Hutchison: Investigation 'outrageous'

AUSTIN (AP) — State Treasurer and U.S. Sen.-elect Kay Bailey Hutchison termed an investigation into wrongdoing at the Treasury "outrageous" after several of her employees and an official with her Senate campaign were subpoenaed by the Travis County district attorney's office.

"This is so outrageous. I think it's beneath partisanship," said Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican who won election to the Senate on Saturday by overwhelming Democratic appointee Bob Krueger.

"There are two ways to lose: gracefully and the way the Democrats are doing it. ... I am very surprised and disappointed."

Mrs. Hutchison, who visited Washington on Thursday, is scheduled to be sworn into the Senate on Monday.

District Attorney Ronald Earle said Thursday his office subpoenaed 14 employees of the state Treasury and an official of Hutchison's Senate campaign to testify before a grand jury about several allegations of wrongdoing.

Mrs. Hutchison was not subpoenaed, Earle said, adding that he hoped she would testify before the grand jury voluntarily.

The allegations include tampering with governmental records, tampering with physical evidence, official misconduct and violation of the Open Records Act, Earle said.

"These are allegations of criminal misconduct. They may or not be true," Earle said. "This is an investigation and not a trial. We are trying to determine if there is reason to proceed. And we are going to continue to investigate these allegations because that is exactly what our duty is."

The subpoenas said information was being sought from January 1991, when Mrs. Hutchison took over as treasurer, to the present.

Earle discounted accusations that his office's investigation was politically motivated. Earle, a Democrat, reportedly has been interested in a Senate bid.

Earle declined to comment on his own Senate aspirations. "It has not entered my mind," he said.

He said the investigation was delayed until after Saturday's Senate election so it would not be a disruption.

The district attorney's public integrity unit is charged with investigating alleged wrongdoing by state officials.

Earle said the possible offenses under investigation included both felonies and misdemeanors.

"I think the 1994 race for the U.S. Senate has started," Mrs. Hutchison said.

State GOP Chairman Fred Meyer called the investigation a "Gestapo-style raid" conducted in retaliation for Krueger's 2-to-1 loss.

"Secretly sweeping into state and campaign offices, hauling innocent people before a criminal investigative authority, especially when those people have voluntarily offered to produce all requested information, is outrageous official misconduct," Meyer said.

Gov. Ann Richards, who had appointed Krueger as interim senator, said she was concerned about the inquiry. "I don't think you think about politics here. I am worried about what's going on. I am sure Kay is heartsick about it," she said.

Mrs. Hutchison will finish out the Senate term begun by Lloyd Bentsen before his appointment as U.S. Treasury secretary. She must seek election in 1994 to a full, six-year term.

Mrs. Hutchison's campaign press secretary David Beckwith, whose name was among those Earle's office called, said the subpoenas "were completely unnecessary."

Beckwith said Mrs. Hutchison already had volunteered to give the district attorney the material being sought.

"They have volunteered to turn over certain information," Earle said. "There have, however, been issues of destruction of records that have arisen, and for us to have depended only upon the voluntary relinquishment of records would not have been appropriate."

It's the law City enlists two new patrolmen

By RANDAL K. MCGAVOCK
Staff Writer

The Pampa Police Department recently hired two new police officers.

Patrolman Mike Duval, 46, is the senior of the two new officers hired.

In his 23-years of experience as a police officer, Duval has seen many aspects of police work.

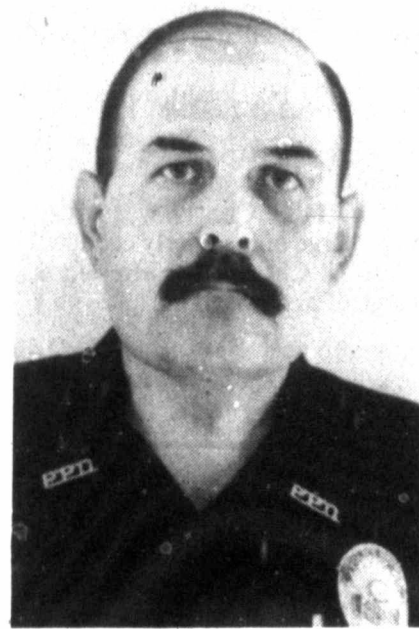

During his career in law enforcement, he has worked in the Salinas Police Department and the Tuolumne County Sheriff's Office, both in northern California.

In fact, Duval was even a police chief in the small town of Plymouth, Calif.

Because of financial problems and the deregulation of the insurance industry in California, Plymouth was forced to do away with its police department and contract with the county for law enforcement, according to Duval, and he found himself out of a job.

About that same time, a labor union offered Duval a position in its investigation division. It was his job to check out possible cases of racketeering and embezzlement.

The area he covered included much of the United States and part of Canada.

Mike Duval

In time and because of layoffs, however, Duval found his way to Pampa and the Panhandle.

"I like the town real well and I like the people I work with," he said.

Duval is currently living in Clarendon, where he owns livestock, and describes the 45-minute drive back and forth from Clarendon as "a good mellowing out period."

"It's a fun job," Duval said. "It's the kind of job where you get to say, 'Gee, I get to go to work today,' not 'I have to go to work.'"

The other patrolman recently hired by the police force was born about the same time Duval started working as a police officer.

Patrolman Trevor McGill, 23, is a native of the area. He was born in Borger and grew up in Panhandle.

Law enforcement is nothing new to McGill, however. His father is a trooper with the Department of Public Safety.

This is McGill's first job after graduating from West Texas State University, with a bachelor's of science in criminal justice administration, and the Panhandle Regional Law Enforcement Academy.

Despite only being on the force a couple of weeks, he already enjoys what he is doing.

"I love it," he said. "Especially now because I'm getting into taking reports and I wrote my very first ticket today (Thursday)." The ticket went to an unlucky motorist who was traveling 52 mph in a 40 mph zone.

Another thing he likes is that the job gives him plenty of freedom to do what he has to do.

McGill sees big plans in the future for the police department.

"You give this place three years and this place is going to be one of the premier departments in the state of Texas," he said, pointing to Police Chief Chuck Flemins as the force behind the projected improvement.

In the next few years, McGill plans to settle in Pampa and get a master's degree, possibly majoring in psychology. After that, he plans to possibly move into federal law enforcement.

Currently, McGill is living in Panhandle.

Sheriff promotes Buck Williams

By RANDAL K. MCGAVOCK
Staff Writer

Buck Williams recently was named chief deputy sheriff of Gray County by Sheriff Randy Stubblefield.

Williams, despite having spent only a few months with the sheriff's office, is very familiar with the area and enforcement of laws.

He began working in the sheriff's office in January.

Before that, he worked for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department as a game warden. The territory he covered encompassed Gray and Roberts counties, an area of 1,800 square miles.

"I enjoyed it and it just got to the point, though, that no matter how good the job, you reach a point of burnout and I reached that point and wanted to go on to something else," he said.

Before being named deputy sheriff, Williams had no aspiration to be anything other than a deputy.

"Since I got to be deputy, I always said I didn't want to be a chief deputy. I don't want a title," he said. "But the circumstances were such that it was presented to me in such a way that I couldn't refuse it."

He added he is enjoying the new position.

Williams said the position is "like any other supervisory job" and involves more paperwork and reports than before.

While Williams believes his experience as a game warden will help him, as chief deputy, he admits he is going to rely upon fellow deputies and the sheriff for assistance.

"I'm going to depend on the men and Randy one hundred percent," he said. "Everyone of them have given me their support and I appreciate that."

He went on to say that he is also planning to contact other chief deputies in neighboring counties.

Williams replaced former Chief Deputy Steve Smith. The position was vacant for approximately a month.

In addition to being the chief deputy, Williams is also a member of the Sheriff's Canine Unit.

German exchange student's visit timely

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

Christine Gwiazda picked a fortuitous time to take off a year from her studies at a German boarding school.

Shortly after she began her studies last fall as an exchange student and senior at Pampa High School, her German boarding school was riddled by neo-Nazi gunfire, said Gwiazda's host mother in Pampa, Ellen Malone. The boarding school is located in the northeastern German town of Grevesmuhlen — a short distance from Gwiazda's hometown of Dassow.

Gwiazda has lived since August with Ellen and Danny Malone and their daughter, Amy, a graduating senior at Pampa High. The Malones live at 620 Magnolia. Gwiazda plans to return to Germany in July.

Despite the violence, which has primarily been directed against immigrants in Germany, Gwiazda isn't worried about returning to her country, Malone said. The Pampa woman noted that the 17-year-old had been on friendly terms with several of the Germans in her area before they joined the Neo-Nazi movement in that country. When she returns to Germany, Gwiazda still expects them to be friendly toward her, Malone said.

"I'm concerned about that (the neo-Nazi violence), but I would say that there are ... many (German) people who actually learned out of the history of the world wars, and they would not let it happen again," Gwiazda said Thursday, referring to the prospect of a seizure of power in Germany by fascists.

The German teenager added, however, that she expects neo-Nazi Exchange student Christine Gwiazda, who graduated from Pampa High School in May, plans to return to Germany in July.

violence to continue against immigrants in Germany, and especially against Turkish immigrants. In one of the most recent incidents, which occurred on May 29, a neo-Nazi firebombing of an apartment house in Solingen, Germany, killed five Turkish immigrants. German Chancellor Helmut Kohl termed the attack "a disgrace."

Although Gwiazda said she does not believe that the Turkish immigrants are provoking the violence against them, she maintained that the German government should prohibit further immigration — with the exception of political refugees — until social, economic and political unification of east and west Germany as one nation has been completed. Political unification of East and West Germany was officially declared on Oct. 3, 1990.

In a candid interview, Gwiazda spoke optimistically about the effects of political and cultural unification of East and West Germany. "It's just a better feeling to be unified, because German people are wonderful people," she said, noting that she has not yet met all of her relatives in western Germany.

Reflecting on her year in Pampa, Gwiazda described it as "one of the most important years of my life. I learned so much about myself. I learned ... how strong I can be."

Gwiazda, who expressed gratitude to her Pampa High School teachers for their helpfulness, said she made considerable progress at achieving fluency in speaking English during her year in Pampa. "I really got a lot of compliments over the last weeks for improving my English, and it really made me happy," she said.

Gwiazda graduated in May from Pampa High School, and expects to study one more year at her boarding school in Germany before graduating from that school. She then plans to attend college and pursue a career as a teacher.

Poorest schools asking for relief

AUSTIN (AP) — Poor school districts today asked a judge to declare the new education funding law unconstitutional and require a new way of distributing state aid before school opens in the fall.

If the law goes ahead as is, projected funding losses would require school districts "to take such actions as laying off teachers, canceling programs, not contracting for improvement of school buildings or buying teaching materials, or enriching curriculum," said the motion filed in state court by the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund.

MALDEF represents property-poor school districts that have won a Texas Supreme Court order for lawmakers to even out funding available to school districts of differing property wealth. Schools rely on state aid and local property taxes.

The new law gives the richest school districts in the state several options for sharing some of their property wealth with poorer ones.

MALDEF lawyer Al Kauffman and others have said the law makes progress but doesn't meet the Supreme Court requirement of giving school districts similar revenue for substantially similar tax rates.

In the motion filed today, Kauffman said the law decreases the basic per-student funding level provided by the state. The measure also changes and limits state matching funds, which are based on local tax rates.

The poor school districts asked State District Judge F. Scott McCown of Austin, who oversees the case, to set a hearing by the end of June and declare the distribution system unconstitutional.

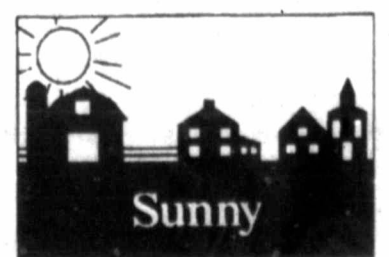

They want new system to be implemented by Aug. 1, designed if necessary by a court-appointed master. The Legislature ended its 1993 regular session on May 31.

They cite a projected gap of at least $600 per student between rich and poor school districts when the new law is fully implemented, and a lack of special funding to build classrooms. They also say there are problems with the way rich districts are allowed to share their wealth.

Aggravated assault arrest made

A 68-year-old Pampa man was arrested early this morning and charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

R.E. McCain, 714 N. Christy, was arrested after allegedly shooting at his 56-year-old wife, Ruby Sue McCain.

Officers from the Pampa Police Department were originally called to the McCain residence on a report of a domestic disturbance.

At least one gunshot had apparently been fired before police arrived, according to police. A bullet hole was found in the front door as police entered the house.

After entering the house, police found the husband sitting at the kitchen table with the .22-caliber rifle resting on the table; police then arrested him.

As of press time, R.E. McCain had not been arraigned and his bail had not been set. He was scheduled to appear before Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge in the Gray County Jail.

Mrs. McCain was later taken into custody on a charge of disorderly conduct. She was later released on personal recognizance.

