PAMPA — A 42-year-old Pampa man is in satisfactory condition today at Amarillo's Northwest Texas Hospital following an accident in Pampa Saturday evening.

Jose Soto, of 309 Canadian, was transported to Northwest Texas Hospital after he was treated in the emergency room of Coronado Hospital for injuries he sustained in a one-car accident at approximately 10:45 p.m. Saturday. At the time of the accident, Soto was driving a 1977 Ford pickup and was not wearing his seatbelt, according to police.

PAMPA -- Gray County Republican Executive Committee will meet at 7 p.m. today at the Teenage Republican office in the Hughes Building.

FORT WORTH (AP) — Police say Channing Elizabeth Freelove and Melanie Golchert were last seen when they went out to celebrate Ms. Freelove's 19th birthday Friday night.

Their bodies were found early Saturday. They were lying face down next to a car in a vacant parking lot in southwest Fort Worth and had been shot to death, police say.

Ms. Freelove was a freshman pre-med student at Texas Christian University, and Ms. Golchert attended Tarrant County Junior College.

The deaths were ruled homicides. Police declined to speculate on a motive.

Gloria Franco, a Tarrant County medical investigator, said Ms. Freelove's spinal cord was severed by a gunshot wound to the right side of her neck. Ms. Golchert, 18, of Corpus Christi was shot several times to the right side of the head, Ms. Franco said.

DALLAS (AP) — The federal bankruptcy fraud trial is set to begin for Dallas psychic Terri Hoffman, who drew national attention in 1990 after several of her followers died and left her money.

Mrs. Hoffman, 55, was arraigned Friday on a 12-count indictment. She entered innocent pleas on all counts. FBI investigators say Mrs. Hoffman, who filed for bankruptcy on Oct. 22, 1991, hid $120,000 from the court.

The indictment also alleges that Mrs. Hoffman made a deal to sell her life story, promising some people 15 percent of the profits.

Jury selection was scheduled to begin today.

That life story is clouded by the deaths of 10 people close to her, four of whom committed suicide. Most left everything to Mrs. Hoffman, a high school dropout who claims to communicate with an assortment of spirits.

HOUSTON (AP) — George W. Bush says he wants to get tough on juvenile crime — and Gov. Ann Richards' record on it — during the 1994 gubernatorial race.

The governor's Republican challenger says that juvenile crime has been put on the back burner while state lawmakers, under Richards' leadership, have dealt with prison overcrowding and parole issues for adult offenders.

Meanwhile, he says, the number of violent children committed to the state custody of the Texas Youth Commission is up and the length of their incarceration is down.

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A California man's $200,000 research gift to Texas A&M University is under federal scrutiny, the Bryan College-Station Eagle has reported.

The Securities and Exchange Commission is trying to determine if the April 1992 donation from William L. Telander is part of a $7.8 million fraud case the agency is investigating. The SEC has charged Telander, fellow businessman Roger C. Briggs and a financial institution called Southwest International Exchange with several violations of securities laws in California.

NAFTA debate continues in Washington

By JIM ABRAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — NAFTA backers are using words like tragedy and catastrophe — and worrying aloud about a threat to the entire Clinton presidency — if they fail to win the trade agreement vote Wednesday.

President Clinton, who has acknowledged that rejection of the North Atlantic Free Trade Agreement could hamper him in other trade disputes, was meeting heads of several small businesses today as part of an 11th hour drive to stave off defeat.

Anti-NAFTA forces, including a majority of Democrats, are still thought to have the edge, although the administration claims the gap is narrowing.

"If we turn this one down, we're nuts, they're going to think around the world that we're on the ropes, wackos," former Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca said on NBC this morning. "I told Clinton I'd hate to be your trade negotiator if we blow this one."

Vice President Al Gore, on CBS' "Face the Nation," said "a defeat for NAFTA in the foreign policy arena would be really catastrophic."

Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen, a guest on NBC's "Meet the Press," said failure to approve the free trade pact with Mexico and Canada would be a "real tragedy" that would tie the administration's hands as it seeks more open trade with Asia and the 110 members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

Clinton goes to Seattle a day after the House vote for an Asian-Pacific economic summit, and Gore said a vote against free trade "would be a terrible thing to do to the president, to do to the country."

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., spoke in even more dire terms, saying a NAFTA defeat "endangers the presidency." He said on NBC that rejection "will be viewed in the world as a self-destructive act by the American Congress."

Bradley said the NAFTA vote was a "historic moment," comparing it to Thomas Jefferson's Louisiana Purchase or the acquisition of Alaska in 1867.

NAFTA foes, including the second and third-ranked Democrats in the House, brushed off questions about hurting the president. Majority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., said on "Face the Nation," that the issue is one "I feel we've got to get right and I don't think this NAFTA is the right NAFTA."

House Majority Whip David Bonior of Michigan, on NBC, repeated his argument that NAFTA would mean lower wages for Americans and the loss of up to 500,000 jobs to Mexico.

But he stressed that the Democratic Party "will reunite."

Fire damages business

Pampa's Fire Marshal's Office was assisting members of the State Fire Marshal's Office today in the investigation of an early Sunday morning fire at a local furniture store.

The Pampa Fire Department battled the two-alarm fire at Johnson Home Furnishings, 801 W. Francis, approximately 2 to 2 1/2 hours before bringing it fire under control. It was reported at 12:15 a.m. Sunday.

Before the fire was contained, however, off-duty fire department personnel were called in to assist in extinguishing the blaze.

Emergency personnel were called from Lefors to help man Pampa's two fire stations. The cause of the fire has not been established, according to a fire department representative.

Damages to the store by the smoke and fire was estimated to be between $125,000 and $150,000, according to Fire Marshal Tom Adams.

To help establish a cause, two representatives of the state's Fire Marshal's Office came to Pampa Sunday. They were joined by another investigator and a specially trained dog used to investigate fire today.

Troy McKee, deputy state fire marshal; Allen Neighbors, a deputy for the Texas Commission of Fire Protection; and Mark Cheney, assistant regional director for the State Fire Marshal's Office and canine handler, were expected to spend the morning searching for clues as to what started the fire.

Michael Jackson-Pepsi marriage fizzles

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Jackson and Pepsi are parting ways.

The soft drink giant canned its backing of the superstar on Sunday, two days after Jackson backed out of a world tour claiming he was addicted to painkillers.

His habit took hold after he was burned by a fire on a Pepsi commercial set in 1984, Jackson said.

The Pepsi endorsement was scheduled to end at the same time that Jackson's "Dangerous" tour ended. Jackson called a halt to the tour Friday.

"The cancellation of the tour really effectively cancels our relationship with Michael right now," Pepsi spokesman Gary Hemphill said Saturday. "We just hope he is able to resolve his problems."

Britain's tabloids speculated that Jackson was fleeing from possible arrest.

"Drug Treatment Star Faces Life On The Run," said the Sunday Express. "Hunt for Jacko the Fugitive," said the News of the World. The Mail on Sunday said, "Michael Jackson was in hiding last night ... his world tour scrapped and his life in tatters."

The Sunday Mirror quoted Los Angeles attorney Richard Hirsch, who represents the 13-year-old boy, as saying Jackson has run out of excuses for staying out of America. "If he fled to avoid these charges, it is a very sad situation for everyone concerned," Hirsch was quoted as saying.

don and, possibly, Switzerland, where his friend, actress Elizabeth Taylor, owns a chalet.

But there were no sightings of the elusive singer or his entourage.

Photographers and camera crews staked out the exclusive Charter Clinic in London's upmarket Chelsea district, for a second day Sunday. But the clinic, which provides drug rehabilitation treatment and guarantees privacy, resolutely refused to say whether the star was there.

"I cannot confirm or deny that Michael Jackson is here," duty manager Jane Pitcaithly said. The pop superstar was to have performed Sunday in San Juan, Puerto Rico, his first appearance on U.S. soil since the molestation investigation began.

Britain's tabloids speculated that Jackson was fleeing from possible arrest.

