Former Municipal Judge David Hale was scheduled to plead guilty today to conspiring to defraud the Small Business Administration and a new mail fraud charge, Randy Coleman, Hale's attorney, said Mon-

Without elaborating, Coleman said the additional charge — which was not in Hale's original, fourcount felony indictment — centers on transactions between Hale, his company, Capital Management Services Inc., and the failed Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan Association.

Special counsel Robert Fiske is trying to learn whether funds from Madison — whose failure cost taxpayers between $47 million and $60 million were diverted to a real estate development company in which President Clinton and his wife, Hillary, were partners with Madison owner James McDougal and his former wife, Susan.

He also wants to learn whether depositor funds were improperly used to help retire Clinton's 1984 gubernatorial campaign debt.

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a young submariner nearly 30 years ago, James Garrity once emerged from a training tank with bleeding eardrums. Following standard practice at the time, a Navy doctor stuck radium capsules up his nose — a treatment Garrity now blames for his nasal cancer.

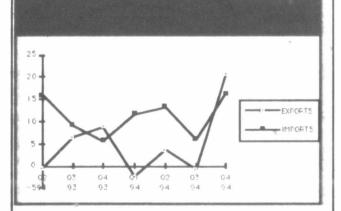

"I have been so sick over the last 10 years," Garrity, 47, said in a telephone interview Monday from his home in Quincy, Mass. "I was losing my voice for months at a time. Every time I eat, my nose runs. ... My teeth were breaking off."

Two weeks ago, Garrity said, his condition was diagnosed as nasopharyngeal cancer — a rare disorder affecting the nose and throat area.

Garrity believes many veterans may have gotten cancer from the radium treatments, and he plans to ask the federal government to provide free treatment and possibly disability pay for those who can be located.

He has set up a "Submarine Survivors Inc." hotline (1-617-471-5647) to collect data on veterans and others exposed to the treatment. He says he has logged more than 800 calls, mostly from cancer patients.

Radium capsules were widely used both in military and civilian medical practice to treat hearing problems from the 1940s to the late 1960s.

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's monthly trade deficit widened sharply in January as a big drop in sales of aircraft and telecommunications equipment caused exports to fall by the largest amount on record, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said that the trade deficit in both goods and services jumped 51.8 percent in January to $6.30 billion, up from December's deficit of $4.15 billion. That worsening occurred despite the fact that the government for the first time included trade in services in its monthly report.

Sanctions seem most likely approach now

Bliss Fort troops part of Clinton effort in South Korea

EL PASO, Texas (AP) -Between 650 and 800 soldiers trained in the use of Patriot missiles will be sent from Fort Bliss to South Korea as part of the Clinton administration's attempt to quell escalating threats from the Communist North.

Officials at the El Paso base said they were unsure when the Defense Artillery would be deployed. The Fort Bliss unit fired the first Patriot missile in the Persian Gulf War.

"We were only given a heads up" said base public affairs officer Jean Offutt. "We have had no movement orders."

"We're in the planning mode," she said. "We're getting our soldiers ready, our equipment ready and waiting for further instructions."

The government said the battalion's equipment will be shipped to Korea by surface transport, which could take 35 to 40 days. The amount of weapons sent is classified.

A call to the office of Moore's manager, Lou Pitt, for comment early today was not answered.

Tuzla airport opens with test flight landing

By TEDDIE WEYR Associated Press Writer

TUZLA, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) - A plane carrying 22 tons of aid and top U.N. officials flew into cease-fire in February and just last has been open for relief flights in almost two years of war.

The airport's reopening - a major goal of relief officials - had been blocked for months by Serbs, whose big guns can easily reach the tarmac. The area in northern Bosnia is government-held, and about half of its 800,000 people depend on humanitarian aid.

For such a historic occasion, the arrival of the first fixed-wing U.N. aircraft appeared routine.

"Everything was OK," said Maj. Gunnar Karlson, at U.N. headquarters in Tuzla, shortly after the plane touched down. The flight carried chief U.N. envoy Yakushi Akashi, French Gen. Bertrand de Lapresle, commander of U.N. forces, and other U.N. officials.

Akashi presented Tuzla's mayor humanitarian assistance" shortly after his plane landed.

"I hope, like these seeds, the seeds of peace and hope will keep growing in this city and the whole country,' Akashi said.

"We hope this is the beginning of the peaceful period for Bosnia-Herzegovina," said Mayor Selim Beslagic.

An airlift to Sarajevo has kept residents of the besieged Bosnian capital fed for much of the 23-month-old removed.'

months ago. Croats and Muslims, whose fighting in central Bosnia had blocked many aid convoys, signed Bosnia. Convoys heading to Tuzla from the north through Serb-held territory have also been getting in recently with relatively few delays.

"Now the convoys are running without any problems, and it is much cheaper to use road convoys than to use planes," Maj. Jose Labandeira, a U.N. spokesman in Sarajevo, told Kris Janowski, spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, said that months of difficulties in supplying northern Bosnia region means "we have to catch up in Tuzla - but it won't be a largescale airlift.'

Bosnian Serbs backed down on Tuzla after being threatened by NATO and encouraged to change by their Russian allies. They had previously argued that government forces with a box of seeds as a "token of could use the cover of U.N. flights for their own resupply operation. The city is 50 miles northwest of Sarajevo.