Recycling service to expand

By JEFF CARRUTH
Staff Writer

One of the projects sponsored by Clean Pampa that helped the city win the Governor's Beautification Award is the community recycling center in back of Hobart Street Park, and the figures show how much of a success it is.

In the year ending April 30, 1993, the center collected over 355.5 tons of metals, 71 tons of aluminum, 10.5 tons of glass and nine tons of plastic. Pampa residents turned in nearly 3,000 gallons of used motor oil and 2,700 used oil filters in the reporting year. The last tire recycling day netted over 2,400 tires.

Clean Pampa is now looking to expand its recycling services.

"Everything we take at the recycling center we are certain gets back into the recycling stream," Clean Pampa coordinator Pam Green said.

So far, that consideration has prevented the collection of waste paper. Market conditions have hindered Clean Pampa from finding a dealer to receive waste paper and cardboard. However, Green hopes to have a contract with a paper dealer signed soon.

"We anticipate adding news paper, white paper and cardboard this fall," she said.

Also this fall, Clean Pampa will expand from three to five the number of days a week that an attendant is on duty at the collection station. Currently, the center is manned Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The bins are available for collection seven days a week.

For the future, Green sees collection becoming easier.

"Sometime in the distant future we will have curb-side recycling," she said.

In the immediate future, Clean Pampa is holding a litter pick-up on U.S. 60 west of the city Saturday morning. Those interested in volunteering are asked to meet across from the IRI entrance beginning at 7 a.m. Soft drinks will be provided.

Report puts cult body count at 81

HOUSTON (AP) — Investigators say they've determined that 81 bodies were pulled from the Branch Davidians' incinerated compound, though the figure is being challenged by federal agents who stormed the building Feb. 28.

Several U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents who participated in the initial raid on David Koresh's home told the Houston Chronicle they're not sure if all the victims were found within the rubble.

The number of victims has been in doubt since the Mount Carmel complex was leveled by fire April 19, ending a 51-day standoff with federal authorities.

Koresh said he had 95 followers with him and nine survived the blaze, leaving examiners expecting to find 86 bodies. But the figures never were confirmed and have been in doubt.

One of the problems medical examiners had was matching body parts with victims. They also determined later that they had multiple bodies in what were believed to be individual bags.

Dr. Rodney Crow, chief of identification for the Tarrant County medical examiner's office, told the Chronicle Thursday that some of those limbs had been matched with bodies, helping examiners arrive at a final count.

One veteran ATF agent not named by the paper said some agents are concerned about the number of people killed during the Feb. 28 fire-fight. Four agents and at least six cultists died in the battle.

"We just figured there would be more," the agent said. "We either weren't as accurate as we thought ... or someone who went down was just wounded and survived. But I would have thought we had done more damage or killed more.

"I've just got to have faith" that the Texas Rangers — who investigated the crime scene after it burned — recovered all the victims, the source said, adding, "... I've just got to think that our snipers got more people.

"If ATF were there, I think there would have been a little more personal interest and might have looked a little longer," he added.

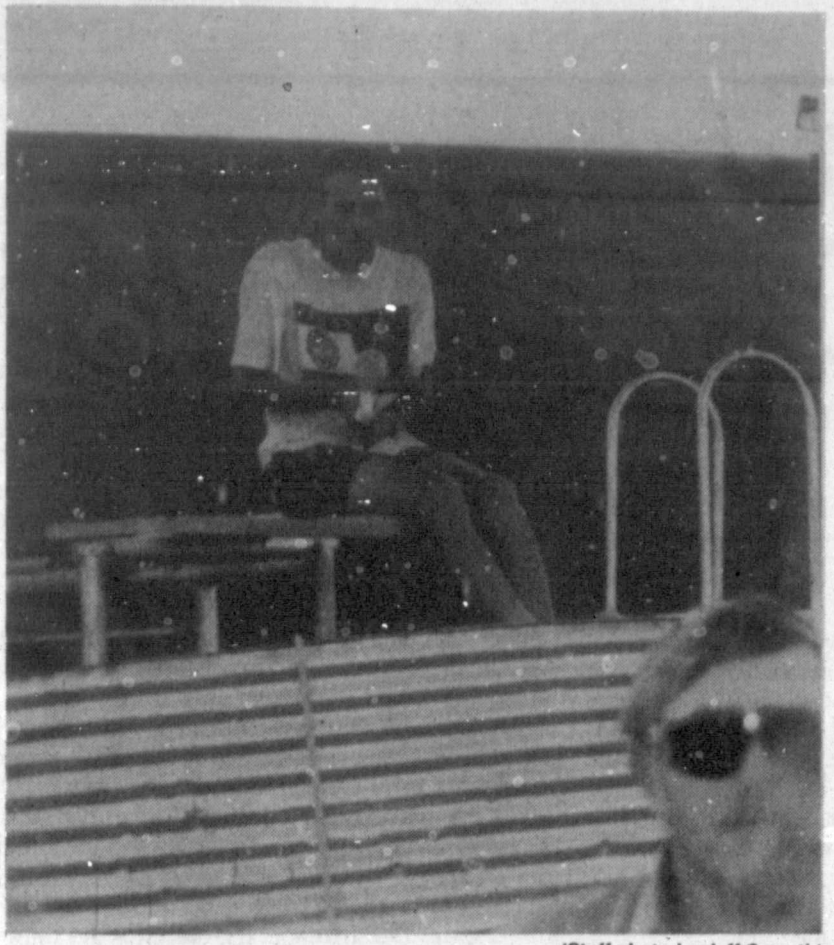

Crow, who was at the compound when some of the bodies were recovered, said he's satisfied that all of the victims were removed.

McLennan County Justice of the Peace David Pareya has identified 34 of the victims.

Sarpalius defends right to vote against Clinton

WASHINGTON — Congressman Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, said he was pleased with the outcome of the Democratic caucus earlier this week that resulted in the withdrawal of a resolution introduced by a Virginia congresswoman to oust him and 10 other subcommittee chairmen.

"This is a victory for the moderate to conservative wing of the Democratic party, a group of nearly 80 members who want to see President Clinton return to the centrist themes that got him elected president in 1992," Sarpalius said.

"The citizens of the 13th District — like most Americans — want the Congress and the president to deal with spending cuts before considering new taxes and they certainly did not approve of the Btu tax," he said.

Sarpalius spoke at the caucus and defended the right of every Democrat to vote his or her conscience and the will of their constituents without fear of retribution or punishment by their political party.

"I told the caucus that I applied for this job to the people of the 13th Congressional District of Texas and they are the ones that hired me, not the Democratic or Republican parties or the president," he said.

"Politically correct opinions should not be allowed to hold sway over democratically elected representatives," Sarpalius said. "The liberals in this party must decide if the 'big tent' is going to be broad enough to allow moderate and conservative members to play a role in the leadership of our party. I believe that battle was won today."

Sarpalius cited a speech by the late Congressman Gillis Long, (D-Louisiana), a former chairman of the Democratic Caucus and founder of the Democratic Leadership Council, in September of 1981 in which he asked the question, "Should a member be bound by his political party to cast his or her vote in a certain way?"

"Gillis Long said, 'The answer to that question, in my opinion, is a resounding no. No member's vote should be bound by his political party or its leadership. And no member should be punished by this political party for the way her or she votes,'" Sarpalius said. "The same should be true today."

Sarpalius said the vote on Clinton's tax bill, which he opposed two weeks ago, was a flawed piece of legislation. "Even the president knew that the bill would be dramatically altered in the Senate, and I never understood why we should not change the bill in the House and then send it to the Senate, rather than being expected to support a bad bill and then wait for the Senate to correct it," he added.

Sarpalius offered an amendment to the president's tax package in the House Rules Committee and supported full and open debate on the House Floor, but both efforts were unsuccessful. "I didn't just sit back and vote no, I worked vigorously to correct this bill," he said.

He said he expected the legislation to be stripped of the Btu tax in the Senate and he hoped that it would emerge as a true deficit reduction package when it comes back to the House within the next two weeks.

"I truly believe that President Clinton wants a tax and spending cut package that is perceived by the American people to be a real attempt to control deficit spending," Sarpalius said.

"I can and will vote for new taxes to support that effort, as long as I am convinced that the taxes are fair and that President Clinton and the Congress have accomplished real and meaningful spending cuts."

Disabled advocacy group to file suits

AUSTIN (AP) — An attorney for a disabled group for the disabled says he plans to file more than 50 lawsuits throughout the summer against Texas businesses that violate Americans with Disabilities Act regulations.

The group filed suit against 10 business Thursday, complaining that they had failed to meet ADA requirements.

Jim Harrington, an attorney for Advocacy Inc., said he will file three to five lawsuits each week until mid-September.

"Each week we're going to target a different industry," Harrington said. "It's going to be a very systematic effort."

Among the defendants being sued by Advocacy Inc., were two restaurants, a rental car business and two doctors' offices.

The allegations ranged from employment discrimination to lack of accessibility.

"Access is good business," said Stephanie Thomas, of ADAPT, or American Disabled for Attendent Programs Today, another advocacy group for the disabled and one of the plaintiffs.

"It'll bring in a lot of different customers."

Harrington said the group is seeking enforcement of ADA requirements, not monetary damages.

Teachers: Student misbehavior rampant

By MICHAEL GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — An overwhelming majority of Texas teachers responding to a survey released by the Texas Federation of Teachers say student discipline and behavior problems are significant both in and out of the classroom.

"We got back some rather shocking responses," John Cole, president of the 20,000-member Texas Federation of Teachers, said at a Houston news conference Thursday.

"Our problem is that schools, in order to function, must be safe, secure places where people can think, reflect, ponder," Cole said. "You can't have disorder and have creative thinking going on."

Nearly one in five of the teachers reported experiencing a direct threat of personal violence, as student disobedience and misbehavior in public schools have become rampant.

Of the 1,447 teachers surveyed in April and May, more than 83 percent said student discipline and behavior problems are significant in and out of the classroom. More than 35 percent said they had a significant problem within their room.

"The bad news, of course, is not just that you are likely, if you are a classroom teacher in some places, that you run the risk of being assaulted in your classroom," Cole said.

"Probably worse throughout the survey is that we saw a clear, systematic pattern of student disrespect for authority, disorder and failure to respect the rights of others. That is alarming even if you're not talking about assaults."

The survey included public school teachers from all over the state, large districts and small. Teachers in the survey were about equally divided among elementary, middle or junior high schools and high schools.

Of the teachers surveyed:

— 53 percent reported an assault on students.

— 20 percent reported an assault by a student on another student armed with a deadly weapon in the 1992-93 school year.

— 8 percent reported an assault on teachers.

In general, 58.5 percent of the teachers said violence in the just-completed school year has become more of a problem, while 4.5 percent said it was less.

The teachers union is endorsing a campaign for zero tolerance of profanity and violence in the schools and is calling for violators to be barred from classes.

"What we need to do, very early, is show that there are consequences," Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, said.

"This is the only country in the world that is willing to sacrifice the education of 98 or 99 percent of the youngsters because it insists on keeping youngsters who are in some cases criminal and in other cases very disruptive in the classroom. In some cases, we're sacrificing 98 or 99 percent for 1 percent."

More than half of the teachers, 56 percent, said school rules need to be toughened, but more than three-fourths, 77 percent, said the existing rules need to be uniformly enforced by administrators.

"We've got good rules," Cole said. "We don't enforce them."

Police departments cracking down on gangs

By LINDA LEAVELL
Associated Press Writer

A rising tide of violence and bloodshed caused by youth gangs has prompted police departments across Texas to adopt tougher policies and relying on special units.

The Fort Worth police department's zero tolerance policy calls for saturating certain neighborhoods with officers, who periodically will set up roadblocks to check licenses.

The department announced this week it will devote more time and money to fighting youth gang violence in four target areas.

Police in each city have taken a slightly different approach to the problem. But all agree that officers must be put on the street to collect data about gang members and ensure that information gets distributed citywide.

San Antonio's recently formed

102-member Violent Crimes Task Force has been charged with cracking down on all violent offenses, particularly those committed by youth gangs.

The unit's first raid Tuesday netted a cache of weapons and nearly 850 rounds of ammunition.

In Dallas, officers in each patrol bureau collect data about gangs, police Lt. Tom Moore said Thursday.

Every violent crime that occurs daily in the city is reviewed by the central gang unit. A detective from the unit is assigned to any gang-related case.

Bureaus meet monthly to share their information and "make sure we're all working on the same page when it comes to who these people are and what they're doing," said Moore.

So far, taking measures like those in Fort Worth hasn't been necessary.

"That's not to say ... we wouldn't do the same things they're doing. We've just been fortunate," said Moore. "(But) before the summer's over, we could be doing the same things they're doing."

The Houston gang problem forced the city's police department last summer to turn the tactical response units' attention from street narcotics to gangs.

