Rebel groups harden positions over hostages

By ELOY O. AGUILAR
Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Leaders of two rival rebel groups that are each holding dozens of officials hostage hardened their positions Saturday despite government efforts to resolve the crisis.

After learning a rebel group loyal to the former Sandinista leadership had taken the vice president and 33 conservative lawmakers hostage in Managua on Friday, a former Contra rebel leader was less inclined to release the 41 people he has been holding in the northern town of Quilali, officials said.

"The politicians held by the Sandinistas in Managua have no connection at all with our military forces," Talavera told The Associated Press in an interview in the northern town of Quilali.

Talavera claimed to have the backing of all the peasants in the north and of forces outside Nicaragua.

"The Jackal has hardened his position," Sergio Caramagna of the Organization of American States said of Contra rebel leader Jose Angel Talavera, known as "The Jackal."

Caramagna, a representative of the OAS's International Aid and Verification Commission, spoke in Managua after meeting Saturday with the Contra leader.

In response, the pro-Sandinista rebel leader identified as Commando 31 said Talavera's position could force his group to "toughen measures" against the hostages he is holding in Managua. He didn't elaborate.

Commando 40, another leader of the pro-Sandinista group, told the Sandinista-run Radio Ya that his group had talked to Talavera's group by phone, but failed to reach an accord.

"He told us that they have armed people in Managua," said Commando 40. "We told him that we do, too, and also in the mountains."

The tension raised fears that civil war could return to Nicaragua, where violence has been a way of life for decades.

Both sides in the 1980s guerrilla war have become increasingly militant over broken promises for land, money and other government compensation.

The economy that President Violeta Chamorro inherited from the Sandinistas in 1990 had been devastated by eight years of civil war and a U.S. economic blockade.

Chamorro's economic program, including massive cuts in public spending, made inflation drop from 33,000 percent in 1990 to 3.5 percent last year. Unemployment in the past three years has increased 60 percent. Discontent is high.

An estimated 1,400 former rightist Contras and some demobilized Sandinistas have rearmed in recent months. At least 50 people were killed last month in a rebellion in Esteli, about 60 miles north of Managua.

The rearmed Contras — whose insurgency against the leftist Sandinistas was backed by the United States — have demanded the removal from top government posts of leftist Sandinista officials. Sandinistas retained key positions despite their electoral defeat by Chamorro's center-right coalition.

Roman Catholic Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo broadcast a plea to the kidnapers to "pledge themselves to peace and prevent a bloodbath." Members of the human rights commission began talks with hostage takers in Managua Saturday.

The government and the country's two largest political groups also urged the two rebel bands to release the hostages immediately.

Former Sandinista President Daniel Ortega said an agreement signed by the parties and the government guarantees the hostage-takers could return to civilian life after releasing the captives.

The pro-Sandinista rebels, who have held Vice President Virgilio Godoy and the lawmakers since Friday, rejected calls to release their hostages, but did agree to free a sick legislator.

They insisted on the release of Sandinista lawmakers, military officers and other officials taken hostage Thursday and Friday by rearmed Contras in Quilali, about 175 miles north of Managua.

The hostages held in Managua included Alfredo Cesar, a former Contra leader based in Miami during Nicaragua's civil war and now a National Opposition Union deputy.

The Contra hostage-takers have demanded the resignation of the president's influential chief of staff Antonio Lacayo and army chief Gen. Humberto Ortega. Mrs. Chamorro has refused.

Talavera on Saturday also demanded the resignation of Lenin Cerna Juarez, director of state security in the Interior Ministry.

The Contras say the Sandinistas dominate the government through Ortega, who was military chief in the 1980s when his brother Daniel was president. They accuse Lacayo of masterminding a policy under which the Sandinistas and Mrs. Chamorro jointly rule the country.

The officers and other officials held by the Contras since Thursday had come to the Contra stronghold to offer the rebels a nesty for past attacks.

Convoy reaches suffering Muslims

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — U.N. peacekeepers reached trapped Muslims in Mostar for the first time in two months Saturday and found 55,000 people on the verge of starvation amid the city's ruins.

"The population was so desperate that they were not even moved to ask for cigarettes or candy. They only begged for wheat flour," said United Nations High Commission for Refugees spokeswoman Lyndall Sachs.

One local official told the U.N. mission without such relief "there are going to be dead in the streets," said Ron Redmond, a UNHCR spokesman in Geneva who had access to the same field report.

"This was not much of an exaggeration. The situation is very bad," Redmond quoted Jerry Hulme, a senior UNHCR official who accompanied the small convoy, including six Spanish armored personnel carriers, as saying.

The U.N. delegation, headed by U.N. Civil Affairs chief Cedric Thornberry, found 55,000 people — 30,000 of them displaced — living on the city's east side, Sachs said.

Bosnian Croats on Friday reneged on promises to allow Thornberry and members of the Spanish battalion to enter the Muslim enclave.

Croats and Muslims were allies in the Bosnian war when it began some 17 months ago but they have been locked in bitter fighting over territory for several months. Croats and Serbs are now apparently cooperating in an effort to divide Bosnia along ethnic lines.

Fighting broke out in Mostar May 9 between Bosnian Croat and Bosnian government forces.

The Croats, who control access to the city, have refused to allow any relief convoys into the east side since June 15. The U.N. will not send aid to the Croat-held areas until it can equally send aid to Muslims.

Thornberry brought in a token amount of medical supplies as a symbolic opening of humanitarian aid to the city. He took a small amount of such supplies to the Croat side on Thursday.

Counselors helping students needing to rid themselves of substance abuse

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

Students at Pampa Independent School District who are suffering from illicit drug, alcohol or tobacco addictions can cure themselves of such self-destructiveness and earn an A+ for self-improvement in the process.

Lesley Koetting, the school district's only drug- and alcohol-abuse counselor, who assists PISD students in all grades, says coming clean and staying clean can vastly improve a young person's life.

"They will have more time and a clearer mind to set and achieve goals, and be successful," observed Koetting, 26, who has provided the drug- and alcohol-abuse counseling for PISD since November 1992 as the district's full-time Student Assistance Program coordinator. "They might save themselves from many physical problems, especially in the future."

Last school year, Koetting received an average of 15 referrals per month from teachers, counselors and administrators concerning Pampa High School students who reportedly were addicted to illicit drugs or alcohol.

The PHS offices of the Student Assistance Program (SAP) are located on the third floor of that school.

In addition to high school students served by the program, last school year an average of one or two Pampa Middle School students with illicit drug or alcohol problems were referred each month to Eva Garcia, 28, a caseworker for SAP who is based at the middle school. Garcia, who conducts home visits to inquire about truant students and to assist students and their families, refers PMS students with illicit drug and alcohol addictions to Koetting for counseling.

In an interview on Friday, Koetting noted that an illicit drug or alcohol addiction can have a "very negative effect" on a student's grades. As for tobacco users, "if their nicotine habit is so bad they have to miss class and leave campus to smoke a cigarette, it would (negatively) affect their classwork. It would (hurt) their grades," Koetting said.

Koetting also pointed out that such addictions can put a young person in danger with the law: it is illegal in Texas for a person under age 21 to purchase alcohol, or for a person under age 18 to purchase tobacco products, she said.

Koetting said she could not estimate how many Pampa High School students consume illicit drugs or alcohol. She noted that she has not yet obtained the results of a spring 1993 survey on the incidence of illicit drug and alcohol consumption by PHS students.

Students can cure themselves of their addictions and earn an A+ for self-improvement.

Koetting noted that she believes alcohol to be the most commonly abused drug among PMS and PHS students. "It appears that alcohol use is very accepted among (many of) the students," Koetting observed. Among parents, she added, "there seems to be some acceptance (of students' alcohol consumption), too."

Among the symptoms of an illicit drug or alcohol problem in a student are slurred speech, watery or red eyes, an unsteady gait, moodiness and disruptiveness in class, failure to complete schoolwork, a decline in a student's grades and a high rate of absenteeism from school, Koetting said.

The salaries of the three employees in PISD's Student Assistance Program and other program expenses are paid by the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse in Austin. For the fiscal year that began Sept 1, the program of PISD received $73,715 in grants from TCADA — $4,000 less than last fiscal year, Koetting said. This is the fourth year in which PISD has received a grant from TCADA for offering the Student Assistance Program, she said.

Students with severe alcohol or illicit drug problems might be referred to social service agencies for treatment, Koetting said.

"Our services are confidential," Koetting, a state-certified chemical dependency counselor, emphasized.

Koetting noted that if a student brings illicit drugs or alcohol into her office or appears to be under the influence of illicit drugs or alcohol during his meeting with her, she would have to report him to his school principal. PISD policy prohibits students from having illicit drugs or alcohol on campus.

Even in the absence of a referral from others, students are encouraged to visit Koetting or Garcia without a referral if they suffer from an illicit drug, alcohol or tobacco addiction or serious problem.

PISD students, including elementary school students, who are suffering because their immediate family members have an illicit drug or alcohol problem may also receive counseling from Koetting, she said.

Koetting can be reached by calling 669-4807 at PHS; if she is not available, messages may be left on her answering machine. Garcia can be reached by calling the middle school's main office at 669-4900; if she is not available, callers can leave a message for Garcia from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays.

In addition to their counseling and caseworker duties, Koetting and Garcia give free educational presentations on drug and alcohol abuse before classes, teachers, parents, community organizations and student organizations. Members of the general public are encouraged to call Koetting or Garcia if they want to arrange for such a presentation.

Hardaway of Canyon and Homer M. "Chuck" Frazier of Follett, all deceased.

Clinton golfs, rests up for more battles

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — President Clinton rested up Saturday for legislative battles to come, and tried to rally public support for the health-care reform package he will unveil this fall.

In his weekly radio address, taped before he left Washington for a vacation on Martha's Vineyard, Clinton said health reforms were needed to prevent "more fear, anxiety and insecurity on the part of our citizens."

With his economic package now law, Clinton said, American "must take the next step."

"We must reform our health care system so that you and every American will be assured not only of economic security, but the security of knowing that health care is always there for you."

After a grueling fight to get his economic package through Congress, Clinton is enjoying an 11-day vacation before tackling a formidable fall agenda. Clinton returns to Washington on Aug. 29 and is sure to face pitched battles this fall over health care and the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The president has been sleeping in, reading, and hobnobbing with some of the island's more prominent residents, attending parties hosted by adviser Vernon Jordan and Washington Post Co. Chairman Katharine Graham.

On Saturday, Clinton hit the golf course and boomed his first drive down the fairway, getting a round of applause for his performance.

Asked if he was experiencing Washington withdrawal pains, he said, "No. I didn't do anything yesterday. It was great — read a book, slept."

His golfing partners at Farm Neck Golf Club included Jordan and Associate Attorney General Webb Hubbell.

Later, Clinton took daughter Chelsea to the West Tisbury fair, where he worked his way through an adoring — but aggressive — crowd.

Hundreds of people, some locking arms to form a human wedge, tried to approach the president to take pictures. Secret Service agents constantly implored people not to push and shove as Clinton worked his way through a large crowd.

The 13-year-old Chelsea had accompanied her father as he walked through a building housing art exhibits and produce. But she was whisked away as the president walked out onto the fairgrounds and was rushed by large numbers of people.

Meeting set on destaffing of south fire station

The Pampa Fire Department will be holding a meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday to discuss the destaffing of Fire Station No. 3, which is located at 1010 S. Barnes.

The meeting will be held at the Southside Senior Citizens Center and will feature Pampa Fire Chief Claude Phillips, who will discuss the destaffing of the station and the relocation of personnel necessary because of the move.

The public is welcome to attend. The destaffing of the fire station will become official Oct. 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year, and was brought about because of a reduction of the number of firefighters, according to Phillips.

Personnel from the closed station were moved to Fire Station
No. 1, which is located at 203 W.
Foster.

One of the concerns some people have with the destaffing of the station is with the possible increase in insurance rates across the city.

Phillips said he has been in contact with the insurance board and believes an increase is not coming because of the destaffing of the station.

New investigations face Navy's Tailhook scandal

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The Navy is starting new investigations into the Tailhook scandal after dropping charges against half of the aviators suspected of wrongdoing because of weak evidence, a newspaper reported Saturday.

Vice Adm. J. Paul Reason, the naval officer presiding over the military's disciplinary hearings, has ordered three judge advocate general probes, scheduled to begin Aug. 30,

The San Diego Union-Tribune reported.

The panels will target five Navy aviators who weren't charged. They also may look into the unresolved cases of about a dozen other officers accused of fondling women at the 1991 Tailhook Association convention in Las Vegas, defense lawyers and Navy sources told the newspaper.

A Navy spokesman, Cmdr. John Tull, refused to discuss whether new investigations had been ordered.

At the convention, Navy and Marine Corps pilots reportedly forced women to walk through a hotel-hallway gantlet, where they were sexually assaulted.

The Navy reported that 26 people had been assaulted, but the Pentagon inspector general put the number at 87.

Pampa CPA turns author with publication of article in journal

Pampa's newest author approaches his subject with the fervor of a born-again evangelist trying to drive the devil from a tent meeting.

The evangelist is a Certified Public Accountant, the devil is ignorance and the pulpit ranges from meeting hall podiums to computer networks to national magazines.

"This is the first time I've had an article in the Journal," said Mike Ruff, speaking of an article he wrote that was in the Journal of Accountancy earlier this summer. "I've had articles published in some trade journals, but this is the first time in a national publication."

The article in the magazine that goes to 300,000 subscribers across the nation deals with Ruff's favorite subject — financial planning.

"I did a presentation on the subject at a National Accounting Conference for the American Institute of CPAs in Orlando," Ruff said. "A senior editor of the Journal was in the audience and asked me to convert my presentation to an article for the magazine."

Despite the article's favorable reception, Ruff said he didn't plan on giving up his day job.

"I enjoyed writing the article and doing presentations, but I'm more concerned about taking care of my clients," he said. "They come first."

An accountant by training, Ruff became interested in personal financial planning after returning to Pampa to open his practice.

"I moved back to Pampa in 1979," Ruff said. "My clients would ask me questions I couldn't answer."

A Pampa High School graduate, Ruff earned his bachelor's degree in finance from Texas Tech. He worked for an accounting firm in Amarillo before returning to his hometown some 14 years ago.

Ruff said he, like most accountants, had been trained to deal with taxes. Pushed by a perceived need of his clients, he began studying financial planning, an area that is rapidly becoming the leading edge in accounting.

"What I found was alarming," he said. "People don't understand money. It's a failure of our system, an indictment of our financial system. People don't understand Social Security. That's what alarmed me. People don't understand."

Once he began to realize the need for information, he began to share his knowledge.

"The first thing you have to do is to educate people as to the extent of the problem," Ruff said, "and that's what I try to do."

That educational approach has led not only to speaking engagements and presentations and magazine articles, but also to computer networks with other accountants interested in personal financial planning.

"There are people from coast to coast doing the same thing that I'm doing," he said. "Individually we couldn't do much, but collectively we're getting the message across."

That message is one of time and money. Savings have to be invested in a manner that meets the need of the investor, he said. The planning involves time frames as well as money. While most people realize their money will earn interest over a period of time, the value of that return is not often grasped.

"It is a concept known as adjusted rate of return," he said. "It's the rate of return on an investment after inflation and taxes."

Inflation and taxes can make a terrifying difference. Citing the return on a certificate of deposit in 1981, he explained that the high interest rate actually cost investors money.

"In 1981, CDs were paying 15.7 percent," he said, "but the adjusted rate of return was a minus 2.28 percent because of the inflation and taxes."

A chart on Ruff's wall displays the return on a dollar invested in 1925 in several different alternatives. Based on the initial investment, the dollar would today have the purchasing power of 30 cents if invested in treasury bills in 1925. If invested in common stocks, it should have the purchasing power of almost $20.

With a gleam in his eye, Ruff noted the points along the chart where taxes had been lowered or raised. A few corresponded with dips or spikes, but none appeared to change the basic trend line.

"It's like putting your fist in a bucket of water," he said, "then pulling it out and looking for the hole. It just doesn't matter."

He said he thinks low tax rates are history. "We had 80 and 90 percent rates with no deficit," he said. "What makes us think we can keep taxes down with the deficit we've got?"

Tax laws will come and go, he said. The danger is in making it so complex that people will simply ignore it.

"I've been in practice since 1977," he said, "and almost every year there has been a major tax bill, sometimes two or three. People will not comply with a law they perceive as unfair, and the more complex tax laws get, the more they're perceived as unfair."

The questions asked by his clients, he said, remain the same. The answer changes.

Despite some disturbing signs, Ruff said he was optimistic about the future.