Rising rates may be boosting loan applications

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising interest rates are not driving people out of the mortgage market yet, lenders say, and may even be boosting loan applications by consumers fearing even higher borrowing costs.

"Volume hasn't slowed up," said Paul Reid, president of American Home Funding, a Richmond, Va., mortgage banker. "If anything, we might have a little bit less in refinancing volume, but that's been made up by increased purchase applications."

Ron J. McCord, president of the American Mortgage & Investment Co., says his Oklahoma City business has seen a definite increase recently and attributes it to fears that rates will continue to climb.

"I think there's a perception that interest rates may have bottomed out and that now is good time to get into the home buying market and locking into the low rates," he explained.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. reported that interest rates on 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages rose slightly to 7.12 percent last week, from 7.11 percent during the week ended Nov. 4.

It was the third consecutive increase after the average hit a 25-year low of 6.74 percent in October and marked the second week in a row the average has been higher than 7 percent. Before dropping, rates had averaged less than 7 percent for 10 straight weeks.

Many analysts believe rates will remain near 7 percent for the foreseeable future and not return to double-digit figures seen during much of the 1980s.

Warren Lasko, executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association, expects rates to inch up to 7.25 percent by year's end.

David Scanzoni, a spokesman for First Union Corp. in Charlotte, N.C., also foresees rates stabilizing. At least, he said, "there will be no dramatic upward spike."

The mortgage application boom began in early 1992 when rates fell below 9 percent. Rates averaged 8.07 percent as 1993 began and, until recently, continued to fall during most of the year.

A Mortgage Bankers survey showed applications during the week ended Nov. 5 slipped 3 percent from the previous week. But they still were averaging about 1 million a month and still were 43 percent above those a year earlier.

Commission interviews county attorney candidate

Gray County Commissioners were in executive session at noon today discussing the applicants for the county attorney after interviewing the second applicant earlier this morning.

Assistant District Attorney Tracey Jennings Blades appeared before the commission today to interview for the position which is to be vacated the first of the year.

In other business, the commissioners authorized payment of $15,000 for a building at 112 S. Cuyler to be renovated for another $5,000 and used for storage and expansion of the White Deer Land Museum.

The commission authorized the County Judge to execute an oil and gas lease on Gaines County School Lands property held by Gray County.

The commission also approved the purchase a piece of equipment to help count ballots, purchase of computer equipment for the extension service, purchase of software for the 223rd District Judge's office, and purchase of equipment, including radios and rifles, for the sheriff's department.

They also voted to write a letter requesting help in the form of surplus property and financial help from the Texas Commission on Fire Protection on behalf of the Hoover Fire Dept., approved the 223rd District Judge's request to hire a new bailiff to replace R.C. Parker who is retiring, and passed a resolution designating English as the common governing language and agreed to sell delinquent tax property at 836 E. Gordan for $400 and 1203-1209 S. Clark for $1,000.

It's Reveille time

DALLAS (AP) — Texas A&M has unveiled Reveille VI, a collie puppy who will become the Aggies' newest mascot when 9-year-old Reveille V is retired after Texas A&M's Thanksgiving Day football game against the Texas Longhorns.

The university put the 10-week-old little fluff ball on display Saturday, during halftime of the Aggies' game in Kyle Stadium against the University of Louisville.

Saturday's announcement capped a months-long search for the new mascot, an A&M tradition since the mid-1930s. School officials said they wanted just the right dog, since Reveille makes appearances year-round at Aggies' athletic and alumni events and has full run of the campus.

"We had to look for personality — a dog who's friendly, likes to be around people, doesn't mind being held and petted," Jeff Heath, a member of the A&M Corps of Cadets, who helped lead the search, told The Dallas Morning News.

The dog also had to have the "Reveille look" — white stockings, white mane and a honey-kissed coat.

Reveille VI belongs to Pat Marshall of Plano, a 42-year-old receptionist for an A&M-educated veterinarian, who has bred collies for 14 years. She donated the puppy to the university.

Pampa earth science students observe National Geography Awareness Week

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

When Pampa Middle School instructor Margaret Williams tells her earth science students about the ocean waves rolling in and breaking at the shore, a number of them find it difficult to visualize the scene, she said.

"I have a lot of students who haven't been to the Gulf of Mexico," Williams explained.

A geographical barrier contributes to ignorance of the seashore by some PMS students. Williams, who grew up near the Gulf of Mexico in Port Arthur, estimated that it takes 12 to 13 hours to travel by car from Pampa to the Texas coast.

Williams, who teaches the earth science course to eighth grade students, is among the instructors at PMS — in the subjects of science and history and in the gifted and talented program — who plan to celebrate National Geography Awareness Week. The week began Sunday and continues through Saturday.

The theme for this year's geography awareness week is "Water Matters: Every Day, Everywhere, Every Way," said Cay Warner, the instructor for the gifted and talented (PEP) program at PMS. Warner also supervises PMS's annual participation in the National Geography Bee competition, which is traditionally held at the school in December or January.

"We all need water to live, and we need to know how we get our water and we need to watch how we use our water," Warner said.

Warner emphasized that many people are not aware of the practical applications of geography — a multifaceted subject area dealing with topography as well as climates and population patterns, among other topics — even though those practical applications are pervasive.

In regard to the water theme, Warner noted that towns are often settled based partly on the presence of a natural water supply in the area.

In a National Geographic Society informational brochure that was issued for National Geography Awareness Week, Gilbert M. Grosvenor, president and chairman of the board of the Society, warned that "the United States is already facing a type of budget deficit every bit as daunting as its fiscal one. Our freshwater supply in some regions is being used faster than nature can replenish it. ... In some parts of Texas, the water table of the Ogallala aquifer has dropped 100 feet since the 1940s. And we continue to pollute our water supplies in dozens of ways."

According to the National Geographic Society, Americans consume an average per person of 100 gallons of water a day domestically; two-thirds of the world's people use less than 13 gallons a day.

On a cheerier note in regard to water, Rachel Laycock, an eighth grade student in the gifted and talented program at PMS, said her favorite lake is Eufaula Lake in eastern Oklahoma.

"It's big, and it's a lot of fun to go to," Laycock said. "You can fish and swim and ski."

Another eighth-grade honor student of Warner, Tiffany McCullough, looked no farther than the Panhandle in identifying her favorite lakes: Greenbelt Reservoir and Lake Meredith.

A third enthusiastic opinion on the favorite lake issue came from eighth-grader Matt Harp, who is enrolled in the gifted and talented program. Table Rock Lake in southwestern Missouri is his favorite, Harp said, because it is "real big" and permits swimming, fishing and water-skiing.

Harp based his opinion on travels through about 10 states, most of them in the west.

Mac Thornberry entering GOP primary for U.S. representative

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

Clarendon native Mac Thornberry has thrown his hat into the Gray County political arena when he announced his candidacy for U.S. representative of the 13th District.

Republican Thornberry, if successful in the March primary, would face incumbent Bill Sarpalius (D-Amarillo) in the November contest.

The candidate spoke to a gathering of about 20 encouraging supporters at Teenage Republican headquarters Friday. He decried Sarpalius' vote on the Clinton budget bill as being a vote for party instead of for his district.

He told supporters that his family roots in the district run deep, and his six years employment for the federal government trained him in how to get things done on Capitol Hill. There is a place for integrity in government, he said.

"My vote is not for sale, rent or lease," the 35-year old attorney said. Following his presentation to supporters, Thornberry discussed his personal-philosophies and vision for America.

If he could have his way, America would have a government that did the proper functions of government efficiently and effectively, he said. The functions of government include combating crime, providing a social safety net and an environment of opportunity for business.

The first priority of federal government should be to provide for the national defense, he said.

"It is a mistake to send the military into a situation and then tie their hands," Thornberry said.

The military should be assigned specific objectives, and when accomplished they should leave, he said.

He believes government should encourage business development.

"Government has to create an environment of opportunity. That includes economic policies," he said.

Increasing environmental regulations are damaging agriculture and energy in this district, he said.

