Four fire units and six firefighters responded to a garage fire at 533 Powell Wednesday evening. No injuries were reported. The fire was caused by a cigarette which accidentally set some rags on fire, according to Assistant Fire Marshal Gary Stevens. Damage was estimated at $5,000.

Miami ISD budget healthy despite school finance woes

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

MIAMI — Total expenditures by Miami Independent School District this fiscal year are expected to be about $100,000 less than the $1.5 million budgeted amount, Miami ISD Superintendent Allan Dinsmore said Wednesday.

"Right now the budget looks in good shape," Dinsmore told the Miami school board.

Dinsmore attributed the lower expenditures to lower-than-expected payments on supplies, including teacher supplies, and on insurance for property, transportation, and liability.

Also on Wednesday, Dinsmore said he returned Wednesday morning from a trip to Austin in which he lobbied against a proposal by Rep. Libby Lineberger, D-Manchaca, that calls for massive consolidation of school districts in the state.

If the proposal had been approved by the Legislature and signed by the governor, Dinsmore said, the legislation would have forced consolidation of Miami school district with the Pampa Independent School District.

As of Wednesday, Dinsmore said, there has not been a vote on the Lineberger bill before the full Legislature. But the proposal is facing a "brick wall" of opposition because people who live in the smaller school districts are contacting legislators to voice their opposition to it, Dinsmore said.

Dinsmore also criticized a proposal before the Legislature that would impose a limit on school property taxes of $280,000 per weighted average daily attendance of a school district's student population. For those school districts raising more than that amount, a portion of the school district's property wealth would be assigned to an adjoining school district, to a school district or school districts in that county, or to school districts within that region, in that order of priority, Dinsmore said.

Also on Wednesday, the Miami school board authorized the purchase of two new 15-passenger diesel-engine school buses, at an expected cost of $24,000 for each bus. Dinsmore said that he expects to begin advertising for bids next week and that the school board will probably open bids at a meeting in June.

There are currently six school buses in the Miami ISD fleet. The two older buses that the new ones are expected to replace are each about 10 years old, Dinsmore said.

In other news on Wednesday, the Miami school board:

- Delayed taking action on teacher budgets for the 1993-94 school year until it has learned which state school finance system is approved by the Legislature.

- Appointed school board member Tom Grantham to the school district's Excessive Absence Committee. Miami teachers also are expected to name teacher representatives on the committee.

- Approved renewal of the school district's one-year contract with the Region XVI Service Center in Amarillo for films, film strips, VCR tapes, and media equipment. The expected cost of the contract is $400 to $450, Dinsmore said.

Also on Friday, commissioners court is expected to:

- Consider transfers as recommended by the county auditor.
- Receive a treasurer's report.
- Discuss a request for a proposal from the U.S. Forest Service;
- Consider agreement with the U.S. Forest Service regarding law enforcement at Lake McClellan.

- Consider renewal of Plexar 11 Telephone Service Agreement with Southwestern Bell.

- Consider a request to return auto sale proceeds to sheriff's budget.
- Consider letter from Texas Commission on Jail Standards dated April 22, 1993.

- Discuss a letter from the state Department of Transportation dated May 4, 1993.

Lake McClellan hearing is tonight

Gray County Commissioners Court is expected to hold a public hearing on the county's role as manager of Lake McClellan beginning at 7 p.m. today in the second-floor courtroom of Gray County Courthouse.

On Friday, Commissioners Court is expected to discuss projects at Lake McClellan at the commissioners court meeting that begins at 9 a.m. that day.

Residents can shape future of Gray County history Foundation planned

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

Area residents have a chance to help guide historical preservation efforts in Gray County by offering suggestions for the local museum.

"We are very happy to hear any input that the citizens of Gray County would like to see in the way of exhibits or services," said Larry Franklin, chairman of the 11-member advisory board of the White Deer Land Museum.

Dedicated in 1970, the White Deer Land Museum attracts an average of 2,500 visitors each year, said Anne Davidson, curator of the museum. The museum has 22 rooms of artifacts, all of them full, relating to the history of Gray County, she said.

In November, Gray County Commissioners Court appointed the 11 members to the newly established advisory board for the museum in Pampa.

The advisory board, which has met monthly since November, begins its meetings at 5:15 p.m. on the third Tuesday of each month. The meetings are open to the general public, and agendas for each meeting are posted in Gray County Courthouse, Franklin said.

Davidson noted that the advisory board has been "most helpful. It's been very satisfactory and I expect some great things from this board."

Franklin, a 43-year-old rancher in the Pampa area, said Tuesday that the advisory board to the museum has not yet made progress on development of a detailed one-year plan or of a general five-year plan for the museum.

The one-year and five-year plans were requested in an April 1 letter from the Gray County Commissioners Court to the advisory board that offered guidance on the purpose of the advisory board.

Franklin noted that he expects it will take several more months before such plans can be submitted to the Gray County Commissioners Court for final approval.

"We are in an information-gathering stage," Franklin noted. "We first feel that we need to identify the specific challenges that face the museum."

The April 1 letter from Gray County Commissioners Court directed the advisory board to develop plans for "better utilization of the property and expansion of the services and exhibits."

A shortage of space in the museum, including for the display of exhibits, is one of the current deficiencies in the museum, Franklin said.

Various board members plan to or are visiting historical museums in the area, including the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon and the Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City, Okla., to obtain ideas on development of the museum in Pampa, Franklin said.

Aside from Franklin, the 11 members of the museum's advisory board are Mary Sturgeon, secretary; Gray County Commissioner Jim Greene; Debbie Stokes; David Fatheree, vice chairman; Sandra Waters; Jay Johnson; Anita Bell; Greta Arrington; Claudie Phillips; and Ray Durcan.

A private non-profit foundation is expected to be established soon to solicit contributions toward development of the White Deer Land Museum, said Larry Franklin, chairman of the museum's 11-member advisory board.

Several members of the advisory board, which was appointed by Gray County Commissioners Court in November, proposed creation of the foundation, Franklin said Tuesday.

"I think it has the greatest potential for the museum as an additional source of funding to enrich and expand the museum services," Franklin said.

A group of interested citizens, including advisory board member Sandra Waters among others from the board, is expected to file articles of incorporation for the museum foundation in the next 60 days, Franklin said.

The curator of the museum, Anne Davidson, and Gray County Commissioners Court have expressed support for establishing the foundation, Franklin noted.

Final approval on any project for the museum that the foundation might propose would lie with Gray

County Commissioners Court, Franklin said.

The foundation is expected to play a role for the museum similar to the role held by the Pampa Lovett Library Foundation for the Lovett Memorial Library, Franklin said. The library foundation contributes toward services offered at the library.

The library foundation, the board of directors of which held its first meeting on January 1990, received about $100,000 in contributions its first year, said Dan Snider, director of Lovett Memorial Library.

The library foundation currently has about $350,000 invested in stocks, and the annual rate of interest on foundation investments is generally about 3 percent, Snider said.

Franklin declined to speculate on how much money in contributions he expects the museum foundation to receive in its first year.

"With the foundation, it is practically impossible to predict the level of public support," he said.

The foundation could accept contributions from other foundations and from individuals, Franklin said.

Resident reports aggravated assault

A 28-year-old Pampa resident reported an aggravated assault Wednesday night.

Darren William Hathcoat, 516 Naida, was discovered at the intersection of South Sumner and Wilks by Sgt. Katie Gerhardt as she was responding to a report of a disturbance in the 900 block of South Nelson.

Hathcoat was transported by ambulance to Coronado Hospital where he was treated for lacerations to the head and a broken nose, according to a press release. A beer bottle, hands, fists and feet were listed as weapons in an incident report filed by the complainant.

Several people were questioned in connection with the assault and released and the area around the crime scene was cordoned off for approximately two hours.

The incident is under investigation by the Criminal Investigation Division of the Pampa Police Department. No arrests have yet been made.
 Police are asking for help from the public in connection with the case. Anyone with information concerning the incident is urged to contact the Criminal Investigation Division at 669-5700, ext. 290, or Crime Stoppers at 669-2121.

