PAMPA -- Arson investigators were delving into the cause today of a weekend blaze that destroyed a one-story vacant house on Hughes.

"It's my belief that it (the fire) was set," said Pampa Fire Marshal Tom Adams. "There was no reason for it to accidentally start."

Adams said utilities had been turned off to the unoccupied two-bedroom house at 429 Hughes. Furniture was being stored in the house by its owner, June Thomas, Adams said. The house apparently was not insured, he said.

The fire was reported at 1:13 a.m. Sunday. Eight Pampa firefighters and five firetrucks needed about 20 minutes to extinguish the fire, said Rusty Horton, acting battalion fire chief. Firefighters were at the scene of the fire for about three hours, he said. The fire was reported by a motorist driving past the house, Adams said.

HOUSTON (AP) — Customs agents at Houston Intercontinental Airport seized passports of 18 U.S. citizens who defied a ban against travel to Cuba.

Customs spokeswoman Judy Turner said 18 passports were confiscated as evidence because they were stamped "travel accomplished to Cuba." Another five travelers said they had visited Cuba but their passports did not say so and were not seized. (See Page 3)

DALLAS (AP) — More than half of the contributors who donated at least $5,000 to Democratic Gov. Ann Richards at a fund-raiser have a long history of supporting Republicans.

The reasons for the switch include the contributors' interest in political appointments and their approval of her stance on certain issues, The Dallas Morning News reported in Monday's editions.

The Lone Star Jockey Club, which traditionally has supported the GOP, was among Richards' supporters at a $2 million fund-raiser last month. The principal owners of Lone Star, which recently was granted a horse-racing license by a state agency, paid for a $10,000 table near the stage at the dinner.

HOUSTON (AP) — The NRA has picked Houston, Miami and Washington, D.C., as test markets for a barrage of television and magazine advertisements that urge women to protect themselves from crime.

The ads show a frightened woman towing a young girl through a darkened parking garage. The campaign, which continues through November, seems to be striking a nerve among women who are afraid of being attacked.

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Texas has taken the heat for a state law limiting the time felons have to submit new claims of innocence even though other states impose similar restrictions.

The Texas law says felons, not just capital murderers, are out of luck if they don't file motions to present newly discovered evidence within 30 days of the end of their original trials. Fourteen other states have similar time limits, and most of the 37 death-penalty states have some restrictions. But Texas seems to have been singled out by death penalty foes.

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's a given that Congress won't act on health care until well into 1994, guaranteeing election-year politics will come into play. What's unclear is whether that helps or hurts the prospect of the president getting his plan passed.

Some supporters of President Clinton's plan are wary, arguing that as November 1994 draws closer, lawmakers may be less likely to approve a bill that could mean tough choices and sacrifice — at least in the short run — for their constituents. And no one's going to want to stick around Washington when they could be home campaigning.

Others say lawmakers, well aware that many voters put health care at the top of their worry list, will be eager to take home a trophy — such as the passage of health reform — to prove they deserve a return trip to Washington.

Area awakens to foggy, foggy dew

The Texas Panhandle woke up in a fog today.

"There are patches of dense fog throughout the Panhandle that represent a lot of moisture in the air," said Darrell Schorn, KGRO-KOMX meteorologist. "There's an upper air interruption headed our way that should convert that moisture to rain tonight and Tuesday." Schorn said this morning's weather could clear this afternoon.

"Clouds will come rolling back in tonight and it will be colder," Schorn said.

The forecast calls for rain off and on Tuesday with cooler temperatures. The National Weather Service is calling for warmer weather and clearing skies by the end of the week.

Although the dawn was hidden by fog in most of the eastern Panhandle, patches of the cold gray mist began burning off by mid-morning.

By 10 a.m. Interstate 40 was clear.

"We were in a fog earlier," said Debbie Anthony in Groom. "It was real foggy when I took the kids to school this morning, but the sun is shining now."

Stella Lee at McLean reported that southern Gray County was clear by 8 a.m.

"We had fog," said Belinda Daniels in Shamrock. "It wasn't as bad as last week. It's cleared off now, but it's still cloudy."

Mary Hart reported fog at mid-morning in White Deer.

"It's pretty foggy," she said. "No rain, just fog."

Monica Griffith said the fog was beginning to lift by 10 a.m. in Skellytown.

"At least you can see across the street now," she said. "It's lifting some."

"It seems to be foggy downtown," said Sharmayne Stribling in Miami.

Terry South in Canadian reported cloudy skies over Canadian.

"It was foggy earlier," she said.

By late morning, the sun was peeking at Pampa as the fog dissipated and the cloud cover began to break up.

Jury gives deliberations another try

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jury in the Reginald Denny beating trial resumed deliberations today in a surprise turnabout after a weekend announcement of partial verdicts and deadlocks on some counts against the two defendants.

Shortly before a planned 10 a.m. reading of the partial verdicts, Superior Court Judge John Ouderkirk told defense and prosecution attorneys that he had approved the jurors' request to resume talks until 11 a.m.

A coalition of protesters including groups called Free the LA4, Radical Women and the Young Communists League demonstrated outside the courthouse today, chanting "No justice in the courtroom, no peace in the streets."

On the streets, police had beefed up patrols as a precaution but officials said they expected no trouble.

After 2 1/2 days of deliberations, the jurors said Saturday they had partial verdicts but were deadlocked on some of the most serious charges against Damian Williams, 20, and Henry Watson, 29.

Those counts included charges of attempted murder against Williams, which carries a life prison term. Jurors also deadlocked on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon against Watson for an attack on truck driver Larry Tarvin.

Today's police alert was modest compared with the one in place in April, as the federal trial of four white policemen accused of violating black motorist Rodney King's civil rights neared its end. Then, officers went to maximum deployment and the National Guard was on standby.

Haitians feel bullied by warships off coast

By ED McCULLOUGH
Associated Press Writer

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — With a U.S. warship floating uncomfortably close on the horizon, some Haitians said they felt indignant and bullied, but believe only foreign intervention can restore democracy and end army terror.

Canada and Belgium, fearing turmoil, urged their citizens to leave the country as soon as possible. Foreigners and Haitians crowded the airport Sunday, and thousands of city residents jammed buses headed to the countryside, scared of more army violence.

U.S. Marines and a helicopter squadron were headed to the U.S. naval station in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. The base could be the staging area for an evacuation of Americans here, if necessary.

A general strike was called by rightist supporters of army commander Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras for today. Such efforts succeeded in the past with help from the military and pro-army gangs shooting in the air and at vendors.

Exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide recommended that his government's ministries stay closed to mark last week's assassination of Justice Minister Guy Malary and two aides. Aristide's prime minister, Robert Malval, implicated "the highest law enforcement authorities" in the attack.

A U.N. oil embargo enforced by six U.S. and three Canadian navy ships was to take effect at midnight tonight. It aims to force Cedras, who helped overthrow Aristide in 1991, to adhere to a plan calling for the popular president's return Oct. 30.

The punishing embargo had been suspended in July after Cedras signed the peace plan in New York. It was reimposed last week when he failed to step down — violating a key step in the plan. The sanctions also followed a rash of violence, including Malary's killing and an army-supported rally that blocked the deployment of U.S. and Canadian soldiers at the port.

They were to be part of a 1,600-man U.N. military mission to aid the pro-Aristide transition Cabinet, whose prime minister has been working out his home because pro-army thugs have occupied government offices.

The Clinton administration so far has ruled out a U.S. invasion of Haiti, but some Haitians think it's possible.

"Sooner or later the United States will have to invade. It's a tragedy," said Olivier Nadal, the executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

A dozen other Haitians interviewed along a beachfront said they didn't want foreign intervention. But they also said life was so bad for them under military rule that they would support intervention if that resolved the crisis.

Wariness over a possible U.S. invasion is due to bitter memories of the humiliating 1915-34 U.S. Marine occupation of Haiti. And the army clearly hopes to exploit that sentiment to justify its attempt to hang on to power.

During the occupation, the Marines killed thousands of insurgents, including resistance leader Charlemagne Peralte, now considered a national martyr. The Marines didn't hide their racism and contempt for black Haitians and their French-speaking elite, something people here haven't forgotten.

Gray County explores Gaines County drilling

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

A windfall for school districts in Gray County may come to pass with a little cooperation from Nature.

On Friday, Gray County commissioners heard from landman O.J. Hubbard Jr., representing Perm-O-Penn, about the possibility of leasing 4,735 acres of the Gaines County school land for oil and gas exploration.

Commissioners took no action on the proposed lease agreement but are expected to reconsider it on Oct. 29.

Perm-O-Penn is offering $5 per acre or about $23,675 for the right to do seismic exploration. Their right to explore would last for one year. Should commissioners sign the lease agreement, the $23,675 would be paid to Gray County then disbursed to all school districts in Gray County based on the individual district's average daily attendance, Judge Carl Kennedy said.

Kennedy anticipates that commissioners will proceed with the contract with Perm-O-Penn.

"Our attitude is, if it's a legitimate sounding proposition, it behooves us to do something for the schools," Kennedy said.

Should Perm-O-Penn select a site for drilling, the company has a three year period to drill for oil or gas. If production is found, the land is tied up indefinitely.

Kennedy said that there is no liability to Gray County in signing a lease agreement with Perm-O-Penn. Gray County is not responsible for any expenses of exploring, drilling or operating wells. In the event a well produces, the county will administer the contract for the benefit of all school districts in Gray County.

Kennedy said that commissioners were told that they own 100 percent of mineral rights under certain portions of the land under consideration by Perm-O-Penn and 50 percent of mineral rights under other portions. The proposed contract provides that Gray County schools receive 1/6 of gross receipts of production under the portion where Gray County has 100 percent mineral rights and 50 percent of 1/6 of gross receipts of production where Gray County owns a 50 percent interest.

The Gaines County school land, Kennedy explained, is that land set aside by the legislature for the support of Gray County public schools. Through the years, Kennedy said, Gray County has sold off its surface ownership and some of its mineral rights in Gaines County.

Why Gray County has rights to land in Gaines County, the judge said he didn't know, but he pointed out that Rockwall has school lands in south Gray County.

Teen killed in stunt modeled on movie

POLK, Pa. (AP) — A teenager lying on the center line of a highway, apparently imitating a scene from the movie The Program, was struck by a pickup truck and killed. Another teen was injured.

Michael Shingledecker, 18, of Stoneboro died in the accident early Saturday.

Dean Bartlett, 17, of Franklin was in serious condition this morning at Presbyterian University Hospital in Pittsburgh.

Police said witnesses reported that the teens were following through on a dare when they lay down on two-lane state Route 62 in Polk.

Borough Fire Chief Brad Smith said officials were told that the teens were acting out a scene in the film The Program.

In the film, college football players, to show they can stand up to pressure, lie in the middle of a highway as autos whiz by.

Officials at Franklin High School, where Bartlett is a student and Shingledecker graduated this spring, said neither was on the football team.

"I look at it as being a part of a scene, a movie," said school principal Ronald Parnick. "You don't expect it to happen in real life."