To identify gang members, officers work out of each of the city's 10 substations. Information about gangs is placed in a computer system so it can be used citywide, said Sandi Pudifin, a youth gang officer with the Houston Police Department.

No specific zero tolerance policy has been implemented, but officers will stop teenagers who may be criminal suspects or known gang members who are out of their turf.

Pudifin pointed out that officers can't just stop people without probable cause.

But letting officers randomly search teenagers would concern the American Civil Liberties Union, Texas' Executive Director Jay Jacobson said.

"It's not illegal to be in a gang," he said. "The First Amendment gives you the right to associate with people."

Jacobson said he hadn't heard of specific complaints about police sweeps and zero tolerance policies.

The El Paso Police Department, which has 25 officers on its gang problem, knows that in the short term, it must crack down immediately after a gang-related crime to prevent retaliation.

"We only do sweeps if we're having a problem in a certain area, like parking lots," said Capt. J.R. Grijalva. "We don't move into an area just because there's kids there."

NATO chief: Public wants Europe kept safe, secure

By ROBERT J. WIELAARD
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The head of NATO told a high-level meeting today of the Western alliance and 18 former Cold War foes that public opinion demands they make Europe safe and secure.

"The ongoing violence in the former Yugoslavia and in other crisis areas serves as a constant reminder that safeguarding security in Europe is unfinished business," Secretary General Manfred Woerner said.

Woerner addressed the opening meeting of NATO and Eastern European foreign ministers one day after the 16 Western allies agreed to use their war planes to protect peacekeepers in Bosnia. Left unresolved was how much of the republic's territory would be covered by NATO's jet fighters.

Today's foreign ministers meeting was part of an ambitious NATO program to forge closer security ties with Eastern Europe. Woerner said public opinion in East and West demanded that the former adversaries deal "more effectively with the security challenges we face."

Overshadowing the session in Athens was the 14-month-old war in Bosnia, 450 miles away.

U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher said Thursday the allies will provide air support for peacekeepers across Bosnia. He also offered 300 U.S. ground troops for Macedonia to help the United Nations prevent the Bosnian war from spilling over into that former Yugoslav republic.

But Woerner and France's foreign minister, Alain Juppe, said the air cover applied only to a force of up to 10,000 U.N. ground troops proposed to protect civilians, most of them Muslims, in six U.N.-designated "safe zones."

The U.N. Security Council approved the "safe areas" plan as an interim measure last week after Bosnian Serbs rejected a comprehensive peace proposal approved by Muslims and Croats. But the Security Council insisted its ultimate goal is to implement the moribund plan.

There are now 9,000 U.N. peacekeepers in Bosnia, many of them from France, Britain, Spain and Canada, and 13,000 more from two dozen nations deployed throughout the Balkans.

It is now up to the United Nations to find the troops to protect the "safe areas."

European Community nations will not send any more peacekeepers to Bosnia and the United States has refused to send ground forces to the area.

Officials said NATO will ask Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev of Russia to make a firm commitment to deploy ground troops, North African states may also provide troops, and Sweden already has pledged 1,000.

Christopher's interpretation of the air cover provision could widely expand allied involvement in the Bosnian war. Since April, some five dozen aircraft of the United States, Britain, France, the Netherlands and Turkey have enforced a no-fly zone over Bosnia but they cannot attack Serb targets on the ground.

These same countries will likely offer help to peacekeepers in trouble and Britain quickly designated a squadron of Jaguar strike aircraft.

In Athens, Christopher is to meet separately with Foreign Minister Anatoly Zlenko of Ukraine, whose country has inherited some 1,900 nuclear warheads from the former Soviet Union.

Alarmed at the strength of Communist hardliners and nationalists in Russia, Ukraine is balking at giving up these weapons as required under the 1991 START I treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

El Paso Herald-Post on David Gergen:

David Gergen — insider, centrist, communications pro, adviser to Republicans and now suddenly “counselor to the president” — lends token bipartisanship and an aura of suave maturity to a blundering White House. It would take more than fresh counsel, however, to transform President Clinton into a sterling “new Democrat” in tune with the middle class he courted during the campaign.

Amateurism on the part of the White House staff has magnified — but not created — President Clinton's woes. No mere spin patrol will cure the grandiose ambitions, indecision and ideological two-facedness of this administration. ...

Gergen can recommend palliatives, overtures, damage control. But he cannot undo these realities. For that matter, in one sense, the choice of Gergen actually further tarnishes the president's image.

By hiring a former adviser to Ronald Reagan to advise an administration predicated on the bankruptcy of the Reagan years, the president looks incoherent — or cynical. Clinton has shown his liberal predilections far too often for the choice of Gergen to be seen as a principled turning back to the new Democrat policies of the campaign.

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal on concealed handguns:

Gov. Ann Richards may have put her 1994 re-election hopes on the line when she kept her vow to follow her conscience and veto a bill authorizing a non-binding referendum to allow Texans to vote on whether they want to carry concealed handguns. ...

Richards was right on the mark when she called the bill a taxpayer-funded opinion poll for gun interests.

“They kept putting lipstick on it, and they kept hanging earrings on it, but it is still a pig,” she said.

If the National Rifle Association or other supporters of a concealed-handgun law want to know what the people of Texas think about it, why don't they raise the $60,000 the referendum would cost and hire a reliable pollster to find out?

With the state's budget already straining at every seam, the taxpayers of Texas have more important projects on which to spend their money.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram on charity care:

In exchange for their tax-exempt status, nonprofit hospitals in Texas now will have to begin obeying a state law requiring them to earn the exemption by contributing at least 4 percent of the work they perform to charity cases.

The Legislature wisely wrote a tight definition of indigent care, prescribing that the charity work be inpatient or outpatient medical care and services, including those unreimbursed under Medicaid.

Simply sending a team of nurses out to the mall to offer cholesterol tests for shoppers or providing public-interest seminars will not qualify.

The new law, signed this week by Gov. Ann Richards, came in response to complaints that hospitals claiming to be nonprofit were spending only small amounts of their resources to treat people too poor either to pay for medical services or buy insurance. ...

Gergen to Clinton's rescue

David Gergen's anointment by President Clinton as tamer of Republican opposition is a shrewd move. On the other hand, the temptation these last few weeks has been to conclude that anything Clinton does that suggests a departure from what he has been doing is a shrewd move, eo ipso, and this probably would include letting his hair grow for a few weeks. But quite apart from the appointment of Gergen signifying a departure from not appointing Gergen, the maneuver is interesting.

For instance, there was the apparent instant need to pacify left partisans, who believe in multiculturalism for everybody except conservatives.

Gergen presented himself to the press with revisionist bravura. Said he: “I'm not a Republican.” If Richard Nixon had said that, people would smile and say, “There goes Tricky Dick.”

But wait, Gergen went on: “I've always been a registered independent. I grew up in North Carolina as a Democrat, and I didn't even know any Republicans until I was 21.” That is a remarkable confession, because by the time David Gergen was 21, he had graduated from Yale. I had done the same thing a dozen years earlier, and I knew at least three Republicans, so that one begins right away wondering about the insularity of this North Carolina Democrat who went right through college without running into any Republicans.

But of course he would soon make up for this, because after finishing Harvard Law School and serving in the Navy, he found himself involved with the Republican National Convention in 1972, and his long career was launched as an adviser to three Republican presidents, which included a stint as director of communications for Ronald Reagan. After leaving the White House he served as an editor of U.S. News & World Report and as the conser-ervative complement to Mark Shields on The MacNeil-Lehrer NewsHour.

In this position, by the way, he has never been absolutely full-throated as a conservative enthusiast, satisfying himself primarily to enter qualifications when criticisms are directed at Republican positions or policies. Still, when interviewed on television the day after his appointment, he disassociated himself emphatically from Reagan/Bush only on the matter of abortions: David Gergen is pro-choice, which will not make him very conspicuous in the White House, which under Clinton serves the nation as a kind of national advisory abortion clinic.

So what, we are entitled to speculate, is David Gergen supposed to do for Bill Clinton? There are two broad possibilities here. The first is that he will dilute Clinton's voracious appetite for left causes. If Gergen succeeds in pacifying Clinton when he roams about at night for another head of the National Endowment for the Humanities, or assistant attorney general for civil rights, or associate justice of the Supreme Court, then Gergen will be acclaimed as the man who counseled Clinton not to be Clinton, thereby salvaging the Clinton presidency, and not inconceivably the United States, and maybe even Yugoslavia, South Africa, North Korea and NAFTA.

There is, however, another possibility, which is rather spooky, and that is that Clinton has engaged Gergen for the purpose of letting Clinton be Clinton — and getting away with it.

Clinton has self-evidently recognized that he and his current advisers are not convincing the American people that the Clinton Catherine's wheel of statist enterprises is exactly right. The question before the house then is: If the same proposals are packaged with the aid of an urbane, smooth-talking operator who is so smooth as to have concealed that he was never a Republican from Nixon, Reagan, Bush, MacNeil and Lehrer, mightn't he be smooth enough to conceal from the American people that, for instance, the Clinton budget is other than just one more venture in increasing the size of government?

Granted, we are not justified in ascribing magical powers to David Gergen, but we must suppose that this is the mission Clinton primarily desires: to find the political key for permitting Clinton to be Clinton.

How might David Gergen go about this? Why, this is quite rudimentary. By dividing the opposition. It requires every Republican on the block, and every fourth Democrat on the block, effectively to give us back gridlock, for which the nation is developing an acute nostalgia.

Gergen knows everybody, and he can coo his mellifluous anodynes into the ears of the Republican doubter, and try to coax him to get out of the way of the gentle tread of his mad-statist boss. In the Reagan White House, Gergen was always in close communion with The Washington Post and with the power establishment of the Beltway. More of the same is expected of him by President Clinton, is what the wise men are thinking right now.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, June 11, the 162nd day of 1993. There are 203 days left in the year.

Today's Highlights in History:

On June 11, 1776, the Continental Congress formed a committee to draft a Declaration of Independence from Britain.

On this date:

In 1509, England's King Henry VIII married Catherine of Aragon.

In 1770, Captain James Cook, commander of the British ship Endeavour, discovered the Great Barrier Reef off Australia by running onto it.

In 1919, Sir Barton won the Belmont Stakes, becoming horse racing's first Triple Crown winner.

In 1942, the United States and the Soviet Union signed a lend-lease agreement to aid the Soviet war effort in World War II.

If you build it, they'll come

On our Missouri farm I am landlord of two apartment houses occupied by most extraordinary birds.

The last time I visited with our purple martin tenants I decided to introduce you to this graceful, beautiful bird. And how you can provide for these people-friendly birds a home next to yours.

If you build it, they will come.

The purple martin has become America's most wanted bird, if only because each will pay its rent by consuming 2,000 mosquitoes a day.

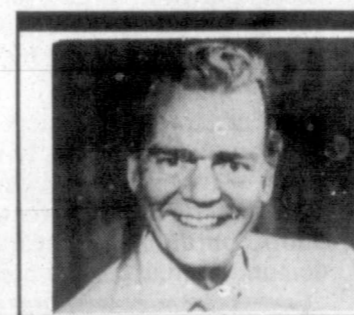

For more than 30 years J.L. Wade of Griggsville, Ill., has been the purple martins' best friend — extolling their merits in books and periodicals — urging the building of purple martin houses and eventually providing prefabricated houses for the purpose.

Purple martins made friends with the earliest American Indians. They like people; they prefer their house to be near your house.

If you build it, they will come.

The first year we erected a Martin guest house it was “scouted” but had few occupants. Every year of the 10 years since, both of our multistory apartment houses are filled with these friendly swallows. And at Reveille, the wide front lawn is daily swept clean of mosquitoes.

Of all neotropical song birds, only one is thriving. The Fish and Wildlife Service confirms that the purple martin population has increased 1.21 percent per year over the 20 years Mr. Wade has been teaching us how to make them welcome. That's a 24 percent increase to date.

Nature Society News, devoted to the purple martin, has been published each month for 26 years with ever-increasing circulation, through this publication, eager readers learn of the annual migration, the newest birdhouse architecture, examples of community, corporation and school involvement.

While Americans were only beginning to comprehend nature's threatened balance of birds and bugs, Nature Society News was seeking to alert us.

In Griggsville, 40 purple martin houses line Quincy Street, the town's main street, and there is one extraordinary one called “The Empire State Building of the Bird World.” It is 40 feet tall, and has 600 compartments for sheltering 1,200 couples and their babies.

And every compartment is filled every year. If you build it they will come.

Appropriate housing has multiplied the purple martin populations to where communities, civic groups and colleges — and even whole states — now salute each springtime with a purple martin festival.

Some communities have chosen one enormous martin house or a public thoroughfare lined with martin houses as a “living memorial” for local heroes.

A properly constructed and mounted purple martin house is well-drained, well-ventilated, and can be raised and lowered for end-of-the-season cleaning.

