Newspaper says treasurer abused former assistant

HOUSTON (AP) — A former aide to Texas Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison says Mrs. Hutchison physically and verbally abused her, required her to perform personal chores on state time and later thanked her for not going public, The Houston Post reported today in a copyright story.

Sharon Ammann, daughter of former Gov. John Connally, told the newspaper Mrs. Hutchison, who is running for U.S. Senate, struck her repeatedly with a binder in mid-1991, getting angry at her because she was delayed looking up a phone number.

"I'm standing at the file cabinet and she is beating me with every single word that she says," Ms. Ammann said, saying she was hit eight to 10 times on the left shoulder. "She hit me hard with every single word that she said," Ms. Ammann said. "Kay then turned around, walked back and slammed her door. I was horrified. I was humiliated. I was just stunned."

Mrs. Hutchison's spokesman, David Beckwith, denied the accusation.

"Kay has never struck anybody in her life," Beckwith said. "Kay is a tough boss. She sets high standards and expects they be met. What successful leader doesn't? All large organizations have disgruntled former employees, and that's the case here."

Beckwith said the story had been "peddled" for weeks by two of Mrs. Hutchison's opponents, interim Democratic Sen. Bob Krueger and fellow Republican Jack Fields, a congressman from Humble. Mrs. Hutchison, Krueger and Fields are among 24 candidates on the May 1 ballot in the election to succeed Lloyd Bentsen, now treasury secretary.

Ms. Ammann, 43, is a Fields supporter and has done fundraising work for him. She quit working in Mrs. Hutchison's office in October 1991 but denied her comments were motivated by the upcoming election.

"I have absolutely nothing to gain by doing this," she told The Post. "There is no reason to make this up."

Spokesmen for Fields and Krueger denied their campaigns had any role in making the accusations public.

Ms. Ammann said her only contact with Mrs. Hutchison since her departure was when Mrs. Hutchison called her at home last summer to thank her for not saying anything.

Beckwith said the phone call "never happened."

JP election plan developed

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

Residents of Precinct 3 in Gray County finally will be allowed to cast a vote in the elections for justice of the peace if a plan tentatively proposed by County Attorney Robert D. McPherson is approved.

The proposal, which McPherson and the three Gray County justices of the peace developed upon a request last year from Commissioners Court, would create a new precinct for justice of the peace elections that combines Precinct 3 and 4 in southern Gray County. Precinct 4 includes the city of McLean.

In the city of Pampa, Precinct 3 would be eliminated for the purpose of the justice of peace elections and its territory would be divided between Precincts 1 and 2, McPherson said.

There are four commissioner precincts in Gray County, with voters in Precincts 1, 2 and 4 selecting the justice of the peace from each precinct, respectively.

Gray County commissioners took no action on the item, which was not on the agenda. Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy explained the discussion by saying it was "just for informational purposes."

However, even discussion of an item without its being on an agenda is in violation of state law, according to the Texas Open Meetings Act.

"Any deliberation, discussion, or decision with respect to the subject about which inquiry was made shall be limited to a proposal to place such subject on the agenda for a subsequent meeting of such government body for which notice has been provided in compliance with this Act," according to the Open Meetings Act.

Kennedy noted that voters in this 921-square-mile county have elected only three justices of the peace officers since its inception in 1876 because of the sparsity of the population in Precinct 3. Voters in Precinct 3 have never been allowed to vote for a justice of the peace, he said.

"We look forward to each voter in Gray County being able to vote for a justice of the peace," Kennedy said.

McPherson said he hopes to present a final recommendation to Commissioners Court by the end of June. There will be a public hearing on the proposal before the Commissioners Court takes final action on the matter, he said.

The new precincts for the justice of the peace election would be effective Jan. 1, 1994, under the proposal.

Chicken store fried

Three units and 11 Pampa firefighters responded to a structure fire at the Chicken Express restaurant located at 2209 Perryton Parkway at 3:11 a.m. today.

No injuries were reported in the blaze.

As of press time, Fire Marshal Tom Adams did not know what caused the fire. An estimate of damage was not available.

Damage from the fire seemed to be contained to the office area located next to the kitchen, although smoke damage was evident throughout the restaurant. This morning, signs of the intense heat of the fire were obvious.

The lighting fixtures throughout the restaurant had fallen and melted from the heat of the fire and the steel rafters that were directly over the fire were bent.

Jay Gist, the owner Chicken Express franchise, said he expects the business to reopen as soon as possible. The business was fully insured, according to Gist.

The Curtis Mathis Store next door to the Chicken Express reported only minimal damage from smoke. An employee of the business said she was told that it could have been worse if not for the two-foot fire wall which separates the two businesses.

The fire was reported by Willy Hernandez of Lubbock. The 18-wheel truck driver for Mrs. Baird's said he spotted smoke coming from the top of the building.

"I thought it was just a heater and didn't worry about it," Hernandez said.

He went in Mrs. Baird's Thrift Store, heard a pop, left the store and spotted flames on top of the restaurant. At that point, Hernandez said, he called 911.

Skellytown firefighters seek deal

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

Skellytown firefighters say they know the terrain of their area better than firefighters from other towns in the region. What's more, the Skellytown firefighters say they can respond to a fire in their area in a fraction of the time needed by the Pampa Fire Department.

For this and other reasons, two representatives for the Skellytown Volunteer Fire Department on Thursday asked the Gray County Commissioners Court to grant them a formal contract for providing fire-fighting services in Gray County.

The Skellytown fire department, which has about 30 volunteer firefighters, four fire trucks and one ambulance, already holds a firefighting-services contract with Hutchinson County at an annual fee of $2,500, in addition to $250 for each fire response serving that county, said Mike Tice, fire chief of Skellytown Volunteer Fire Department.

Steve Huckins, vice president of the Skellytown fire department, said he has discussed his proposed Gray County contract with Claudie Phillips, the chief of Pampa Fire Department, and Phillips was supportive.

Gray County Commissioners Court responded to the request for more formal ties with the county by approving the policy of paying $250 for each fire run in Gray County by the Skellytown fire department, although a formal contract was not signed.

Gray County has already been paying that amount on an informal basis to Skellytown fire department for each firefighting run it makes in Gray County, Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy noted. Such calls have been infrequent; in 1991, the most recent year the Skellytown fire department made a call in Gray County, $500 was paid to Skellytown fire department for two runs in the county, said Gray County Auditor A.C. Malone.

"We were very pleased that they came (before Commissioners Court) and we are very interested in working with them to reach an agreement for their services," Kennedy said.

The Commissioners Court also expressed a desire to arrange a meeting with the Skellytown fire department and six fire departments in the area that hold contracts with Gray County as a step before a contract with the Skellytown department can be considered. The six fire departments under contract with Gray County are Pampa, Hoover, Lefors, McLean, Groom, and Mobettie, Kennedy said.

That planned meeting, which Kennedy said he hopes will be held in the next 60 days, is expected to address how to coordinate response to fire calls to avoid duplication of effort.

Last year, the Skellytown fire department responded to about 30 fires, 95 percent of them grass fires, Fire Chief Tice said.

Also on Thursday, the Commissioners Court:

- Met in closed session with Gray County Sheriff Randy Stubblefield for about 2 1/2 hours to discuss personnel matters. Commissioners Court took no action after the meeting — the longest closed meeting to date in 1993, Kennedy said. In response to a question, Kennedy said that Stubblefield did not ask for the hiring of more employees, but the county judge declined further comment on what occurred during the meeting.

- Delayed taking a vote on whether to apply to the U.S. Forest Service for a multi-year contract on management of the Lake McClellan National Grassland Park in southern Gray County. Commissioners Court plans to place the item on its agenda at every meeting until a decision on the matter is reached.

Is King jury hung?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jury deliberated for a seventh day today in the federal Rodney King civil rights case.

The sequestered panel, shuttled in a van from a hotel to the downtown courthouse, began work at 8:25 a.m.

The panel of eight men and four women had spent 33 hours in deliberations by the end of Thursday's session, surpassing the time put in by another jury in the state trial of the same officers last year.

The jury got had gotten back to work Thursday morning after quitting early the previous day when one juror fell ill and received unspecified treatment.

The possibility of an impasse prompted one defense attorney, Harland Braun, to say: "What's wrong with a hung jury? Why does everything have to be resolved? Why don't we just muddle along and let the historians decide what happened?" Other lawyers said it was too early to speculate.

On Thursday, U.S. District Judge John G. Davies set off a brief furor by threatening to throw the media corps out of the building. A TV station had broadcast some of the courtroom proceedings, which were being fed into the press room by closed-circuit speaker.

The judge backed down after lawyers for KCBS-TV and reporter Bob Jimenez assured him any broadcast was inadvertent. Federal courts do not allow recording or broadcasting equipment.

A state jury acquitted them on most charges a year ago, touching three days of riots in Los Angeles that left 54 people dead. National Guardsmen, Marines and extra police officers stood ready in case of an outbreak this time.

Appraisal district settles tax dispute

By BETH MILLER
News Editor

Gray County Appraisal District Board of Directors on Thursday approved an agreed judgment in a lawsuit filed against the Appraisal District by AmWest Savings and Loan.

Chief Appraiser Pat Bagley said the agreed judgment will settle the lawsuit filed by AmWest, which had contested the taxable value placed on a piece of its property — the Pampa Lakeside Apartments.

Bagley said that in appeals hearings with the Appraisal District, AmWest did not provide any information to warrant a change on the value of $776,620 placed on the apartments.

However, Bagley said that after the lawsuit was filed, "They (AmWest) subsequently provided us with complete income, costs and market information and we feel like it justified the change."

The agreed judgment, unanimously approved by the GCAD board, places the taxable value of the apartments at $510,440. Under the agreed judgment, the lawsuit will be dismissed against the Appraisal District and both sides agree to pay their own attorneys fees.

In unrelated business Thursday, the board went into an executive session of about 30 minutes to discuss "contemplated litigation/employee dismissal," according to the agenda.

No action was taken following the closed session.

