City Makes Provisions For New Traffic Rules

Here Are Replies To Queries About Bonus Procedure

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (UP)—Following is a summary and explanation of the cash-bond bonus bill, in the form of questions and answers:

Bonus Money Due To Boost Local Trade

Most Of Veterans' Payment Will Go Into Regular Business Channels

The $338,238 veterans of Howard county will receive under the bonus payment measure enacted into law over President Roosevelt's veto Monday will go into regular channels of trade, a random poll of executive men revealed Tuesday.

Leaders in veterans organizations here predicted that the money paid on the bonus would do more toward quickening trade than any money paid out by the government yet.

Some less fortunate hailed the cash payment proposition as a lifeline, declaring they had about reached the end of their rope. They will put their money into clothes and food and other necessities, they said.

Home Repair, Cars Many indicated they would put their funds into needed building improvements such as repairs and extensions. Several said they would repair their homes.

One ex-service man, typical of many others, stated he would purchase a car which he has long needed in his work since his business calls for much traveling. Another said he would purchase a truck to go into business for himself.

There was one who disclosed plans for buying equipment for his office, equipment which he has wanted for many months. Others favored application of the funds to effecting improvements to their businesses.

The motor car industry will benefit, it was pointed out.

Regulations Go In Effect On Feb. 11

Will Include A One-Hour Parking Limit Along Third Street

Definite steps were taken by the city commission, in a called session Monday afternoon, toward changes in the municipal traffic control system in line with new ordinances which will become effective on February 11.

Parking Limits Among other things, the officials laid the groundwork for enforcing a one-hour time limit on parking on West Third street; a 15-minute parking limit near the postoffice; a series of stop and slow regulations at street intersections; and a passenger unloading zone at hotel entrances.

The commission passed on a first reading a revised ordinance dealing with the administration of traffic regulations. Another ordinance, creating a traffic rule, was passed last week and was due to be approved on a second reading at the commission meeting this evening.

The two were drawn up to bring all municipal traffic rules into systematized form.

In preparation for the new laws, the city manager was authorized to have signs and markers installed.

Stop And Slow Signs The one-hour parking limit will be in force on Third street between Gregg and Johnson streets. A 15-minute limit will be effective on Second street in front of the post-office and immediate across the street therefrom.

Traffic stops will be required at the intersections of Fourth and Scurry, Third and Gregg and Third and Johnson streets; and "slow" requirements will be made at various other intersections yet to be designated.

Provision will be made for no-parking on Second to Fourth streets, inclusive, and from Gregg street to Johnson street, inclusive.

To assist in enforcing the new traffic laws, a second motorcycle patrolman is being added to the force. He is to assume duties on Feb. 1, working with a traffic policeman who went on the job this month. A motorcycle has been ordered for the new officer, who now is attending a traffic school being conducted by the state safety commission.

Wallace Calls Tax Decision Legal 'Steal'

Secretary Flays Supreme Court Ruling On Process Levies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Secretary Wallace today renewed his attack on the supreme court's decision in refunding 200 million dollars to processors, charging "this probably is the greatest legalized steal in history."

Wallace said "in turning over to the processors this money, we are seeing in the most flagrant example of expropriation for the benefit of one small group."

The court two weeks ago ruled that processing taxes impounded with the courts pending outcome of suits filed against collection of the levies should be returned to the processors. Nothing was said about requiring processors to show they had not passed on the tax cost to the consumer. Wallace has on several occasions attacked the decision.

Italians Claim Another Victory

The confident Italians predicted a continuation of their advance during the approaching rainy season.

Succumbs In 2 Hours After Sudden Attack

DEATH VICTIM

Unexpected Death Takes Leader From Ranks Of Long Followers

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 28. (AP)—Governor O. K. Allen died unexpectedly today at 10:40 a. m., from what was announced as a cerebral hemorrhage. He was seized with a sudden attack at the executive mansion at 8:50.

Stricken At Mansion The governor apparently had been in good health. He was stricken just as he was preparing to leave the mansion for the executive offices in the state capitol.

A corps of physicians was hastily summoned, but their efforts failed to rally the governor. The death was announced by A. P. White, Allen's secretary.

Noe New Executive Lieutenant Governor James A. Noe of Monroe automatically succeeded Allen as the state's chief executive. Noe always has been a staunch supporter of the administration of the late Huey Long and Allen.

Allen was born in Winnfield, La., in 1881, and grew up as a boyhood companion of Huey, who carried his friend along to political power as he himself rose to high positions.

Allen had served as a member of the state legislature, as chairman of the Louisiana state highway commission, as governor, and had been nominated only last week for rector of the short term in the United States senate, to fill the vacancy left by the death of Allen.

The passing of Allen was seen as another great loss to the "Long" political machine, which only recently was beginning to show strength again after the assassination of its leader. The Long group last week swept all elections in the state, and had counted on Allen to continue its representation in congress.

Four dances will be held in Big Spring as the city's part in the Birthday Balls, to be staged throughout the country on Jan. 30, is to raise funds to permit continued research work in combatting the dread disease.

Last year there were 2,134 cases of poliomyelitis in New York City and only 90 deaths. During the period from 1912 to 1935, the average infantile paralysis case-fatality rate was 19.8 per 100, or substantially one death in every five cases, instead of one death in 25, as last year.

The lower mortality rate has been attributed in part to improved methods toward prevention and cure of the disease, result of scientific research.

Purpose of the President's Birthday Balls, to be staged throughout the country on Jan. 30, is to raise funds to permit continued research work in combatting the dread disease.

