LaFollette Asks Income Tax Hike, Favors Cut In Exemption Figures

House Committee Is Considering Some Changes

WASHINGTON, April 27. (AP)—Senator LaFollette, progressive, Wisconsin, today said he would fight for a boost in individual income and surtaxes when the administration's $603,000,000 tax bill reaches the senate.

He favors lowering of personal exemption from $2,500 to $1,500 for married people and from $1,000 to $500 for single persons.

In the house tax bill debate, Republican Leader C. Smith asserted that the bill would destroy the small, struggling businesses and create monopolies.

House democratic tax experts talked today of making "important" changes before a final vote is taken on the measure late this week.

They declined to disclose the nature of the alterations under consideration, but there were intimations that the changes, if the ways and means committee decides to press them, would be designed to improve the revenue-raising capacity of the bill.

The committee's own figures showed the bill would fall $334,000,000 short of the $937,000,000 in temporary revenue which the president requested over a period of three years to make up for the loss in federal income this year resulting from invalidation of AAA processing taxes.

The president suggested new and broader taxes on agricultural commodities, but the committee scrapped the plan for bringing in $221,000,000 from this source.

Chairman Hill, Washington, of the ways and means, the subcommittee which drafted the measure said that the changes if any, would not involve a reversal of the agreement to omit processing taxes.

The senate finance committee planned to use the early part of the week studying the bill in executive session and then open public hearings Thursday. Secretary Morgenthau was expected to be the first witness.

Showers Help Terry Case Highway Jobs Is Delayed

Work Progressing In Four Directions From Here

Scattered showers, too light to benefit farmers appreciably, were heavy enough in spots to do some good on the highway jobs.

Incessant dry weather has been the greatest handicap to the program thus far, S. C. Dougherty, resident engineer, said Monday.

Nevertheless, work is progressing rapidly in four directions from Big Spring. Last of the caliche base on the special maintenance appropriation project east and west will be placed Tuesday and the road shaped up for surfacing operations.

More than half of the crushed rock supply for the nine-mile highway No. 9 project south to the Glascock county line was on the shoulders Monday as R. W. McKinney Co., contractor, continued the crushing.

Land Misuse Is Attacked By Wallace

Secretary Says Run-off From Farms Must Stop

WASHINGTON, April 27. (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace today urged the adoption of a co-ordinated water system to prevent the "savagely excessive" run-off from rich farm lands.

He voiced the warning to the National Rivers and Harbors congress against land misuse.

The secretary said "we have looted subsoil, underlying rock layers with careless, wasteful mining. We have farmed rather carelessly and wastefully."

Wallace added that conditions must change and urged the "simple device" of plowing, cultivating around hills on the contour, making each furrow in effect a dam or terrace.

Nationalists Run First In French Vote

Leftists May Gain Heavily In Run-Off Vote

PARIS, April 27. (AP)—Nationalists held in check the expected swing to the left in the early returns from the French chamber of deputies election today, but victory for the people's front was predicted in next Sunday's runoff balloting.

Battles in many election districts were so hot that candidates failed to obtain the necessary absolute majority. Even some opponents of the leftist people's front of which the radical socialist party is the strongest unit, predicted it would eventually have a majority in the chamber.

Individual leftists who trailed on the first vote today were expected to withdraw this week and throw their strength behind the front's high men. Many political forecasters thought it likely the leftists would finally gain more than 320 seats, which would be enough to enable them to form the next government.

Little Effect On Franc The election was expected generally to have little effect on the issue of devaluation of the franc. Nationalists have warned that a leftist victory would lead to "bankruptcy" for France and to devaluation, because of a leftist government would be unable to borrow money to keep the treasury running.

Congratulations Pour In From Every Side; Many Order Copies

Hardly had the "Decade of Development" edition of The Herald rolled off the press Sunday than congratulations began pouring in from every side.

Throughout Monday citizens continued to praise the 108-page paper, largest ever issued in West Texas, as a comprehensive issue, accurately describing the assets of the city and interestingly chronicling a romantic past.

First to congratulate The Herald was City Manager E. V. Spence, who said: "Your efforts during the last ten years have been appreciated by all. Scores of extra copies were being ordered Monday by people who wanted to tell their friends of Big Spring and its possibilities. Plenty of copies are still available at ten cents.

Few of the comments picked up at random Monday follow: Sam Goldman—"An edition worthwhile. I haven't finished reading all of it yet, but what I have seen of the paper shows a great deal of effort and time consumed in its publication." Lester Fisher—"A remarkable paper. It was a page."

Spotted Rains Dot Section, Bringing Relief To Farmers

Spotted rains over the week-end brought welcome relief to farmers of several sections in this part of West Texas, but other locations received only dust-settling showers.