Mr. Wade urges, “If you do not intend to put up proper housing which will let you take care of the colony, then please don't put up housing at all. Starlings and house sparrows do not need your help.”

The “vacuum cleaner of the air” some call this graceful bird. Not just because they consume insects, but also because during their nesting period they diligently carry waste sacs from the nests and drop them far away.

And once the martins discover how friendly you are, they usually return from Brazil year after year — to your yard.

PS: In July 1969, a young purple martin attached itself to the Salina, Kan., Silver Sabers marching band — regularly perched itself on the bass drum; sometimes on the drum stick even while it was in use!

They like you. You'll love them.

Written word can haunt nominees

WASHINGTON — Along the paper trail, the laments of the fallen on the right and on the left sound remarkably alike.

It is a path on which the written word can haunt a candidate for Senate confirmation to the Supreme Court or to high administration office.

That was the undoing of Lani Guinier, the University of Pennsylvania law professor dropped by President Clinton five weeks after he'd nominated her to become assistant attorney general for civil rights. While he had known her since law school, Clinton said he wouldn't have picked her had he read her writings first.

Robert Bork's conservative legal essays and utterances were part of the opposition campaign that led to Senate rejection of his 1987 nomination to the Supreme Court.

Each complained at being misrepresented, quoted out of context. Each said they'd been reduced to political shorthand too simplistic for intricate legal theories. Each said they'd been trying to encourage debate and discussion, not necessarily foretell outcomes, in some of the writings cited by critics.

She said her own mother wouldn't recognize her after hearing the critics. He said confirmation foes had drawn a grotesque caricature of him.

After he was turned down, Bork said the episode would lead another generation of legal scholars and potential jurists to hold their tongues, or their pens, lest they be punished years later.

Walter Mears
AP Special Correspondent

Indeed, before Justice David H. Souter was confirmed to the court, some Democrats complained that he was a stealth nominee, with no outside writings and few judicial decisions they could assess.

In his book, The Tempting of America, Bork said the political use of his academic writings against him would discourage others from risking views that could stir controversy.

“Lawyers and professors have been encouraged to think twice or three times about what they write,” Bork wrote. That's not all bad.

Ms. Guinier's version: “I hope that we are not witnessing the dawning of a new intellectual orthodoxy in which thoughtful people can no longer debate provocative ideas without denying the country their talents as public servants.”

She said Clinton and others “misinterpreted my writings, which were written in an academic context, which are very nuanced, which are very ponderous.”

Ms. Guinier said she hadn't been writing for a political audience, but had been trying to provoke debate about issues of race. In the essays at issue, she had suggested such steps as weighted voting and minority veto rights to insure fairer distribution of political power.

Ms. Guinier said her academic writings weren't the proper subject for confirmation debate, and that it should have dealt with her character, competence and experience in civil rights law, in the Justice Department and as an NAACP lawyer.

But the writings are part of the record, and unavoidably a topic in the confirmation process. The Bork case guaranteed it; Republicans are not about to spare Clinton nominees the paper trail test.

And in the Guinier case, the trouble signals came from Democratic senators.

Clinton airily dismissed them after nominating Ms. Guinier, a friend from law school, saying he knew there was some controversy but the Senate could handle it.

With a Supreme Court nomination due soon, the White House will be more careful to check the record next time.

“Throughout this administration we've tried to learn from our mistakes and to do better,” Dee Dee Myers, the press secretary, said. “I think that there will be a very thorough review of all the likely candidates for Supreme Court.”

“I don't know that the president will read all of the writings of each of the candidates, but you can be assured that somebody will, and those views will be presented clearly and thoroughly to the president.”

Clinton ready to name justice

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton is prepared to offer his first Supreme Court nomination to Stephen Breyer, a federal appeals judge known as a consensus-builder and supporter of abortion rights, White House officials say.

Breyer headed to Washington on Thursday night after being released from a Boston hospital where he had been treated for injuries suffered in a bicycle accident last week. He was scheduled to meet with Clinton today at the White House, the officials said.

"It's a done deal," said one source familiar with Clinton's three-month search to replace the retiring Justice Byron White.

That source, and others who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Clinton had settled on Breyer but wanted a face-to-face meeting before announcing the pick.

"It's his to lose," said a senior White House aide. "The president just wants to meet him to make sure."

The sources familiar with the search said Vice President Al Gore called Breyer late Wednesday and told him he was Clinton's likely pick, pending completion of a background investigation and a visit with Clinton.

An announcement could come as early as today or Saturday, Clinton aides said. The president himself kept quiet about his search.

"I don't talk about appointments until I make them," he said Thursday.

This will be the first Supreme Court pick by a Democratic president in a quarter century. White, a Kennedy appointee, is the last sitting justice appointed by a Democrat.

Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt had been considered perhaps Clinton's favorite last week. But environmentalists demanded that he be kept at Interior. Several members of Clinton's inner circle also advised against putting one of the stars of the Clinton Cabinet on the court.

Breyer, 54, is chief judge of the 1st Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston. Appointed to the federal bench by President Carter, Breyer was confirmed after Ronald Reagan became president, a sign of his deep support among Senate Republicans.

That goodwill stems from his days as chief counsel of the Senate Judiciary Committee, the panel that would hold his confirmation hearings. Although Breyer was an aide to liberal Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy then, he worked closely with Senate Republicans, particularly in drafting the airline deregulation legislation.

"He would be a fantastic choice," Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, the ranking Republican on the committee, said in an interview earlier this week.

That support from Republicans is crucial to Clinton, who needs a trouble-free nomination after recent missteps, including the withdrawal of Lani Guinier as his choice to head the Justice Department civil rights division.

On the Boston appeals court, Breyer is known as an assiduously prepared jurist and a sharp, engaging questioner. Significantly, he has a reputation for carefully building consensus with his fellow justices, including two conservative Reagan appointees.

"He hates to dissent," said Daniel Ortiz, a former Breyer clerk who teaches at the University of Virginia Law School. "He will analyze everyone's views and find some course to consensus."

Those skills were high on Clinton's wish list, as he looks to put his stamp on a conservative-to-moderate court that often splits 5-4 on contentious issues, including some abortion rulings.

"He not only has a scholarly legal intellect but he has an uncanny ability and political savvy to forge consensus among different views," said Kenneth Feinberg, a Washington attorney and Breyer associate from their days on Kennedy's staff. "At this stage in the court's history, given its current politics, I can't think of a better nominee."

Clinton had pledged to name an abortion-rights supporter to the court.

Breyer is said by associates to fit that bill. In one 1990 ruling, Breyer sided with the majority in ruling the Bush administration's "gag rule" against abortion counseling at government-funded clinics violated free-speech rights because the right to abortion was guaranteed by the Supreme Court.

Because Breyer was still hospitalized Thursday, deputy White House counsel Vince Foster led a White House team to Massachusetts to meet with him.

In addition to having the consensus-building skills Clinton was looking for in a court pick, Breyer is Jewish, and Clinton entered the search hoping to name the first Jew to the court since Abe Fortas retired in 1969.

Breyer studied at Stanford and Oxford University before earning his law degree at Harvard. He clerked for Justice Arthur J. Goldberg in 1964-65 and taught anti-trust and administrative law at Harvard Law School. He is considered an expert on regulatory issues.

Breyer also served as an assistant special prosecutor in the Watergate cases in 1973.

Environmental group questions safety of Pantex plan

AMARILLO (AP) — An environmental group's attorney is questioning a state plan that would allow the Pantex Plant to burn hazardous and radioactive wastes at open-air facilities.

But Pantex officials say approving a draft state permit only would formalize the regulation of practices used at the plant for years.

Pantex, located about 17 miles northeast of Amarillo, is the nation's primary assembly and disassembly plant for nuclear weapons. It is operated for the Energy Department by contractor Mason & Hanger-Silas Mason Co.

Austin attorney Melinda Taylor said Thursday the proposed draft Texas Water Commission permit is nearly finalized and will come up for public comment later this summer.

Ms. Taylor is reviewing the permit at the request of Serious Texans Against Nuclear Dumping, an Amarillo-based environmental group.

Gary Baker, an official with Battelle-Pantex, an environmental subcontractor at the plant, said the permit would allow Pantex to continue burning high explosive materials at the burning grounds.

The burning grounds is an area where workers have incinerated explosives and explosive-contaminated wastes from dismantled weapons for years.

The site has been operating under an interim state permit until a formal permit is finalized.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN ZEHTI

SALOME: ONE OF THE BIBLE'S DRAMATIC CHARACTERS, HAS INSPIRED STORIES, PLAYS, BOOKS, OPERAS, AND MORE THAN ONE MOVIE! NUMBERS OF ARTISTS HAVE PAINTED THIS SEDUCTIVE, DESTRUCTIVE YOUNG WOMAN WHOSE DANCE SO ENRAPTURED KING HEROD THAT HE VOWED, "ASK OF ME WHATSOEVER THOU WILT, AND I WILL GIVE IT THEE." THAT RASH PROMISE COST JOHN THE BAPTIST HIS HEAD WHICH SALOME DEMANDED—AND GOT—ON A PLATTER! BUT...

ALEXANDRE REGNAULT'S PAINTING—SALOME METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART, NEW YORK

NO ONE KNOWS IF HER NAME WAS SALOME—IN FACT, SHE HAD NO NAME AT ALL! IN THE TWICE-TOLD TALE (MATT 14:6-11, MARK 6:22-28) SHE IS NEVER CALLED ANYTHING EXCEPT "THE GIRL" OR "THE DAUGHTER OF HERODIAS" THE NAME SALOME APPEARS BUT TWICE IN THE BIBLE (MARK 15:40, 16:1) AND DESCRIBES ONE OF THE WOMEN WHO, ALONG WITH MARY MAGDALENE AND MARY MOTHER OF JESUS, WEPT AT THE CRUCIFIXION—HARDLY THE KIND OF WOMAN WHO WOULD DO A SALACIOUS DANCE BEFORE HER STEP-FATHER!

First Assembly of God Church celebrates 72 years of ministry

First Assembly of God Church plans to celebrate its 72nd anniversary homecoming Saturday and Sunday.

Church family will celebrate 1st 10 p.m. Saturday with a visiting day at M.K. Brown Auditorium. Sunday School starts at 9:30 a.m. and at 10:30 a.m., the Rev. J.S. McMullen plans to preach on the opening of the "Seven Seals" of Revelation. A catered meal is planned for noon. At 1:30 p.m. the Smith Family of Pampa will sing.

The church was founded in response to a 1919 tent revival and formally organized in 1921 in a one room building at 410 S. Cuyler. On March 25, 1925 the congregation secured the location of 500 S. Cuyler where the church continues to meet.

In the spring of 1927, work was begun on the building which has been in use for 66 years. A full basement was added during 1941-1943 and a second story educational department was added during 1943-1948.

In April of 1961 the congregation voted to build their newest sanctuary just south of the original sanctuary.

On Feb. 1, 1963, the new sanctuary, offices and class rooms were dedicated. In 1978 a new family life center was constructed just south of the church. In 1991-1992 the exterior of the original auditorium was remodeled and a large steeple added. In 1992, the property at 512 Cuyler was purchased for additional parking.

Faith Christian Center hosts two days of special events

Faith Christian Center, 118 N. Cuyler will host two special events on Saturday and Sunday.

Greater Love Outreach Choir, a traveling music ministry of the Greater Love Community Outreach Center in Amarillo, will perform in concert Saturday at 7 p.m.

Pastor Jackie Riles, senior pastor of the Greater Love Community Outreach Center, will bring a special message following the choir.

Pastor Edward Barker, of Faith Christian Center said, "This choir performed here two years ago, and the people of Faith Christian Center stated that the ministry of the choir ranks at the top of any special services ever held at the church."

The choir will sing a variety of old and new music, including traditional.

On Sunday, the church is hosting a one-day ministry on "The Father, Heart of God." Guest speaker for the event, Jerry Phillips, was one of the founding pastors of Trinity Fellowship Church in Amarillo. Since leaving the Amarillo area, Phillips has traveled throughout the United States and into foreign countries with the special message that "God wants to turn the hearts of believers into the kind of heart that God has toward us, as believers."

Phillips will deliver messages for both Sunday services, at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Nursery services will be provided Saturday and Sunday. For more information, call the church office at 665-3224.

The Greater Love Outreach Choir, to sing in concert Saturday at 7 p.m. at Faith Christian Center, 118 N. Cuyler.

Conservative Alaskan pastor elected Presbyterian leader

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A young Alaskan pastor who said he upheld biblical standards on sexuality was elected Thursday to lead the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

The Rev. David Lee Dobler, 43, was elected moderator of the 2.8 million-member church on the second ballot, narrowly defeating Margaret Wentz, a church elder from Kansas.

Dobler received 293 votes to 283 for the 57-year-old Wentz, who served as vice chairwoman of the committee that developed a moderate abortion policy approved by the church last year.