Thornberry was not willing to cast a figurative vote on the North American Free Trade Agreement. The agreement remains in negotiation, he said, and without seeing the final document he is unwilling to say how he would vote if he were a member of the House of Representatives. Generally, Thornberry said, he believes in free trade and an agreement with Mexico is a good idea.

On abortion, Thornberry said he takes a pro-life position. He is opposed to federal funding for abortion.

"As a Republican, I think it is a mistake for us to have any litmus test for abortion," he said.

Abortion is a question of where conscience and beliefs take you, Thornberry said. In his opinion, the divided nature of the Republican Party over the abortion issue is more like the division of American society about it. That is unlike the Democratic Party, which appears to be unified in its support for abortion on demand, he noted.

When his personal beliefs differ from those of the district, he said, he would vote his conscience. Thornberry doubts that will become an issue except perhaps on matters of foreign policy when information available to a congressman is different than that available to the public. In that case, he said, he would be unable to depend as much on public opinion for guidance.

On domestic issues, he said, priorities would be on doing what is right for the district and the nation.

"If the congressman for the 13th District doesn't stand up for the 13th District, who will?" he said.

Thornberry said he has seen the Republican Party evolve from former President Richard Nixon's east coast Republican/small business coalition to the inclusive party of the Reagan years. He said that with a clear choice, Americans tend to vote for lower taxes and spending.

The inflation and increased taxes of the Carter years brought more people into the Republican party, Thornberry said.

"The Republican Party has become the party of working people and small business," he said.

Thornberry believes he is unique in his qualification for the House of Representatives. He believes his rural upbringing coupled with his Washington experience working for former Congressman Tom Loeffler (R-Texas), Congressman Larry Combest (R-Texas) and as deputy assistant secretary of state for legislative affairs under Secretary of State George Schultz enables him to provide effective representation for the district.

The candidate said he did not want the district to lose if voters decide to change representatives.

"The important thing is for a congressman to remember who he works for," he said.

Desk & Derrick Club to have geologist as program speaker

Because of the upcoming Thanksgiving holiday, the Desk and Derrick Club of Pampa will hold its regularly scheduled meeting one week earlier.

The club will meet Tuesday at the Pampa Country Club. Social time begins at 6:30 p.m., with the dinner and program following at 7 p.m.

Guest speaker for the November meeting will be Jerry Steed, consulting geologist.

His program will be on "Review of Exploration Geology in the Anadarko Basin."

Steed has been an independent consulting geologist for several years. He was chief exploration geologist for Getty Oil Co., Harrington Brothers and various other companies.

Steed acquired his bachelor of science degree from West Texas State University in Canyon. He holds memberships in the Panhandle Geologic Society, Association of Petroleum Geologists and West Texas Geologic Society.

Speaker to discuss drug, alcohol abuse

A speaker from Tennessee will be in Pampa Tuesday and Wednesday to talk about drug and alcohol abuse.

Pampa Independent School District's Student Assistance Program is sponsoring the speeches by Brenda White-Wright from Kingsport, Tenn.

Wright is scheduled to speak at a parents' meeting beginning at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Pampa High School auditorium. The topic of her speech will be "Motivating Your Students: From Excuses to Excellence." Admission to the speech is free; the event is open to the public.

Wright will also speak on Wednesday to PISD secondary students at Pampa High School, Pampa Learning Center and Pampa Middle School. Each of her speeches on Wednesday is expected to last 30 minutes and is titled "How Do You Spell Success: Education!"

Wright's speech before the PHS student body on Wednesday is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. in the PHS gym; her speech before PLC students is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. at the school, located in the basement of Clarendon College-Pampa Center; and her speech before PMS sixth graders is scheduled to begin at about 1 p.m. that day. Wright may also talk to other middle school students during her visit to Pampa Middle School.

Wright has more than 20 years of experience in business management, organizational development, multiculturalism, youth issues, public relations, and radio and television media. She graduated cum laude from East Tennessee State University. Since 1983, Wright has worked as executive director of Girls Incorporated, a United Way Agency.

PISD's Student Assistance Program, coordinated by PISD employee Lesley Koetting, is funded through the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse. The PISD program provides drug- and alcohol-abuse prevention services to families served by the school district and assists students who are at risk of dropping out of school.

Koetting is also sponsor of the D-FY-IT group at Pampa High School. She announced on Friday that the number of D-FY-IT members at PHS this school year has grown to 266. D-FY-IT stands for Drug-Free Youth in Texas, a nationwide organization based in Texas.

Smoke stack collapses at Texas Utilities plant

MOUNT PLEASANT (AP) — Searchers went through rubble throughout the night, hoping to find a person missing in Sunday's collapse of a 600-foot concrete emissions stack onto a Texas Utilities Electric power plant.

Four people were injured, and one other person was believed trapped inside the plant by the 10:15 a.m. collapse.

The unit is in a rural area just outside Mount Pleasant, about 120 miles east of Dallas.

A company spokesman said the cause of the accident was unclear. The emissions stack fell atop the rear part of the plant, crushing it, said Gordon Hall, a spokesman for the TU Electric Monticello Stream Generating Plant.

Rescue workers sought for the missing person for the remainder of Sunday and through the night with the help of lighting equipment, a company spokesman said. Engineers were muddling through the rubble and examining the structure.

"There's a mass of twisted concrete, steel and metal. It's just kind of a tangled mess," Hall said.

Four people were taken to Titus County Memorial Hospital. Two were admitted, one was released and another was transferred to Good Shepherd Hospital in Longview, Hall said.

None was thought to be in life-threatening conditioning condition.

There are three 25-foot-wide emission stacks at the plant that discharge steam. Hall said the plant is operated around the clock.

The stack that collapsed had been shut down for annual maintenance, Hall said.

"Workers were cleaning out the inside of the stack with high pressure water, but it's routine annual maintenance," Hall said. "There is nothing to suggest that that had anything to do with the accident."

Hall said that had the unit been running at full capacity, additional workers would have been at the site, increasing the chance for injuries. About 60 workers were at the site.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Huckster Hillary practices overkill

First lady Hillary Rodham Clinton's nostalgia-inducing attack on the health-insurance industry — ah, remember the viscerally anti-capitalist rhetoric of the '60s radicals, back when her political views were formed and apparently set in stone? — should remind us that when you politicize some aspect of life, you set the stage for ill-tempered confrontations and accusations.

If you want more finger-pointing and ill-tempered accusations, you'll love the Clinton health plan.

But the accusation of greed and profiteering on the part of insurance companies is particularly inappropriate coming from Hillary Clinton. As Business Week pointed out in its Nov. 1 issue, the first lady has arranged her own investment portfolio so as to profit, as the magazine put it, "from the pain her proposals are inflicting on health-care stocks, which have plummeted in 1993."

She has about $100,000 in Valuepartners I Fund, which has a stake in the decline of health-care stocks. As Business Week put it, "Valuepartners is a hedge fund, which means it regularly shorts stocks. So, the more Clinton's proposals drive down health-care stock prices, the more she prospers. And the fund was up 14 percent for the first eight months of the year, says another investor in it. This performance is almost twice as good as that of the S&P 500 index."

Hillary Clinton claims not to have known of the fund's health-care holdings until the first couple filed a financial disclosure. An aide said no conflict of interest exists because she's a policy planner making broad proposals, not a regulator with day-to-day power over individual firms.

That's disingenuous, at best. And her attack on an industry — apparently provoked by some sectors of the industry having the effrontery to pay for TV ads questioning the wisdom of a plan calculated to put many of them out of business — raises serious questions about her ability to be disinterested and dispassionate in shaping broad policy.

The first lady apparently has a visceral, emotional dislike of insurance companies. And she has positioned herself to profit when she uses her bully pulpit to attack them.

All this overheated rhetoric is the predictable result of any ambitious attempt at further government control (and further politicization) of an industry. The ads were sponsored by the Health Insurance Association of America, which represents small- to medium-sized companies. Most analysts believe that if the Clinton plan is adopted, the mandatory government bargaining agents it envisions will favor a few large companies, forcing most of the 1,500 smaller companies offering health insurance out of business; indeed, President Clinton hinted that such a "consolidation" would be desirable in his health-care speech. So, these companies are literally fighting for their lives.