Heavy, dashing downpours were reported at Elbow and Fairview and in the vicinity of Vincent. Roads were washed out near Elbow.

A half-inch of moisture was deposited in the Big Spring vicinity Saturday, according to the department of commerce weather bureau located at the airport, but threatening clouds all day Sunday brought only .03 of an inch.

A bumper South Plains wheat yield is expected as the result of moisture over the week-end. Rain was reported at Lubbock, Stanton, Levelland, Plainview and Amarillo. Crop outlook for the state was brightened in general as rains deluged parts of the northwest and south central portions of Texas.

A near cloudburst during the night, Clarendon reported two and a third inches of rain and Abernathy two and a half inches. Heavy cloudbursts over other sections of the state gave promise of ending a long dry spell.

Planes Drop Leaflets On Capital City

Baldwin Says Great Britain Not To Consider Transfers

By the Associated Press Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin today assured the House of Commons that Britain emphatically was not considering "transfer of any mandated territory to any other power."

His statement followed parliamentary uneasiness that Britain might be ready to talk colonial trades with Germany.

Fifteen thousand Italian soldiers drove southward in trucks toward Addis Ababa, encountering no opposition. The southern Italian army was menacing Sasabaneh and Harar, strategic city on the only Ethiopian railroad.

Poland curbed dealings in foreign exchange, similar to Germany's ban. Only government specified banks were permitted to deal in foreign monies.

Meanwhile Italian airplanes circled over the capital of Ethiopia Monday, dropping leaflets threatening destruction if natives resisted the advance of Italians from Dessay.

They warned the populace that resistance was futile.

Sunday Austria's powerful young vice-chancellor, Prince Ernst Reudiger von Starhemberg, warned his political enemies that his private Heimwehr military forces would be "dissolved only over my dead body."

BRITISH GOLFERS PAY YEAR'S BILL OF 150 MILLION

LONDON, April 27. (UP)—Britain has a million golfers, including 250,000 women, it is estimated. They are said to spend something like $150,000,000 a year on the sport.

At least $22,500,000 is paid in subscriptions. Balls alone cost about $7,500,000, meaning roughly $5,000,000 for clubs and repairs...

A first-class woman player who must play as much competitive golf during the season as possible if she wishes to get in line for the international teams, spends about $1,500 a year on the basis of one competition day a week. Men probably average about $2,000 a year.

There are 1,000 golf clubs in Britain, of which 200 are in London. Yet despite the relatively high cost of the game, many of the clubs do not pay as well as they should.

No club with fewer than 400 members can hope to be a paying proposition in ordinary circumstances. A club of this size would have, with green fees, an income of perhaps $15,000 a year. Most of this goes in maintenance.

It is from the "19th hole," or the club bar, that the profits come. And with a shrinkage in drinking in this country, the profits are not what they used to be, if there are any at all.

Many golfers have found that a club costs too much, and now play on public courses maintained by municipal and other authorities. These are the most paying propositions in golf here, today.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME FOR WORLD'S WEALTHIEST GIRL

SOMERVILLE, N. J., April 25 (AP)—Be is ever so palatial there's no place like home to Mrs. James H. R. Cromwell, the former Doris Duke, who inherited the vast tobacco fortune of her father, the late James B. Duke and came to be known as the world's richest girl.

She may roam the earth, as she did after her marriage, tasting the fruits of wealth in foreign lands, but she always comes back to Somerville.

Here she enjoys a 30-room house on a 2,300-acre estate with its 42 miles of improved roads, its woodland glens where bronze satyrs and Greek athletes ogle bronze dryads, and a multitude of bass and trout, fearless of capture, frisk in the eight lakes and the winding streams.

Enlarging the Residence

Across the deep woods and rolling greenward the big bell in the tower of the house booms the hours, and now there is the sound of workmen's hammers and song, for they are again enlarging the building. When the weather gets warmer the regular force of gardeners, farmers, woodsmen and others who keep the estate in order will be increased to 150.

Mrs. Cromwell, was born on the estate, lived here most of her life, and has spent many week-ends here since her marriage and honeymoon. She has 11 servants, who occupy third floor quarters.

The big rustic stone stable is now the garage—it looks like an automobile show room, and its floor is covered with matting.

Improvements of recent years include a swimming pool, 60 by 120 feet with underwater lighting effects; an indoor tennis court, and a lounging room where movies are shown.

Police On Guard

Two motorcycle policemen patrol the roads of the state. Guards are always on duty at the entrances, and the grounds are strictly private.

The miles and miles of rustic stone fence cost James B. Duke $5 a cubic yard. There are marble statues in the house and other buildings; there are many fountains on the estate.