Today, Bagley said that on March 19, it was noticed a receipt was missing and was later found torn up in a trash basket at the office. Bagley said he was notified and brought in the auditor at about 9 a.m. March 20.

"After a special audit procedure was performed by the auditor with the help of supervisory staff for the Appraisal District, we were able to identify several transactions indicating cash had been taken," Bagley said today. "That procedure was completed on Sunday, March 21."

Bagley said it was discovered that an estimated $405 was taken by an employee from January through early March.

On March 22, the attorney for the Appraisal District, the insurance carrier and District Attorney John Mann were notified. Bagley said all information was turned over to the District Attorney this past Monday and an employee has been terminated.

Bagley said today, "I would prefer not to go into further detail, as further investigation is being carried on by the District Attorney's office and I would rather not say or do anything to jeopardize these proceedings," Bagley said.

Marx heads United Way committee

Robert A. "Bob" Marx is leading the Pampa United Way Budget and Allocations Committee as chairman this year.

The committee is responsible for deciding which non-profit organizations receive funding. The committee also aids in determining what share of money each of the United Way agencies receive.

The group plans to meet May 4 for hearings on the budgets and allocations for the year.

In his new role as chairman of the Budget and Allocations Committee, Marx said, "I'll work with the co-chair and vice chairman to review requests from agencies for funding and meet with the agencies and allocate the funds to the agencies."

Marx worked as a volunteer in 1991 in the commercial division for the United Way and worked in 1992 in the major firms division.

Bob Marx

Regarding the United Way, Marx said, "As tax dollars are not used to support all of our agencies, it is important that the citizens of Pampa help in funding them. Without the money from United Way, some of the agencies would not be able to provide their services to our town."

Marx is owner-operator of Nu-Way Cleaning Service. He graduated from Pampa High School and attended West Texas State University. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church and has served on the Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Pampa Board since May 1991, serving as vice president in 1992 and president this year.

Marx served on the Salvation Army Board since October 1992. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and is a former assistant Scoutmaster.

He is married to Johnnie and has seven godchildren, Chad and Shannon Grant, Brooke and Erik Brown, Heath, Jenifer and Hudson Bentley.

Pampan arrested on drug possession charge

A 57-year-old Pampa man was arrested Thursday evening three miles west of Pampa on U.S. 60 on a charge of possession of a controlled substance.

8.7 grams of crack cocaine was discovered in the possession of Dorsey, according to police reports.

Dorsey was a passenger of the vehicle at the time of the arrest. The car was being driven by Shannon Shana Hughes, who was also arrested on an outstanding warrant. She was released early this morning after paying a fine.

Dorsey was transferred to the Gray County Jail early this morning. He was released after posting an $8,000 bond which was set by Justice of the Peace Bob Muns.

Officers from the Department of Public Safety, the Gray County Sheriff's Office and Panhandle Regional Narcotics Drug Trafficking Task Force took part in the arrest.

Commissioners noted the uncertainty of continued federal funding on Lake McClellan projects, which include planned dredging work, as a possible concern.

Applications for management of the Lake McClellan area must be sent to the U.S. Forest Service by June 5, after which the Forest Service is expected to approve a concessionaire for the park by Sept. 20.

Gray County's short-term contract with the Forest Service for management of the park expires June 30, but is expected to continue until the federal agency awards a long-term contract.

• Approved the sale of delinquent tax properties in Lefors for respective bids of $1,000 and $100. The parcels of property are owned by Gray County, Lefors Independent School District, and the city of Lefors.

• Received certificates for completion of 16 hours of training by each of the four commissioners as required each year by the state.

• Approved the transfer of $32,817 from the county's general fund to its salary fund and the payment of $127,096 for salaries and $138,258 for bills.

• Voted not to join in a class-action lawsuit initiated by Orange County against National Gypsum Co. Gray County had received a letter from Orange County informing it that Gray County would be included as a plaintiff in the lawsuit — the subject of which was not known to Gray County, Kennedy said — unless it specifically asked to be excluded.

Kennedy, noting that National Gypsum Co. has filed for bankruptcy, explained after the commissioners meeting that "We just don't want to be a party to suing and causing people to close down and go out of business."

Kennedy noted that to his knowledge, National Gypsum Co. has never had an office in Gray County and there has never been an incident in this county involving that company, he said.

Dispute

Mann said today that his office has been aware of the situation and has received some of the information regarding the alleged theft and termination.

"We haven't received the final report necessary to complete the investigation," Mann said.

Bagley said he does not have the exact costs into the investigation into the matter, which will include bills from the auditor, the attorney and costs of three polygraph examinations.

Bagley said it is the Appraisal District staff's obligation to keep the board informed and allow them to make any decisions contrary to what the staff had made.

"They were very supportive of what we had done," Bagley said.

In other business, the board:

• approved minutes of a March 4 meeting

• approved expenditures for March

• unanimously approved the purchase of a "source code" for $500 from Professional Data Systems of Amarillo. The company went out of business and the code was needed for bookkeeping software purchased by the Appraisal District, Bagley said.

• unanimously approved the purchase of replacement printers. Bagley said the Appraisal District plans to purchase three printers soon and the fourth printer as needed.

During the chief appraiser's report the board discussed changing the meeting time from 5 p.m. to 7:30 a.m. in the summer months, Bagley said.

All members of the board were present.

Buttafuoco pleads innocent in Fisher case

By PAT MILTON
Associated Press Writer

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — The TV movies were made a little too soon — the Amy Fisher saga isn't over yet.

Joey Buttafuoco, 37, was charged with rape and sodomy Thursday for allegedly having sex with Fisher in July 1991, a month before the high school student's 17th birthday. Seventeen is the age of consent in New York.

Buttafuoco, owner of a Long Island auto body shop, winked at his wife, Mary Jo, as he entered the courtroom, and she mouthed the words "I love you." He pleaded innocent, was freed without bail and left arm-in-arm with his wife.

He could get up 73 years in prison if convicted on all 19 counts.

Fisher, now 18, is serving a five to 15 years in prison after pleading guilty to assault for shooting Mrs. Buttafuoco in the head in 1992 in a case that was dramatized in three network movies. The so-called Long Island Lolita had claimed she and Buttafuoco were having an affair. He denied having sex with her.

Mrs. Buttafuoco, whose face is partially paralyzed from the shooting, said Thursday that her husband "is not guilty of anything. Amy Fisher is a liar and a psychopath."

"This girl is sick, sick. ... The devil has come into our lives," she said. "She tried to destroy me, and when she didn't succeed, she's trying to destroy us."

Fisher, who testified against Buttafuoco before a grand jury, heard the news of Buttafuoco's indictment on a jailhouse television Wednesday night, said Christine Edwards-Neumann, an attorney for Fisher's parents.

"She cried when she talked to her mother on the phone," the lawyer said. "They were not tears of joy. They were overwhelmed with everything."

Prosecutors last year said there was insufficient evidence to charge Buttafuoco. They reopened the investigation in February after a former Buttafuoco employee came forward to say his boss had acknowledged having sex with Fisher.

Railey jurors in combat

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Combative jurors faced another round of deliberations today in an attempt to determine if ex-minister Walker Railey tried to kill his wife six years ago.

After 10 hours of debate over two days, the jury in Railey's attempted murder trial torpedoed forecasts of a quick verdict.

In a series of notes to the judge, panel members revealed they are "in dispute" over portions of testimony dealing with critical aspects of the circumstantial case.

A late note preceding Thursday night's recess began: "We are fighting over..."

But the word "fighting" was scratched out.

Most of the notes posed questions over times and testimony concerning Railey's activities and whereabouts the night his wife was attacked in April 1987.

They also included queries about phone calls and a visit Railey made that evening to the home of his lover, psychologist Lucy Papillon.

One raised questions about the judge's charge to the jury.

Railey, 45, former pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Dallas, went on trial four weeks ago, accused of trying to strangle his wife Peggy, now 44 and in a permanent vegetative state.

If convicted, Railey could receive up to 20 years in prison.

Railey told police he spent the night of April 21, 1987, researching books at Southern Methodist University and returned home to find his wife in convulsions on the garage floor.

But mobile phone records conflicted with messages he left on his home answering machine and provided indisputable evidence he lied about his activities that night.

He also lied about a 45-minute rendezvous that evening with Ms. Papillon.

In its notes, the jury said there was a conflict over the timing of that visit to Ms. Papillon's home as well as the times Ms. Papillon said Railey called her that night.

State District Judge Pat McDowell summoned jurors from their private chamber and read them portions of Ms. Papillon's testimony.

Former Dallas minister Walker Railey strikes a contemplative pose Thursday in court.

The judge also gave them the time of Railey's 911 call: 12:43 a.m.

However, McDowell said he could not comply with a request for the times that five witnesses said they saw Railey at different libraries on the SMU campus.

"The law does not permit a general reading back of testimony," he said.

Outside the courtroom, defense lawyer Roy Barrera Sr. said he did not question the jury's "sincerity" in wanting so much information but added:

"This situation could get out of hand. We can not go back over the trial record and retry the whole case."

Meanwhile, chief prosecutor Cecil Emerson said jurors' questions showed they understood the complexity of the case and that were examining all the testimony and evidence.

"It's going to take some time," he said. "I think they're a diligent, well-versed bunch of people ..."

"My idea is the longer they're out, the better it is for the State of Texas ... My level of confidence is pretty good. I feel like we've done all we can do."

"I feel like the evidence was sufficient for a conviction, and the jury is trying to do that."

In essence, the jury must determine if Railey concocted his alibi six years ago to conceal a murder attempt, as the state maintains, or to hide his romance with Ms. Papillon, as he insists.

Asked how his client was responding to jury deliberations, Barrera said:

"Yes, he's anxious. Yes, he's concerned. Yes, he's hopeful. And yes, he's going through a lot of emotional turmoil right now ..."

Psychedelic summit marks 50th birthday of 'tripping'

By DARA TOM
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When chemist Albert Hofmann accidentally brushed against one of his own creations 50 years ago today, he started a psychedelic journey that has lasted to this day. He had taken the world's first LSD trip.