Colon cancer test could save thousands of lives

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Wide use of a $5 screening test could save about 20,000 lives a year by finding colon cancer before it has a chance to spread, researchers reported today.

The simple exam, called the fecal blood test, is already a routine part of physical exams, and the American Cancer Society recommends it be performed annually on everyone over age 50.

Despite its wide use, today's study is the first to show that it actually saves lives. The report found that getting the test annually lowers the risk of dying from colon cancer by one-third.

The study, performed at the University of Minnesota, is the second recent finding in colon cancer, the nation's No. 2 cancer killer. Last week, another team reported the discovery of a flawed gene that is believed to cause about one in seven of all cases.

"We are the first study to have a conclusive result to show that the test is effective for reducing mortality," said Dr. Jack S. Mandel, who directed the latest study, published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

However, the findings are controversial. At issue is the test's accuracy in diagnosing colon cancer. Ominous results almost always turn out to be false alarms.

Overall, 10 percent of those tested are found to have blood in their stool, a possible sign of colon cancer. Fewer than three in 100 actually have colon cancer. Yet the 97 others must undergo costly, unpleasant follow-up tests to prove they are cancer-free.

Because of the high cost of the follow-up tests, mass screening of older Americans could cost more than $3 billion a year, according to one estimate.

"It's not good enough to apply on a mass screening basis," said Dr. Douglas B. McGill of the Mayo Clinic.

However, Dr. William Carey of the Cleveland Clinic, president-elect of the American College of Gastroenterology, said that while the test is imperfect, the study "demonstrates that doing something is better than doing nothing."

Dr. Sidney J. Winawer of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York City agreed with Carey. "We now have an effective screening method, and I believe we should use it," he wrote in an editorial published with the study.

The study, begun in the mid-1970s, was conducted on 46,551 people ages 50 to 80. They were randomly assigned to have the test annually, every other year, or not at all.

During 13 years of follow-up, six of every 1,000 people tested died of colon cancer, compared with nine of every 1,000 who did not get tested. Those tested every other year had only a slightly reduced death rate.

The researchers estimated that giving the test to everyone over age 50 could prevent 20,000 deaths annually from colon cancer.

The study, financed by the National Cancer Institute, employed the Hemocult test, which is widely used in doctors' offices and at home.

A stool sample is smeared on a piece of treated paper, which is then usually sent off to a lab to be checked for blood. However, blood in the stool can have many possible sources, including ulcers and eating red meat.

Typically, people with positive tests are checked for cancer with colonoscopy, a test that involves inserting a flexible tube through the rectum into the colon. Colonoscopy typically costs between $500 and $1,000.

In the study, 10 percent of the people studied required colonoscopy annually because of positive stool tests. Yet only 2.5 percent of those getting colonoscopy actually had cancer. This means that doctors had to perform colonoscopy on 200 people to find five cases of cancer.

Railey files for bankruptcy, divorce

DALLAS (AP) — Margaret "Peggy" Railey's mother says she will fight a divorce action by a former minister acquitted in the 1987 attack on her daughter.

But Billie Jo Nicolai plans to seek a legal separation for her daughter from Walker Railey, an attorney told Dallas television station WFAA on Wednesday.

"Mrs. Nicolai has never felt comfortable with asking for a divorce for her daughter since she feels that marriage is a very sacred relationship," said Bill Arnold, the lawyer for Mrs. Railey's family.

"However, in California, you can ask for a legal separation, which is not ending the marital relationship and still have a court order Walker Railey to pay monthly support to Peggy for her medical bills separate and apart from the judgment that we have against him in Dallas."

Railey, acquitted by a San Antonio jury last month of trying to strangle his wife, also has filed for bankruptcy court protection that will keep him, at least temporarily, from having to pay for her care.

"We're going to go ahead ... and essentially request that the court grant a divorce and be done with it," Michael Pezzulli, Railey's civil attorney, told the television station.

Mrs. Railey, 44, was attacked at home April 21, 1987, and left for dead. She remains in a vegetative state in a nursing home.

A likely federal trial in Dallas could wipe out a judge's earlier civil ruling that found Walker liable for Peggy's attack and ordered him to pay $18 million for her care, Pezzulli said. Railey has paid nothing.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Railey's family got a court order in Dallas barring Railey from making any fees from book, television or movie rights to his story.

Railey, after that order, filed for bankruptcy in California. Railey has never visited his stricken wife, whom he tried to divorce three years ago.

Lawyers for Railey said that action failed because of legal mistakes. Railey said he ran out of money to pay for it.

But Arnold said Railey dropped that divorce action when he learned that he would have to answer questions about the attack on his wife.

Railey's bankruptcy filing prevents his wife's family from getting any money for Peggy's care unless the court agrees, lawyers said.

In written answers to attorneys for Mrs. Railey's family, the ex-minister said he now has $460.04 and was out of work. Further, he said he had no book, TV or movie offers.

Pezzulli, asked how Railey could claim to be indigent even after having five high-priced lawyers for his criminal trial, said: "You're assuming he's paying for his lawyers. I can tell you he's not paying me. You may need to talk to the criminal defense lawyers about that with them, but I suspect the answer there, too, is he hasn't paid them, either."

Judge reopens abortion challenge

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Abortion-rights forces won a new opportunity to challenge the 24-hour waiting period and other restrictions in Pennsylvania's law.

Huyett set a trial for Aug. 23. U.S. District Judge Daniel H. Huyett III reopened the case Wednesday to allow consideration of the law in light of new Supreme Court guidelines.

The move further delays implementation of the law, which was one of the most stringent in the nation when it was passed in 1989.

"When the high court upheld the bulk of the law last June, it erased the old standard — whether a restriction serves a compelling state interest — and said instead that abortion laws merely must not place an undue burden on women."

After the Supreme Court ruling, Planned Parenthood of Southeastern Pennsylvania petitioned Huyett to allow new arguments on the law.

Huyett set a trial for Aug. 23. "This decision correctly recognizes that the women of Pennsylvania should not have to endure the hardships of this law before having an opportunity to show that it's unconstitutional under the new undue burden test," said attorney Linda Wharton of the Women's Law Project, which is arguing the case.

Wharton said she would present evidence that the 24-hour waiting period is a substantial obstacle. She said she had evidence from Mississippi that women are stalked and harassed by abortion foes during a similar waiting period.

The law also requires women seeking an abortion to receive counseling on the risks and alternatives. Also, girls under 18 must obtain parental consent. The Supreme Court struck down a requirement that women notify their husbands.

Attorney General Ernie Preate expressed indignation at Huyett's ruling.

"The U.S. Supreme Court has already upheld the Pennsylvania Abortion Control Act. It is constitutional. Judge Huyett cannot overrule the U.S. Supreme Court," he said. He said it is a "reasonable, moderate law."

Democratic Gov. Robert P. Casey, an abortion foe, said he was confident the law would be found constitutional.

Japan fails bid to ease whaling moratorium

By LAURA KING
Associated Press Writer

KYOTO, Japan (AP) — Japan failed today to crack a commercial whaling ban when its request for a limited catch was decisively turned down by the International Whaling Commission.

Tokyo had pushed hard for the emergency one-time allocation of 50 minke whales, arguing that whaling was an "integral part of the culture" of coastal communities.

Since the annual commission meeting opened Monday, Japan has been blasting the moratorium as an attempt to make whales "the sacred cows of the seas."

During debate over its request, Tokyo's chief delegate, Kazuo Shima, harshly criticized the anti-whaling countries, saying Japan had been seeking relief from the ban for years — and constantly led to believe that would someday take place.

"How long are you going to ask us to wait?" he asked angrily. "I wonder whether any of those opposed to this have any heart at all."

Shima had said before the meeting that Tokyo might quit the whaling commission if the moratorium were upheld. He said after the vote that Japan would "re-evaluate" whether to stay.

A pullout was considered unlikely because Japan fears it might have trade repercussions, but the development clearly stirred deep resentment. With the commission meeting in Japan for the first time in 25 years, the rebuff represented a stinging home-turf defeat for Japan.

Environmentalists and anti-whaling countries had called the Japanese request an attempt to set the stage for the resumption of large-scale commercial operations.