And Hillary Clinton is fighting for her political life, with polls showing big declines in public support for the Clinton health-care mandates.

So, expect more rhetorical overkill.

Dangerous to deal with Perot

It was a mistake for the Clinton people to decide to debate with Ross Perot.

Perot is a crank, who on some issues says the right thing. The principal reason for his popularity is that many Americans are in a cranky mood, and they have a lot to be cranky about. When Perot tells them that special interests tend to dominate public policy, he is telling them the exact truth. When he says that the government is overgrown with fat and inefficiency, he is also telling them the truth. When he tells us that the Republican Party conspired to get in the way of his daughter's wedding, he reveals that there is a little of the loony in him.

But Americans are indulgent toward eccentrics, and though Perot lost a great deal by his melodramatic departure from the presidential race, followed by his re-entry, still he persuaded 19 percent of the voters of either of the following two propositions, take your pick:

- (1) Ross Perot should be president;
- (2) George Bush and Bill Clinton are a Hobson's choice for president.

But there is one strength that Perot has above all others, and it can play havoc against any reasoned arguments from Vice President Al Gore. It is the capacity to be quaint and avuncular and endearing.

Americans over, oh, 45 or so will remember the Hollywood character Gabby Hayes. He would sit there, heavily unshaven alongside Hopalong Cassidy at the campfire, and say in accents so heavily twangy one had to strain to understand him that the Cherokees hidden around them were pretty mean fellers, or that little Johnnie needed to get to a doc real fast.

Ross Perot is the Gabby Hayes of contemporary politics. But no Hollywood casting director would have put him up to argue for or against slavery with William F. Buckley Jr.

Raymond Massey depicting Abraham Lincoln, for the simple reason that, inevitably, some members of the audience would be attracted to slavery.

Those who have a pipeline into the White House, which excludes this critic, may have been witness to a situation in which the managers of the NAFTA campaign, meeting with the president in the Oval Office, say to themselves: We need to take a chance. We have to have 60 more Democratic congressmen that we can now count on. The principal spokesman for the opposition to NAFTA is Ross Perot.

Sure, there is a risk in trying to match his brand of demagogic bumptiousness, but it's a risk we simply have to take, given that there is always the possibility that he will trip up against his own general ignorance.

Not long ago Perot appeared on a national program and when asked how he would reduce federal spending, indulged himself in a fit of indignation because, he said, if he had known he was going to be asked how to reduce spending, he'd have brought along his notes. For someone with Perot's professional position about government spending, to need notes on how to reduce spending is the equivalent of a lawyer needing notes on what's in the Bill of Rights.

But the decision to go with Perot is a huge risk. For one thing, the debating style of Al Gore is straight Ivy League, so that the contract WILL be viewed on the order of Raymond Massey vs. Gabby Hayes. The very first danger is a live audience, for the simple reason that Gore is not funny, and he is not a polemical swordsman whose slashes and whirrs can bring down the house.

But every other remark made by Gabby Perot is exactly of that character, wisely and impudently iconoclastic, and playing to the anti-government instincts of the American people. There is every reason in the world to be anti-government, but Gore isn't well enough endowed to oppose that particular case and drive it home.

So: No live audience should have been a specification of the White House. This isn't an issue we want put up to the spontaneous vote of the people jam-packed in a stadium.

But hark! When Perot accepted the White House challenge, he immediately announced that he had exactly in mind where in Tampa, Detroit and Seattle the three debates — his election, three debates — would be held, and he drew out his arms to suggest crowds of the kind that come to town to listen to the Rolling Stones.

The proper arena for discussion of this nature is a setting such as one has on This Week With David Brinkley, or on The MacNeill/Lehrer Newshour, where as little scope as possible is given to polemical ostentation and the wisecracking H. Ross Perot specializes in.

It would be good to have the confidence that the American people will not be guided, in their misuses to their legislators, by the hot-flush enthusiasm of a wild ride with Ross Perot lassoing a city slicker on television. But the risk is inordinate.

The brain is the final frontier

Alaska's Gov. Walter Hickel said it: "The greatest frontier is within us."

This is not the first time you and I have contemplated the final frontier, "inner space"; now everybody is adventuring in that direction.

The Wall Street Journal recently gave Page One prominence to an updated understanding of the human brain.

The Archives of General Psychiatry are relating mental health to "the wiring" in the human brain.

Veterans administration research at Yale is seeking to pinpoint "where in the brain the mind is located," hopeful thus to develop drugs for treating a wide range of fear-related disorders — anxiety, depression, panic, phobias and the post-traumatic stress disorder that military medics used to call "shell shock" or "combat fatigue."

Somewhere in the recesses of the human brain, we might learn the source of the awesome power of prayer.

Our government is allocating $2 billion a year to understanding this 3-pound human organ.

Congress has called this "The Decade of the Brain."

Paul Harvey

By studying the brain as it carries out such functions as vision, movement, language and memory, scientists are opening new vistas on the biology, chemistry and genetics of the brain.

The Wall Street Journal, ever conscious of the multiple benefits of successful research, discovered "scores of laboratories and hundreds of scientists" seeking to learn how the brain orchestrates the moment-to-moment functions of life.

Powerful new imaging devices now allow us to examine the brain "in FOUR dimensions."

Already, we have confirmed the philosophers and psychologists who have believed — but could not prove — "mammals have an inborn learning."

We are born with the capacity to react to loud noise, to soft music, even to fearful sights.

A just-born monkey will instinctively freeze at the sight of a snake.

Fear, we now know, is "hard-wired" into the brain.

Will our new studies show us how to respond when some of this hard wiring gets short-circuited? We know pitifully little about stroke rehabilitation because we have not understood the pathways of the brain's "wiring"; we are learning that now.

A Niagara of research has been unleashed by an NYU finding relating to electrical never currents in and out of the amygdala.

You and I are indeed "run by electricity." The chemicals which generate that electricity relate to nutrition and thus are controllable.

Each day, we are uncovering new clues to disorders ranging from involuntary tremors to migraines and depression.

If you suffer from any such, even a few months of patience may be significantly rewarding.

It's time to end drug war madness

Optimism, F. Scott Fitzgerald once wrote, is the content of small men in high places.

Maybe that explains why the politicians keep pumping money into the war on drugs. No government program has failed more abysmally, yet we push on with it, year after year. Nothing we have tried has worked. Planes, ships, dope-sniffing dogs, police, prisons — nothing works. The drug war is a catastrophe.

Drug use? Even as measured by the government's fatuous surveys, the late '80s decline in drug use has bottomed out. Heroin use is on the increase and more young people are using marijuana, cocaine, crack, LSD and assorted hallucinogens.

The criminal justice system? The criminal justice system is devoting so much of its "resources and attention to drug offenses (that it is on the) fast track to collapse," said Neal Sonnett, chairman of the American Bar Association's criminal justice section, last February.

Prisons? The number of adults imprisoned for drug offenses soared 327 percent from 1986 to 1991. Thanks to lengthy mandatory sentences for drug offenders, violent criminals are being turned out to make room for them.

And the killing? My God, the killing. Within an hour's drive of my home in Maryland suburbs of Washington, about 1,000 human beings are murdered each year. As I write these words, 382 people have been slain since the first of January in the nation's capital. At least half of all homicides, maybe more, are drug related. If current trends continue, the Senate Judiciary Committee has estimated, more than 250,000 Americans will die in drug-related murders in this decade.

Joseph Spear

During the Bush administration's war on drugs, we spent $32 billion trying to purge the scourge. And what did we get for our money? Drugs flooded the streets, the criminal justice system went to hell and nearly 80,000 people were murdered.

Isn't it time we tried something else? Personally, I'd like to hear a robust national debate on the advantages and disadvantages of decriminalizing drugs. I think such a system would take the profit out of drug dealing and thereby halve the murder rate and maybe even revive our desolated cities.