"It really comes down to the individual," he said. "It's a matter of what changes we're willing to make today so we can have a brighter future. It's a matter of establishing goals and planning ways of reaching them."

Ruff said he thinks that society can solve the problems facing the nation. "I think we can solve these problems," he said. "We have the capacity."

Cuba-bound bus becomes symbol for anti-embargo

LAREDO (AP) — The government's release of a Cuba-bound school bus upon which protesters staged a 23-day hunger strike scored a symbolic victory for a group opposing the U.S. embargo against Cuba, supporters said Saturday.

"I think the school bus became a symbol for our purposes of showing the idiocy, the cruelty, the inhumanity of this policy the United States has had for so long," Pastors for Peace spokesman Rush Rehm said.

Late Friday, eight group members — who had refused to leave the bus since July 29, when it was impounded by U.S. Customs agents — finally walked out of the fenced parking lot where the bus had been kept near a bridge at the U.S.-Mexican border.

The U.S. Treasury Department declared the bus as humanitarian aid earlier Friday evening, reversing its earlier position that it was an illegal export requiring a special license.

Pastors of Peace members had refused to apply for a license, saying such a step would show compliance with an embargo they say is immoral. They staged the holdout inside the old bus to draw attention to their cause.

Supporters of the embargo, including the Cuban-American National Foundation in Miami, say a harsh economic squeeze is necessary to end the 34-year rule of communist Cuban leader Fidel Castro.

The U.S. government's about-face ended the unusual protest in which a handful of Pastors for Peace members endured extreme heat inside the bus on the asphalt lot for more than three weeks.

Rehm said the hunger strikers began taking food late Friday.

During their protest, the strikers had claimed they would remain on the bus until the United States lifted the entire embargo against Cuba.

"I would chalk that up to a little hyperbole," Rehm said. "I think if they said that it might have been in a moment of political fervor."

Rehm said the release of the bus was an important symbolic victory, but the real goal of the Minneapolis-based group said its real goal is to end the embargo.

Goldwater chastises GOP on gays in military

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barry Goldwater, who for years was the conservative voice of the GOP, says it is "just plain dumb" for Republicans to oppose gays and lesbians in the armed forces.

"The Republican Party should stand for freedom and only freedom," the former Arizona senator said in an interview with The Advocate, a national gay and lesbian magazine.

In the interview, released Saturday, Goldwater said he has also lost all respect for the religious right.

"There is no place in this country for practicing religion in politics. That goes for Falwell, Robertson and all the rest of those political preachers," he said, referring to the Rev. Jerry Falwell and television evangelist Pat Robertson.

He said the televangelists are "raising big money on God," and added: "I don't believe in that. It's not a very religious thing to do." Goldwater's remarks on homosexuals echoed the opinions he expressed in a Washington Post column in June.

Goldwater said then that the military should lift its ban on gays because, "You don't need to be 'straight' to fight and die for your country. You just need to shoot straight."

In the current interview, Goldwater, the 1964 Republican presidential candidate, turned his fire on his own party. "To see the party that fought communism and big government now fighting the gays, well, that's just plain dumb," Goldwater said.

"There has been homosexuality ever since man and women were invented. I guess there were gay apes. So it's not an issue."

He said he would tell the GOP: "Don't raise hell about the gays, the blacks and the Mexicans. Free people have a right to do as they damn please."

President Clinton, who initially advocated lifting the ban against homosexuals in the armed services, has endorsed a so-called "don't ask, don't tell" policy in which gays and lesbians can serve as long as they keep their sexual orientation secret and don't engage in homosexual activity.

Quarter Horse Museum changing regular hours

AMARILLO — Beginning Sept. 1 and continuing through April 30, 1994, the American Quarter Horse Heritage Center & Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Guests can view exhibits dedicated to the history and modern activities of the American quarter horse breed, as well as the special exhibition, "Hoofbeats on the Pitchfork Ranch: Photography by Bob Moorhouse," which provides a pictorial view of American quarter horses and cowboys at work on a modern ranch.

"Although the fall and winter months typically are slower for many tourism attractions, the Heritage Center enjoys a location along Interstate 40 that provides easy access to travelers year-round," commented Leslie Baker, the museum's public relations director.

"Naturally, the number of tourists declines from September through April, but that is when we concentrate on the education programs we offer to visiting school groups and other organizations, as well as make plans for future events," she added.

Quarter Horse Outfitters, the museum's store, remains busy with its traveling store at the All American Quarter Horse Congress in Columbus, Ohio, in October and the AQHA World Championship Show in Oklahoma City, Okla., in November.

The holiday season brings an increase in the number of mail orders the store fills for patrons who enjoy the ease of shopping via the store's toll-free number, 1-800-583-8897.

"Hoofbeats on the Pitchfork Ranch" runs through Nov. 28, and the Heritage Center will resume its extended schedule on May 1, when the facility will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

For more information, contact the American Quarter Horse Heritage Center & Museum at 2601 I-40 East, Amarillo, Texas, 79104, or call (806) 376-5181.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Stop the festering student aid fraud

The president's education brain-trusters, scratching their heads over festering fraud in federal student aid programs, seem to overlook what's at root of their woes — the aid itself.

Take away the tax-supported largess, and suddenly the myriad fly-by-night trade schools and related ventures said to be bilking the government would quite simply have nothing to bill.

That wisdom doesn't seem likely to dawn any time soon on the Clinton administration, which if anything is about to foist even more sweeping public funding upon American post-secondary education.

Despite Education Department Assistant Secretary (and former Colorado higher education czar) David Longanecker's pledge recently to "get on top of" the problem, it's hard to image a crackdown from people who champion boondoggles like a national service program for kids to "work off" student loans picking up litter.

No, we suspect that the latest criticism on this saga of misused federal education funds, enunciated by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., will go unheeded. Nunn says a Senate subcommittee he heads has found some schools even give kickbacks to students to allow their names to be used for the notorious and costly Pell grant program.

The grants, which give taxpayer money to students at a variety of colleges as well as vocational and specialty schools, cost the government $6.7 billion last year.

The lesson to be learned here is that the federal gravy train — which has no business supporting higher education in competition with private financiers, college endowments and personal savings — is the source of its own woes.

While aid supporters like Longanecker promise empty to clamp down, the real solution lies simply in shutting it all down.

Liberal visions are nightmares

Most people who identify themselves as liberals are good but misguided people. However, their university gurus, leaders in Congress and advocates in the news media are basically evil people. "Hey, Williams," you say, "that's the meanest thing you've said all year. Explain yourself!" Here it goes.

This century is easily the most barbaric in human history. Hitler and Hirohito were despicable tyrants, but they were no match for the likes of Lenin, Stalin and Mao and their successors and imitators. In their effort to remake man, they slaughtered tens of millions of their own people. These men and their regimes are admired and seen as heroes by America's liberal elite. Liberals share these barbarians' vision. Liberals think they have superior intellect and God has ordained them to impose that wisdom on the "ignorant masses," by brutal force if necessary.

"Williams," you say, "I want proof." Here it is, right out of the mouth of Hillary Clinton in an interview in The New York Times: "Let us be willing to remold society by redefining what it means to be a human being in the 20th century, moving into the new millennium." That vision explains the "disappearances" of tens of millions of Soviet and Chinese citizens as well as the Soviet gulags and Chinese re-education camps. The only question for us is whether people like the Clintons, and their liberal allies, have the stomach their heroes had for all the brutal suppression necessary for "redefining what it means to be a human being in the 20th century."

Liberal affection for tyrants explains their hostility to President Reagan. Reagan correctly identified the U.S.S.R. as an evil empire and predicted that socialism would end up in the dustbin of history. This, you'll recall, drove the intellectual elite and media liberals into a tizzy. Reagan's stalwart determination and his willingness to show the Soviets what an arms race was about resulted in its collapse and subsequent freeing of millions upon millions of captive people from the brutal tyranny of communism.

Liberal support for barbarism has its domestic counterpart. Who's most likely to come to the defense of muggers, rapists and murderers and seek their release to prey on society — liberals or conservatives?

List our most serious social problems. You'll find liberal instigation or advocacy at their core. Take AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases. What philosophy criticized traditional values and advocated free sex? It wasn't conservatives. Look at the plague of illegitimacy, particularly among blacks (66 percent). Again, liberals at work, demeaning and attacking traditional values. What about our drug plague? It was liberals who celebrated drug usage.

New York must be a liberal's dream come true. Liberals support rent control laws. As a result, New Yorkers suffer high rents and abandoned housing, not to mention the horrible human conditions of homelessness and slums. Liberals have pushed for handouts of every sort. Over 50 percent of New Yorkers receive some kind of handout. Therefore, liberals have to support higher and higher taxes on New York's productive population that results in brains and money leaving.

How about educational decline? Who advocated the watering down of standards, condemnation of academic achievement tests, social promotion and substitution of multiculturalism, miseducation and condoms for math and science? Who fights educational reform and supports incompetent teachers? It's not conservatives.

There is no question that liberal visions have turned day into night, hope into despair, and triumph into defeat. The $64,000 question is, why do we continue to heed the corrupt liberal agenda?

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Aug. 22, the 234th day of 1993. There are 131 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

One hundred years ago, on Aug. 22, 1893, author, poet, critic and wit Dorothy Parker was born in West Bend, N.J.

On this date:

In 1485, England's King Richard III was killed in the Battle of Bosworth Field, ending the War of the Roses.

In 1775, England's King George III proclaimed the American colonies in a state of open rebellion.

In 1787, inventor John Fitch demonstrated his steamboat on the Delaware River to delegates of the Continental Congress.

In 1846, the United States annexed New Mexico.

In 1851, the schooner America outraced the Aurora off the English coast to win a trophy that came to be known as the America's Cup.

A man, a dog and a truck ...

A few years ago I went out and bought myself one of those sexy convertible imports. Maybe it was a crisis of middle life.

Maybe I thought owning such an automobile would take away notice of the creeping years. A guy driving a sexy convertible import — a flashy red one — is conquering hills in a metallic blur, not going over them into the land of arthritis and prunes on the other side.

The trouble was the car never quite fit me. Perfume on a hog, that sort of thing.

I looked and felt out of place in it. People would see me in it and look at me as if to say, "Look at that old man driving his kid's car."

Or they would say, "Look at that person having a middle-age crisis. Why doesn't he get a Lincoln and join the American Association of Retired Persons?"

I was terribly fastidious about the car as well. I wouldn't even allow my dog Catfish, the black Lab, to ride in it.

I was afraid he would drool on the expensive leather seats or leave a hair. He would look at me as if to say, "You love that stupid car more than you love me."

One morning I went out and found a flat tire on my sexy convertible import. It looked like something had gnawed the air out of it.

The good news here is I no longer have that car. I traded it. I did what very few people have ever done.

Lewis Grizzard

I traded my flashy red, sexy convertible import for a truck.

I think it was a sign I am over any crisis of middle age and that I am aging gracefully and that I am a mature individual.

I had a truck once before. The speedometer went out when it had 120,000 on it. I drove it another two years before it finally rolled over on its back one day and passed away.

I didn't worry about Catfish drooling or getting hair in that truck. That's what trucks are for.

But instead of getting another truck, I went for the import, and it has taken me this long to come to my senses.

The guy made me a pretty good deal. I did find out that 14 minutes after you purchase a sexy convertible import, it loses about 60 percent of its value.

"This is all this car is worth now?" I asked, when told what it would bring. "My dog never set foot in it."

The guy showed me the book that lists what cars are worth.

"Best I can do," he said, jingling the change in his pocket. When a car dealer starts jingling the change in his pocket, he knows he's got you.

But it's a pretty truck. I got red again. It's got everything on it, but a CD player, which I didn't want anyway, because I don't own any CD's, and, even if I did, the CD player probably would break or my CD's would become the first in history to rot.

But I've got a tape deck, a radio, air conditioning, power windows and locks and there's a luggage rack on top. Catfish gnaws one tire on my new truck and he rides up there.

I went on my first drive. For the first time in years I felt comfortable on the road again. I felt like an adult, not some 24-year-old with the top down, the wind blowing through his flowing locks as he cruises for girls who pop their gum and use "goes" in place of "says."

My new truck is American-made, too. I feel a lot better about that. And it will save on gas, which will help me pay my fair share of taxes after getting so filthy rich during the Reagan and Bush years.

I took Catfish on my first ride in the new truck. He sat right up there in the front seat and drooled and shed happily away.

But we were a team again. A man, a dog and a truck. All is right with my world.

Nobody can tax that. Can they?

Increasing welfare as we know it

Consider "Greater Welfare." Consider what's happening in America. Consider the welfare mother who said to a survey researcher: "Public aid made the problems with my older girls worse. If they knew that they wouldn't get no help, they wouldn't be having all these babies." And then consider the Clinton/Democratic budget.

Back in 1965, according to the Congressional Research Service, the federal government spent $15 billion on the major programs offering "income-tested benefits." These include Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Medicaid, Food Stamps and subsidized housing.

By 1992, these Greater Welfare programs had climbed to $156 billion per year, a 940 percent increase! (All figures here are in constant 1992 dollars.) During that time frame, the number of people in poverty climbed by less than 10 percent, the rate of people in poverty declined from 17 percent to 14 percent, and total population grew by 33 percent. We are, simply, spending vastly more per poor person.

GW expenditures went up during Democratic and Republican years, during booms and recessions. They went up rapidly in the '70s, up slowly in the early '80s, up rapidly again since the late '80s.

Has GW helped people? "Supplemental Security Income" provides economic dignity for needy elderly persons. Medicaid gives health care to those who can't afford it. When AFDC and food stamps are used to help the long-term disabled, or those temporarily out of work and out of luck, such aid is humanitarian.

But something else travels with our humanitarianism: long-term purposeful dependency. The growth in GW comes from women bearing "non-marital" children. Out-of-wedlock births climbed from 5 percent of all births in 1960 to 29 percent in 1992. Among blacks the rate is now 67 percent.

This explosion of illegitimacy happened while abortion became legal, while contraception became more available, while publicity campaigns against illegitimacy flourished, and while fertility rates for all races plunged. Purposeful.

And with terrible consequences. Children from out-of-wedlock households are more likely to be violent criminals, die in infancy, drop out of school, be poor, bear out-of-wedlock children, use drugs and commit suicide. The creation of families without on-site fathers is our biggest social problem, eroding our inner cities.

Does more welfare actually "buy" more illegitimacy? Are these "causal" as well as "coincidental" indicators? There is a debate about that. But how much does it matter? If it's causal, we should stop it and change it. If it's only partly causal, we should stop it and change it. And if it's coincidental, we still shouldn't pay for it. It's wrong, costly and harmful to the recipients.

I am not alone in such a belief. It was the most important thing Bill Clinton promised last year. He said he would "end welfare as we know it."

Alas, the Clinton/Democratic budget does not roll back GW. It does not freeze it. It increases it! By 1998, according to the president's April submission, those "income-tested benefits" will rise to $252 billion, roughly a two-thirds increase from 1992, funding an activity that has some horrible counter-productive aspects.

Under the Clinton plan, GW would rise by 8.3 percent per year from 1992 to 1998, vs. 6.6 percent in the preceding decade. Clinton's plan increases GW 3 percent per year more than it would rise if no changes were made in current law.

Congress has tinkered with the Clinton welfare formulas, but not changed them significantly. The recent Conference Committee report, like the original Clinton budget, grows welfare as we know it.

There are a few good features in the Clinton plan, particularly the increase in the Earned Income Tax Credit, designed to help poor people who work. But as for a general new direction for welfare, this isn't it, or close to it.

Ironically, Clinton could get big help in changing Greater Welfare from Republicans, just those folks he excluded from the early budget planning.

As this is written, I do not know the final congressional disposition of the Clinton/Democratic plan.

If it fails, it should be redone, right.

If it passes, Clinton still owes us an end to welfare as we know it.

Letters to the editor

Tax-supported, smoke-free

To the editor:

What if a person applies for a job opening in a tax-supported county office and that person was not hired simply because she is a non-smoker? According to the person in charge of that office, the job applicant was qualified! That person said to me "Ray, you know I smoke, and besides I would have had to tell two or three other workers in my office they could not smoke." Isn't this discrimination—intended or not?

A more recent study of the harmful effects of second-hand smoke, as published in this and other publications, concluded that this smoke is ever more harmful than previously thought! I can sympathize with business owners about the ever increasing costs of mandated laws and regulations. I have been a successful small business owner. I catered to smokers and non-smokers and worked out a solution; until my wife, because of health problems, became sick when someone lit up in our place. My wife was an integral and important part of our business. Without her services the business could not have existed. At that point it was not a matter of choice or trying for business reasons ($) to accommodate.