The Japanese request fell far short of the three-quarters needed for approval. It garnered only 10 yes votes, with 16 against and six abstaining.

Japan and Norway had wanted to resume commercial hunting of minke whales, the smallest species of great whales. The whaling commission's scientific committee says minke could be hunted in limited numbers without depleting stocks.

Environmentalists say the continued ban is justified because the population counts are extremely imprecise.

Norway said before the meeting began that it intended to resume the commercial hunt with or without the commission's blessing. It also has threatened to quit the commission, as Iceland did last year.

Karsten Klepvisk, Oslo's ambassador to Tokyo and a member of the Norwegian delegation, said today that there had been no change in Norway's plan to resume commercial whaling soon.

At the Kyoto gathering, Norway argued it was wrong to treat small community-based whaling the same as factory-ship operations under the moratorium. It suggested that small-scale whaling be considered a separate category, but did not put that view forward in a formal resolution.

Under the moratorium, first approved in 1982, Japan and Norway are still allowed to carry out limited research whaling. Japan takes about 300 minke whales a year in the Antarctic.

The whaling commission was originally a whaling nations' forum. But in recent years, it has moved increasingly toward emphasizing environmental and anti-whaling positions.

The group now has 40 members, 32 of whom were present and voting as of today. The meeting ends Friday.

Teacher gives birth in class

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Teacher Judith Burke interrupted her fifth-grade class's math test by giving birth to her first child on the floor.

"We got real scared," said one of her pupils, 10-year-old Jamie Morgan. Ryan Patrick Burke arrived Tuesday morning about five minutes after paramedics reached the classroom.

"Now that it's over with, it's neat," the 34-year-old mother said. "But if I had to do it over again, I'd do it in a hospital."

The children were cleared from the classroom a few minutes before the actual delivery.

Burke said labor pains began overnight Monday, but she discounted them because the child wasn't due for a month. On Tuesday morning, she told her principal she needed a substitute and called her doctor and her husband.

But it was too late. Burke had her pupils use the intercom to tell the school office and nurse to call 911.

Jamie said his teacher was "white as the sheets."

"All the students were breathing hard and said, 'Whoa,'" he said.

Paramedic Glenn Watson said there was no doubt the baby would have to be delivered in the classroom. "She was in labor when we got there and she was having a contraction right as I walked into the room," he said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

One 'battle' where everyone's a loser

War is different in kind from any other aspect of human conduct, though it is acknowledged as both terrible and sometimes necessary. The whole concept of individuals killing other individuals is unlike any other human endeavor.

Because of the brutality and degradation of war, it has been taken for granted throughout the history of western civilization that mortal combat is the exclusive domain of men. We all know the assumptions — superior male upper-body strength, greater stamina, the inevitable diversions of the sexual equation, etc.

Possibly the single most compelling negative concerning women in combat was and is the known consequences of their capture as combatants and the certainty of sexual degradation by enemy forces.

It is largely beyond question that every woman captured as a combatant in a widespread war would be raped as a matter of course. Not, mind you, raped on a casual basis but endlessly and, in many cases, to the point of death. Those who would survive a prolonged enemy capture would possibly find themselves pregnant and giving birth as a result of multiple attacks.

This horrible outcome is not a part of the radical feminist agenda, we know, but it is the reality of the way the real world works, and the refusal of the radical feminists to face up to this monstrous outcome indicates a flight from reality.

When watching interviews on television of young female Air Force officers expressing pleasure over the new rules which permit them to train for combat and, as a result, find "career enhancement," we wonder if it ever crosses their mind the fate that awaits them should they have to bail out over, say, Serbia or North Korea.

There is something sad about the naivete of those who think going to war is similar to climbing the corporate ladder of the business world. In reality, such thinking is a form of fantasizing, for nothing can change a female's uniqueness and the many horrors that await her on the battlefield.

Should, in addition to the Air Force, the women-in-combat issue become accepted practice by all the armed services, we predict that it will have a conceptual life of, God forbid, one war comparable to Vietnam, Korea or World War II. The lesson the nation will learn will be so repugnant that the rules will change and not even Pat Schroeder will remember how it all came about.

Should the uniqueness of the female soldier find itself placed in the midst of the battlefield, with the female soldier considered "just one of the boys," we will have possibly reached that callous point as a civilization in which, in the words of Robert Heinlein, that civilization itself is not even worth defending.

Plunging into our own ulster

Before embracing the idea of sending American soldiers to Bosnia as part of a United Nations peacekeeping mission, the Clinton administration apparently looked at the British experience in Northern Ireland and asked the obvious question: Why should the Brits have all the fun?

Adm. James Boorda, the American commander of NATO forces in Southern Europe, said recently that getting the Serbs to sign the Vance-Owen treaty was his fondest hope — and, he joked, his greatest fear. What he hoped for was an end to the civil war; what he feared was the obligation of implementing it.

Bill Clinton had promised Americans that he wouldn't send ground troops to end the war in Bosnia. Now he's ready to deploy them to keep the peace, which will be much more costly and dangerous than dropping bombs on Serbian gun sites.

Ask the British. Like the army in Ulster, American troops will be placed in an alien society to enforce and authority that many of the local people reject, facing fierce enemies who can blend into the civilian population, who will rarely present a visible target and who need to do only two things: force the outsider to pay a small but unending toll of casualties, and persist in the cause until he gives up and goes home.

But the comparison with Northern Ireland is not entirely accurate. Bosnia could be a lot worse. It is bigger, offers far more armed partisans to harass the peacekeepers and has three groups at war, not two. The Irish Republican Army and Protestant extremist groups have never had more than 1,500 actual fighters at any given time, notes MIT military scholar Barry Posen. The Serbian irregulars in Bosnia number 35,000 or so all by themselves.

What can Americans expect? First, a bigger commitment than anyone has admitted so far. The British have generally kept some 30,000 men in Northern Ireland, which has about one-third the land and people of Bosnia, so figure the United Nations will need at least 90,000, perhaps half of them American. If resistance turns out to be widespread, says Posen, make it 200,000.

Second, a significant harvest of American corpses. The British Army has averaged 27 deaths annually, suggesting the U.N. peacekeepers should expect several dozen a year if they're lucky and more if they're not.

Third, a protracted stay. The British arrived in force in Ulster 24 years ago, and they aren't leaving anytime soon. If we intend to stay even a few years, we'd better discuss how much to increase the defense budget and when the revive the draft.

It won't happen, of course. The British have stayed because Northern Ireland happens to be part of Britain. Bosnia is not even in our hemisphere. Americans aren't likely to endure bloodshed in a mysterious, faraway and strategically unimportant country for more than a year or two, if that.

But at the moment, no one can say exactly at what time and on what terms we should make our exit. Americans are supposed to trust Clinton's good intentions and sound instincts to shepherd us out at the right time. Chances are we will pack up and leave not when the need for our presence expires, but when our patience does — as we did in Lebanon. Chances are when we do, anything we have accomplished will promptly disintegrate.

The supposed rationale for this undertaking is humanitarian — to stop the Serbs from killing more Moslems. The real mission is political — to uphold the Vance-Owen plan, a pipe dream that can be realized only through massive outside intervention. The accord compels the three ethnic groups to live together in a multiethnic nation even though two of them (the Croats and the Serbs) have been fighting for the privilege of being ruled by their own brethren.

It is silly to say, as Western policy has, that the individual provinces of former Yugoslavia have a right to self-determination but the individual ethnic groups of Bosnia do not. The only plausible way to bring lasting peace to Bosnia is to partition it among the three groups — letting the Serbian part join Serbia, the Croatian part join Croatia, and the Moslems have their own truncated Bosnia.

It may be said that this rewards aggression. But so does — Vance-Owen, by giving the Serbs more than they had before they began fighting. The administration used to criticize it on those grounds. Sen. Joseph Biden, the Delaware Democrat, said it "ratified the atrocities of ethnic cleansing." A better way to put it is that Vance-Owen makes some concessions to the realities on the ground — but not enough to be useful.