The Serbs also appeared ready to compromise on pulling back guns the United Nations says violate the heavy weapons exclusion zone around Sarajevo.

On Monday, the mines were Tuzla today, the first time the airport week created a joint federation in removed to allow negotiations to start on the guns' removal. Most Canadians later pulled back to base at nearby Visoko, but up to 45 remained in place today to monitor the weapons.

Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic insisted that Serb maps show the weapons are outside the zone. Karadzic and Akashi were supposed to discuss the situation fur-

The incident was the most serious violation of the heavy weapons exclusion zone established around besieged Sarajevo after NATO threatened to bomb Serb guns that were not withdrawn or placed under U.N. control by Feb. 20.

Elsewhere today, Croatian Serb and Croatian government delegations met at the Russian Embassy in Zagreb, Croatia, to try to formally end their 1991 war, which later engulfed Bosnia.

Many observers believe there can be no peace in Bosnia without a formal end to the war in neighboring Croatia. But the two sides remain far apart on ultimate goals - Croatia wants the lands captured by Serbs to be returned, while Serbs seek independence and ultimate union with the neighboring republic of Serbia.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - No longer will he be known as the whiz kid who couldn't sit with the grown-ups. Steven Spielberg now finds himself at the head of the table.

He got there with the most adult film imaginable, Schindler's List, a searing, three-hour portrait of heroism and evil during the Holocaust, shot mostly in black and white and without any Hollywood stars. The childlike wonder of E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial had been replaced by the horror of genocide.

"It's such a dream," Spielberg said in finally winning an Academy Award, "and it comes from such a nightmare."

The film won seven Oscars in all and best director.

The industry seemed anxious to make up for 20 years of snubbing its own box-office champion. As Spielberg's dry spell at the Academy Awards was finally broken, his peers stood and applauded, long and loud, as if to honor his whole career and not just Schindler's List.

"I actually have friends who have won this before, and I swear I have never held one before," said a beaming Spielberg, clutching the statuette for best director. His only prior Academy honor was an Irving Thalberg award in 1987. That award, which is not in the shape of an Oscar, honors a filmmaker's body of work.

Spielberg reacted calmly at first, running down a list of thank yous. He ended, however, in a choked voice as he spoke of the "six million who can't be watching this ... telecast tonight," a reference to the Jews killed by the Nazis.

When he won a few minutes later for best picture, he urged teachers to get in touch with the "350,000 survivors of the Holocaust alive today."

"I implore all of the educators who are watching this program - please do not allow the Holocaust to remain a footnote in history. ... Please listen to the words and the echoes and the ghosts," Spielberg said.

Schindler's List, which had led all competitors at the 66th annual Academy Awards with 12 nominations, also won for screenplay adaptation, art direction, film editing, John Williams' original score and cinematography. It was the most wins for a single film since Dances With Wolves three years ago.

Much of Monday night's ceremony was a constrast between celebration and sadness, with Schindler's List hardly the only film with grim material to receive any Oscars.

Tom Hanks of Philadelphia was cited as best actor for his portrayal of Schindler's List. a lawyer with AIDS. Bruce Springsteen's "The Streets of Philadelphia" took the Oscar for best original song.

Wreck that killed eight people under investigation

By JOSH LEMIEUX Associated Press Writer

LAREDO (AP) - Two unpleasant duties remain for investigators of a fiery accident that killed eight people identifying the body of the man who caused it and helping a sheriff's deputy bury loved ones who were said. among the victims.

Webb County Sheriff Juan Garza said Monday that he had no leads on the identity of a man who sped away from pursuing deputies before slamming a stolen pickup truck into two other vehicles Saturday night.

The man driving a stolen pickup, a married couple and a family of five were killed in the accident about five miles east of Laredo.

"We did our best to try to prevent the endangerment of lives," Garza said. "It's a really sad situation, especially when it hits home. One of my deputies' families was involved.'

Jorge Javier Rangel Sr., the brother of Deputy Ricardo Rangel; his wife, Gaitiana; and their children, Leonor, 12; Jorge Javier, 10; and Roel, 8, were killed when the speeding pickup rammed head-on into their

According to a report released Monday by the U.S. Border Patrol, the incident began about 8:30 p.m. Saturday, when the pickup truck approached a border patrol checkpoint eastbound on Texas 359, about 40 miles east of Laredo.

Before the truck reached the inspection area, it made a U-turn and headed west back toward Laredo, Border Patrol agent Alfonso Moreno said.

An agent in a marked car caught up with the vehicle just west of Oilton and notified the Webb County Sheriff's Department of its license plate numbers, Moreno

The agent gave up the chase about three miles east of Aguilares, some 25 miles east of Laredo, because he didn't have permission from a supervisor to continue.

Sheriff Garza said the border patrol contacted his department at 8:34 p.m. and one of his deputies began pursuit within minutes.

By 8:41 p.m., Garza said, a deputy pulled back because the driver of the pickup refused to pull

The sheriff said he called the dispatcher at 8:44 p.m. from a cellular phone in his own vehicle in Laredo and ordered all patrol cars to call off the chase.

'Our policy is, don't pursue anybody unless it's something major where you have to apprehend a suspect," Garza said. "We were in a damned-if-you-do, damned-if-you-don't situation because of the impending danger of that vehicle."

