PAMPA — The City of Pampa is looking for residents interested in serving on an advisory boards and

Appointed by the City Commission, the people appointed to the various boards and committees are a way for citizens to provide input to Pampa's municipal departments.

A full term of office is generally 2 or 3 years, although the commission may appoint an individual to serve a partial term to fill out a position vacated prior to the end of that term.

Although advisory boards and commissions do not have the authority to determine personnel matters, set department policy or determine budget amounts, they often directly influence the overall scope of services.

There are currently vacancies on the M.K. Brown Auditorium Advisory Board, the Cable Advisory Commission and the Parks and Recreation Advisory Anyone interested in serving on a committee or board can write a letter of interest to Mayor Richard Peet or City Manager Bob Eskridge, City Hall, P.O. Box 2499, Pampa, Texas 79066-2499.

MIDLAND - West Texas Gas Inc., with headquarters in Midland, has acquired the natural gas transmission and distribution assets of High Plains Natural Gas Co., based in Canadian.

The major stockholder of High Plains is Samuel Ballen of Santa Fe, N.M. The purchase was completed and West Texas Gas assumed operations on May 20.

The High Plains systems include gas burner tip sales in the cities of Canadian, Higgins, Mobeetie, Miami, Darrouzett, Follett, Wheeler, Briscoe and Allison in Texas and Reydon, Okla.

High Plains also sells natural gas to the municipal gas systems of Perryton, Booker and Spearman and has more than 200 miles of main transmission pipeline.

J.L. Davis, president of West Texas Gas, said, "We are most pleased to acquire High Plains because it fits so well with our present systems in the Texas Panhandle, and we are looking forward to continuing High Plains quality service."

Davis said WTGas will continue High Plains's current rate structure for the foreseeable future and maintain the majority of its personnel in their present or similar positions.

West Texas Gas is a public utility that has operated in Texas since 1976. WTGas owns and operates more than 2,400 miles of pipeline consisting of various transmission and local distribution systems located through the Texas Panhandle and West Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the final days before a high-stakes decision on trade privileges for China, Secretary of State Warren Christopher is leaning toward recommending renewal of most-favorednation status for most but not all Chinese goods entering the United States.

Christopher briefed President Clinton on the tradehuman rights issue Monday, and a senior administration official said the presentation emphasized options short of either total revocation of MFN or unconditional renewal.

The official, speaking only on condition he not be identified, said Christopher laid out his thinking for the president but did not yet recommend a course of Clinton must decide by June 3 whether China has met his conditions for retaining the status under which its goods enter the United States with the lowest available tariffs.

The MFN decision will not only affect the billions of dollars in current trade between the two countries but also could have a powerful impact on access of U.S. firms to the increasingly lucrative Chinese mar-

WASHINGTON (AP) — China spies on the United States more aggressively than does any other nation, and U.S. counterespionage agencies are ill-prepared to cope with it, according to a new book by a Defense Intelligence Agency officer.

Nick Eftimiades, a China specialist and counterintelligence analyst at the DIA, blames an "unseen, unspoken" but real and deliberate reluctance among U.S. political leaders in recent years to get tough with China on espionage.

"People don't want to bang on China," he said in an interview this week.

In his book, Chinese Intelligence Operations, Eftimiades specifically cited the Bush administration's efforts to improve political relations with Beijing as an "impediment to effective action against" China's espionage.

First Trade Center bombing defendants sentenced

By LARRY NEUMEISTER Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Two Muslim fundamentalists convicted in the terrorist bombing of the World Trade Center were sentenced today to 240 years in prison by a federal judge who said he expected them to die behind bars.

Mohammed Salameh and Nidal Ayyad were the first two of four men to be sentenced at a lengthy hearing where all the defendants were given the chance to address the court. They spoke in Arabic, which was then translated into English.

U.S. District Judge Kevin Duffy sentenced the men after hearing a statement requested by the husband of a pregnant clerical worker killed in the explosion.

him grow up," Ed Smith said of the boy his wife, Monica, was carrying. "We all lost this because of four men who wanted to blow up landmarks in New York.'

The Feb. 26, 1993, bombing killed six people and injured more than 1,000 in the 110-story twin towers, the world's secondtallest buildings.

Salameh, 26, a Palestinian immigrant, was convicted March 4 on charges of conspiracy, explosives charges and assault. In his half-hour speech to the court, he proclaimed his innocence and accused the U.S. government of covering up the real story of the bombing.

"I wonder how long I will remain in prison until the government reveals I was inno- coward."

"I'll never get a chance to see cent?" said Salameh. "Two years? Seven? Ten? Twenty? God only knows.'

> The sentencing in a heavily guarded courthouse capped a trial that lasted more than five months and involved more than 200 witnesses and more than 1.000 exhibits.

Duffy said the 240-year sentences were calculated according to the life expectancy of the six killed by the bomb – 180 years – and adding 30 years each on two further counts.

"My intention is you stay there (in prison) for the rest of your life," Duffy said after sentencing Salameh. The judge added, "It is the mark of a sneak and a coward to plant the bomb to kill innocents and to steal away, and that's what you are - a

Duffy, who also fined Salameh and Ayyad $250,000 each, told them that any money generated by story rights or book deals would go to the victims' survivors.

"I can't imagine anyone wanting to give you anything," Duffy told Ayyad.

Salameh was accused of helping pay for and assemble the bomb before renting the van that carried it into the trade center's underground parking garage.

Ayyad, 26, a chemist, allegedly ordered chemicals for the bomb and sent messages to news organizations afterward that the motive was to protest U.S. aid to Israel.

Mahmud Abouhalima, 34, was often seen in the apartment where the bomb was built, while Ahmad Ajaj, 28, allegedly pro-cent.

vided bomb-making expertise. Ajaj was in jail on a false-passport conviction when the blast occurred.

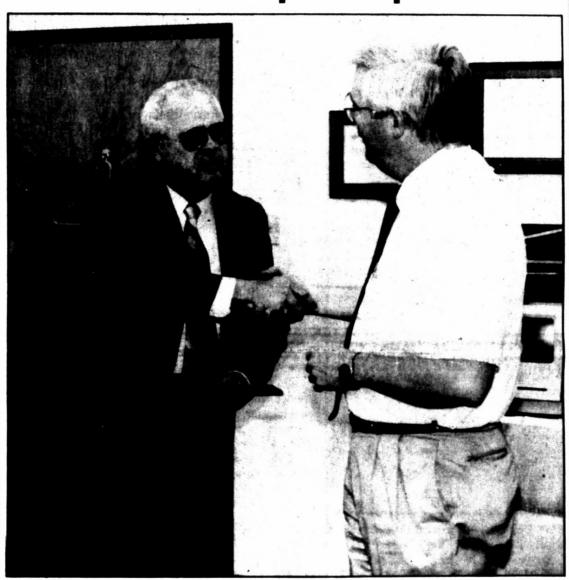

Ajaj lived in Houston; the others lived in New Jersey suburbs of New York City.

Defense lawyers said the government exaggerated evidence to trap the defendants into appearing to be part of a larger conspir-

Compromise plan reached on U.S., Japan trade talks

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States and Japan reached an agreement today that will allow both sides to resume market-opening talks that had been suspended for the past three months.

Jury shreds probation forms in assessing teen's sentence

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Jurors took literally the instructions of prosecutors in assessing a sentence of 40 years in prison for a 16-year-old San Antonio youth convicted of the kidnapping and rape of two teenaged girls and two young

The jury deliberated 45 minutes Monday before finding Jesse Ray Huizar guilty of four charges of aggravated sexual assault and two charges of aggravated kidnapping. In the punishment phase, prosecutors Phil Kazen and Kevin Collins had asked jurors to disregard and shred all jury forms for probation and give Huizar 40 years on each conviction.