The peace accord reflects the belief that the breakup of Yugoslavia was permissible but the breakup of Bosnia is not. Now is the time for the electorate to ponder whether that principle is really worth American lives.

Today in history

Today is Thursday, May 13, the 133rd day of 1993. There are 232 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On May 13, 1981, Pope John Paul II was shot and seriously wounded in St. Peter's Square by Turkish assailant Mehmet Ali Agca.

On this date:

In 1607, the English colony at Jamestown, Va., was settled.

In 1842, composer Sir Arthur Sullivan, who collaborated with Sir William Gilbert in writing 14 comic operas, was born in London.

In 1846, the United States declared a state of war already existed against Mexico.

In 1914, boxing champion Joe Louis was born in Lafayette, Ala.

In 1917, three peasant children near Fatima, Portugal, reported seeing a vision of the Virgin Mary.

In 1918, the first U.S. airmail stamps, featuring a picture of an airplane, were introduced.

My favorite songs

Editor's note: This is a Lewis Grizzard column published last year. he is recovering from heart surgery.

Somebody who care for me despite my bad habits and track record, gave me a birthday present this year — a jukebox.

It's a Seberg 100, manufactured in 1954. It was a complete surprise. I knew I wasn't getting a pony. I gave up on a pony when I was 12.

I was thinking in terms of perhaps a typewriter with a carriage that doesn't stick, some golf balls or a book on how to play gin rummy, something I desperately need before I go broke and have to take a second job at a convenience store.

Instead, I got a jukebox built in 1954. I turned 8 in 1954, back when Cleveland had a good baseball team and Americans built things that lasted.

There were a few records on my jukebox, but the kind person who gave it to me said, "I wanted to give you a chance to put all of your favorites in."

I have a wonderful opportunity here, the opportunity to select my favorite songs of all times.

It is not a task I am taking lightly. I must dig deep into my memory here, careful to select from each of the musical eras that have played a part in my life.

Lewis Grizzard

A man can learn a great-deal about himself in such an endeavor. He can put himself into context by looking at the sort of music that is dearest to him.

I was caught in the birth of rock and roll in the '50s.

But something happened to rock and roll in the mid-'60s, something at not to my taste, so I went to country music, where I remain, with but a few exceptions such as big band, Sinatra, Nat King Cole, and even some gospel here and there.

I've already stated the list of the eventual 100 selections for my jukebox.

If they are symbols of a man out of step with the sounds of modern music, so be it. Frankly, I haven't understood much of anything since the American league adopted the designated hitter.

- The partial list:
- "Old dogs, Children and Watermelon Wine," Tom T. Hall.
 - "Smoky Places," The Corsairs.
 - "Stubborn Kind of Fellow," Marvin Gaye.
 - "My Girl," The Temptations.
 - "Peace in the Valley," Red Foley.
 - "The Tennessee Waltz," Eddie Arnold or Patti Page.

- "To all the Girls I've Loved Before," Willie Nelson and Julio Iglesias.
- "Are You Lonesome Tonight?" Elvis.
- "Chances are," Johnny Mathis.
- "There Used to Be a Ballpark Right Here," Frank Sinatra.

- "In the Mood," Glenn Miller.
- "Happy Trails," Roy Rogers and Dale Evans.
- "When Whoever's in New England's Through with You," Reba McEntire.
- "Midnight Train to Georgia," Gladys Knight and The Pips.
- "Mona Lisa Lost Her Smile," David Allan Coe.
- "There Stands the Glass," Webb Pierce.
- "Mama Tried," Merle Haggard.

I'll get to George Jones and Luciano Pavarotti as soon as possible.

Bill must address the military thing

May is a wonderful month for making up, and Bill and the brass really ought to take advantage of it.

Actually, the brass have been pretty much the passive party in the dispute, so the burden is mostly on Bill. The service academies will be holding graduation exercises soon, and the president could attend one and address the differences that have strained the relationship between the White House and the Pentagon. Memorial Day is coming up, too, and Clinton could visit the Vietnam Veterans Memorial or attend services for the nation's war dead at Arlington National Cemetery.

A group of hardheads led by a retired North Carolina lawyer have organized a postcard protest to warn the president against participating in any sort of services this month. "Please, in view of your activities during the war in Vietnam, let's not see you engage in any hypocrisy by attending ceremonies either at the Vietnam Wall or the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier," reads the message on the card. "While your 'esteemed' conscience led you to organize events that provided aid and comfort to the enemy, American soldiers were maimed and killed obeying the legal processes of representative government."

You'd think an attorney, even a retired one, would know the law better than that, especially the Constitution and that part where it says "the President shall be Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States," but then again, degrees and diplomas are no guarantee of good sense. Fortunately, several prominent veterans groups, including the American Legion, have forsworn the protest and reaffirmed their respect for the presidency and our system of civilian control of the military. As a result, the protest will probably come to naught.

Joseph Spear

Still, it is an indication of the bitter feelings that many veterans and active soldiers have for Bill Clinton the former war protester. It is an issue that should not be allowed to fester any long. He should address it now.

Some of the things he might do and say:

- He should learn to return a salute, and he shouldn't act so confounded timorous about it. The salute is an act of respect, not sycophancy.
- He should call a series of meetings on his turf — somewhere in the White House — between top civilian and military leaders and decide how to go about lifting the ban on homosexuals in the ranks. Not whether, but how. He should personally chair the meetings and hear the concerns of those who command the troops.

• He should tell the brass, and the nation, in straightforward fashion the his avoidance of the draft and his antiwar protests were directed at an obnoxious and even criminal conflict that he and millions of others despised, and were not intended to malign the military as an institution. Yes, he did write that ill-advised thing about "loathing" the military, but it was done in the context of the times.

• He should inform the impudent, extremist, politically correct children on his staff that the military does not have to be venerated, but it will be respected, and the next person in the White House who says — as some young woman did to Gen. Barry McCaffrey — that he or she does not "speak to people in uniform" will be summarily sacked.

• He should take his youthful aides with him when he goes to the Wall and to Arlington Cemetery and, precisely as Ross Perot suggested, make them "walk through all those gravestones and get a sense of what it takes to keep a free society free."

All of this presumes, of course, that President Clinton really does grieve for those who died in defense of freedom, that he really does in defense of freedom, that he really does respect the people who wear the uniform, that he really does appreciate the need for somebody to deal with the Serbs and Somalias of the world.

If he doesn't, then it's a matter to be settled in 1996.

Beginning is 'bright' for day care

Infant and toddler charges of the Pampa Learning Center day care are about to have a new facility come mid-May. Called Bright Beginnings Child Care, it is located at 1011 N. Frost.

The corrugated steel 28-by-60 building has been moved onto its Frost Street lot and utilities were hooked up last week, according to Miriam Lynch of PLC.

The estimated move in date is May 17. An August open house is scheduled following installation of a two-section playground and landscaping.

The building features three classrooms, a kitchen, an office, work room, and child and adult bathrooms.

The day care now in use is in the basement of Clarendon College-Pampa Center. It can accommodate 24 full-time or 30 part-time children up to 24 months of age. Lynch anticipates the new facility will be licensed for children up to age four and be staffed by herself and four licensed day care workers.

Bright Beginnings will also be used for a vocational child care lab for Pampa High students studying child care work.

The new building was funded by a $150,000 grant from Texas Education Agency, which Lynch administers. From the grant money, the building and equipment were purchased. Funds from the grant are also being used for some day care salaries and a home economics teacher at PLC.

West Texas to offer degree in environmental science

West Texas State University has begun a new degree program in environmental science. The curriculum, which is multidisciplinary with a strong emphasis on basic sciences, is offered by the Department of Biology and Geosciences for those interested in protecting the environment.

In 1992, the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board approved WTSU for implementation of an environmental science program. The program is a four-year bachelor of science degree program with a major in environmental science and became fully operational in the fall of 1992. Approximately 80 semester hours are required in the areas of geoscience, biology, chemistry and mathematics.

"The new degree plan was generated by a group of professors at WTSU who saw a need for environmental scientists in the industry," Dr. Douglas Bingham, head of the Department of Biology and Geosciences, said.