Should the Cromwells settle here for long periods at a time Somerville would react only slightly. The town has always known Mrs. Cromwell, regards her as demure and her mother used to go to the movies in Somerville—and is, on the whole, glad the estate is situated near the town. The firemen especially like the mistress, for every time they extinguish a fire—grass or chimney—on the vast acres they are rewarded with a check for $100.

NEW FARM PROGRAM WORK SHEETS READY

Producers may fill out work sheets in one of eight places Monday. These committeemen will assist in the work: Wallace Bly, Knott; T. M. Robinson, Soash; L. H. Thomas, Moore; A. J. Stallings, Lomax; C. T. DeVaney, Midway; Albert Heckler, Center Point.

Farmers in the Hartsville and Cable districts may be served at the county agent's office during the first three days of the week.

BOX SUPPER

The Rebekahs will hold a box supper Tuesday evening at the I. O. O. F. hall. The public is invited.

Texas School League Meet Opens Friday

Two Thousand Boys And Girls Are Expected

AUSTIN, April 27.—Two thousand boys and girls from all sections of Texas will gather here May 1 and 2 to vie with each other for state honors in the 28th annual state meet of the University of Texas Interscholastic League.

The final contest in the league, an organization sponsored in one of the bureaus of the university extension division, are being brought rapidly to a conclusion, according to T. H. Shelby, dean of the extension division.

Nearly six thousand schools have joined the league this year, and county meets were held in 236 counties of the state, Dean Shelby said. These initial meets were concluded during the month of March and the first week-end in April. All of the thirty-two district meets, which admitted only those contestants who had qualified in one or another of the county meets, were concluded April 18.

District winners from the thirty-two district meets gathered together the week-end of April 25 for competitions in eight regional centers in various sections of the state.

It is in these meets that high school and rural school pupils will qualify for the state meet which is held in Austin May 1 and 2.

The following contests are held in all of these meets, and state championships will be decided in the final state meet: Debate; declamation; extemporaneous speech; ready writing; reading, writing, arithmetic (called 3-R contest); one-act play; typewriting; art in three divisions; color, charcoal and modeling; journalism—five different contests; tennis; track and field.

"There will be hardly a county in the state not represented in this great final meet, and about 2,000 contestants and delegates will be assembled for two days strenuous competition," Dean Shelby said.

ALPINE, April 27 (AP)—Gold Star Mothers of Future Wars have begun to organize an auxiliary to the Veterans of Future Wars at Sul Ross college.

Beside a placard on the bulletin board in the hall of the administration building inviting recruits to join the new organization appeared another notice as follows:

"Gold Star Mothers of the Future Wars, Mothers, Wives and Sweethearts of V. of F.W. We demand a trip to Europe to see the future graves of our future sons, husbands and lovers! We demand to see where our dead will lie, having fought to make the world safe for hypocrisy and William Randolph Hearst.

"Stand back to back with the future veterans and demand your rights!"

Shattered Glass May Cost Woman's Sight

FORT WORTH, April 27.—Mrs. Malcolm Ross may lose the sight of her right eye as a result of being struck by flying glass during an altercation early Saturday at a drink stand operated by her husband.

The assailant escaped. Ross said a man who had been drinking created a disturbance at the place and was asked to leave. He left under protest, but returned a few minutes and asked to make peace, extending his hand in token of his friendship.

As Ross shook hands the man attempted to pull him across the counter. With his free hand, the man hurled a bottle opener which struck the counter, knocking particles of glass in Mrs. Ross' eye.

Disappearance Of Gems From Mdivani Car Investigated

MADRID, April 27 (AP)—Disappearance of 3,000,000 francs (approximately $195,000) worth of jewelry from the automobile in which Prince Alexis Mdivani lost his life near Barcelona early last August was being investigated here today by police.

They said there was a new development which they hoped might shed some light on the strange case.

Baroness Maud von Thyssen, the prince's companion on the night he was killed, reported a satchel containing gems held on her lap when the car overturned could not be found after the accident. All efforts of police to trace the gems were futile and the case was closed as an unsolved mystery after several months of investigation.

The investigation was ordered reopened following the filing of a suit by the estate of a physician who attended the baroness to collect a bill for professional services.

Village Constable Supplies Humor In Annual Senior Play

A production of the play, "Lady Spitfire," will be staged in the city auditorium by high school seniors on May 5.

Almost every kind of person and personality will be played by the cast, and should afford the audience the utmost in a high type of entertainment, the sponsors of the senior class said Monday.