It took jurors only 10 minutes Monday to come back with a verdict giving Huizar the maximum 40-year sentence in each case. When the jurors presented Mireles with their verdict, they also handed over a pile of shredded paper that had been the probation forms.

District Judge Andy Mireles said the sentence of 40 years on each of six charges against Huizar is believed to be the harshest penalty ever assessed a juvenile defendant in Bexar

Assistant District Attorney Therese Huntzinger, chief of the juvenile prosecution section, said the sentences given Huizar would run on top of each other because they were tried together. But he could get out in two years.

Huizar is to be sent to the Texas Youth Commission until he is 18 years old. At that time, he is to return to court, where a judge will decide whether to transfer him to the adult prison system or release him.

otto jackpot up to $10 million

By The Associated Press

No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 22, 33, 40, 41, 43 and 48.

There were 85 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,985. There were 5,164 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $117. And there were 98,534 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $10 million.

A ticket worth $10 million bought in Nueces County for last Wednesday's drawing had not been claimed as of Sunday, a Lottery spokesman said.

NEW YORK (AP) - Fox Broadcasting Co. hopes to reshape the television landscape with a $500 million deal to pry loose 12 stations from the three major net-

New World Communications Group Inc., a TV production company, said Monday it had agreed to switch five of its stations, and seven others it will buy in the next year, over to Fox. In return, Fox will buy 20 percent of New World for $500 million.

Eight of the stations are CBS affiliates, three are with ABC and one is with NBC. All 12 stations are on the high-powered VHF frequency; most are in key markets such as Detroit, Cleveland, Dallas and Atlanta.

VHF stations, which broadcast on channels 2 through 13, usually earn more advertising revenue than UHF stations because they reach bigger audiences and get better ratings.

Fox Chairman Rupert Murdoch called it the biggest network realignment in 60 years of American televi-

"This agreement will forever change the competitive landscape of network television," he said in a statement. "This is a giant step toward leveling the playing field and toward the longstanding public policy goal of achieving a fully competitive fourth broadcasting network.'

Fox has about 150 full-time affiliates, compared with more than 200 each for CBS, ABC and NBC. The Fox network was launched seven years ago in a brash effort to compete with the older networks by gearing prime-time shows to younger viewers.

Fox stunned CBS in December by agreeing to pay $1.6 billion over four years for the broadcast rights to National Football League games. CBS had been carrying the games for 38 years.

CBS stock fell $15.50 a share Monday to close at $288 on the New York Stock Exchange.

CBS said in a statement it was "confident in the continued strength of our network and in the value of CBS affiliates. We will maintain strong affiliations in all of the markets affected."

New World, which produced the TV series The Wonder Years and Santa Barbara, is controlled by financier Ronald Perelman's MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings. It has committed about $2 billion over the past year to assembling a TV station group and has been looking for a steady outlet for its programs.

New World chief executive William Bevins said the company made the deal with Fox because the network has "an enthusiasm not exhibited by the others." Fox also carries fewer programs, and thus has more room for New World's shows.

New World owns five CBS affiliates: WJBK in Detroit, WJW in Cleveland, WAGA in Atlanta, WTVT in Tampa and WITI in Milwaukee.

New World also plans to switch four stations it has agreed to buy from Great American Communications Corp.: NBC affiliate WDAF in Kansas City; ABC affiliates WBRC in Birmingham, Ala., and WGHP in Greensboro-High Point, N.C; and CBS affiliate KSAZ in Phoenix.

Serb tanks attack Muslims inside enclave

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina major obstacle to world efforts to row strip linking Serbia proper and (AP) — Two Serb tanks violated the U.N. safe haven around Sarajevo by attacking Muslim-led government troops, peacekeepers said today.

Coupled with the refusal by Bosnian Serbs to pull out from the immediate area of the besieged Muslim town of Gorazde, the Sarajevo violation documented the most recent Serb defiance of the United Nations.

Sarajevo and Gorazde, in eastern Bosnia, are two of the six U.N.-designated safe areas in the former Yugoslavia. Bosnian Serbs have pledged to pull heavy weapons or armed units back far enough so they don't represent an immediate threat to civilians.

In Sarajevo's case, the exclusion zone was 12.5 miles. All heavy weapons were to be pulled out of that area or handed over to U.N. peacekeepers following a February ultimatum by NATO to the Serbs to comply or face air strikes.

But the zone has been violated several times. U.N. officials said that two Serb tanks firing at Bosnian government troops near Sarajevo did so Monday from within the 12.5mile exclusion area.

Also today, New Zealand announced it would contribute 250 soldiers for the next 12 months to the U.N. peacekeeping force, to serve with British forces already in Bosnia.

French forces make up the largest contingent of peacekeeping troops in the region, helping with humanitarian aid and protection of U.N. safe havens such as Sarajevo and

At Gorazde, the Muslim enclave 33 miles southeast of Sarajevo, Serbs were reported reinforcing bunkers inside a 1.9-mile exclusion zone despite promising to leave by Sunday. The Serbs later said they would stay in the area because the government didn't sign a withdrawal accord.

Tension in Gorazde has been a revive peace talks among Bosnian Serbs, Croats and Muslims.

More than a month ago, NATO ordered Serb forces to leave the town and pull back their heavy weapons at least 12.5 miles, under threat of air strikes. That demand also has not been fully met.

The Bosnian government views Gorazde as a critical test of U.N. commitment to enforce any agreement involving the Serbs and has said it will boycott peace talks until the issue is settled.

"Obviously the success of peace talks depends on total cessation of hostilities, which in turn depends on withdrawal from the three-kilometer (1.9-mile) zone," Sergio De Mello, the U.N. civil affairs chief in Bosnia, said Monday, after meeting with Bosnian Premier Haris Silajdzic.

Bosnian government leaders said they saw no reason to sign an accord in which the Serbs pledged to do something they were supposed to have done last month.

Srna, the Bosnian Serb news agency, reported indications that government troops were preparing a "new offensive" in the Gorazde region, saying artillery from inside the city was firing at Serb positions nearby.

The Serbs are still thought to hold the upper hand in the region, however, with government troops in no shape to launch a serious attack.

Elsewhere, in a sign of increasing military cooperation between the former foes, government and Bosnian Croat forces again joined to attack Serbs in Brcko, a town astride a nar-

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment

Free speech gains on political correctness

Free speech continues to make gains against political correctness.

Last year the Los Angeles-based Individual Rights Foundation won a case at the University of California, Riverside. A fraternity that distributed an allegedly "offensive" T-shirt had been thrown off campus. The IRF not only got the frat restored to full status, but required the censorious administrators themselves to take a "sensitivity training" course on the First Amendment.

The IRF just won another case, this one at the University of Minnesota. During orientation for students at the beginning of this school year, the university prohibited Peter Swanson, a law student, from handing out political leaflets considered "insensitive." The school even confiscated some materials.

What so offended the politically correct? Swanson handed out one of those mock 1040 tax forms, this one entitled "Form 1040-BS," making fun of President Bill Clinton's broken promise of a tax cut for the middle class. Another flyer included off-color jokes about the president.

Though some people might find such things offensive, that's not the point. The real point is that even offensive speech is protected by the First Amendment. Otherwise, anyone could be silenced for anything, something too many on both the ultra right and the ultra left want.

John Howard, IRF's president, won the Riverside case himself. But in just the past two years, he has signed up IRF affiliates all across America. After Howard's calls to UM were ignored, he asked IRF members Scott Johnson and John Hinderocker, Minnesota attorneys, to

According to Los Angeles Daily News columnist Linda Seebach, a former UM graduate student, the school "didn't hesitate last year when its policy on offensive speech came into conflict with students' First Amendment rights. The Bill of Rights had to go."