Hofmann clearly remembers that day as "an uninterrupted stream of fantastic images of extraordinary plasticity ... accompanied by an intense, kaleidoscopic play of colors."

Hofmann created LSD-25 — lysergic acid diethylamide — in his Swiss laboratory in 1938 while seeking a blood stimulant. His maiden trip came April 16, 1943, when a tiny amount seeped into his skin.

Since then, LSD's reputation has been as turbulent as some acid trips. Although popular in the underground, the drug earned a bad reputation amid fatalities associated with hallucinations and reports of "flashbacks" — a recurrence of hallucinations when no new dose of the drug had been taken.

The government banned the drug and scientists, for the most part, dropped their research.

The drug was popularized by one-time Harvard lecturer Timothy Leary, known as the "high priest of LSD," whose "turn on, tune in, drop out" advice to students in the 1960s glamorized the hallucinogen.

Leary, 72, still advocates the decriminalization of drugs.

"LSD didn't go off the track. America went off the track," Leary said on the eve of the anniversary. "The danger of psychedelic drugs, the danger of mind-opening, the danger of consciousness expansion, the danger of inner discovery is a danger to the establishment."

Rick Doblin recalls his own first acid trip. As it took effect, he heard an air raid siren and was convinced his life was over.

He rushed outside to "live it up" and suddenly realized he had never noticed the world's beautiful colors.

"I was in this exhilarated, exalted state," he recalled recently. "I felt like all of my senses were opening up in a way I wasn't aware of."

Doblin, now 39 and founder of the Multidisciplinary Association for Psychedelic Studies Inc., or MAPS, is among researchers who advocate medical use of hallucinogens. They will gather this weekend to mark the anniversary.

The three-day Psychedelic Summit will feature talks by Leary; Laura Huxley, wife of the late author and LSD experimenter Aldous Huxley; and Paul Krassner, editor of The Realist. It will focus on the use of mind-altering drugs in mental health therapy and substance abuse treatment.

And where better to hold the summit than San Francisco, where acid trips fueled the psychedelic '60s and made the city's hippie-crowded Haight-Ashbury district an international symbol of the times.

The government refused to approve psychedelic drugs research until recently, when the Food and Drug Administration authorized a study on the effects of using LSD for substance abuse treatment.

Scientists say research is still in its infancy.

"In psychiatry's rush to get on the bandwagon in banning these drugs, something was lost," said Lester Grinspoon, an associate professor of psychiatry at Harvard University.

Grinspoon argues that when trips like Doblin's — triggered by psychedelic drugs such as LSD — are used in a controlled environment, they can have wide-ranging benefits.

"What is insight but putting 2 and 2 together and making 4. But you may not see the 2 and 2," he said.

The American Psychiatric Association, which represents more than 38,000 psychiatrists nationwide, has not taken a definitive stance on the issue, according to spokesman Greg Phillips.

Advocates of medicinal psychedelics stress the distinction between monitored drug trips and dropping acid simply to marvel at the hallucinations.

Street use, however, is making a comeback.

In 1991, 5.6 percent of high school seniors surveyed said they used LSD, compared with 4.4 percent in 1985, according to the study released this week by the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research.

Hofmann, now 87 and living in a picturesque corner of northwest Switzerland, himself warns against misusing his creation.

"It can be very dangerous in the hands of someone ignorant," he said on a Swiss radio program last week. "Educating people about it is as important today as when it was discovered."

FBI doesn't put much faith in Koresh's latest promise

WACO (AP) — Federal agents don't put much faith in David Koresh's latest promise — to end his standoff after writing a treatise that deciphers the Bible's apocalyptic prophecies.

"We have had so many stalling tactics over such a long period of time we are not that overly optimistic," FBI spokesman Richard Swensen said Thursday.

In the meantime, the doomsday prophet won't get the peace and quiet most writers crave.

The FBI said it will keep on bombarding the cult compound with nerve-racking noise at night.

Those sounds, blared by loudspeakers, have included dentists' drills, rabbits being slaughtered and thundering locomotives.

Earlier this week, Koresh promised to end the standoff once he completes a tract that deciphers the Book of Revelation's Seven Seals, which foretell the end of the world.

Religious scholars have tried for centuries to decipher the Seven Seals. No one quite knows how long the task will take Koresh.

"We hope David gets his inspiration and finishes his manuscript overnight. We hope a lot of things," Swensen said.

Law officers have been in a standoff with Koresh since a raid Feb. 28 by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms erupted in a gun battle that left four agents dead. Koresh has said six cultists were slain as well.

Koresh remains holed up with 78 disciples and 17 children.

Swensen said the FBI won't wait forever on Koresh, who was allowed to deliver a religious message over the radio last month but reneged on a promise to surrender in return.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Texas Editorials

El Paso Times on drunken driving laws:

Drunken driving can kill — and far too often, it does. In 1991, Texas had 1,249 alcohol-related deaths. ... To help stop the carnage, a state Senate committee adopted a tough bill ... Everyone arrested for DWI, even for the first time, would have their license suspended for 90 days immediately.

The bill must become law. For too long, people have been drinking and driving in Texas and getting away with a slap on the wrist. ... Approval of the bill will send a strong message to those who drink and drive: Get caught and you quit driving.

The Dallas Morning News on cigarette taxes:

The case for a higher federal tax on cigarettes is getting stronger. The Clinton administration has been looking at raising the tax, perhaps by as much as $2 per pack, to help finance health care reform. But the other benefit of a tax increase — to discourage smoking — is becoming more apparent than ever. ...

At a time when policy-makers are scratching their heads over how to pay for universal access to quality health care, why shouldn't the government be doing all it can to change a habit that is straining public health budgets? Every year, smoking kills 434,000 Americans and costs our country $65 billion. ...

Health experts say that many people quit smoking not to save their lungs but to save a buck. A $2-per-pack increase here would be expected to reduce tobacco use by 23 percent. Over time, the lower consumption would save an estimated 2 million lives. Hillary Clinton's health policy task force, please take note.

Corpus Christi Caller-Times, on the free-trade agreement:

Congressman Dick Gephardt's call for border governors to access the immediate costs of implementing the North American Free Trade Agreement is fine if the data collected will be used to acquire funds to meet those expenses the states will incur.

But assessing the total, as opposed to the immediate costs, will not be that easy. One thing is clear, however, over the long term, the trade pact will be a net plus for the nation, according to the results of virtually every study that has been conducted.

NAFTA will open up the Mexican market, with its 70 million consumers, to U.S. businesses by lifting trade and investment barriers. Already, without the trade agreement, U.S. imports to Mexico have increased in the past five years to $33 billion, which translates into 650,000 American jobs. ...

It should be approved; it will benefit the American economy, especially border states like Texas, and it truly represents perhaps the biggest success of the Bush administration. It's an open question whether President Clinton will push hard for the trade pact's approval and whether fiercely protectionist Democrats, like Gephardt, can vote for a trade pact that is truly in the best interest of the nation.

Berry's World

"Non-smoking or pariah?"

Moynihan tells us how to cope

Daniel Patrick Moynihan, easily the most original thinker in the Senate, and its only stylist, has published a brief essay in The American Scholar that he calls "Defining Deviancy down." What it tells us is that societies handle the growth of deviant behavior by redefining it.

If every other person began to stutter, to stutter would cease to be thought abnormal. The crime rate is such that we can no longer experience the shock it ought to bring.

Moynihan quotes an arresting figure of speech, written to him by the same judge (Edwin Torres of the New York State Supreme Court) who had spoken from the bench on how "the slaughter of the innocents marches unabated: subway riders, bodega owners, cab drivers, babies; in laundromats, at cash machines, on elevators, in hallways." In his letter, the judge spoke of "this numbness, this near narcoleptic state [that] can diminish the human condition to the level of combat infantrymen, who, in protracted campaigns, can eat their battlefield rations seated on the bodies of the fallen, friend and foe alike. A society that loses its sense of outrage is doomed to extinction."

Moynihan sets out to explore a proposition of the sociologist Emile Durkheim, writing a hundred years ago. What Durkheim said was that "deviancy" doesn't really fluctuate. There is always a criminal, deviant minority, and it is always about the same size.

But of course the only way to validate the Durkheim rule is to change the terminology of deviancy. This is done, Moynihan tells us, in various ways. The first is altruistic: You cut down the number of mental patients by coming up with tranquilizers that let them lead normal lives, and by becoming more tolerant of harmless abnormality in behavior. Or, you become "opportunistic" — and redefine deviant behavior in such a way as to give the impression that what was thought to be awry is now straight.

"In the years from 1963 to 1965, the Policy Planning Staff of the U.S. Department of Labor picked up the first tremors of 'the earthquake that shuddered through the American family in the past 20 years.' The New York Times recently provided a succinct accounting" of that earthquake: "Thirty years ago, 1 in every 40 white children was born to an unmarried mother; today it is 1 in 5, according to federal data. Among black, 2 of 3 children are born to an unmarried mother; 30 years ago, the figure was 1 in 5."

What is not handled, in the course of "opportunistic" management of the data, or in the course of "normalizing" the data, is their concrete meaning. Moynihan points out that we have got used to about 50,000 casualties a year from automobile driving.

There is an offset here: Cars do serve a purpose. But there is no offset to homicide. And there is no dodging the correlations that continue to brand the single-parent home as the generator of crime and poverty and drug addiction and ignorance.

Moynihan at one point amused himself by playing around with correlations. "I published an article showing that the correlation between eighth-grade math scores and distance of state capitals from the Canadian border was 0.522, a respectable showing. By contrast, the correlation with per pupil expenditure was a derisory 0.203 I offered the policy proposal that states wishing to improve their schools should move closer to Canada."

But the lengths to which some will go to "normalize" rather than to cope with is illustrated with creepy exactitude by a woman scholar (I shield her name) who handles the question of marriage in this way:

"The life course is full of exciting options. The lifestyle options available to individuals seeking a fulfilling personal relationship include living a heterosexual, homosexual or bisexual single lifestyle; living in a commune; having a group marriage; being a single parent; or living together. Marriage is yet another lifestyle choice. However, before choosing marriage, individuals should weigh its costs and benefits against other lifestyle options and should consider what they want to get out of their intimate relationships."