I see a system in which marijuana and diluted forms of cocaine would be legal. Hard drugs would be decriminalized and addicts treated as medical patients. The potency of drugs would be regulated, the product taxed, sellers licensed, advertising forbidden, sales to minors outlawed. I believe black market prices would be undercut a hundredfold, traffickers would go out of business and drug-related crime would dissipate.

I can even see the crack cocaine market drying up. With safer drugs legally available at a fraction of the price, who would use it? Kids? Would the South American cartels stay in business to service adolescents? Where are the bootleggers who exist to supply underage drinkers?

Baltimore Sun columnist Michael Olesker once asked a drug dealer who was raking in $350,000 a year how decriminalization would affect him. "It would put me out of business," the dealer said. "When?" asked Olesker. "Tomorrow," said the dealer.

In 1928, with the nation in the throes of an unprecedented crime wave, thanks largely to the ban on booze, President Herbert Hoover created the Wickersham Commission to study how prohibition might be better enforced. Most of the commissioners concluded prohibition was a failure and ought to be abolished.

It is time — nay, it is way past time — for a presidential commission on the drug war. Do it, Mr. Clinton, and be sure to appoint some decriminalization advocates — people like Baltimore Mayor Kurt Schmoke, conservative columnist William F. Buckley Jr., liberal columnist Anthony Lewis, former Secretary of State George Shultz, Nobel Prize-winning economist Milton Friedman, federal district judge Robert Sweet — and let's talk it out.

To go on like we are is sheer madness.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

SILENCE SEPARATES SISTER MORE THAN MILES OR YEARS

DEAR ABBY: I've been an avid fan of yours since I learned to read. At 35, I finally need your advice.

My sister is 10 years older than I am, and lives on the other side of the continent. We are both married and have children. She is an engineer and I am an attorney.

I have not heard from her for two years. She and her kids call my mother and other sister on an intermittent basis, but she never calls me. No letters, no Christmas cards, no thank-you notes for gifts I send to her and her family. I have no idea why she is shutting me out, and she apparently hasn't discussed it with our mom or my other sister.

I have pretty much decided to quit trying to contact her. My resentment of her silence has been festering for so long I'm afraid to call her for fear she will hurt me more, or I will overreact and say something stupid. I don't want to necessarily shut her children out, but since they are now teen-agers and have yet to write or call to thank me for birthday and Christmas gifts, I have decided not to send them anything else.

I think about my sister frequently. It makes me sad, but I'm tired of butting my head against a wall. Maybe it would hurt less if I took down the family pictures and washed them out of my mind and heart for good.

What would you do, Abby?

SISTERLESS

DEAR SISTERLESS: I would either call my sister or write to her and tell her exactly what you have told me in your letter.

Please let me know how you fare. If you have done something to offend her and her children, she should let you know what it was. She owes you and explanation for her extended silence. And her children — now teenagers — are certainly old enough to acknowledge Christmas and birthday gifts.

***

DEAR ABBY: Last winter, my husband had to be placed in a home for the mentally disturbed. My question: Should his name be included on our Christmas cards? PUZZLED IN ST. CHARLES, MO.

DEAR PUZZLED: Absolutely.

DEAR ABBY: Now and then I read amusing anecdotes in your column. I would like to share one with you that I have used for many years, when speaking to audiences on the subject of old age and retirement. (The author is unknown.)

On opening his new store, a man received a bouquet of flowers. He became dismayed on reading the enclosed card, which expressed deep sympathy. While puzzling over the message, his telephone rang. It was the florist, apologizing for having sent the wrong card.

"Oh, it's all right," said the storekeeper. "I'm a businessman and I understand how these things can happen."

"But," added the florist, "I sent your card to a funeral party."

"Well, what did it say?" asked the storekeeper.

"Congratulations on your new location," was the reply. SELIG J. KAVKA, M.D.

DEAR DR. KAVKA: Funny story! And I'm sure it gave your audience a lift.

By FRANCINE PARNES For AP Special Features

If they weren't so puffy, it'd make perfect sense to store outdated parkas and wait for them to come into fashion again.

Alas, avid skiers would rather spend their paychecks on lift tickets instead of big closets, so they'll have to tackle the slopes in last year's drab or ante up for something bright. But no neon.

"Orange, yellow and red — the colors of sunrise — are three happening colors, and they're back in a big way," according to Hollis Brooks, fashion editor of Skiing magazine in Steamboat Springs, Colo.

Also, look for a longer length rather than a jacket cropped at the waist. It's a newer look, and you can wear it off the slopes, too.

Not a bad idea, considering that it takes a minimum of $750 to keep warm and dry. That includes the basic parka and ski pants or a one-piece suit, a fleece Polartec pullover, polyester socks, gloves or mittens and hat and thermal underwear. Then there are the boots, the bindings, the skis, the lift tickets ....

"Skiwear generally is expensive because of the raw materials needed to make it windproof, durable, water resistant and insulated," says Wini Jones, vice president and design director for Roffe skiwear in Seattle. "There's fashionable skiwear and there's high-tech skiwear, but either way there are a lot more elements that go into a ski jacket than your everyday jacket."

Now, about color. Deep tones such as rust, chocolate and burgundy are out.

"Eddie Bauer and L.L. Bean may make a living from forest green, but skiers are looking for good-time, exuberant colors," Brooks says. "A buttoned-down banker who wears navy blue suits all week is looking forward to wearing a flash of orange on the ski slopes. For that couple of weeks a year, people want something beyond the classic, enduring stuff."

Crayon brights are a stand-out against the snow, says Edith Dixon, product manager for Tyrolia Skiwear and Head Sportswear in Columbia, Md.

"The primary colors really look good on the slopes," she says. "Besides, for skiing you want to wear something fun."

But ditch those neons. "They've had their day on the beach and the slopes," Brooks says. "You'll see occasional flashes of neon on ski equipment as an accent color, but I would put that in the 'out' column."

If your skiwear isn't totally adrift, try updating it with a hat, perhaps a beret or one of those funky, floppy, fleece hats that take their cue from urban hip-hop.

"If it looks slightly ridiculous like Dr. Suess' 'Cat in the Hat,' you're on the right track," Brooks says.

Other updates might include eye-catching straps for your goggles in unusual patterns such as flying fish or skulls and crossbones.

But anything fleece sells well, Dixon says, because it's a "feel-good fabric that people like to have next to their skin." Fleece-lined knit headbands from Tyrolia, some with embroidered logos, come in a dozen colors and retail for $15 to $18 each.

While the longer, over-the-hip parkas appeal to that age group known for bigger waistlines and wider hips, the ski suit might appeal to the go-get-'em gonzo skier.

Bogner's one-piece suits in stretch wool, nylon and Lycra come in about a dozen colors, in solids or color blocking. For those seeking a little flair, there are silk-like novelty jacquards and 12-color embroideries. They retail for $600 to $1,100.

"More than any other look," says Don Schwamb of New York, Bogner's executive vice president, "the one-piece suit says, 'Let's go skiing.'"

Books

In "To Kill the Leopard" (Harcourt Brace), Theodore Taylor tells an exciting tale, half-fiction, half-fact, of the men and vessels that engaged in battle on the high seas.

Taylor, a merchant mariner in his youth, served at sea during the war and writes with authority.

The main protagonists of his story are Sullivan Jordan, a mate with 15 years in American tankers, and Horst Kammerer, a U-boat captain whose ambition is to sink at least 25 such ships and thus earn oak leaves and diamonds for the Iron Cross he has already won.

Jordan was aboard two of the ships sunk by Kammerer, whose U-boat sports leopards painted on its conning tower. But the sinkings took the lives of valued fellow officers and friends, and of Jordan's father.

Jordan joins the Navy shortly after U.S. entry into the war, when German U-boats are mauling coastwise shipping. The unprepared naval authorities, casting around desperately for some means to stop the massacre, decide to send out "Q-ships," merchantmen armed with hidden guns, intended to decoy U-boats to their destruction.

Jordan is appointed captain of one such vessel. He hopes to sink or help sink at least one U-boat, preferably the one with the leopards.