The no-smoking sign was posted. It remains today at our front door. Consider this, what if a minor child or elderly adult has a respiratory problem? Should we not try to protect their health? Will someone attempt to convince me that making a dollar is more important than the health of my wife, my mother and my grandson? It will NEVER happen! NO ONE has the right at any place to endanger someone else's health.

I believe the solution to this problem can be simple and voluntary. Every home-owner and especially business places can post a sign on the front door saying, "We care" or "We don't care." This would let me and my family and everyone else know whether to enter or not. I will not force my business on any one else. If some place doesn't want us non-smokers' money—that's your decision. Just let us know.

There is absolutely NO doubt in my mind that ALL public places and offices that are tax-supported should be smoke free.

An ex-smoker,

No Postal Service in scandal

To the editor:

As the "House of Representatives post office scandal" continues to generate news reports and editorials almost daily, we feel compelled to ask that a widespread misconception fueled by these reports be corrected.

The headlines announce: "Post Office Provides Lawmakers With Illegal Cash: House Postmaster Pleads Guilty," leaving people to conclude the House Post Office is run by the U.S. Postal Service.

The House Post Office is not and has never been a U.S. Postal Service operation. It is a private post office staffed and managed by the House. There are no Postal funds or Postal employees involved in the scandal.

Be cautious with gravel

To the editor:

All drivers should take special caution while driving on newly graveled streets and highways. Most new cars have very little fender or flaps to shield gravel picked up by their tires.

When you pass a car, the excess speed releases gravel from your tires. If you pull into the lane too quickly, this gravel will damage the car you pass. Be sure you have ample space to pass and help prevent damage.

We have to start somewhere

To the editor:

After reading about the deficit reduction bill and after hearing Congressman Sarpalus at the town hall meeting Thursday, I was surprised to learn that for every $10 in deficit reduction, $5 comes from spending cuts, $4 comes from taxes to be paid by people making over $200,000 a year and only $1 will be paid by all other taxpayers.

We cannot continue to exist as a nation if we continue to borrow 25 percent more each year than what we take in. This bill is a beginning. It is a step in the right direction. We have to start somewhere.

I agree with Mr. Sarpalus that we need more cuts. I urge him to vote for more cuts when President Clinton sends proposals for more cuts next month.

Let's all pay our fair share

To the editor:

I am so tired of senior citizens complaining about the increase on the amount of Social Security benefits available for taxation. The seniors complaining are either rich enough for it to affect them or don't realize that they don't make enough for the change to affect them. If you don't make over $34,000 as an individual or $44,000 as a couple you will not pay any new taxes. Further, I understand that this increase only affects the top 13 percent of beneficiaries. As far as I am concerned, these people can pay their fair share just like anyone else who would pay taxes on their pensions.

It seems to me, from some of the people I've talked to, that no budget package would have been "good" enough. Some people are just trying to find something wrong with anything that President Clinton tries to do. I think we should give our president our support for trying to make the world a better place for our grandchildren, so that they don't inherit the deficit built up during 12 years of "trickle down economics."

Thank you, Bill Sarpalus, for voting for deficit reduction.
Zetha Dougherty

Budget bill is a first step

To the editor:

After hearing the facts about the deficit reduction bill in the town hall meeting Thursday, I support and applaud Bill Sarpalus' vote for the bill. I did not realize that more than 62,000 families in this district will have their taxes lowered while only 1,469 families will have their taxes raised. I did not realize that the increase in the gas tax will only affect the average person in our district by about $30 each year (providing they drive 14,000 miles a year) and that non-highway use by our farmers was exempt from the increase.

I believe we have to do something about the federal deficit. This bill reduces that amount of the annual deficit. I agree with Bill that we need a balanced budget amendment to our Constitution to eliminate deficit spending. Our government should pay as it goes rather than requiring our children and grandchildren to pay for services we receive now. I do not want to hand a debt I should pay to my six-year-old son.

There are parts of the bill I do not like. However, I believe it is the first step toward getting our government back on a responsible basis again.

Thanks for the memories

To the editor:

Please be so kind as to allow me to express my appreciation to a group of ladies who combined to make our Class of '43 high school reunion a memorable affair.

Those ladies, all from Pampa, are Martha Holt, Pat Ramsey, Lela Pearl Beckham, Willadean Craddock, Betty Cain, Dorothy Porter, Loucile Stephens, Robbie Lee Chilton, Charlotte Edmondson, Beth Bowman, LaVerne Bayless, Jeanne Gilmore and Ruth Barrett.

Our Friday activities began at the Chamber of Commerce room, which was ideal for such a meeting, and concluded at the Country Club.

I am told that 70 percent of our class attended, from such far away places as Seattle—Naples, Florida—California, as well as in-between points.

Thank you, Pampa and Pampa High School, for the memories.

Brought back to reality

To the editor:

Both my wife and I want to thank the person/persons that stole our little sheltie dog from our backyard. You have brought us back to the reality that prayer does ease the mind; that forgiveness, generated by your ignorance, may be achieved and granted, and finally that we, in some abstract way, were hopefully allowed to share some joy that we had for just a little while.

Women wounded in shooting testify in sentencing hearing for Braun

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP) — A prosecutor disputed defense arguments Friday that Gregg Francis Braun, charged with killing an Ardmore flower shop owner, should be spared the death penalty.

"He's got the potential for the rest of his life to be dangerous, doesn't he?" District Attorney Fred Collins asked defense psychiatrist William Bicy, who answered, "Yes."

Prosecuting and defense attorneys rested their case Friday. Braun will be sentenced Monday.

He could receive the death penalty, life in prison or life in prison without parole in the 1989 death of Gwendolyn Sue Miller.

He pleaded no contest to the death and to the woundings of employee JoAnn Beane and customer Mary Mannings.

A former Garden City, Kan., resident, Braun already has been sentenced to three life sentences for the deaths of three clerks in New Mexico and Kansas. He still faces charges in the death of a Pampa, Texas, man.

All the killings took place within a few days of each in 1989.

Bicy, one of two psychiatrists to appear as defense witnesses, testified that Braun suffers from a severe personality disorder aggravated by cocaine and alcohol problems.

He said Braun, who has a degree in criminal justice from Wichita State University, had an abusive childhood because of alcoholic parents and two violent brothers.

Under cross-examination, however, Bicy admitted that several other psychiatrists have diagnosed Braun as being anti-social.

Joseph Turner, the Cimarron,

N.M., police chief, testified he was one of the police officers who stopped Braun about 15 minutes after he allegedly had committed a robbery and shooting in Springer, N.M.

"He was very cool. He was calm. He was collected. He wanted to make deals with us," Turner testified. "He said 'Get me some cigarettes and I'll give you a statement. You guys are going to be famous. You don't know who you got.'"

On Thursday, survivors of the flower shop shootings testified as members of the families of those slain in the four-state crime spree sat in the courtroom. Braun's parents also were present.

"He seemed he knew what he was doing. He seemed calm," Ms.

Mannings of Marietta testified.

The killer took money from them and from the store cash register. The women were forced to a back room, and told to lie on the floor and count backwards from 100.

"I heard two numbers from Gwen and then I heard a shot fired. I said two numbers and heard another shot. I began praying aloud and felt a thud at the back of my head," Ms. Beane said.

All three were shot in the head. Sgt. Michael Utz of the Garden

City police testified the bullets that killed two convenience store clerks in Garden City came from the same gun that killed Ms. Miller, a Spring, N.M., clerk and the Pampa man.

The gun was found in the front seat of Braun's car.

Cantaloupe tastes so good, it's hard to remember it's good for you, too, high in important nutrients like vitamin C and beta carotene. But don't tell the kids—it might take away the fun.

Hot stuff—southwestern coleslaw! It starts with ordinary shredded red and green cabbage but gets a kick from a diced red onion and a chopped jalapeno pepper. The dressing includes a minced garlic clove sauteed in oil, plus lime and orange juices and red pepper flakes.

Buckwheat—the stuff of pancakes, Japanese soba noodles and Russian kasha—is not a grain at all, but an herb that's related to rhubarb.

Cajun is IN; the spicy flavors add a real plus to grilled vegetables. Marinate them before grilling in oil and vinegar zipped up with garlic, oregano, thyme, salt, hot pepper, paprika and black pepper.

Easy sorbet's the perfect summer dessert. Freeze a pound of peaches (peeled and cut into chunks), puree in the food processor with a syrup of 1/3 cup sugar with 2/3 cup water. And serve. That's all.

Treat your family to dinner out tonight.

Climbing the Ladder II

Last week in Part One of this column we discussed success and shared several definitions. Though we may define success differently, most of us desire fulfillment from our careers and personal lives. We would rather have wealth than poverty, and we prefer respect and admiration to dishonor and disgrace.

You must anchor your "ladder of success" on a firm foundation if you aspire to reach great heights. The best foundation has one leg of the ladder planted firmly on honesty and the other on integrity. Those who enjoy the fruit of their labors live their lives with honesty and integrity.

Alexander Pope said, "An honest man's the noblest work of God." Sam Houston said, "I would give no thought of what the world might say of me, if I could only transmit to posterity the reputation of an honest man." George Washington called honesty "the most enviable of all titles."

Success Factors

A sense of direction — A common factor found in the lives of successful people is knowledge where you want to go. For example, consider a factory worker who desires to become a foreman. The worker should learn about the requirements of the foreman's position. What special knowledge or expertise is required? Do training programs, education courses or books exist that might help him prepare? The worker should direct his efforts toward that goal.

Consider the example of a small business owner who wants to grow her business and hire additional employees. She might focus a portion of her time on developing a marketing plan to ensure growth and devote other effort to learning how to manage employees.

Not afraid to work hard — Thomas Jefferson said, "I'm a great believer in luck, and I find the harder I work the more I have of it." I've known a good many successful men and women and they all receive pleasure from working hard. I'm not sure whether their happiness comes from their hard work or is the actual work itself.

Study the lives of successful people like Henry Ford, Helen Keller, Norman Vincent Peale, Marie Curie, Billy Graham, George Washington, Wilma Rudolph and Abraham Lincoln. You will find that they not only loved their work, but they also loved to work.

Perseverance — Another rung on the ladder of success is an unwavering commitment to do whatever it takes, for as long as it takes. Edison might never have perfected the light bulb had he given up after a hundred tries.

A young, aspiring artist submitted samples of his sketches to a prospective employer. He was encouraged to find another line of work. "You will never earn a living as a commercial artist," the employer stated. The young man didn't accept that advice. Instead he practiced, studied drawing and struggled onward. He developed his skills and eventually became successful. Today, Walt Disney's work is known around the world.

Enthusiasm — Ralph Waldo Emerson said "Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm." W. Clement Stone calls enthusiasm "the inspiration to action."

Those whose success we admire most are enthusiastic about their work, their dreams and life itself. Everyone will love you if you maintain an enthusiastic attitude in everything you do.

Balance — Successful people have balance in their lives. Although they may have developed one talent or skill above all others, they did not neglect other important aspects.

Some of the most successful people I know are balancing their career, family, physical, spiritual and emotional needs effectively. By maintaining the balance, they enjoy happiness and fulfillment.

A final personal thought on success. I may never achieve wealth, fame or other distinction in this life. Therefore, I approach every day as a short journey whose destination is satisfying in and of itself.

Maxus Energy drilling well in Colombia

DALLAS — Maxus Energy Corporation this month announced preliminary results from the Volcanera-1 well on the Recetor Block in Colombia, S.A. The Volcanera-1 well, which is located in the Llanos Basin about 100 miles northeast of Bogota, was spudded on May 31, 1992.

Testing the middle portion of the Mirador formation commenced on Aug. 4, 1993. The interval tested was between 18,520 feet and 18,695 feet. The well tested through a 1/2-inch choke at a flow rate of 7.2 million cubic feet per day (mmcfpd) of gas and 240 barrels of liquid hydrocarbons per day with a flowing tubing pressure of 1,450 pounds per square inch. The gas has a gravity of 0.844 and the liquid hydrocarbon gravity is 45 degree API.

The next step in the testing phase will include perforating the interval from 18,400 feet to 18,485 feet in the upper portion of the Mirador formation. The two intervals will be combined and tested.

The well was drilled to a total depth of 19,103 feet on May 28, 1993. The top of the Mirador formation was reached at 18,400 feet, and a gross interval of 675 feet was encountered. During operations to run electric logs in the well, a string of instruments was dropped in the hole. Debris from the instruments (fish) could not be recovered; thus, the interval below 18,733 feet cannot be evaluated by logging or testing in this well.

Maxus Columbia Inc. is operator and holds approximately 53.3 percent interest in the Volcanera-1 well. The other partners and their interests include Deilmann Erdol Erdgas GMBH, a German oil and gas company, 20 percent; Inaquimicas, S.A., a Colombian company, 16.7 percent; and British Petroleum Exploration Company (Colombia) Limited, 10 percent.

On May 16, 1993, Maxus Columbia Inc. spudded the Liria-1 well (same ownership interest as above), also located on the Recetor Block. The well is targeting a different structure approximately 23 kilometers southwest of the Volcanera-1 well. Currently, the Liria-1 is drilling below 5,000 feet. Maxus expects to complete drilling and evaluation of the well in approximately seven to nine months.

Dallas-based Maxus Energy Corporation is an independent oil and gas exploration and production company with operations in 14 countries, including the United States.

D&D to have Industry Appreciation Banquet

Once again it is time for the annual Desk and Derrick Industry Appreciation Banquet, scheduled for Tuesday night. Each year the local Desk and Derrick club honors its many and varied employers and guests with a special appreciation dinner meeting.

In the past, speakers for this special meeting have covered broad and controversial subjects. Gov. Bill Clements made a rare appearance during his 1984 campaign tour. In 1987 Dr. C.C. Reeves, professor of geology, Texas Tech University, recited the advantages of locating the controversial nuclear waste depository in Deaf Smith County.

Newly appointed Railroad Commissioner John Sharp was the optimistic speaker for the 1988 Industry Appreciation Banquet. And, in 1990, Lena Guerrero, the first woman to serve on the Texas Railroad Commission, spoke enthusiastically about the future of the oil and gas industry.

This year's speaker, Jerome W. Johnson, TNRLC commissioner, will present a 25-30 minute presentation about the "Superconducting Super Collider" project and its impending future.

"Jerry" Johnson is one of nine commissioners for the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission, the state agency for the Superconducting Super Collider. An attorney with the firm of Underwood, Wilson, Berry, Stein & Johnson in Amarillo, he has practiced law in Amarillo since 1952. He is a member of local, state and national bar associations.

Johnson was born in Port Arthur, Texas, and he studied aeronautical engineering at Texas A&M before joining the U.S. Army Air Corps in 1944. He subsequently attended the University of Texas at Austin, where he received a bachelor's degree in economics in 1949, and he graduated from the University of Texas School of Law in 1952.

Johnson's other affiliations have included memberships on the boards of regents of Amarillo College and the Texas State University System, as well as serving as a director of the Red River Authority. A director at Maywood Inc., a manufacturer of wood products, he is president of Textrade, a non-profit trade association.

The meeting will be held at the Pampa Country Club, beginning with a social time at 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. followed by the dinner meeting. For reservations, please contact Teresa Snow, 669-2535, Adobe Operating Inc. before noon Monday.

Rural/Metro's earnings grow

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Rural/Metro Corporation reported net income, for the year ended June 30, 1993, increased 101 percent to $2.7 million, or fully diluted earnings per share of 61 cents, from $1.3, or 33 cents per share, in the 1992 period.

Total revenues for the 1993 fiscal year rose 23 percent to $84.1 million from $68.2 million a year earlier, largely the result of a 36 percent increase in ambulance services revenues.

Net income for the 1993 fourth fiscal quarter was $796,000, or 17 cents per share, a 64 percent increase over net income of $484,000, or 12 cents per share, for the same period last year.

Fourth quarter revenue increased to $22 million from $18 million, a 22 percent gain over the 1992 fourth quarter.

Robert Manschot, president and chief executive officer, said, "We are encouraged that, while annual revenues were up significantly, the improvement in earnings was even stronger."

He noted, "The investments we have made over the past several years in management systems, such as centralized billing and collection systems, have resulted in productivity gains and increased profitability."

Manschot said current systems and controls position the corporation to continue its growth internally as well as through acquisitions and to enable it to operate profitably in both large and small communities.

Rural/Metro completed its initial public offering in July 1993 at $12.50 per share. The more than $20 million raised will be used for potential acquisitions, to reduce debt and for other general corporate purposes.

Headquartered in Scottsdale, Ariz., Rural/Metro Corp provides "911" and general transport ambulance services, fire protection services and other safety related services to municipal, residential, commercial and industrial companies.