The Sports Circuit

OF THE 36 football games scheduled in the Oil Belt district next fall, 11 will be played at night.

THE STEERS will have room for two non-competitive games on the schedule. School officials have been thinking of scheduling a game with some Fort Worth team and bookline a club from the Panhandle circuit here. Pampa has been mentioned as a likely foe, but we understand that Coach Odus Mitchell's prospects are dim. Amarillo or Lubbock would prove a good drawing attraction.

HERMAN FUHRER, one of the promoters of wrestling here last year, intends opening his outdoor arena again about the first of May—or as soon as the weather will permit.

THE MINERAL Wells country club, which will be the scene of the West Texas golf association tournament this year as well as the W. T. Women's golf association meet, is undergoing a great deal of improvement, according to Mrs. C. J. Phillips of this city who attended a committee meeting of the West Texas Women's Golf association in Mineral Wells last Saturday. Small decorative cedar trees are being planted along the fairway. Early in the spring work will be started on "The Shady House," one for each of the 18 tees, with the exception of No. 1, which is a double tee and will be a large double shade house.

BILLY'S BUNCH here and there: Visitors to the Winter Olympic ski stadium at Garmisch-Partenkirchen may "see around corners" without moving from their seats. Huge mirrors are to the judges' tower permit guests to follow the entire course of the ski contests. . . Chelmsford race course in England, probably the only track that encircles a church, is to lose this unique feature. Shortening of the track means horses no longer will disappear behind the church and that communicants will not have to cross the track on their way to worship. . . A 460-mile torch relay will be part of the national games to be held at Adelaide, South Australia, Jan. 25-Feb. 1 in connection with a centenary observance. Twenty runners will take part in the race which is expected to last several days. . . A prize for every place winner. That is the motto of the German Olympic committee. Contestants who don't win medals at Berlin next summer will receive pocket cash as souvenirs. . . The plants now growing in a Berlin nursery, will be packed so recipients may take them home without danger of damage.

Patriotic Tunes Help U. S. Skier To Big Jump

ST. PAUL, Jan. 26. (AP)—American Olympic officials would do well to stick up the band when Svends Fredheim, St. Paul skier, takes off the scaffold edge at the winter games in Germany. . . For that was the inspiration Fredheim, the 28-year-old Norwegian-American, needed to win his first sizeable honor in this country. Fredheim, native of Oslo, came to America at the age of 19, but did little skiing until he entered a Canton, S. D., tournament, a major northwest attraction each year. As Fredheim sped down the incline a band blared the triumphant strains of "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Modern External Treatment Helps End Colds Sooner

Just Rubbed on at Bedtime Its Double-Action Continues Through Hours of Restful Sleep. OFTEN RELIEVES BY MORNING. Before a miserable cold gets you down, go to bed and apply Vicks VapoRub. Two generations have proved VapoRub the surest help to a milder, shorter cold. Just rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, VapoRub acts two ways at once: 1. By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster. 2. By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, released by body heat and breathed in direct to inflamed air-passages. Continuing through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm—soothes irritated membranes—helps break congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over. For Fewer and Shorter Colds Note for your family: Vicks has developed, especially for home use, a practical plan for Better Control of Colds. This commonsense guide to fewer and shorter colds has been clinically tested by practicing physicians and further proved in everyday home use by millions. Full details of Vicks Plan come in each VapoRub package.

DIXIE SCHOOLS URGE ATHLETIC SUBSIDY CURB

Tom Yawkey's Spending Makes It Tough On Red Sox Manager

JOE CRONIN PLACED ON THE SPOT

By JIMMIE DONAHUE, NEA Service Sports Writer BOSTON, Jan. 28.—Joe Cronin is on the spot more than any other man in baseball. With the greatest collection of high-priced baseball timber Tom Yawkey's millions could buy, the chisel-chinned fighter is faced with producing a pennant winner at the Hub this season, or else. It's no secret that Yawkey was disappointed with the fourth-place showing of his Red Sox last season. Being a business man who spent a fortune in buying Lefty Grove, Wes Ferrell, Oscar Melillo, Cronin, Fritz Ostermueller, and the rookies Babe Ostermueller and Melo Almada and others, and a vast sum in renovation of Fenway Park, he wanted a winner; fourth place was no satisfactory return for his investment. Being one of the best sports in the game, however, Yawkey forgot last year, dug deep into his pockets this winter, and shelled out another three or four hundred thousand, with several players tossed in, for such talent as Jimmie Fox, Johnny Marcum, Roger Cramer, and Eric McNair, of the Athletics, and Heinie Manush, Senator outfielder. With such stars added to the already amply stocked Sox roster, Yawkey feels he is justified in expecting a winner—and it's up to Joe Cronin, to produce it.

Age May Hold Sox Back

Joe will need all the proverbial luck of the Irish to turn the trick, however, despite his all-star collection. His path to the pennant won't be nearly as smooth as some experts have indicated, for several reasons. First of all, Cronin hasn't a young team to handle. The average of the 25 players listed on the roster is more than 27, with that of those players who can be classified as regulars about 28. None of the key men on whom Cronin is counting is exactly a spring chicken. Jimmie Fox and Wes Ferrell are the youngest, and both have plenty of hectic major league campaigning behind them. Fox, at 26, has seen nearly a dozen years of hard work, and Ferrell, at 27, has finished seven full American League seasons, during which his arm went lame and was nursed back to some semblance of its former effectiveness. In the outfield, Cronin is counting on Heinie Manush and Roger Cramer to aid the young Melo Almada. Heinie is a veteran of 34 summers, with a service record of 13 years. It is safe to say that Manush's best playing days are behind him. Cramer, while he has had only three full seasons, and four part-time years under his belt, isn't exactly a youngster at 28.

