., for several years. He passed away last summer; he had served the St. Louis church for 23 years and the page of modern ministry had been written in half the time that had his father's.

His Grandson

The son of this son is the pastor of the St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Big Spring, the little light-colored frame building on North Grand street with its old-fashioned steeply pitched roof. He is the second minister to be located here as a full-time pastor in the history of the city. Before he had served here a year he had done what no other man had been able to do—he had procured a church home for the Lutheran people.

His name is Walter Godfrey Buchschacher. He was graduated in the spring of 1928 from Concordia Seminary in Springfield, Ill., and went to Lorraine as a pastor that fall. His field including this city and Midland. It was next located here although he still rendered services twice a month in Lorraine and Midland.

He has one daughter, Louise Ann, aged three.

While the American Buchschachers were slowly but firmly taking root and taking to places of importance, the Swiss branch was sinking into obscurity. Through all the years the two branches had never communicated with each other. Finally the pastor here decided to learn the fate of his relatives in Switzerland. The once proud family had left no trace known to the American consul was the result of his letter.

This summer, however, a Swiss newspaper fell into Mr. Buchschacher's hands. It contained a story of the marriage of an Ernest Buchschacher, probably a descendant of the brother of Dan.

So the story of this separation is not ended. It will not be ended until Walter Godfrey, or one of his sons, crosses the ocean and the broken bonds of family affection are reunited. The years have wiped out the bitterness. Given enough of them they will wipe out the distance and bring the two branches of the family together again.

Mrs. Clarence Ahear who underwent a removal of the appendix Thursday is doing nicely.

First Christian Church To Observe Golden Jubilee In Revival Meeting

Under the leadership of Rev. Irvy L. Townsend, pastor of the First Christian Church at Sweetwater, an evangelist, the First Christian Church will begin its Golden Jubilee revival next Sunday morning, to continue for two weeks. This meeting will be in celebration of fifty years of service which the church has given in Big Spring. The church was organized in the home of Mr. I. D. Eddins in the fall of 1882. At the present time, there are only two charter members living, Mr. Eddins and Mrs. M. E. Barrett.

For its Jubilee revival the church has secured the services of an exceptionally strong evangelist, Mr. Townsend is an evangelist of dynamic spiritual power, and is a successful pastor as well as evangelist. As director of music, the church has secured the services of Rev. Howard Goodpasture, nationally known since, who has spent several years directing the music in campaigns for evangelists of such outstanding power as Will Hogg and Paul Henry Packard.

The revival will continue for two weeks, with both morning and evening services, and will be climaxed with a Golden Jubilee service on Sunday, October 22. Invitations are being sent to former members and pastors to be present on this occasion.

Bills Support Shutdown Order Of Commission

AUSTIN (UP)—Two bills supporting the action of the state railroad commission in the Panhandle gas field were before the legislature although Governor Sterling had not submitted the topic.

One by Senator Clint Small specifically authorizes the railroad commission to close down gas wells when there is no ratable taking. The commission has done so under the terms of the attorney general's welfare clause of the gas act.

The other bill, by Senator Thomas Pollard, proposes to divorce gas production and gas pipe line companies.

Passage of either becomes valid if the governor signs them though he did not submit the topic.

The bills follow Thursday's order by the commission shutting down the east side of the west Panhandle gas field, except wells supplying local communities and limiting production in other parts to four per cent of the possible flow.

Under the order the five pipe line companies are cut off from a part of the immense supply that has been piped to Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Oklahoma and other states. The order is effective until some system of ratable taking from the million acre field is worked out. Two commission hearings have been held, without a plan being agreed on.

Wooten, Home From Washington, Says Business Leaders Report Better Feeling In All Sections

ATLANTA (UP)—Home yesterday from a meeting of the banking and industrial committees of the 15th federal reserve district, H. C. Wooten, Abilene, brought the cheering news that "every man present at the session reported a better spirit prevailing and an increase in most lines of business."

The banking and industrial committees are formed in each of the 12 federal reserve districts of representative bankers and business men of which meet periodically in Washington, D. C., correlating work of the district committees.

The Dallas meeting followed a recent meeting in Washington, attended by Frank Kell of Wichita Falls, 11th district committee chairman.

Chairman Kell reported that a questionnaire sent to 24 wholesale and retail trade associations in Texas brought answers that trade had improved during the past 30 days.

A. L. Kramer of Dallas, representing the dry goods industry, reported a 20 per cent increase in his line of business during August over the average volume for the three preceding months. Mr. Wooten said.

Other members, he said, reported they had "observed a decidedly better sentiment among business men throughout the state, as well as a marked increase in actual trade activity as a result of the recent upward trend in the price of cotton, wheat, livestock and other commodities produced in this district."

Mr. Wooten represents the grocery industry on the commercial committee.