Rural/Metro responds to more than 300,000 calls annually for its services in 60 communities located in Arizona, Florida, Oregon, Tennessee and Texas.

1993 Property Tax Rates in City of McLean

This notice concerns 1993 property tax rates for City of McLean. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$	39,858.17
Last year's debt taxes	$	- 0 -
Last year's total taxes	$	39,858.17
Last year's tax base	$	11,191,456
Last year's total tax rate	$	.36	/$100
This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$	39,837.21
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$	11,191,456
= This year's effective tax rate	$	.35596	/$100
In the first year a hospital district or city collects the additional sales tax to reduce property taxes, it must insert the following lines unless its first adjustment was made last year.
- Sales tax adjustment rate	$	- 0 -	/$100
= Effective tax rate	$	.35596	/$100
x 1.03 = maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearing	$	.36663	/$100
This year's rollback tax rate:
Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for transferred function)	$	39,858.17
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$	11,191,456
= This year's effective operating rate	$	.35614	/$100

Schedule B 1993 Debt Service
The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — Right fielder Brandon Black went 2 for 4 with a home run and a double, leading the Midland Redskins of Cincinnati to an 8-2 win over the Dallas Mustangs in the final of the Connie Mack World Series on Friday.

The Redskins used a big first inning to stake a 5-0 lead and never were threatened. The big hit in Cincinnati's first inning was Black's three-run homer off Dallas starter Matt Blank.

Cincinnati starter Curtis Whitney used a steady mix of curveballs and changeups to keep the Mustangs off balance at the plate. Whitney finished with a four-hitter.

Designated hitter Matt Berger contributed to the Cincinnati attack, going 2 for 4 on the night. He finished the World Series with an astounding 1.273 slugging percentage and was named most valuable player of the tournament.

The Connie Mack World Series is a national tournament for 17- and 18-year-old boys, sponsored by the American Amateur Baseball Congress.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Australian Patrick Rafter fought off 10 break points in the third set Friday and upset top-ranked Pete Sampras 7-6 (8-6), 6-7 (7-3), 7-6 (7-5) to reach the semifinals of the U.S. Hardcourts.

Rafter, ranked 139th in the world, took just under three hours to oust the two-time defending champion.

Rafter, 20, saved eight break points in the seventh game of the final set after losing the first three points of the game. He saved two more break points in the ninth game en route to forcing the third tiebreaker of the match.

"He let me off the hook," said Rafter, who had arrived in town thinking he was going to have to qualify for the tournament. He got into the main draw when Anders Jarryd withdrew with a knee injury prior to the start of Saturday's qualifying.

"It was great. It was a good feeling," Rafter said of learning he didn't have to qualify.

DENVER (AP) — John Elway threw three touchdown passes, directing Denver to four scores in a span of nine minutes, and the Broncos beat the Miami Dolphins 34-24 Friday night.

Denver (2-1) rallied from a 7-0 deficit to take a 24-10 lead with the scoring flurry late in the second quarter and early in the third.

Elway completed touchdown passes of 12 yards to Shannon Sharpe, 35 yards to Arthur Marshall and 23 yards to rookie Glyn Milburn. Rookie Jason Elam, who appears to have beaten out incumbent kicker David Treadwell, added a 35-yard field goal during the spurt.

Elway and Miami's Dan Marino dueled to a 10-10 halftime tie, but while Marino headed to the bench for the second half, Elway came out for the first two series and produced touchdowns on both.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Sea Hero did something no Kentucky Derby winner since 1942 has done — he won the Travers Stakes at Saratoga on Saturday.

Returning to the form he displayed on the first Saturday in May, Sea Hero took the lead from Devoted Brass and Colonial Affair just inside the eighth pole and beat Kissin Kris by two lengths. Kissin Kris was a length ahead of Miner's Mark, who was a head in front of Colonial Affair.

"I couldn't be more delighted," said Paul Mellon, Sea Hero's 85-year-old owner who won his fifth Travers after having won his first Derby.

Oilers outlast Cowboys in the battle of Texas

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys won the battle for the fans before the game started. The Houston Oilers won the battle of Texas — barely.

Houston's Warren Moon quieted most of the pro-Cowboys crowd of 63,285 in the new Alamodome Saturday with two touchdown passes and Al Del Greco kicked three field goals, leading the Oilers to a 23-20 exhibition victory, their first of the season after two losses.

The victory spoiled the return of Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman, getting his first action after back surgery this summer. Aikman played the first half and completed 12 of 17 passes for 141 yards.

After taking a 23-6 lead in the fourth quarter, the Cowboys made it close at the end on Jason Garrett's 7-yard touchdown pass to Derrick Gainer and a 1-yard touchdown run by Michael Beasley with 1:32 left in the game.

"I thought the offense wasn't that sharp in the first quarter but in the second we picked it up," Aikman said. "In the second quarter, I just thought I saw the field better."

Although the Oilers' training camp is located at San Antonio's Trinity University and the Oilers cheerleaders were working the crowd, the Oilers were booed and the Super Bowl champion Cowboys cheered at pregame introductions.

The Cowboys (1-2-1) had five turnovers in the game, three that helped the Oilers to a 13-6 lead at the half.

"We talk about the big play constantly," Oilers defensive end William Fuller said. "When we get into a blitz scenario, we don't just blitz, we go for the ball. That's something Coach (Buddy) Ryan teaches us."

Moon, who completed 14 of 21 passes for 151 yards, hit Reggie Brown with an 8-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter and threw 14 yards to Pat Coleman early in the third quarter.

"I just wanted to play more," Moon said. "We felt in the first half we could have scored another time so I wanted to try again."

Moon victimized safety Chris Hall, fighting for a roster spot, on the touchdown pass to Coleman but Hall got even in the third quarter when he intercepted a pass by Moon in the end zone.

"After getting beat for the touchdown, it makes you feel good to get a play like that," Hall said.

Aikman completed his first pass of the game, a 25-yarder to Michael Irvin, but the Cowboys' first three drives ended in turnovers, two by Aikman.

Aikman's second pass of the game bounced off Alvin Harper's chest and into the arms of Oilers linebacker Eddie Robinson. On the next series, Aikman's fumble of the snap was recovered by Glenn Montgomery, setting up Del Greco's 36-yard field goal.

Tommy Agee's fumble at the Houston 46 late in the second quarter led to an 8-yard touchdown pass from Moon to Brown and a 10-0 lead.

Del Greco kicked his second field goal with 11:35 elapsed in the second quarter after a 32-yard pass interference penalty against Dallas' Larry Brown gave Houston a first down at the Cowboy 1-yard line.

Del Greco added a 22-yarder in the third quarter to make it 23-6.

The Cowboys got their first-half points on field goals of 28 and 23 yards by Lin Elliott, who entered the game with six misses in his last eight attempts.

The Oilers have won eight of the last nine preseason games with the Cowboys and get to keep the Governor's Cup that goes to the winner of the annual intrastate rivalry.

"Well, Houston has a habit of beating us in the preseason," Johnson said. "We're just going to take it with a grain of salt and be happy with the training camp and go back to Dallas and to work."

Mussina pitches O's past Rangers, 10-5

By DAVID GINSBURG
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mike Mussina had two objectives Friday night: to pitch well and feel no pain. He did that, and more.

Mussina returned from a five-week stint on the disabled list to earn his first victory since July 16, and the Baltimore Orioles won their eighth straight home game by beating the Texas Rangers, 10-5.

Mussina (12-4) allowed only six hits and three runs in six-plus innings. It was his first appearance in the majors since July 21, when he left a game against Kansas City with a strained back muscle.

"To be honest, I just wanted to throw effectively and be healthy," he said. "If I got us into the sixth inning, I'd have been happy."

Mussina walked two and struck out three. He left in the seventh after throwing 91 pitches.

"Physically, I felt real good. Obviously, my stamina is a little low, but that'll come," he said.

Cal Ripken homered and drove in four runs for the Orioles, who have won two straight after an eight-game losing streak. Baltimore, returning from a 2-8 road trip, is unbeaten at Camden Yards since Aug. 1.

Gary Redus had two homers and Dean Palmer hit his 24th for the Rangers, who solved Mussina too late to do any real damage.

"I've always remembered that Mike had that explosion on his fastball. It didn't seem as good as it was in the past," Palmer said. "But he was tough. He was making good pitches, working in and out with his fastball."

After John O'Donoghue relieved Mussina and gave up a three-run homer to Redus, Todd Frohwrith pitched the final 2-2-3 scoreless innings for his third save.

The Orioles took a 5-0 lead in the fourth inning. Charlie Leibrandt walked the first two batters before Ripken lined a 1-0 pitch inside the left-field foul pole for his 20th homer. David Segui then singled and scored on a double by Mark Parent, who came in on a single by Brady Anderson.

Leibrandt (9-9) allowed five runs in 3 2-3 innings. He is 0-5 with a 7.88 ERA in his last five starts.

After the game, Leibrandt was put on the 15-day disabled list with stiffness in his left shoulder. The Rangers brought up pitcher Matt Whiteside from Triple-A Oklahoma City.

"I started the game in pretty good shape," Leibrandt said. "I felt good about the way I was throwing, but the shoulder could not handle the stress."

Tim Lincecum's RBI double and a run-scoring single by Parent made it 7-0 in the fifth. Redus hit a solo homer in the sixth, and Mussina was pulled after Palmer homered to open the seventh and Doug Strange followed with a single.

O'Donoghue came in and gave up a single to David Hulse before Redus drove a 2-2 pitch into the left-field seats to make it 7-5.

Hulet hit a solo homer and Anderson hit an RBI single to give the Orioles a 9-5 cushion in the bottom of the inning. Ripken added a sacrifice fly in the eighth.

Notes: Mussina's return sent Rick Sutcliffe out of the starting rotation and into the bullpen. Sutcliffe has lost seven of his last eight decisions. ... Ripken has hit at least 20 homers in 11 of his last 12 seasons. His 74 RBIs are two more than he had all last year. ... It was Redus' first two-homer game in the AL. He had three in the NL, the last in August 1986.

Seminoles picked to win

By RICK WARNER
AP Football Writer

For the third time in six years, Florida State is the preseason pick to win college football's national championship.

The Seminoles, who have never won the national title despite six consecutive finishes in the top four, are a clear-cut No. 1 in The Associated Press preseason poll.

Florida State, which also started out No. 1 in 1988 and 1991, received 42 of 62 first-place votes and 1,522 of a possible 1,550 points in the nationwide survey of sports writers and broadcasters. The Seminoles also are No. 1 in the USA Today-CNN coaches' poll.

"Why me?" coach Bobby Bowden said. "It definitely puts more pressure on you when you're No. 1. It means everybody's out to get you."

Defending national champion Alabama is second in the AP poll, getting 14 first-place votes and 1,472 points. Michigan is third with three first-place votes and 1,413 points, while Texas A&M is fourth with 1,261 points.

Miami, whose bid for a fifth national title was halted by Alabama in the 1993 Sugar Bowl, begins this season at No. 5. Rounding out the Top 10 are Syracuse, Notre Dame, Nebraska, Florida and Tennessee.

Syracuse received two first-place votes. The other first-place vote went to No. 15 Stanford.

Although Florida State has an explosive offense featuring versatile quarterback Charlie Ward, the Seminoles won't have an easy path to the national title. Their schedule includes three Top 10 teams (Miami, Notre Dame and Florida) and three other ranked schools (No. 20 North Carolina, No. 23 Clemson and No. 25 North Carolina State).

And that doesn't count Kansas, which plays Florida State in the Kickoff Classic on Aug. 28. The Jayhawks received the most votes of any team not in the Top 25.

Pampa's Ross Watkins picks up some yards in Friday night's scrimmage.

Pampa has successful scrimmage

Harvesters look good on both sides of the ball

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Writer

It wasn't a perfect scrimmage, but it was near-perfect enough for Pampa head coach Dennis Cavalier to be happy with the outcome.

Pampa and Lubbock Estacado banged helmets and shoulder pads for almost three hours at Harvest Stadium Friday night. When the varsity scrimmage was all over, Pampa had more than held its own against a highly-touted Estacado squad.

"I was very happy with the success we had. I had anticipated a much more difficult time on either side of the ball, but on the other hand, I was very pleased with how well we played," Cavalier said. "We had a complete team effort. All our players as a unit did a super job."

There were the usual fumbles, missed assignments and penalties on both sides, but that was to be expected this early in the season.

Pampa's defense looked sharp, quickly closing up the holes against the run and forcing the Estacado quarterback to scramble out of the pocket on pass plays.

"I was very pleased all of our defensive players. There were 15 or 16 players who were in and out, and when their time came, they performed very well. Matt Garvin (cornerback) stood out, as did Will Greene and Shelby Landers in the line. They both play the same positions and they played it very well," Cavalier said. Others Cavalier cited on defense were tackles Jerry Howeth, Justin Long, Keith Avent and Pedro Montoya, who went out with a sprained ankle in the early part of the scrimmage.

"Our tackles did much more than hold their own inside and I thought that's where Estacado would hurt us the most. At a week ago, Donnie Middleton and Pedro Montoya were our two starters, so it looks like we're pretty well set at those positions," added Cavalier.

Offensively, the Harvesters surprised the Matadors with some big gainers, from both the air and on the ground. Receiver J.J. Mathis gained 65 yards on a reverse play and also caught a scoring pass from quarterback Tony Cavalier which covered about 45 yards.

Cavalier praised his entire offensive line, especially center

Michael Foote. "Michael was exceptionally good and the rest of them all had their good moments. Justin Smith, Kyle Parnell, Greg Erpelting, Brandon Soukup and Jason Well all did some outstanding blocking and pass protection," Cavalier said.

During the final stages of the scrimmage, the coaches came off the field and the two teams played a "simulated" game, minus kickoffs and punts, for about 15 minutes. The starting point was the 30-yard line.

After Pampa held Estacado scoreless on its first two possessions, Cavalier plunged over from the one after a 70-yard, 9-play drive for the only score.

With less than 19 seconds to go, all-district lineman Justin Collingsworth intercepted an Estacado pass to end the scrimmage. Garvin out of the backfield made two big plays in the scoring drive. He ran for 38 yards and caught a 12-yard pass from Cavalier that put the ball inside Estacado's 15.

"I felt like we were the better-conditioned team," Cavalier said. "We want to build on that as the season approaches."

Right now, Cavalier is just savoring a successful scrimmage against a tough opponent.

Bears belong to Reedy now

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

WACO (AP) — The Baylor Bears belong to Chuck Reedy now.

After 21 years, Grant Teaff no longer controls the football fate of the Bears. It was Reedy who greeted the members of the Southwest Conference press tour on Saturday.

"Coach Reedy is much more intense than Coach Teaff, who was more laid back," said senior quarterback J.J. Joe. "There's a lot of pressure on him to win now. He wants to make sure all the bases are covered."

"Coach Teaff was a fixture for decades around here. He had great teams and a great record. But it seems like we've been just one win away from being a Top 25 team. What Coach Reedy wants to do is take that 8-4 team or 7-5 team to another level. Reedy presses us more. And I think that's what we need."

Reedy said the changeover has been smooth since the Bears whipped Arizona in the John Hancock Bowl last December. Earlier this month Teaff resigned as athletic director to become president of the American Football Coaches Association.

"We had a unique working relationship and that facilitated a smooth transition," Reedy said. "Coach Teaff told me I was the guy to replace him if he ever left."

Reedy said, "I want us to step up another level. We have been in the Top 25 but I would like to see us there consistently. That's the kind of program I would like to develop."

"I think we can do that. It's not exactly like I'm taking over a program that's rock bottom. There's a lot of talent here. We just have to be consistent in the way we play."

Reedy pleads guilty to being labeled "intense."

"I want to stress a championship attitude," Reedy said. "It takes a tremendous work ethic by the players and the coaches. You invest so much of your time into it you want success."

When told he sounded a little bit like Jimmy Johnson, the coach of the Dallas Cowboys, Reedy laughed and said, "Well, that's all right by me to be like Jimmy except for the personal life thing. I don't think President (Herbert) Reynolds would want me to get a divorce."

Johnson said in his recent autobiography that he divorced his wife, Linda Kay, because he was going to devote all of his time to the Cowboys.

"I would be very disappointed if this team isn't in a bowl game this year," Reedy said. "We have high expectations, a lot of questions but a number of talented players."

"We have seven players returning on an offense that averaged 30 points and 400 yards per game. You can't win championships without running the ball. When Alabama beat Miami for the national championship it passed for only 18 yards."

Reedy said defensively Baylor is young and will need time to improve.

"We need to control the ball on offense so we can give our defense a rest," Reedy said.

Baylor opens with high-powered Fresno State on Sept. 4.

"It will be a test," Reedy said. "They are strong where we are weak."