Rookies Present Problem

Another of Joe's difficulties will be trying to get the proper combination of a good football team, the fortunes of a baseball squad depend on teamwork. One star or three or our don't make a grid squad, not a ball team, either. There must be an infield that can work together on double plays, and give confidence to a pitcher, an outfield that understands how to play a batter, and a catcher who knows the hitters. The task of determining the value of his rookie material as compared with his veteran and high-priced timber is no easy one for Joe. On the pitching staff are such youngsters as Jim Henry, a right-hander who comes up from Memphis with a record of 20 won against 14 lost; Alex Moustakas, another orthodox thrower who won 13 and lost 10 for Little Rock in 1935; Lee Rogers, a southpaw who won 7 and lost two for the same club last season; and Manuel Salvo, a giant right hander who won 11 and lost 17 for Sacramento. Maybe Grove's 35-year-old arm is through after a brilliant season last year. Perhaps Ferrell's show in Cleveland has taken a lot out of his whip. It may be that Johnny Marcum won't perform as effectively.

Fredheim took his first skiing lessons at the age of 8 on shafts made from Norway pine by his grandfather, Ole Fredheim. He won his first tournament when 12.

Freisinger Is Speed Entry

19-Year-Old Chicago Boy Will Try For Olympic Mark

By TOM PAPROCKI, Associated Press Sports Writer Bill Taylor, veteran Olympic skating coach, singled out Leo Freisinger, 19-year-old Chicago schoolboy, as America's greatest Olympic skating prospect. Freisinger had just skated off with the Middle Atlantic speed title, piling up 50 points on Polly Lake at Newburgh, N. Y. in competition with a great field which included the U. S. Olympic skating team.

Box score (first game):

Referee—Brown.

was skating to his Middle Atlantic triumph, was the crippled veteran, Val Biasas, was fervently rooting for the youth to make his comeback complete. He had even given Freisinger his own hat to wear as a good luck token in the race. And when the Chicago lad won up a winning total Biasas was thrilled as the new champion. After the championship events Biasas, a veteran of three Olympic meetings, drew a tremendous ovation from the crowd by skating on an artificial limb. He lost a leg in an automobile accident last year but even that blow could not keep this courageous athlete from skating. The fact that Olympic speed skating races will be conducted on a time basis is not going to weigh as heavily against the American skaters' chances as some seem to believe. They should win their share of titles, although they aren't likely to sweep the four races as Jeffe and Shea did for the U. S. in 1932. The major opposition at Garmisch-Partenkirchen is likely to be furnished by the Norwegians and the Finns.

Both Games Close; Greyhounds Cop Final Setto

By HANK HART PORTALES, N. M., Jan. 27.—Flashing the same brand of unorthodox basketball that the Cosden Oilers used to gain an opening, 48-40 victory, the Eastern New Mexico Junior College Greyhounds nosed out the aggregation from Big Spring in the second game here tonight, 50 to 48, to gain an even break in the twin bill.

Tiny Reed's boys simply could not miss the basket in the second go, swishing the nets from all angles of the court in an exhibition of wild shooting rarely seen on any basketball court. The Greyhounds were trailing, 27-18, at half time and were behind mainly because of a grand offensive show on the part of Tommy Hutto and Jack Smith of the Big Spring crew, but "Bud" Reed, former McCamey football star, Morton Coffman, and Charlie Wallis formed a combination that forced the ball into the net faster than Hutto and "Skeets" West, who did some amazing shooting after the rest period. Coffman was the main factor in the Greyhound drive.

West pumped three difficult shots into the net seconds before the final whistle that tied the score, but in each instance Reed put the Greyhounds out in front again with looping field goals. Frantically shooting with less than a minute to play, the Big Spring center dropped one through the hoop to bring the count to 50-48 after Coffman had pushed the Collegians into a four point lead, but the whistle blew as Hutto and West were attempting to fling the ball toward the backboard again. Hutto took scoring honors for the game with twenty points while Reed was the main spring in the Portales attack with fifteen points.

'Set' Play Best

LAWRENCE, Kan., Jan. 28. (UP)—The basketball style that features the "set" play, dependent upon timing and skilled ball handling, is not ready to give way to the "fire" department style of hit and miss, according to Dr. F. C. "Phog" Allen of the University of Kansas. Dr. Allen, one of the nation's most successful basketball coaches, asserted the "set" play, rather than passing, is growing in use.

"High school boys have played the game for a long time without regard to the fundamentals of ball handling," he said. "Now they are beginning to learn the principles. Set plays are dependent upon these principles. Timing is the basis of all successful team play, whether it is basketball, football or other team games." Glenn E. Jacobs, coach of the Denver team in the Missouri Valley A. A. U. league, likes the "fire department game better, however, and feels it holds a greater appeal to the fans with its faster tempo and long shots.

Boxing Game Is Wide Open

By GEORGE KIRKSEY, United Press Staff Correspondent NEW YORK, Jan. 28. (UP)—With Joe Louis idle until summer, the way was opened today for champions in other divisions to cash in on the boxing boom started by the brown bomber.

Four champions are coming down off the shelf this week to pick up loose change in overweight matches and get into condition to risk their titles later in the year for important money. Several titleholders, realizing that their days are numbered, plan to reap all the profit they can before they are toppled.