Dallas people were especially interested in the condition of West Texas and the results of the recent heavy rains in this area, Mr. Wooten said.

"I told them that while we have suffered losses, I believed the advantages of a late fall and winter season would more than offset the damages. We're already feeling better since the sun is shining."

Those attending the meeting besides Kell and Wooten were B. I. Anderson, Fort Worth; W. S. Farish, Houston; W. P. Napier, San Antonio; F. E. Florence, A. E. Kramer and R. L. Thornton, Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Gay of Little Rock, Ark., stopped over to make a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Gay, while en route home from a summer spent in San Diego, Calif.

Tammany Passes Resolution Giving Roosevelt Support

ALBANY, N. Y. (UP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidential candidacy and the democratic party's wet platform were endorsed in a resolution unanimously adopted by the democratic state committee today.

Mr. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, introduced the resolution.

Surprise was noted in the committee room when Curry, a supporter of Alfred E. Smith in the Chicago convention, introduced the resolution. He simply read from a sheet of paper and did not elaborate either upon the candidate or the platform. The resolution was received with cheers.

Jake Bishop, Jr., returned home from a visit to his aunts in Fort Worth.

Two assistant district attorneys testified at his habeas corpus hearing, and the state asked that his bond be set at $30,000.

Another principal witness was George Ely, Pharr druggist, who said Hayden swindled him and his wife out of $10,000, their life savings.

CHAPTER XL

Barry said the words over and over. "My dear, my dear! You are here!"

She looked up at him tall, bronzed, glowing with health and vitality. His eyes strangely blue in his browned face. His skin darker than his hair.

Steve strode forward. He looked oppressive heat! Mona wondered how they endured it. Steve was grinning broadly. "You!" he cried.

"Yes, we're here. Both of us. In person!" Lottie added in an effort to break the tension.

"Not a motion picture," Barry said.

Steve, "Well, you look handsome enough for one. Take my word for it!" He tossed a napkin on the table and seized Lottie by the shoulder.

"Are you surprised?" asked Mona laughing.

"Surprised? We're overjoyed! And delighted too. How did you get here? Bud brought you, of course, but where in blazes did you find him?"

Barry placed a chair for Mona. "Sit down," he urged. "You must be tired."

Barry said the words over and over. "My dear, my dear! You are here!"

"What can you think of me?" Steve asked miserably. "And you who did we come here?"

The arrival of the young ladies in the kitchen, Maria the old cook had waddled to the door about which she peered with misplaced confidence in the power to control the situation. The little blonde courtesier raised her chin.

Coolidge Throws Full Influence In Favor Of Hoover Re-Election

By RAYMOND CLAPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Former President Calvin Coolidge has thrown his influence in favor of the re-election of President Hoover.

He made known his attitude in an article in the week's Saturday Evening Post entitled "The Republican Case."

The endorsement was emphatic. It left no doubt as to Coolidge's belief that Republican victory was highly desirable.

When Coolidge said his successor should be re-elected "for what he has done and for what he has prevented," he satisfied the most demanding of the Hoover inner circle.

Some of these have inwardly grizzled over the attitude Coolidge has hitherto shown toward the present master of the White House. They noted that in his previous article last spring favoring the president's re-nomination, Coolidge had his position on the ground of party duty and omitted glowing praise of Mr. Hoover.

Coolidge has come into the lineup at a propitious time. Furthermore he directed his main salvo at an argument which worries the

'GOLFING MATRON' RETIRES CUP

Rayborn Brown, former holder of both the Sand Belt and city tennis championships, is visiting friends in Big Spring. Brown won the consolation round of the Arkansas Open this summer.

The Big Spring golfing legion will make their last stand in the Sand Belt Golf Association play this week-end when Odessa invades the local course. It will be the last match of the year for the Country Club linksmen, at present sitting proudly on top of the Sand Belt heap. Colorado, a mere two points behind, and Lamesa, twelve points farther to the rear, have an additional match to play, and barring two upsets and a landslide in favor of Shirley Robbins, G. R. Porter, and staff the chances of the championship coming to Big Spring is not so bright.

However second place is very probable. Odessa has the weakest team in the league even if the Ector county clan did defeat Big Spring in the first meeting here. Lamesa, Frank McWaters, Spinks Thompson, Anderson, Bob Flowers, Ole Cordell, Jessie Hill, Ralph Duval and Lillian Harris. Fred Martin and Orville Hildreth witnessed the work out from the sidelines, and will report for duty early next week while Hildreth may act as student manager.

Smith, Henry Richbourg, Red Sanders, Howard Schwarzenbach, Jack Dean, Bud Tucker, "Army" Armstrong, Mack Austin, Fred Kobert, Wood, Frank McWaters, Spinks Thompson, Anderson, Bob Flowers, Ole Cordell, Jessie Hill, Ralph Duval and Lillian Harris. Fred Martin and Orville Hildreth witnessed the work out from the sidelines, and will report for duty early next week while Hildreth may act as student manager.