Airline offers chance for holiday reunions

Southwest Airlines will reunite hundreds of needy senior citizens with family and friends this holiday season by awarding them complimentary airline tickets.

Applications are available to area senior citizens age 65 or older who cannot afford to travel home.

The applications may be obtained by calling the Area Agency on Aging of the Panhandle in Amarillo at its toll-free number of 1-800-642-6008.

For an elderly person to be eligible to receive a free airline ticket, he must return his completed application to the Area Agency on Aging by Nov. 10.

Salvation Army to have revival

Major and Mrs. Robert J. Tritton will be the special guests for the annual meeting of The Salvation Army in Pampa, with Major Tritton conducting a revival service beginning at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Major and Mrs. Tritton were commanding officers of the Pampa Salvation Army Corps from 1965 to 1967. They were instrumental in raising funds for the present building at 701 S. Cuyler.

The Trittons come from families with a long Salvation Army heritage. They have served as Salvation Army officers for 29 years.

They are now the divisional commander and director of women's organizations of the Arkansas-Oklahoma Division.

They have served on the staff at Southern Territorial Headquarters in Atlanta, Ga. Major Tritton was community relations and development secretary, and Mrs. Tritton was assistant territorial Home League secretary.

In addition, the Trittons have served in the Western Territory, and Major Tritton was appointed to the International College for Officers in London, England.

Married 32 years, "Jake" and Patsy have two grown children, Connie and Rob, who both live in Florida. They also have a granddaughter and a grandson.

The public is invited to attend the special revival services Tuesday at The Salvation Army building.

Lotto jackpot rises to $25 million

By The Associated Press

No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. Therefore, the jackpot for Wednesday's drawing will rise to $25 million.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 4, 6, 17, 30, 38 and 45. The jackpot was $17 million.

There were 208 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,572. There were 11,201 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $106. And there were 212,279 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Accidents

The Pampa Police Department reported the following accidents in the 72-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

FRIDAY, Oct. 15

12:26 p.m. — A northbound 1978 Chevrolet Bonanza driven by Timothy Keith Miller, 21, 1301 Garland, and a northbound 1978 Oldsmobile Cutlass driven by Jason Alton Carlson, 22, 1237 Christy, collided in the 1100 block of North Duncan. The accident occurred after Carlson reportedly lost control of his vehicle during a drag-race between him and Miller; Carlson's car crossed lanes and struck the front of Miller's car, according to police reports. A passenger in Miller's vehicle, David Irvin, 22, Kingsmill Camp, suffered possible injuries and was treated at Coronado Hospital and released. Citations were issued to Jason Carlson for drag-racing and not having a driver's license on his person, and to Timothy Miller for drag-racing. Damage to Miller's vehicle was heavy.

4:21 p.m. — A 1971 Ford Maverick driven by Anthony Villarreal, 16, 110 N. Faulkner, reportedly swerved to the right in the 400 block of North Aft St. to avoid hitting children. The vehicle skidded in a gravel roadway and struck the gas service meter to a home at 413 N. Russell. The vehicle then struck a tree at 415 N.

Russell before stopping in the roadway. Damage to the tree was estimated at $20; damage to the gas service meter for Beatrice Gilliam, 413 N. Russell, was estimated at $150; and damage to a gas service meter owned by Energas was estimated at $100. There was no injury reported from the accident; citations were issued to Villarreal for unsafe change in direction of travel and not wearing a seatbelt.

SATURDAY, Oct. 16

2:53 p.m. — A 1993 Oldsmobile driven by Jane Hoover Adams, 50, 2113 Duncan, collided with a 1981 Chevrolet Cavalier driven by Randy Lynn Dyson, 31, 2401 Navajo, in the 2100 block of North Duncan. Adams was cited for backing without safety. A possible injury to Adams was reported; he declined to be taken by ambulance to Coronado Hospital.

SUNDAY, Oct. 17

Approximately noon — A legally parked 1986 Buick owned by Eugene Neill Laycock Jr., 1121 Juniper, was struck by an unknown vehicle in the 100 block of West 29th Avenue. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $500 or more. No injury was reported from the hit-and-run accident, and no citation was filed in reference to the accident.

Report: Computer tech was informant in Treasury probe

FORT WORTH (AP) — A longtime state Treasury employee went to the Travis County district attorney's office with the information that led to the indictment of U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, according to a copyright story.

Wesley McGehee, a computer technician at the state agency since 1980, told investigators that he believed there was a deliberate effort to erase files from state computers when Mrs. Hutchison was treasurer, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday.

"I felt it was, above all else, the right thing to do, almost like a moral obligation," McGehee told the Star-Telegram. "I was concerned with the tampering of archival tapes because it's contrary to data processing operating procedures."

The Star-Telegram, citing unnamed sources, said McGehee contacted the district attorney's office because he was upset that computer tapes, which were supposed to contain permanent Treasury records, allegedly had been changed in April and May 1992, then placed in agency archives.

Hutchison's attorney, Dick DeGuerin, criticized McGehee's comments.

"It's curious that he's talking to reporters when he won't talk to lawyers in the case," said DeGuerin, who said McGehee has declined to meet with him.

"I do not want to try this case in the newspaper, but what I'm finding out is that is what the district attorney's office is doing," DeGuerin said.

McGehee came forward with the information June 9 after consulting with an attorney to seek "whistle-blower-type protection," the newspaper said.

One day later, and five days after Hutchison was elected to the U.S. Senate, a Travis County grand jury issued subpoenas for current and former Treasury employees.

Hutchison, a Republican, is charged with using state employees and equipment for personal and political purposes, and that she sought to cover up the illegal use of the Treasury after Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle began an investigation.

Hutchison repeatedly has denied any wrongdoing, saying the investigation by Earle, a Democrat, is politically motivated, and wants to damage her 1994 re-election bid. Earle denies the charge.

McGehee said he waited until after the election before approaching Earle because he did not want his comments to become embroiled in election politics.

"All I'm interested in is the truth, not politics, Democrat or Republican," he said. "I came forward after the Senate election because I wanted to remove this from the political arena."

The Star-Telegram also reported that two other computer technicians kept records of information during Hutchison's tenure.

The sources say records suggest about six members of Hutchison's executive staff performed personal and political work for her on state time in the first 16 months after she took office in January 1991, the sources said.

Several operators told one source that Treasury officials ordered them to load master backup tapes onto the department's main computer, then send the information to floppy disks, from which evidence of improper activity was deleted.

The doctored tapes then were refiled in the permanent archive, the operators said.

Treasury officials were unaware that several operators, worried about criminal liability, made copies of the original data, sources said.

Dave Beckwith, Hutchison's spokesman, said he has "no idea" why the computer operators thought they needed backup tapes for protection.

"All ongoing political operations for Kay Bailey Hutchison were done elsewhere," he said. "It was all done the way other state officials do it."

One operator stored copies of the tapes in a closet in his home, and moved them to a remote Treasury facility used mainly by employees of the information systems division, a source said.

The source said another operator kept a master copy of all the information. Yet another kept copies of the original tapes.

"So what you get is a before, after and in-between picture of what the staff was doing," one source said.

McGehee and five computer department colleagues were subpoenaed during the summer by the grand jury investigating Hutchison.

The initial investigation focused only on David Criss, the Treasury's director of policy and planning.

Criss acknowledged in April 1992 that he used a Treasury computer to keep records of Hutchison's fund-raising activities.

Hutchison denied involvement in the situation and said it was an isolated incident. Criss resigned a few months after giving Hutchison a handwritten apology, which she made public.

Big Brothers/ Big Sisters

A United Way
Member Agency

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one in a series of profiles on the agencies and services funded by Pampa United Way assistance. The information is provided by the United Way from the 16 agencies receiving funding from the organization.

David is 12 years old. He likes to play basketball, ride his bike and sing. He is interested in learning how to build things from wood and how to play football.

His mom would like for him to do these things, too, but she isn't much help. Mom works every day except Sunday. She has two other children and not enough time to go around.

David would like to have a Big Brother to spend time with him. A Big Brother might be able to show him how to use a hammer and saw, how to catch a football, and maybe how to build a campfire. Maybe a Big Brother would simply be able to listen and understand.

David is on a waiting list. There are never enough Big Brothers to go around.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Pampa matches adult volunteers with children ages 6 to 13. A child may continue in a match until he or she is 16.

Volunteers come in many forms. They are married, single, with or without children, or even matched as a couple. Sometimes fathers and son or mothers and daughters will team up as a match for a younger child.

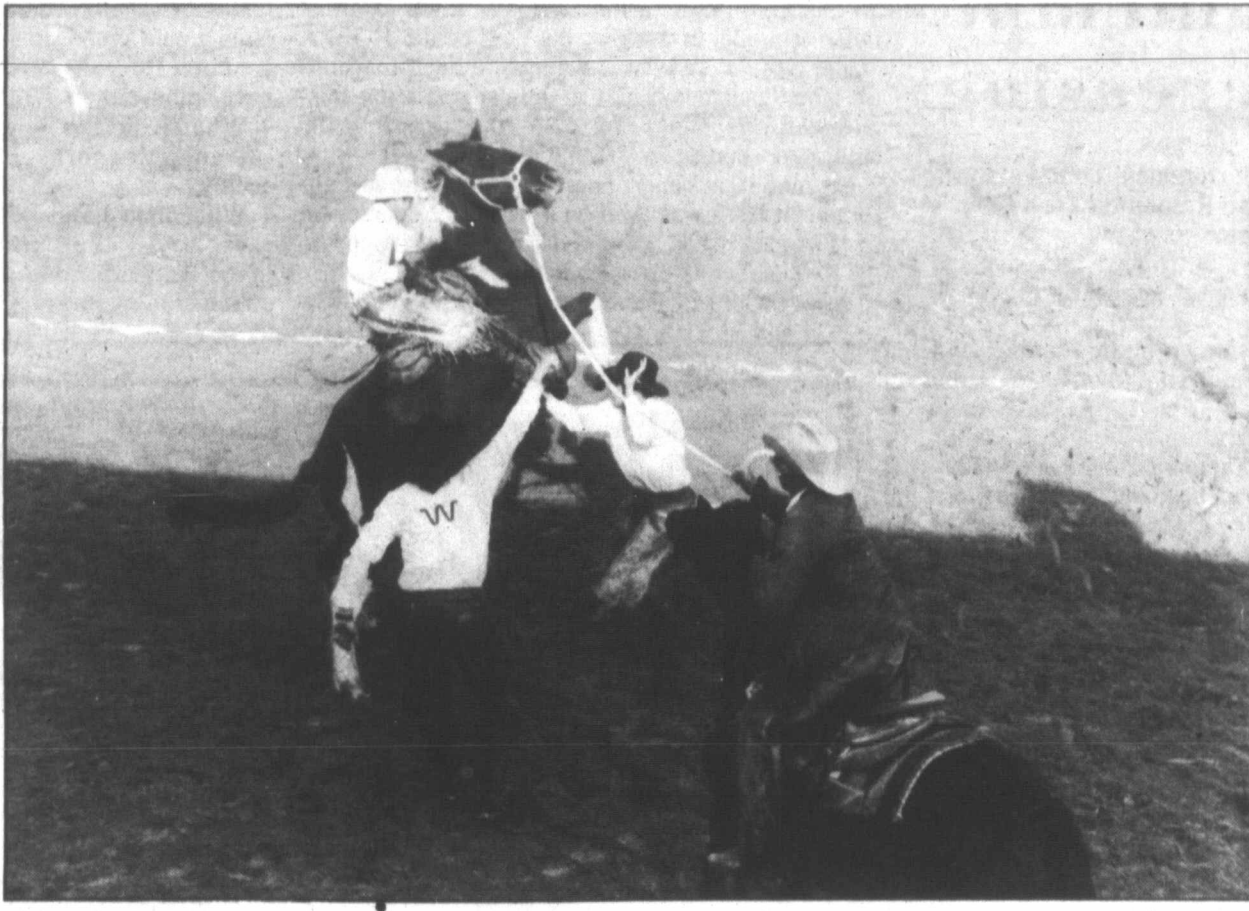

Volunteers must be 19 years old and have some sort of financial support. A driver's license and liability insurance are also basic requirements. High school students interested in volunteering as "Bigs" are also being considered in a new program.