"Though marriage can offer a rewarding path to personal growth, it is important to remember that it cannot provide a secure or permanent status. Many people will make the decision between marriage and singlehood many times throughout their life."

"Divorce represents part of the normal family life cycle. It should not be viewed as either deviant or tragic, as it has been in the past. Rather, it establishes a process for 'uncoupling' and thereby serves as the foundation for individual renewal and 'new beginnings.'"

Moynihan's sophisticated treatment of the normalization of deviancy is nothing less than a cry from the heart.

Today in history

Today is Friday, April 16, the 106th day of 1993. There are 259 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 16, 1889 comedian and movie director Charles Chaplin, creator of film classics including "The Tramp," "The Gold Rush," "City Lights" and "Modern Times," was born in London.

On this date:

In 1862, a bill ending slavery in the District of Columbia became law.

In 1879, Saint Bernadette, who had described seeing visions of the Virgin Mary at Lourdes, died in Nevers, France.

In 1912, Harriet Quimby became the first woman to fly across the English Channel, using a Bleriot monoplane to travel from Dover, England, to Hardelot, France.

Where have all the heroes gone?

As a means of solving inter-nation differences, war has gone out of style.

American GIs are likely to return from overseas duty more revered than ever.

The newest frontiers in space are explored by such a complex consortium that there is no longer the individual focus necessarily to lionize a Lindbergh.

Necessarily, today's medical accomplishments derive from such complex interaction that today's miracles are accomplished by a network of researchers — nameless faceless, impersonal.

No more Madam Curies, Alexander Flemings, Walter Reeds or Jonas Salks.

The clergy, with so few notable exceptions, has discredited itself.

The profession of politics has become so sullied that nobody in government really claims reverential acclaim anymore.

The closest thing Americans have to what we used to call heroes are athletes, play-actors and TV personalities.

Few of whom give youngsters much to live up to.

Paul Harvey

I was reminded of this dearth of heroes when I looked back over the life of Bob Rushworth.

Bob who?

That's what I mean.

There was no more dangerous flying duty during World War II than the hop over The Hump — from India across the Himalayas to Shanghai and Peking.

For American fliers, the most hazardous 500 miles in the world were over The Hump.

For every thousand hours of flying time two of our C-47s didn't make it.

There was a wry jest in the CBI (China-Burma-India) theater that navigation was easy because our pilots had only to follow the aluminum trail — of our many crashed aircraft.

One of the gallant handful of American pilots who survived The Hump was Bob Rushworth.

A lad from Madison, Maine

Then, four years of college later, Bob was back in uniform and flight-testing American aircraft for Korea.

When our Air Force was looking for men with "the right stuff" for the X-15 program, they tagged Bob Rushworth first.

And it was the X-15 that explored hypersonic aerodynamics 54 miles high eventually to smash through holes in the sky as the world's first winged astronauts.

Then came Vietnam — and for Bob Rushworth another 189 combat missions.

When Maj. Gen. Robert A. Rushworth, retired, died the other day in bed, he died with less recognition for more achievement than any airman I know.

Clinton's style lacks LBJ's bite

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's message bore the LBJ brand, but he didn't have the horses to go with it and move a balky Senate.

So his call to Republicans to come, let us reason together, lacked the warning — "or else" — that was implicit when Lyndon B. Johnson used to issue such invitations.

Leaning on the strategies of two predecessors, Clinton has tried his version of the Johnson treatment, and his adaptation of Ronald Reagan's first-term congressional push. It's been to no avail so far in the stalemate on his $16.3 billion bill to stimulate the economy.

He's had two problems in trying to do it their way: numbers, which can't be altered; and a misreading of the power of an opposition minority, which can be changed, although belatedly.

"The American people ... are astonished to find that 41 senators, just 41 percent of the Senate, can shut the whole place down," Clinton said Monday. The White House had acted as though it wasn't so or wouldn't happen.

Buoyed by the swift, indeed unprecedented, advance approval of a budget resolution outlining Clinton's plan, the administration underestimated the power of the Republican minority to stay his hand on the companion jobs spending bill.

The Republicans can't pass legislation, but when they hold ranks, they can say no to it.

As for numbers, the crucial one is 43, the Senate Republican minority. That's more than enough to deny Democrats the 60 votes it takes to end a filibuster like the one that blocked the Clinton bill.

And, as one Republican senator noted, 43 also is

Walter Mears
AP Special Correspondent

the percentage of the popular vote Clinton gained in winning a three-way election for the White House.

He was a winner without coattails, making it difficult, if not impossible, to persuade a member of Congress that defying the administration runs a risk of political punishment at home.

Democrat Johnson in 1964 and Republican Reagan in 1980 both came to office with sweeping congressional gains for their parties. In the Great Society Congress of 1965, the Democrats had a 155-vote majority margin in the House, and held 68 seats in the Senate.

Reagan's first-term programs went to a House in which the Democratic edge had been cut by 33 seats, and a Senate in which his landslide had reversed control and put the Republicans in charge.

Both Johnson and Reagan capitalized on that proxy campaign power in dealing with Congress.

After three decades on Capitol Hill, it was instinctive with Johnson. He'd been the Senate majority leader, but was careful to deal with Republicans against the day he'd need them.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, the Republican leader, once lamented that he'd had six calls in one day from the Democratic president. "I can't get my work done because he's always got me on the phone," he complained.

When Johnson needed Republican help to end a southern Democratic filibuster against landmark civil rights legislation, Dirksen supplied it.

For Reagan, a coalition including Democrats was essential, since he was up against a Democratic House as he sought to cut taxes and the budget while boosting defense spending. So he campaigned and lobbied intensively to recruit conservative Democrats for his program. When his economic plan passed the House, 55 Democrats voted for it.

Reagan had a controversial social agenda to pursue — the one Clinton is trying to reverse now, notably by undoing abortion restrictions. But Reagan pursued it after he got his economic plan through, not while he was trying to win support for it. Clinton has risked the diversion.

While there have been gestures from Clinton to Republicans, his economic plan offered none, counting on the votes of majority Democrats for enactment. But a majority isn't enough in the Senate; it takes 60 to compel action. An early compromise offer might have splintered away enough moderate, maverick Republicans to get there.

There was none, and the price of compromise probably has gone higher now. Sen. George Mitchell, the Democratic leader, said the obvious one is a cut in the Clinton jobs spending plan by however much it takes to persuade some Republicans to break party ranks.

"But let's not talk about compromise," Clinton said angrily on Monday, even though he'll get around to it later. "This is about whether you want to reduce the unemployment rate. ... They want more people to stay out of work."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE VILLAINOUS NAME OF HEROD!

THE NAME OF KING HEROD IS SYNONYMOUS WITH CRUELTY AND MURDER IN THE BIBLE—BUT NOT TO JUST ONE MAN! HEROD WAS THE FAMILY NAME OF SEVERAL KINGS; A FAMILY IN EDOM WHERE, IT IS SAID, THEY WERE FORCIBLY CONVERTED TO JUDAISM ABOUT 125 B.C. THEY RULED IN PALESTINE FROM 46 B.C. TO A.D. 100. HEROD THE GREAT (73-4 B.C.) WAS THE RULER WHO, WHEN HEARING A FUTURE KING (JESUS) WAS BORN IN BETHLEHEM, ORDERED ALL MALE BABIES UP TO AGE THREE IN THAT TOWN BE SLAUGHTERED SO THERE COULD BE NO THREAT TO HIS THRONE! BUT....

...IT WAS HIS SON, HEROD ANTIPAS, WHO ORDERED THE BEHEADING OF JOHN THE BAPTIST AT THE INSTIGATION OF HIS WIFE, HERODIAS, WHO HATED JOHN FOR VILIFYING HER MARRIAGE TO HEROD ANTIPAS WHILE SHE WAS STILL THE WIFE OF HALF-BROTHER HEROD PHILIP! HEROD AGRIPPA I, A GRANDSON, KEPT FAMILY TRADITION ALIVE BY KILLING THE APOSTLE JAMES AND IMPRISONING PETER. HIS SON, HEROD AGRIPPA II, COMPLETED THE FAMILY ROLE OF VILLAINY BY FIGHTING ON THE SIDE OF THE ROMANS WHEN THE JEWS BEGAN THEIR REVOLT AGAINST ROME IN A.D. 66—A RECORD OF WHICH ONLY A HEROD COULD BE PROUD!

St. Theresa Catholic Church sets dinner

PANHANDLE — The annual barbecue dinner sponsored by St. Theresa Catholic Church is set for April 25 in the church parish hall.

The all-you-can-eat meal will be served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The meal includes barbecue beef, potato salad, cole slaw, beans, bread and apricots. A country store will feature homemade items and barbecue meat and sauce to go will also be on sale.

St. Theresa Church can be located by taking Spur 293 off of U.S. 60 in Panhandle.

First Church of Nazarene plans revival services

First Church of the Nazarene, 500 N. West St., will be having revival services with the Rev. Dwight E. Neuenschwander beginning Wednesday and continuing through April 25.

Wednesday through Saturday services are set for 7 p.m. The Sunday evening service will be at 6 p.m.

Neuenschwander served in the National Guard, Navy and Air Force and later graduated from Southern Nazarene University. He received a master's degree from the University of Northern Colorado with a major in higher education administration. He has a doctorate of divinity from Mid-America Nazarene College.

Following pastorates in Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado he served in the administration of Nazarene Bible College at Colorado Springs for 10 years. In addition to administration duties, he taught evangelism, missions and other courses in the practices of pastoral ministry.

After leaving Bible College he served with the international headquarters in the division of evangelism where he was acting director for a period of time. He later served as district superintendent of New Zealand and since 1985 has served in his present position as superintendent of Nebraska district.