Wilton Vincenty, 64, an elder from Puerto Rico who was seeking to become the church's first Hispanic moderator, finished third with three votes on the second ballot.

In questioning before the balloting, Dobler said he supported the church's position in opposition to sex outside of marriage for ordained persons, but said homosexuals or heterosexuals who violate the standard should not be excluded from the church.

"With one arm, we should embrace our biblical standards," Dobler said. "With our other arm we should embrace these persons by being caring, concerned and loving."

Several proposals on homosexuality — both to allow the ordination of gay clergy and to strengthen the church's stand against the practice — have been submitted to the church's 205th General Assembly, which runs through June 9.

The 1991 General Assembly affirmed past church statements declaring homosexuality "is not God's wish for humanity," but the controversy broke out again last year when the church's highest court revoked the appointment of a lesbian minister to a congregation in Rochester, N.Y.

Dobler, a graduate of San Francisco Theological Seminary, has spent his entire ministerial career in Alaska.

Prior to his present pastorate at Jewel Lake Parish in suburban Anchorage, he served in Yakutat, a Tlingit Indian fishing village on the Gulf of Alaska.

He succeeds the Rev. John Fife, an Arizona pastor who was a leader of the sanctuary movement for Central American refugees, as moderator.

The moderator is the chief spokesman for the church and presides over the General Assembly, the church's policy-making body.

First Pentecostal plans gospel singing Sunday

The First Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1700 Alcock, will host a gospel singing 2-4 p.m. Sunday.

Numerous singing and musical groups from Pampa and surrounding areas participate. The meetings also feature congregational singing.

The Rev. Albert Maggard and the congregation extend an invitation for everyone to attend.

Religion Briefs...

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Americans gave an estimated $39.2 billion to religious congregations in 1991, according to an Independent Sector survey.

The study "From Belief to Commitment" also estimated the value of volunteer service to congregations as $19.2 billion in 1991.

"The report tells us that congregations foster voluntary service, suggesting that many Americans get their first introduction to voluntary service and responsibility to engage in community activities through participation in a religious congregation," said Virginia Hodgkinson, vice president for research of Independent Sector.

U.S. troops in Macedonia peacekeeping role would be well armed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. troops President Clinton is sending to protect Macedonia won't be confronting an enemy right away, but they'll be equipped with some of the same weapons that helped win the Persian Gulf War.

No individual troop units have been selected for the Macedonia mission announced Thursday by Secretary of State Warren Christopher, but the 300-person force seemed most likely to come from infantry or cavalry units in Germany.

Even without facing immediate combat conditions in Macedonia, any deployment of American forces in the vicinity of war-torn Bosnia raises the question of whether the U.S. troops could adequately defend themselves if needed.

The main example of U.S. involvement in an unpredictable conflict that Clinton most wants to avoid would be the Marines in Beirut, Lebanon, in 1983. That ended in disaster and retreat when 241 Marines were killed in their barracks in a suicide bombing.

Soldiers in a cavalry unit, such as the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment at Fulda, Germany, go into the field with M-1 Abrams battle tanks, Bradley infantry fighting vehicles, Apache attack helicopters, 155mm howitzers, Stinger shoulder-fired air defense missiles and personal weapons such as the M-16 rifle.

Christopher said the purpose of sending the 300 combat troops was to keep the Serbs from extending the Balkans conflict into Macedonia. That makes the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, at least symbolically, a logical choice for the mission.

The 11th ACR stood guard at the Fulda Gap, the point in Germany that allied planners believed was the most likely route for the massive Soviet attack that never came.

Pentagon spokesman Bob Hall said Thursday after Christopher's announcement that the U.S. troops could be on the ground in Macedonia "within the next week or so" and most likely would be drawn from Army forces stationed in Europe.

"They will be combat troops," Hall said, but could not identify which unit might be sent.

Hall said the U.S. forces will join the 700 Scandinavian troops under U.N. command in Macedonia. The Americans will wear the U.N. blue helmets and take orders from the U.N. commander, Danish Brig. Gen. Siermirk Thomsen, Hall said.

The U.S. soldiers, like their U.N. colleagues, will be "authorized for self-defense but we don't envision them taking direct action," Hall said.

Rafsanjani re-election expected

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iranians voted today in a presidential election apparently engineered to give Hashemi Rafsanjani a landslide re-election victory despite widespread discontent over Iran's economic distress.

There was little excitement among most Iranians about Rafsanjani's race against three relatively unknown opponents handpicked by government leaders. Turnout appeared low.

Rebels urged a boycott of the vote and have waged attacks aimed at disrupting the election.

As polls opened at 7:30 a.m., the rebel group Mujahedeen Khalq claimed its guerrillas stormed the Abadan oil refinery complex in southwestern Iran today and wrecked some of the installation with 16 bombs. The claim by the Iraq-based group could not be independently verified and the government had no comment.

The Mujahedeen have claimed to have destroyed a score of oil pipelines in and around Abadan in recent weeks in what appeared to be a systematic effort to wreck the country's domestic fuel supply system and worsen economic problems.

The state media have countered rebel demands for a boycott with steady appeals for Iranians to vote.

"Your vote is like a flower sown for friends and like a bullet fired toward the enemies," Tehran Radio said today. "Today is the day of resurgence, the day of re-signing your pledge with the Islamic Republic."

Results were expected Saturday or Sunday. A victory would give Rafsanjani, 59, a second four-year term.

Rafsanjani's greatest challenge during his second term will be to complete the unfinished business of repairing the economy, battered by the 1980-88 war with Iraq.

There is no accurate estimate of the runaway inflation. But an average salary of 150,000 rials per month, the equivalent of $89, won't pay the rent on a one-bedroom apartment. Beef is selling on the black market for $1.60 a pound. When he became president in 1989, Rafsanjani promised to turn around the economy. But his government has been loathe to introduce reforms that, in the short run, would worsen inflation and unemployment and hurt the poor, the Islamic Republic's staunchest supporters.

Internationally, Rafsanjani's greatest challenge will be to ease tense relations with Iran's Arab neighbors and the West.

Despite Rafsanjani's efforts in the past, there is no sign of a thaw in the conflict with Washington. The United States continues to accuse Tehran of supporting international terrorism.

Analysts here predict a post-election shakeup that would cost four or five Cabinet members, including Oil Minister Gholamreza Aqazadeh and Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati, their jobs.

Aqazadeh has been criticized for not predicting low oil prices, which put the government's economic projections in disarray. Velayati's low-key style has failed to make headway in improving relations with the outside world.

Security in the capital was tight ahead of today's balloting. Revolutionary Guards in green uniforms patrolled Tehran in green-and-white vans.

Burt Reynolds and Loni Anderson

Burt asks to split from Loni

STUART, Fla. (AP) — Burt Reynolds wants a divorce from Loni Anderson.

The Martin County clerk's office received a divorce petition Thursday from Reynolds, whose filing said his marriage had been "irretrievably broken," court clerk Marsha Stiller said.

The popular stars had been married five years in April. They have an adopted son, Quinton, who will be 5 in August.

"There'll be no protracted or messy divorce action, no Hollywood hoopla as it were," said Reynolds' publicist, Scott Jackson.

Anderson, who earlier this week signed a contract to appear in the NBC-TV series "Nurses," had recently returned to Florida but was headed back west Thursday, said her spokesman, Mickey Freeman.

He said the announcement came as a surprise to him.

"I haven't had a chance to talk to her," he said. "People live through these things. I don't have any answers as to what happened or why. People just go their own ways."

The marriage to Reynolds was the third for the 46-year-old Anderson, best known for her role as the not-so-dumb blond secretary in the original series "WKRP in Cincinnati" sitcom.

It was Reynolds' second marriage. His first marriage was to one-time "Laugh-In" star Judy Carne.

The divorce petition, signed by Reynolds, called for "equitable distribution of all property" but gave no details.

The 57-year-old Reynolds is working on a movie called "The Man From Left Field" in which he is a Little League coach.

A spokeswoman for Burt Reynolds Productions said the star wasn't immediately available and a press release would be issued Friday.

Reynolds, who starred in the movies "Deliverance," "Smokey and the Bandit" and "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," was with Anderson for five years before their marriage. Reynolds also stars in the popular CBS television show "Evening Shade."

Reynolds and Anderson split their time between a home in Jupiter, Fla., and Encino, Calif., where they stayed during the filming of "Evening Shade."

They were married April 29, 1988, at a private ceremony in a specially built white chapel at his 160-acre horse ranch near Jupiter.

New All-American rose varieties feature fragrance

By JAMES E. WALTERS

PHOENIX (AP) — Easier care and bright colors for the home landscape are features once again of the newest All-America Rose Selections. But the surprise dimension this time is fragrance, an elusive trait for recent generations of our national flower's hybridizers.

Two of the three 1994 AARS winners — hybrid teas Secret and Midas Touch — have lots of it. The main appeal of the third, Caribbean, a grandiflora, is likely to be the abundant, orange-yellow, four-inch flowers. But it, too, has a slight scent.

"I think all of us need to get back to concentrating on fragrance as an important criterion," hybridizer Keith Zary, research director for the rose-selling giant, Jackson and Perkins, said in a telephone interview.

His Southern California team produced Caribbean and Midas Touch, the first yellow hybrid tea to win AARS honors in 19 years.

Asked what he liked best about the 1994 winners, Zary said: "Probably their disease resistance and their fragrance. Those are two areas that rose breeders are working very hard on."

Each All-American is evaluated in test gardens across the country for two years. It takes about eight years from propagation until designation by AARS, a nonprofit organization whose members produce most of the nation's roses.

Announcements are not made until two years after selection to give growers time to produce sufficient plants for public sale. So the 1994 winners will be available by next spring in most of the country and somewhat earlier in warmer areas.

In 1951 there was no winner; some years, only one is selected. Scoring is based on bud and flower form, vigor, hardiness, growth habit, disease resistance, foliage and fragrance.

"The 1994 winners offer classic rose form in a variety of colors that will appeal to a broad range of rose lovers," said AARS President Robert DeMayo.

"For the traditionalists, we have a fragrant, soft-pink hybrid tea. The more adventuresome will enjoy the warm-orange grandiflora and the radiant-yellow hybrid tea. All three offer continuous color on tall, lush bushes."

Secret, from Conard-Pyle Co. of West Grove, Pa., was hybridized by Daniel Tracy. The offspring of Pristine and Friendship, it has an upright, bushy, freely branched habit and grows 4 to 4 1/2 feet high. The fully double flowers are 4 1/2 inches across with a strong, spicy, fruity scent and long, erect stems, making it an excellent cut flower. Foliage is medium green.

Caribbean is upright, well branched and slightly taller. It was hybridized by Wilhelm Kordes from Mercedes and an unnamed seedling. Foliage is medium green.

Midas Touch, the offspring of Brandy and Friesensohne, was hybridized by Jack Christensen. It is the tallest of the three, about 5 feet, upright and well branched with dark-green foliage. Fragrance is medium musk.

All three have performed very well during testing in my garden but my personal favorite is Caribbean. I admire its tropical-sunset displays and the way the flowers hold after cutting.

Zary was asked what he sees in the future for roses.

"Long term, everybody is looking at the effects of biotechnology," he said. "Once you start moving foreign genes from outside the rose genus into roses you've opened up a whole series of possibilities that actually defy imagination."

"Who knows what we can put into roses and get expression in the plant. It could be new color, new fragrance, new form. I expect that this will become an influence in rose breeding sometime after the year 2000. I don't think it will have any effect until then."

"A slightly different approach, but again long term and after the year 2000, is using biotechnology not to introduce foreign genes into the genus but using the genes already present. There are several American and international companies working on this."

Will this rule out present-type roses, much as the hybrid teas did when they came along?

"No, I foresee the present roses being with us much the same way the old garden roses have come back into popularity. What you're doing is accelerating progress in roses."

What about people who believe roses require too much care?

"If you start with a healthy plant and keep it disease free it's certainly no more trouble than most plants. I think the key is to select varieties suitable for your area, plant them in the right place and give them enough sun and water."

AP Photo
The Caribbean, a grandiflora rose with orange-yellow, four-inch diameter flowers, is among the three 1994 All-American Rose Selections. Caribbean, shown above, and other AARS winners announced this June, will not be available to the public until next spring.

Taxpayers get help

DEAR ABBY: On May 11, 1992, you responded to an individual who wrote to say that because of a series of extenuating circumstances, she did not file her tax return one year.

As she missed filing once, she was afraid to file again the following year for fear of the consequences, so she had not filed since. You referred her to Enrolled Agents (EAs), who are authorized to represent taxpayers before all administrative levels of the IRS, and can help get people "back on track" with the government.