Spending time with a child is one of the greatest gifts you can give both to the child and to yourself. If you are interested in becoming a Big Brother or Big Sister, come by the office in the Pampa Community Building or call 665-1211.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters is a United Way agency.

Volunteers are currently out seeking contributions for the 1993 Pampa United Way fund-raising campaign. Those not being contacted may call the United Way office at 669-1001 for information on how to make contributions.

Ranch rodeo

Jason Abraham of Pampa wound up with top hand honors at the Canadian Ranch Rodeo. "I heard they couldn't even get a bareback rig on that horse," Abraham said quietly as the chutes were loaded for the Wild Horse Race Sunday at the Canadian rodeo arena. Despite his trepidation, Abraham rode his mount, above, as the Abraham Ranch team of Frankie McWhorter, Eddie Abraham and Roger Davenport held the horse for him to saddle. The rodeo wound up the two-day Canadian Fall Festival as tour buses flowed into the community for band concerts, a parade, open houses, and foliage tour to Lake Marvin. (Pampa News photo)

FDA says Houston firm's jaw implant is defective

AUSTIN (AP) — After Arlene Jackson broke her jaw in an automobile accident nine years ago, Austin surgeons put in an implant to replace a disk of broken bone.

Five operations later, Ms. Jackson has since learned that the Teflon-coated, aluminum-fiber implant is prone to failure.

In addition, the implant has been implicated in a controversial chronic deterioration of health similar to that experienced by some women who received the silicone-gel breast implant.

The breast implant was banned by the government in 1992 for all but experimental use.

"They told me the (jaw) implant was safe and now I have irreparable structural damage to my body," Jackson, 33, said. "I can't kiss my husband without pain. I can't talk without pain. It's hard to eat."

Jackson, a former X-ray technician who receives Social Security disability income, will make her second trip to Baylor College of Medicine in Houston this week in search of relief.

She has flown to the Mayo Clinic in Minnesota for help three times. More than $100,000 has been spent on her problems since the implant was removed from her jaw in 1988 after it became dislocated and was severing nerves around it.

Recently, she filed a malpractice complaint with the Texas Board of Medical Examiners against Dr. William Buchanan, one of her two Austin oral surgeons. He did not return calls for comment.

Dr. Steve Milam of the University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio said hundreds of oral surgeons nationwide used the near 26,000 jaw joint implants sold by Vitex Inc.

Vitex, a small Houston company, went bankrupt after being forced by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to issue a safety alert in 1990. A year later, the FDA seized Vitex's products.

"The blame really should rest with the company, the developer of the material, perhaps the government agencies whose task it is to police introduction of materials into

Passports seized from travelers to Cuba

HOUSTON (AP) — Customs agents at Houston Intercontinental Airport seized passports of 18 U.S. citizens who defied a ban against travel to Cuba.

"I went there to challenge the law," said 78-year-old Milton Wolff of California after customs agents questioned him Sunday. "Don't we have the right as American citizens to travel where we want?"

"They (customs) said the government would hold our passports until it decides whether to prosecute us," said Pam Monterano, a mother of six from Alabama.

About 70 more travelers, part of a 180-member group called Freedom to Travel Campaign, were expected to return from Cancun, Mexico, and land at Intercontinental today.

Customs spokeswoman Judy Turner said 18 passports were confiscated as evidence because they were stamped "travel accomplished to Cuba." Another five travelers said they had visited Cuba

Two injured in Sunday train collision

DUMAS (AP) — Two trains collided head-on in fog and drizzle early Sunday leaving two men injured, and 19 cars derailed.

The two Burlington Northern trains, each with more than 100 cars, collided about 9:45 a.m. about 55 miles north of Amarillo near Dumas, according to a spokeswoman for the Department of Public Safety.

One of the trains had entered the side rail to allow passage of the other train. According to a DPS report, there was insufficient time to throw the switch back after the first train entered the side rail, causing the second train to enter on the same rail.

The first train had four engines and 109 empty coal cars, and the second had four engines and 117 loaded coal cars.

The collision derailed six engines and 13 cars, and three of the engines caught fire after the collision, the spokeswoman said.

David Gearhart of Swink, Colo., 58, suffered neck injuries and was taken to the hospital by helicopter, the spokeswoman said.

He was listed in serious condition, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

Stewart H. Trout of La Junta, Colo., was treated and released at Dumas Memorial Hospital Sunday.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Taxpayer contempt still ever increasing

If there's any difference between a government contract and a license to steal, you'd never know it from Resolution Trust Corp.'s oversight of a savings and loan cleanup project.

This is a deal in which a $20 million theft from the taxpayers is referred to euphemistically in an inspector general's report as "unnecessary cost."

And the perpetrator — far from being thrown in the slammer and ordered to give back the money — is cautioned not to make the same "mistake" again.

No wonder the taxpayers are getting ugly. It's not bad enough that temporary workers hired by Price Waterhouse under an RTC contract to audit a failed savings and loan were paid $35 an hour to make photocopies.

Those temps actually spent much of their time playing poker, napping, taking two-hour lunches, reading newspapers — and bragging about it.

Meanwhile, the government was being charged 67 cents for a photocopy — four to six times prevailing market rates — by a contractor who was "ignoring contracting policies, procedures, internal controls and overall costs."

Add the vandalizing of break room and restroom facilities by those same non-working temporaries and their theft of government equipment to the million of dollars in cost overruns, and what do you get?

You get about $20 million in what the RTC's inspector general calls "unnecessary cost to the taxpayers."

You get a 37-page report in which the inspector general concludes that "in the future, if RTC's actions are not tempered with prudent planning ... and serious attention to cost containment and accountability, RTC risks repeating the mistakes it made."

And you get a perfect illustration of why government officials are held in increasing contempt by the taxpayers.

The ongoing war against SDI

I hope that someday some nice bright person will take me in hand and explain to me, using John-hit-the-baseball language, why, just why, the reflexes of the liberal community in America are so energized to discredit the whole idea of intercepting missiles aimed against the United States.

The most recent chapter in the kill-SDI campaign sprang from a story in The New York Times (Aug. 18). The reporter, Tim Weiner, used as a lead sentence, "Officials in the 'Star Wars' project rigged a crucial 1984 test and faked other data in a program of deception that misled Congress as well as the intended target, the Soviet Union, four former Reagan administration officials said."

What we are talking about is an event on June 10, 1984, 15 months after President Reagan promulgated the SDI program.

The army was running the fourth of a series of tests. It would be the showdown on the dramatic question, Can a bullet hit a bullet? Because that is the axiomatic geometry of missile defense, that a defense missile can intercept an incoming missile and destroy it before it destroys Chicago.

Pause for a brief introduction to special terms. The simulated aggressive missile is called an HOE (Homing Overlay Experiment). A "transponder" is an electronic unit in the HOE designed to assist radar networks in tracking the path of the HOE. A "radar beacon" is what it suggests, a radar transmitter. The "interceptor" is the simulated defense missile whose mandate is to rise 100 miles into the atmosphere and destroy the HOE.

On June 10 at Vandenberg Air Force Base in California, an HOE was fired on a westward course. An interceptor missile was fired from Meck Island in the Kwajalein missile range in the Pacific.

What happened was a direct hit. The HOE was destroyed. And the cause of SDI was enormously lifted by the event, and the Soviet Union greatly put off by it.

Now the charge published by The New York Times is that the function of the radio beacon was to guide the interceptor to the HOE, permitting it to home in for the kill like a snake stalking a warm-blooded rodent. The Times' revelation would have us all believe that the test was, actually, a phony; the motives of the military to gouge more money from Congress by persuading it of a potential for anti-missile missile technology that in fact was not established.

And then there was a second charge, which introduces another special term, "special access programs." (It really would be a kindness if the bureaucrats would come up with terms that don't misuse common English words. Special access programs have nothing to do with "special access programs.")

What it means is a disinformation program designed to confuse, misdirect or disorient the enemy.

What then happened was that Les Aspin, the secretary of defense, authorized a thorough investigation of the record. A summary of his conclusions was given on Sept. 9 at a press conference, widely unreported.

The principal finding is straightforward. On the matter of the radar beacon: "There was a radar beacon aboard the target vehicle. We also found that there was no receiver on board the interceptor for [meaning: designed to interact with] this radar. The beacon had been placed to assist in range and safety tracking of the target from the ground. The beacon was of a type not capable of [giving] final guidance [to] an interceptor. ... Our conclusion, then, was that the experiment was not rigged and, in fact, could not be rigged by the presence of the radar beacon."

On the matter of attempting to deceive Congress, Aspin advised the press that every anomaly pertaining to the June shoot was described in unclassified reports fully available to Congress, so that any failure by the SDI hounds to pick up irregularities in the shoot was not the fault of the Defense Department.

On the matter of the special access programs, Aspin spoke more cautiously. Yes, he said, it is true that disinformation is a routine weapon, widely used during the Cold War. And yes, the U.S. government did engage in disinformation with respect to anti-missile missile doings, in what respect the SecDef quite naturally did not advise us. Perhaps we let a Soviet spy get one of our transponders.

But remember this, said Aspin: Whereas it used to be that special access programs were not revealed to Congress, that changed in 1988 — and the law now is that Congress must be let in on disinformation enterprises. Aspin subtly reminded his audience that he was a member of the opposition in 1988, and served as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

So that we have from the Democratic secretary of defense that the Republican secretary of defense did not fake the critical June shot.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, Oct., 18, the 291st day of 1993. There are 74 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Oct. 18, 1767, the boundary between Maryland and Pennsylvania, the Mason-Dixon line, was agreed upon.

On this date:
In 1685, King Louis XIV of France revoked the Edict of Nantes, which had established the legal toleration of France's Protestant population, the Huguenots.

In 1867, the United States took formal possession of Alaska from Russia.