Bantamweight: Champion Sixto Escobar in Porto Rico, getting ready for match with Al Gillette at San Juan Feb. 5. Faces busy year and likely will meet Lou Salich, New York, in return bout.

THIS GAME OF BASKETBALL

Here is the "guard scoring play" devised and used by Craig Ruby, basketball coach of the University of Illinois. No. 5 passes the ball to 4, who returns it. No. 5 may dribble before passing then to 1, while 2 decoys his guard back so that he can drop the guard off on 1 or 3's guard. No. 1 passes to 2, who relays to 3 for a basket shot, 5 having moved to the outside of 1 and close to the goal while 1 was passing to 2.

SOUTHERN LOOP HAS NEW PLAN

By CHILES COLEMAN, United Press Staff Correspondent CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Jan. 28. (UP)—College athletes below the Mason-Dixon line face two extremes of policy in the question of financial aid from their schools and coaches.

The two great Dixie conferences—the Southeastern, embracing schools from Florida to Louisiana, and the Southern, covering the Carolinas, Virginia and Maryland—find their views clashing as to what reward or assistance an athlete is entitled to for "his athletic services to his university." The Southeastern Conference, at its annual meeting last fall, started the sports world by opening the gates to paid college performers on the gridiron, track and court. It proposed outright pay to college athletes in the form of athletic scholarships designed to smooth the financial aid in a degree.

Cities showing increases greater than the average for the state during the comparable period were: Beaumont, Dallas, Fort Worth, Galveston, and San Antonio.

Good Crowd Sees Riegel's Pupil Recital

Specialty Numbers Bring Heavy Applause From Audience

Cold weather did not prevent a large and enthusiastic audience from attending the first dance recital given by the Riegel school of dance Monday evening at the city auditorium. The numbers brought much applause and the critics as a whole agreed that it was a finished and well worthwhile performance.

Among specialty numbers that brought down the house was that of Dean Miller in a tailor-made full dress suit dancing "Broken Loose" tap. The "flame dance" in which Mrs. Riegel was soloist with the accompaniment of Jacqueline Faw, Jane Tingle and Mary Ann Dudley was another outstanding number. Billy Gene Younger, accompanied by Hank McDaniel and Jill Tatum in "Going to Town," were hits. So were the adagio dancers, Marguerite Reed and Buri Settles. The following were heavily applauded in their specialties: Helen Blount, Pat McDaniel, Clarice Petty, Peggy Ann and Sue Edith Hargrove, Kawana Smith, Joyce Terry, Genevieve and Byrdine Labyer, Joan Simmons, Dorothy Parker, Joan Winn, Veda La Nell Robinson, Mary James Lees, Olive Lemley and Maurice Francis.

Other children who took part in the first half of the show and won many compliments are: Gloria Conley, Wilma Fay McIntosh, Virginia Alexander, Gretchen Hodges, Billy Royce Newson, Betty Blount, Gary Bivings and Thelma Ann McIntosh. The Junior High P-T-A sponsored the ticket sale and received approximately $33. Mrs. L. E. Dudley sold tickets at the door, assisted by Mrs. W. J. McAdams. Also on the ticket committee were Mrs. Gerald Miller and Mrs. R. E. Blount.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs is one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleaning the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the system. Thus, Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

Car Registration Total Is Higher

AUSTIN, Jan. 28.—Aggregate automobile registrations for fifteen representative Texas counties in December were 5,719 cars, 184 per cent greater than the 2,014 cars sold in these counties during December, 1934, according to the University of Texas bureau of business research. The lowest price group was the only one to show a drop from November sales. All other groups showed a substantial increase over the preceding month and a phenomenal increase over December the year before. The greatest increase was in the highest price group.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR NATURAL "BULK"

Needed to Correct
Constipation*

Most people recognize the seriousness of constipation. But too often they dose themselves with strong cathartics that often actually lead to chronic constipation.

The natural way to check common constipation is to correct the condition which causes it—irregular, insufficient "bulk" in meals.

How can you get "bulk"? Fruits and vegetables have some. Bran has more. The most popular product of this kind is Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

This delicious cereal is a wholesome food. Serve ALL-BRAN regularly, with milk or cream—or use in cooking.

Two tablespoonsfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will usually correct constipation due to insufficient "bulk." If not relieved, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN gives you gentle internal exercise. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

WASHINGTON—When Senator Glass of Virginia heard vitriolic abuse on the youthful head of Senator Nye, last week, he may not have been motivated entirely by the lofty purpose of championing the name of Woodrow Wilson.

Senator Glass may or may not have known what the munitions investigation which he tried to silence was preparing to reveal.

In the files of Senator Nye's munitions committee is recorded the fact that Carter Glass, as secretary of the treasury under Woodrow Wilson, waived collateral on $494,000,000 of French and British war loans held by the treasury.

It should be remembered that the proceedings under criticism were conducted in wartime when details of $494,000,000 were subordinated to the central idea of defeating Germany, and it is likely that the whole administration was in on the arrangements that Carter Glass made.

The loans originally were held by J. P. Morgan & company whom Senator Glass has so consistently defended. When held by Morgan, however, the loans were secured.

Later, when the United States entered the war, the two loans—$294,000,000 to the British and $200,000,000 to the French—were passed on to the treasury by Morgan.

Morgan admitted to the munitions committee that the treasury was entitled to this collateral, but since his testimony the committee has unearthed the fact that the treasury never got it.

Loan Dumping. It has also unearthed some highly interesting facts regarding the manner in which these private bankers' loans were dumped on to the treasury.