Indianapolis turns back Raiders, 18-7

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Don Majkowski, hoping to push Jeff George even lower on the Indianapolis Colts' depth chart, knows the decision isn't his.

"I hope so, but I have to leave that up to the coaches," said Majkowski, who passed for 125 yards and threw a touchdown pass to rookie Sean Dawkins in an 18-7 exhibition victory over the Los Angeles Raiders Friday night.

"I've definitely improved on some things I missed last week, but we came out with the win, which is the main thing," he said.

George, the Colts' former starter, ended a seven-week hold-out earlier in the day but already had been demoted behind Jack Trudeau. George did not attend the game.

"Don is going to play better the more he familiarizes himself with the offense," said coach Ted Marchibroda, who still has not said who the primary backup will be. "The big thing he did was come right back with a touchdown after they scored a touchdown."

"As we all see, he's quicker maybe than what I thought. He can scramble."

Majkowski, signed as a free agent after George failed to report to camp, inherited a 6-0 lead when Trudeau left with a bruised hand in the second quarter.

"When you're number gets called, you have to be ready to go," Majkowski said. "Your team has to depend on you."

Dean Biasucci's third field goal gave Indianapolis a 9-0 lead, but Greg Robinson, an eighth-round draft pick, broke two tackles and ran 74 yards for a third-quarter touchdown for the Raiders (1-3).

It was the first of only two possessions in which Los Angeles advanced past its own 35.

Indianapolis (2-1) responded quickly.

Majkowski opened with a 12-yard pass to Dawkins. After being sacked for 10 yards, he hit Eddie Miller for 29 yards to the Raiders 23. After rookie Roosevelt Potts was stopped for no gain, Majkowski threw to Dawkins, the Colts' top draft pick, for a touchdown.

Indianapolis added a safety in the fourth quarter after Rohn Stark punted to the Raiders 2 and rookie Randy Jordan was tackled in the end zone by Matt Vanderbeck.

"It was not a very good game, from the beginning to the finish," Raiders coach Art Shell said. "Players have to make plays, and you've got to want to make plays. We had one guy that wanted to make a play, and he made it: Greg Robinson. He was determined he was going to get a touchdown."

Rookie Billy Joe Hobert took the Raiders to the Indianapolis 25 before losing the ball on downs with just over two minutes to go.

"We played a lot of young guys, but still, the backups have to be able to perform," Shell said. "And our starters didn't even perform, so that shows you we have a lot of work to do."

The Colts' biggest scare came midway through the second quarter when Trudeau bruised his left hand. He walked to the locker room with an ice pack on his hand but returned to the sideline for the Colts' next possession to watch Majkowski finish up the game.

Majkowski, who also rushed for 32 yards, hit three passes and scrambled for 16 yards to the Raiders 13 in the closing minutes of the first half. He passed 4 yards to Anthony Johnson but was sacked for a 3-yard loss and had an incomplete pass before Biasucci kicked a 29-yard field goal, his second of the quarter and third of the game.

Greenes carry on football tradition

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Writer

Following in their father's footsteps has become something of a football tradition for the Greenes of Pampa.

Will Greene, a senior defensive lineman for the Harvesters this season, is a third-generation football player from the Greene family, who farm north of Pampa.

Hunky, Will's dad, was a nose-guard and offensive guard for Pampa in the late 1950's. A knee injury his last year ended his football career.

Bill Greene, Hunky's dad and Will's granddad, is the one who started the tradition.

Bill, still active at 84, played for Pampa during the 1927-28 seasons — back when Knute Rockne's Norte Dame's teams were dominating the college football scene and Babe Ruth was belting home runs at a record pace for baseball's New York Yankees.

"I never got to play very much, but I'll never forget the one touchdown I scored. That's something I'll always remember," the elder Greene said.

Pampa was playing Wheeler when he intercepted a pass and scored from about 15 yards out.

"We played our games in a pasture out east of town where the old airport used to be," Bill said. "Besides Wheeler, we played Amarillo High, McLean, Miami, Shamrock and all the schools around here. McLean and Shamrock had a bunch of fist fighters. There wasn't any such thing as a district back then. We just went out and played."

Bill's wife, Ruth, was a member of the high school pep club, and his older brother, Bob, played center on the first Harvesters' team in 1919.

"They didn't have much in the way of uniforms. They would cut up old quilts and put them over their heads," Bill recalled. "I remember him playing in a game over at Miami and he came home looking like he had been in a meat grinder. He was beat up pretty bad."

In his opinion, one of the biggest changes in the game is the way the offense lines up.

"Back then, it seemed like every team ran out of the single wing and the quarterback called the play out loud," Bill said. "Nowadays they use numbers."

One of the biggest highlights of Hunky's short-lived career came when Pampa went against a strong Wichita Falls team on the visitors' field.

"Wichita Falls had so many players they stretched from goalpost to goalpost and we went over there with about 20. We ended up losing the game in the fourth quarter. Our team was just about average. Back then, I think it was a little tougher than it is now because all the big towns like Amarillo, Lubbock and Wichita Falls had just one high school," Hunky said.

After two years of playing football, Hunky had to have a knee operation, forcing him to miss his senior year.

Will feels like the 1993 Harvesters are going to have a successful season.

"We've been doing okay so far. We're not as big as we were last year, but we've got more speed," he said.

Whether the Harvesters win or lose, Will be carrying on the Greene family tradition on the football field.

Mantle, five others, inducted into Oklahoma Sports Hall of Fame

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Mickey Mantle kidded with Bobby Murcer, Walt Garrison marveled at life and Joe Washington talked footwear as the Oklahoma Sports Hall of Fame inducted its six newest members.

Friday night's ceremonies brought Murcer together again with New York Yankees teammate Mickey Mantle, who made the presenting speech for Murcer's induction.

"The first time I ever heard of Bobby Murcer, they said a kid from Oklahoma was going to be the next Mickey Mantle," Mantle recalled. "They were right. Sure enough, he couldn't play shortstop either."

Mantle, enshrined in the Baseball Hall of Fame in 1974, also is in the Oklahoma Sports Hall of Fame, sponsored by the Jim Thorpe Association.

Former University of Oklahoma and NFL star Washington, who was called "my greatest player" by his presenter, former Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer.

"Little Joe," Washington was called, and Switzer said when he first met his future superstar, his first impression was, "You're right, he is little."

But another early impression was Washington's first scrimmage at Oklahoma, when his first carry resulted in an 80-yard touchdown run behind a freshman offensive line against the Sooners' first-team defense of 1972. Switzer and former OU head coach Chuck Fairbanks looked at each other, "because we knew we had seen something special."

Washington, who went to high school in Port Arthur, Texas, said he grew up a University of Texas fan and would salute when then-UT coach Darrel Royal's television show aired.

But his high-school sweetheart — and now wife of 17 years — decided to go to Texas Woman's University in Denton, which is closer to the University of Oklahoma than to the University of Texas. So Washington was sold on the Sooners.

He thanked Switzer for letting him wear his trademark silver shoes, saying, "I guarantee you, Darrel Royal wouldn't have let me wear those."

Marques Haynes, who became known as the world's greatest dribbler in a 47-year (and counting) career with the Harlem Globetrotters and his own travelling teams.

Haynes' older brother, Wendell, said Marques lives by the philosophy of their father, who lived to be 102 years old: "One will rust out before one will wear out."

Garrison, the former Oklahoma State and Dallas Cowboy fullback.

Garrison, a native of Lewisville, Texas, said, "When you think about your life, going to the Super Bowl and placing in the steer wrestling at the Cheyenne Frontier Days Rodeo, this honor ranks right up there with them."

Twenty naked Pentecostals vanish again in Louisiana

VINTON, La. (AP) — Relatives drove all the way across Texas to find the 20 Pentecostals who went naked before God and police, only to learn that nobody knew where they were.

"Their kinfolk showed up. I called the police, the sheriff's office, all the other shelters. Nobody knew where they were," Douglas Harris, a Salvation Army employee in Lake Charles, said Friday.

Vinton police said the entire group piled out of one car, naked, after the car crashed into a tree while trying to escape from police Thursday morning.

All 20 had left clothes, identification and other belongings in Galveston, along with one of the cars in which they had left Floydada two days earlier.

Police Chief Dennis Drouillard said he believed they all were related. "The Lord told them to get rid of all their belongings and go to Louisiana. So they got rid of all their clothes and pocketbooks and wallets and identification and the license plate off their car and came to our gorgeous state," Drouillard said.

"They didn't have any money. Not even a dime."

Police arrested the driver, Sammy Rodriguez, 29, and booked him into the Vinton jail for flight from an officer, reckless operation, property damage and other traffic charges.

The group was given clothing and taken to West Calcasieu Cameron Hospital for observation. Harris said the group was brought to the shelter where he worked Thursday night, but did not stay.

Buffalo flee Pennsylvania stockyard, roam suburbs

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Two bison fled a stockyard for the suburbs, dodging traffic, romping across a golf-course and terrifying residents before police shot one that endangered people. The second was captured Saturday.

"I was just walking the dog," said Jill Baumgartner. "I went up to a stranger's door and said, 'Excuse me, can I come in because there's a (buffalo) there.'"

The 700-pound yearlings, a male and a female, were being moved Friday when they got away, said William G. McCoy, president of Lancaster Stockyards.

They jumped a fence and the chase was on. The buffalo roamed through traffic on several streets, across front lawns and over a golf course.

Manheim Township police shot and killed the female Friday night after it ran into a busy freight yard, and officers feared someone might be hurt.

They caught up with the male Saturday morning near the home of Sue Smith.

"I was out feeding the birds and looked up and there was this black thing walking up with horns," she said.

Police called in Ron Lowe, a 43-year-old deer rancher who has subdued other large animals. He shot it with a tranquilizer gun, hogtied it and dragged it to a truck, which returned it to the stockyard.

FORT WORTH — The Texas Grain and Feed Association is the first state grain and feed association to co-sponsor a grain trading seminar with Mexico.

The seminar will be held Aug. 29-Sept. 2. This is the second part of the US/Mexico Trade Workshop that was held in Fort Worth in May.

It is important that everyone who has the potential to trade with Mexico be involved with the seminars in order to become familiar with the trade in Mexico, and more importantly, meet new contacts south of the border, TGFA officials said.

The first part of the seminar is in Monterrey and the second part is in Mexico City.

There is no charge for registration in these seminars. This is a service provided by the Texas Grain and Feed Association.

What do barbed wire, cattle brands, portraits of pioneer Panhandle families and prehistoric mammoth bones have in common?

They're just a few of the displays you can find at three of area's museums. They're also just a few of the things that helped make the Panhandle what it is today.

All three museums are approximately 30 to 45 minutes away from Pampa and provide a pleasant excursion fit for a relaxing, Sunday afternoon drive with the family.

By walking through their doors, a link with the Panhandle's past is not only discovered, it is celebrated.

While some people might contend the only history in the area started with the advent of the cattle and railroad industries, it really goes back much farther, all the way to the period when humans hunted with sharpened rocks in packs, moved from place to place and kept no records.

Evidence of this can be found in Miami.

Within the confines of city, which less than 700 people call home, sits the Roberts County Museum in the old Sante Fe Depot. People going through town can't help but see the wooden structure which is located on U.S. 60, a block past Miami's downtown and across the street from the Texas Cafe.

Visitors to the Roberts County Museum will find this uniform of a former Texas Ranger is one of the displays and information on topics ranging from the area's contribution to past war efforts to the railroads, which helped build Miami, to the beasts which roamed the area grass lands tens of thousands of years ago.

"Everyone enjoys the railroad history," said Jane Bright, curator of the museum. "Then we have a fabulous archaeology and paleontology room. But one of the things people are enjoying now is the art gallery in old Miami which is upstairs."

Upon entering the old depot building, which served as the original museum, displays from Miami's recent history are evident; pictures of the one time boomtown hang on the walls and uniforms from ex-servicemen pose lifelessly. Through the doorway portraits of Native American and the tools which helped tame the county greet visitors.

Along one wall of this section of the museum, permanently burnt into the wood paneling, are the cattle brands farmers and ranchers used to mark their hoofed property.

In other rooms, located in the annex connected to depot, displays of pioneer life, work and education can be found.

In the room dedicated to the area's archaeology, museum visitors can find the actual teeth, tusks and bones of mammoths, the forerunner of today's elephants, which lived and died thousands of years ago in the Panhandle.

The bones were collected by a former resident of Miami just east of the city and were, at one time, on display in the Roberts County Courthouse before being donated to the museum, according to Bright.

In addition, displays of arrowheads, pottery and art work from Native Americans rests in glass cases throughout the room. Though cracked and fragmented, the pottery on display shows an amazing amount of detail and craftsmanship.

Directly above the prehistoric remains, on the second floor of the museum, life size examples of old Miami sit ready for people to examine or remember, if they choose.

Visitors can look through the windows of the old Miami Chief newspaper or examine the merchandise of the old Miami general store or walk to the bank's deposit window decorated with artfully twisted wrought-

PANHANDLE MUSEUMS

FROM PRICKLY WIRE TO PIONEERS, THEY CELEBRATE THE AREA'S PROUD PAST

alive as a symbol and monument to America's recent past.

On the walls and floor of one room museum, the route of the road is drawn as remnants of restaurants, gas stations and motels watch over visitors who enter the sanctum.

The businesses the signs once belonged to are now gone; victims of modern concrete expressways.

Everything from t-shirts to coffee mugs to hats are sold in the museum's gift shop to Route 66 enthusiasts.

But that is not all, for those would-be barbed-wire collectors, sharp, rusted bits of the fencing material are also available for sale.

For better, more valued samples of "bobbed-wire," as some collectors refer to it, visitors can tour the Devil's Rope Museum, which is dedicated to the prickly wire.

Literally thousands of 18-inch strands of wire are arranged in folding carrying cases on the walls of the museum. In addition, many samples of the tools used to create and, in some cases, cut the wire are also on display.

The history of barbed wire is scattered throughout the displays on signs and parchment. Visitors who take the time to read them will quickly learn about the largely ignored role of barbed wire in America's "wild west."

The Route 66 and Devil's Rope Museums are open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday.

Admission to both museums is free, but donations are welcomed.

White Deer Land Museum might be just what you're looking to find. While offering an extensive history of the past 200 years or so, it is also conveniently located in Pampa, a nice thing for people who might not have the time or patience to travel.

One of the most striking aspects of the museum is its location. The building is a two-story brick structure with more than 20 rooms full of relics from pioneer life. With every step a visitor takes in the hallway, down the steps or into a room the floor creaks and moans, perhaps giving a visitor the impression it has a story to tell.

"This is a 77 year old building . . . it was the third office building of the White Deer Land Company built in 1916," said Anne Davidson, curator of the museum.

The major forces behind the creation of the museum were M.K. Brown and his secretary, Clotilde Thompson.

Following the death of Brown in 1964, Thompson continued working to open the museum to the public.

In addition, to helping get the museum opened, Thompson was its first curator and the one responsible for getting the elevator installed in the building, according to Davidson.

"He told her he wanted it to be in dedication to the pioneer families of this county and the surrounding area. She got it open in 1970 and is in its 23rd year of operation," Davidson said.

Exhibits in the museum run the gamut from examples of things you might find in a pio-iron bars. The Roberts County Museum is opened 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. It's closed on Saturday and Monday. Admission to the museum is free and donations are welcomed.

If your interest, however, run more toward the lives and personalities of the people who helped settle the Panhandle, the toys and home furnishings, to items found in old area businesses, like barber shops, lawyers offices and general stores.

"This museum has one of the largest arrowhead collections of its kind anywhere in this part of the country," Davidson said.

"This museum also has the photography collection of David Carry."

The collection of the photographs are specifically of Native Americans and date back to the 1880's. According to Davidson, the photographs are perhaps the most popular part of the museum.

Many of the oldest items in the museum's collection are clothing worn by many of the areas pioneers and their families, Davis said.

"We have some ladies bonnets dating back to 1729 up until 1860 (and) are probably one of the oldest things in there," she said.

Perhaps the best part of a visit to the museum are the guided tours.

The guides used to lead visitors through the building provide a friendly, one-on-one approach not often found in museums today. Besides, the stories guides relate about many of the items on display, they give the tour extra depth and an informal feeling.

"Most things in here are not under glass," Davidson said. "They're in the open and it was a wish of Mr. Brown that these be very personal, friendly tours."

The White Deer Land Museum is opened from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday and is closed on Mondays and national holidays.

There is no admission charge, but donations are welcomed.

For those people whose interests run towards the off-beat, McLean's Route 66 and Devil's Rope Museums might be just what you're looking for in a museum.