Garza said he found out one minute after he called off the chase that the vehicle was reported stolen in the community of Oilton. He insisted that no deputies were in pursuit when the accident occurred.

At 8:50 p.m., the pickup crossed the center line of Texas 359 - about 35 miles from the checkpoint - and rammed into an eastbound pickup carrying the Rangel

The pickups became airborne and crashed into the Quintanillas' pickup.

An explosion engulfed all three vehicles, making any rescue of the victims impossible, witnesses said.

The sheriff said he did not know why the Quintanillas had stopped on the shoulder of the highway.

since his critically acclaimed work in the 1989 TV miniseries Lonesome Dove. His roles have included a lawman, a killer and a terrorist men seething with energy, pain or violence.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Federal mandates discourage new jobs

President Clinton wanted to get away from the burgeoning Whitewater scandal and look presidential by hosting an international "jobs summit" in Detroit earlier this month. But the resignation of Associate Attorney General Webster Hubbell, under investigation by his (and Hillary Clinton's) former law firm for improper billing practices when he worked for the firm, could well have upstaged the president's pirouette on the stage of world diplomacy.

Perhaps it's just as well. All of the supposedly economically advanced G-7 nations (except Japan) have employment problems. But there was President Clinton, telling the Japanese - we're not making this up - to lower taxes. Meanwhile the countries with the real employment problems show little or no interest in doing what needs to be done to alleviate them.

If they're smart, the United States and European governments will dismantle the barriers and disincentives they have erected against productive employment, get out of the way and stay out of the way.

European countries and the United States face stubborn, long-term, but slightly different employment problems. In most European countries, unemployment stands at around 11 percent, virtually no new jobs have been created in the private sector in recent years and half the unemployed have been out of a job for more than a year. In the United States, new jobs have been created, but many are low-wage jobs, and too many are government jobs.

Rigid, complex employment laws and generous social-welfare programs have contributed to chronic unemployment in Europe. In Italy, government mandates require six months notice before an employee can be laid off. Spain's new labor law is 600 pages long. In Germany, laid-off workers get unemployment compensation amounting to 67 percent of their last wage. Generous unemployment benefits, not surprisingly, cause many people to prefer to remain unemployed rather than take relatively low-wage jobs. Complex and te mandates discourage p new jobs. In the U.S., companies have more flexibility and face fewer hassles when they want to hire or lay off workers. But government imposes some mandates, and minimum-wage laws prevent many low-skill workers from getting that important first job that, for most people, leads to a life of good work habits and productive employment. Thus employment in this country hovers chronically around 6 to 7 percent, and significantly higher in recession pockets. Europeans and Americans alike would do well to examine employment policies in market-oriented economies in Asia, like Singapore, Malaysia, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Chia, Korea and Japan. Some of the Asian "tiger" countries are now seeing Europeans migrating to fill low-wage, low-skill jobs of the sort that aren't available at home.

Malaysia has 3.3 percent unemployment, Japan has 2.5 percent. And while many of these economies were first built on the export market, economic growth and steady employment have created middle-class consumers who now buy most of the goods produced in Asian factories.

Unemployment in Singapore is about 2.7 percent, as it is in Thailand.

'Tough on crime' sounds good

These days, "tough" is to anti-crime measures what "firm" is to mattresses: the indispensable adjective. In his State of the Union address, President Clinton urged Congress to pass a "strong, smart, tough crime bill." Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, in the official GOP response, said that "Republicans want President Clinton to sign the toughest crime bill possible."

Sounds good: Who'd want a crime package advertised as weak, wimpy, mealy-mouthed, yellow-bellied and lily-livered? But there are two problems with this approach. The first is that it assumes we've been shamelessly permissive until now. The second is that it overlooks the fact that a mattress can be too firm and a crime policy can be too tough.

Toughness in this case generally means putting more people in prison and detaining them there longer - and, of course, carrying out more executions. Politicians usually talk as if they hatched these ideas over breakfast this morning. In fact, this particular crime-fighting strategy is old enough to get a driver's license and vote.

It came into being in the 1970s, in response to an alarming increase in violence in the 1960s. Between 1975 and 1990, the number of people in federal and state prisons rose from 241,000 to 789,000. During that time, the average prison term served per violent crime tripled.

During the early 1980s, the incidence of violent crime fell - which was taken as vindication by those advocating stiffer sentencing. In the second half of the decade, unfortunately, violent crime surged, even though incarceration rates were still heading skyward. Today, violent crime is considerably higher than in 1975. States that have boosted their inmate ling lawlessness than states that haven't.

The record in Illinois is typical. In the last decade and a half, the imprisonment rate has soared. Sine 1978, the state has had a "three-strikes-and-you'reout" policy, and 92 convicts are serving life sentences as a result. But serious crime is up 20 percent.

Capital punishment is another remedy that is simple, logical, popular and utterly pointless. The crime measures now in Congress would make dozens of new offenses eligible for the death penalty, but there is no reason to think the change would do any good. From 1977 (when states were allowed to resume executions after an eight-year interruption imposed by the Supreme Court) to 1990, Texas, Florida and Georgia led the nation in putting people to death. Each state was rewarded with a higher murder rate. Here's the inescapable lesson: Putting more criminals in prison and more killers to death has no apparent impact on the volume of violence. The experiment in toughness has been a bust. At curing crime, that is - it has been a great success at devouring tax dollars to build and operate institutions for the care and feeding of criminals.