According to Bingham, environmental science is a new field which focuses on the interactions between people and environment. The main goals of environmental science are to protect the public from environmental hazards and preserve critical environmental resources. An environmental scientist must be well trained in the fields of geology, biology, chemistry, economics and mathematics and must be able to apply information drawn from these fields to the solution of environmental problems.

The Department of Biology and Geosciences offers scholarships and other forms of financial aid. Advanced undergraduate students are also employed as assistants in laboratories as research assistants on funded research projects within the department.

Merger of Girl Scout Councils a possibility, say board members

Texas Plains Girl Scout Council, headquartered in Amarillo, and Quivira Girl Scout Council, headquartered in Pampa, announced today that they are entering into negotiations to combine the two councils, according to Joan Horn of the Plains Council and Mary Green of the Quivira Council.

If the new council is formed, it will serve the Panhandle counties of Hemphill, Roberts, Hutchinson, Moore, Oldham, Potter, Carson, Gray, Wheeler, Deaf Smith, Randall, Armstrong, Donley, Collingsworth and Hall with parts of Swisher and Lipscomb counties.

Members of the volunteer boards of directors of the two councils began meeting in October to conduct a study as to the feasibility of a merger.

"We found so many similarities that it seemed like the best thing for all concerned," said Green.

"In the days of corporate downsizing, non-profits must also manage more efficiently and get more value for the dollars raised," said Horn. "The new council would serve all the girls in this Panhandle jurisdiction more efficiently and with less overlap than two separate councils could."

The two councils will conduct information meetings throughout the two jurisdictions to talk with volunteers and community leaders about the effect of merging the two councils.

The elected delegates of each council will have the final approval at a special called meeting set for June. If these two groups approve the plan, it goes to the Girl Scouts of the USA national board of directors for final endorsement. If the plan is endorsed, the new council would begin operation on Oct. 1.

Public meetings set to discuss merger

The Quivira and Texas Plains Girl Scout Councils are considering a change in jurisdictional boundaries.

Members and friends are invited to attend an open meeting where executive staff and volunteers of both councils will be available to answer questions and share information concerning the proposed change.

The first two meetings are set for 7-8:30 p.m., May 24 at the First United Methodist Church, 200 N. McGee, Koinonia Room, Borger, and at the First Bank and Trust, 501 Main, Bronze Room, Memphis. In Pampa, Girl Scout leaders will meet with the public at 7-8:30 p.m. May 25 at Lovett Memorial Library.

Young gymnasts

These boys, Trevor Stowers, at left, Cory Fowler, Michael Friend, Joshua Cummings and Mitchell Crow, are members of the boys gymnastics team of Gymnastics of Pampa. "Big Top Circus" is the theme of this years recital at 7 p.m. Saturday at Gymnastics of Pampa, Loop 171 North.

Six- to eight-year old students will be among about 120 young gymnasts in recital at 7 p.m. Saturday at Gymnastics of Pampa. Chris Owens, at left, Payton Baird, Karra Longo and Kyle Porter are among other students who will demonstrate tumbling routines, bars and beams.

Workshop for volunteers offered

The Southside Senior Citizens Center is sponsoring a volunteer skills workshop at the Center, 1-3 p.m. Friday.

Marilyn Van Petten of Van Petten Resource Development will conduct the workshop. Van Petten served as director of development for the Amarillo Area Foundation and later director of development of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center, where she created its comprehensive development program. Later she served as executive director of Amarillo/Canyon's United Way Inc. until July 1991.

Van Petten, a Certified Fund Raising Executive, manages Van Petten Resource Management, a consulting firm specializing in fund raising, volunteer development workshops, marketing and planning. In 1992, the Texas Area Agency on Aging contracted with Van Petten to present volunteer workshops to senior citizens organizations throughout the Panhandle.

New volleys are fired in war over smoking

DEAR ABBY: That letter from 60-year-old "Al" in Sacramento, who boasted that he is in excellent health despite his regular diet of ham and eggs fried in butter, and plenty of alcohol and cigarettes, could gravely mislead some of the unthinking. Assuming that Al is as healthy as he thinks he is, no one should believe that nicotine, alcohol and fried foods are harmless.

I am a 65-year-old male who has never smoked. I do not drink, and I avoid foods that are high in cholesterol. I've been running five miles a day for 35 years, and have no particular health problems. I am retiring this year, but I could die tomorrow from a stroke or heart attack. Who can say for sure what all the contributing factors in a person's life will add up to?

I hope "Al" continues to enjoy excellent health for years to come, although, considering his lifestyle and diet, I wouldn't bet on it. Ask "Al" to write to you again in five years, when he's my age — if he's still alive.

BEN. B. IN PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR BEN: I'll put this in my follow-up file for 1998, and let you know how "Al" is doing — if he's still alive.

DEAR ABBY: I am a smoker. It's not something I'm proud of, and yes, I am aware of the damage I may be doing to my health. I also live with the guilt of possibly hurting others with my secondhand smoke.

I am an intelligent person, but I'm also a tobacco addict. My addiction was once socially acceptable, but that's no longer the case. However, I don't cheat on my taxes, shoplift, practice unsafe sex, drive under the influence, or knock over little old ladies for a seat on the subway. I've never been in jail, or killed anyone either.

Abby, most smokers are caught in a bind — we know smoking is not good for us, but it's a very difficult habit to overcome. All we ask is a little understanding, not an across-the-board condemnation for being weak-willed and self-destructive.

CHRIS IN RIVERDALE, N.Y.

DEAR CHRIS: Thanks, I needed that. We non-smokers should keep reminding ourselves that nicotine addiction in some ways is more difficult to overcome than a cocaine habit.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the man who says he's glad he smokes. He sounds just like my dad. He always insisted that he didn't inhale, so it didn't matter.

He is now 84, and has had chronic emphysema for the past 10 years. I don't know how many times we've had to rush him to the hospital because of his lung problems. He now sits in his chair with the oxygen machine running 16 hours a day.

It's no wonder people are proposing taxing cigarettes at $2 a pack; Medicare has to pick up the tab for millions of people like my beloved dad.

I'm signing my name, but please don't use it; I don't want to embarrass my father.

HIS DAUGHTER, GLENDALE, ORE.

PHS girls go for the gold at Class 4A state track meet

The Pampa Lady Harvesters have the opportunity to turn a dream into a reality in not one, but two events, at the Class 4A state track meet this weekend in Austin.

"Our goal right now is to go there and medal," said PHS head girls' track coach Mike Lopez. "To be able to do that at state would be quite an accomplishment. Mentally, the girls are ready to run and I'm satisfied with their conditioning."

Pampa's 1600-meter and 800-meter relay teams both placed second at regionals two weeks ago in San Angelo to qualify for the state meet. They may have just the right blend of experienced leadership and youthful talent to bring home a medal. "They've got a good leader in Christy Jones. She's our only senior and she's been to

Austin three times," Lopez said. "Shelly Young has been three times and Betrice Jackson once. "It will be a new experience for the other girls. When they walk into that stadium and see all those people in the stands, it can't help but have an affect on them."

Jones runs on both the 800 and 1600-meter relay teams. Mechelle Abbott, Betrice Jackson and Elisha Calloway are on the 1600 team. Tammy Chesher, Jamie Hutcherson and Shelly Young make up the 800 relayers.

Lopez feels Pampa's best chance to medal is in the 1600-meter relay. "To get a medal I feel like we're going to have to run a 3:56 and our best time is a 3:57, so we're within striking distance," Lopez said. "Our best time is a 1:43 in the 800 and we'll probably have to get a high 1:41 or 1:42 at state."

Dallas Highland Park has the No. 1 ranking in the 1600-meter relay with a 3:54.6. Kilgore leads the 800 field with a 1:40.9.

Cold weather forced the Pampa girls to work out inside during the early part of this week.

"We were able to practice our handoffs and timing," Lopez said. "We didn't want to go outside and take a chance on having a muscle pull at this stage of the season."

The group left Thursday morning for Austin. The 800-meter relay event is scheduled first at 8:35 p.m. Friday at Memorial Stadium on the University of Texas campus. The 1600-meter relay event is scheduled an hour later.