In 1892, the first long-distance telephone line between Chicago and New York was formally opened as Chicago Mayor Hempstead Washburne greeted New York Mayor Hugh J. Grant.

In 1898, the American flag was raised in Puerto Rico shortly before Spain formally relinquished control of the island to the United States.

In 1931, inventor Thomas Alva Edison died in West Orange, N.J., at age 84.

War no longer makes sense

War, as a means of resolving inter-nation differences, has gone out of style.

Big wars have become too horrendous to contemplate.

Small wars have become too debilitating to tolerate.

So war has gone out of style.

Our Pentagon, that five-sided monument to Mars, has learned this lesson. You can tell by the hardware included in military budget requests.

But our White House has not yet disentangled itself from inherited obligations to the United Nations.

In Korea, we tried fighting a pulled-punches war where the announced objective was an uninspiring, unrewarding stalemate on the 50-yard line.

Yet for all our blood and all our gold, we were able to leave that nation with nothing better than a military dictatorship.

We sent our best sons and less than our best weapons to Vietnam, believing in the domino theory of three presidents that unless we defeated communist North Vietnam, all southeast Asia would fall.

We didn't, and it didn't. Indeed, today, Vietnam is a thriving market economy more capitalist than communist, where the main menace to society is that rickshaws have been replaced by too many cars in the too narrow streets.

Now, we come to the intramural wars in Bosnia and Somalia. United States troops are as popular as any policeman who dares to inject himself into a domestic donnybrook.

We went to Bosnia to try to keep Muslims, Croats and Serbs from killing one another; now Muslims are killing Muslims.

In Somalia, Americans are being killed and Somalians are celebrating the killings.

Our president's so-far response is to send more Americans into that African country's tragic intra-tribal strife.

Even if the United States had the resources to play fireman and policeman for the planet, such intervention would beget more hostility than appreciation.

And we do not have the resources! When we sentence today's sons and daughters to these so-called "peacekeeping" missions, we are also sentencing their sons and daughters to yet another lifetime of debilitating debt.

War, from any point of view — social, cultural, political, humanitarian or economic — no longer makes sense.

Should any other nation menace ours, that is something else again. But there is no such threat anywhere on the horizon.

Our presidents pledge under oath to preserve, protect and defend us against all enemies — foreign and domestic.

And any day's newspaper makes clear that today's enemies are already within our gates — criminals, home-grown and other.

And until we can properly discipline our own children and make safe our own streets, trying to discipline anybody else anywhere else is abject hypocrisy.

Liberals can still do just one trick

Conservatives, watching their liberal opponents prepare to shove universal health care down the nation's throat, may well wonder whether we aren't seeing some sort of major liberal comeback.

Is the dreaded "L word," which damaged Dukakis so badly when it was fastened on him in the campaign of 1988, and which Bill Clinton resisted so stoutly in 1992, losing its terror, or even recapturing some of its ancient charm?

I think we can be pretty sure that "liberal" is going to continue to be an adjective that most politicians will want to avoid. Liberalism has lost some very big battles recently, and its probable coming victory on the health care issue is not a sign of a major change.

Let's not forget that it was the conservatives who kept America pointed toward victory in the Cold War, and Ronald Reagan who exerted the pressures that finally brought about the collapse of the Soviet Union. It is true that in the early days of the Cold War some liberal leaders (Hubert Humphrey, for one) were staunchly anti-Soviet. But the great majority of liberal leaders, especially after the crazies took over the Democratic Convention of 1972, seemed reluctant to admit there was a war on, and did precious little to help win it.

Second, don't underrate the tremendous importance of the worldwide triumph, in recent years, of free-enterprise principles over the various forms of socialism — including the ones that liberals peddled in this country under such disguises as "industrial policy." Modern American liberalism never really approved of free enterprise, but even the Michael Kinsleys are reluctantly joining the choir now.

These two great struggles — one in the foreign arena, and one in the field of domestic policy — have been the central battles in American politics during the past half-century, and the conservatives won both of them.

There is, however, one area in which the liberals have always been able to achieve a certain amount of success. Free enterprise, in its 19th-century form, tended to be a pretty Darwinian affair: a case of sink or swim. Its critics, therefore, included not only Marx but, from a very different direction, the Roman Catholic Church. In 1891, Pope Leo XII, in his encyclical Rerum Novarum, cautioned employers that they had Christian as well as economic obligations to their employees.

Similarly, starting with the child labor laws, there has been a long tradition in this country that sought to modulate the sometimes harsh consequences of untrammelled market economics. Anti-trust laws, the Wagner Labor Relations Act, the Social Security Act, the Securities Exchange Act, the minimum wage laws, unemployment compensation and more recently Lyndon Johnson's whole ill-conceived "war on poverty" are all examples of liberal measures that purported to protect us against the "excesses" of free enterprise.

I don't for a minute suggest that all of these measures have been wise. Some undoubtedly were; others, it is now plain, were not. But by and large the American people have been willing to go along with them. If the measures turned out, in practice, to be undesirable, or to do more harm than good, the voters have been quite ready to turn against them — as they have manifestly turned against the mess the liberals have made of welfare.

But that is the tradition in which Mr. Clinton's proposal for universal health care belongs. Like the earlier proposals, it is superficially appealing, and the general idea has broad popular support. Like them, too, implementation of the plan will involve government regulation of new areas of our national life. In a few years, Americans will probably wish they had never heard of it.

But it doesn't signal any major comeback for liberals. That old dog is just performing, again, the one trick he knows best.

Exhibition presents artists driven to create

By JOAN BRUNSKILL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Swiss psychotic Adolf Wolfli centers his drawing of a masked angel in a framed mosaic of mysterious forms in soft gemstone colors. The American-Swiss Rosemarie Koczy conjures up wraith figures drifting through a feathery blizzard of black-ink scratches on white paper.

Bill Traylor, a self-taught American artist, depicts a brown horse with a simple, lively force, overlapping with folk art, that a curator calls elegantly stylized.

"Driven to Create," the title of an exhibition that brings together the work of such artists as these, begins to describe their spirit. The show's subtitle further defines them: "The Anthony Petullo Collection of Self-Taught and Outsider Art."

The exhibition has opened at the Museum of American Folk

Art at the start of a national tour, and it's a far cry from the antique decoy ducks and quilts that often grace the museum's galleries.

It's a show of 20th-century art, much of it by European artists and new to American museum-goers. It offers a startling variety of unconventional expressiveness, originality and fantasy.

The artists exhibited fall somewhere between the definitions of self-taught — artists who are individualistic but fully interactive with society, and outsider — artists frequently confined to mental institutions or absorbed in their own mental worlds.

"This collection brings together a lot of ideas about untrained 20th-century art that we're just beginning to grapple with, terms like naive, outsider, self-taught," said Russell Bowman, director of the Milwaukee Art Museum, who organized the exhibition.

But this is a show that will inspire as much delight and wonder as scholarly debate.

At a preview, the collector, Anthony Petullo, said simply: "I live with these in my house — these are my friends."

These are works like "Through the Trees," 1940, one of the first he bought. It's a simple village scene by the self-taught English painter Alfred Wallis, in oil and pencil on board. Wallis started painting at the age of 67, after the death of his wife, explaining that he painted for company.

But Petullo has also collected work by August Walla, an outsider artist. The exhibition includes a vivid canvas by Walla, "Gerich," 1990, packed with bold images and urgent words.

Walla is a resident of the Artists' House at the Klosterneuburg Hospital near Vienna, where psychiatric patients are encouraged to paint and lead a creative life in a now famous artistic community.

The term outsider was first used by English art historian Roger Cardinal, as an equivalent to "art brut" (raw art), coined by French painter Jean Dubuffet.

Dubuffet and the Surrealists recognized outsider artists, insane by some standards, as people in touch with their real selves, Bowman pointed out.

He put this in the context of artists' borrowing through history — "Delacroix from the Greeks, Picasso and Matisse from Africans, Kandinsky from folk art, Klee from outsiders."

Petullo's collection, much of it acquired in the last four years, "endeavors to compare self-taught and outsider expression here and in Europe," said Bowman. Works on show include a variety of the artists Cardinal calls "extravagant visionaries," who don't fit the categories neatly.

There's the extraordinary American Henry Darger, who wrote and illustrated a 15,145-page epic novel, "In the Realms of the Unreal." He was never institutionalized, Bowman pointed out, "but he certainly created his own world."

Several densely patterned works of Shafique Uddin, born in Bangladesh, are in the exhibition, as are the dramatic scenes with broad areas of color painted by Perifimou, from Cyprus, who worked as a guard at London's Tate Gallery.

Both have some training, said Bowman. He called them "fabulous artists, with inventive and evocative work, very aware people, in this rather world between outsider and trained."

In the end, although he'd like to think the exhibition took visitors beyond categories, Bowman said, "I hope we don't lose labeling ... . Categorization is a framework that allows you to ask questions."

Pampa PEO goes green

Members of Pampa's Chapter CS, Philanthropic Educational Organization (PEO), are taking orders through Monday, Oct. 25, for live greenery arrangements for the Christmas holidays.

Proceeds from the sales go towards the organization's programs promoting education for women, either to sponsor local projects or to send to the state PEO for projects.

Local PEO members will be pre-selling the live greenery for arrangements in wreaths, garlands, kits, centerpieces and holly. The greenery will be arriving in early December.

The PEO chapters currently have five major projects to aid the education of women, including Cotley Junior College in Nevada, Mo., which is owned by PEO.

Other projects include continuing education programs for women needing degrees to enter the work force; an International Peace Scholarship for foreign students studying in the United States and then returning to their native countries; the PEO Scholar Award for college students with two or more years of college education; and an Educational Loan Fund to provide loans for women students in college.

The greenery sales can be arranged by contacting any local PEO member.

For information on the sales or PEO, call Chapter CS President Betty Hallerberg at 665-6063.

Preserving the past in architectural sculptures

Last spring when the Canadian school board voted to demolish a 72-year-old school building, Dr. Malouf Abraham Jr. approached them with the idea of preserving it as a part of the city's history.

"They had talked about it for several years," Dr. Abraham said, "and I had thought about it almost as long."

After some negotiations, the board of trustees agreed to leave the front entrance and the northwest corner of the B.M. Baker School standing. Dr. Abraham agreed to design and finance the project.

"If the townspeople aren't thrilled with the finished project, then I will pay to have it bulldozed and hauled off!" Dr. Abraham wrote to the board.

The school, built in 1921, was named (as were many schools in the state) for B.M. Baker, a Canadian native who went on to become the first Superintendent of Public Schools for the State of Texas.

"We must preserve our landmarks or we will lose out sense of place," Dr. Abraham said. "Our old buildings give Canadian a special spirit. They also symbolize the dedication of our ancestors who worked so hard to build this town. When we cherish the efforts of our ancestors, we receive their blessings."

Not only did Dr. Abraham attend school there, but his father did, too. Indeed, his father was a charter student. In 1921, Malouf "Oofie" Abraham started fourth grade in the then new building. He remembered it as being a huge building that first year. One of the senior Abraham's teachers was Annie Daniels, B.M. Baker's daughter.