Upon American entrance into the war, congress authorized the Wilson administration to advance money to the Allies "hereafter," William Gibbs McAdoo, then secretary of the treasury, informed the house ways and means committee and the senate finance committee that this would not apply to Allied obligations already floated in this country.

Shortly thereafter, an Italian loan of $25,000,000 floated by Lee, Higginson & company came up for renewal. The Italian ambassador wrote a letter to the treasury stating frankly that Italy lacked either collateral or the means to meet the loan, and that the issue would default unless taken over by the treasury.

Legal Dodging. McAdoo put the legality of the transaction up to Attorney General Gregory, who wrote an opinion, couched in reluctant phraseology, accepting the Italian issue as a new loan, inasmuch as it was up for renewal. He specifically stated that in rendering this opinion, he was not taking into consideration the intent of congress.

Note—Later Italy secured a write-down of 75 per cent on her war debts to the United States, subsequently was one of the first nations to default.

On the basis of the Gregory opinion, the treasury later took over the Morgan advances to Great Britain and France of $494,000,000. These two issues were secured by bonds held by the French and British governments or by their nationals.

However, in November, 1919, Norman Davis, then an assistant secretary of the treasury, wrote a long letter to Carter Glass, his chief, urging that the collateral be waived.

Glass accepted Davis' recommendation. The major portion of the French and British war debts is still owing.

Unique Banking. Another disclosure the munitions committee is preparing to make is in regard to allied repayment on loans, and how they were handled by Glass as secretary of the treasury.

Instead of applying payments against unsecured loans as in the practice of private bankers, Allied payments were deposited against loans which were supposed to be secured and on which the collateral later was waived.

Russell Leffingwell, now a partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan, was an assistant secretary of the treasury under Glass during this period.

Senator Glass has been a consistent champion of the Morgan firm both before the munitions committee and the senate banking committee. When the Morgan partners were first summoned before the latter committee, Glass objected vigorously to the consequent questioning of Committee Counsel Ferdinand Pecora.

HOLC Shows Improvement In Payments

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—For the tenth successive month, the ratio of payments made, to total payments due the Home Owners' Loan Corporation from its borrowers, showed an improvement in December of the previous month.

As of December 31, the proportion of all principal and interest payments made, to total payments due the corporation since its establishment in June, 1933, had risen to 68 per cent since March, 1935, and nearly 6 per cent since July.

Total principal and interest due the corporation from the time it was created up to Dec. 31, 1935, aggregated $295,176,011, exactly 68 per cent of which had been paid, and 78.6 per cent of which had either been paid or was not then past due more than 90 days.

Of total interest payments due, approximately 82.4 per cent had either been paid or was not over 90 days past due on Dec. 31, while approximately 72.7 per cent of all principal payments due had either been paid or was not more than 90 days past due.

In December, the corporation received approximately 80 per cent of the total sum currently billed in December on principal and interest, indicating substantial repayment in that month of sums previously in arrears.

As of Jan. 9, the corporation had closed loans for the relief of 678,885 home owners, the amount of such refinancing aggregating $2,923,856,895. As of Dec. 31, the corporation had been forced to institute foreclosure proceedings against 2,483 borrowers who had deliberately and persistently failed to make their monthly payments when due, although actually able to pay.

This group of borrowers represents 55 per cent of all the 4,470 foreclosure proceedings instituted by the corporation up to Dec. 31.

In 197 cases, foreclosures were stopped because the home owners paid up their delinquency upon the institution of proceedings. To date, only one foreclosure proceeding, now pending or closed, has been instituted out of every 228 loans made by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

Apart from cases of deliberate refusal on the part of certain borrowers to meet their obligations, the corporation's foreclosure proceedings through Dec. 31 are represented by 1,489 property abandonments, 299 cases where the borrower had died and the heirs failed to assume the obligation, and 100 instances where legal complications had arisen, exemplified by foreclosure action by the holder of a second mortgage, forcing the corporation to institute similar proceedings in the protection of the public interest.

BIG FIGURES

It has been said that, in this modern era, the American people have become so accustomed to big figures in governmental affairs that a few billions or less fail to make an impression.

It is becoming more evident, however, that the federal budget will be the major problem of the administration during the present session of congress as a result of recent developments. The federal budget may seem a distant thing, but the matter of taxation to balance this budget is a close-at-home problem indeed; and the problem should be one of all the people.

President Roosevelt's original budget had the semblance of being balanced, insofar as "regular" expenditures were concerned, but there is a different story to tell today.

Aside from the two billions indicated as necessary to carry on work relief, but not included in Mr. Roosevelt's budget, it appears that another three billions will be added to the expenditure side of the budget for the next fiscal year.

Included in this total is around two billions for the veterans' bonus, which now must be paid. To this is likely to be added another billion for agricultural benefits, this including the appropriation for the contemplated soil conservation program, the total that must be returned to processors, and the amount required to pay off AAA contracts to farmers.

These figures, together with a deficit of one and one-half billions previously shown in the president's budget, indicates a total deficit at the end of the next fiscal year of around six and one-half billions, UNLESS additional taxes are levied.

The loss of processing taxes, the bonus payment and additional relief requirements point strongly to additional taxation. Congressmen are reported to be seeking a way to avoid new levies, because taxation is not popular, and distinctly represents a bad move in election year.