Swanson explained his predicament as a helpless student: "These people (the administrators) have created the environment where if you're in power and you disagree with somebody, you send them to sensitivity training."

After the IRF threatened a lawsuit, the school caved in, knowing it would lose in court. UM gave Swanson a new forum in which to distribute his materials. And university President Nils Hasselmo and other top university officials agreed to undergo First Amendment "sensitivity

It's ironic that those who questioned the "sensitivity" of others now must have their own sensitivity trained.

"This is a clear victory for freedom of speech," Howard exulted. For California, it means that two strong defenders protect freedom of speech: the California free-speech statute and the First Amendment, that trusty old bulwark against tyranny. Perhaps the idea will spread to other states, where free speech has been yielding too much to the religious right, the overly sensitive left, inhumorous feminists, those claiming to be minorities and other such groups who would want to reserve the right to criticize or slight others without themselves having to be slightedor criticized.

Politically correct school administrators now assault free speech at their peril.

Bill, Paula and the nation's fate

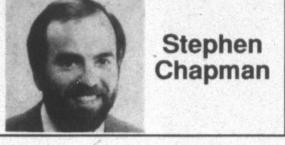

The official news media conspiracy of silence about Paula Jones has been lifted. The former Arkansas state employee finally filed a lawsuit accusing Bill Clinton of sexually harassing her three years ago and asking $750,000 in damages. She says he asked her up to his hotel room, fondled her thigh, dropped his pants and propositioned her - a claim that had been largely ignored by mainstream news outlets until now.

This frees me at least to comment on a matter on which I and most other responsible journalists had agreed was far too dangerous to be entrusted to the public. I'm not especially happy to be free, since my view of the entire matter, briefly summarized, is: I don't care. Not much, anyway.

This, as it happens, is also my opinion of the Whitewater affair, the Vincent Foster suicide, Hillary Clifton's futures trading, the travel office firings and the departure of the White House chef. I'm uninterested not because of any admiration for Bill Clinton, whose scrapbook is short on words of praise from me, but because none of these juicy diversions has much to do with the fate of the country. Unfortunately, it is not easy to bring up matters like the fate of the country in this context without sounding like a hopeless party-popper.

The right says liberal interest groups and journalists have treated Paula Jones with monumental hypocrisy. After raising an infernal howl when Anti Hill accused Clearance Thomas of salacious conduct, they have exhibited a surprising lack of concern about the possibility that Bill Clinton did something even worse.

A Wall Street Journal editorial had great fun noting the about-face executed by New York Times columnist Anthony Lewis, who in 1991 attacked the Senate Judiciary Committee for its reluctance mistress. to investigate Hill's allegations and in 1994 waxed indignant that "scandal sheets print charges about President Clifton's sex life.

An official with the NOW Legal Defense and Education Fund, when asked if feminist groups had shirked their obligations this time around, replied that, to the contrary, she had gone so far as to send Jones a legal resource kit with advice about sexual harassment laws. What more could anyone ask?

This obvious double standard illustrates the defect in nearly all Washington scandals, which is that they are of interest not for themselves but for their potency as political weapons. Anthony Lewis is hardly unique in letting his political opinions color his judgment about the relevance of a public official's personal conduct. In fact, just about everyone does it.

The Wall Street Journal, which thinks Jones' story warrants sympathetic editorial comment, not so long ago was heard lamenting the "character assassination" of Thomas and urging lawmakers to "pump the slime out of the Senate confirmation process." The conservatives who are so preoccupied with Clifton's alleged sexual promiscuity never paid much attention to the well-known but largely unreported rumor that George Bush had a

The same phenomenon has arisen in Whitewater, themselves.

Iran-Contra, Silverado, the Bert Lance affair and one Washington tempest after another. Very few of the people who publicize these episodes are acting wholly, or even mainly, out of impartial motives related to, say, the integrity of the banking system or the sanctity of the separation of powers. Scandal-mongering is just politics by another means.

And a less honest means, at that. What alarms conservatives about Bill Clinton is not the possibility that he has abrogated his marital vows or violated federal civil rights laws, but that he will manage to translate his generally liberal ideas into policy on health care, the environment, gay rights, abortion, gun control and so on.

A lot of the policy disagreements are justified. But many conservatives apparently think it is easier to demolish Clinton himself than his ideas. If they can bring him down, his agenda will sink with him.

As a matter of history, this is probably false. The liberals who detested Richard Nixon rejoiced in his eviction from the White House, but it was only a brief setback for conservative policies, returned in far purer form under Ronald Reagan. If anything, Watergate ultimately hurt liberals by blinding them to public dissatisfaction with liberalism.

Clinton may have behaved badly in this episode and in others, but no democracy can survive if it must be staffed exclusively with moral paragons. They are too scarce, besides being generally averse

If the right succeeds in using Whitewater and Paula Jones to cripple the Clinton presidency, it will have done nothing to advance its own ideas and much to damage public confidence in our form of government. In the meantime, the nation's problems, which afflict far more people than Bill Clifton's libido ever has, are not likely to cure

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, May 24th, the 144th day of 1994. There are 221 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: One hundred and fifty years ago, on May 24th, 1844, Samuel F.B. Morse transmitted the message, "What hath God wrought!" from Washington to Baltimore as he formally opened America's first telegraph line.

It's nothing but us against them

THIS REMINDS ME OF THE ELECTION... ARE YOU TRYING TO CANCEL MY YOTE AGAIN?...

The sad thing about the Holocaust is not that some people claim it didn't happen, but that so many people who know it happened don't seem to have learned anything as a result.

They are not us. That's the key that so many people have missed. Before all the horrors depicttribe, a hostile foreign tribe. Not us.

There was absolutely nothing new about that technique of first isolating, then killing people. It's as old as murder, which is as old as the human race. The Ibos in Africa have been annihilated their attempted genocide of the Tibetans than the Nazis were in their attack on Jews. And, when the Khmer Rouge were systematically murdering a world barely belched. Later, Jimmy Carter, who prided himself on concern for human rights, would insist that Pol Pot's murderous regime should occupy Cambodia's seat in the United Nations.

But one doesn't have to dwell on melodrama. The same odious process of they-are-not-us is at work all over the world, including right here in Charley Reese

Ethnic and racial jingoism, disguised as multied in Schindler's List could happen, the Nazis first culturalism, is going to such extremes in this counhad to establish in the consciousness of people try that we now have characters who want to pracunder their rule the proposition that Jews were not tice history cleansing. Abolish all symbols and Europeans, that they were a distinctly different relics of that part of the past they find offensive - a Confederate flag, a Columbus monument, a street name. It has become so extreme some blacks claim they cannot themselves be racist just because they don't have national power. Some claim whites have no right to discuss problems they consider black. since the Holocaust and nobody intervened to save Some Native Americans claim to be offended by them. When a rightwing rabbi in Israel publicly proclaimed that one Jewish fingernail was worth more than a 100 Palestinian lives, Hell no doubt rang with Nazi laughter. Palestinians in particular and Arabs in general can tell you a lot about being isolated, stereotyped and the butt end of hostile propaganda.

> It may be humans are incorrigibly tribal and incorrigibly committed to the them-us viewpoint umph.

and thus doomed to endless forms of tribal warfare. If that is true, the human species will eventually self-destruct. There are war machines that now can kill us all. There are environmental problems, which can only be solved by cooperation, that will kill us all if left unattended. The planet will probably be glad to be rid of us.