Perkins, Payton pace Sonics past Rockets

Knicks slip by Hornets

SEATTLE (AP) — Sam Perkins scored 15 of his 23 points in the fourth quarter and Gary Payton had a playoff career-high 22 points as the Seattle SuperSonics beat Houston 111-100 Wednesday night for a 2-0 lead in their Western Conference series.

The Seattle Coliseum crowd chanted "Sweep, Sweep, Sweep" as Game 2 ended. The next two games of the best-of-7 series will be held Saturday and Sunday in Houston.

The Sonics, who trailed late in the third quarter until Eddie Johnson hit a midcourt 3-pointer at the buzzer, made their first 22 free throws and hit 9 of 12 3-pointers. Perkins hit 3 of 5 3-pointers in the fourth quarter when Seattle hit 11 of 16 shots from the floor.

Hakeem Olajuwon had 28 points and 13 rebounds and Vernon Maxwell scored 25 points for Houston. Michael Cage had 14 rebounds for the Sonics, who had the same record as the Rockets in the regular season, but got homecourt advantage in the series because of a 3-1 advantage head-to-head.

NEW YORK (AP) — Pat Riley, searching for ways to describe his disbelief, stuck with one word Wednesday night.

"It was an incredible, incredible, incredible win," the Knicks coach said. "I've been in 150 playoff games and never saw anything like this. We were dead in the water. Then things started to happen for us."

They happened because of Patrick Ewing, again playing like one of the NBA's best. And they happened because of Hubert Davis, a rookie who was simply scared out of his wits.

The two led a gallant fourth-quarter comeback that forced overtime against the Charlotte Hornets. Then Ewing scored eight of his 34 points in the extra period, including the go-ahead 15-foot jumper with 35 seconds left, boosting New York to a 2-0 lead in the Eastern Conference semifinals with a 105-101 victory.

The Knicks rallied from a 13-point deficit in the final 6 1/2 minutes of the fourth quarter after they missed 26 of their first 31 shots in the second half. Ewing scored nine points and Davis seven as New York outscored the Hornets 19-6 down the stretch in the last period.

"I was never so nervous in my life," said Davis, who got a chance to play for just the second time in the playoffs because of Doc Rivers' back spasms. "I wasn't expecting to play at all. I didn't want to feel like it was all on me. I didn't want to be the one to ruin everything by missing shots."

Davis scored the last five points for the Knicks in regulation — a left-handed layup down the lane and a 3-pointer that tied the score for the final time entering overtime. Each time the pass came from Ewing.

Then Ewing took over the scoring. His jumper broke the last tie, 99-99, before Dell Curry missed a 3-pointer that went out-of-bounds with 14 seconds left. John Starks' two free throws with 12 seconds remaining and Ewing's dunk made it 105-99 with 3.4 seconds to go.

"They doubled me and I passed to Hubert," Ewing said of his tie-breaker. "He drove the lane and Alonzo Mourning went over to help, so Hubert passed the ball back to me and I hit it."

The best-of-7 series now moves to Charlotte Coliseum, where the Knicks won both meetings between the teams this season. Game 3 is Friday night and Game 4 is Sunday.

Mourning scored 24 points for the Hornets and Larry Johnson added 16 despite a bruised leg. Charlotte again was hurt by poor shooting from its outside players, Kendall Gill and Curry, who missed 19 of 29 shots.

"They did exactly what they had to do," Johnson said. "They got the ball down low to Patrick in one-on-one situations."

Starks finished with 25 points and Charles Oakley grabbed 16 rebounds for the Knicks.

New York scored six consecutive points early in the second half for a 65-56 lead before the Hornets rallied with a 12-0 run — their first lead since it was 2-0. The Hornets went on to lead 76-71 going into the final 12 minutes after outscoring the Knicks 26-14 in the third period.

New York missed 17 of 22 shots in the quarter. Starks and Ewing, both 8 of 12 in the first half, combined for 1-for-8 shooting in the period.

The offensive woes continued into the fourth quarter as the Knicks, with one field goal since 8:30 of the third period, missed their first nine shots. Oakley's layup gave New York its first basket of the final quarter at the 7:05 mark, but when Gill scored 16 seconds later, the Hornets had an 87-74 advantage.

"We had our chances to win," Hornets coach Allan Bristow said. "We just didn't convert our opportunities."

Two Wild surprise entry in Preakness

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Nick Zito had another race in mind when he brought Too Wild to Baltimore. Then he had this great idea: Why not run in the Preakness?

"We were going to run in the Sir Barton the same day, but it's 1 1/16 miles," Zito said. "And he was just coming into his own at 1 1/8 miles. So, I asked the owners about it, and they thought it was a great idea, too."

Too Wild will be one of a probable field of 11 3-year-olds in the 1 3/16-mile Preakness on Saturday, and one of four that did not run in the Kentucky Derby on May 1.

The other non-Derby starters expected in the Preakness are Derby Trial winner Cherokee Run, Federico Tesio winner Woods of Windsor, and Koluctoo Jimmy AI, winner of the Cahill Road.

Too Wild is owned by William Condren and Joseph Cornacchia, the same owners of 1991 Kentucky Derby winner Strike the Gold, who will run in the Pimlico Special on Preakness day.

Asked if he'd be surprised to see Too Wild win, Zito said, "There have been bigger surprises, but it would be a big surprise, for sure. I'd just hope he runs well, but if he doesn't, this is America, hold me accountable, and we'll go on to the next one."

Too Wild has had 16 career starts, but just one win, in a maiden race at Gulfstream Park on Jan. 13. He was second to the gelding Koluctoo Jimmy AI in the Cahill Road on April 17 at Aqueduct in his last start. The Cahill Road was a 1 1/8-mile stakes run on the same day that Storm Tower won the Wood Memorial. Storm Tower was 16th in the Derby.

"I started thinking about the Preakness after the Cahill. He was second, but all his times were faster than the Wood winner," Zito said.

That's kind of what got trainer Bruce Levine thinking about the Preakness for Koluctoo Jimmy AI, too.

"He really hasn't beaten anybody, but he's run fast," Levine said. "It'll be a good test for him Saturday, for sure. He's a big, gawky horse, but he's going forward. So, we came to Pimlico to take a shot."

Anyway, Levine said, he wasn't real impressed with the Derby field.

"I really think Personal Hope ran the best race, out there on the lead, and the 1, 2 and 3 horses just picked up the pieces," Levine said. "It wasn't a fast pace, so I'm going to take a shot."

The Preakness field will include the first four finishers in the Kentucky Derby — Sea Hero, Prairie Bayou, Wild Gale and Personal Hope — as well as Derby starters Union City, El Bakan and probably Rockamundo.

"I've watched Prairie Bayou. He's a nice horse, but he's no super horse," Levine said. "Sea Hero, if he wins here, I think he'll win the Triple Crown, but I think this is a tougher race for him, because of the track and the short turns."

Rockamundo underwent minor surgery May 4, three days after the Derby, for a displaced soft palate. Trainer Benny Glass said he worked a half-mile on Wednesday in 46 4-5 seconds "and wasn't gasping for air. He's looking better and better all the time."

Glass said he wouldn't decide for certain whether to run the colt until entry day today.

Rockamundo finished 17th in the Derby under jockey Calvin Borel. Glass said Edgar Prado, a local jockey, rode him for the workout and probably would ride him in the Preakness, if he goes.

"I didn't really want to work him this close to the race, but I had to do it," Glass said.

While neither Woods of Windsor nor Cherokee Run was at the Derby, their trainers were. Woods of Windsor's trainer, Ben Perkins Jr., had Storm Tower in Kentucky, and Cherokee Run's trainer, Frank Alexander, had Wallenda, who was 13th.

Woods of Windsor is the local connection. He won the Tesio here April 24 and started his career with two seconds and a win at Laurel, Md. Cherokee Run comes into the Preakness off consecutive victories in the Derby Trial on April 24 at Churchill Downs and the Lafayette on April 6 at Keeneland. He has won three of four this year.