Situated in McLean, just off Interstate 40, on what was historic Route 66, the two museums are located in the same building.

As you might guess, the Route 66 Museum is dedicated to keeping the road (Staff photo by Randal K. McGavock) The cowboy hat on display at the Devil's Rope Museum is one example of art work in which barbed-wire is used.

(Staff photo by Randal K. McGavock) Exhibits like this one in the Roberts County Museum in Miami illustrate a former way of life once led by Panhandle pioneers.

(Staff photo by Randal K. McGavock) Located in the same building as the Devil's Rope Museum, the Route 66 Museum is a small but richly decorated tribute to the road which has become an international symbol of the American way of life.

School bells ring for kids; adults enjoy dances, picnics and vacations

The school bell rang and lots of mom smiled, in spite of the stresses that go with the first of school. There are more reasons to smile about, if we check last week's calendar.

Rock 'n' roll dancers galore crowded the parking lot by Shepard's Crook Nursing Agency on Perryton Parkway last Saturday night and shook, rattled and rolled to the music. The dance benefitted Helping Hands, an employees' group organized to supply emergency medical needs to the elderly of Pampa.

Employees of Coronado Hospital enjoyed their annual picnic at Recreation Park. Terry Barnes, activities committee chairman, pulled it all together with assignments to heads of departments. Who could resist Terry's request for help?

Activities included Bingo, where interest grew when Doug Garner, hospital administrator, threw in a $20 bill. Children dug in the sand for coins and fished in the fish box for prizes. Department heads cooked hamburgers and German sausage on a stick and the dietary department furnished all the trimmings. A good breeze made for a pleasant time, plenty of conversation and visitation for 150 or 200 people. Interest surged again when a dance to deejay music attracted about 100 dancers.

All the picnickers agreed that Recreation Park was built for groups to have a wonderful time, a welcome addition to our city.

Leon and Augusta Brown hosted a fish fry/covered dish dinner for nearly 60 people, all members of two Sunday School classes of Central Baptist Church. Leon cooked the fish, which he had caught and frozen throughout the year. People are still yummming over the gumbo Augusta made. She is willing to share her recipe, girls.

Not many girls have the sweet memory of being given away and then married by their father. Such was the case when Dionne Whaley married Jason Baker last week. Dean Whaley, minister of the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ was proud as could be to walk with his daughter down the aisle and then assume his position as presiding minister for the wedding ceremony. Come to think of it, not many dads have the double privilege, either.

Debbie and Robert Dixon and children, Lindsey and Robbie spent nearly a week in Dallas doing all the fun things they could possibly find to do: Six Flags, Wet 'n' Wild, circus, Rangers vs. White Sox game. Yes, they were there for the Nolan Ryan fight.

Yesterday Carol Eggleston's parents, Oma Dee and Virgil Lewallen of Elk City, Okla., celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary with all eight of their children in attendance. A family picture of the parents and their eight children was made during the celebration. Carol and George and their children Glen Eggleston and children Gavin and Garrett; Sherry and Rodney Fortenberry, Jareth and Colden, and Debbie and Robert Dixon and Lindsey and Robbie.

A warm Pampa "Welcome!!!" to Dr. Megann Walsh, daughter of Charles W. Jr. and Billie Walsh, former Pampans now living in Denver.

Megann is a Pampa High School graduate and the granddaughter of proud grandmother E.T. Clark and niece of proud uncle and aunt Patrick and Sandra Walsh of Pampa. A pediatrician, she has the distinction of being the first physician to open an office in the new Medical Building, part of the Coronado Hospital complex. Furthermore, she saw patients before her offices were completely ready. Dr. Walsh is a graduate of the University School of Medicine. She completed her internship and part of her residency at Texas Tech and Northwest Texas Hospital and completed her residency in pediatrics at a hospital in South Carolina. She will return to her home church, St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church. Megan is a welcome addition to the hospital staff and Pampa and surrounding territory. We do have lots of cute children around.

Patrick and Sandra Walsh spent a cool vacation at Red River.

Friends and family, especially husband Ken, welcomed Marge Lemons, Jessica and Jeffrey home after six weeks spent in Corpus Christi, where their older son Jason has been employed all summer. Jason is a student at Baylor University.

Pat and Bob Johnson covered a lot of territory in a two week period. They made a couple of extended stops in California and a week exploring the beautiful island of Maui. Home did look good.

Another belated but warm "Welcome!!!" to Tate and Shawn Thrash natives of Amarillo who came to Pampa via Corpus Christi. They are happy to be back home in the Panhandle. Together they enjoy water skiing and other sports, some as spectators. Tate accepted the position as director of the physical therapy department of Coronado Hospital and Shawn accepted a position as sixth grade teacher in Groom.

Another warm Pampa "Welcome!!!" to Julie Scott and Rhonda Scruggs, who are newcomers to Pampa from their former home in Cleburne.

Maryl Jones, a Pampa resident for more than six decades, moved to Austin Friday to be near her daughter, Dr. Patricia Jones Teed and son Arthur Teed. She is a long time member of the First United Methodist Church and several groups within the church, an officer of DAR and one of the original members of the Paint and Piddle Group, not really a club, but a group of ladies who for years have met regularly to do crafts while visiting. Many will remember her as an employee of the Medial Arts Clinic in Coronado Center. While friends and neighbors already miss her, they also send their best wishes in her location process.

Spied along the way: Pauline Gardner early in the morning with bucket and knife in hand, preparing to de-weed the cracks in her driveway. She was as neat as her pretty yard is.

Majunta Hills made another one of her interesting, friends making trips, this time on a tour of Indian school and territory in North Dakota and Montana. She fell in love with the area.

Part of the traffic jam at a popular noon meal time were caused by Linda Reed and Judy Walls showing everyone their album of grandson's pictures. Reed Scott Singletary of Madonsille, son of Melissa and Scott Singletary, daughter and son-in-law of Linda and Howard Reed, made his appearance June 30. Linda says he's the most handsome of all.

There was a little family reunion at Oak Harbor with Arnold's brothers, Edward and Carlton, sister-in-law, Mary, niece, Debbie Shelton and husband George and family and nephew, Randy Story.

Some observation since their last trip 10 years ago were the fact that the area is densely populated by retirees and the intensity with which the people treat the environment. They recycle everything and they're very careful about what is put on the ground. The residents are very concerned about protecting their water supply. Another observation was the expensive food and clothing. Even after all the lush beauty, the Storys were glad to be back home.

Arnold's mother, Lillie Story, of Electra, has spent a week with them. They took her back to Childers to a daughter for a visit before returning home.

Gertrude Wall has returned from a four week vacation with son Carl in University City and son Thomas in Sherman.

See you next week, Katie.

Husband short of sentiment is long on thoughtlessness

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite letters from 1977.)

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 16 years, and not once has he brought me a gift of flowers.

On special occasions when he thinks I should have a greeting card, he hands it to me in the paper sack from the store where he purchased it. When I ask him what it is, he says, "Open it and you'll find out." And when I do, I find a plain card without his signature or my name on it.

I have told him repeatedly that if he can't take the trouble to put my name on the card and sign it, he shouldn't bother getting me one.

My birthday just passed, and that morning he told me that if I was going out, to buy myself a card. I told him I wouldn't do it, so when he came home, he handed me another unsigned card in a paper sack.

As I write this, I'm not on speaking terms with him. Can you blame me? He is so inconsiderate and thoughtless. Are there other husbands like him? I doubt it.

DEAR UNHAPPY: It will probably be small consolation for you to learn that I've heard from hundreds of women who would be thrilled if their husbands bought them a greeting card. Yes, even in a paper sack, unsigned.

DEAR READERS: Read on for responses to "Unhappy's" letter:

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the unhappy wife whose husband always gives her unsigned greeting cards on special occasions.

He sounds like my husband. One year, he gave me a birthday card with a $10 check in it. On the card he wrote, "Put this away for us to use on our vacation."

Can anybody top this for cheapness?

DEAR WONDERING: Yes. Read on for three topplers:

DEAR ABBY: For Mother's Day, my bighearted husband gave me a check for $50 and asked me not to cash it until June 1. Well, I waited until June 5 to cash it, but it bounced anyway!

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine told me that on her birthday her mother instructed her to go to the desk and get out the box of handy "all-birthday cards," read one, and then put it back in the box!

DEAR ABBY: How's this for a "generous" anniversary present from a loved one? Just before our 10th anniversary, my husband asked to borrow $100 so he could buy me something very special. I gave it to him, but I never saw that "something special" — and I never saw my $100 again, either.

He's not my husband anymore.

Laura Ashley's Victorian look remains popular

By KARIN DAVIES
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Walking into a Laura Ashley shop is like opening a treasure trove of dress-up clothes. Straw hats blossom with bows, and dresses sprinkled with flowers evoke thoughts of a country idyll.

The English country apparel and home furnishings company is celebrating its 40th anniversary by returning to its romantic roots.

In the late 1980s, Laura Ashley Holdings PLC was fleetingly distracted by a seductive shrug of well-padded power shoulders. Forsaking the Victorian fashion sense of its namesake and its loyal customers, the firm tried to take its garments from the garden into the boardroom.

It didn't work. After three years of losses, Laura Ashley finally posted a profit of 667,000 pounds ($1 million) for the year which ended Jan. 29 by reviving much-loved looks and restructuring its production and retailing systems.

"Laura Ashley is not power dressing," said Jim Maxmin, the company's new American chief executive. "It was a style clearly not for the '80s."

Fashion has turned Laura Ashley's way for the 1990s.

The anti-fashion trend launched by Seattle grunge rockers has brought back the floral frock — although its favored pairing is with clunky black boots, rather than pretty slippers preferred by Laura Ashley.

The Laura Ashley button-through frocks of the 1970s have been updated — they are less structured and are made with cotton-viscose blends rather than pure cotton which makes them drape softly.

"They're not the same shape, and they're not even the same florals but they say the same thing — they say I feel good, I feel pretty, and I am in a romantic mood today," said Stephen Grant, global collection development director.

The firm's design sense faltered after Laura Ashley died in 1985 in a fall at her daughter's home, said The Daily Telegraph's fashion editor, Kathryn Samuel.

Bernard Ashley and their son

(AP Photo) The design sense and philosophy of the late Laura Ashley, shown, continues to guide the company she founded, celebrating its 40th anniversary.

Nick, who became design director, didn't have the same touch as she did. Nick nudged the firm in the direction of ... the gabardine double-breasted jacket — and it didn't do very well.

Grant said when he was hired nearly two years ago he knew he had to be faithful to the late Mrs. Ashley's ideas to succeed.

He said he pored over her correspondence, "trying to get a handle on what criteria she used," and makes regular trips to the Welsh valleys to soak up the scenery that inspired Mrs. Ashley.

While creating new designs, Mrs. Ashley used an eclectic mixture of sources, from patchwork quilts to the end papers of old books. She stored them away and from time to time returned to them, working old ideas into new prints and styles.

Designers still return to her hoard. "Mood boards" featuring swatches fabric, a clump of yarn, a corner of wallpaper are propped up on desks at the firm's headquarters, a light and airy converted bus garage in the fashionable London neighborhood of Chelsea.

In 40 years the firm has gone from kitchen table to international retailer of English country-style sprigged flowers on linen tea towels and perky head scarves in the kitchen of their London apartment. They had no experience and little money but lots of enthusiasm and a talent for design.

In 1961, the family moved to the green and rolling hills of Wales, where Mrs. Ashley had spent part of her childhood in the care of a grandmother with Victorian values.

Mrs. Ashley's creativity flourished, inspired by nature and the local myths and legends.

Her modest but elegant garments reflected "that she felt uncomfortable as a woman of 39, 40 wearing a mini skirt as we do now. You've had a few children and you want to cover up," said her daughter Jane, who was born the same year as the company.

The first Laura Ashley shop opened in London in 1968, offering an alternative to the brave new world of the mini skirt. Women queued for hours to buy fresh cotton dresses, in a rainbow of natural colors, flowers, bright geometrics, even mythical Welsh lions.

One of the challenges facing Laura Ashley today is updating a traditional look. It is accomplished, for example, by brightening the color palette used for home designs and adding bolder, more masculine designs to the more typical florals, Grant said.

Despite Mrs. Ashley's death and her husband's retirement this spring, Laura Ashley tries to maintain a sense that it is a family business.

Business suits are seldom seen at company headquarters. A canteen serves subsidized, wholesome food. In Wales, factories close at midday so workers can spend time with families.

Maxmin has tried to make his employees aware of all aspects of the firm. Everyone, right up to the board level, must spend at least six days a year serving customers. A chalk board at the headquarters entrance lists the value of Laura Ashley stock.

Perhaps as a hedge against straying again, Laura Ashley even stated its mission in an annual report: "to establish an enduring relationship with those who share a love of the special lifestyle that is Laura Ashley."

(AP Photo) The quintessential Laura Ashley look is represented by a Burdock smock dress worn with a fruit pattern handknit sweater.

Ironing brings out best in clothing

By The Associated Press

Even those devoted to grunge or the crumpled linen look have to admit there are times when a session at the ironing board brings out the best in clothing.

Good ironing technique can take the hassle and frustration out of the chore and will yield the best result. Some tips:

— Set up the ironing board at about hip level, so you don't have to slouch or bend.

— Lots of heat and steam makes the fabric pliable and the job easier. The combination smooths and straightens the fibers. Steam can be used on all but the most delicate fabrics.

— Iron small areas first, working up to the larger. The routine on a shirt would be: Collar, yoke, cuff, sleeve, placket, front and back.

— Hang up the item immediately. — When using spray starch, spray the entire garment, then roll it up to let the fabric absorb the moisture before proceeding. The iron shouldn't sizzle when it touches the garment.

— Iron pleated skirts by arranging a few pleats at a time on the board, then pin them into place and press. Remove the pins and repeat until done.

— If possible, press the lining separately from the garment. That may mean different temperature settings if the lining is a synthetic fiber and the main garment wool, for example.

NOT EVERYONE WILL BE SAVED

"Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy by thy name, and by thy name cast out demons, and by thy name do many mighty works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity. Every one therefore that heareth these words of mine, and doeth them, shall be likened unto a wise man, who built his house upon the rock; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon the rock. And every one that heareth these words of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, who built his house upon the sand; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and smote upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall thereof." (Matt. 7:21-27.) With these words, Jesus condemned the idea of universal salvation. No, not every one will be saved. Yet, in spite of what our Lord said, many still cling to the belief that all will be saved. Our God is a merciful and forgiving God, but He is also a just and fair God. Therefore, everyone will be judged by their own works (Rom. 14:12; 2 Cor. 5:10.)

Jesus emphasized that it is the doing of the will of the Father in heaven as well as the hearing of His word. Many will profess to be followers of Christ but will be lost simply because what they have done is not the will of the Father. The word "iniquity" means "lawlessness." What they would have done was not authorized by Jesus Christ.

The righteousness of God is revealed in the gospel, God's power to save (Rom. 1:16-17.) If we are to learn the will of God, we must study the gospel in order to know what that will is. God's will is to hear and obey His Son, Jesus Christ (Deut. 18:15-19; Matt. 17:5.) To have the assurance that we are saved and will be with the righteous in heaven, we must learn, believe and obey the gospel of Christ.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The fall television season is taking on the look of a very big shell game. Viewers, heads up.

ABC, CBS, NBC and Fox Broadcasting are introducing a hefty 36 new programs, the result of a high number of failures from the 1992-93 season.

Further complicating things, the compact September debut schedule is clearly a thing of the past, with shows premiering over an extended period from August to October.

And, once again, many new series are popping up in special previews before settling into their regular time slots — so a show destined for Thursday might sneak in first on a Monday.

"The premise behind it is extremely logical: namely, if you can do something that sets you apart from the clutter of shows," said Betsy Frank, senior vice president with Saatchi & Saatchi Advertising in New York.

"The problem, of course, is what do you give up? ... Some of the — dare I use the word — excitement about the new fall season," said Ms. Frank, who analyzes network programming for the agency.

Excitement might be too strong a word for the new series awaiting viewers.

"I don't know that I've heard anyone jump for joy that it's the best schedule we've seen for years," she said, though some shows are generating interest, such as "Frasier," the sole "Cheers" offspring.

On the bright side, "there are fewer and fewer downright awful shows on the schedule," Ms. Frank said.

Some, however, consider that an indication of the networks' reluctance to take risks. The new series are comedy-heavy, with 21 sitcom debuts. There are 11 dramas, two variety shows, a newsmagazine and a mystery movie anthology.

To help keep track of the new shows, here's a road map to their debuts:

ABC, which is making sweeping changes to its schedule, will introduce 11 new series this season, with the emphasis on comedy.