Certainly, everywhere there are those despicable human beings who for various selfish reasons encourage separation and ethnic and racial jingoism. There's a lot of money to be made playing that game. There is even a symbiotic relationship between these villains. Each each needs the other to play the role of threat in order that each may rally their respective troops and raise money. It is a vile person indeed who chooses to make a living out of manufactured conflict.

I don't know if there is any hope. I doubt it. Despite the Holocaust, not even Jews are But there is a way. It's the old half-full, halfimmune to the innate human tendency to separate empty bit. When one human looks at another, each sees both similarities and differences. Then one has only to obey the law of reciprocity sometimes called the Golden Rule - to build a relationship.

We don't need to be cops on the world beat

Some bad ideas die hard. One is the idea of using U.S. military personnel as global cops, or "peacekeepers," in places where there isn't any peace to

The Clinton administration appears ready to ofter as many as 25,000 U.S. troops for the U.N. "peacekeeping" mission in Bosnia, according to news reports. U.S. troops also may be used in the Middle East again, providing a buffer between Israel and one or more of its neighbors, probably Syria. This would involve stationing U.S. troops on the Golan Heights, most likely as part of a multinational force.

Both of these actions would be mistaken. This is not to cast a blind eye toward the heartbreaking brutality and suffering that have plagued the former Yugoslavia since the Soviet empire disintegrated. Nor am I opposed to Middle East peace. My only purpose is to remind the naive and historically ignorant in high government positions that history has a way of repeating itself.

Republican and Democratic administrations alike have succumbed in the past to the temptation to use America's military for misguided "peacekeeping" missions. The body bags brought home from must be peace to keep.

This point was driven home recently in an editorial in Security Affairs, a newsletter published by the Jewish Institute for National Security Affairs

Some people, including many in government, don't understand that "peacekeeping" first requires peace, the editorial noted. If everybody in the neighborhood hasn't agreed to peace, so-called peacekeepers find themselves in harm's way.

"Monitoring the mutually agreed upon absence of hostility between two or more combatants" is a necessary and proper role for the Lebanon and Somalia bear solemn testimony to a United States, the Security Affairs editorial truth that should be obvious: To keep the peace, there argues, pointing to Sinai as "a good example" of honest peace? Even one would be too many.

peacekeeping properly understood But it is something else when U.S. troops are expected to "enforce" a peace that doesn't already exist, the editors note. This isn't peacekeeping; this is warfare. And "from Beirut 1983 to Somalia 1993," history shows it's "a bad proposition." Despite JINSA's unquestioned support for Israel, the Jewish think tank has serious misgivings about stationing U.S. troops on the Golan Heights, the mountainous region dividing Israel and Syria. First, the troops likely would become terrorist targets. Second, if they were stationed there only as observers and were lightly armed - their presence would be only symbolic, providing no real buffer against aggression. Third, if our Israeli friends came to believe military action were necessary, the presence of U.S. troops would impede them from taking steps to protect themselves.

Most importantly, American soldiers could find themselves in the middle of a bloody war, when their only mission is to enforce a mythical peace. Much of the same holds true in Bosnia.

How many more U.S. soldiers will have to die unnecessarily before American leaders realize peacekeeping is only possible when there is a sincere and

The worshipers were trying to throw pebbles at three natural stone pillars which Islam's founder, the Prophet Mohammed, was said to have thrown rocks at to symbolize stoning the devil.

The Saudi officials said 182 Turks were killed in the crush Monday, and most of the other victims were Lebanese.

Saudis had tried to beef up crowd control in the area from Mecca to the cavern in Mina, 3 miles away, after a similar stampede in 1990 killed 1,426 people.

Muslims are expected to make a pilgrimage, or hajj, to Islam's holiest shrine, Mecca, at least once in their

The pilgrims were crushed Monday in narrow pedestrian paths leading toward the cavern, the sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity. Ambulances could not reach the scene for quick rescue, contributing to the high casualty toll, they said.

Talat Sharif, a pilgrim who said he was at the site, said a group of Indonesians were moving slowly when "a wave of people, mostly tall, well-built Africans, trampled them to

However, an official for hajj affairs at the ministry of religion in Jakarta, Indonesia, who identified himself as Ibramim A.S., said no Indonesians were killed.

And Abbas Hamza Abbasi, deputy director of the health ministry, described the scene differently.

"A wave of people, predominantly Asian, wanted to rush to the edge of the cavern because they think it's most sacred to actually hit the pillars with the pebbles," he said in a telephone interview.

"Most of them do not believe in a symbolic throw," he said. He said people get trampled every year, but the numbers may have been higher this year because the crowd of pilgrims was larger. Saudi authorities reported a record congregation of 2.5 million people in Mecca this year. A Saudi statement on the cavern deaths concluded with a prayer for those who died and hopes they would be considered worthy of going straight to heaven. Fervent Muslims believe that if they die in Mecca they are guaranteed a path to heaven and will be the first to rise from the dead on the day of resurrection. Before the Monday deaths, Saudi officials had said the pilgrimage season was trouble-free despite tension between Saudi authorities and the Iranian contingent of some 60,000 pilgrims. In 1987, 402 pilgrims, mostly Iranians, died in clashes with police as they tried to march on Mecca's Grand Mosque, toward which the world's estimated 1 billion Muslims turn during prayers. This year, vast numbers of Saudi Arabian anti-riot police ringed the Iranian pilgrims' quarters to enforce the ban on political activities. The hajj rituals peaked Friday, the most sacred day of the Islamic calendar, when hundreds of thousands of pilgrims, all wearing white robes, prayed in unison atop Mount Arafat outside Mecca in the world's largest single religious congregation. Although some pilgrims left after that ritual, many stayed on for other events such as stoning the devil.

In 1990, 1,426 people were killed in a frantic stampede inside a pedestrian tunnel which leads from Mecca to Mina. The stampede was touched off by the fall of seven people from an overhead bridge, which spread terror among the thousands of pilgrims below. Most victims died of suffocation or were trampled.

Saudi authorities since then have spent millions of dollars on additional tunnels, overhead passes and wider roads.

Kidnap conviction

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) - An Army sergeant who abducted his ex-girlfriend from a Sears Department store at gunpoint in January faces sentencing Friday after being convicted of kidnapping and related charges.

David Roderick Joiner, 32, was accused of taking Bernice Silvas, his former girlfriend, hostage while she worked at a store in Lawton's Central Mall. He pointed a gun, fired, and dragged her out of the store.

The two were picked up at the Del Rio, Texas, entry to Acuna, Mexico, while trying to cross the border without proper identification. Joiner was arrested. Silvas was released and returned home.

A Comanche County jury convicted Joiner of kidnapping and feloniously pointing a firearm charges, both felonies; and reckless handling of a firearm and violation of protective order charges, both misdemeanors.

Mississippi sues tobacco industry for medical costs

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) - Missis- nesses caused by smoking. sippi filed a lawsuit asking tobacco companies to reimburse the state for millions of tax dollars spent on tobacco-related diseases.

"This lawsuit is premised on a simple notion - you cause the health crisis, you pay for it. The free ride is over," Attorney General Mike Moore said Monday after filing the lawsuit in state court.

Mississippi officials call the lawsuit the first of its kind. It asks that 13 tobacco companies, six tobacco wholesalers and several trade associations and public relations consul-

The lawsuit does not seek specific damages, but officials estimate tobacco-related health problems cost Mississippi taxpayers $200 million a year, said Assistant Attorney General Trey Bobinger.

Peggy Carter, a spokeswoman for Winston Salem, N.C.-based R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., called the lawsuit "an unprecedented ploy."