Castoff Kosar guides Cowboys past Cardinals

By ARNIE STAPLETON
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys didn't miss Troy Aikman nearly as much as the Cleveland Browns missed Bernie Kosar.

Kosar, dumped by Cleveland coach Bill Belichick last week because "his skills have diminished," subbed for the injured Aikman Sunday and guided Dallas to a 20-15 victory over the Phoenix Cardinals.

At Seattle, Todd Philcox, Kosar's replacement, threw two interceptions and lost two fumbles in the first half as the mistake-prone Browns lost to the Seahawks 22-5.

A strained left hamstring kept Aikman off the field, and a strained relationship took Kosar out of Cleveland.

"I'm not trying to put down Cleveland," said Phoenix coach Joe Bugel, "but Bernie is a good quarterback."

The Cowboys think so. Owner Jerry Jones is paying him $1 million on the hunch he'll help Dallas win successive NFL titles. The Browns paid Kosar more than three times that this season yet got no compensation for the quarterback who guided them to three AFC title games in the 1980s.

And now Dallas has the best starting and backup quarterbacks in the league.

The Cowboys (7-2) won their seventh straight as Kosar hit 13 of 21 passes for 199 yards and a 1-yard rollout touchdown to Jay Novacek in the second quarter that made it 17-0.

That score was set up when Emmitt Smith broke three tackles and turned a 5-yard pass into an 86-yard completion.

"It sure is beautiful to throw a 5-yard pass and then watch a guy run 80 yards with it," Kosar said.

Smith, who will be hard-pressed to win a third straight NFL rushing title because of his two-game contract holdout at the start of the season, said he didn't mind that they counted as reception yards.

"It doesn't matter how you get them as long as you get them," said Smith, who was suffering from a cold and needed two intravenous injections during halftime.

"It seems like every step I took, I was getting weaker and weaker," said Smith, who finished with 102 yards on four catches and 80 yards on 24 carries.

Safety Kenneth Gant secured the victory when he picked off a Chris Chandler pass intended for Ricky Proehl at the Dallas 35-yard line with 1:02 left in the game.

Gant acknowledged he missed his assignment to blitz on the play: "I never got it from the sideline because the crowd noise was so high."

"And when in doubt, just cover somebody. And that's the guy that I would have covered if we were in man-to-man coverage," Gant said. "So I covered him and I was in perfect position for the pick."

Jason Garrett made his first NFL start in place of Aikman, but Kosar came in with 4:49 left in the first period and led the Cowboys to a pair of second-quarter touchdowns.

His only mishap was being sacked for a safety by Chris Oldham.

"For Bernie to pull this off with limited practice time was commendable," Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said. "He had everything spinning in his head but did a tremendous job."

"I didn't want to let the coaches and the players on this great team down," Kosar said. "I'm just so happy we won. What a difference a week can make in a man's life."

Smith said: "He ran the team very positively, only he did some things out there that you normally don't see. You have to get used to playing with Bernie in game situations before you're going to figure him out."

"When Bernie plays, sometimes he's looking the other way and throws the ball right to you, and I don't know how he's able to do it," Smith said.

"The coaches and players really made it easy on me," said Kosar. "They did a phenomenal job of showing confidence in me."

Phoenix (3-7) rallied in the second half when Chandler hit Larry Centers with a 17-yard touchdown pass and Greg Davis kicked field goals of 19 and 47 yards.

Chandler hit 27 of 46 passes for 214 yards but had trouble getting Phoenix in the end zone.

"I thought we outplayed Dallas in the second half," Bugel said. "But in a big game you have to make all the plays."

Aikman said Kosar and Garrett played well, but he said he was eager to start against Atlanta next Sunday, providing his hamstring is healed.

"It does feel much better than it did last week," Aikman said. "It really felt pretty good today, but until I go out and start doing some jogging and trying to push it a little bit, I won't know how it's going to hold up."

Kosar said he, too, hopes Aikman can go but will be ready if he can't.

"I really had a good time playing today," Kosar said. "But I hope Troy's healthy because Troy deserves to go out there and play with this great team."

Despite loss, Pampa silenced Plainview's high-rolling offense

It wasn't supposed to be that close, according to the Harris Rating System, but the Pampa-Plainview Class 4A bi-district tilt was a battle-royal right to the final horn.

Harris had unbeaten Plainview favored by 23 points, but the Bulldogs were barely able to pull out a 9-7 squeaker, thanks to Pampa's rugged defense.

"It was an outstanding team effort," said Pampa head coach Dennis Cavalier. "There was a bunch of great individual plays, but it would be impossible to name them all. You could go down the list and name every player."

The bi-district showdown — at Canyon's Kimbrough Memorial Stadium Friday night — was reminiscent of Plainview's 14-8 win over Pampa during the regular season, but the Harvesters' defense was just a notch better this go-around. Plainview's offense was averaging a whopping 36.2 points and 338 yards total offense going into the contest. Those averages slipped considerably as the Bulldogs were held out of the end zone the entire night. Three field goals by Tony Santos made the difference.

"Both teams put their heart and soul into this game," said Plainview coach Steve Parr. "There was some great plays made on both sides of the ball."

Pampa's defense helped the Harvesters grab a first-half lead when Ray Estrada pounced on a Plainview fumble on the Bulldogs' 10-yard line. Four plays later, fullback Matt Garvin went in from six yards out. Tim McCavit's PAT made the score, 7-6, and Pampa stayed on top for almost eight minutes of the second quarter. Santos' 33-yard field goal with 55 seconds remaining in the first half ended the scoring for both teams.

Plainview deserves to go on, but as I told our team before we went on the field, the real winners will be the ones willing to give all the effort they have," said Pampa coach Dennis Cavalier. "Sure, we were behind at the end of the game, but Pampa was a winner too."

The Harvesters finished with an 8-3 record and advanced to the playoffs for the third time in the last four years.

Canadian was the only one of four Pampa area teams to survive the bi-district round of the playoffs. The Wildcats downed Spearman, 22-14, Friday night in Pampa's Harvester Stadium.

Canadian takes its 10-1 record into the Class 2A area round of the playoffs Friday night. The Wildcats meet Idalou at 7:30 in Kimbrough Memorial Stadium in Canyon.

Oilers break .500 with win over Cincy

By JOE KAY
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Warren Moon is throwing touchdowns. The running game is unstoppable. And the Houston Oilers finally have a winning record.

The NFL's biggest underachievers have gotten all they hoped for out of a stretch of four games against the league's downtrodden.

A 38-3 victory in the rain Sunday against the winless Cincinnati Bengals gave them a huge confidence boost heading into a decisive five-week stretch.

The Oilers (5-4) have started playing like the team everyone expected, and just in time.

Four of their next five games are against Pittsburgh and Cleveland with the AFC Central title at stake.

"We've been getting better each week. I hope our team is starting to peak," Moon said.

He certainly is back in peak form. He threw four touchdown passes Sunday in a steady, occasionally heavy rain that made the ball slippery and long passes inadvisable.

Moon hit on 23 of 31 pass attempts for 225 yards in little more than two quarters before taking a seat on the bench after his 12-yard pass to Haywood Jeffries put the Oilers ahead 35-0 five minutes into the third quarter.

Combine that with his 369-yard performance last week against Seattle, and it looks as though Moon is all the way back from the slump that got him benched three games ago.

"That's the kind of Warren we're used to," Oilers coach Jack Pardee said.

The offense is what Houston has gotten used to in recent years. Jeffries caught three touchdown passes, matching his career high, and Gary Brown rushed for a career-high 166 yards and another touchdown in the team's most lopsided victory since 1990.

Basically, the Oilers did whatever they wanted.

"It's about time, huh?" Jeffries said. "Say hal-lelujah!"

There wasn't much the Bengals could say about the defeat that made them statistically the worst team in franchise history. For the first time all season, they were lifeless and hopeless, falling behind 28-0 at the half.

They are 0-9 for the first time in their 26 years, and they don't get to play another team with a losing record for a month.

"We're all victims of circumstances right now," said running back Harold Green, who was benched after a first-quarter fumble. "It's not, 'Where do we go now?' We know where we're going, down: the drain. I think we all need to look inside of us and come up with some answers."