His ministry has carried him throughout the United States, Canada and various world areas where he has conducted revival meetings, personal evangelism and church growth seminars and spoken for camp meetings and youth camps.

April 25 will be rally day with church dinner and fellowship time after the morning worship service. Pastor Jim Davenport said the public is invited to attend the services.

Book details history of Methodists in Pampa area

The first recorded history of Methodist churches in the area, titled "A Century of Methodism in the Eastern Panhandle," will be available May 1 through the Pampa district office.

The collection of stories of 34 churches will include Clarendon's founder Lewis Carhart and his lost church bell, the legendary evangelist Abe Mulkey whose shouting started churches, a bronco bustin' circuit rider, and the struggles of building the first frame churches on the frontier, followed by destructive fires and tornadoes.

The book will include short biographies of more than 30 early pastors buried in the area. Also included are the names of pastors for each church and dates of service, pictures of the first and current church building and other historic illustrations, and short stories of the small rural churches that have been discontinued.

An introduction to the 94-page book recaps the history of Methodism in Texas, with emphasis on this area, including maps showing the development of the district.

Advance purchases can be made by contacting the Pampa district office at 109 N. Gillespie.

The Original Open-Door Policy

No reservations necessary. Just take a seat.

The pews are still comfortable, made so by generations of faithful folks. When the music starts, you'll still remember the words to the old hymns. In the Scripture, the sacraments, the traditions of worship you'll find a comfort that will enrich your life.

Perhaps you haven't attended church for a while. You've had good intentions, but you just haven't gotten around to it. The longer you stay away, the harder it is to return.

God doesn't ask where you've been or if you have a reservation. Come on home to the United Methodist Church. An open door is our company policy.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A Presbyterian leader is writing to governors of states where executions are scheduled to halt the practice.

Since early March, the Rev. John M. Fife, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), has written the governors of Delaware, Louisiana, Virginia and Texas asking that executions be called off, according to a church release.

The executions were eventually carried out, but Fife wrote in each of his letters, "I do not give up hope that at some point this practice will cease. I pray that you may be among those who exercise leadership by discontinuing capital punishment in your state."

As eastern Europe opens up to evangelism, there is a danger that groups coming in with a lot of money may unknowingly use it as a form of bribery "to do what they want to do, not what you want to do," Denton Lotz told Baptist leaders gathered for a recent church growth conference.

"Unfortunately, many organizations with fine and warm hearted evangelical zeal come into our countries with no knowledge of the language, history or culture," Lotz said, according to a Baptist Press report. "As a result, their presentation of the Gospel often

Nancy Drew goes to college

By ROGER MUNNS
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Nancy Drew, girl sleuth, has solved mysteries for six decades. Now, at a perpetual 18, she's going to college.

A conference devoted to Nancy Drew will be held at the University of Iowa in Iowa City this weekend. Hundreds have signed up, many claiming the clever, titian-haired teen-ager who toiled around in her roadster with her chums, tomboy George and plump, pretty Bess, was the inspiration of their lives.

"Nancy certainly isn't the only literature for kids where the girl is independent and smart, but she's the first one who was widely available and widely read," said organizer Carolyn Stewart Dyer.

"A lot of people who are coming are in their 40s or 50s or 60s. When they were kids, there weren't a lot of things that said, 'Women can do things,'"

It was a University of Iowa graduate, Mildred Augustine Benson, who shaped the Nancy Drew character in the first Nancy Drew mystery, "The Secret of the Old Clock," in 1930. The plot was furnished by a publishing syndicate.

"But it was a very short, routine type of plot, you know, something hidden in an old clock — that's an idea as old as the hills," Ms. Benson, a newspaper columnist in Toledo, Ohio, said in a radio interview. "There was no suggestion whatsoever as to the character, so I made Nancy a sort of perfect person, someone who never made any mistakes."

The publisher wasn't impressed and didn't think it would sell. He was wrong on that.

Ms. Benson, who will attend the conference, went on to write 22 more of the first 30 Nancy Drew books, all under the nom de plume Carolyn Keene. Now there are more than 100 books, with more than 80 million copies sold.

"She still sells well. I restock her every weekend," said Jody Speer, manager of children's books for Borders Book Shop in West Des Moines. "We get a lot of people who come in and tell their kids, 'I read that, you'll like it.' And they do. There aren't that many strong female characters in literature."

The formula is the same as that of the Hardy Boys series, Speer said: "She sees a mystery before anybody else does and has a hard time convincing anyone that there's something wrong. Kids are smarter than the adults in most of these books; I think that's part of the appeal."

The idea for a Nancy Drew conference came about last year when the university's journalism school named Ms. Benson to its hall of fame.

"We were besieged with calls, cornered at parties, people would tell us their stories about Nancy Drew. They all said they were inspired to be curious and relentless because of her," Dyer said.

The three-day convention features Nancy Drew movies, readings, lectures and discussions.

"She never went to college, so to go to the University of Iowa, she would be exhilarated," said university spokesman Eric Van Daanen. "This would be big time for Nancy Drew."

Up to now, Nancy Drew hasn't received much scholarly attention.

"We talk about baseball cards, Little League history, comic books, 'Star Trek,' and some of those things include girls," Dyer said, "but there's very little attention paid to what it is that girls did, what forms their character."

West Bank car bomb kills 2, injures 8

JERUSALEM (AP) — A car bomb explosion in the occupied West Bank today killed two Palestinians and wounded eight soldiers, Israeli radio said.

Reports said a car packed either with explosives or butane gas exploded between two parked buses, one military and the other civilian. Both buses went up in flames.

The blast killed an Arab man who worked at the snack bar near the blast site in the Mehola settlement at the northern edge of the West Bank, south of the Israeli town of Beit Shean. Details about the other victim were not immediately known.

"There was a blast and I was thrown into the kitchen," snack bar owner Motti Gross said on Israeli radio. "Then I heard sounds that sounded like pops of gunfire."

A police official initially said the attack was intended to be a suicide car bomb, which would be a major escalation in Palestinian violence against Israelis. Later reports did not make clear whether this was the case.

Those injured suffered light to moderate injuries, said officials at Haemek Hospital in nearby Afula.

Israel sealed the West Bank and occupied Gaza Strip last month to prevent attacks on Israelis.

The restrictions block Palestinians from entering Israel, but do not prevent Israelis from traveling to the occupied territories.

One of the few remaining Negev vultures strikes a pose at a research zoo in Israel. Following some of the procedures used in the United States to save the endangered California condor, scientists hope to breed the Israeli birds in captivity.

Israeli vultures struggle for comeback

By DAVID MAZIE
National Geographic

TEL AVIV, Israel — If Victor would just fall in love, Heinrich Mendelssohn would be a happy man.

Victor is one of the few Negev lappet-faced vultures remaining in Israel. Mendelssohn is the zoologist who almost singlehandedly is leading the effort to save the endangered birds.

"We're hoping to do for our vultures what California did for its condors," he says. "But it is not easy." The two giant birds have much in common. Although they aren't related — the Israeli species evolved from the eagle, the California from the stork — they are the largest birds in their countries and strikingly similar in appearance and habits. The Negev vulture, whose wingspan is just under 9 feet, is sometimes called the Israeli desert condor.

Surviving since prehistoric times, both of the graceful raptors were brought to the verge of extinction in the 1980s. Rescue missions have been launched to save both. But there the similarities become less evident.

"The California condor is a rich American who gets lots of public funds (about $15 million so far)," laments German-born Mendelssohn, 82, the retired dean of the science faculty at Tel Aviv University. "Our vultures are poor sabras (native-born Israelis) who have to live on a tight university budget."

At times Mendelssohn's project has resembled an avian romantic comedy.

So far, Victor hasn't been smitten enough by any of the three females introduced to him to go into the vultures' mating ritual — wings flapping, neck stretched with beak pointed upward to show he has no hostile intentions, a red spot on his nape telegraphing his excitement.

Victor is about 30. "It may be that he is too old," theorizes Mendelssohn, "so we're going to try giving him male hormones."

Several birds, including young Victor, were illegally trapped by an animal dealer who smuggled them to Europe, where they were sold to zoos. Others were electrocuted while perching on power lines, hit

Mendelssohn tells National Geographic. "The nest didn't look right, and the usual mating ritual wasn't followed. When we examined the eggs more closely, we discovered that they were different. The birds were both females — lesbian lovers."

Then there's Rosa, the aviary's oldest resident at 37. When she was a youngster, Rosa imprinted — "fell in love," as Mendelssohn romantically describes it — on her keeper, Ya'acov Segal.

Despite efforts to find her a more suitable suitor, Rosa would lay eggs only when Segal was around. Eventually Segal retired, and Rosa is now paired with a male bird.

The female in another pair was too young to lay eggs, but she and her mate were determined to incubate, so they flipped their food dishes over and sat on the round bottoms.

Later that couple produced real eggs and in 1988 became the parents of the first Negev lappet-faced vulture chick successfully bred in captivity in Israel.

Mendelssohn first saw a lappet-faced vulture soaring above the Negev Desert in 1945. At that time there were 25 to 35 pairs of the giant vultures in the Negev.

With no natural enemies, the birds lived an easy and long life. They built nests 7 feet in diameter in acacia trees and fed on the carcasses of Bedouin camels, goats and donkeys and on the remains of gazelles and other animals hunted by the Bedouins.

But over the next quarter-century the vulture population began shrinking. Several were shot illegally by Israeli soldiers, Mendelssohn says. As the Bedouins moved out of the area, the birds' chief sources of food disappeared.

Even nature lovers unintentionally contributed to the vultures' demise by hiking close to their huge nests. That frightened away the parents and left eggs and chicks exposed to the deadly desert sun.

Several birds, including young Victor, were illegally trapped by an animal dealer who smuggled them to Europe, where they were sold to zoos. Others were electrocuted while perching on power lines, hit by cars as they fed on animal remains on highways or poisoned by eating pesticide-laden field mice.

In 1975, when just seven pairs were left in the wild, the Israel Nature Reserve Authority began collecting birds and eggs and bringing them to the research zoo at Tel Aviv University. Trades were arranged with European zoos to get back some of the kidnap victims, including Victor and a few old and crippled friends.