It may be that if we concentrated on jailing the populations by a lot have had no better luck control- truly nasty felons until they were too old and feeble experience.

to be a threat, we'd make the streets safer. But the recent policy has been wildly indiscriminate, locking up the least dangerous as well as the most dangerous criminals. This is where "toughness" backfires. Crowding the penitentiaries with minor offenders can leave no space for brutal ones.

The risk is not theoretical. Consider Florida, which enacted strict "mandatory minimum" sentences for drug violations, only to find its prisons swamped. The result: It had to let violent and repeat criminals out to make room for non-violent and firsttime offenders.

Throwing the book at everyone is gratifying but not helpful. Three-fifths of the beds in federal facilities are now reserved for people imprisoned for drug crimes, many of them minor ones. In 1980, drug offenders accounted for only one out of every 15 people admitted to state prisons. Ten years later, they were one out of every three. The result is that it has been impossible to build prisons fast enough to keep pace with the supply of criminals. That leads to chronic early releases, which in turn leads to demands for life terms for three-time losers.

The smart approach is to use other methods, such as electronic monitoring, to punish and incapacitate minor criminals, freeing cells to be filled by hardcore enemies of society. But the bill passed last year by the Senate does exactly the opposite - establishing new mandatory minimums for drug and gun offenses that don't involve violence.

Our recent failures on crime suggest that toughness makes a better slogan than a policy. But our elected leaders are determined to prove that George Bernard Shaw was right when he said the only thing we learn from experience is that we never learn from

Today in history

In 1765, Britain enacted the Stamp Act to raise money from the American colonies. The act was repealed the following year.

In 1794, Congress passed a law prohibiting American vessels from supplying slaves to other countries. In 1820, U.S. naval hero Stephen

Decatur was killed in a duel with Commodore James Barron near Washington D.C. In 1882 Congress outlawed polygamy. In 1933, during Prohibition, President Roosevelt signed a measure to make wine and beer containing up to 3.2 percent alcohol legal.

He's fit to be tied at the Plaza

This is a reprint of a previous column that ran in November 1988:

I was staying recently at the Plaza Hotel in New York City (my publisher was paying for the room which is why I wasn't at a Motel 6 in Newark) and I went to have lunch in one of the hotel's spiffy

For the occasion, I wore a blue blazer, accentuated by a pair of khaki trousers and a white golf shirt I'd worn only once before.

I knew I was in trouble the moment I saw the maitre d'. He was a tall wisp of a fellow who was probably born with his nose turned up that way.

I wasn't absolutely certain he was light in his loafers, but when he traveled across the restaurant escorting guests to their tables, he touched the floor only once or twice.

"Table for three," I said to the maitre d', once he had landed back at his station. He looked at me as if he were looking at a dead cat in the highway. The right side of his lip curled upward, his nostrils half-flared and the lid of his left eye went to half-mast.

"Gentlemen," he said, "are required to wear ties when they dine here."

There are a number of phrases I enjoy saying at times such as these, but my two companions were ladies so I abstained.

I wear ties only to funerals of close relatives or heads of state. I stopped wearing ties during the late to middle '70s, because they made me feel uncom-

I especially hate to eat while wearing a tie. Once I was at a banquet and they served barbecued chicken with lots of red sauce on it.

My tie at the beginning of the meal was blue. At the end it was red. I gave the tie to my dog. He ate it. I'm also convinced ties restrict the blood flow to the brain, causing such disorders as forgetfulness, blurred eyesight and even criminal tendencies.

Al Capone was rarely seen without a tie. The tie.

same goes, incidentally, for Richard Nixon.

Anyway, I don't see what difference it makes whether or not you wear a tie into a restaurant, at least as long as you are wearing a jacket and clean underwear.

I told the Plaza maitre d' I didn't own a tie, and he went into a closet and fetched one.

It was black. Perfect for a blue blazer. The trouble was I couldn't remember how to tie a tie. Neither of my companions could either.

Getting terribly hungry now, I asked for help from the lady checking coats. She did a little better than the rest of us. When she finished tying the tie around my neck, the thin part that's supposed to be short was long, and the big part that's supposed to be long

Although I now looked like a completely idiot, wearing an incorrectly tied tie with a golf shirt, I was shown to my table.

I chuckled as I recalled a sign I saw recently in one of Atlanta's Long Horn Steak Houses. Long Horns don't care much about pretension.

The sign said, "No shirt, no shoes, no service. Bra and panties optional." The meal was excellent. I got mayonnaise on my

Politicians don't show any courage

Perhaps the advancing years mellow me, but I believe I am beginning to see politicians not so much as frauds and fakes as simply overgrown children.

They get up every day and close their eyes real tight and squeeze with all their might and soon they are tip-toeing through fantasy worlds and playing imaginary games with make-believe friends, absolutely convinced that the things they are saying and doing are real and tangible.

All through the recent debate over the balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, for example, members of Congress kept referring to something they called "political courage." Now really, if you were asked to think up a prototypical oxymoron, would not "political courage" be the first words to pop into your head? I mean, political courage in Washington is a rare bird, a prothonotary warbler if ever there was one.