"Like other juries, those in Mississippi have uniformly taken the common-sense position that in the face of 30 years of warnings, smokers are well-informed about the tants be ordered to reimburse the issues surrounding smoking, and state for money spent treating ill- choose to smoke fully aware of the risks they are taking," Carter said. Pressure is mounting against tobacco companies over the health effects of cigarette smoking. The Food and Drug Administration is investigating whether tobacco companies manipulate the nicotine level in cigarettes. The agency is deciding whether to regulate cigarettes.

Mississippi officials contend taxpayers often end up paying medical costs for tobacco-related illnesses through government programs like Medicare and Medicaid.

"Tobacco kills too many of our people and causes too many others to be sick every year," said Dr. Ed Thompson, state health officer.

While all 17 people ate at the unidentified restaurant May 6, officials have not definitely tied the illness to that restaurant, City Inspector Mel Fischer said Monday. Officials may never find the source of the E. coli 0157:H7 bacteria contamination, he said. "It's a bug that's got a long onset very difficult because there's no food available to check.'

Several of those who became ill had to be hospitalized, he said. The victims range in age from 1 to 76. State and local health officials are working with the national Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta to find the cause of the seven unconfirmed cases.

An outbreak of E. coli in the Pacific Northwest last year, which left three people dead and sickened 500, was traced to hamburgers from time, anywhere from two to 10 days Jack in the Box restaurants.

DALLAS (AP) - When police Burleson Elementary, is serving accused of excessive paddling, they possession, a second-degree felony, discovered convictions for driving while intoxicated and for possession of cocaine.

Dallas school officials confirmed Monday that they were unaware of the convictions of Robert A. Carter despite a 20-month-old policy requiring semi-annual checks into criminal histories of all employees. After almost two years, the district has yet to screen all 17,000 employees, the school personnel director said.

School board president Rene Castilla said Monday he wants an explanation from school administrators. "It's disappointing ... that 20 months later we still have a problem with this," he said.

Carter, a sixth-grade teacher at action in the case.

began investigating a teacher five years probation for cocaine according to Dallas County court records. He previously served a two-year probationary sentence from 1989 to 1991 for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated.

District officials said neither prior sentence would have automatically disqualified him from teaching.

Carter was arrested last week and charged with felony injury to a child after allegations he paddled five children in celebration of their summer birthdays. The swats with a wooden paddle left bruises on one child that were visible for more than a week, police said.

Carter has been placed on leave with pay pending a grand jury's

Gunmen surrender after standoff at restaurant

By NANCY ARMOUR Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Two men sprayed a restaurant with gunfire Monday in a botched robbery attempt, killing one person, wounding at least four others and taking about two dozen people hostage. They surrendered after a six-hour standoff.

The gunmen released the hostages in groups of four or five throughout the afternoon, including a 5-year-old boy who was shot in the face.

The final five or six hostages were released shortly before the two gunmen surrendered around 5:15 p.m. Police identified the suspects as brothers from Casper, Wyo., who had apparently picked the city and restaurant at random.

Authorities said the siege began around 11:20 a.m. with a botched robbery. The restaurant's manager was shot as he tried to wrestle a gun away from one of the men. Then the other man "went crazy" and started shooting wildly, said Sgt. Frank Evans, the chief hostage negotiator. Police sealed off the Denny's restaurant and surrounded it with SWAT teams and helicopters, while the gunmen herded the customers to the front of the restaurant.

"We just went in to have lunch and all of the sudden it sounded like somebody set off a firecracker back in the kitchen," said Ed Gill, who was dining with his family.

"And the next thing I knew, everybody was diving for the floor, and the next time I looked up, this little boy or girl about 4 or 5 years old had been hit in the mouth.'

At least one person was killed in the attack. The victim's body was brought outside around 4 p.m., the head covered with a brown tablecloth. He was identified as Alfred Smith, 71.

The wounded 5-year-old boy and was listed in critical condition, said Matthew McCardle, a spokesman for Community Hospital North. He was taken to the hospital by a man who had been wounded in the back.

Two other men, including restaurant manager Robert Doan, were treated for gunshot wounds at Methodist Hospital.

Witnesses said 40 people were inside when the gunmen entered. One man had a .357-caliber pistol

Witnesses who fled the building and the other had a 9 mm automatic pistol, police said.

Assistant manager Evan Anacker said he was caught in the back when he heard the gunshots. He hid in a mop room until the gunmen walked past, then bolted for the front door and escaped.

Police identified the gunmen as Thomas E. Mathisen, 24, and his brother Ron, 27.

"They pulled a map out, saw Indianapolis and decided to come here," Evans said.

The suspects face a variety of charges, including murder, attempted murder and attempted robbery.

Casper police said the Mathisens also are suspected of embezzling $4,000 from an adult bookstore where they both worked.

Evans, who spent 3 1/2 hours underwent three hours of surgery negotiating with the gunmen, said they apologized for the attack, blaming it on the restaurant's manager for trying to grab the gun.

Thomas Mathisen repeatedly asked to talk to his wife, who is seven months pregnant. "I told him this wouldn't be good for her," Evans said. "His wife and kid were pretty important to him." As part of the negotiations, Denny's agreed to fly Thomas Mathisen's wife and father-in-law to Indianapolis on Tuesday.

Sharp: Students need more job skills training

AUSTIN (AP) - State Comptroller John Sharp said Monday there is a growing chasm between Texas students' training and the skills they'll need to get a job in the future.

The latest issue of Fiscal Notes, a comptroller's office publication, says 43 percent of businesses surveyed by the Texas Research League reported difficulty in hiring entry-level workers with basic reading, writing, communication and math skills.

That survey was conducted in 1990 of 375 businesses of all sizes, said comptroller's spokeswoman Sheila Clancy. She said there apparently has not been a more recent similar survey. Even many jobs that don't demand a college degree do require training beyond high school, Sharp said.

'Already, many blue-collar jobs require computer savvy, along with reading, writing and math skills, and ter technical, quality-control and safethat trend is expected to continue," he

"We see a widening gap between the training which Texas students are receiving and the skills they will need in tomorrow's job market," Sharp

Manufacturers need workers who can use a computer, read instructions and solve problems, said Robert Cizik, chairman and chief executive officer of Cooper Industries in Hous-

His company seeks people who can understand numerically controlled processes and operate computer-controlled machine tools in the company's manufacturing divisions.

Applicants for jobs with a Dallas electronics manufacturer must have at least 12th-grade reading skills to masty manuals.

But the Fiscal Notes report said Texas' high-school exit test is designed to measure skills at the 10th-grade level. The comptroller's staff member who wrote the article, Richard Funk, based that statement on the fact that a large number of sophomores - 50 percent - pass the test on their first try, Ms. Clancy said.

Texas Education Agency spokesman Joey Lozano said while the test is given for the first time in the 10th grade, it measures skills students should have for graduation.

State Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno has talked about the gap nationally between what students are learning and what the "real world" requires.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: After 25 years of marriage, my husband and I are getting a divorce. This decision was not made lightly. We both gave it plenty of thought.

We have raised two lovely daughters of whom we are very proud, and while this is a sad time for them, they realized long ago that ours was not the perfect marriage outsiders thought it was.

We have spent hours with marriage counselors and lived in separate dwellings on more than one occasion. It hasn't all been bad or we wouldn't have stayed together for 25 years. In fact, we have enjoyed many good times, which will be locked in our hearts forever. It's just time to move on.

Unfortunately, the extended family seems to think divorce has to be all the ugly things they've heard it to be, and they are already saying their 'goodbyes" – as if the funeral were tomorrow!

Through all of this, my husband and I have remained friends, and we intend to keep it that way if we can. We are still sleeping in the same bed, and we will until our house sells.