By the mid-1980s the only lappet-faced vultures left in Israel were those collected by Mendelssohn. Following the California strategy, he hoped to pair the birds and produce chicks that could be returned to wildlife reserves, parks and other safe natural areas.

Thirteen of the rare birds now dwell in the Tel Aviv University aviary — more than when the rescue mission started but a long way from California's 63 condors at the start of this year.

Still, Mendelssohn hopes eventually to breed enough chicks so that he too, like the California scientists, can start sending young birds back to the wild — in this case to an aviary 40 miles north of Eilat. The first could go this year, he says, "if we're lucky."

In California, only 22 wild condors were left a decade ago. To save the species, authorities brought the survivors to the Los Angeles Zoo and the San Diego Wild Animal Park and began intensive research and managed breeding.

The first chick was born in captivity in 1988. Thirty-seven more have been hatched since. Two young condors were released to the wild last fall, the first of the species to fly free since 1987. One died a short time later after drinking antifreeze. Six more joined the healthy ones in January.

Eventually, it is hoped to have at least 150 California condors in zoos and another 150 in each of two release sites.

Watchful eye focuses on contact lens

DEAR ABBY: Before your readers rack up attorney's fees trying to get their contact lens prescriptions (your March 5, 1993 column), they need to find out if their state requires optometrists to release the prescription.

Just 13 states do so, and then only at the patient's request. Twelve of those 13 states say expired prescriptions cannot be released. Expiration dates vary from six months to two years. Also, eight of the 13 states say the contact lens prescription cannot be released until after a fitting period with follow-up visits. The number of visits varies by state from one to three.

There is a federal regulation requiring eye doctors to give patients a copy of their eyeglass prescriptions at the time they are written. But contact lens prescriptions are different.

Because contact lenses touch the eye, the optometrist must be certain the lens fits perfectly. Otherwise, serious eye health problems can develop. Equally important, the optometrist must be sure the patient is caring for his or her lenses properly. Studies show that the majority of eye health-care problems, such as infections of the cornea, are due to improper lens care or failure to follow wearing schedules. This is why the follow-up visits are so important.

Your readers can find out their state's law on releasing the contact lens prescription from their state board of optometry, located in the state capital. They can get the state board's address and phone number from the local office of their state representative or state senator.

Dear Abby

Before making an appointment for an examination for contact lenses, consumers should ask about the cost of replacement and spare lenses. They should be a fraction of the initial cost, which includes examination fees and follow-up visits.

JAMES C. LEADINGHAM, O.D.,
PRESIDENT, AMERICAN
OPTOMETRIC ASSOCIATION

DEAR DR. LEADINGHAM: My apologies for rushing to judgment without having researched the subject. It may please you to know that I heard from optometrists from every state in the union ... and several from Canada.

DEAR ABBY: Three weeks ago, my boyfriend surprised me with a diamond ring and asked me to marry him. We have been going together for more than a year. We are not teen-agers. I am 35 and he is 39. I have been telling all my friends and relatives and showing off my beautiful ring.

Last week, I had reason to believe the diamond he gave me wasn't real. When I confronted him, he insisted that it was a real diamond, and he even told me the name of the jewelry store where he had bought it. I have since found out that no such jewelry store exists. To make a long story short, he finally told me that the diamond isn't real, but the sentiment behind it was.

I feel betrayed and humiliated. I would have been happy to wait until he could have bought me a real diamond. He is not broke. He could have bought me a ring on the layaway plan.

I truly believe that if I hadn't found out the ring was a fake, he never would have told me. This has put a strain on our relationship. Am I wrong to have lost faith in him? Or should I forget about it and try to pick up where we left off? What would you do, Abby?

NO CITY, PLEASE
DEAR NO CITY: I would return the ring and say goodbye. There is no misery like being married to a man (or woman) you can't trust.

Here's everything you need to know about wedding planning. To order "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Children's dreams reveal emotional development

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass. (AP) — Children's dreams can be a way of gaining insight into a child's emotional development, according to Stephen Catalano, a Boston College social worker.

"In the past, there was a tendency to relegate dream content to the area of psychoanalysis, to view dreams merely as representing repressed drives or wishes," Catalano said. "But since then, we've come to realize that dreams are much more mundane and reflective than we previously thought, and that we can learn as much from ordinary dreams as nightmares."

For example, children may be confronting normal developmental issues that can be vexing or upsetting. It is more than likely that these issues are played out in a child's dream, he said, and it is possible to identify them.

In a Boston College press release, Catalano said dream content analysis can be particularly useful among adolescents because many teens are reluctant to discuss personal matters with adults, whether their emotional development is normal or not.

In one study, Catalano compared the dreams of two groups of 14- to 16-year olds. One group had a history of normal behavior, and their dreams had common themes relating to adolescent behavior: peer support, concern about social norms and the struggle to fashion an identity separate from one's parents.

The other group had been experiencing emotional disorders, he said, and their dream content revealed more confusing, inconsistent and bizarre themes indicating delayed development.

Catalano is an adjunct assistant professor in the Graduate School of Social Work at Boston College. He is the author of "Children's Dreams in Clinical Practice" (Plenum Publishing, New York City), written primarily for therapists working with troubled or disturbed children.

Two Lady Harvesters sign basketball letters with WTSU

Alana Ryan and Christie Jones of Pampa joined Lori DeShields of Sanford-Fritch in signing letters-of-intent Thursday with West Texas State University in Canyon.

The two Lady Harvesters signed Thursday morning at McNeely Fieldhouse with their parents and PHS Athletic Director Dennis Cavalier also present.

Ryan, a 5-10 post, was named to the first-team, All-District 1-4A team this season and set a Pampa single-game rebounding record with 27 boards against Caprock this past season.

"Alana has great athletic ability and has the potential to become a very good college player," said WTSU women's head basketball coach Bob Schneider. "Her jumping ability and strength are evident in that she set the school's single-game rebounding record with 27. She has good quickness and runs the floor well, which will help in our transition game and defense."

Ryan punched in 17.4 points and 12.5 rebounds a game for the Lady Harvesters, while shooting 42 percent from the field and 65 percent from the charity stripe.

"We are delighted to have Alana become a part of West Texas State University and the Lady Buff basketball program," Schneider added.

Alana is the daughter of John and Barbara Ryan.

Jones, a 5-4 point guard, was Pampa's floor leader, dishing out a school-record 11 assists in a single game.

"Christie is a good defensive player and has good quickness. She is a multi-sport person and works very hard at anything she attempts. She has the school record of single-game assists and will give us some depth at the point guard position," Schneider said.

Jones received Pampa's Academic Athlete Award and is a member of the National Honor Society. She ranks eighth in a class of 221 PHS seniors. Christie plans to major in WTSU's pre-physical therapy program.

"Christie excels in the classroom as well as athletics and we are pleased she has chosen WTSU," Schneider said.

Christie is the daughter of Mrs. JoAnn Jones.

DeShields, a 5-9 forward, averaged 25 points and 10 rebounds for the Lady Eagles this season.

The WTSU basketball team now has six players who signed letters. During the early signing period, the Lady Buffs signed Karen Babcock, 6-2 center of Groom; Natasha Taylor, 5-9 wing of Childress and Jana Dextrixhe, 5-7 guard-inside player of Higgins.

Ryan stays focused on finishing season despite knee injury

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

ARLINGTON (AP) — Forget the notion Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan gave any thought to aborting his 1993 farewell tour because of the torn cartilage he sustained in his right knee this week.

"Oh, no, no. His whole focus is to be able to play the rest of the season," Dr. John Conway said after completing the 40-minute arthroscopic procedure late Thursday afternoon at Harris Methodist Hospital in Fort Worth.

"Best case, he misses two or three starts and comes back and throws another no-hitter. Worst case, he's out three or four months and misses most of the season — I don't expect that at all," said Conway, orthopedic consultant for the Texas Rangers.

Ryan experienced sharp pain in the knee during a rocky four-inning stint Wednesday night against the Baltimore Orioles. A magnetic resonance imaging test Thursday morning revealed tears in both the medial and lateral cartilage.

Cartilage is a smooth, slippery c-shaped substance that prevents two ends of bones from rubbing together and grating.

"He wasn't excited about having to have surgery, but he's relieved that he'll be able to come back and pitch most of the season," Conway said, adding he removed about one-third of each cartilage.

Ryan didn't appear at Conway's news briefing after the operation, but the Rangers released a statement from the pitcher, who is playing his 27th and final season.

"I woke up this morning, and when I couldn't move my right leg, I knew something was wrong," Ryan said.

"I feel that the surgery went well. I'll start my rehabilitation as soon as the doctor gives me the clearance to do Nolan Ryan so. I'll be back as soon as possible and should be better and stronger physically as a result of the surgery," he added.

Ryan was getting ready to leave the hospital on crutches soon after the operation. Conway said Ryan could start riding a bicycle today and resume his regular training when he felt comfortable doing so. He will not have to wear a brace on the knee, Conway said.

"I just left him," Conway said. "He was in good spirits. I'm optimistic he is going to recover quickly. I think it would be unreasonable to expect he will be back before three weeks. I'd say three to six weeks would be the window I'm hoping for."

The surgeon said the operation was done under local anesthesia, with the doctors explaining the procedure to Ryan as they progressed, because he was curious.

The doctor was asked if the rain and wet grounds in Wednesday night's game, when Ryan lasted only four innings, was a factor in the injury.

"If he had pulled a hamstring, I'd say yes," Conway said. "But it was a cartilage tear. That can happen when it's hot or cold."

Pampa girls chase district track title

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Writer

Never underestimate the perseverance of the Pampa Lady Harvesters' track team, especially after their performance at last weekend's Amarillo Relays.

Going against a strong field with four-eventer Mechelle Abbott and distance runner Marcy Leal out with injuries, Christie Jones and Shelly Young held out of the 200, the Lady Harvesters still racked up 91 points to win the meet by five points over Amarillo Tascosa.