But there was more at stake than just preserving history. Dr. Abraham, who in the 1970s had renovated an early day Canadian church into his home called

Although his vision of historic architecture as contemporary sculpture was initially met with skepticism, Dr. Malouf Abraham's design and landscaping of an early day Canadian school has gained growing appreciation and approval. (Pampa News photo)

"The Citadel," saw the visual appeal the two pieces of building could have.

"Really, these two pieces are stronger than if the whole building was there," Abraham said.

"Consider the Acropolis in Athens, the Coliseum in Rome and Baalbek in Lebanon," he wrote in his original request to the school board last spring. "These are all very interesting fragments of structures long since demolished. People travel from all over the world to see these architectural fragments, and they establish a sense of identity and character to these countries.

"Of course, our fragments are not on such a large scale but the ideas I have in mind would have a great visual impact on our town."

Although Dr. Abraham assumed full financial responsibility for the program as well as the landscaping and design, family and friends contributed to The Baker School Preservation Project.

Dr. Rush A. Snyder Jr. of Amarillo, who attended Baker School, contacted other alumni for support.

Over the summer, the school building was demolished except for the entry way and one corner. Low brick walls were put around the two sections and a landscaping program began under Dr. Abraham's direction.

"It didn't take long for them to demolish the old building," Dr. Abraham said. "They brought in their big machines and in one day it was gone."

The brick around the facades is different from the brick in them.

"I wanted the planters to be frames, like frames on pictures, not a part of the sculpture," the Canadian physician said.

Reinforcing walls were built to steady the pair of structures and a flag pole with pennant flying was added. The River Valley Pioneer Museum will prepare a time capsule to be placed in one of the walls. Plans call for the addition of redbud trees over the winter.

"Redbuds aren't thick and bushy like crab apple trees," Abraham said, "and they aren't lollipop-shaped like pear trees. They'll help frame the structures and will look great in the fall."

Although the planter walls are built, the shrubbery in place and the flower beds await the arrival of the redbud trees, Dr. Abraham isn't finished.

Eventually, he hopes to place a sculpture in front of the brick archway of the northwest corner of the building. He said he envisions outdoor dramas and concerts beneath the historic walls of the school that witnessed the beginnings of his formal education.

Sitting on the knoll overlooking the school yard, the architectural structures stand as mute reminders of students past and portals for students in the future. What once was functional design has become sculptures to inspire generations to come.

"Isn't that what art is all about?" asked Abraham. "To inspire and uplift mankind?"

MINISTER FULL OF PREACHING FORGETS TO PRACTICE AT HOME

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a fine Christian man who is a minister. We have three school-age children of whom we are very proud.

If you can find the column you wrote about five years ago signed "Submissive Wife," please run it again. I know a minister (my husband) who needs to read it. Please do not disclose my location.

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I found it:

DEAR ABBY: Like many other women who write to you, I have a problem. My husband has a mistress. Her name is Television. If it isn't Television, it's her sister, Radio.

Television entertains him every night during our evening meal when our family should be sharing the day's events together. Don't suggest rescheduling dinner, because the news is on for an hour and a half, and my husband watches all of it.

He is a minister and prides himself on "saving people." He keeps the TV tuned to a religious channel when he isn't watching the news. I hear preaching morning, noon and night. Many evenings, I go to sleep while he's embracing his other mistress, Radio.

When I get into his car, the radio is always tuned to gospel music. We can't carry on a conversation because he listens with one ear. He never inquires about many day, my feelings, or anything concerning me or the children. I realize that he is serving the Lord and saving souls, but what about his family?

When I complain, he quotes the following Scriptures: "Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands..." (Colossians 3:18). What can I do?

SUBMISSIVE WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You can also quote Scripture: "Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them" (Colossians 3:19).

Doctors sometimes need a doctor, and ministers sometimes need to be reminded to practice what they preach. You would both benefit from counseling. If he balks, go alone. What doth it profit a man if he saves souls, but loses his wife?

DEAR ABBY: I almost fell over laughing when I read the letter complaining about the friend who would never choose the restaurant - always allowing the writer to pick the spot to eat. I'm sure the writer was referring to me, but please let me say a word in my defense:

When I suggested Chinese food, you told me it gave you a headache. What about a deli? "The waiters are rude." How about that Italian place? "It's too expensive." Do you want to try the Mexican place? "We ate there last night."

So, hey! I give up. Better to enjoy a meal at the restaurant of your choice than to go to my favorite spot and listen to your whining. Sign me,

...A GOOD LOSER

DEAR GOOD LOSER: If you want to settle the "where should we eat?" question, as your fussy friend a to first give you a list of acceptable choices, and you will pick the place.

DEAR ABBY: If, as Samuel Goldwyn said, "A verbal agreement isn't worth the paper it's written on," the following must be true:

"It goes without saying that an oral agreement is tacitly unsound."

JACK O. DAVIS,
LEE'S SUMMIT, MO.

DEAR JACK: Congratulations, you topped Goldwyn.

Dealing with a colicky baby

By LADIES' HOME JOURNAL
A Meredith Magazine
For AP Special Features

There are a staggering amount of theories for what causes colic — everything from gastrointestinal problems and nervous-system overload to anxious parents, reports Ladies' Home Journal magazine.

"If we knew what caused it, there would only be one theory," says Dr. Martin Drell, head of Infant, Child and Adolescent Psychiatry at Louisiana State University Medical Center in New Orleans.

Somewhere between age 3 and 5 weeks, one-fifth to one-quarter of all perfectly normal babies develop colic that can last upward of three hours. A baby's stomach may be distended; he may jerk his legs up in pain and pass gas. While there is nothing new to report in the treatment of colic, that doesn't mean there's nothing a new parent can do.

"Everything works and nothing works," says Drell. A parent may stumble onto something that seems to lessen the child's distress, but often the relief is only temporary. Trial and error is your best bet. Remember to make only one modification at a time so you can see which works, which doesn't.

Have your pediatrician examine the baby to make sure there is no medical problem (such as hernia) at the root of his or her distress. The doctor may suggest switching to a soy-based formula or, if you're breast-feeding, keeping a food diary so you can track what you may be eating that is upsetting the baby. Caffeine, onions and spicy foods are common culprits.

Other suggestions:

- Motion helps some babies. Pick him or her up. Walk around with the baby in an infant carrier. Then, too, it can make other babies even fussier. Try just cuddling.
- Run the washing machine or dryer or buy a white-noise machine — the continuous humming sound is often soothing.
- Go for a snooze cruise: Put the baby in an approved infant car seat and go for a ride.
- Place the baby on his stomach across your lap and see if you can burp him or her.
- Give the baby a little warm water.

The good news: In almost all cases, colic stops by the 12th week.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A compassionate friend is well aware of your present problems and needs, and is quietly working on your behalf at this time to help see that good things happen for you. Keep the faith. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This should be a pleasant day for you with friends playing favorable roles in your affairs. The big kicker, however, is the fact something great might break through a social connection.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In an area where you may have encountered resistance recently you might now find all the obstacles have been removed. Regroup your forces and pursue your original goals.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Group involvements might be exceptionally lucky for you today in rather unique ways. You may meet someone who lives distant from you who can provide you with information you didn't anticipate.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Give your maximum attention to endeavors today that offer you the largest possible returns. Lady Luck will be helping you and she won't want to waste her time on minor goals.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can gain the type of allies you need today for something you have that cannot be fully developed on your own. Assisted by the right people, the projection is positive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Owing to some unforeseen changes today you could be the recipient of something Lady Luck had in mind for another. Accept what transpires with gratitude, not questioning.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What you do today with a team or cooperative effort should work out far more advantageous for all concerned than everyone trying to do it on their own.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something fortuitous might be brewing for you now where your work or career is concerned. It won't be a passing fancy and you could be able to feel its effects for some time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Promises or commitments made to you today should not be treated lightly. The persons with whom you'll be dealing are sincere and, barring something unforeseen, should come through as stated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You might be able to gain far more than you realize from a situation you're now trying to bring to a successful conclusion. Take adequate time to do this properly.

Briefs

AP POLL — Florida State was a unanimous No. 1 for the first time in the Associated Press poll, beating previously unbeaten Virginia 40-14.

Notre Dame moved to No. 2, Ohio State climbed to No. 3, and Alabama fell to No. 4 after Tennessee halted the Tide's 28-game winning streak with a 17-17 tie. Nebraska rose to No. 5, idle Miami jumped two to No. 6, and Arizona moved up four spots to No. 7.

Tennessee fell two to No. 8, Florida fell five to No. 9 after losing to Auburn, which jumped nine to No. 10.

Texas A&M is 11th, followed by North Carolina, Michigan, Penn State, Wisconsin, Colorado, Oklahoma, West Virginia, UCLA, Louisville, Virginia, Washington, Syracuse, Michigan State and Washington State, which knocked California out of the poll.

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — David Lee, coming off a fifth straight loss, was fired as football coach at Texas-El Paso and replaced by defensive coordinator Charlie Bailey.

The Miners dropped to 1-6 after a 45-29 defeat by Utah. Their record last year was 1-10. Lee's record was 11-41-1 in five seasons. He will be assigned other duties in the athletic department.

RANCHO MURIETA, Calif. (AP) — George Archer birdied the 18th hole to break a three-way tie and win the $600,000 Raley's Senior Gold Rush at Rancho Murieta Country Club.

Archer's 3-foot putt gave him a 4-under-par 68 and moved him to 14-under 202, one stroke better than defending champion Bob Charles and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Archer earned $90,000 for his third Senior PGA Tour victory this year and third Gold Rush title. Charles, with final-round 68, and Rodriguez, 67, finished at 203. Bob Betley finished at 209 with Tom Wargo and Walter Morgan. Larry Gilbert, J.C. Snead and Larry Ziegler were at 210.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — The American trio of John Daly, Fred Couples and Payne Stewart edged defending champion England 2-1 to win the $1.5 million Dunhill Cup.

Stewart shot 74 to lose by four shots to Mark James, Couples carded a 68 to edge Nick Faldo by a stroke, and Daly beat Peter Baker 70-73. Couples tied Mark Calcavecchia's tournament record, 15-under-par 345. Earlier, the Americans beat Sweden 2-1 in the semifinals.

TOKYO (AP) — Defending champion Ivan Lendl overwhelmed 10th-seeded Todd Martin 6-4, 6-4 to win the $1 million Seiko Super a fifth time. It was ninth-seeded Lendl's second title this season, after losing nine first-round matches.

BOLZANO, Italy (AP) — Using a dominating serve, Jonathan Stark won his first ATP event, upsetting Cedric Pioline of France 6-3, 6-2 in the $315,000 Bolzano tournament. Stark, lone American in the tournament, needed 1 hour, 17 minutes to beat second-seeded Pioline.

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Stefano Pescosolido of Italy, 109th in the world, defeated second-seeded Amos Mansdorf of Israel 7-6 (7-5), 7-5 in the $200,000 Riklis Open, his first ATP victory.