Cherokee Run worked three-eighths of a mile in 37 3-5 Wednesday at Belmont Park in New York and was scheduled to ship to Baltimore today.

Leg injury puts Ryan back on disabled list

ARLINGTON (AP) — Nolan Ryan's wondrous right arm is holding up through his record 27th and final major league season. Trouble is, the rest of his body isn't.

Ryan, 46, has emerged from his last two starts with a leg injury that has put him on the disabled list and sent him back to his ranch in Alvin, Texas.

He's learning what the neighborhood looks like at 2 in the afternoon on a quiet spring day, something he's never known before and something he doesn't care to know now.

It's a glimpse of what retirement looks like.

Ryan's last swing through summer has come down to this: He's spending more time on the DL than on the mound and popping more pain pills than fastballs.

The Texas Rangers took the cautious approach Wednesday, putting Ryan on the 15-day disabled list retroactive to May 8.

In his first start back from the first knee surgery of his career, Ryan strained a hip muscle in his left leg Friday during a rundown play at Kansas City.

Dr. John Conway of Fort Worth, who performed arthroscopic surgery to repair torn cartilage in Ryan's right knee on April 15, examined

Ryan on Tuesday and said the inflammation in the hip muscle had subsided.

Ryan had said he hoped to miss only one start. But he couldn't avoid his 15th career trip to the DL and won't return until May 23, forcing him to miss two starts.

Ryan, baseball's all-time strikeout leader, is 1-2 with a 4.50 ERA in three starts this farewell season.

He beat Boston in Texas' last home opener at Arlington Stadium, then lost to Baltimore in a laborious four-inning stint in which he aggravated the torn cartilage in his right knee.

Search starts for successor to Schultz

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — For the people who will choose his successor, it would have been much easier if Dick Schultz resigned in September rather than May.

"There's not a worse time for getting academic people together than the summer time," said Joseph Crowley, NCAA president and chairman of the group that will pick a new executive director. "I would guess it probably will take us about 5-6 months."

Twenty-four hours after Schultz announced he was resigning in the face of allegations concerning improper loans at Virginia, Crowley was just starting to get everything organized and begin the search for a successor.

The 14-person executive committee will conduct the search. But their final choice must be approved by the NCAA Presidents Commission and the newly created joint policy board.

One major difference between now and 1987, when Schultz replaced a retiring Walter Byers, is that the joint policy board did not exist. But now, created by a vote of NCAA schools last January, the board consists of the NCAA Administrative Committee and the four officers of the presidents commission. Under NCAA bylaws, the executive committee and the joint policy board have supervision over the staff, including the executive director.

"I think that's going to put a different balance in the decision-making, a different focus," said Claire Gaudiani, president of Connecticut College and one of the four presidents commission officers.

"The most important thing I and a number of presidents are looking for is a person who will put the reform agenda right up front," Gaudiani said. "It may even be this is the time to have one of the presidents designated. If not one of the presidents, it will certainly be someone with deep experience in the reform movement."

Schultz was an up-front leader for the presidents commission's ongoing reform effort. His successor is certain to be asked to continue that role.

"I would like to have a person very much like Dick Schultz, someone with the same kind of professional qualities," said president Arend Lubbers of Grand Valley State, another joint policy board officer. "I think we'll be looking for someone with certain qualities, not a certain background. It may be a president and it may not."

Presidents whose names have been part of the speculation about the job include Gerald Turner of Mississippi, a former presidents committee chairman; Thomas Hearn of Wake Forest; and Greg O'Brien of New Orleans, current commission chairman.

Sources say other candidates might include Judy Sweet of Cal-San Diego, the first woman president of the NCAA; Big Ten commissioner Jim Delany; Pac-10 executive director Tom Hansen; and Tom Jernestedt, Schultz's deputy executive director.

"We will not exclude anyone by category," Crowley said. "We will be looking for the best possible person. It could be a president. It could be an athletic director, or a primary woman's administrator."

At least one member of the presidents commission isn't inclined to think a president will occupy the office.

"I don't know how many presidents would be interested, to tell you the truth," said Jon Wefald of Kansas State. "Why would they? I think most of us believe we already have jobs that are a lot more engaging and fascinating than being the NCAA executive director."

"That's not to say it isn't an important job and a very challenging job. But let's face it, most college presidents would rather read a biography of Harry Truman than Mickey Mantle."

Soccer day planned Sunday

Giants rip Rockies as brawl breaks out

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Say, what kind of hitting is Bobby Bonds teaching his son?
Barry Bonds and his dad both were ejected Wednesday night following a bench-clearing brawl in the San Francisco Giants' 8-2 victory over the Colorado Rockies.

Baseball roundup

The fight at Mile High Stadium began after Jerald Clark was hit by a pitch from San Francisco's Mike Jackson in the ninth inning. The dugouts emptied, but it appeared order had been restored without any punches being thrown.

Then, Barry Bonds began getting agitated, and the teams again rushed toward each other. This time, Bonds was in the middle, swinging away.

Bonds and his dad, the Giants hitting coach, were tossed, as were Clark and Colorado coach Ron Hassey. Both Barry and Bobby Bonds declined comment.

"If they want to fight, that's not what we're out there for, but we're not going to back down from anything," Rockies manager Don Baylor said. "I guarantee you that."

In other games, Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 4-1, Montreal defeated Florida 10-7, Atlanta downed Houston 5-2, St. Louis stopped New York 6-5, Los Angeles rallied past Chicago 9-3 and Cincinnati beat San Diego 3-2 in a game called after five innings because of rain.

Baylor blamed Matt Williams for the fight, saying the Giants infielder "was pushing guys aside, and that just rekindled the fight. He and I had a little confrontation."

Colorado pitcher Butch Henry (2-3), who started the game but was gone when the fight started, appeared to be the only injured player. He needed four stitches at the base of his right thumb after being stepped on during the brawl.

"Clark was on top of the plate, and you've got to pitch inside," Giants manager Dusty Baker said. "Guys don't seem to know how to get out of the way of pitches anymore. Nobody was throwing at anybody. The score was 8-2."

"I don't know what started it the second time. I was dancing with (Colorado coach Don) Zimmer," he said.

Bonds had three hits and Williams hit his major league-leading 12th home run. Mark Carreon also connected for the Giants.

Bud Black (3-0) pitched three-hit ball for eight innings.

Phillies 4, Pirates 1

Darren Daulton hit a three-run homer, leading

Tommy Greene and Philadelphia past Pittsburgh. The start of the game at Veterans Stadium was delayed by rain for 2 hours, 13 minutes.

Greene (4-0) gave up five hits, struck out six and walked one in his first complete game since September 1991. He missed most of last season with an injured right shoulder.

Daulton put the Phillies ahead 3-1 in the fourth inning with his eighth home run. He homered off Randy Tomlin (1-4) after John Kruk singled and Dave Hollins walked. Kruk, who had four hits, had an RBI single in the eighth.

Reds 3, Padres 2

Kevin Mitchell tripled and scored on a single by Chris Sabo moments before a storm arrived at Riverfront Stadium, and the game was called after five innings because of rain.

Sabo's two-out single off Andy Benes (5-3) gave Cincinnati its third straight victory. After the inning ended, the umpires waited 1 1/2 hours before calling it.

Jose Rijo (5-1) won his fourth straight start despite giving up Benes' fourth career home run and Fred McGriff's sixth homer of the season.

The Reds have won six of eight and San Diego has lost six of eight.

Braves 5, Astros 2

Steve Avery evened his record and Mike Stanton remained perfect in 13 saves chances as Atlanta won at Houston.

Otis Nixon stole four bases, got two hits, scored two runs and made running catch in center field for the Braves. They finished 7-2 on their road trip to Pittsburgh, Colorado and the Astrodome.

With the score tied at 1 in the seventh inning, Terry Pendleton and Ron Gant hit RBI singles with two outs.

Avery (2-2) pitched 6 1-3 innings and Stanton worked the ninth. Greg Swindell (4-4) lost his third straight decision.

Marlins 10, Expos 7

Chuck Carr made his first major league home run a grand slam, powering Florida past Montreal at Olympic Stadium.