"We just wanted to go over there and compete and we came away with a very fine team effort. We finished fourth, fifth and sixth in several events, but all those points counted," said PHS head coach Mike Lopez.

Third-place medals picked up by Lilly Ramirez in the triple jump, Jamie Hutcherson in the long jump and Denise Epperson in the 800 proved to be crucial field event points for the Lady Harvesters.

"It's the first time Lilly has ever done that. Jamie and Denise really helped us out," Lopez said.

The Lady Harvesters will have a complete roster when they go after their ninth straight district title today and Saturday in Hereford.

"It looks like all our girls are okay, so we're going to be at full strength. The girls are excited about district and so am I. They want to keep that string going. The girls know all about our winning tradition and they don't want to be the first ones to break it," Lopez said.

Borger figures to be the team to challenge Pampa for the championship. The Lady Bulldogs beat out Pampa for the Randall Relays title three weeks ago.

"Borger could push us, especially in the field events, but I believe we can hold our own. We usually can get fourth, fifth or sixth in the field events and that gets us some points," Lopez said. "I feel like we can beat them on the track, but they could get us in the field events."

Not too many schools will be able to get past Pampa's formidable relay teams, which should sweep the district meet.

"Right now our sprint relay team (Tammy Cheshier, Kendra Rainey, Christie Jones and Shelly Young) has the best time in the area," Lopez said. Our 800-meter relay (Cheshier, Jamie Hutcherson, Jones and Young) and 1600-meter relay (Jones, Beatrice Jackson, Cheshier and Elisa Calloway) have the best times in district, so we're looking to win those events."

The 400 and 1600-meter relay teams came in first at the Amarillo Relays while the 800-meter relay team finished second.

In the boys' division, Pampa's best medal hope is junior sprinter Gregg Moore.

Moore won the Bulldog Relays in Plainview last weekend with a 10.84 clocking in the 100. Among his other 100-meter wins was at the Top O' Texas Invitational in Pampa.

Moore's best time, a 10.7 this season, puts him in a four-way tie for third on the Amarillo Daily News Track Honor Roll.

Harvesters make bid for regional golf spot

Last round will be held at Pampa Country Club

Holding down third place, the Pampa boys' golf team close out the District 1-4A season today at Borger and Saturday at the Pampa Country Club course.

"Right now we're 11 strokes down from going to regionals. We've got two good courses to wind up the season on, so I feel confident we can make that up if we go out and play our best," said Pampa coach Frank McCullough.

Pampa senior Cory Stone leads the medalist race by two strokes over Borger's Bobby Barber.

"I'm hoping Cory has two good days," McCullough said. "He's worked hard all year on his game and he deserves to be medalist."

The Pampa girls appear to be out of the playoff picture as they trail second-place Borger by 62 strokes. "The girls' team is real young this year, but I feel like they've done real well despite their inexperience. Leslie Bridges is the only senior and she's done a good job at being a leader for us," McCullough said.

Two more rounds are scheduled in the girls' division. One round was canceled because of bad weather and will not be made up.

McRae's bat, defense rallies Royals past Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Brian McRae wanted to talk about his game-winning hit, but everybody else wanted to talk about his game-saving catch.

"It kept us in the ballgame, it gave us a chance when I didn't think we had a chance," said McRae's father, Royals manager Hal McRae, after Kansas City rallied for a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees on Thursday night.

"It's a big comeback and an important comeback, because we got off to a slow start," said McRae, whose Royals won for only the second time in nine games after starting last season 1-16.

"I kept telling myself he's not going to get me out. Some way, I'm going to get in the run," said Brian McRae, whose infield single climaxed a five-run ninth inning by driving Phil Hiatt in from third with the winning run.

"I knew that once I hit it in the hole, that (Yankees shortstop Spike) Owen didn't have a chance on me," McRae said of his infield hit, which came off Steve Farr (0-1).

With the Royals trailing 4-0, McRae saved at least two and possibly three runs with a bases-loaded circus catch off Pat Kelly with the Yankees eighth.

"Greatest catch I've ever seen," said Mike Macfarlane, whose two-run homer tied the game in the ninth.

Yankees starter Jimmy Key held the Royals scoreless on three hits over the first eight innings, but the Royals attacked Steve Howe and Farr for five runs on seven hits and a walk in the ninth, to make a winner of Frank DiPino (1-0).

In the Royals' ninth, Wally Joyner singled, Hubie Brooks doubled, and Kevin McReynolds' pinch-double scored two runs and knocked out Howe, who started the ninth for the Yankees.

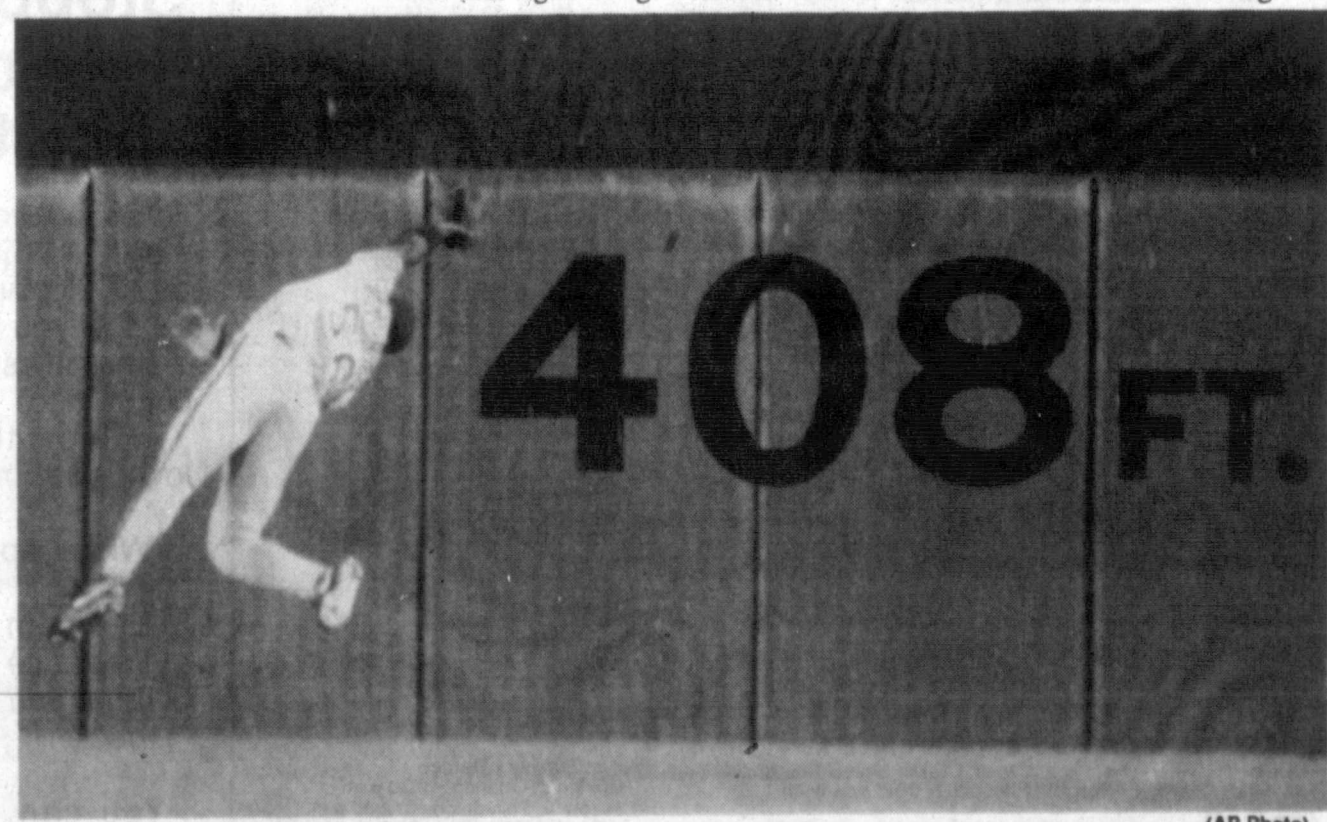

Macfarlane greeted Farr with an opposite-field home run to tie the score and Hiatt and pinch-hitter Chris Gwynn singled with one out. After Greg Gagne flied out, moving Hiatt to third, McRae beat out his infield hit.

Key walked one and struck out four, and allowed only one Kansas City runner to reach third over the first eight innings while the Yankees built their 4-0 lead off Kevin Appier and DiPino.

Bernie Williams' RBI fielder's choice made it 1-0 in the third, Paul O'Neill's sacrifice fly and Matt Nokes' RBI grounder made it 3-0 in the sixth.

DiPino hit Nokes with an 0-2 pitch and the bases loaded to force in another run in the eighth before McRae's catch ended the inning.

Kansas City center fielder Brian McRae makes an acrobatic catch of Pat Kelly's line drive in the eighth inning Thursday.

Stewart takes lead in Heritage Classic

By PETE IACOBELLI
AP Sports Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Payne Stewart, bolstered by five birdies on the front nine, shot a 6-under-par 65 Thursday that gave him a one-stroke lead after the first round of the Heritage Classic.

Stewart had a 31 on the front side, a shot off the tournament's nine-hole record and two off the 18-hole mark.

"I wish I felt this comfortable on every course," said Stewart, who won this event in 1989 and 1990. "I know I've birdied every hole out there and so it's just a matter of going out and playing shots."

A shot behind Stewart were Lanny Wadkins, Dillard Pruitt, Mike Standly and Rocco Mediate.

Pruitt chipped in for an eagle on the par-5 fifth hole to reach 5-under after a bogey on No. 4. Wadkins, who has missed the cut at the Heritage just once in 20 appearances, had five birdies without a bogey for his 66.

Standly, who won his first PGA event at New Orleans two weeks ago, rolled in a 60-foot putt from off the fringe for birdie on No. 17 to tie for second, while Mediate made birdies on his final two holes to get to 5-under at Harbour Town Golf Links.