Yet they kept repeating it and referring to it directly and indirectly - as if it actually exists. "The only thing that will stop this spending is courage, and courage cannot be legislated into the Constitution," said Sen. Rob Kerrey, D-Neb., one of the few who displays it from time to time. "We don't need constitutional cover to make the tough choices," said Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, as he prepared to vote against

And so 37 senators, clinging to the fiction that some day, somehow, they will conjure up the "courage" to get our fiscal house in order, voted nay and the amendment went down in defeat.

Joseph Spear

It's all a game the career politicians play so they can continue buying the goodies that keep them in office whether they have the money or not, and it's been going on almost continuously since World War II. Only eight budgets have been balanced in the past 48 years, none in the past 25. We have run up a national debt of $4.5 trillion, on which we are paying $800 million a day in interest, and we continue to stack it up at the rate of half a billion dollars a

The pols have tried everything from smoke-andmirrors to statutes to budget summits, and nothing has curbed their appetite for spending. For more than a decade, they have been toying with the amendment that would require a balanced budget, and every time it gets brought up it gets shot down with allusions to this non-existent thing they call "courage."

When the Senate narrowly rejected such a proposin 1986, know what the opponents said? They said all that was needed solve the deficit problem was a little "courage." When the House defeated a balanced budget amendment in 1992, know what Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., had to say about it? He said, "What we really need is a constitutional amendment that says, 'There shall be some spine in our national leaders." "Last year, Byrd wrote: "The bottom line is courage. I do not see how a constitutional amendment will give us politicians any more spine than we now have.'

So how much spine does the average pol have? During the recent debate, Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., proposed an alternative with a pork exemption clause that would have forbidden spending limits on such things as buildings and highways. Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, complained that balancing the budget would force cuts in agriculture programs. And Appropriations Committee Chairman Byrd, the prince of pork, whined last fall that the amendment would "most certainly end public investments in roads, airports, waterways, education, civilian research and development and defense planning" and much more.

As you can see, Capitol Hill positively bleeds

Sorry to have to shatter your little fantasies, fellas, but I have to tell you something. Most of you - not all of you, but most - are porcine sloppers at the public trough. You are gutless squandermaniacs, and somehow, someday, the body politic is going to find the courage to throw you out.

That's my fantasy, anyway.

CHICAGO (AP) - The check is in the mail, but will it be delivered?

That's the question these days in Chicago, where old, undelivered mail has turned up in mail trucks, back rooms of post offices - even a burning heap under a viaduct.

ries growing, two U.S. senators brought the head of the Postal Service to town Monday to address problems that have done what neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night could do.

"I haven't gotten any mail in seven months!" groused James Burns, a member of a crowd of 300 who told Postmaster General Marvin Runyon their complaints at a meeting Monday night.

Runyon said customer satisfaction in Chicago is below 70 percent, the problem. lowest of any major U.S. city. That's even lower than in New York City, which has been plagued by similar problems in recent months, Runyon

The postmaster general told the events are over, crowd he is setting up a task force to "look into every nook and cranny" and come up with solutions. An 800-number will be set up to hear complaints, and Runyon said he will return in two weeks to see that improvements have begun.

But Runyon said some of the problems may be due to labor-management friction, and results could take five years.

He was jeered by many in the audience.

Wendy Cedrowski said she was hand-delivering her complaints to Runyon. "I wouldn't expect it to be delivered if I mailed it," she said.

DEA claims UT employee stole drugs for others

AUSTIN (AP) - The University of Texas' virtually inexhaustible supply of chemicals has led to the production of tens of thousands of dollars worth of narcotics over the past several years, officials say.

An undercover Drug Enforcement Administration agent, testifying Monday at a federal court hearing, said UT storeroom supervisor Michael Mott, 44, "used his position" to siphon off chemicals needed to make narcotics.

"Based upon my investigation, there are ties to the Hell's Angels" motorcycle gang, the agent said. "I believe they are involved in the distribution of the finished product."

Mott allegedly provided chemicals to "cook" into speed. The speed then was distributed to Hell's Angels contacts. Mott masked the disappearance of the raw chemicals by altering school computer records, the undercover agent alleges.

He is one of three people charged with conspiracy to manufacture methamphetamines in the case.

Mott's court-appointed attorney, Michael Thompson, portrayed his client as a scapegoat during a detention hearing Monday.

He called the conspiracy charge against Mott a "flimsy charge ... the kind of charge law enforcement falls back on when they can't find evidence of any other crime.'

The undercover drug agent characterized the alleged drug ring as the largest speed manufacturing operation encountered in his seven years with the DEA. Authorities said more arrests or indictments are expected.

'An investigation is under way, and beyond that, I can't comment at this time," Robert Pitman, an assistant U.S. attorney in charge of the case, said.

The undercover agent testified that some drugs were manufactured at the university and others were made at Mott's home and the residence of a former part-time UT employee fired after theft allega-

Actor, soap opera star Macdonald Carey dies

Associated Press Writer

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) Macdonald Carey, the fatherly Dr. Horton on Days of Our Lives and voice of the soap opera's trademark opening, "Like sands through the hourglass ... ," died of cancer Monday. He was 81.

Although he appeared on Broadway and in more than 50 films, Carey made his mark in Days of Our Lives, winning Emmys in 1974 and 1975 as best television actor in a daytime drama.

He had been with the show since its 1965 debut.