"Lois & Clark: The New Adventure of Superman," starring Teri Hatcher and Dean Cain, debuts at 8 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 12, with a special one-hour, 45-minute episode.

"Phenom," a comedy starring Judith Light as the mother of a teenage tennis star, premieres at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 14. Steven Bochco's daring new police drama, "NYPD Blue," debuts 10 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 21.

An overhauled Wednesday features four new series.

"Thea," starring comedian Thea Vidale as a widow with a young family, will bow with previews on Sept. 8, 10 and 15. Another Sept. 15 preview is "Moon Over Miami," a romantic comedy featuring mismatched private detectives, which airs at 9 p.m. Both settle into their regular time slots Wednesday, Sept. 22: "Thea" at 8 p.m. and "Moon" at 10 p.m.

Two other series premiering that night are "Joe's Life," starring Peter Onorati as a stay-at-home dad, at 8:30 p.m., and "Grace Under Fire," with comic Brett Butler as a divorced mom, at 9:30 p.m.

"Missing Persons" debuts as a two-hour "ABC Monday Night Movie" at 9 p.m. Aug. 30. The one-hour police drama with Daniel J. Travanti ("Hill Street Blues") moves to its regular 8 p.m. time slot

Thursday, Sept. 23.

"Boy Meets World," a coming-of-adolescence comedy starring Ben Savage as the boy, debuts 8:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 24.

Premiere dates for a pair of new Saturday shows have yet to be announced — "George," a sitcom starring boxer George Foreman as a family man, and "Paula Poundstone," a comedy-variety hour with the comedian.

CBS, the No. 1 ranked network last season, is wrapping its introduction of eight new programs around baseball playoffs and the World Series.

"Dave's World," a sitcom starring Harry Anderson and based on humorist Dave Barry's work, debuts at 8:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 20.

"The Trouble With Larry," a comedy starring Bronson Pinchot as a missing man who returns to find his wife remarried, premieres at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 25.

The Wednesday lineup will be completed with two post-World Series debuts: "The Nanny," starring Fran Drescher as a street-smart nanny to a rich household, and "South of Sunset," a detective drama with former Eagles rocker Glenn Frey. Dates were unannounced.

"Angel Falls," a serial drama about a single mother returning to her childhood home, bows at 10 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 26.

"It Had to Be You," a romantic comedy starring Faye Dunaway and Robert Urich, will preview 8 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 19, and then debut 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 24. Following it at 9 p.m. is "Family Album," a comedy about an extended family starring Peter Scolaro.

"Harts of the West," with Beau Bridges and father Lloyd Bridges, debuts at 9 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 25. The drama, part of CBS' Western lineup, is about an uprooted family at a dude ranch.

NBC has a slate of 10 new programs for the 1993-94 season, and is emphasizing comedy in a bid to recapture its success of the late '80s.

"SeaQuest DSV," Steven Spielberg's futuristic, undersea adventure series, debuts with a special two-hour episode at 8 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 12, before settling into its regular 8-9 p.m. time slot the next week.

"The John Larroquette Show," featuring the former "Night Court" star as a hardluck bus depot manager, previews Thursday, Sept. 2, at 9:30 p.m., and premieres in its 9 p.m. Tuesday slot on Sept. 7.

1993 Property Tax Rates in City of Lefors

This notice concerns 1993 property tax rates for City of Lefors. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$ 24,971.00
Last year's debt taxes	$ - 0 -
Last year's total taxes	$ 24,971.00
Last year's tax base	$ 6,533,921
Last year's total tax rate	$ .38218 /$100

This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 24,914.01
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$ 6,380,888
= This year's effective tax rate	$ .39044 /$100

In the first year a hospital district or city collects the additional sales tax to reduce property taxes, it must insert the following lines unless its first adjustment was made last year.

- Sales tax adjustment rate	$ - 0 - /$100
= Effective tax rate	$ .39044 /$100

x 1.03 = maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearing	$ .40215 /$100
---	------------------

This year's rollback tax rate:
Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for transferred function)	$ 24,971.00
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$ 6,380,888
= This year's effective operating rate	$ .39134 /$100
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$ .42264 /$100
+ This year's debt rate	$ - 0 - /$100
= This year's rollback rate	$ .42264 /$100

A hospital district or city that collects the additional sales tax to reduce property taxes, including one that collects the tax for the first time this year, must insert the following lines:

- Sales tax adjustment rate	$ - 0 - /$100
= Rollback tax rate	$ .42264 /$100

Schedule A Unencumbered Fund Balances

The following estimated balances will be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
Maintenance & Operation	- 0 -

Schedule B 1993 Debt Service

The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).

Description of Debt
None

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Self-doubts are your worst enemies today and they must be dealt with in positive ways or else you could easily lose any momentum you generate. Major changes are ahead for Virgo in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163 Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Financial trends are mixed for you today. Your probabilities for acquisition look very good in some instances, while your possibilities for loss are also strong in others. Be careful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have excellent leadership qualities today, but you might use them only as a last resort instead of expressing them in all situations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you're not a good listener today, you could be asking for problems, because you'll hear only what you want to hear and little else.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Treat friends in your usual considerate manner, but be very careful that you're not taken advantage of again today by someone who did a number on you in the past.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to achieve important objectives today, you must remain focused on your targets at all times. If you deviate even briefly, you could get way off course.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your judgment is likely to be a bit sounder than persons with whom you'll be involved today. Unfortunately, however, you might not believe this yourself.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today if you work in fits and starts you will severely minimize your productivity and effectiveness. What you'll do, you'll do well, but you might not do enough of it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be very careful today how you treat associates. If you show partiality in any form, it might cause someone who presently thinks you're a good guy to lose respect for you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's very important today that you pace yourself properly. Don't take on more tasks or assignments than you should. If you do, it'll negatively affect your overall performance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Excellent judgment on your behalf will be required today, because there are some situations where you should be a bit of a risk taker and others where you should be very conservative.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A close friend's feelings might be hurt today if you fail to show him/her the same cooperation this person has consistently shown you in the past.

One year later, recovery and despair in wake of Hurricane Andrew

By TRACY FIELDS
Associated Press Writer

GOULDS, Fla. (AP) — It's another 90-degree morning at Mount Pleasant Missionary Baptist Church. The choir sings "Revive Us Again" to the accompaniment of a portable synthesizer organ.

Worshippers wield hand fans, flapping like captive butterflies. Instead of the usual biblical scene or picture of Martin Luther King Jr., the white fans bear the words "Andrew was yesterday. Recovery is today," and a toll-free number for the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Since Hurricane Andrew destroyed its sanctuary, Mount Pleasant literally has been a church without walls, gathering every steamy Sunday under a borrowed, off-white tent with rolled-up sides.

The hours of terror and violence, days of deprivation and misery that Hurricane Andrew brought to south Dade County have ended, but the experience is far from over. It's difficult to say when the distress will end for some, and things will never again be exactly as they were before last Aug. 24.

The storm's damage estimates run higher than $30 billion, making it the nation's most costly disaster. The human cost is much greater; as Andrew's survivors watch the Midwest struggle with flooding, they understand.

"We can really feel sympathy and empathy with those folks," said Mount Pleasant's Rev. James C. Wise. His advice? "Thank God for what's left."

Dade County took the heaviest hit from Andrew. The progress of recovery differs wildly, depending on where you look.

Whole neighborhoods and shopping centers remain gutted, as if the storm had just happened. But elsewhere, generally in more affluent areas, the steady ratchet and procession of construction workers have brought renewal.

The southern part of the county, once lush, doesn't have much shade now. But the remaining trees have greened, though many still lean west, pointing out the direction of Andrew's powerful wind bursts, which may have been as strong as 200 mph. Many measuring instruments didn't survive the storm.

The legacy of Andrew a year later includes less visible effects, such as a vast tangle of lawsuits by desperate property owners; a drastically revamped insurance system; and frustrated residents who, at a recent town meeting, complained to Gov. Lawton Chiles of neighborhoods overrun by burglars and crooked contractors.

The state attorney's office has reported at least 90 cases of corrupt contractors, with arrests in 84 of the cases. A fraud hotline was opened this month.

Local politicians have revved up efforts to finish work of the most basic type — debris cleanup, replacement of street signs and blocking off unsafe property.

In some neighborhoods, residents are still paying the price.

"My life ain't been right since," said Eva Brookins of Florida City, which along with its sister city of Homestead on the tip of the Florida peninsula, was flattened by the storm. She recalled huddling with her grandchildren under three mattresses as the storm raged.

"When it lifted up the roof it was like we was in a big ball of fire," she said.

In the remains of the squat brown house that was home before Andrew, Brookins splashes through puddles littered with photographs, broken appliances and food containers.

For the past six months, she has shared a donated travel trailer with the three children and a friend. The unemployed 47-year-old, a stroke victim with a weakened arm, spends most of her time shuttling from one assistance program to the next in search of things like food and clothes, hoping to find a real place to live someday.

"It's just hard," she said. "It makes me wanna give up, because I'm not used to asking people for nothing. Sometimes I get in this trailer by myself and I just cry."

Her story is repeated in pockets throughout the county, but there are many encouraging signs of renewal.

No event so heartened the people of south Dade County as the surprise announcement in June that flattened Homestead Air Force Base, slated for closure, would be resuscitated.

It was selected as a model base to serve as a national example of how such installations can be returned to their surrounding communities. Col. Rodney Bates will have more resources to work with as he and his staff work on the cleanup.

"All we have to do is get it started and push it in the right direction," he said.

The F-16s of the 31st Fighter Wing are gone. But they'll be replaced by planes belonging to Air Force reserve units, the Florida Air National Guard and U.S. Customs as the base becomes a mixed-use, civilian and government facility.

Military retirees were crushed, however, to learn that key facilities such as the hospital and commissary would not return. As many as 6,000 retired officers have left since Hurricane Andrew to seek the benefits of other military bases in the Sun Belt.

The migration also has affected cities like Florida City, which lost half of its 8,000 residents, and Homestead, which lost 12,000 since the storm. The real estate boom that has hit southwest Broward County to the north is testimony to other defections from the storm zone.

But the cities are fighting to rebuild. In Florida City — where Andrew blew away all of the city's government buildings, 90 percent of its houses and 65 percent of its tax base — a new $6 million municipal building will include a large room residents can use for meetings and activities. Also, each new public building will include a safe space designed to withstand winds as strong as Andrew's.

"One of the problems we ran into was there was no place to operate from," said city manager Richard Anderson. And out on the edge of town, they'll break ground Aug. 24 for a new outlet mall expected to double the city's tax base.

Development will increase along U.S. 1, the road to the Florida Keys, to replace jobs and tax revenue lost to the storm. "It's gonna be crowded, commercial and very lucrative," said Katie Mitchell, assistant city manager in Homestead.

The tempest's effects — both bad and good — linger in the keys, as well.

A year ago, Boca Chita key was a popular spot for boaters in Biscayne National Park. Located in Biscayne Bay east of Homestead, it functioned much like a rest area on the highway, with restrooms and fresh water and historic limestone structures left from 50 years ago when the little island was a playground for millionaires.

Since Andrew, Boca Chita's been closed, visited mostly by cormorants that perch in the few remaining trees, surveying the rubble of the restrooms scattered across the bleaching, shattered hulks of downed Australian pines.

"You think about all the things people do to Nature," said park ranger Monica Alvarez. "This time, Hurricane Andrew got us."

But Andrew saved the rangers hours of labor. They had been slowly cutting down the nonnative pines on Boca Chita, trying to restore the key to a more natural state. Now a contractor will simply clear away their remains.

"It doesn't seem possible it's been a year," said Ruth Mero, a 22-year-old waitress at the International House of Pancakes in Naranja, one of the first restaurants to reopen after the storm.

She most misses the places she and her friends used to go for fun. Andrew blew away the theaters and ice rink they used to frequent, so now Mero's crowd must travel 15 miles to see a movie.

But she accepts the trip, the increased traffic on the roads and slower traffic in the restaurant, the still-sprouting piles of debris and all the other post-Andrew annoyances — including the possibility that another hurricane could try to wipe South Dade off the map.

"I still like it," she said with a smile. "I'm not gonna leave. This is where I want to live."

Delayed USDA reorganization will finally surface

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department — with 124,000 employees in 42 agencies — will be a target for reorganization when Vice President Al Gore's task force on government reform reports its findings next month.

This government behemoth, with thousands of offices scattered across the country, has overtaken the Pentagon as a symbol of wasteful, inefficient bureaucracy.

Analysts familiar with the department say the task force's proposed changes will likely be modest, because there's so much to tackle, but still significant, because any movement represents progress.

Implementing the plan also may take time. The North American Free Trade Agreement could occupy the congressional agricultural committees, which will have a say on the plan, when Congress returns next month.

"I don't think that they're going to be able to deal with this year," said John W. Harman, who is in charge of agricultural issues at the General Accounting Office. The congressional watchdog agency, which has done more than 30 studies of department management and functions since 1989, has fueled the push for reform.

Steve Kinsella, Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy's spokesman, said Espy has a plan to reorganize the Washington headquarters, with more work to be done on it this week. The plan calls for a Farm Service Agency that combines functions of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Soil Conservation Service and Farmers Home Administration.

Those agencies have the most direct contact with farmers, helping them with loans, farm programs and conservation. The agencies and the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. have a network of 7,407 offices in 3,700 locations, many where little or no farming takes place.

Espy also has a rough plan for reorganizing field offices. And in a speech earlier this month, he said he would like to reduce the number of USDA agencies from 42 to 30.

Although Espy said in the same speech that "nothing is sacrosanct" and "everything is on the chopping block," at least one agency appears to be spared. He said the Rural Electrification Administration will remain, with some added responsibilities for helping develop rural water and sewer systems.

The essential Espy plan could resemble what Edward Madigan offered in January at the end of his term. His plan focused on closing field offices and putting many under one roof.

Espy kept Mike Neruda, who directed the joint project by the department and the Office of Management and Budget to find which offices should be closed or moved, on the job for six months after Madigan left. And even after Espy put the Madigan plan on hold, he told state Food and Agriculture Councils to go ahead with Madigan's request to draw up plans for closing 1,191 field offices. Madigan also called for reducing the number of agencies to 29.

Charles F. Bingman, a former specialist on government reorganization at the Office of Management and Budget, says creating the farm service agency and reorganizing field offices would be significant and doable.

"It addresses what has been the real source of attack on the department, which is the obsolete, unwarranted magnitude of the field establishment," said Bingman, a professor at Washington's George Washington University and a consultant to the GAO.

He said having the vice president announce the plan would give "visible political cover" for Congress and the department to close field offices and take other, bolder steps.

The political pressure against reorganization comes from local communities that lose the offices and from departmental employees, he said.

But the reorganization plan will have only a "modest" impact on government spending and payrolls, said Bob Bergland, Agriculture Secretary under President Carter.

"The benefit will be as much political as monetary," he said. "The appearance of doing things counts for a lot in this town. Whether much is done or not is another matter."

Bergland, Bingman and Harman agree that the department needs to look deep inside and deal with mundane bureaucratic problems like computers, financial controls and personnel.

Just as important, Congress will have to simplify farm programs that create the need for so many employees.

"If you're worried that what you don't want is a big debate on programs and money, what you do buy into the debate over organization and management," Bingman said.

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

WHEAT—(BULL/BEAR)

OUTLOOK: On the all important August report the USDA reduced the crop size about 50 million bushels vs. the July figure. It was no surprise they lowered the exports, but wheat feed use was increased by a like amount. All in all, the report is not a shocker (either way). Of greater importance in the coming weeks will be: 1) the development of the spring wheat crop (excess moisture could exacerbate disease problems) and exports (they're not good enough yet and must pick up for this market to get going).

I look for wheat prices to "chop around"; however, they will remain weak in relation to corn.

STRATEGY: Hedgers: Based on previous recommendations "true hedgers" have sold September Kansas City wheat up to $3.16, Chicago Sept. as high as $3.19 and Minneapolis up to $3.15. Plus you own $3.00 or $3.10 calls (at 5¢ or less) for what we call "rally protection."

"Selective hedgers" previously took up to 25¢/bu. profits and have now resold at prices which should be higher than their first sales. The "selective" folks are doing much better, but whenever hedgers are lifted additional risk is assumed.

Traders—Sell December Chicago at $3.27 or higher. Risk 12¢ on a closing basis for an eventual move back to $3.10.

CORN—(BULL)

OUTLOOK: The August crop report was termed "bullish" for corn futures in that the USDA reduced the crop production over 400 million bushels from the July report and over 2 billion from last year's large crop. To reach these numbers the USDA assumed an average national yield of 116 bu./acre. If this yield number is wrong it's probably too high, not too low. There are hundreds of millions of bushels which still could be lost to potential weather problems such as frost. I continue to feel current prices do not contain enough "risk premium" and as a result we'll see corn prices grind higher in the coming weeks.