FILDERSTADT, Germany (AP) — Third-seeded Mary Pierce used a power game to rout sixth-seeded Natalia Zvereva of Belarus 6-3, 6-3 in the Porsche Grand Prix. The Canadian-born Pierce, who lives in France, won her seventh career title, first this year.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — No. 1 NBA draft pick Chris Webber reportedly signed a contract worth $74.4 million over 15 years with Golden State. The 6-foot-10 power forward is still recovering from his Oct. 6 appendectomy.

The contract also reportedly contains a one-year termination clause. Webber could become a restricted free agent after one season and a shorter-term contract could be renegotiated.

The Warriors acquired Webber the night of the NBA draft from the Orlando Magic, giving up Memphis State's Anfernee Hardaway, No. 3 overall pick, and three first-round draft picks.

Webber, 20, averaged 19.2 points, 10.1 rebounds and 2.5 blocks last season as a sophomore with Michigan, leading them to a second straight national championship game.

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Chuck Bown broke a 65-race winless streak, holding off Steve Grissom in Sunday's Advance Auto Parts 500. Bown captured the 300-lap Busch Grand National at Martinsville Speedway.

With his second-place finish, Grissom increased his lead to 65 over David Green in driver standings with three events remaining.

Green was fuming after his sixth-place finish. He was running second when he tangled with Grissom on lap 274 and spun out. Green contended Grissom wrecked him.

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Best Pal, $2.60, beat Native Boundary by 3 1/2 lengths in the $250,000 California Classic at Santa Anita.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dehere, $2.60, won the $500,000 Champagne by four lengths over Cray and Heavenly Prize, $6.80, edged Footing in the $250,000 Frizette at Belmont.

Phillies-Blue Jays even up in World Series

By JIM DONAGHY
AP Baseball Writer

TORONTO (AP) — The Toronto Blue Jays are supposed to be the team with quick minds, the ones with loads of postseason experience.

Not Sunday night. This time, it was Philadelphia that kept its cool, waiting for key walks and big hits. The result was a 6-4 victory in Game 2, sending the teams back to Philadelphia tied 1-1 when the Series resumes Tuesday night.

The Blue Jays didn't get clutch hitting or pitching after doing many of the right things in their 8-5 victory in Game 1. Normally steady Roberto Alomar also made a huge mistake in the eighth inning when he tried to steal third base with two outs and was thrown out.

The key inning for the Phillies came in the third, when they scored five runs off loser Dave Stewart. Lenny Dykstra and Mariano Duncan demonstrated patience with leadoff walks, and John Kruk put Philadelphia ahead 1-0 with a single.

"We could see Stewart was struggling with his control," Duncan said. "Against a pitcher like Dave Stewart, you have to take advantage of that after the walks."

Dave Hollins followed Kruk with another soft RBI single, one that landed just beyond the reach of shortstop Tony Fernandez. And one out later, Jim Eisenreich hit a three-run homer over the right field wall.

"Dave Stewart doesn't get rattled, but everyone has a bad inning once in a while," said Eisenreich, who hit an 0-2 pitch. "I knew we had a chance to do some damage."

This type of thing is not supposed to happen to Stewart in the postseason, not on 0-2 pitches. He's 8-0 in the AL playoffs, although he was 2-3 in the World Series for Oakland.

"It definitely wasn't one pitch," Stewart said. "It was the two batters I walked, the next two batters who got soft hits off me, then the biggie."

Terry Mulholland, the Phillies' winner, pitched effectively for 5 2-3 innings, allowing three runs and seven hits before the bullpen finished. Mulholland gave up a two-run homer to Joe Carter in the fourth that made it 5-2 and an RBI double to Fernandez in the sixth.

"He pitched his heart and soul out," said Dykstra, whose homer in the seventh rebuilt Philadelphia's lead to 6-3.

Reliever Roger Mason allowed a double to Paul Molitor in the eighth. After Molitor stole third, Carter struck out and Mitch Williams relieved a little earlier than usual.

He gave up a sacrifice fly to John Olerud, and then the Phillies started to hold their breaths. Wild Thing was at it again.

Williams walked Alomar on five pitches and then did nothing as the Toronto second baseman easily stole second base. With Fernandez still batting, Alomar tried to steal third with two outs.

Williams saw Alomar breaking off the base and threw to third in plenty of time for Hollins, who tagged Alomar for the inning's final out.

The Blue Jays had Williams and the Phillies on the ropes, and the crowd of 52,062 was wilder than the left-hander.

Williams, given a break, then finished for the save, even though he walked Fernandez on four pitches leading off the ninth.

"I didn't pick anyone off all year," Williams said. "I know they like to run with Rickey Henderson, Devon White and Alomar."

The crowd was stunned, too, unused to Blue Jay gaffes. "He has a green light," manager Cito Gaston said. "Normally, he wouldn't do that."

The Phillies, meanwhile, got another great game from the top of their order, going 5-for-13. They were 12-for-26 in the two weekend games.

Dykstra also made a couple of nice running catches, crashing into the center field wall in the sixth to catch Carter's drive.

"We got on the board first tonight and we were coming off a tough loss," Dykstra said. "I'm not afraid to say that I made two big defensive plays tonight. I take pride in my defense and I'm glad to make big plays like that."

The Phillies showed in Game 2 they aren't intimidated by the defending champions. This time, it was the Blue Jays who looked a little nervous.

One of Pampa High's most multi-talented athletes was Quincy Williams, who competed in football, basketball and baseball for the Harvesters and excelled in all three sports.

Right now Williams is involved in football and the 5-11, 175-pound junior is the starting wide receiver for Southwestern Oklahoma State University in Weatherford.

"Quincy is doing a good job for us. He's caught on real well to our system and there's no doubt in my mind that he will continue to play well for us the rest of this season and next season as well," said Bulldogs' head coach Paul Sharp.

Williams transferred to Southwestern after spending two years at Seward County Community College in Kansas where he played baseball.

The Bulldogs are 5-1 and appear headed for another successful season. They went 8-2 last year and qualified for the NIAA national playoffs for the first time since 1977.

In six games Williams has caught six passes for 44 yards, his longest a 21-yard gain against West Texas A&M.

Sharp said Williams, a star running back for the Harvesters, didn't have any problems moving to a new position.

"When Quincy came in we had an abundance of running backs, but with his speed and good hands I decided to try him out as a receiver. He's adjusted real well," Sharp said.

While playing football for the Harvesters, Williams came close to breaking the school's season rushing record set by Harold Lewis in 1954. Williams rushed for 1,009 yards, falling short of Lewis' mark by just 63 yards. (Lewis' record fell two years later when Sammy Laury had 1,950 yards.)

In 1991, Williams helped pitch the Harvesters to the district baseball championship. He led the pitching staff in victories (8-2), strikeouts (42) and was second in earned run average, 2.10. Williams also carried a .315 batting average with 12 RBI and 4 home runs. At the end of the season, Williams was named the district's most valuable player.

Williams was also a key reserve on Pampa's 1990-91 basketball squad which advanced to the Class 4A state semifinals. He averaged 4 points and 5 rebounds coming off the bench.

Over the years, the Raiders have been able to consistently pressure, harass and sack Elway, limiting his effectiveness.

Elway owns a regular-season record of 92-54-1 (.629), including a scintillating 59-15 record (.797) at home. Against the Raiders, however, he's 6-11 overall and 4-6 at home.

"What the Raiders have done in the past against us is dominate our offensive line, and John couldn't get the ball off," Phillips said. "They're usually one of the top teams in the league in rushing the passer and in playing pass defense."

"But this year our pass protection has been excellent, which is one of the reasons we're throwing the ball so well. So it's our strength against their strength. We're telling them we're going to throw it, and they're going to come after us, and we'll see what happens."

Raiders face Broncos in Denver tonight

By JOHN MOSSMAN
AP Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — To a wide receiver corps that already boasted a former world-class sprinter, the Los Angeles Raiders have added a Rocket, a Jet and the NFL's fastest man.

Pity Tim Brown. The 1987 Heisman Trophy winner's impressive speed seems pedestrian by comparison.

"They say Alexander Wright is the fastest player in the league," said Denver Broncos cornerback Tyrone Braxton, "but that was before they added the Rocket (Raghib Ismail) and James Jett. So he may be third now. You've got to be ready for the deep ball on every snap. That's their mentality, their philosophy."

Braxton will share the burden of trying to prevent those rapid Raider receivers from getting out the blocks quickly when the AFC West rivals, both 3-2, meet here tonight.

"They've always had speed at wide receiver," Broncos coach Wade Phillips said. "People say the guys they've got now can really run. Well, I don't know that anybody could run faster than Willie Gault or Sam Graddy. Every time I've ever played them, they've had Gault."

"Now they have Jett and Ismail and Wright. They're going to challenge you deep with those guys."

Raider coach Art Shell, of course, is fully aware of the problems so much speed can cause an opposing defense.

"We have some very exciting young people who have added a new energy to our team," Shell said. "When you add guys like Jett and Rocket coming off the bench, they can cause problems for the defensive secondary because they're so quick and so fast. If the Broncos can't slow them down, they can always unleash a breakaway threat of their own in rookie Glyn Milburn.

"You'd better be aware of where he is," Shell said of Milburn, who lines up both at receiver and in the backfield. "He gives John Elway another weapon."

Elway, the beneficiary of improved pass protection from a rebuilt offensive line that includes left tackle Gary Zimmerman and right guard Brian Habib, leads the NFL in completions (125), attempts (197) and yardage (1,460). The Broncos lead the NFL in passing at 285.8 yards per game.

The Raiders, conversely, have the top pass defense in the AFC, yielding 157.4 yards per outing.

A key matchup will be how well Denver's offensive line holds off the Raider pass rush, keyed by end Anthony Smith, whose eight sacks are tied for best in the league.

Haas birdies for sudden death victory

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Like heavyweights throwing their best punches, Jay Haas and Bob Lohr kept trading shots in the stretch run at the Texas Open.

First it was Haas, breaking a tie for the lead with a 45-50 foot birdie putt on the 16th hole.

Then Lohr, vaulting back into the lead with a sand wedge shot from 85 yards that found the cup for an eagle-2 on the 17th.

And then, after completing a bogey-free, 7-under-par 64 and holding a one-shot lead, Lohr stood by the 18th green at the Oak Hills Country Club and watched as Haas lined up a downhill, cross-grain 20-foot birdie putt to tie and force a playoff.

"He's going to make it," Lohr told his wife. "He's 20 under par and you don't get to 20 under par missing putts."

He was right.

Haas, who had a good read on Tom Lehman's longer putt on the same line, made the birdie, matched Lohr's 64, tied him at the end of regulation play at 263, 21 under par, and set up a sudden death playoff.

After both birdied the first extra hole, a par-5, Haas won on the second with a 10-foot putt for his third birdie in a row and fourth in five holes.

"I thought I was going to have to birdie 'til dark to win," Haas said after securing his second title in this tournament and the ninth of a 17-season PGA Tour career.