As a tribute, the NBC series' producers will show Carey's portrait after Wednesday's episode, then fade to black.

Actress Deidre Hall, who plays psychiatrist Marlena Evans Brady, said the set was "very still" during Monday's rehearsals, with cast members in shock.

"I've known Mac for 17, 18 years. He was as gentle and nurturing and charming a man as you The Days of My Life. would ever want to meet," Miss John Clarke, who has played Carey's son since the show's pilot episode, said cast and crew were "biting their lips and going about mini-series Roots and had many their business.

"It's hard to talk to each other. But, we have a show to do and we're trying to immerse ourselves in work," he said.

Carey not only starred in the show but narrated its dramatic, musicaccompanied opening line: "Like sands through the hourglass, so are the days of our lives."

Carey, who last appeared in January, was never written out of the show, and his character will die, spokeswoman Paulette Cohn said.

Before his soap opera career, Carey was cast as a leading man in Hollywood movies of the 1940s and '50s, most notably Afred Hitchcock's Shadow of a Doubt in 1943.

He began in show business as a radio and stage actor in the 1930s and early '40s, starring in Lady in the Dark on Broadway.

His better-known films included six grandchildren.

Macdonald Carey

Suddenly It's Spring (1947), Dream Girl (1948) and The Great Gatsby

He also published three volumes of poetry and a 1991 autobiography,

On television, he starred in the title role of the 1956 series Dr. Christian and in the drama Lock Up from 1959 to 1961. He played Squire James in 1977's acclaimed other guest roles in regular series and television movies.

As Dr. Tom Horton, chief of staff of a university hospital in the fictional town of Salem, he was the perennial good guy, a father of five children and faithful husband. Unlike many soap characters, Horton and his wife, Alice, played by Frances Reid, had an unfaltering romance - perhaps explaining the longevity of their appeal to fans over decades.

Off-screen, Carey led a less storybook life.

He blamed his long battle with alcoholism for the breakup of his 28-year marriage to actress Betty Heckscher in 1969.

He also battled cancer for years, undergoing surgery in 1991 to remove a malignant lung tumor.

Texas, other states try to wrestle money from New York

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - For two decades, New York has had a virtual monopoly on the hundreds of millions of dollars in stock dividends and interest payments that customers nationwide neglected to claim from their banks and broker-

Texas and 46 other states now want a piece of that action.

And they want New York to give them what they consider their fair share of the estimated $1 billion in unclaimed funds the Empire State has collected since 1972.

Texans are leading the charge in Congress to allocate New York's past collections among all states. Legislation offered by House Banking Committee Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez, D-San Antonio, and Texas GOP Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison also would change distribution in unclaimed funds that accrue annually.

Not surprisingly, the congressional delegations of the three states cur-New York, Delaware and Mas- issue.

The stakes are high for New York, which is struggling with a $2 billion deficit. If Congress approves the Gonzalez measure, New York could be forced to pay out hundreds of millions of dollars to other states.

"It's just unconstitutional," said member of the banking committee. "There is no way under the sun this is going to apply retroactively."

Justices ask administration view of English-only rule on the job

By RICHARD CARELLI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court wants to know what the Clinton administration thinks about employers who require workers to speak only English on the job. The court asked Justice Department lawyers Monday their view of a ruling that cleared a California company of using an English-only rule to discriminate illegally against Spanish-speaking employees.

Such rules are increasingly common nationwide. The court is not expected to say whether it will review the California case until hearing from administration lawyers, which could take months.

In other matters, the court:

Dear

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the divorcee in Wichita, Kan., about the "Grace Under Fire" episode in which Grace lied to her children about their father and his involvement in their lives. Grace had purchased Christmas gifts for her children and put their father's name on the card so the kids wouldn't think he forgot

Abby, I saw the same episode. I did not agree with its premise then, and I still don't. The essential point is that the father did not care enough about his children to be involved with them. They will discover this on their own someday - and when they do, they will lose faith in their mother for having lied to them!

When my father walked out on our family, I was 10 years old. My mother didn't try to protect him; she told us the truth.

I am no 49, and I have seen the man six times since then, but because of my mother's honesty, I never wasted time looking for gifts that didn't come, or visits that wouldn't happen.

I have a friend, now 50 years of age, whose mother handled this situation like Grace did. She is still waiting for a father that never was to show up and be somebody he isn't.

Abby, single mothers or fathers must tell their children the truth because if they don't, their children will wind up with no one they can trust, and no anchor in their

TRUTHFUL MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: Regarding that episode in "Grace Under Fire":

In 1967, I divorced the father of my two young sons because he was a lazy, selfish man who was unable to commit to anything - a job, his marriage or parenthood. Our youngest son suffered seconddegree burns while I was working overtime to help pay the bills. Their father was busy reading the newspaper instead of watching his children, who were 4 and 5 at the

In the years that followed, I got hot checks for child support, I watched my children wait - and finally cry - when their father didn't pick them up on his visitation day, didn't even call on their birthdays, and broke promise after promise. When he remarried, I saw the pain in my sons' eyes when their father didn't spend time with them, but adopted another

I spent years biting my tongue to keep from telling the truth. Never once did I say a bad word about their father until the boys were in their teens — after they had finally put all the pieces together. When my oldest son was murdered, I thought perhaps the situation would change for our youngest son. It did, but for about six months; then the visits and phone calls stopped again.