The response to your column was astounding! Here at the headquarters of the National Association of Enrolled Agents (NAEA), we received more than 10,000 telephone inquiries from people who had failed to file their tax returns — thanks to our 24-hour EA Referral Service hotline ((800) 424-4339). We also received approximately 800 letters from taxpayers who had, likewise, disappeared from the tax rolls and decided to come forward.

We responded to each request from these concerned individuals (within 48 hours) with a list of member EAs in their area. Furthermore, for those who called our main business line (because they were wary of divulging their mailing address), we provided the names of EAs on the spot.

The time has finally come for non-filers to stop living in fear and to get on with their lives; it is critical that they be advised of the IRS' assurance that those who come forward voluntarily will not face criminal prosecution!

Moreover, three out of four people who file tax returns receive refunds. Because there is a statute of limitations (generally three years), time is of the essence to file those past-due returns in order to obtain a refund.

NAEA now offers a free informational brochure designed especially for non-filers titled "Enrolled Agents — Taxpayer Representatives on Your Side," which is available by calling the 24-hour hotline, or writing or faxing your request to: NAEA, 6000 Executive Blvd., Suite 205, Rockville, Md. 20852-3813. Fax: (301) 231-8961. We treat all requests confidentially.

If we reach only a portion of the non-filers, this effort will be worthwhile — both for their peace of mind and our government's.

DEBORAH B. VIEDER,
DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC

Dear Abby

RELATIONS, NAEA

DEAR READERS: Be advised that the fees charged by Enrolled Agents vary according to location and services.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the letter from Al Seivertson who wrote to say that he is a smoker, enjoys eating fried foods, ham and eggs, and everything that's supposed to be unhealthy. He boasted that at age 60, he took early retirement and didn't use up any of the sick time he had coming.

Well, until a month ago, my husband could have written a similar letter. He's a retired auto worker who had worked for the same company for 30 years. He just had his 61st birthday. (Notice, I didn't say "celebrated.") Four weeks ago, with practically no warning, he had a major heart attack and ended up with a quadruple bypass.

His doctor had warned him to quit smoking several times, but like Al, he said, "I'm going to enjoy life while I'm living, and if I die a few years earlier, that's OK, too." Like Al, my husband boasted that there had been no history of heart trouble in his family, and his father had also been a three-pack-a-day smoker.

I hope Mr. Seivertson's luck holds out better than my husband's did. He didn't think it could happen to him either. You may use my name.

BARBARA KENNEDY,
TRENTON, ILL.

DEAR BARBARA: Thank you for your candid letter. Your husband will be in my prayers.

Lucky porkers get to pig-out on Ben & Jerry's ice cream

By 3-2-1 CONTACT Magazine

Slop Happy

I scream, you scream, we all scream for ice cream!

And now it seems that pigs do, too. At least the ones living in Waterbury, Vt. That's where ice cream maker Ben & Jerry's has a factory.

It's also where 550 pigs snarf up the flavor of the day.

The ice cream company founded an Earth-friendly way to get rid of the plant's waste. It serves the pigs "ice cream slop" — the same goop that used to go down the sewers.

Each porker "pigs out" on two gallons of ice cream slop a day. And they love it, according to Ben & Jerry's, especially Chocolate-Chip Cookie Dough.

But no pig licks its chops if Mint Chocolate Chunk is dished out. Why? Ben & Jerry's says: "We think it's the mint." Oink!

Why Does a Praying Mantis Look Like Its Praying?

Is a praying mantis praying for a good meal to walk by?

Actually, the insect folds its front legs together when it's resting. Interlocking spines zip its front legs together in a "praying" position.

But maybe the praying mantis should be called a "preying" mantis. It's a fierce killer. Its front legs swiftly grab and stab its dinner.

A praying mantis eats other insects — including other praying mantis — as well as frogs, lizards and small birds. The mantis doesn't go in search of dinner. Instead, it lies in wait for dinner to come to it.

Most praying mantis are camouflaged to surprise their victims. Their leaflike wings and twiglike legs help them blend in with their backgrounds. That way, most of their meals don't have a prayer of escaping.

Shopping ideas for Father's Day

With less than two weeks until Father's Day, immediate action is required to avoid the last minute crunch at the "ugly tie" section in your favorite store. Peruse the following gift ideas and make your guy a happy camper.

GUIDED FISHING TRIP — If Dad enjoys catching 10-20 lb. strippers, Lake Texoma offers world class fishing. Some of the best guides include CURGUS LOWE (405/564-3898), COLIN LeFLORE (405-564-2237), and LARRY ADAMS at Little glasses Resort (405/795-2068).

If Dad enjoys cool nights and like catching delicious rainbow trout, EAGLE NEST, New Mexico is a favorite destination. Call Ron Simmons (505/377-6931) at EAST MORENO RANCH for some fantastic private ranch fishing and lodging. For the best information on fishing at EAGLE NEST LAKE, contact Larry Fontenot at 505/377-3359.

HUNTING dads can be pleasantly surprised by an early dove hunt. Season opens September 1, and the area near Shamrock usually has plenty of doves. Gary Gandy (806/256-3694) is the local authority and can usually solve any hunting problems.

The best bargains on pheasant hunts are sponsored by area Chambers of Commerce. Try calling Canyon, Dimmitt, Hereford, Dalhart, Hart, or Dumas.

Guided quail, dove, or pheasant hunting trips can be set up by calling WESLEY WEBB (806/883-4101) in White Deer, FRANK HOMMEL (806/678-5771) in Clarendon, or HARPER'S GAME PRESERVE (806/435-3495) in Booker.

The newest innovation in fishing line is made with Spectra fibers. Marketed under several names (Tuf, Lazer, or Spectra), it is a braided line that is extremely thin but unbelievably strong and, best of all, without any reel memory. Available now at Anchor Marine, Lazer line is selling fast. Before driving to Amarillo, I recommend calling Bobby Nolan at 353-9511.

For the best Texas fishing magazine, Honey Hole is my pick of the litter. For a FREE sample copy, call 817/738-5596. The best all-round (largemouth, smallmouth, walleye, etc) magazine is THE IN-FISHERMAN, Call 1 800/441-1740 and invest $16 for a full year of detailed fishing information.

It is notoriously tough to shop for dads, I hope that one of these suggestions helps you have a terrific Father's Day.

Next FUN TOURNAMENT at Lake Meredith is Thursday evening, June 17. Kids under 17 fish FREE, and taking a kid fishing is not a bad gift on any occasion.

Shockers pound Oklahoma State to earn berth in championship game

College World Series

By TOM VINT
AP Sports Writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Wichita State coach Gene Stephenson says he had an answer for anyone who would have told him early in the year that his 1993 Shockers would be playing for the College World Series title.

"You're dreaming," he said. But Stephenson hopes nobody wakes him up until after Saturday, when his seventh-seeded Shockers (58-16) go for a second NCAA Division I baseball title in six appearances in Omaha.

It will be Wichita State's fourth final in those appearances, a fact not lost on Oklahoma State coach Gary Ward. The Shockers were second in both 1982 and 1991.

Wichita State will play the winner of today's game between fifth-seeded LSU (51-17-1) and fourth-seeded Long Beach State (46-18).

Ward's Cowboys (45-17) were sidelined by the Shockers 10-4 Thursday night when Wichita State freshman Casey Blake drove in five runs.

Oklahoma State once ruled the Midwest neighborhood when it came to college baseball. Ward said it is no longer true.

"The neighborhood is controlled by the guys in the yellow shirts. They took that tradition from us in 1988," Ward said of the Kansas school less than three hours from his Stillwater, Okla., home. "They are better than us."

The Shockers proved it again Thursday night when Blake hit a two-run single in a five-run third, then added a bases-loaded double in the eighth that sealed the Wichita State win.

Wichita State and LSU, the 1991 College World Series champions, have built the best programs in the country, said Ward.

"Wichita State and LSU have done the best job in the past five years," said the Cowboy coach. "I hope Wichita State wins it because they represent us all (in the Midwest)."

A year ago, Wichita State didn't represent itself very well with their two-loss exit from the College World Series, Stephenson said. The Shockers came back to Omaha on a mission in 1993, although their coach admitted it has less talent than he's ever had here.

"Getting to Omaha with this group is maybe the most satisfaction we've ever had," Stephenson said. "Now we have a chance to win it all. That would be the ultimate satisfaction."

The Shockers' semifinal win was the first time in 12 tournament games this year that a team had taken the lead and held it.

"They play a five-inning game," Ward said. He explained that if the Shockers can hold on to a lead early, they bring in relief specialists Darren Dreifort and Jamie Bluma, who salt opponents away.

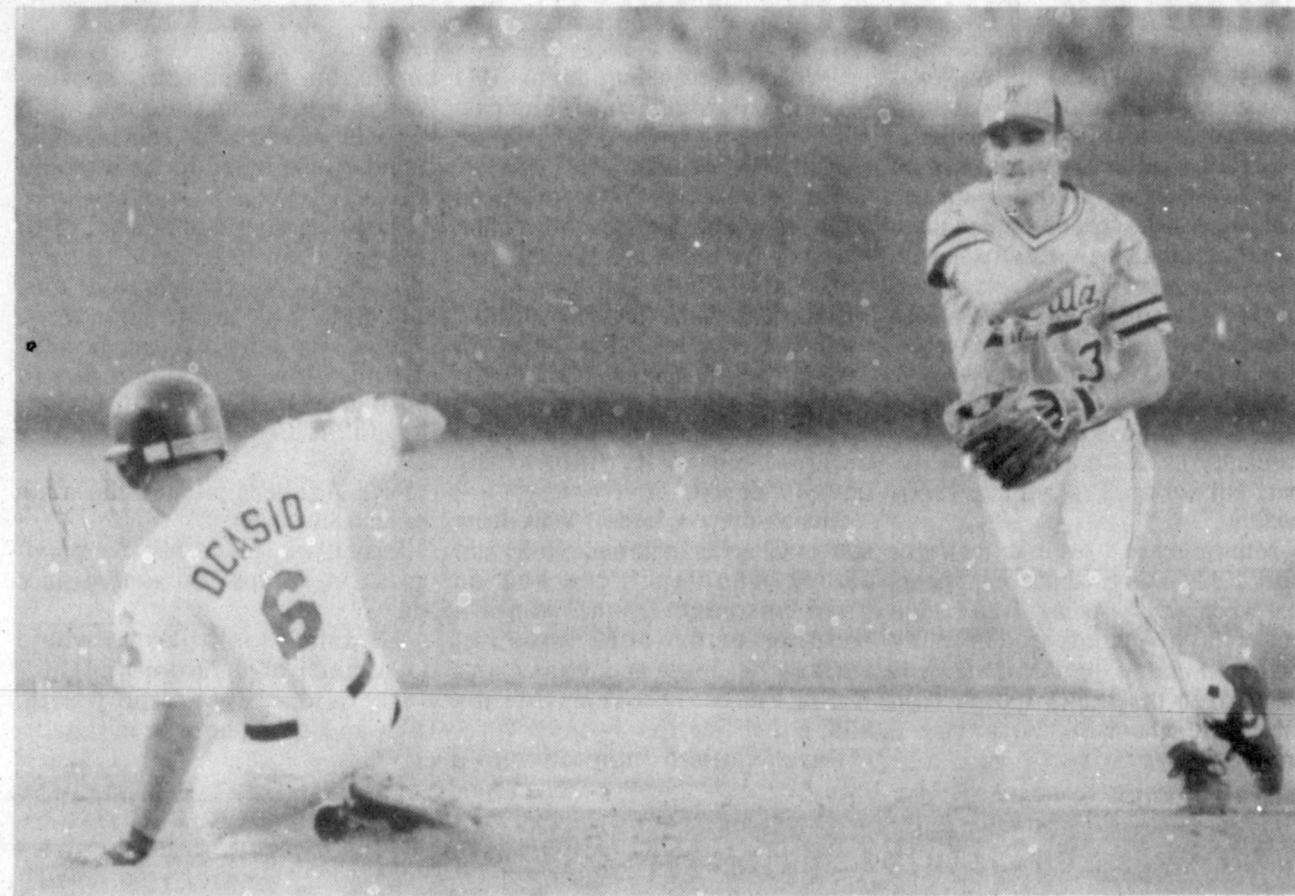

"You bet we do," Stephenson said. "We lost all of our starters after last year. I took a lot of heat for not starting Dreifort. He and Bluma are far more valuable for us in relief."

The formula held true to form Thursday night when Joey Jackson doubled in two runs and Blake singled in two more off Oklahoma State starter Jake Benz (9-2) in the fifth.

Oklahoma State closed to 6-3 when Dreifort relieved Mike Brandley (10-2) in the sixth and allowed one run before Bluma put the Cowboys down in order in the ninth.

By then, Blake also had cleared the bases with his double in a four-run eighth for the Shockers.

"We got some of the greatest clutch hits," Stephenson said. "We compete at critical times and deliver, and tonight we delivered in a big way."

Oklahoma State's Fred Ocasio, left, is forced at second as Wichita State's Jason Adams throws to first to complete a double play.