STRATEGIES: Hedgers: "True hedgers" have priced new crop (using puts) in the $2.40 to $2.58 range. Puts establish a floor price but may make more sense in this market environment since you retain all the upside potential (minus the put price) without any of the obligations of forward contracts. Selective hedgers are still on the sidelines since we anticipate higher prices.

Traders: Based on previous recommendations you've purchased December corn in the $2.45 to $2.49 area. Risk to a close under $2.32 for an eventual objective of $2.60-$2.70.

CATTLE—(BULL)

OUTLOOK: The mid-year cattle inventory report showed an increase in the calf crop. But this just doesn't seem to jive with the real world. The great majority of feedlots I'm in contact with report feeders are hard to find, and when they are found, if you want 'em you need to pay up. I guess the market doesn't believe the report, either, since cattle prices have rallied $3 off the lows set before the numbers were released.

Also, while near term cattle supplies appear burdensome (7 percent above year ago levels) packers remain willing buyers so beef demand must be good. From this point forward supplies are expected to decline and I look for October through December prices to remain firm and eventually reach the upper 70s.

STRATEGY: Hedgers: Based on last week's recommendation you should have been able to purchase 75 and 76 October put options since the market rallied above these levels. Remember puts allow you to lock in a reasonable profit margin (a worst case floor price for your fat cattle sales) while leaving the upside potential open.

Cow/calf operators: Based on previous columns you own August 88 (in the money) puts, purchased for less than $2. This insures a floor price of at least 86 and should be removed as you market your cattle. You also own October 86 puts. Put buyers are protected from feeder weakness if feed prices rise, as we think they will in the coming few weeks. I prefer puts to futures due to the fact feeder cattle supplies remain tight and there is certainly the possibility of good upside price potential.

HOGS—(BEAR)

OUTLOOK: Slaughter levels continue to run under expectations, but pork demand is weak. What happens when the numbers start increasing? We still believe producer expansion is just around the corner and the laws of supply and demand point to declining prices. We remain bearish October through December hog prices and view rallies as hedging and shorting opportunities.

STRATEGY: Hedgers: Last week you should have been able to expand your hedges as October futures briefly traded over 47. You have been able to sell up to 75 percent of anticipated production in October from 44-47 and December from 45-47. Scale up your sales every dollar above the upper end of these ranges. Use futures or put options (whichever you're most comfortable with).

Speculators: You are short October over 46. Risk 150 points on a closing basis for an eventual move back into the upper 30s.

U.S. can reap benefit of Japanese taste for frozen foods

WASHINGTON (AP) — The growing Japanese appetite for French fries and other convenience foods may result in a boon for U.S. frozen vegetable exporters.

An Agriculture Department report suggests that U.S. producers, who already dominate the frozen produce market there, take advantage of new opportunities. And it offers a few tips for success.

The report, published this month in the Foreign Agricultural Service's AgExporter, said Japan's yearly consumption of frozen vegetables increased 55 percent from 1986 to 1991 to 480,000 tons. Frozen fruit did not fare so well, declining from 55,000 tons in 1988 to 40,000 tons in 1991.

The most popular import items are potatoes, corn, pumpkin, spinach, peas, broccoli, asparagus and beans.

The report also noted a recent surge in demand for cherry pie, a trend that could be the result of that food's prominence in the television series Twin Peaks.

The country's growing fast-food industry has fueled the demand, and unstable supplies of domestic products have pushed up their prices.

Eighty-one percent of frozen vegetables consumed in 1991 were imports, the report said.

But, the report warns, appearance is everything. Japanese consumers look for uniformity in color, size and freshness and hate bruised produce. Packaging is crucial as well if the products are intended for retail sale.

And even though the United States is chief exporter of frozen vegetables to Japan, particularly the ever-popular spud, China and Thailand have been gaining ground, the report said.

Lower production costs, abundant labor and inexpensive land have helped producers in those countries.

Garrison to head AFB Communications Dept.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Keith Garrison, 46, of Little Rock has been named to head Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation's newly created Communications Department, Jack G. Justus, executive vice president, has announced.

Garrison assumed his new post Aug. 1. In that position, he oversees all external communications, media relations and electronic and print productions.

A native of Oklahoma, Garrison joined Arkansas Farm Bureau as director of communications in 1988. He retains that title in his new post. At that time, his duties primarily involved electronic media, and he set up and organized NewsSource, Farm Bureau's call-in radio newscast, and the organization's video production facilities.

Keith Garrison

Before coming to Arkansas, Garrison worked nine years total with Texas Farm Bureau as a communicator/lobbyist. Prior to that, he was co-owner and general manager of KPND Radio in Pampa. Before that, he worked in communications for Sun Gas Co. in Dallas and held several radio and television news positions in Dallas and Wichita Falls, Texas. He is a U.S. Air Force veteran.

Garrison holds a bachelor's degree in speech and journalism from Midwestern State University, Wichita Falls. He also attended Southern Methodist University, Dallas, and the Department of Defense Information School.

He is married to the former Janet Nacol, and they have two children, Jay, 15, and Karen Ann, 13.

Ethanol surge would help rural areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Increasingly ethanol production fivefold by the turn of the century could create over 100,000 farm and farm-related jobs, new Agriculture Department research shows.

When used as a gasoline supplement, ethanol — a corn derivative — reduces harmful pollutants released by automobiles. Ethanol has long been touted as a energy alternative to foreign oil.

Corn producers also welcome an increase in ethanol production as a way to use surplus crop yields.

But the debate over ethanol continues, with the Environmental Protection Agency preparing to announce this fall whether ethanol will be included in its clean air plan for nine smog-ridden cities. Some studies have shown that ethanol increases summer smog.

The USDA's report found that if ethanol production rose to 5 billion gallons a year by the year 2000, more than five times the current level, U.S. farm income could go up $1 billion.

The report also predicts that 34,000 new processing-related jobs would be created as well as 14,000 temporary construction and 60,000 crop production jobs.

The USDA study also studied doubling current production to 2 billion gallons per year. That would add 28,000 new jobs nationwide, it said.

Some of the job and income gains would be offset by losses from decreased production of soybeans. Soybean byproducts compete with ethanol.

The Midwest would enjoy the greatest job gains, though other small communities may benefit from new technologies that distill ethanol not from corn, but from other crops, agricultural residues and organic municipal waste, the report said.

There are currently 39 operating plants that produce ethanol using about 6 percent of the nation's corn, the USDA said. The eight largest facilities account for 87 percent of ethanol output.

The report, prepared by the USDA's Economic Research Service, said ethanol production was not expected to exceed 1.2 billion gallons a year after 1995.

Farmers complain about diesel emission standards

By PHILIP BRASHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is getting an earful from individual farmers, manufacturers and big oil about proposed emission standards for tractors and other heavy equipment powered by diesel engines.

The Environmental Protection Agency estimates the clean-air requirement would raise the cost of a typical diesel engine by $110.

But manufacturers believe the added cost will be at least twice that, and in some cases as much as 10 to 20 times more. Farmers claim lower-polluting tractors will burn more fuel and drive up their costs.

"This affects us — right in the pocketbook," three farmers from Carol Stream, Ill., wrote the EPA.

The regulations, which would apply to new tractors, bulldozers and other machinery, set limits on emissions of nitrogen oxide, which forms smog and contributes to acid rain.

The EPA proposed the standards this spring and has been taking comment on them over the summer. The final regulations probably will not be issued until next year, said EPA spokeswoman Martha Casey.

The EPA said off-road diesel equipment is a significant source of nitrogen oxide. The proposed emission standards would be a first, since farm machinery has long been exempted from the air pollution campaign that forced cleaner exhaust from gasoline-powered automobiles and trucks.

Many state and local regulators question whether the proposed diesel standards are stringent enough.

Farm machinery, for example, accounts for at least 10 percent of the nitrogen oxide emissions in California's San Joaquin Valley, one of 25 polluted areas studied by the EPA.

Bulldozers and other construction equipment are considered a major pollutant in many big cities. In the Northeast, off-road engines account for 15 percent of all nitrogen oxide emissions, according to state regulators.

"The higher costs are not unreasonable given the resulting improvement in air quality," said Henry Henderson, environment commissioner for Chicago.

He said the EPA also should impose limits on emissions of carbon monoxide and other pollutants.

The natural gas industry, which is counting on a greater demand for engines that run on its product, also is supporting the diesel standards.

But the Equipment Manufacturers Institute — the trade group representing makers of diesel machinery — claims the EPA overestimated the reduction in pollution by assuming that sales of tractors and construction equipment will grow 2 percent a year. Sales actually have been declining for the past two decades, the group said.

The EPA also underestimated the cost of redesigning engines, the group said. It estimated customers will pay $270 to $2,900 more, depending on the equipment.

Owatonna's Mustang Manufacturing Co., which employs 180 people, estimates that the compact loaders it sells to farmers and building contractors will cost an extra $1,156, or about 5 percent more.

Modifications to the engine design alone will cost $500 apiece, the company said. Then there is the cost of altering the loader's radiator, coolant, ignition and rear door, according to Claude Dube, the company's director of research and development engineering.

The EPA's $110 cost estimate "is nowhere near what the final end user would see," Dube said.

The oil industry also complained about the standards, and mining companies joined with farmers in arguing that their equipment isn't responsible for enough pollution to justify the emission controls.

Mining equipment will cost $3,000 to $30,000 more per engine, according to the American Mining Congress.

The American Farm Bureau Federation said the cleaner engines will consume 3 percent to 5 percent more fuel. That would cost barley and wheat farmers an extra 26 cents per acre, corn growers an extra 38 cents per acre, cotton farmers $1.09 more and rice farmers an additional $2.12.

British corporation increases Dr Pepper holdings

By DIRK BEVERIDGE
AP Business Writer

LONDON (AP) — Corporate Britain escalated its invasion of American brand names Friday, as the candy and soft drink conglomerate Cadbury Schweppes PLC said it was increasing its stake in Dr Pepper and Seven-Up.

Through its $231.3 million stock purchase in Dr Pepper-Seven-Up Cos. Inc., Cadbury Schweppes is hoping for a partnership better able to compete with the industry's giants, Coca-Cola and Pepsi.

The purchase, from The Prudential Insurance Co. of America, will raise Cadbury's holding in Dr Pepper-Seven-Up to 25.9 percent, from 5.7 percent.

The deal marks the third time this year that a British market leader has pressured American industrial leaders by going after a sizable stake in large rivals.

First, British Airways purchased 19.9 percent of USAir for $300 million, drawing howls of protest from bigger competitors American, United and Delta, who claimed they were being put at an unfair disadvantage.

Then, British Telecommunications PLC, the dominant British phone company, agreed to spend $4.3 billion for a 20 percent stake in MCI Communications Corp., the No. 2 U.S. long-distance carrier. American Telephone and Telegraph Co. accused British Telecom of invading the U.S. market while using its clout to stifle competition in Britain.

Whereas USAir and MCI were willing partners to their British suitors, it was not immediately clear what Dr Pepper-Seven-Up thought of the move by Cadbury Schweppes. Dr Pepper-Seven-Up officials failed to immediately return calls for comment Friday.

Some analysts believe Cadbury Schweppes will eventually seek a total takeover of Dr Pepper-Seven-Up.

If that happened, the combined company would still be a distant third in market share to Coca-Cola Co. and Pepsi-Cola Co., which together command more than 70 percent of the U.S. market.

Dr Pepper-Seven-Up is third in the U.S. with 10.6 percent of the market while Cadbury is fourth with 3.4 percent so together they would hold about 14 percent.

Cadbury Schweppes does business in North America under a variety of brand names including Schweppes, Canada Dry, Crush, Hires, Sundrop and Sunkist. Chairman Dominic Cadbury was staying tight-lipped Friday about his future intentions.

Cadbury Schweppes, rumored in the past to be a potential buyer, paid $21 million for a stake in Dr Pepper during 1986-87 but was forced to reduce its holding under the terms of a merger between Dr Pepper and Seven-Up in 1988. Cadbury Schweppes collected a total of $117 million in return.

On Friday, Cadbury Schweppes said it would seek stronger ties with the U.S. company and was willing to enter into an unspecified "standstill" agreement that apparently would avert a full takeover attempt.

Cadbury Schweppes would not say what it was seeking in return, however, as its chairman discussed the future with Dr Pepper-Seven-Up Chairman John R. Albers.

Cadbury Schweppes is likely seeking representation on the Dr Pepper-Seven-Up board and perhaps arrangements for the companies to cooperate on bottling and purchasing, according to industry analysts in London.

As a combined purchaser, the two companies would command 5 more clout with suppliers of syrup or concentrate. "And the logic of it is that at some point they would like to, if it were possible to do that, they would like to expand that to 100 percent ownership," said Richard Workman, who follows soft drinks for the London brokerage Hoare Govett.

The sale of the Prudential's stock holding has been the first opportunity for Cadbury Schweppes to increase its stake in the company since it was partially pushed out in the Dr Pepper-Seven-Up merger. The company said it would pay $19 per share.

Dr Pepper stock rose $1.87 1/2 on the New York Stock Exchange Friday, selling at $19 in late afternoon trading. Cadbury's U.S. shares were down 50 cents on the over-the-counter market at $29.50.

Cadbury Schweppes made its move at a time when the U.S. drink maker is rebounding from recent losses.

In the first six months of 1993, Dr. Pepper-Seven-Up earned $48.3 million, not including a $14.9 million charge for debt restructuring, compared with a loss of $80.4 million in the same period in 1992. Revenue rose 5 percent to $353.3 million.

Letterman debut

NEW YORK (AP) — David Letterman will kick off his Late Show on CBS with guest Bill Murray, the actor-comedian who also helped launch Letterman's Late Night on NBC more than a decade ago.

CBS confirmed that Murray and musician Billy Joel will be on hand for Letterman's Aug. 30 premiere at 10:35 p.m. CDT.

NBC earlier announced that Jay Leno's Tonight Show would be countering the CBS Letterman launch with stars Luke Perry of Beverly Hills 90210 and country singer Garth Brooks.

Growth hormone no miracle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Human growth hormone is not the muscle-building miracle drug some athletes hoped for, researchers say.

The supplements, instead, may just make them retain water, said researcher Kevin E. Yarasheski of Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis.

His study, in the American Physiological Society's Journal of Applied Physiology, is among the latest to look at genetically engineered hormone supplements.

In normal conditions, growth hormone does what its name says — stimulate development. It helps muscles gain protein. And some earlier experiments had indicated supplementation would help people gain lean body mass, getting bigger without getting fatter, a sign they were gaining muscle. This led some athletes to try genetically engineered hormone, even though the supplements are banned in many sports.

But later work that focuses specifically on muscle development finds that supplements don't help, Yarasheski said.

Yarasheski and his colleagues studied seven high-intensity, low-repetition weight trainers with an average age of 23, who had been working out for at least three years.

For 14 days, the men received synthetic growth hormone in dosages a bit above what their bodies would theoretically produce in a day. During the study, they continued their normal training. Researchers took blood and muscle samples before and after the period.

There was no overall increase in protein uptake in the skeletal muscle, indicating synthetic growth hormone wasn't making any changes, the journal article said.

The study fits a pattern that indicates hormone supplements don't help an athlete become stronger.

Increasing lean body mass, as shown in the earlier experiments, is not necessarily the same as adding muscle, Yarasheski said. It's possible that supplements stimulate growth in organs such as the liver and kidney, and more likely that supplements make users retain water, he said.

The implication for weight trainers who buy synthetic growth hormone is clear, Yarasheski said. "They are wasting their money."

Dr. Daniel Rudman, a growth hormone researcher at the Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee, agrees: "For healthy athletes to take growth hormone as a medication is useless."

Rudman's work in people over 60 had found that supplements increased lean body mass and shrank fat, effectively reversing some of the changes that come with age.

Rudman and Yarasheski also agree that overdoses can be dangerous.

Too much growth hormone can lead to diabetes. In some cases, it also can create acromegaly — excessive bone growth that can deform the hands, feet and face.

Another expert accepts the conclusion that synthetic growth hormone does not increase muscle in the dosage given, but contends this does not predict what could happen if the drug is abused at higher doses.

However, Dr. Alan D. Rogol notes that the drug's high cost will make it hard to abuse. The professor of pediatrics and pharmacology at the University of Virginia Health Sciences Center in Charlottesville treats children who lack growth hormone.

"You're probably talking about $50,000 or more in an adult," Rogol said. "That's if they took a replacement dose (equal to what their body makes) for 50 weeks, and we think that would not do them any good."