But taxes may be necessary, popular or not. The bills are here to be paid, and government credit must be maintained. It's a good time to be concerned about big figures.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Even the waxen figures in the windows were ravishing in their new creations, so an inspection of one of those fascinating style shows in the cafe-bar of the Sherry-Netherland seemed just the thing for such a cold day.

Some of the lovely femmes had already arrived, the brunettes, but just two winks behind them were the blondes and the redheads. There were a couple with deep ivory skin and raven hair and beautiful blue eyes. Others were platinum and honey-haired. And there was one whose peach-glow complexion seemed to have been kissed softly by sunlight.

Naturally they were gorgeous, having been chosen for their figures and their ability to show off frocks, and so I need not go into a treatise on why, at such moments, food seems to lose its significance. "All I may say is that dishes were brought and taken away, and in the interim I must have made subconscious attempts to eat, but of what food there was I have no recollection.

"What a brave fellow you turned out to be!" a soft voice suddenly chided.

"What do you mean?" I inquired, recognizing a lass who writes fashion articles for the magazines.

"You're the only male here. But don't let that throw you; nobody will notice you. What is any man in the life of a woman when there are new styles to see?"

"What is this show about?" I ask, ignoring the insult. She informs me it is an exhibit of some original Creed importations, which sets me wondering all over again why style creators insist on having no first names.

There's Schiaparelli in Paris and Adrian in Hollywood, and an yf dozen others including Molyneux, Chanel, Vionnet.

"Reboux is exerting a tremendous influence in Paris," the magazines say. But what I want to know about Reboux is whether that first name is Pete or Daisy!

The Fashion Group, I suspect, has a lot to do with this. At least they abet the practice. This group is composed of people who criticize the new vogues. That is, they are to fashions what dramatic critics are to new plays, and they go around quoting one another and referring to each other by last names.

"Jones says Chanel will revolutionize hostess gowns this fall." Jones may be a perfectly lovely little girl or Jones may be an ex-marine with a flair for describing lines. It's very confusing.

"Go on," I nudge, "what about Creed?"

"Creed is very imaginative," she decides. So is the man who writes the Tarzan books, I feel like saying, but I don't. She's a nice child and I don't want her frowning away.

So I attempt a pun which falls pretty flat, but it keeps her on her favorite subject. I say, "Well, I know what your creed is now."

"Creed is doing really great things," she continues. "He's English, you know, and for 100 years his family have been pioneers in tailoring. Now take this frock," she says, pointing to a model who is gracefully floating our way. "Imagination—sheer imagination!"

She's right. She sure knows her Creed. And does Creed know his sheer!

King Cotton Bids For Spot In Southern Fashion Sun

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—King Cotton has put in his bid to regain part, at least, of his domain in the fashion world here.

Winter resort wardrobe feature cotton in many of the smarter daytime ensembles, as well as for formal evening wear.

A tricky cotton frock in dusty pink, ornamented with rows of buttons cut from native palmetto, was one of the high spots of recent private showings.

Taffeta in Sport Frocks. Stylists assert, however, that the monarch of the south will have to continue giving place to such other favored materials as chiffons, lames and velvets, particularly for late afternoon and evening wear.

Taffeta, usually swirling in grandeur at balls, is being smartly tailored for you to forgive our foreign debtors, but it was not constitutional for us to do anything for the farmers and workers of this country.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

Chapter 35 BREAKUP

"Oh, darling," said Allaire. He voice seemed to catch. "Oh, darling," she began again. "Don't you think I've thought of this? I'll marry you—if you want me, to only—"

"What?" said Fox. "Only what?"

"Only, George, darling, I don't think I'll ever get over that fighting engineer terror. I've tried to, heaven knows I have. But," there was a far-away look in her eyes.

He thought of that thin gold cigarette case with the vanity mirror set in platinum on the cover, and the detectives demanding to see the girl behind the door in Willett's hotel room. Maybe that smug note would be stified if Allaire knew about that.

Her pride had lowered its colors, but this—Fox was suddenly convinced that if she knew about this, she would get over the memory of that striking son of the engineering camps. And she deserved to know. Her future and his were at stake. She couldn't go on like this.

He was silent so long that the girl looked at him anxiously.

"Don't hate me, George. I couldn't stand it."

"Good Lord, Allaire, why should I hate you because you can't forget Terry Willett? But—"

"That's the second time you've said 'but.'"

"Did I?" said Fox. "Well, I forgot what I was going to say." He smiled grimly. "It couldn't have been important."

They decided to drive back to Westlands and Allaire went to change from her riding clothes. Fox waited for her on the veranda.

Quite a few of the Show crowd adjourned to Westlands that afternoon, a tide of people eddying around tables on terrace and lawn, swirling through the house; backgammon and bridge going full blast, buffet tea and hors d'oeuvres served both on the lawn and in the laproom, cocktails being shaken up in a dozen places.

Fox was absorbed by a bevy of girls and departed with a half hearted grin. Allaire looked after him a moment and then went into Ray's private study. Ray was conferring with Blythe, the majordomo of the household, on plans for the evening. He dismissed the butler as she came in.

"Come on, baby," he said, "get tidied up. You may have a tremendous board to preside over tonight."

"Ray," she said idly, "what would you say if I told you I was going away?"

"Going away? Where?"

"South America."

He stared, astonished.

"What the devil do you want to go there for? I thought George was taking up his duties in London. Has he been shifted back?"

"No, he's still London-bound."

"Then what?" He stopped and regarded her suspiciously. "Don't tell me you've called it no dice with him too."

"We both called it no dice. Only decent thing to do."

"And when did this South American idea pop up?"

She shrugged.