Suns' lack of experience showed in opening loss to Bulls

PHOENIX (AP) — The Phoenix Suns have been here before. They know how to fight from behind in the playoffs.

Their problem is that Chicago has been here, too. The Bulls know how to win championships.

The Bulls took a big step toward that in Wednesday night's opening 100-92 win that put the Suns in a tough spot — win tonight or go to Chicago facing the prospect of being swept in the best-of-7 NBA Finals.

The Bulls avoided such premature thoughts in their successful title runs the past two seasons.

"We'll start letting you guys write that, but we won't think it," Scottie Pippen told reporters Thursday. "There's still a lot of basketball to be played. We feel if we can get this next game, we'll definitely control the series."

NBA finals

While the Suns could become the first NBA finalist to lose the first two games at home, "We don't feel pressure. We haven't felt pressure all year long," Dan Majerle said. "We have to win the game, obviously, but we've been in this situation before."

The Suns dropped the first two games of their opening series at home against the Lakers, then won three straight in Los Angeles. They were tied 3-3 after losing Game 6 of the Western Conference Finals by 16 points, then returned home to beat Seattle.

"That victory put the Suns in their first championship series in 17 years, and the lack of experience showed. Their early jitters and lack of aggressiveness helped the Bulls to a 20-point second-quarter lead that Phoenix never could overcome despite improved play the last 2 1/2 quarters."

"Our experience really showed," Michael Jordan said. "When they made a run, we didn't lose our poise."

Chicago, 12-2 in the playoffs, has won its last five games. Phoenix, 11-8, has lost two of its last three.

But Suns coach Paul Westphal said, "Let's don't give the Bulls superiority yet just because they won one game."

And Phoenix guard Danny Ainge, a 3-point shooter held to one errant attempt from that distance because of sticky defense, saw one encouraging sign.

"The only positive thing that I can think of is that we set them up," he said. "We've got them right where we want them. They think they've got this thing locked up."

But the Bulls are hardly satisfied with winning just one game in Phoenix and gaining the homecourt advantage.

"We feel we have an opportunity to be aggressive and be greedy," Jordan said. "We're very relaxed, very confident and very focused on what we're trying to achieve. This team seems not to be rattled by anything."

The first-game focus was on the failures of the Suns' two key players. Charles Barkley missed 16 of 25 shots despite getting little double coverage. Kevin Johnson had just two assists and 11 points, but committed five turnovers.

"I think that we'll have better performances from (those) two guys and that will make everybody play better for us," Westphal said.

He said Johnson needs his teammates to move to open spots so he can pass to them when he penetrates and runs into the Bulls' tall frontline.

And Barkley must hit his shots and force Chicago to double team him, leaving other Suns free.

"I don't think it's going to really come down to just me finding a way to penetrate," Johnson said. "As a team, we have to play much better."

Pampa's Plunk named Special Olympics 1993 High School Coach of the Year

Special Olympics International has announced the selection of Max Plunk of Pampa as the 1993 Special Olympics High School Coach of the Year.

The award is given annually to a high school coach chosen from a national pool of nominees who are also Special Olympic coaches. The award is given in association with the National High School Athletic Coaches Association (NHSACA).

Plunk will receive the award June 22 at the NHSACA's 28th annual national convention in Miami, Fla.

"There could not have been a finer choice for coach of the year than Max Plunk," said Denis Poulos, Texas Special Olympics Executive Director. "There is not an athlete, coach or parent from Pampa who has not been affected by his desire to make the lives of those around him better. Recognition from a national organization for his efforts is well-deserved."

Plunk was the featured speaker during an awards banquet for local special olympians earlier this week at the First Christian Church in Pampa. He has coached at the high school level for eight years, most recently coaching basketball, football and track at PHS. One of Plunk's greatest accomplishments has been to implement a program giving Special Olympics athletes the opportunity to earn high school letter jackets. He has also opened the door for Special Olympics athletes to serve as varsity team managers.

Plunk has been a Special Olympics volunteer coach for six years. In addition to his duties as coordinator for the Special Olympics program in Pampa, he is a member of the Area 16 Texas Special Olympics Management Team, serving on the Competition and Games, and Area Management committees.

Plunk coaches Special Olympics athletics (track and field) and basketball and has been instrumental in introducing Unified Sports®, a program that gives athletes with and without mental retardation the chance to play on teams together. He is also involved in fund-raising activities, public relations and special events, including banquets and basketball tournaments.

"In all activities, coach Plunk has the individual growth of the Olympian first and foremost in his mind," said Sherry A. Carlson, President of the Gray County Association of Retarded Citizens. "Pampa and Special Olympics have many reasons to be grateful for the consistent encouragement and continued excitement of coach Plunk, which are contributing to the growth of Special Olympics in our area."

Special Olympics, founded by Eunice Kennedy Shriver in 1968, provides competition and training to nearly one million athletes. They train year-around in 23 Olympic-type sports leading to competitions which are styled after the Olympic Games.

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — The car flipped 11 times the last time Davey Allison raced at Pocono International Raceway, leaving him with broken bones and thanks for his survival.

Eleven months later, he has no qualms about returning.

"In fact, I'm really looking forward to it," said Allison, coming off his best superspeedway finish of the season. "I know a lot of people are going to think, 'Boy that guy's got a sick mind' or something. To me, when I have a challenge it gives me incentive."

He knows he had the ability to be in victory lane instead of a hospital bed last July at Long Pond, where his car had been one of the strongest before the sliding and rolling crash over an infield grandrail.

"We want to go back to Pocono and have the same type of a dominant race car and this time know what to do to win the race," Allison said.

Allison placed his Ford third Sunday at Dover, Del., behind the Chevrolets of Dale Earnhardt and Dale Jarrett. Earnhardt, a three-time winner, leads Rusty Wallace, Jarrett and Allison in the NASCAR points race heading into Sunday's Champion Spark Plug 500. Qualifying begins Friday on the 2 1/2-mile triangular track.

Allison's only victory and three other top-five finishes before Dover came on short tracks. A 30th-place finish in the 600-miler at Charlotte two weeks ago sent Allison to some self-examination.

"When I came home I did a lot of thinking to myself about the differences with last year," said Allison, who led the '92 circuit until his Pocono wreck.

"The one thing I could continue to point out more often than not is my approach had changed. Not for the worse, but different, not natural."

At Dover, he began racing the way he remembers doing before the Pocono crash, the worst of four he had in less than four months. The following month, brother Clifford was killed in a racing accident.

Allison said his brother's death was devastating but not the reason he drove more conservatively in the latter part of 1992.

"I was forced into it because of the injuries," Allison said. "It put me in a position by doing that for so long ... that I trained myself to be that way all the time."

Dolphins sign Holt

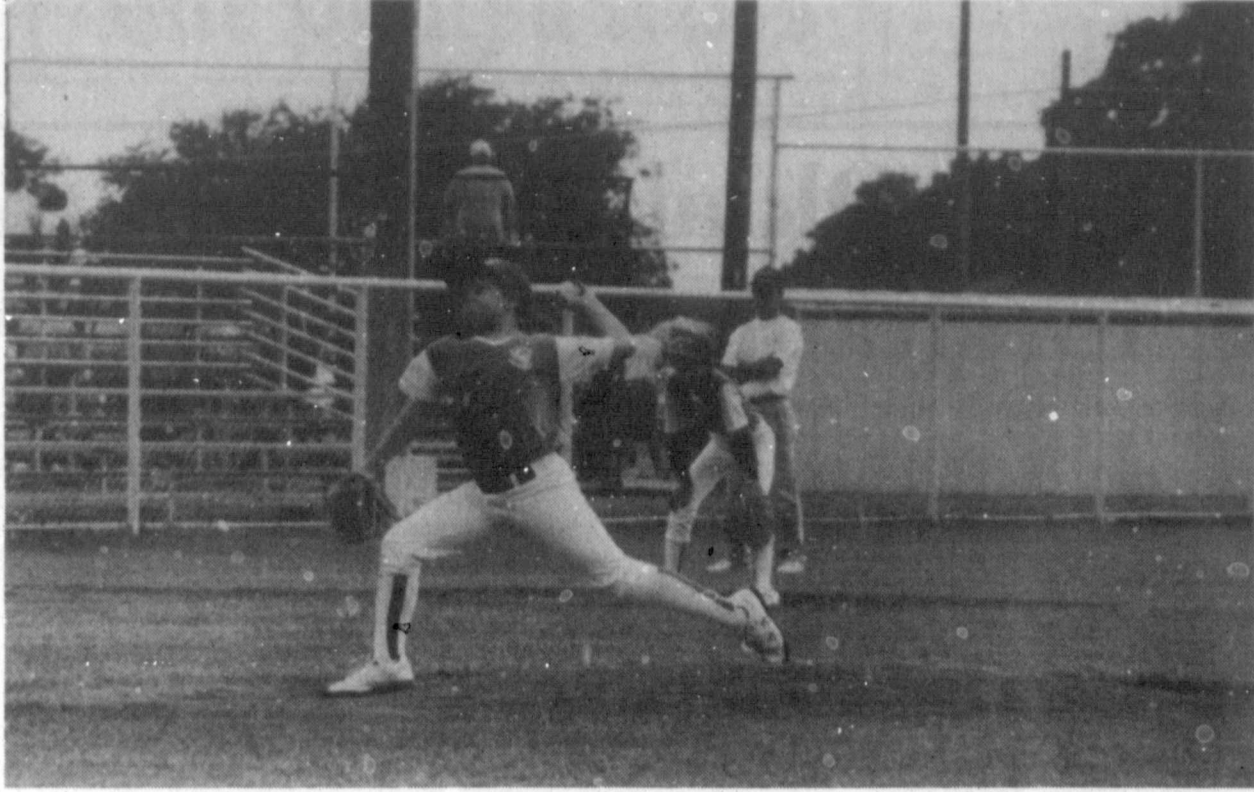

MIAMI (AP) — Free agent cornerback Issiac Holt, a starter the past three seasons for the Dallas Cowboys, signed a contract Thursday with the Miami Dolphins.

Holt, an eight-year veteran, started 11 games for Dallas in 1992 and was a backup during the playoffs and Super Bowl. He was waived by the Cowboys on May 11.

Before being traded to Dallas in the 1989 Herschel Walker trade, Holt spent four seasons with the Minnesota Vikings. He has 23 career interceptions, including including eight in 1986.

To make room for Holt on the 80-man roster, the Dolphins waived running back Amir Rasul.

Munoz powers Twins past Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers were glad to see Pedro Munoz leave town Thursday night. Munoz used the long ball to send the Minnesota Twins over the Rangers for the second time in three games, hitting a pair of solo shots in Minnesota's 6-5 victory.

"It's my time right now," said Munoz, who hit a solo homer in the 10th inning Tuesday night to give Minnesota a 3-2 decision. "But we have a lot of guys on this team who can carry us. It's good to get the bats but we need to get everybody healthy."

Munoz wasn't even in manager Tom Kelly's original starting lineup, but when first baseman Gene Larkin suffered an Achilles tendon injury prior to the game, Munoz was inserted in the eighth spot in right field and Dave McCarty moved from right to first base.

"When Gene got hurt during BP, I was the only righthanded hitter on the bench so I knew I'd be in the lineup," Munoz said.

Munoz's homers in the third and sixth, his sixth and seventh of the season, gave him home runs in three consecutive official at-bats.

Minnesota won for the 10th time in its last 13 games. The Twins are 14-6 in one-run games.

The Twins took advantage of two Ranger errors to score three unearned runs in the fifth, wiping out a 4-2 deficit.

Munoz drew a leadoff walk from starter Charlie Leibrandt (6-3) and Chuck Knoblauch reached on third baseman Dean Palmer's fielding error. Jeff Reboulet walked to load the bases and Kirby Puckett drove in Munoz with a sacrifice fly.

Dave Winfield followed with a single up the middle, scoring Knoblauch from second, and Reboulet scored when center fielder David Hulse failed to field the hit cleanly.

Twins starter Kevin Tapani (3-6) struggled in the early going, allowing 11 baserunners, four runs and eight hits in the first three innings. He settled down, however, and allowed only two hits in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings to earn his first victory since May 12.

Rick Aguilera pitched the ninth for his 18th save.

Tapani, winless in his five previous starts, got his first victory since May 12.

"It didn't look like he would have much of a future tonight," Kelly said. "But in the fourth, fifth and sixth he got it together."

BASEBALL

The Pampa Shockers host Randall at 6 p.m. tonight in a West Texas League baseball game at Harvester Field.

The Shockers are coming off a 14-5 loss to Amarillo High on Tuesday night.

Pampa had earlier beaten AHS, 12-9, last weekend in a three-team series at Harvester Field. Hank Gindorf was the winning pitcher and he also delivered a two-run homer. Elk City, Okla. beat both Amarillo High, 4-3, and Pampa, 6-3, during that weekend.