"Well, I know that we're the worst team in Bengal history and we certainly deserve it at this time," Cincinnati coach Dave Shula said. "This was the worst performance that we've had. They let themselves down, everybody down."

The only excitement from the Bengals came after the game when Green criticized Shula for benching him. He said the 0-9 record "may be touching closer to home to him being the worst coach in Bengals history."

The Bengals looked lifeless in their most lopsided defeat since 1986. Moon led scoring drives of 75, 70, 80, 62 and 76 yards and the Bengals managed 57 total yards while Houston built the 35-0 lead.

"They're down right now mentally, I'm sure," Moon said. "After our first scoring drive, I think a little bit of the sting was taken out of them. We got up early and they seemed to let up a little bit."

The Oilers just kept rolling. They had 462 total yards — 240 rushing, 222 passing — and piled up 32 first downs. It was much different from their first game against Cincinnati three weeks ago, when Houston had to rally for a 28-12 win.

"When we went down to Houston, it wasn't the same team. It's plain and simple," Bengals linebacker Alfred Williams said.

For one thing, the Oilers seem to believe in themselves again.

"Going into the stretch we have, we needed this type of game," Moon said. "This was a big confidence booster."

Lubbock, Austin fans struck by bowl fever

By ARNIE STAPLETON
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Football fans in Lubbock and Austin were calling for their coaches to be fired just last month. Now, they've got bowl fever.

Such is the state of the soft-in-the-middle Southwest Conference.

The school paper at Texas Tech suggested Spike Dykes be canned after the Raiders lost five straight games and stood at 1-5 on Oct. 9.

John Mackovic wasn't feeling so good himself.

Texas stumbled to its worst start in more than half a century, winning just once in five games, and in that one victory, over Rice, the Longhorns gave up 38 points.

Now, after crushing TCU 24-3 Saturday, the Longhorns stand at 4-1-1, but, more importantly, are 4-1 in the SWC, second to Texas A&M's 6-0 league mark. Texas and the Aggies face off Thanksgiving night on ESPN with a berth to the Cotton Bowl likely on the line.

Texas needs to beat Baylor, however, next Saturday to set up the showdown.

Texas Tech is now 5-5 and 4-2 after whipping Southern Methodist 41-24 Saturday. All the Raiders have to do to qualify for a bowl is beat Houston next weekend in Lubbock.

Unlike Texas and Texas Tech, Baylor started out well and then soured. The Bears won three of their first four before dropping four of their next five.

But the Bears beat Rice 38-14 Saturday to even their mark at 5-5. They have to beat Texas in Austin Saturday to qualify for the postseason.

The SWC, which has two victories in 12 games against ranked teams this season, has ties-in to three bowls: the Cotton (first place), John Hancock (second) and the inaugural Alamo (third).

SWC notebook

REACHING FOR RESPECT: Strange how the Louisville Cardinals ventured into SWC territory in search of respect. In the end, it was Texas A&M that salvaged some.

The Aggies won 42-7 behind three touchdown tosses by Corey Pullig and Aaron Glenn's 40-yard interception return for a touchdown.

Texas A&M (8-1), beaten only by No. 17 Oklahoma 44-14 on Sept. 11, gave the Southwest Conference its second victory over a ranked team in 12 tries this season.

"We had to gain respect," A&M linebacker Antonio Shorter said. "A lot of critics said we couldn't go play with the big boys. We had to prove them wrong, and we did it."

Louisville (7-3) was trying for the third time to beat a ranked team after losing to No. 9 West Virginia and to No. 6 Tennessee last week 45-10.

"It think it was obvious to everyone in the stadium and watching on television that A&M was vastly superior to us, and they gave us a good old whipping," Louisville coach Howard Schnellenberger said.

The Aggies have won 18 straight games at Kyle Field, where they are 49-3-1 since 1985.

BAM BAM: Robert "Bam" Morris needs just 216 yards against Houston Saturday to break the SWC single-season rushing record held by Earl Campbell.

Campbell ran for 1,744 yards for Texas in 1977.

Morris, a 6-2, 240-pound junior, got within reach of Campbell by gaining 222 yards on a career-high 38 carries in Saturday's 41-24 victory over SMU. He also scored three TDs — while suffering from the flu.

Morris is the nation's second-leading rusher with 1,529 yards and on Saturday he broke James Gray's 1989 school record of 1,509 yards in a season.

"I didn't leave anything out there," said an exhausted Morris. "I can honestly say this as tired as I've ever been. If you would have told me before the game that I would carry that much I would have laughed because I didn't really feel that strong."

SMU coach Tom Rossley said it wasn't Morris who was slowed.

"He's the type of back who can wear you down. He breaks tackles and bounces off people," Rossley said. "There's no question that style of running can hurt you. He makes it tough on the defense because he can keep their offense on the field a long time."

ZONE ZEAL: Texas wide receiver Mike Adams said it was in a zone Saturday. It was his end zone stays that had TCU coach Pat Sullivan fuming.

Adams burned TCU defenders repeatedly in man-to-man coverage and caught two touchdowns as Texas rolled over the Horned Frogs 24-3.

"This was the biggest game of the year because we knew we couldn't lose," Adams said. "I was in a zone today. These are the type of days I envisioned when I signed with Texas."

Adams said he felt unstoppable.

"They have a good secondary, but the plays we were calling, it was like they couldn't defend it," he said.

The loss eliminated the Horned Frogs from the bowl picture as they fell to 4-6.

BIG BRUISES: Cincinnati put the big hurt on Houston Saturday in more ways than one.

David Small put up the big numbers with four touchdowns and 203 yards rushing, but Cincinnati's defense had the big hits, forcing six turnovers in the Bearcats' 41-17 victory.

Small, who gained more than 100 yards for the fourth straight game, scored on runs of 2, 1, 5 and 11 yards as the Bearcats (7-3) opened a 24-0 halftime lead and swept to their fourth consecutive victory.

Cincinnati coach Tim Murphy said he's used all the words he knows to describe what Small means to his team.

"I've kind of run out of superlatives," Murphy said. "He might be as dependable a running back as there is in the country."

Houston (1-7-1) didn't cross midfield until midway through the second quarter — and that was on a penalty. The Cougars eventually lost the ball on a fumble, one of four fumbles to go with two interceptions.

STRAIT AHEAD: Robert Strait loves playing Rice. Nine of his 32 career touchdowns have come against the Owls.

The senior fullback, who was suspended last week for a curfew violation, scored four touchdowns Saturday as the Bears knocked the Owls out of bowl contention, 38-14.

"It was my last game at home and I wanted to make it a big one," said Strait, who rushed for 36 yards and caught passes for 63 yards. "We went out there with a purpose today: to stay in the bowl race. They kept giving me the ball."

Strait, who weighs 244 pounds, tied a school record with his four touchdowns as Baylor evened its overall record at 5-5, including 3-3 in the SWC. Rice dropped to 5-5 and 2-4. One of Rice's victories was against Division I-AA Sam Houston State. You need six victories over Division I-A teams to qualify for the postseason.

NEXT WEEK'S GAMES: Saturday, Nov. 20: BAYLOR at TEXAS, 1 p.m. 2nd of 3 must-wins for 'Horns to go bowlin' TEXAS TECH at HOUSTON, 1 p.m. Tech win means bowl despite 1-5 start.

SMU at NAVY, 12:30 p.m., SMU had second winless home mark since 1960.

TEXAS A&M at TCU, 2 p.m. Frogs have doubled last year's total of two wins.

RICE is idle for second time in four weeks.

PHS cagers host PD in basketball opener Tuesday

The high school basketball season tips off Tuesday night as Pampa boys and girls teams host Palo Duro.

The girls' game gets under way at 6 p.m. followed by the boys at 7:30 p.m.

"I'd like to see as many people as possible come out and support our girls' program," said Mike Jones, who is in his first year as head coach of the Lady Harvesters. "I know the girls would appreciate it."

Head boys' coach Robert Hale begins his eighth season at the Harvester helm.