The win was worth $180,000 from the total purse of $1 million and pushed his earnings for the year to $518,503. That places him 22nd on the season's money-winning list and virtually clinches a spot in the 30-man field for the rich Tour Championship that ends the official portion of the tour schedule at the end of this month.

"That's something I was trying to do, get in the Tour Championship," Haas said. "I thought good finishes here and at Las Vegas would do it. But the win about wraps it up."

The win, however, was far from easy.

"That's about as excited as I've been," he said.

"I did what I had to do. To do it when you have to do it, that's what we're all striving for out here," he said after coming back from the potential knockout punch of Lohr's go-ahead eagle-2 late in the day.

"These things happen," Haas said with a shrug. "After 17 years out here, I've learned to expect the unexpected."

Lohr, whose only official tour triumph came five years ago, admitted he was "a little disappointed. But I'm pretty proud at the same time," he said.

"I kept answering the call out there. I played 20 holes eight under par and didn't make a bogey. That's about as good as I can play," he said.

Billy Andrade was third alone at 267, four out of the playoff, after a closing 66. He was followed by Bob Estes at 67-268.

Dan Forsman and Tom Lehman, who shared the third-round lead with Haas and Lohr, each dropped back with a 70 and were tied at 269 with Gil Morgan, Mike Standly, Marco Dawson and David Edwards.

Bowers schedules roping classic

The Bowers Team Roping Classic is scheduled for Oct. 24, at the Bowers Ranch.

Set to start at 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 24, the team roping competition will be at the arena at the Bowers Ranch five miles south of Pampa.

"There will be two buckles awarded to the AVE winners," said Tommy Bowers, organizer of the event.

Cross country teams win silver, bronze

Pampa cross country teams ran at West Texas A&M yesterday and took home the silver and bronze despite a halved team. Several Harvesters remained in Pampa to take the PSATs.

Paige Bass ran her best race of the year at Canyon, Luis Resendiz finished in second place and freshman Josh Jones came in third. Chris Phillips took the 15th spot and Chris Helms was 24th.

Pampa coach Mark Elms reported that the runners' times were slower than normal due to the difficult course. Terrain included 100 meters of sand, gullies and trees.

"We are very proud of the five runners," Elms said. Pampa runs next at the Oct. 30 district meet at Thompson Park in Amarillo.

Higgins slips by McLean in fourth quarter

HIGGINS - Higgins edged by McLean, 36-34, in a District 1A six-man game Friday night.

A 40-yard touchdown pass from Alex Valenzuela to Joel Booker with just over a minute to play gave Higgins the win.

Toby Northcutt scored three touchdowns for McLean while teammate Brandon West scored two.

McLean is 1-1 in district play and 2-5 overall. Higgins is also 1-1 in district and 2-4 for the season.

Cowboys use big plays to beat 49ers

IRVING (AP) - Nine months after the NFC title game between the Dallas Cowboys and San Francisco 49ers, nothing has changed.

The Cowboys, who beat the 49ers 30-20 last January and then won the Super Bowl, made the big plays in the second half Sunday for a 26-17 victory over San Francisco.

Michael Irvin caught a career-high 12 passes for 168 yards, including a 36-yard scoring pass from Troy Aikman, and Eddie Murray kicked four field goals as Dallas advanced to 4-2. The 49ers dropped to 3-3.

"It was as big a game as they get," Irvin said. "We were in a hole with two early losses. We had to win it."

"When Troy is on, it's like pitch and catch."

Dallas broke open the NFC title game in Candlestick Park with 13 points in the fourth period and dominated the last 15 minutes on Sunday against the 49ers.

"I figured the game would be won in the fourth quarter," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson. "We came from behind three times. It says something about our team."

Owner Jerry Jones said it best about Irvin after the game, "Michael is the kind of guy you want with you in a back alley."

Murray kicked field goals of 48, 39, and 29 yards as Dallas took a 16-10 lead at halftime.

Irvin made a juggling catch of Aikman's pass for the touchdown after the 49ers took a 17-16 lead in the third period on a 12-yard pass from Steve Young to Brent Jones to cap a five-play, 80-yard drive.

Irvin said offensive coordinator Norv Turner "is a genius. The game he called was something. We just kept throwing the short passes and taking what the 49ers gave us. We didn't get frustrated."

Young said before the game: "We want to reclaim what we lost in January," and if not or the Cowboys' big-play artists, they might have.

But they botched a field goal attempt when Ralph Tamm's snap was mishandled by holder Klaus Wilmsmeyer. The Cowboys then produced Murray's fourth field goal, an 18-yarder to put the game away.

"That was a game we let get away from us," said Young. "We go from almost getting a touchdown to no field goal, then losing the game. We've got to fight our way out of it somehow. We still have a good team."

Tony Casillas recovered Marc Logan's fumble at the 49ers' 39 to position Dallas for the Aikman-to-Irvin touchdown pass.

Clinton's greenhouse emissions plan to rely heavily on voluntary efforts

By RITA BEAMISH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's long-awaited plan to cut greenhouse gas emissions will rely heavily on voluntary steps but also will require greater energy efficiency measures, according to administration officials.

It also calls on some employers who provide parking to compensate non-driving workers as well, one official said.

Clinton will announce on Tuesday how he proposes to roll back the nation's greenhouse gas emissions to 1990 levels by the year 2000, the officials said.

He made the pledge on Earth Day, thus committing the nation to a course President Bush had rejected at the Earth Summit in Rio De Janeiro a year earlier. The Bush administration had heeded industry complaints that such a target would require very costly steps that would damage the economy.

Clinton's plan sprinkles the burden of emission reduction across many sectors of the economy, including transportation, energy and waste disposal, according to officials who spoke Sunday on condition of anonymity. Greenhouse gases, principally the carbon dioxide from burning of fossil fuels, are believed by many scientists to be contributing to an environmentally harmful warming of the earth.

Clinton's plan relies almost entirely on the voluntary cooperation of business to invest in energy-saving techniques and other steps that will reduce greenhouse gases, according to one official.

However, another official characterized the plan as incorporating legislative, regulatory and voluntary steps.

The government will commit about $250 million a year through 2000 to programs designed to help the private sector meet the goal, the source said. Part of the money will be spent on programs similar to existing Environmental Protection Agency's efforts to help companies use more energy-efficient computers and lighting systems.

The Washington Post, which carried the initial report on the program in today's editions, said the industry share of the plan would cost $68 billion.

Among the steps described by officials:

— New efficiency standards for electric household appliances and tighter restrictions on methane emissions from landfills, under existing regulatory authority.

— Requiring large employers who provide parking for employees to give a cash equivalent reimbursement to those who use alternative transportation. The idea would be to give incentives to cut down on single-person auto commuters and thus reduce auto carbon dioxide emissions.

— Encouraging private investment in hydroelectric power facilities to make improvements for greater energy efficiency.

— Outreach programs to advise homeowners on ways to design more energy-efficient home heating systems.

One emission reduction scheme sought by industry was rejected by the administration as being too complicated to monitor and measure. It would involve giving U.S. companies credit for helping reduce greenhouse gas emissions in developing countries, where emission-control technology lags far behind the United States, instead of taking the more expensive and complicated steps needed to make further reductions in this country.

However, one official said last week that the general concept is addressed in the Clinton plan and the Post said it entails a pilot program to assist other countries in emission reduction.

The administration also rejected using the climate-change plan to push for higher auto mileage standards.

Clinton promised in his campaign to raise the required fleet average from the current 27.5 miles per gallon to 40 miles per gallon by the year 2000. One official said the politically-charged step, hotly opposed by automakers, could have doomed the climate-change plan because of congressional opposition.

Clinton initially hoped to use his proposed broad-based energy tax, the BTU tax, to achieve 25 percent of the 100 million metric ton reduction needed to meet the year 2000 commitment.

But Congress defeated the BTU tax and substituted a 4.3-cent gas tax that is expected to lead to a reduction of 4 million metric tons of carbon emissions.

Girl Scouts weigh future of pledge 'to serve God'

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — For decades, Girl Scouts have put on badge-bedecked vests and gathered with troop leaders to recite a solemn pledge to serve God and country.

But this week, the organization will consider whether the nation's 2.6 million Girl Scouts instead of pledging to serve God will pledge to serve Allah, "the Creator" — or no one at all.

Those seeking the change say it would rightly acknowledge ethnic and religious diversity. Others don't want to tinker with tradition.

The proposal, to be voted on Saturday by 2,000 youth and adult delegates at the Girl Scouts' national convention in Minneapolis, keeps intact the official wording of the Girl Scout promise: "On my honor I will try to serve God and my country, to help people at all times, and to live by the Girl Scout Law." But a girl would be allowed to substitute for "God" another word — or no word — reflecting her spirituality.

The Girl Scouts, modeled on the British Girl Guides, were founded in 1912 by Juliette Gordon Low. The preamble to the group's constitution lays out a spiritual motivating force, but has never defined that force as Judeo-Christian. The Girl Scout pledge has been revised several times over the years, but the reference to God has been a constant.

"God was just the word people used ever since 1912, and that was the word that stuck," said Ellen Christie Ach, a spokeswoman for Girl Scouts of the USA.

Girl Scout officials say the proposed change has prompted some phone calls from disgruntled adults, but that much of the opposition is based on misinformation.

"People think we're taking 'God' out of the promise and law, and that isn't happening," said Lori Meier, a spokeswoman for the Great Plains Girl Scout Council in Omaha, Neb., where some adult scout leaders voted last week to oppose the change.

"I think there is some thought that this could weaken our organization," said Jody Johnston, head of the Western Reserve Girl Scout Council in Akron, Ohio, who supports the proposal.

"Although the term 'God' may mean different things to different people, (people think) we are creating some ambiguity in the organization if we allow for the flexibility," she said.

Boy Scouts are required to pledge "to do my duty to God," although that oath is meant to refer to whatever deity the individual scout believes in, said Richard Walker, a spokesman for the Boy Scouts of America in Irving, Texas.

But national Girl Scout leaders say they need to go further if the organization is to be responsive and useful to an increasingly diverse membership. Councils in regions with large Asian and Native American populations have had trouble recruiting girls whose religious tradition doesn't include a Judeo-Christian concept of God, Ach said.

Some scouts say embracing such differences is what scouting's all about.

"I support it because I believe that Girl Scouts are an inclusive organization," said Angie Greiling, 18, of Roseville, Minn., a delegate to this weekend's convention. "And the idea is that we are across all lines, not just focusing on one group or religion or race."

Ford Chairman Harold Poling, left, pulls a tarp off the redesigned 1994 model Mustang at a car collector's rally Sunday in Alexandria, Va.

Mustang: In with the old and now in with the new

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Everyone used to wave when David Williams drove down the street in his restored, red 1964 Mustang. No longer.

"You see a lot more of these cars now than you did five or ten years ago. Now people say, 'Well, there's another old Mustang,'" said Williams.

So many have been "resurrected from the graveyard," added the 46-year-old Northern Virginia Community College administrator, "it's really hard to find one now in restorable condition."