"Beating Amarillo High's varsity was really a big boost for us," said Shockers' head coach Terry Bob Moore. "Amarillo High advanced (into the playoffs) about as far as any team in the panhandle this past season."

Moore has made compete lineup changes in the middle innings of each game and he plans to continue that policy throughout the remainder of the season.

"If we hadn't been rotating our lineup I think our record would be better, but if we go with the same ones most of the time, that leaves a bunch of other players who aren't going to develop. We want every player on the team to play a lot of baseball this summer," Moore said.

FISHING

Fritch's fourth annual Small Fry Fishing Tournament has been slated for June 19 at the Stilling Basin below the dam.

The tournament begins at 8 a.m. and ends at 2 p.m. with the winners to be announced at 4 p.m. at the Fritch City Park. There is no cost to enter.

There will be three age categories: 6 through 8; 9 through 11 and 12 through 14. Prizes will be awarded in each age category based on the size of the fish or stringer of fish caught.

Prize drawings will also be held throughout the tournament.

For more information, call the Fritch Chamber of Commerce at 857-2458.

PHYSICALS

Physical examinations for Pampa athletes from the 7th through 12th grades will be held throughout the summer.

The physicals are for both male and female athletes and will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday in Dr. Keith Black's office at Northcrest Medical Building.

Pampa athletic trainer Stuart Smith said no fee will be charged and he urged 7th and 9th graders to have their physicals completed as soon as possible.

GOLF

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Tom Kite's back. Oops. Sorry, Tom. "My back is fine," Kite said. "No more back questions."

Kite returned from a one-week break Thursday and shot a 3-under-par 68, hot on the trail of a pair of obscure tournament pros after the first round of the Buick Classic at Westchester Country Club.

Dudley Hart, a 25-year-old in his third year on the tour, led with a 5-under 66, while Hogan Tour graduate Brandel Chamblee shot 67.

Kite had played three straight weeks before skipping the Memorial Tournament. Otherwise, he'd have played in five straight tournaments before defending his U.S. Open title next week at Baltusrol.

Miami's Neighbors will compete in World Scholar-Athlete Games

Andrew Neighbors, a senior at Miami High School, will participate in the World Scholar-Athlete Games, June 20 to July 1 in Newport, RI, as a basketball player.

Neighbors has earned 1st Team District honors in each of his three seasons thus far on the Miami varsity basketball team. Last season he averaged 20 points, 9 rebounds and 5 assists per game.

He is a member of the National Honor Society and a recipient of the American Legion Citizenship Award.

Neighbors plays guard and forward for the Miami basketball team. Neighbors also plays for the Warrior's football and tennis teams.

The Games received over 9,000 nominations from American and international students for 2,000 openings. Participants will range from 16-19 years old. They were chosen on the basis of their academic achievement, leadership qualities and level of accomplishment in their chosen sport.

Protesters turn backs to Gen. Colin Powell

By JON MARCUS
Associated Press Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Gen. Colin Powell spoke of U.S. troops in Europe at Harvard University's commencement but was drawn back to another, thornier issue — the military's ban on homosexuals.

Protesters stood on a dais in silent protest and others carried placards and balloons reading "lift the ban" when the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff spoke Thursday amid tight security. Powell opposes the lifting of the ban.

About 200 of the more than 5,800 graduates, and some faculty members, stood and turned their backs on Powell when he received an honorary doctorate.

But most of the estimated 29,000 people wedged into Harvard Yard rose several times to cheer him.

During his commencement address, Powell said further cuts in U.S. troop levels in Europe could prompt allies to lose confidence. "We must not reduce our forces overseas to the point at which our commitment is doubted by our friends," he said.

About 100,000 U.S. troops are stationed in Europe. The military has reduced the number of its troops and bases, canceled weapons programs and cut defense spending by 30 percent.

In brief comments on the ban, Powell predicted the controversy would be settled in the same way the military has dealt with such explosive matters as racism and the Tailhook scandal.

"We found answers to them that made us stronger," he said. "We will do the same, my friends, with the very difficult issue of gays in the military."

Powell said a resolution is near "to reconcile these interests." President Clinton has set June 15 as the deadline for the military to propose a policy on homosexuals.

In addition to usual Harvard commencement traditions — ushers wearing topcoats and tails, students wearing bow ties and seersucker, a speech delivered in Latin — the university sanctioned a color guard of gay veterans. They carried an American flag and a rainbow banner symbolizing the gay rights movement.

Powell, in a news conference after his address, said of the protesters: "It is their right to do that. I've spent most of my career making sure they had that right."

Others scoffed at the display. "It certainly does show a lack of respect and the willingness to blackball one person just because he is part of an institution," said Ben Auspitz, a sophomore and managing editor of the conservative newspaper Harvard Salient.

Powell has been chairman of the Joint Chiefs since 1989 and is the first black to hold the post.

Panel calls for discharge of lesbian officer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Navy reservist who declared in January that she is a lesbian should be honorably discharged from the service, a panel of three officers recommended Thursday.

Soon after the announcement, Lt. Zoe Dunning told reporters she had done nothing wrong and was "being persecuted for simply who I am."

The hearing in her case came at a time when policy regarding homosexuals in the military is in flux.

President Clinton promised in January to lift a longstanding ban on gays in the armed forces, but delayed the order six months after the proposal ran into trouble in Congress. Clinton has ordered Defense Secretary Les Aspin to draft an executive order that would end the policy by July 15.

Meanwhile, a federal judge in California struck down the ban as unconstitutional in January and ordered the Navy to reinstate Petty Officer Keith Meinhold, who had been discharged after revealing he is gay.

Dunning, 29, revealed her sexual orientation in January, at a rally in San Francisco in support of Meinhold.

Lt. Zoe Dunning

In Dunning's case, prosecuting attorney Lt. Kevin Bruen had argued that the policy excluding gays remains in place and should be enforced.

But retired Capt. Lawrence J. Korb, assistant secretary of defense during the Reagan administration, testified on Dunning's behalf.

Korb said it was a waste of tax dollars to discharge Dunning, esti-imating that the Navy had invested at least $250,000 in her education and training.

During the hearing, Dunning's lawyer, Gregory A. Bonfiglio, read from a sheaf of awards, recognitions and positive performance evaluations from her military file. Several of Dunning's co-workers also testified in her support.

Dunning did six years of active duty after graduating from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1985. She transferred to the reserves in 1991 and is currently a graduate student in business.

After the January rally, Dunning was put on unpaid, non-drilling status, she said.

Goldwater predicts end to ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barry Goldwater, a hero to America's conservatives since his crusade for the White House three decades ago, says the military is sure to drop its ban on gays eventually, and it ought to be soon.

"I think if you left it up the American people the attitude would be, what the hell, there's nothing wrong with a gay as long as he doesn't misbehave himself," Goldwater said Thursday on CNN's "Larry King Live."

He said his neighbors in Arizona have little interest in the issue.

In an opinion column published in Thursday's editions of The Washington Post, the 85-year-old former senator said "you don't need to be 'straight' to fight and die for your country. You just need to shoot straight."

Goldwater, the 1964 Republican presidential nominee, has been a symbol of conservatism and his support for lifting the ban was guaranteed to get attention for the cause. And he promised to do what he could to help persuade lawmakers to go along with the idea.

But Goldwater, who makes a point of never going back to the Senate he left in 1986 and regularly takes swipes at the Christian fundamentalist wing of the GOP, expressed doubts about how much he could do as a lobbyist.

"Sitting out in the desert ... I don't know how much influence I have," Goldwater told King after a caller identifying himself as a gay lobbyist asked if he would press former colleagues to vote against the ban.

On Capitol Hill, key lawmakers indicated that Goldwater's views as stated in his column were unlikely to change their minds.

"I certainly would respect his comments," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. "I don't agree with it."

"BLUE WEEK"

Many Items Are One Of A Kind So Hurry

WE'RE SELLING THIS 4^{PC} STANLEY BEDROOM SET FOR $200 BELOW OUR COST The group consists of a triple door dresser, a vertice framed mirror, queen size headboard and the matching night stand. We have owned this suite for 16 months and sold one piece of it, the chest. We are not going to buy it back because if it doesn't sell any faster than this has, it doesn't deserve to be on our floor because it takes up as much room as bedroom sets that sell. So if you like contemporary styling and oak wood, it's your chance to buy a bedroom set for less than Stanley sells it for and you don't even have to own a furniture store, if you act fast and have the cash! NOW $758 Cash and Carry	WE'RE SELLING THIS TRADITIONAL LOVESEAT FOR $399 BELOW OUR COST This love seat is upholstered in a red and blue/green stripe textured cover that has been discontinued. NOW $599 Cash and Carry
WE'RE SELLING THIS CONTEMPORARY SOFA AND LOVE SEAT FOR $30 BELOW OUR COST I sometimes think that my wife should be buying furniture in New York City. When we were at our last Highpoint North Carolina Furniture Market, MY GORGEOUS wife Tali Clara talked to the Klausner New York Salesman and he told her this sofa and loveseat was selling like crazy, so she bought it unknown to me. We have displayed it for 6 months and no one has even sat on it. I told her evidently we're going to have to wait until someone from New York City moves to Pampa before anyone even sits on this big seller. It's upholstered in khaki with deep brown chevron stripes. NOW $699 Cash and Carry	WE'RE SELLING THIS STRATOLONGER! 5^{PC} BLACK SECTIONAL FOR $200 BELOW OUR COST It's simple mathematics! We have other sectionals that out sell this sectional ten to one and it takes up as much room as the good sellers. This sectional consists of side by side recliners with adjustable headrests and one of the recliners is the stressaway vibrating recliner, curved wedge and a sleeper unit with a great spring air mattress and last but not least, an upholstered storage table. If you like black you'll love this rich Fin-a-pella leather like upholstery. NOW $1907 Cash and Carry
REGARDLESS OF LOSS ODD NIGHTSTANDS WILL BE OFFERED FOR $69 Each	WE'RE SELLING THIS CHAISE LOUNGE FOR $50 BELOW OUR COST This is a real steal if you have need for a chaise lounge in a paisley blue cotton print cover. NOW $299 Cash and Carry

Positively! All Sales Are Final! All Items Must Be Removed From Premises At Once

FREE DELIVERY EXCEPT ON THE CASH & CARRY ITEMS If you have no way to pick up the cash & carry items we will deliver at a small charge.	MY VERY OWN DAUGHTER IS HOPING THAT WE DON'T SELL THIS CLAYTON MARCUS SOFA FOR $500 BELOW OUR COST This quality sofa has survived 4 "BLUE WEEK" ads! It's been priced at $599, $499, $399 and $299 and it never has been sold. I told her if it didn't sell this time that I would give it to her! So naturally she hopes you don't buy it! NOW $199 Cash and Carry
YOU CAN BUY A 3 PIECE WALL ENSEMBLE FOR $300 BELOW OUR COST The last one and if you have an 80 inch wall that needs to be filled, then get in here and purchase this 3^{PC} group while you can. NOW $599 Cash and Carry	SERTA PERFECT SLEEPER KING SIZE BEDDING SET THAT WE'RE SELLING $100 BELOW OUR COST This top of the line king size Serta Perfect Sleeper carries a 20 year guarantee! Why not sleep on the best when you're paying a $100 less than the factory sells it for. But hurry we only have 4 of these discontinued sets left! NOW $445 Cash & Carry
WE'RE SELLING THIS SOFA AND LOVE SEAT FOR $100 BELOW OUR COST This is the first time that this fine traditional sofa and love seat has ever been placed on "BLUE WEEK" and it's a shame because this group has always sold well for us, but the factory is discontinuing the cover which is a very attractive screen print with rose, blue, white, green and a few other colors I can't describe so come in and look. You just might like it and buy it. NOW $935 Cash and Carry	NEED A SOFA SLEEPER WITH AN INNERSPRING MATTRESS. THIS QUEEN SIZE SLEEPER WE'RE SELLING $20 BELOW OUR COST! It's upholstered in a durable denim cotton blue & white stripe cover. This cover maybe the cats meow in Big "D", but the people in the Panhandle haven't even purred about it. NOW $390 Cash and Carry
5^{PC} BEDROOM GROUP IS BEING OFFERED TO YOU FOR $400 BELOW OUR COST If you need an exceptional value for your bedroom, then take advantage of this final day offer. The group consists of a triple door dresser, mirror, door chest, queen headboard and matching nightstand. NOW $599 Cash and Carry	NEED A FULL SIZE SOFA SLEEPER WITH INNERSPRING MATTRESS? WE'RE SELLING THIS ONE FOR $20 BELOW OUR COST I really don't know why this sleeper hasn't sold because it's upholstered in an excellent Olefin cover and it's neutral in color. Perhaps it's too light in color, but it sells great on sofas. Anyway out it goes. NOW $370 Cash and Carry