Corey Pavin, David Frost, and Don Pooley were next at 67, while two-time defending champion Davis Love III was part of a large group three shots back at 68.

Masters winner Bernhard Langer, after what he called a demanding three days of interviews and appearances, had three birdies and a bogey for a 69.

After a spectacular opening nine in which he birdied four of the first six holes, Stewart seemed unsure whether he'd extend the lead or give it away on the back side.

He took pars on Nos. 10-17, alternating between solid saves and missed birdie chances. He drove poorly on the 10th and 13th, but one-putted for pars.

On the 14th, Stewart's 12-foot birdie putt spun out of the cup, and he missed a 10-foot birdie try on No. 16.

He ended with a birdie on the 18th hole after drawing an 8-iron within 12 feet and sinking the putt.

"I didn't get frustrated out there," Stewart said. "I'm playing very much within myself. It's just more of the same when I get to Hilton Head."

"Let's Talk"

By Gary Stevens, External Affairs Manager

Southwestern Bell Telephone of Texas

Last week, the Texas Telephone Association (TTA) made public a commitment to invest more than $1.4 billion in Texas. This would be over and above the normal construction budgets of TTA companies.

A commitment of this magnitude ought to make big news in Texas. Right? Well, chances are, you haven't read much about the $1.4 billion offer, even though big-city newspaper publishers have known about it for months.

Makes you wonder what gives? And perhaps more importantly, what do these newspaper publishers have to do with blocking a commitment that could bring jobs and technological improvements to Texas?

Texans deserve to know why they've been kept in the dark about an effort by big-city newspaper publishers to kill one of the biggest economic boosts Texas has ever seen.

Here's the background so you can decide yourself.

Telephone companies in Texas, including mine, are seeking changes in the way they are regulated. The TTA does not support total deregulation. For example, continued Public Utility Commission (PUC) of Texas regulation of basic local telephone service is essential.

The rate you pay telephone companies for local service is low today, and must continue to remain affordable. The TTA proposes to freeze these low basic local rates for four years.

So, where's the catch?

Telephone companies in Texas are seeking the flexibility to compete in areas where competition already exists. We want the financial incentives to invest in advanced telecommunications technologies; like Distance Learning which links teachers with distant classrooms over the phone lines; and Telemedicine which allows health care professionals to video conference with patients and educators to share medical expertise. Services like these are examples of how telecommunications stands ready to improve the quality of life for all Texans.

Enter the "Big-City" Publishers.

For some five months now, the newspaper industry, led by publishers of papers owned by out-of-state media conglomerates, have raised false concerns about the TTA proposal. They called it a deregulation proposal. It's not. They said telephone company profits are financing foreign investments. That's not true. The newspaper bosses are wrong to make such ludicrous, unfounded accusations.

In an attempt to appease the newspaper moguls, state leaders called for meetings between the telephone and newspaper industries to settle their differences. A reasonable idea.

But, we've been trying to get representatives of these publishers to sit down and talk since November. They refused to do so until just recently and have done little more than drag their feet.

Their strategy? It's been reported in their own words. A paid newspaper industry lobbyist is quoted one day saying his group would continue to seek a compromise with telephone companies. Then, speaking before the Texas Daily Newspaper Association the same lobbyist is quoted saying: "We need to slam these guys. Let's take these guys out." So much for the publishers' motives.

Why are they fighting progress?

Money. The newspaper bosses have used a massive lobbying effort and scare campaign to protect their own self-interests. They see any change in telephone regulation as a direct threat (although unfounded) to their classified advertising profits. As long as they can stall the talks, they can continue to keep any competitive threat at bay.

The publishers would have you believe this is a complicated issue between two large interests that needs to be studied for another two years. Let me simplify the debate, since they won't.

Phone companies are ready to invest $1.4 billion in a fiber optic system that will bring jobs and new business to Texas. Sure, that will help grow our business, but don't forget, we're also willing to freeze basic phone rates to ensure that our local customers are protected.

The TTA group has negotiated in good faith. TTA representatives attended every meeting held, and tried to work with the publishers in every way reasonable. We said "yes" to rate freezes and even to local network competition.

The newspaper publishers, on the other hand, did little more than to delay any progress serious talks could have produced. They offer no vision for Texas. Let's hope their message to Texans wasn't spoken by their paid lobbyist when he said, "Let's take these guys out." H-m-m-m.

Inmates free one of seven hostages after radio plea

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Inmates in control of a maximum-security cellblock freed one of seven hostages in return for radio air time, during which a prisoner warned: "We're not going to give up. ... If we die, we die."

During the dramatic broadcast Thursday night, the prisoner, identified only as George, said another hostage would be freed if the inmates got live TV time this morning, as promised.

The breakthrough came hours after one hostage was found dead in the yard outside the cellblock where 450 inmates were barricaded. He was first prison employee to die in the uprising at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility.

Sharon Komegay, a spokeswoman for the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction, said the inmates would be given air time at 8 a.m. today on WBNS-TV in Columbus. Other stations were expected to carry the broadcast.

The inmates took eight guards hostage when the uprising began Sunday.

Komegay refused to say how 40-year-old guard Robert R. Vallandingham died, but the inmates appeared to take responsibility.

"We hope there is no more violence," said the inmate who gave the radio address. "We hope there are no more unnecessary murders. We as the convict body send our condolences to Bobby's family. ... But that is something that had to happen. A lot of us didn't want it, but that's, I'm sorry. That's all I can say."

In the rambling, 15-minute broadcast, the inmate also complained of prison conditions, denied the siege was racially motivated and listed several demands, including replacing Warden Arthur Tate — whom he referred to as "King Arthur" — and restoring water and electricity, which have been shut off since Sunday.

"We are very oppressed, and we are very sick of it. We're not going to take this any more," the inmate said.

He added: "We're not going to give up. ... If we die, we die."

The scene was described by an announcer for Portsmouth radio station WPAY.

The inmate walked from the cellblock into the prison yard with the hostage, whose head was covered with a sheet. The inmate carried a bullhorn.

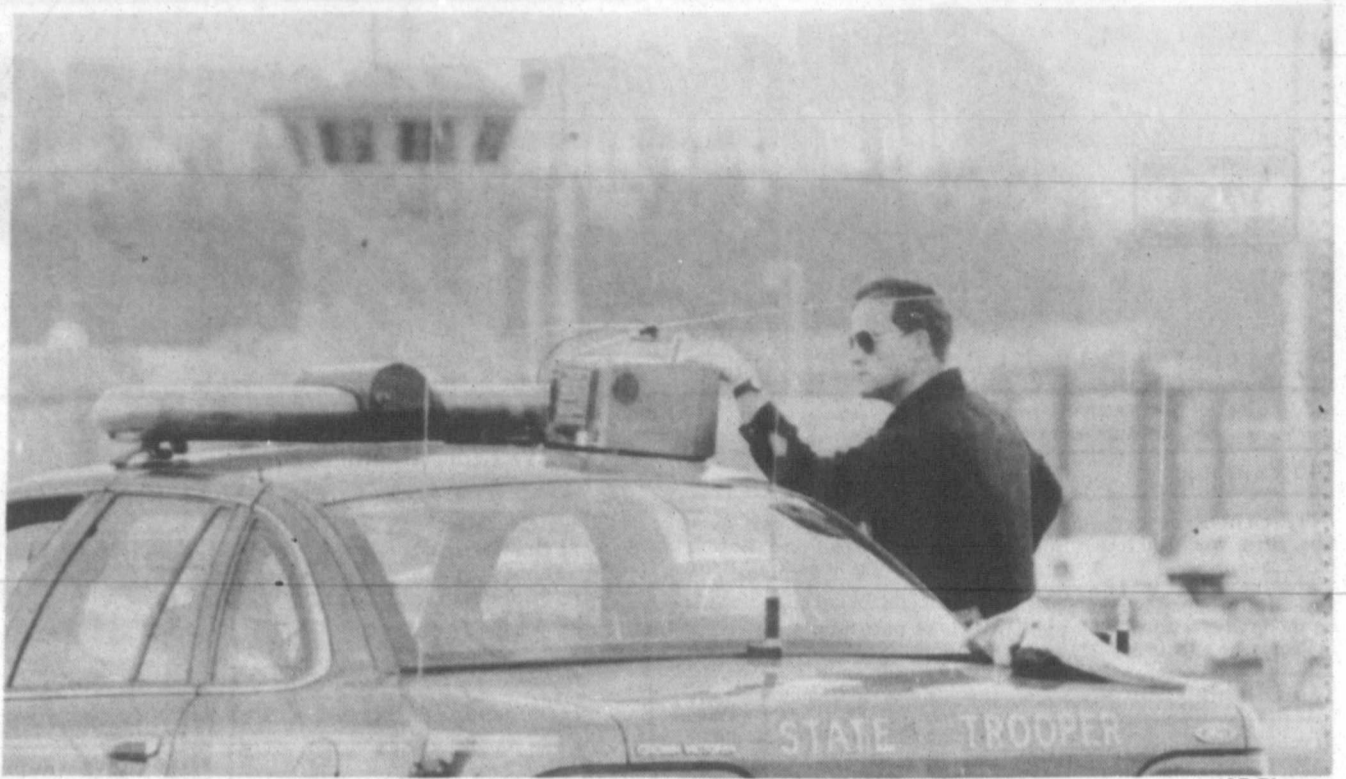

As the two moved to a table where a microphone was set up, the inmate took off his shirt to show that he had no weapons. The inmate then took the sheet off the hostage, Darrold R. Clark, 23, a guard since 1991.

Clark walked out of the prison without assistance after the broadcast, leaving six hostages behind. He was taken to a hospital in Portsmouth, about 10 miles south of Lucasville, where he was reported in stable condition.

The broadcast apparently had been set up during negotiations between the inmates and prison officials, who have been in sporadic contact since the standoff began.

Seven inmates have died, six of them beaten to death on the first day of rioting. The cause of death of the seventh hasn't been released.

The six inmates beaten to death were white; the seventh inmate victim was black. Prison officials have said there was conflicting informa-