"It's been in my mind for a long time, only I couldn't quite bring myself to it before. But I've felt like a person with one arm ever since he left, and sort of lonely and uncertain and there's no use trying to kid myself any longer. I should have gone after him a long time ago, but nothing is going to stop me now."

"You're talking about Willett, of course?"

She nodded.

"Of course."

Ray started to smile. And that little smile lasted while he lit a cigarette and leaned back, viewing her enigmatically through a cloud of smoke.

"Allaire," he said, "I've tried to warn you. You're heading for fog. You don't know anything about Willett."

"I know enough."

He threw back his handsome head and laughed.

Allaire, the unattainable. Untouched by scandal, possessed of the pride and ideals of a goddess.

She started to rise. He sobered quickly.

"Wait a minute," he said. "I owe this much to you. To both you and George before it's too late." He opened a drawer of his desk and took out several typewritten sheets clipped together. "Ever read a detective agency report? Very detailed. Makes it interesting. This is the report on the search for you when LaMarr was pulling his blackmail stunt. Take a look at it—page four particularly."

He pushed it across the desk to her.

"Ray, I'm not interested."

"All right, I'll read it to you myself." He picked up the report, ruffled through to a certain page, and leaned back. "I had them looking for Willett," he explained. "I thought he could give some clue to your whereabouts. This is an excerpt."

Willett was located in the aforementioned hotel at six forty in the evening. All signs pointed to the presence of a woman in the room. Willett admitted the fact, but denied that it was the party sought. On Mr. George Fox's advice and responsibility the investigation was not pressed. A woman's cigarette case was found, however, for identification and possible evidence.

He paused. "You never knew that, did you?"

"I don't," she said deliberately, "believe it. You and your damn detectives."

"No?" He rummaged in the drawer again and brought out a thin gold cigarette case.

"You'll find this described in the back of the report under detailed evidence. This is the one they found. It was left with me and I didn't know who owned it. But," he added positively, "now that I think about it, I could give a pretty good guess. You see, we got in touch with Willett through Puff Harrington."

She started.

"Carolyn—say, you're a fool. That little—"

"Chaser?" he finished. "Well, we'll see."

He rang for Blythe and gave directions to see if Miss Harrington had arrived as yet and if so to ask her to drop in and see him right away.

Then he put the case in prominent view on the desk. He was getting set for a fight. Day. As he laid out numbered through all these elaborate stage preparations. And Fox had been so non-committal about how Terry Willett came to be mixed up in the LaMarr business. But then, Fox was a friend of Terry's.

Puff came in shortly afterward with a cocktail glass in each hand.

"Hello, Ray beloved," she greeted. "Hello, Allaire. Look what I've brought."

A sense of repugnance at seeing her tramped swept over Allaire. She picked up the cigarette case and held it out to Puff.

"Did you lose this, Carolyn?" she asked impulsively.

Puff's eyes widened in delight.

"Why, where on earth did you find that? I wondered where I lost it." She set down a glass and took it gratefully. "Thanks so much, Allaire."

Allaire knew her father's eyes were on her ironically.

"I understand," she said calmly, "that you know a friend of mine—Terry Willett."

"Terry?" exclaimed Puff. Her eyes rested on Allaire, first in surprise, then in quick alive femininity. "I should say I do know Terry. He and I did the rounds, had a big time in New York. Did the rounds and ended up in Night Court at dawn. He can fight like anything."

"Yes," said Allaire absently, "like anything."

She bit her lip, then suddenly excused herself and left the room.

"What's the matter with her?" Puff inquired.

Ray seated himself on the edge of the desk.

"Don't worry about Allaire," he advised. "And thank you, Puff. You've saved her from making a fool of herself. But, baby, he grinned and shook a finger under her nose, "what I know about you—"

Luckily, dinner after Ray's roof, although beginning formally, seldom stayed that way. People were always dropping in, and those at the table would get up and wander out between courses like intermissions between dances. Allaire thanked her stars for that.

She appeared at dinner to take her place at her father's wifely board, but having started things off, she found it no great task to leave the dining room and go up to her apartment.

She dropped into a chair and stared out of the window. Hum of conversation from the terraces below, the sound of motors in the drive and laughter—and Puff Harrington, dancing from one man to another.

(Copyright, 1935, by David Garth) Tomorrow, Allaire again takes to the air.

Public Gives 3 Million For British Debts

Pool, Organized In 1927, May Take 300 Years To Reach Goal

LONDON, Jan. 28. (UP)—A mere handful of conscientious Britons who believe that integrity is the soul of their empire are trying to pay off Great Britain's huge national debt, including a billion dollars due the United States.

Their contributions, dribbled in to what has come to be known as "the patriotism pool," amount to $2,814,320.02 after eight years.

Many of these donations are anonymous, as was the check for $6,000 sent at Christmas time.

But their efforts are like trying to bail out the Atlantic Ocean with a bucket.

The trustees of the National Debt Redemption Fund, Messrs. Baring Brothers and Company, Ltd., estimate that it will be 300 years or more before the national debt of close to $40,000,000,000 can be wiped out by such voluntary gifts.

Without any further gifts and depending upon five per cent compound interest to double the money every 15 years only $320,000,000 would be available in 100 years whereas the war debt to the United States is more than triple that figure.

When William of Orange came to the British throne 250 years ago the national debt was only $425,000, the government having borrowed on the strength of anticipated French import duties.

Deficit Viewed With Alarm In USCC Statement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28. (UP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States described the federal government's financial plight as one of "increasing concern" in a statement concerning the fiscal outlook.