Coaches Obie Bristow and George Brown held the first football practice of the 1932 season Thursday afternoon, and no one knows it better than the thirty candidates who participated in the work out. From 2 until 6:30 Bristow and Brown had their squad doing every conceivable trick known to early season workouts. Players passed, tackled, blocked, ran signals, took laps and indulged in callisthenics.

Peculiar to the Bristow system is a new revolving shift as the team comes out of a huddle. The same thing, with variations, has been used in collegiate circles before, but it is an innovation for high school boys, at least in this section.

Semi-Wedge. Players line up in a semi-wedge fashion with the open end toward the defensive line. Quarterback barks signals, everything whirls in dizzy fashion, and suddenly everyone emerges at an assigned place. Its chief advantage is in concentrating strength at a given point before the defense can shift to meet the attack. It should prove puzzling to high school teams.

Another pet trick of Bristow and Brown is the well known spin play. The Steers will work many of their plays off this simple bit of deception. They will run off-tackle plays, cross backs, and short side drives off the spinner, not to speak of a reverse play that terminates in a timely lateral pass.

This year's squad is an entirely different collection than that of last season. Lacking in individual power and brilliance, the team as a whole is better founded in fundamentals. "Look at that," said Bristow as he had the squad divided into two lines doing blocking, "it certainly does look different from what we had the first day of last year. That's what we've got for last year."

What is a Block? One Lockfield aspirant, playing his first season of football, had to be informed what a block was. This particular man had never before Thursday had his hands on a football. But he looked good following interference around ends taking long easy strides, changing pace continually.

After separating the veterans from the new comers, Bristow administered first lessons in tackling and blocking. Presently he decided the entire crew could use the same lesson, so thirty men spent more than an hour blocking and tackling. Bristow and Brown recognized the value of blocking and efficient tackling, and whatever they produce, they hope it has that combination above any other.

Although he has in mind a starting combination, Bristow gave several different men the once over Thursday during quasi-dummy scrimmage. One combination in particular consisted of Harris, Schwarzenbach, Richbourg and Woods. Less than three weeks remain for Bristow and Brown to whip the team into playing shape. September 30 the Steers open the season in Lamesa against the Golden Tornadoes. And Coaches McCollum and Gregg of the Dawson county city are laying in wait for Bristow. Beating Big Spring would mean a successful season.

Men reporting for the first practice session were Charles Vines, Cecil Reid, William Cochran, Fred Townsend, Ruben Creighton, Elmer Dyer, Dub Coots, Felton Smith, Blondell Woods, Nell Radd, Eugene Acuff, Good Graves, Clayton

Plentiful fireworks are due to bare when the district dads convene for the season. Sweetwater officials say that the district's strange "independent rule," which was made solely to knock out some of the Sweetwater veterans, will not touch Ed Hennig's team because the little word "hereafter" is written in, hence does not and cannot affect the players for something they did back there in 1928. Sweetwater is mistaken. The district secretary, who kept the minutes of the rule-making session and who indited the statute word for word as it was voted, not only tells us there is no "hereafter" written in, but shows us the rule as it was written and sure enough there is no "hereafter."

Mr. Cross did not make the slightest error until the final sentence. There will be a "hereafter" for Big Spring and San Angelo, not to mention Midland, and Colorado. At least one set of school officials and coaches are demanding enforcement of the rule. "It was at Big Spring that the blow was aimed, and it was Sweetwater who introduced it into an eligibility meeting sometime ago."

At first school authorities were dead set against this direct slap at Big Spring's newly organized system of athletics for boys from 8 years of age on up. Then it was realized that it was not so long ago that this same Ben Daniels whose Devils were being referred to once coached at Sweetwater and enjoyed similar success. A Big Spring school official made the motion last winter that the rule go into effect. Sweetwater and other schools instantly voted in its favor.

And to further add a touch of humor to the situation the statute that the Sweetwater officials aimed at Big Spring does not touch one single member of Ben Daniels' 1931 squad. The eighth semester rule has since been ratified, and all high school students on Ben's team might as well consider it a year of high school competition as not, for they have only eight semesters. On the other hand the statute does not affect Junior High students.

The POWER HOUSE Repaired!

- People have more buying power.
• There is less unemployment in Texas.
• Isn't that good news?

That the people of Texas have increased buying power, in recent months, is proved by the fact that thousands of men and women, unemployed a few weeks ago, are again at work.

Texas bank statements show that Savings Deposits have not been reduced. Texas commercial and individual deposits have been reduced, only to the extent of the sums withdrawn from Texas banks by the Government and by certain large national industrialists.

Texas' deposits are still in Texas banks. CREDIT is easier all along the line and will be extended to legitimate enterprises, through the weeks and months ahead, on easier terms.