Abby, please let your readers know that if the separating parties can make the best of it, everybody else should butt out. It's hard enough being treated like outcasts from the family before the papers are even signed.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

ATLANTA (AP) - NCAA Division I-A conference commissioners met behind closed doors with TV executives and bowl officials Monday to discuss plans to restructure college football's postseason.

Officials with the Southeastern, Atlantic Coast, Big 12 — formerly the Big 8 — and Big East conferences are considering plans to limit the number of bowl games played on New Year's Day and to change how teams are selected.

Under the plan, only four bowl games will take place on New Year's Day, compared to the current eight. The six top-seeded available teams in the country would play in the three Bowl Coalition games designated for New Year's. The Rose Bowl, which is not part of the coalition, would continue on its own.

One coalition game would pit the two top-seeded teams against each other for the national champi onship. It would rotate among the bowl sites.

Conference commissioners met in the morning and early afternoon with executives from TV networks, including ABC, CBS and ESPN.

The executives declined to comment on proposals that were discussed.

"It's fact-finding basically," said Loren Matthews, senior vice president of programming

"We're just getting prospects," said SEC commissioner Roy Kramer.

Bowl representatives met with the commissioners in the afternoon. The bowls represented included the Peach, Citrus, Alamo, Sugar, Cotton, Orange, Gator, Fiesta, Hall of Fame and Liberty.

The current Bowl Coalition agreement expires after next season. If the commissioners make progress in their discussions in Atlanta, another meeting would be scheduled and a new agreement could be signed by the end of June.

In addition to a simple restructuring of the bowl games, officials are considering more radical proposals that would create a playoff system involving as many as 16 teams by January 1997. Five formats are being studied involving two, four, eight, 12 or 16 teams. These proposals are summarized in a 350-page report presented to an NCAA special committee, which met May 5-6 in Indian Wells, Calif. Some officials say a playoff system could increase the amount of money schools earn by about $60 million, to a total of more than $100 mil-

Television revenue for the 1994 NCAA basketball tournament was $101 million, more than the amount for all bowl games combined. Basketball TV revenue was $137 million, up from $57 million in 1989. Bowl TV revenue was $36 million, up from $30 million in 1988-89.

"College football needs a shot in the arm," said Georgia athletic director Vince Dooley, a member of the special committee studying a playoff system. 'There's great potential in this. The question is.

just how? But some conference officials want to protect the bowl system. "The bowls have been awfully good to college football," Kramer said. "I have a major concern that we find a way to maintain the health of the bowls and maybe strengthen them."

Notebook Rockets soar against Jazz, 100-88

AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Rockets exploited every Utah weakness Monday night and coasted to a 100-88 victory over the Jazz in the opener of their Western Conference final.

Hakeem Olajuwon scored almost at will against overmatched centers Felton Spencer and Tom Chambers. Kenny Smith was virtually unstoppable, hitting 6-of-9 from 3point range and 9 of 14 overall. His backup, Sam Cassell, hit his first four shots to spark the run that put Houston in control before halftime.

On defense, Robert Horry held Karl Malone to four points in the first half before Malone scored a bunch late to finish had 16 rebounds. with 20.

Olajuwon had 31 points and Smith added 27 in a game far more onesided than the final score. Horry was Houston's leading rebounder with 11.

"It seemed like they were leaving me open," Smith said. "I was getting some good looks at the basket.

It all added up to a dominant performance by Houston, the team which outlasted Phoenix in seven games in the conference semifinals and which has the best regular-season record of any team remaining in the playoffs.

Game 2 of the best-of-7 series is Wednesday night at the Summit.

For Utah, Hornacek had 19 points — all in the second half — Spencer had 15 and Malone

The game turned the Rockets' way in the second quarter, which began with Houston ahead 20-16. Cassell hit his first four shots to spark an 11-2 run that made it 31-18 with 8:48 left, and Vernon Maxwell had two 3-pointers and Olajuwon three straight baskets in 17-4 run that turned a 37-28 lead into a 54-32 advantage just before halftime. If there was a weakness for Houston, it was its lackadaisial start to the second half when its 20-point lead was cut to nine in the first four minutes. Jeff Hornacek, coming off an 0-for-5 first half, hit his first five shots of the quarter, but the Jazz got no close than nine, the last time and Olajuwon's three-point play at the outset of the final period got the lead up 82-64.

From there, the lead got as high as 18 and never lower than 12. Olajuwon had Houston's first nine points and Thorpe scored six of their next eight as the Rockets stayed comfortably ahead.

The teams split their season series 3-3, with each team winning one game on the other's home court. In the 28 of the teams' last 29 games, the losing team scored less than 100 points.

Houston beat Phoenix in seven games in the conference semifinal after getting past Portland 3-1 in the first round.

Utah, after taking a 3-0 lead, was extended to seven games in the conference semifinals by Denver, winning the final game to 15 by the end of the quarter, at home. The Jazz beat San Antonio 3-1 in the first round.

Bad luck continues for Goodyear

By MIKE HARRIS AP Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - It must be like a recurring nightmare for Scott Goodyear.

He qualifies for the Indianapolis 500, only to be bumped out. Then his team owner puts him in a car qualified by a teammate and he is forced to start last in the 33-car

That is exactly what happened to the Goodyear in 1992, and it is precisely what took place on Monday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway when it was announced that Goodyear will replace Davy Jones at the wheel of the team's 1994 Lola-Ford Cosworth for Sunday's

Two years ago, Goodyear's car was bumped and he moved into the car qualified by then-teammate Mike Groff. Goodyear started 33rd and wound up losing to Al Unser Jr. by .043-seconds, the closest finish in Indy history.

This time, Jones, who first got into the team's backup 1994 Lola-Ford Cosworth on Thursday, qualified it Saturday in the middle of the 10th of 11 rows with a four-lap average of 223.817 mph. Goodyear also qualified his new Lola-Ford on Saturday at 220.737, but it was bumped out of the field on Sunday by Marco Greco.

Indianapolis 500

We have two excellent drivers, but just one car in the race," car owner Kenny Bernstein said. "No matter how you cut it, we're forced to make a very tough and complicated decision.'

The driver switch means the qualified car must start from the last position on Sunday.

Goodyear aborted two qualifying attempts, one of them after three laps over 222 mph, on the opening weekend of time trials. He then crashed during practice that Sunday - bruising a thigh - but was back in another car two days later, preparing for the second weekend of qualifying.

"We were having a tough time finding and maintaining a safe qualifying speed, so we enlisted Davy's help with that," Bernstein said Monday. "He understands that our sponsor and our team's existing commitment is to Scott Goodyear and that we must honor it."

Sunday's race will be the fifth Indy start for Goodyear, in his first season driving for Bernstein. He finished 10th as a rookie in 1990, was 27th in 1991 and finished seventh last year after leading five

Jones, who started the season driving for A.J. Foyt but was fired in April, is a veteran of three Indy starts, finishing 28th in 1987, seventh in 1989 and 15th last year.

"You know Scott Goodyear's their contractual driver," said Jones, who was at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on Monday when the news came. "So it's a difficult decision. But, you know, I'm a team player, and it's up to them, really.'

Pacers' Miller wanted Knicks

By BILL BARNARD AP Basketball Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Reggie Miller got what he asked for - the New York Knicks in the Eastern Conference finals.

Miller said last week when the Indiana Pacers eliminated top-seeded Atlanta that he would rather play New York than the Chicago Bulls.

The Knicks, who defeated the Pacers in the playoffs last year and were 4-0 against them this season, beat Chicago 87-77 in Game 7 on Sunday, setting up a best-of-7 series with Indiana starting Tuesday night at Madison Square Garden.