My remaining son has two boys of his own (one of whom has never seen his grandfather). He knows now why I left his father and agrees with my decision. If I had it all to do over again, I wouldn't change one thing I did. Bravo to "A Divorcee in Wichita, Kan." for seeing the light!

CAROLE MONTGOMERY IN TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: School children should be taught to take notice of automobile license plate numbers - even the last couple of digits could help the police solve cases of stalking, kidnapping, rape, robbery, hit-and-run, etc.

I hope you think this is worth printing, Abby. It's just a matter of teaching boys and girls of all ages to remember letters and numbers.

MARK FINLEY, LT. COL. USAR (RET.)

DEAR MR. FINLEY: Your suggestion is wroth printing. Parents could make it a game, and teachers could reinforce it - if they were asked to do so by parents. Thank you!

The Pampa Art Club

The Pampa Art Club met March 15 at the Pampa County Club. Members updated the invitation list for the guest day tea and the committee for the tea was named.

The club also elected offices for 1995. They are Pat Youngblood, president, Peggy Palimitier, vicepresident, Virginia Archer, historian, and Ruth Barrett, reporter.

Francis Hall will conduct an oil painting workshop at the next meeting. The next meeting will take place April 5 at 10:30 a.m. in the Lefors Civic Center.

Progressive Family

The Progressive Family and Communication Club met in the home of Helene Hogan on March 10.

Beaulah Terrell presented the council report. Members were reminded of the craft workshop on April 7 and the NAFCE meeting in Hereford on April 19.

Barbara Shaw presented the program "Healthy Behavior Choices." Each club member was given a written quiz following the presentation.

All members were reminded to bring the baby bibs with "Read to Me" embroidered on them to be donated to each new born at the hospital.

12 members and four guests attended the meeting. Guests were Mary Gruben, Sidney Jackson, Nina Wolfinbarger and Vivian Dykes. Lenny Howard won the door prize.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A project you've set for yourself might not turn out as easy as it looked on the drawing board. However, don't use this as an alibi to scrap the endeavor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are financially irresponsible early in the day you might severely regret it later. Extravagance could emerge victorious if financial discipline isn't maintained.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In order to cut a deal today it looks like you might promise or give away much more than you should. Be fair, but also be sensible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be sure you're able to distinguish the difference today between positive thinking and wishful thinking. The former enhances success, the latter invites failure.

HOCKEY In the biggest flurry of activity on NHL trading deadline day, 35 players and eight draft picks changed teams in 18 trades involving 19 franchises. Mike Gartner, the fifth-leading goal scorer in league history, was among six players traded by the Rangers. New York sent right wing Gartner to Toronto for Glenn Anderson, who played for the Edmonton Oilers in their championship days in the 1980s, defenseman Scott Malone and a 1994 fourth-round draft pick.

The Washington Capitals traded hard-shooting defenseman Al Iafrate to the Boston Bruins for young center Joe Juneau.

Center Craig Janney, subject of a recent compensation dispute, went back to St. Louis from Vancouver for All-Star defenseman Jeff Brown, defenseman Bret Hedican and center Nathan LaFayette. The Blues also acquired Anaheim's only All-Star, defenseman Alexei Kasatonov, for forward Maxim Bets and a 1995 sixth-round pick. BOSTON (AP) — Cam Neely of the Boston Bruins, the second-leading goal-scorer in the NHL, is out for the season with a torn knee ligament.

Neely was injured after becoming entangled with New Jersey defenseman Ken Daneyko in the third period of Saturday's game at Boston Garden. He twisted his right knee as the players slid past the net and into the boards.

Neely appeared in just 49 of Boston's 72 games, but had 50 goals and 24 assists. He leads the NHL in game-winning goals (13) and is tied for third in power-play goals (20).

IRVING, Texas (AP) - As many as five National Football League teams may make offers to Dallas Cowboys fullback Daryl Johnston in the next two weeks, Johnston

Johnston told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram Monday that the offers could come from the Los Angeles Raiders, Washington Redskins, Kansas City Chiefs, Pittsburgh Steelers and the Cowboys.

Johnston also told the newspaper he feels assured he will be able to make his desired $1.5 million salary over two or three seasons though it might not be with the Cow-

Maloney said. Johnston, who made $700,000 last season, said leaving the Cowboys is a real possibility,

Xavier advances to third round of NIT

Moon may land with Minnesota

HOUSTON (AP) - The Minnesota Vikings are interested in obtaining Houston quarterback Warren Moon, and Oilers owner Bud Adams says he's listening. Adams, attending the NFL owners meetings in Orlando, Fla., confirmed Monday that the Oilers won't be able to keep Moon and backup quarterback Cody Carlson and their combined $6.25 million salaries. "They let us know they're interested," Adams told The Houston Post. "In the next two-three days, we'll see what we might come up with.' The Vikings want to give the Oilers draft picks for Moon, who is signed through 1995 and will earn $3.25 million this season. "They'd like to have Warren, but it would be tough to trade him," Adams told the Houston Chronicle. "He wants to stay with the Oilers. We'll just have to work on it.