Carr, who began the game leading the league with 15 stolen bases, connected in the second inning off Chris Nabholz (2-3). It was Carr's 176th at-bat in the big leagues.

Greg Briley hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning and Rich Renteria went 4 for 5 and scored twice for the Marlins.

The Expos, trailing 8-1 in the third inning, rallied on home runs by Frank Bolick and Wil Cordero.

Richie Lewis (1-0) pitched three innings in relief of starter Charlie Hough and Bryan Harvey got three outs for his 11th save.

Brewers go on basepath rampage in 4-1 win over Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — If the Milwaukee Brewers are going to make a move out of the bottom half of the American League East, they'll have to start stealing bases like they did last year.

The Brewers made a move in that direction Wednesday night, stealing five bases — including a steal of home by B.J. Surhoff — in a 4-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

Milwaukee set an American League record last season with 256 stolen bases, but they have only moved to second on Matt Mieske's groundout before stealing third. Joe Kmak walked and appeared to be picked off first.

He broke for second, and when the Yankees started to run him down, Surhoff broke for home and scored easily as first baseman Don Mattingly, who did throw to Kmak back toward second. "It didn't look like he was moving and I tried to get the ball to both sides," said Surhoff. "It's a reaction play."

Surhoff easily beat Owen's throw and Kmak ended up safe at second. "I just think I was down farther than he (Mattingly) thought. I didn't stop and go back. Once he threw I was going," Surhoff said.

Surhoff's run put the Brewers in front 3-0 and Bill Doran, who was at the plate with a 1-1 count, then doubled Kmak home.

Athletes honored at Groom banquet

The Groom High School Athletic Banquet was held earlier this week in the St. Mary's school cafeteria.

Seniors Corkey Hickey and Karen Babcock were presented with the Fighting Tiger and Fighting Tigerette awards, respectively.

Babcock, who will be attending West Texas State University on a basketball scholarship, also received the most valuable player certificate in girls' basketball and was recognized as the leading free throw shooter on the team.

Other most valuable player certificates were presented to Matt Fields in football, Wes Hall in boys' basketball, Bo Burgin, free throw percentage leader, boys' basketball; Melinda Burgin and Marie Conrad, co-winners, girls' track; Paul McLaughlin, boys' track, Misty Homen, girls' tennis; doubles partners Matt Fields and Bart Britten, boys' tennis; Darcee Lyles, girls' golf and Ty Lambert, boys' golf.

Academic all-star certificates went to McLaughlin and Rhet Patterson while Fields and Conrad received distinguished athlete awards from the U.S. Marine Corps.

Certificates were presented to all athletes who were regional qualifiers and all-district or all-star selections in any sport.

Groom boys' basketball coach Jay Lamb was recognized once again for his 100th coaching victory, coming against Silverton in this season's playoffs. Lamb presented appreciation plaques to coaches Shirley Fields and Larry Reid.

Mansell awed by Indy 500 speedway

By HANK LOWENKRON

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Reigning Formula One champion Nigel Mansell was walking gingerly and driving rapidly in his debut at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Mansell, who had back surgery on April 28, arrived in awe of the famed 2 1/2-mile oval and said he left with respect.

"There were some horrible tire marks on some walls today in turn one. It's a good reminder," said Mansell, who got his first look at the oval Tuesday evening, drove onto the track for the first time Wednesday morning and had a fast lap of 222.855 mph by the time the track closed for the day. "You notice those walls."

The 39-year-old Englishman, who already has won one race on the Indy-car circuit this year and leads the series' point standings, had to pass a rookie test before he could drive without a speed limit.

He handled that process as if it were a Sunday drive to dinner.

Mansell, who captured a record nine races and 14 pole positions in Formula One last year, needed just 56 laps, including warmups, to complete his 40-lap rookie test, driving 10-lap sets at increasing speeds from 185 to above 200.

Mansell then completed several laps above 210, including one at 218.579, while being observed by veteran drivers A.J. Foyt, Eddie Cheever, John Andretti and Tero Palmroth. Less than two hours after they gave their approval for Mansell to continue practicing for the May 30 Indianapolis 500, he had his first lap — seventh fastest since practice began Saturday.

Women training to be first chopper pilots in battle

By JESSICA SAUNDERS
Associated Press Writer

FORT RUCKER, Ala. (AP) — Three women training to fly attack helicopters at Fort Rucker are in line to do something no other female aviators in the Army have done when facing an enemy. "This time we can shoot back," 1st Lt. Angie Norman said Wednesday.

Along with shooting back, the three can open doors for other women hoping to pilot the attack choppers and see their careers take off.

Norman and Chief Warrant Officer 2 Cathy Jarrell, both 28, recently arrived at the Alabama base to learn to fly the Apache, and 2nd Lt. Charlene Wagner, 22, arrived to fly the Cobra. The courses became open to women when Defense Secretary Les Aspin announced April 28 that most combat restrictions on women would be lifted.

The women said at a news conference Wednesday that there is some pressure in being the first women training to fly the armed helicopters in battle. But they said the career opportunity outweighed any unwanted attention.

"We have opened the doors, and all any female has to do that wants to be an (attack helicopter) pilot, all she has to do is just do it," Norman said. "It's easy now. It's open for you. The opportunity is there."

In the past, women assigned to Army choppers in combat zones were in support roles. Now they can fly actual combat missions.

Lt. Gen. Thomas Carney told a House Armed Services subcommittee on Wednesday that there will no change in training standards to accommodate women.

Still, the rate at which women will be trained to fly attack helicopters won't be overwhelming because there aren't many women in the Army to start with.

Women make up about 1.3 percent of the Army's 7,300 warrant officers and about 4 percent of the 5,300 commissioned officers. Of the 1,200 Army aviators, 327 are women, said Capt. Carolyn Walter, who works at a Fort Rucker office overseeing professional development.

Norman, Jarrell and Wagner got the first three training slots that opened up when others dropped out, base spokesman Bill Hayes said. No men were bumped.

Next week, a woman in the Air Force will begin training on the F-15 fighter-bomber. The Navy plans to assign women to fighting ships as soon as Congress repeals a ban on such duty. And the Marines have invited women to apply for flight training.

Instruction began on May 4 for Wagner and May 6 for Jarrell and Norman, but only Wagner has had actual flight time so far. She said the Cobra has more speed and power than the Huey helicopters used in the basic flight course.

Jarrell said she has always wanted to fly the Apache, which she called the "Cadillac" of military helicopters. But she said it wasn't an option when she graduated from flight school two years ago. She said she didn't expect the restrictions to be lifted so soon.

What would Norman say to critics of women flying combat missions?

"Wait and see," she replied.

Judge rules cigarette manufacturers liable for health problems

GREENVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Cigarette manufacturers are liable when their products cause cancer and death, regardless of whether a smoker knew the danger of the habit, a state judge ruled Wednesday.

The ruling by Washington County Circuit Judge Eugene Bogen is believed to be the first of its kind in the country. It came in a lawsuit filed by two children of Anderson Smith, 63, who died of lung cancer in 1987.

"Cigarettes are, as a matter of law, defective and unreasonably dangerous for human consumption," Bogen ruled. "Cigarettes are the most lethal product which may be legally sold in this country."

The decision all but rules out two legal defenses frequently used by tobacco companies: that smokers assumed the risk of smoking or contributed at least partly to their own injuries.

If upheld on appeal, Bogen's ruling would require people suing tobacco companies to prove only that the cigarettes — rather than something else — caused their illness.

"This is, from the plaintiffs' standpoint, a step in the right direction," said Victor McTeer, a lawyer for the plaintiffs.

Lawyers for the defendants, the American Tobacco Co. and New Deal Tobacco & Candy Co., could not immediately be reached for comment.

Anti-smoking advocates said the ruling could lead to a spate of new anti-smoking lawsuits, particularly if Bogen's reasoning is followed in other states.

"It's spectacularly important," Richard Daynard, who heads the tobacco products liability project at Northeastern University School of Law in Boston, told The New York Times in Thursday's editions. "It means that the whole immense effort to prove the obvious is no longer necessary."

The lawsuit is scheduled for trial June 7.