"You have to let Reggie flap his lips," Knicks coach Pat Riley said Monday. "He wanted the Knicks so badly, and now he's got us. So let's Miller and Knicks guard John Starks have fought a running physical and verbal battle since last season, including a head-butting by Starks in their playoff meeting.

"I think Reggie wants John Starks more than he wants the Knicks," New York point guard Derek Harper added. Starks said Monday he regrets the head-butt of Miller, but claimed "he was cheap-shotting me before that and the refs never did anything about it." But Starks emphasized the series "is not between me and Reggie Miller, it's between the Knicks and

Indiana, despite being just the fifth seed in the conference, has been the most dominant team in the playoffs, sweeping No. 4 Orlando in three games and defeating the first-seeded Hawks 4-2. "They are a talented, strong and together team," Riley said. "We're going to have our hands full. They have come together quickly since January.'

Since Jan. 27, when Indiana was 16-23, the Pacers have gone 38-14, including 7-2 in the playoffs. Riley said the Pacers play a physical style similar to the Knicks, in contrast to the fast-moving Bulls, who view basketball as an art form. 'We are not a lot of dancers," Riley said. "We win with defense and rebounding, and every now and then we make some baskets. That's our style, and our style won in the end against Chicago. "I don't want this series to turn into one of those Chicago style vs. style things. The Pacers are a very aggressive team. They might talk otherwise to get an Miller called the Knicks' style "a grunge type of thing. It ain't pretty, but they get the job done.

Miller, Indiana's leading scorer in the playoffs with a 22.0 average, said he's hoping the Pacers, who won the opener of their first two series at Orlando and Atlanta, also can catch the Knicks napping in Game

"They've been battling the Bulls so much, they're going to be overlooking us," Miller said. "There might be a little letdown. I think Atlanta did that as well, but when we went in there and stole that first game, it was like 'Whoa' and they never did regroup. That's what we've got to do: steal one of these first two games."

Riley conceded that danger exists for the Knicks. 'Our guys' heads were still into Sunday," Riley said after Monday's practice. "Even the crowd celebrated like it was the finals.

Bucks win first pick in NBA lottery

Bucks almost certainly will keep the top pick in next month's NBA draft, coach Mike Dunleavy said Monday.

That most likely means the team aims to sign forward Glenn Robinson of Purdue, who could command a deal worth upwards of $100 million. The Bucks won the first pick in Sunday's lottery in Secau-

The Bucks will no doubt receive offers from teams willing to trade up to get Robinson in the June 29 draft.

"I'm never one to close off any kind of doors," said Dunleavy, who doubles as the team's vice president of basketball operations. "I'm sure there's something out there that could change our minds. I mean, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar got traded. What else could happen?"

The Bucks, who drafted Abdul-Jabbar with the No. 1 pick in 1969, traded him in 1975 to the Los Angeles Lakers. So making an unusual move like trading the No. 1 pick wouldn't be out of character.

However, Dunleavy said, "I think there's a 99 percent chance we're going to keep the Dunleavy was to meet Thursday with Sen. Herb Kohl, D-Wis., who owns the club. Although Dunleavy says Robinson is MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee probably the top player available, he also will consider Duke forward Grant Hill and California guard Jason Kidd.

"I'll watch every game they played this year," he said. "I went home this morning and I watched Duke play Purdue in the NCAAs. You've got to do your homework, but a lot of it comes down to the interview process and getting to know who you're dealing with.

Dunleavy said all three will be stars in the NBA, but he is looking for more than "The immediate need for any franchise that has been down is you've got to find a player that's going to be a star player," he said. "The guy that you can go to late in the game, the guy that's got the ability to make

This time, Luis Lopez didn't use a joystick to clear the bases.

Lopez hit a grand slam in the first inning for his first major-league homer as the San Diego Padres defeated the slumping San Francisco Giants 4-0 Monday night.

In 2,248 at-bats over sixplus seasons in the minors, Lopez had hit 10 homers but none with the bases loaded. In fact, Lopez said he had never hit a grand slam before, anywhere.

"Not even in Little League, but in Nintendo I hit some,' he said

Wally Whitehurst pitched 8 1-3 shutout innings as the Padres won their second straight after snapping a 13game losing streak on Sunday.

Bip Roberts led off the San Diego first with a single, and Phil Plantier and Derek Bell drew two-out walks from Mark Portugal. Up stepped Lopez, making his 93rd plate appearance in the majors.

Lopez, starting at shortstop for the slumping Ricky Gutierrez, hit a changeup from Portugal just over the right-field fence to surprise "everybody, the whole major leagues. ... I guess I was lucky. That's good.

Before Lopez's homer, San Diego batters had been 0-for-10 with the bases loaded and two out.

game because I pitched like a sissy in the first inning. I didn't go out and challenge anybody. I got myself into position to lose. There's no one here to blame for this

The Giants, shut out for the first time this season, have lost five straight games and seven of their last eight.

game but me."

Whitehurst (3-5) came within two outs of his first career shutout. He carried a four-hitter into the ninth before giving up two hits and was replaced by Pedro Martinez, who promptly walked Jeff Reed to load the bases.

"I thought I might have a chance at it, but I messed around and gave up a couple of hits," Whitehurst said.

"They have some key guys out of the lineup, and it was just a matter of time before they started hitting the ball."

Trevor Hoffman came on in the ninth with the bases loaded and struck out pinch-hitters Dave Martinez and Erik Johnson for his fifth save. Elsewhere in the NL it was:

Florida 3, Montreal 2; Philadelphia 11, St. Louis 3; Colorado 8, Cincinnati 3; and Chicago 6, Los Angeles 3. Marlins 3, Expos 2<P>

At Miami, Pat Rapp allowed one earned run and Jesus Tavarez made a memorable major-league debut for the Marlins.

Tavarez, a 23-year-old right fielder recalled Sunday from Double-A Portland, threw out from first on a single and went 2-for-4 with an RBI.

Rapp (3-1) gave up seven hits and two walks in 6 2-3 innings, and has a lifetime ERA of 1.33 in five games against Montreal. Rapp also got his first two hits of the season. Robb Nen got the

Jeff Fassero (4-3) was the loser

Phillies 11, Cardinals 3 At St. Louis, Danny Jackson pitched eight innings and Lenny Dykstra reached base five times as the Phillies climbed out of last place in the NL East.

Dykstra had three singles, two walks, two stolen bases, three runs scored and an RBI.

The Phillies, in last place since April 32, have won nine of their last 11 to pull into fourth, percentage points ahead of the idle New York

Jackson (6-1) allowed three runs and 10 hits in eight innings. He added two hits, and is 5-for-10 in the last three games.

Darren Daulton and Ricky Jordan drove in three runs each for the Phillies. Tom Urbani (1-4) lasted four innings, giving up seven runs and nine hits. Rockies 8, Reds 3<P> At Denver, Dante Bichette's three-run homer in the first inning helped the Rockies end a five-game losing streak. Charlie Hayes had three hits as Colorado got a season-high Portugal said. "I lost that a runner at the plate, scored 17 in handing the Reds their third straight loss.

Colorado jumped on John Smiley (4-5) for three quick runs in the first. Walt Weiss and Eric Young singled and Bichette followed with his 13th homer.

Marvin Freeman (4-1) picked up the win.

Cubs 6, Dodgers 3 At Los Angeles, Derrick May's three-run homer in the sixth inning snapped a tie as the Cubs won their seventh straight.

The winning streak is the longest for the Cubs since they won eight straight in July of 1990.

With the score tied 3-3, May, whose 11th inning homer Sunday gave the Cubs a win over San Francisco, lined an 0-1 pitch from Kevin Gross (3-2) just over the short fence in right and barely inside the foul pole.