Aggies plead case to NCAA infractions committee

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Now the waiting begins for Texas A&M.

The Aggies, hoping to avoid sanctions against their football program, spent Sunday morning pleading their case to the NCAA infractions committee. A decision is expected within four to five weeks.

In a 1,277-page response filed prior to the meeting, Texas A&M said it is innocent of violations and should not be held accountable for nine players involved in a scheme to get paid for work that was never done.

The meeting lasted 4 1/2 hours, shorter than most enforcement proceedings.

"It was a very good, fair hearing," interim chancellor E. Dean Gage said.

Cash payoffs to athletes, even when disguised in phony employment contracts and could bring substantial penalties to the Aggies, ranked No. 10 in The Associated Press poll.

"We are very appreciative that the NCAA committee worked with us to be able to be heard at this November hearing," said Gage. "We believe the committee was very fair and that they gave us an opportunity to present our case."

"At this point, it would be improper for us to make any further comment."

All other A&M officials, including football coach R.C. Slocum, declined comment.

The main issue is institutional control. Texas A&M has argued it should not be held accountable for the violations of boosters and players who acted on their own while hiding their activities from school

Stuntman killed as two cars crash in Alamodome

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two stunt cars collided at the wrong angle, killing a stuntman in front of 16,000 stunned Alamodome fans, because the vehicles failed to leave their ramps at the same time, a promoter says.

Randy Hill, 49, of Phoenix was killed during the "Skycrash" stunt, in which two cars soar off ramps at 50 mph into a head-on aerial collision.

Instead of hitting head-on, Hill's car came in too low, and the roof of his auto was sheared off by the other vehicle.

"His head was crushed between two pieces of the roll bar that had collapsed on him. He didn't know what hit him. He died instantly," fire Capt. Don Faseler said Sunday.

"One car left the ramp before the other, which caused the problem," said Gary Becker, president of PACE Motorsports. "Whether it was a miscalculation or one car bogged down, there could be 10 different reasons."

Hill had successfully performed the stunt twice in the Houston Astrodome in 1980 and 1981. He came out of retirement to try it a third time in the Alamodome with stunt driving partner Spanky Spangler in the two-day San Antonio Thrill Show.

"When they practiced in the afternoon, the runs were fine and that night, prior to the jump, they felt the runs were fine," Becker said.

"Everybody is taking it very hard. Spangler is very distraught right now. They had been friends for 20 years. They've done this stunt twice before very successfully and they've done thousands of other stunts successfully," Becker said.

Spangler had said during a news conference on Thursday that there was "no margin for error" in the feat, which has been called the billed as "the world's most dangerous stunt."

"They did three run-bys to see if they were proceeding at the same speed," said Mary Rose Brown, a spokeswoman for the promoters. "They both have to be going at the same rate of speed and hit the ramp at the same time."

Hill, the first performer to die in the Alamodome, was killed as his wife and 3-year-old son looked on from the stands.

The Bexar County medical examiner's office ruled Hill's death was accidental and caused by massive head injuries.

Hill, after he performed the first Skycrash with Spangler at the Astrodome in 1980, said it was "definitely a killer-type stunt."

Following the second successful performance the next year, Hill said, "If anybody can do this stunt again, I'd like to see them try."

The show was canceled after the fatal crash. It had been about 90 percent complete and the only event remaining was a Demolition Derby finale, officials said.

Puerto Ricans vote for commonwealth

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Flag-waving Puerto Ricans voted against pursuing statehood, choosing instead to remain a U.S. commonwealth in the first ballot on the island's status in more than a quarter-century.

Sunday's vote turned back the strongest movement this century for full union with Washington. Gov. Pedro Rossello, who spearheaded the campaign for Puerto Rico to become America's 51st state, conceded defeat but urged supporters to continue the cause.

Commonwealth supporters danced in the streets and said they would press for a redefinition of the island's ties with the United States.

Although the margin of victory for commonwealth status was less than 3 percentage points, "this was a clear repudiation of statehood," said Miguel Hernandez Agosto, a senator who leads the pro-commonwealth Popular Democratic Party.

"It is a vote against assimilation and in favor of all that we Puerto Ricans love and value." Commonwealth received 823,258, or 48.4 percent of the vote; statehood 785,859, or 46.2 percent; independence 75,253, or 4.4 percent.

Turnout was higher than predicted, with 73.6 percent of Puerto Rico's 2.3 million registered voters casting ballots. It was the first vote on the island's status in 26 years.

Commonwealth celebrants jammed traffic, honking horns, waving Puerto Rican flags and tooting trumpets.

Ethnic pride and economic concerns were among the main issues in the non-binding referendum. Commonwealth supporters contended the island's culture and Spanish language might be lost and noted that becoming a state would mean Puerto Ricans would have to pay federal taxes.

The island also would no longer have been able to offer the tax break that attracts industry and has helped give it one of the highest standards in the Caribbean and Latin America, though still well below that of the poorest U.S. states.

Statehood supporters said it would bring billions of additional dollars in federal aid and played to Puerto Ricans' fears by saying their U.S. citizenship might be lost if they stayed a commonwealth.

Political status has been hotly debated here almost since the moment U.S. troops captured the Caribbean island from Spain in 1898. The interest in the issue was reflected in a high voter turnout despite heavy rains.

Celeste Benitez, campaign director of the pro-commonwealth Popular Democratic party, credited a party campaign of calling 20,000 supporters a day to bring out the vote.

Sunday's results may stall the recent momentum toward statehood, which had the support of former Presidents Reagan, Bush and Ford. The vote was called by Rossello after his election last year.

Puerto Rico became a commonwealth with some autonomy in 1952, two years after Puerto Rican nationalists tried to assassinate President Harry Truman.

Nixon White House chief Haldeman dies at age 67

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Watergate conspirator H.R. "Bob" Haldeman was remembered by President Nixon as a man of "strength, integrity and courage."

No funeral service was planned, Hank Haldeman said.

Haldeman is survived by his wife of 44 years, Jo, his daughters Susan Haldeman and Ann Coppe of San Francisco, and son Peter of Los Angeles.

Haldeman died Friday of abdominal cancer at his home at the age of 67. He had been ill for only a month, said his son Hank Haldeman.

Haldeman is best remembered as the fiercely loyal chief of staff to Nixon. He served 18 months in prison for his role in the Watergate coverup.

"Poor Haldeman. He had a use in the government and unfortunately he got racked up as we all did," Watergate burglar Frank Sturgis said from his Miami home.

Before he was forced to resign the presidency over Watergate, Nixon refused Haldeman's request for a pardon. Their friendship was mended years later.

"Ever since he joined my vice presidential staff as a young advance man in the 1956 election, I have known Bob Haldeman to be a man of rare intelligence, strength, integrity and courage," Nixon said in a statement.

"As my White House chief of staff, he played an indispensable role in turbulent times as our administration undertook a broad range of initiatives at home and abroad."

Haldeman was convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice, obstruction of justice and lying to the FBI and a federal grand jury about the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic Party headquarters in Washington's Watergate complex. He was sentenced to a 2 1/2- to 8-year term.

Haldeman had been in advertising when he met Nixon in the 1950s and became one of his earliest and most trusted campaign aides.

After the 1968 election, Haldeman became Nixon's chief of staff. Other than John N. Mitchell, who had been Nixon's campaign manager and attorney general, no one was closer to the president.

Mitchell and another top Nixon aide, John D. Erlichman, were also convicted in the Watergate conspiracy.

Haldeman joined Nixon's second vice presidential campaign in 1956. He worked again for Nixon in 1958 when the vice president was traveling on behalf of GOP candidates, on Nixon's failed 1960 presidential campaign, his race for California governor in 1962 and the victorious presidential campaign of 1968.

Haldeman was a major figure in the Watergate coverup. Six days after the burglary, he suggested that an FBI investigation that was coming too close be derailed. Nixon concurred.

Nixon gave his tacit approval and the tape recording of that conversation became the so-called "smoking gun." On Aug. 9, 1974, four days after the tape became public, Nixon resigned.