"High new prospective expenditures, not contemplated in the president's budget," the chamber said, "loom disquietingly, particularly as they begin to appear when the hope had been that the expenditure would be downward."

"As a result, therefore, earlier of $500,000,000 and the Napoleonic wars cost another $3,000,000,000 and in 1817 the debt had amounted to $4,240,000,000 or ten thousand times its size in 130 years. It has grown ten times greater in the last 120 years.

When William of Orange came to the British throne 250 years ago the national debt was only $425,000, the government having borrowed on the strength of anticipated French import duties.

FORSAN MEETS LAMESA TONITE

FORSAN, Jan. 28. (Spl.)—The Forsan Buffaloes will be out for revenge tonight when they play the Lamesa Tornado basketballers at Lamesa.

The Lamesans bested the Buffs by a one point margin recently in one of the most thrilling games ever played here. The Tornadoes won the game in the last ten seconds of play.

Liles, one of the best high school basketball players in West Texas, will lead the Forsan attack. Other stellar players on the Buff squad are Parker, forward, and Scudday, guard.

Lamesa looms as a state basketball threat again this year.

Employment And Pay Rolls Show Gain In January

AUSTIN, Jan. 28.—Employment and pay rolls in Texas showed considerable improvement in January over the corresponding month of 1935, according to the University of Texas bureau of business research. fit from the payment, they agreed, but added that very few cars would be bought unless there was a definite business need for them. Perhaps one of the biggest items will be that of clothing. Many families which have managed to get by on cheaper brands will replace these with quality for the first time since 1929.

To "Get Even"
A few asserted they would not ask cash for their bonds now, preferring to leave them to mature. A still smaller number were not impressed by the cash payment prospect, saying they did not believe they were entitled to it at this time. One suggested it would have been better if the government had used the money in evolving some new plan to aid the farmers. Persons holding old obligations against veterans will be benefitted by the payment, it was predicted. Several ex-soldiers said they would first "get even with the world" before planning on how to spend the remainder due them.

There will be very little foolish spending, officials of the VFW post ventured. "Most of the men are in their forties now," commented Dr. C. W. Deats, former post commander. "They have most of these foolish notions out of their head and are going to spend that money where it will do the most good. They aren't forgetting the depression and the lessons it taught them."

Robinson Will Answer Smith In Speech Tonight

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28. (AP)—Depicting Al Smith as an "apostle of reaction," new deal adherents said today that any democratic losses accountable to his Liberty League speech in which he attacked the Roosevelt policies would be overbalanced by republican liberal support.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, democratic leader, prepared to blast back at Smith in a radio address tonight.

Workers' funds will be built up through taxes on both employers and workers, and will not come from state or federal treasuries.

The needy will get their help from funds set up by the treasury of states and the federal government.

In 1942, when all portions of the act have begun to pay benefits, it is estimated, roughly, there will be an annual national purse of $4,450,000,000 ready to care for the misfortunes of some 8,064,614 people.

It is not expected either that the full purse will be spent each year, since the benefits will be limited by the number of people who qualify for them. However, the reserve will be there as a back-log against a recurrence of the suffering that grew from the depression.

The act is considered, particularly in the workers' provision, as a huge national insurance plan, and not a dole. Experts who formulated the act say it will, in effect, force individual citizens to save against a rainy day. Workers and employers will save together, through taxes, against the day when old age or depression push working men and women out of the ranks of the self-supporting.

Insofar as the act does that, it is expected to relieve state and federal treasuries of the need for a wholesale relief program such as FERA.

The two workers' provisions—old age insurance and unemployment compensation—are considered by far the most important parts of the act.

Taxes for the unemployment provision began on New Year's day. All employers of eight or more people, with some exceptions, are now liable for a tax of one per cent on their payrolls. This need not be paid until the end of the year. The unemployment tax will amount to two per cent in 1937 and to three per cent thereafter.

No unemployed person will receive benefits under the law unless he lives in a state which has an unemployment compensation law approved by the security board. But, even if the state has no such law, the employers will be taxed.

Taxes for the old age insurance plan will begin next January. They will fall alike on employer and worker, rising from one per cent in 1937 to three per cent in 1949. The employer will pay taxes on his payroll, and the worker will pay on his wages. Payments under this plan will start in January, 1942, to all qualified workers 65 or older.

For all other provisions of the act, federal funds are ready as soon as the states have plans which meet the requirements of the security act, and as soon as they have voted appropriations to match the federal grants.

TOMORROW: The rights and duties of workers under the old age and unemployment compensation provisions of the security act.

Cosden Traffic Manager Dies As Result Of Fall

FORT WORTH, Jan. 28. (AP)—Walker Wilson, 38, traffic manager here for the Cosden Oil Corporation, died suddenly yesterday in a Fort Worth hospital supposedly from a cerebral hemorrhage caused by a head injury received when he slipped on an icy street in Dallas about ten days ago.

By mild ripe tobacco we mean just this—

FIRST—ripened in the sunshine... and picked leaf by leaf from the right part of the stalk when fully ripe.

THEN—each day's picking cured right by the farmer... at the right time and in the right way... no "splotching" or brittleness, but every leaf of good color and flavor.

FINALLY—bought in the open market... re-dried for storage... then packed in wooden hogsheads to age and mellow for two years or more until free from harshness and bitterness.

That's what we mean by mild, ripe tobacco. And that's the kind of tobacco we use to give Chesterfields their milder, better taste.

Outstanding... for mildness... for better taste