Jose Guzman (2-2), who had an 11.20 ERA in his three previous starts.

Brewers lose again

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ben McDonald won his eighth game and sent Milwaukee to a club record-tying 12th straight loss Monday night as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Brewers 5-3. Milwaukee did succeed in stopping Rafael Palmeiro's 24game hitting streak. Palmeiro went 0-for-4 with a walk, halting the majors' best hitting streak this season. He lined out to the mound in his final at-bat in the ninth.

McDonald (8-2) scattered eight hits over 6 2-3 innings in joining Kansas City's David Cone and Bob Tewksbury of St. Louis as the majors' only eightgame winners. Lee Smith, Baltimore's sixth pitcher, worked the ninth for his major leagueleading 18th save.

The Brewers, who were in first place when they last won on May 11, matched the club record previously set from May 3-19, 1987, with the loss.

Ricky Bones (3-4), who entered the game with an ALbest 1.89 ERA, is winless in his last five starts. He gave up five earned runs and nine hits. including home runs by Jack Voigt and Mark McLemore, in 7 1-3 innings.

Voigt, the Orioles' No. 9 hitter, led off the fifth with a homer off Bones, his second. Brady Anderson then doubled and McLemore followed with his first home run for a 5-1 Baltimore lead.

Baltimore had taken a 2-1 lead in the fourth on Leo Gomez's two-run double. Milwaukee tagged McDonald in the seventh with three straight bloop singles, including an RBI flare into right by Jeff Cirillo. Turner Ward added a sacrifice fly to make it 5-3, chasing McDonald.

Islamic opposition stages show of force against Israel

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) -The Islamic opposition staged a massive show of force Monday, drawing thousands to a rally where speakers, choirs and posters lauded violence against Israel despite the peace accord.

The rally came as Palestinian police entered their second week of trying to establish order in the Gaza Strip, warning residents that open displays of weapons and shooting in the air would no longer be tolerated.

Despite the warning, gunshots erupted sporadically across major towns like Gaza City, Khan Yunis and Rafah, where youths who had lived on the run from the Israeli military like to swagger around openly with their weapons. Rally organizers from the Islamic Resistance Movement, or Hamas, banned the firing of weapons at the daylong rally at the Islamic Univer-

But the message that any Israeli was a fair target was clear in the gory posters and songs that glorified attacking soldiers as well as the 4,000 Jewish settlers that remain in the Gaza Strip.

"We are coming with Katyushas (rockets) and the Gush Katif (settlement block) is the target," singers from the Shajaiya mosque sang to wild applause from 2,000 people on campus. One backdrop showed an Israeli soldier beheaded on the ground next to his jeep.

This kind of display coming just days after two Israeli soldiers were shot dead by Islamic militants at the crossing into the self-rule area has made Israel leery about creeping lawlessness. Statements from PLO leader Yasser Arafat that implied peace was temporary have also raised concerns.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin demanded a written statement from Arafat reaffirming his commitment to the autonomy agreement signed May 4.

Israeli officials said Rabin was also considering suspending further talks on expanding autonomy beyond Gaza and the West Bank town of Jericho until the Palestinians proved they had security in hand.

"If the terror attacks and Arafat's miserable declarations continue, we will continue to speak to the Palestinians but we will hot carry out the agreement," Police Minister Moshe Shahal told the parliament, speaking for the government.

Palestinian officials noted that after 27 years of occupation it would take some time to meld a government out of Palestinians from both inside and outside the territories.

"It might help him (Rabin) if he reads the agreement again," said Palestinian negotiator Hassan Asfour, saying talks on increasing the scope of autonomy were due to start in June.

"We have an agreement and I think Israelis will have to respect it in spite of the difficulties.'

Palestinian officials in Gaza said the problems stemmed from lack of facilities and money, adding that donors had not come through with promised funds.

'They shouldn't ask for miracles," said Freih Abu Medein, expected to be one of the 24 members of the council that Arafat is trying to assemble to govern the autonomous areas.

He said that only 3,500 members of the authorized police force of 9,000 were on duty.

Officials said the economic hardship was compounded by Rabin's decision to close off Israel to all Palestinian workers after last Friday's attack that left two soldiers dead.

In an attempt to allay fears, the Palestinians established a double checkpoint just south of Erez to search cars headed toward Israelirun territory for weapons. But the system added to Israeli jitters Monday when PLO policeman shot at the tires of an Israeli driver carrying Arab workers after he failed to stop.

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID Associated Press Writer

SUITLAND, Md. (AP) - It analyzes upper air wind two weeks ahead. It can calculate and compare 42 different weather forecasts at once. It can do 15 billion math operations per second.

Yet, to someone standing in front of the National Weather Service's new Cray C90 computer the machine seems disarmingly simple. A screen that says it's running, and a few buttons, the main ones labeled "start" and "stop."

Shouldn't it be a little more complicated than that? Cray President John Carlson was asked. "When you push start, it knows what to do," he replied.

It sure does. It lets National Weather Service meteorologists flex their numerical muscles with blinding speed. The C90 can slice the country into bits, analyze the weather and calculate how it will change. It's the fastest such computer in service anywhere, Carlson says. "We have, in effect, stepped into a new era," said Commerce Secretary Ron Brown after snipping a ribbon in front of the computer.

"Each day in this country there are hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions, of decisions made based on the weather forecast," explained Ronald D. McPherson, director of the National Meteorological Center.

Those decisions range from whether to send a child to school with a raincoat to planting rot-resistant seed to permitting barge traffic on the Mississippi River, he said.

The information on which those decisions are based comes from the Cray C90," McPherson

The $45 million machine joins a Cray Y-MP8 computer, purchased in 1990, which could only do 2.5 billion calculations a second. The older model will concentrate on research now, with the new one handling the daily forecasts for the National Weather Service.

The national weather forecasts, which local offices use as the basis of city and area forecasts, are based on complex sets of calculations that use mathematical formulas to mimic the behavior of the atmosphere. These are called numerical mod-

Some models look at the atmosphere as a series of waves - waves of wind, waves of heat, waves of pressure. Others use grids to divide the world into squares. They measure the weather and try to predict what it will do next.

The faster computer lets the work be done more quickly and also permits the computer to look at the nation more closely.

For example, the old computer was able to look at the country in squares about 50 miles across. The new one reduces the squares to under 25 miles and officials hope to reduce them even more.

The new computer is already calculating changes in upper air winds - at about 30,000 feet where airliners fly - out to 16 days in the future. The old one looked 10 days ahead. Besides hurrying or slowing planes, those winds help steer weather movements.

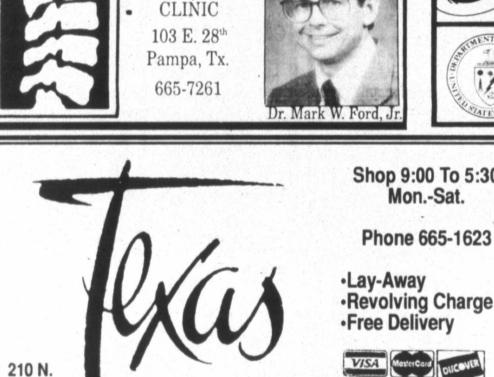

Another forecasting technique is to run the models several times, with slightly different conditions at each start, to see how the results differ and how they are similar. It's a method that helps meteorologists decide which models are more accurate for a given situation.

The old computer provided 14 model runs, the new one will do 42, explained Anthony J. Mostek of the Weather Service. The more that results cluster together the more likely the outcome, he said. National Weather Service Director Elbert W. Friday noted that the new computer is but one part of the agency's $4 billion modernization. The program also includes new satellites, measuring equipment, radars and other changes.