The Ford Motor Co. is hoping to rekindle America's love affair with the Mustang with a sleek, new version of the classic "pony car" that symbolized speed and adventure in the 1960s and still captivates collectors today.

Nearly 100 automobile aficionados circled their vintage Mustangs around a tent in a Potomac River park in Alexandria Sunday to watch Ford Chairman Harold "Red" Poling pull the tarp off the redesigned 1994 model. Collectors rallied in other cities as well.

Poling called the new Mustang an "aggressive but beautiful (car) ... with the looks and the spirit that mean excitement and fun."

It combines the aerodynamic sweep and handling of a 1990s automobile with some classic touches of the original Mustang, from the pony on the grille to the long hood, short rear deck, scalloped doors, cockpit-style dash and low bucket seats.

The "1964 and a half" Mustang unveiled at the New York World's Fair in April 1964 went for $2,368 and rang up a record 417,000 sales in its first year. More than 6 million Mustangs have been sold to date.

It also triggered a stampede to "pony cars," as the Camaro, the Firebird, the Barracuda, the Datsun 240Z and others joined the chase.

Some Mustang owners never forgave Ford for downsizing the Mustang II to four cylinders in 1974 amid a sales slump and concerns triggered by the oil embargo.

"After '73, they lost the magic," said Clarence Dove, 61, of Alexandria, who also owns a restored 1964 Mustang.

The gleaming red GT convertible coupe with white leather seats that Poling unveiled boasted a 215-horsepower, 5.0-liter V-8 engine that goes from zero to 60 in 6.7 seconds and retails for $21,970.

A tamer version — a 3.8-liter V-6 engine model — starts at $13,365.

President Clinton has called the restored, silver-metallic blue 1967 Mustang he left back in Arkansas his most "prized possession."

Williams, the college official, says that when the first Mustangs came out, "I couldn't afford one. Now you can actually have a car that was popular when you were in high school."

Almost two-thirds of Mustang buyers are men. The average buyer's age, once in the late 20s, has crept up to almost 35. Ford is hoping the new car will attract a younger crowd.

But the 68-year-old Poling, sporting a Mustang jacket, insisted, "You're never too old. ... It appeals to people of all ages."

The car's reputation for speed and style was embellished by Hollywood, from Steve McQueen's spectacular car chases up and down San Francisco in Bullitt to a cameo in Goldfinger and an appearance in Starman. Kevin Costner kept the one he drove in Bull Durham.

Richard Renzi, 57, owner of a '67 Mustang, said, "They're just a neat looking car. The newer Mustangs don't compare." He said he once bought an old Mustang for his son for $400 — and sold it to a collector for $1,800 after the boy wrecked it.

Luke Peninger has kept his red Mustang in pristine condition from the day he bought it in July 1964. The retired Railway Express Agency worker takes it out of his garage just once a week for a spin around his Fulton, Md., neighborhood. It has just 38,688 miles.

Offers to buy it are met with a deaf ear. "It's just like a member of the family," said Peninger, who racks up most of his miles in a Cadillac.

Chevy Chase is off the air as Fox cancels talk show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He's Chevy Chase and his talk show is not.

The Chevy Chase Show, savagely mauled by critics, was canceled Sunday by Fox Broadcasting Co., becoming the first casualty of the late-night TV talk-show wars. It had performed a ratings pratfall much as Chase himself had done in his famous sendups of former President Ford.

Since premiering Sept. 7, Chase had been drawing fewer viewers than shows by David Letterman, Ted Koppel and Jay Leno. He did, however, outdo Arsenio Hall.

"Despite the commitment of Chevy and our best creative and production minds, we started slowly and did not perform to expectations," said Fox Chairwoman Lucie Salhani. "We saw nothing to indicate that the show would turn around."

She thanked him "for giving us his best effort. He is an extraordinarily talented man."

In a statement released by Fox, Chase said, "I am proud of the comedic elements that we were able to intersperse throughout this otherwise very constraining format."

He added that he was looking forward to the February release of his new film, Cops and Robbers.

Chase's one-hour show had been troubled since the beginning. Less than a month after it appeared, producer Twentieth Television brought in an emergency team of writers, consultants and Fox executives to revamp the program.

Salhani said earlier this month that Chase was "very nervous. It was uncomfortable and embarrassing to watch it." The show, she added, was marred by unfunny writing, Chase's lackluster interviews and viewer defections.

A month after its debut, the show settled into fourth place, averaging a 3.1 rating. One ratings point equals 942,000 TV homes. Fox had promised advertisers about a 4 rating.

No. 1 was Letterman's Late Show, which averaged a 5.9 rating for CBS, followed by ABC's Nightline, moderated by Koppel, at 4.9 and The Tonight Show With Jay Leno on NBC at 3.9. The syndicated Arsenio Hall was fifth, with a 2.1 rating.

Steve Allen, who helped invent the talk-show genre as the first host of The Tonight Show, said Chase was trying too hard to be funny.

"Chevy had the mask of comedy on his face, but he wasn't able to remove it," Allen said.

"There are times if your guest is Albert Einstein when you don't try to get laughs. Chevy didn't seem to have a sense of that," he said.

Fox spokeswoman Betsy Hoffman said finding a late-night replacement — format and host to be decided — is a No. 1 priority, and that until then Fox will air reruns of In Living Color in the 11 p.m. to 12 a.m. time slot.

Gumbel, Dunaway among best dressed

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Looking good: Today anchorman Bryant Gumbel and actress Faye Dunaway. Looking dreadful: talk show host Sally Jessy Raphael and comedian Don Rickles.

That's this year's verdict from Mr. Blackwell, the self-appointed fashion cop.

Dunaway has "done away with that dreary designer dreck that sabotaged your image in years past and refined your look for television to electric effect," Blackwell said in his fifth annual article for TV Guide magazine.

The new Dunaway, of the comedy It Had to Be You, Blackwell said, is "sleek without being studied, trendy without being tacky, and glamorous without being gaudy."

Of Gumbel, Blackwell said: "The Titan of Today grabs the overall best-dressed gold in a masterful mix of beautifully cut blazers, striking suits, stylish sportswear, and understated accessories."

Blackwell, a dress designer who is better known for his scathing fashion criticisms, let loose on Raphael.

She "continues her reign as the Queen of Jurassic Park in fossilized fashion only a color-blind brontosaurus could love," he said.

Blackwell gave Rickles his "first annual Wire-Hanger Award for his catastrophic collection of Archie Bunker bombs, early Mafia mark-downs, and Old Mold mishaps. Tired, tacky, and totally tasteless!"

Others on the worst-dressed list include: Cafe American star Valerie Bertinelli, Jason Alexander's George Costanza character on Seinfeld, Kelsey Grammer's Frasier, Harry Anderson of Dave's World and late night talk show newcomer Conan O'Brien.

The best-dressed column included television anchors Peter Jennings and Connie Chung, talk show hosts Oprah Winfrey and David Letterman, and television actresses Roseanne Arnold of Roseanne, Jane Seymour of Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman and Sela Ward of Sisters.

Experts recommend therapy for convicted sex offenders

DALLAS (AP) — Although some Texas prisons have begun therapy programs for convicted sex offenders, only 2 percent of them receive the treatment, according to a published report.

The therapy sessions help experts distinguish the rapists and child molesters who can learn to control their impulses from those who cannot, The Dallas Morning News reported in Sunday's editions.

"It's such an emotional issue that people just don't want to deal with it," said Dr. Collier Cole, a Galveston psychologist and chairman of the Texas Interagency Council on Sex Offender Treatment.

The Texas program, which has an annual budget of $750,000, stresses group therapy. It began in 1990 at three state prisons. So far, 200 offenders are enrolled in the program. State figures show there are 10,609 inmates identified as sex offenders in Texas prisons; 3,740 are convicted child molesters.

In addition, there are 4,784 sex offenders on parole or supervised release from prison and about 6,900 adult sex offenders on probation for sex offenses in Texas, statistics show.

About 100 parole officers and 50 supervisors have been trained as coun-sultors to oversee 2,850 sex offender parolees, about 60 percent of all sex offenders on parole in Texas.

The recent arrests of convicted child molesters for the murders of Quana Colquitt of Dallas and Ashley Estell of Plano have renewed discussion over how to rehabilitate offenders.

James Brewster, 51, is accused of killing Quana, his 13-year-old step-granddaughter, on Oct. 5. Parolee Michael Blair, 23, faces trial in the Sept. 4 strangulation of 7-year-old Ashley.

"When you look at the fact that the typical sex offender, by the time he's 35, might have 300 victims, a small percentage (of treatment success) would spare hundreds of victims. And that's well worth it," said Judy O'Brien, director of the Sex Offender Treatment Program at the state prison in Sugar Land.

Nationally, police reported 109,062 rapes and rape attempts against women and girls in 1992, according to the FBI.

The Bureau of Justice Statistics, which surveys the public about crime, reported about 149,000 rapes, and the National Committee to Prevent Child Abuse confirmed 200,000 cases of sexually abused children last year.

Schoolkids pool resources to free the real Willy

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Call them Ishmaels. Only this time, instead of the tale of Moby Dick, they're trying to tell the world about Keiko, a captive killer whale who starred in the summer box office hit Free Willy.

These youngsters from Tampa's Northwest Elementary School are reaching out to children everywhere through crayons and computers, asking for $1 of their allowance for a whale-sized dream — to free the real Willy.

"I hope a lot of students around the world learn about this and put up posters and raise money to help," said 9-year-old Nicole Meyer. "I hope one day Keiko can go back to the sea like Willy did in the movie, but I know it won't be right away because he's been hand-fed and is sickly."

The mission of the 5- to 10-year-old pupils, who hope to raise $1 million, leaves scientists divided over whether such whales can be returned to the wild after captivity. It's never been done.

As the children campaign for dollars, some marine experts hope to find Keiko's family, then let the whales talk to each other by satellite and hydrophones. Conservationists say if Keiko can be rehabilitated and his pod identified, the phone hookup could lead to his release back into the North Atlantic.

Nonsense, say scientists associated with marine parks that have captive orcas; it's untried, and chances are unlikely that a killer whale could successfully be returned to the ocean after 12 years in captivity.

Keiko, 3 1/2 tons and 21 feet long, lives at Nuevo Reino Aventura amusement park in Mexico City where he has been a top attraction for eight years.

He's underweight and suffers from a skin disease. His tank is 115 feet by 66 feet and less than 20 feet deep. There's little dispute that it's too small and the water is too warm.

Free Willy, a Warner Bros. film, tells the story of the bond that grows between a 12-year-old named Jesse and a killer whale. Both are abandoned, uncooperative and headed for a bleak future — until the boy sets Willy free.

The movie stole the hearts and imagination of the 953 Northwest students who began Operation Free

Keiko less than a month ago. They opened a bank account, raised $300, named a trustee for the fund and got a national wire number for contributions from other cities.

The children set priorities for spending the money: medical attention and a device to cool Keiko's tank; a larger facility for exercise; another orca for companionship and finally, freedom.