They do have some extra picks.' Minnesota has two first-round picks and two second picks but they are offering lower selections. Adams admitted it would take extraordinary measures to keep both Moon and Carlson under the team's $33.8 million salary cap that is now in effect. "We've said all along that we want to keep both of them but it doesn't look like that's going to be possible unless we can get them to take some kind of reduction in salary," Adams said. Carlson and Moon have agreed to revise their contracts and take less money this season if it can be made up in subsequent years

The Oilers say they'll match the fouryear, $4.1 million offer sheet offensive tackle Kevin Donnalley signed with the Los Angeles Rams and they'll likely be faced with matching whatever defensive end William Fuller finds on the free agent mar-but that has not been an option.

36 statehouse contests provide a test for incumbents, GOP's talent pool

By JOHN KING AP Political Writer

There may be no better test of the anti-incumbent sentiment among voters than this year's gubernatorial

Two dozen of the 36 statehouse contests feature incumbents seeking re-election, including two governors seeking a fourth consecutive term: Democrat Mario Cuomo in New York and Republican Terry Branstad

At stake is the 29-19 Democratic majority in statehouse control, the races won't be known for mainly a source of party pride but also a factor in fund-raising and presidential campaign planning.

Republicans narrowed that margin with 1993 wins in Virginia and New this year. But of greater importance to many Republicans is improving the GOP talent pool heading into to governors' races, it's all local." 1996 - a strategy quite familiar to nors like Bill Clinton who developed the fresh thinking and new governing ideals that brought the party back into contention nationally," said Democratic pollster Geoffrey Garin, who is involved in a handful of statehouse contests.

"If there is going to be an alternative that is not some sort of warmedover Reagan and Bush but a real Republican alternative, it is much more likely to emerge at the state government level."

The candidate lineup for many of months because of crowded primary fields, and virtually every state has a local issue that distinguishes its statewide contests from the others.

"I'd resist reading any national Jersey and hope to whittle it again tea leaves," said Bob Behn, who runs a Duke University program that studies governors. "When it comes Still, crime has emerged as a major issue in virtually every race, "When Democrats were in the sending incumbents and challengers

And in this year's early voting, education funding also has been a major issue, both in the Illinois Democratic gubernatorial primary and in Michigan, where voters approved a higher sales tax to help pay for schools so that property taxes could be lowered.

Democrats also hope to a make a major issue of the health care debate in Congress, reminding voters that "once Washington passes something, most of the implementing decisions will be made at the state level," said Indiana Gov. Evan Bayh, head of the Democratic Governors Association.

As he travels to raise money and support candidates, Bayh said he is reminded daily of "the problems of success" - Democrats are defending 21 of the 36 seats. Republicans are defending 13, while the Connecticut and Alaska jobs now held by independents also are up this year.

Included in the Republican incumbents facing re-election are the stars of the GOP's "Class of 1990," governors who frequently make lists of presidential and vice presidential prospects.

So far, most are favorites for reelection, with one big exception: California Gov. Pete Wilson, who has made dramatic strides in recent months but still lags in polls.

Others in this group include Govs. John Engler of Michigan, Jim Edgar of Illinois, Tommy Thompson of Wisconsin, George Voinovich of Ohio and William Weld of Massachusetts

Among other 1990 first-time GOP winners, Arizona Gov. Fife Symington is a prime Democratic target, as Democrats hope ethics questions surmount Symington's record as a ning. These are Oregon, Oklahoma, tax cutter. Republican Gov. Arne

While Democrats are confident of term. winning the biggest race of all, California's, Republican hopes for gains are anchored on the other two of the big three: Florida and Texas.

Former President Bush's son, George W. Bush, is the GOP nominee in Texas against Democratic Gov. Ann Richards, the early favorite. Another Bush son, Jeb, is seeking the GOP nomination in Florida, where Democratic Gov. Lawton Chiles remains vulnerable.

Other Republican targets include Rhode Island, where Democratic Gov. Bruce Sundlun is considered so vulnerable some Democrats are still trying to talk him into bowing out.

So far, New Mexico's Bruce King has the most obstacles to re-election among the Democratic elder statesman on the ballot. He faces a Democratic primary first, and Republicans clear favorites.'

Colorado's Roy Romer appears a good bet to win a third term. And despite sagging poll numbers that portend a tough race, Cuomo has to be considered the early favorite to win a fourth term; New York Republicans are bickering endlessly as they search for a consensus can-

Republican Branstad is also seeking a fourth term in Iowa, an effort complicated by a primary challenge from Rep. Fred Grandy, the onetime "Love Boat" actor. Democrats hope that fight creates an opening.

"In a period where anti-incumbency is still pretty strong, it is amazing that you have so many governors trying to get re-elected to multiple terms," said pollster Garin. "And in a lot of cases they are the

Rid Your Home Of Unwanted Pests.

Does that old flame still call, long after the fire's gone out? Or maybe some middle-ofthe-night mystery creep is calling with suggestions we can't even print.

Get Call Blocker.

This unique calling service is the latest thing in pest control. You simply touch *60 on your phone and Call Blocker helps stop annoying callers from bothering you again and again.

Get Call Trace.

By dialing *57, Call Trace automatically traces obscene calls. Then if you file a complaint, Southwestern Bell will provide authorities with the traced number.

Call 1-800-234-BELL.

If you're plagued by annoying or obscene local calls, call to order Call Blocker, Call Trace or a free brochure. And stop these vermin where they live and breed.