Probably one of most colorful and humorous of all the characters is Jed Buell, the constable. He is the wise, correspondence-school detective who hunts for the criminal through a magnifying glass. Jed spends his time eating and telling stories which amuse only himself.

Clad in a pair of disreputable boots, well-worn trousers, and a ten gallon hat, he makes one of the most comical of all the characters. But despite his cold exterior, it is found that Jed has a warm spot in his heart for the little orphan girl in the group, he was on the verge of considering matrimony, but forgot to tell the lady of his plans when someone said that "refreshments were served."

Johnny Reeves plays the role capably.

According to Miss Dorothy Jordan, director of the play, all the characters have worked well and hard to make the play a success. Admission prices are to be 25 cents for every one.

"Knot-Hole Gang" Profits

TAX SURVEY The tax survey division of the Works Progress administration's work in Texas is admittedly a project designed primarily to provide employment, as are all other activities of this governmental agency, but gratifying results are being obtained as the work proceeds in most of the Texas counties. Conducted under the supervision of the state tax board, the survey is adding substantial values to the tax rolls which will yield state revenue far in excess of the cost to the federal government, in the opinion of State Tax Commissioner R. B. Anderson. Several things are being accomplished by this survey. Discovery of untaxed properties which should be added to the tax rolls of the county is one of them, mentioned by Mr. Anderson, that will increase the total of valuations and will have a direct bearing upon both the volume of revenue collected and the tax rate upon which collection is based. Of even greater importance, perhaps, is the compilation of facts which will present for the first time an accurate picture of the tax assessment processes and practices in the two hundred and fifty-four counties of the state. It has been for many years a matter of common knowledge that gross inequalities have existed in the levying of taxes in the several counties because of local conditions which in one county make necessary a high assessment valuation and in another permit a low value. The existence of this inequality, and the apparent impossibility of remedying it, has given strength to the growing clamor for abolition of the property tax which under normal conditions places in the state treasury over twenty million dollars annually and pays practically all operating costs of the counties. When the tax survey is completed, the inequalities in assessment will be clearly disclosed, and the legislature will have information which should enable it to make amendments in existing laws to bring about more uniform taxation. Although the discussion of various methods for abolishing the property tax may continue indefinitely, there is little prospect that anything will be done about it during the present generation, at least, and steps should be taken to remove inequalities in the system which have contributed so largely to criticism of it. If the tax survey does nothing else than to pave the way for such action it will have been worth all its cost, and more.

Man About Manhattan By George Tucker NEW YORK—Among the major adjustments in private lives since repeal came wringing into town, at least in New York, is the sense of fitness in the prices we pay for things. Back in the sunrise of the "Hello Sucker" era of the late Texas Guinan your true gadabout eventually worked himself around to the belief that unless his night club check amounted to more than $50 he hadn't had a very good time. Ham and eggs were never good unless they cost at least $8, and even coffee and toast which passed for his 2:30 p. m. "breakfast" amounted to something like $2.50. Anything less than this and he indignantly refused it—there was too great a danger of being known as a "tight skete." This philosophy spread until it eventually affected every purchase of his daily routine. No shave could be contemplated without a dollar tip for the favored barber. Only the highest priced articles, whether motor cars or neckties, were considered. Apparently the matter of price was so important that people had no time to inquire about quality.

When the bad times came those goofy ideas were quickly discarded. People began to inquire, for the first time in years, as to the quality of things, purchasing frugally, thriftily, their necessities, and eschewing the killing of the night clubs. The alas, not for long. Proprietors tell me that their are doing a greater business than ever. In many places the tariff is something that would have given even La Guinan pause—$6 for steaks, $20 for champagne, a few drinks here, a bite their and your check resembles a cross between the unpaid war debts and the numbers on a lottery ticket. What makes all this so and is the attitude of the proprietors who benefit by it. They think that patrons who squander their coin are saps who ought to be locked up or placed in charge of capable guardians. Call the late Calvin Coolidge taciturn or reticent, and impresario Ray Sinatra will rise and give you a prompt argument. Ray recalls the time when, as a 13 year old prodigy, he gave a piano recital in Boston and was much excited by the applause that followed. Somebody seized him and hoisted him aloft so that the cheering customers could see him, and when he was finally deposited back on the floor he recognized his "booster" as the man who later was to become "Silent Cal," President of the United States. A town in Maryland has been named after Lily Pons, and she's visiting there now. James Melton's favorite hide-away for impromptu vacations is Skytop Inn, in the Pennsylvania hills. Melton didn't take his yacht, the Melody, to California this year. But he'll be back shortly for a cruise with John Charles Thomas. Jan Rubini, the orchestra leader, is rapidly becoming New York's No. 1 baseball fan. He never misses a game when in town. Sitting in a box watching the

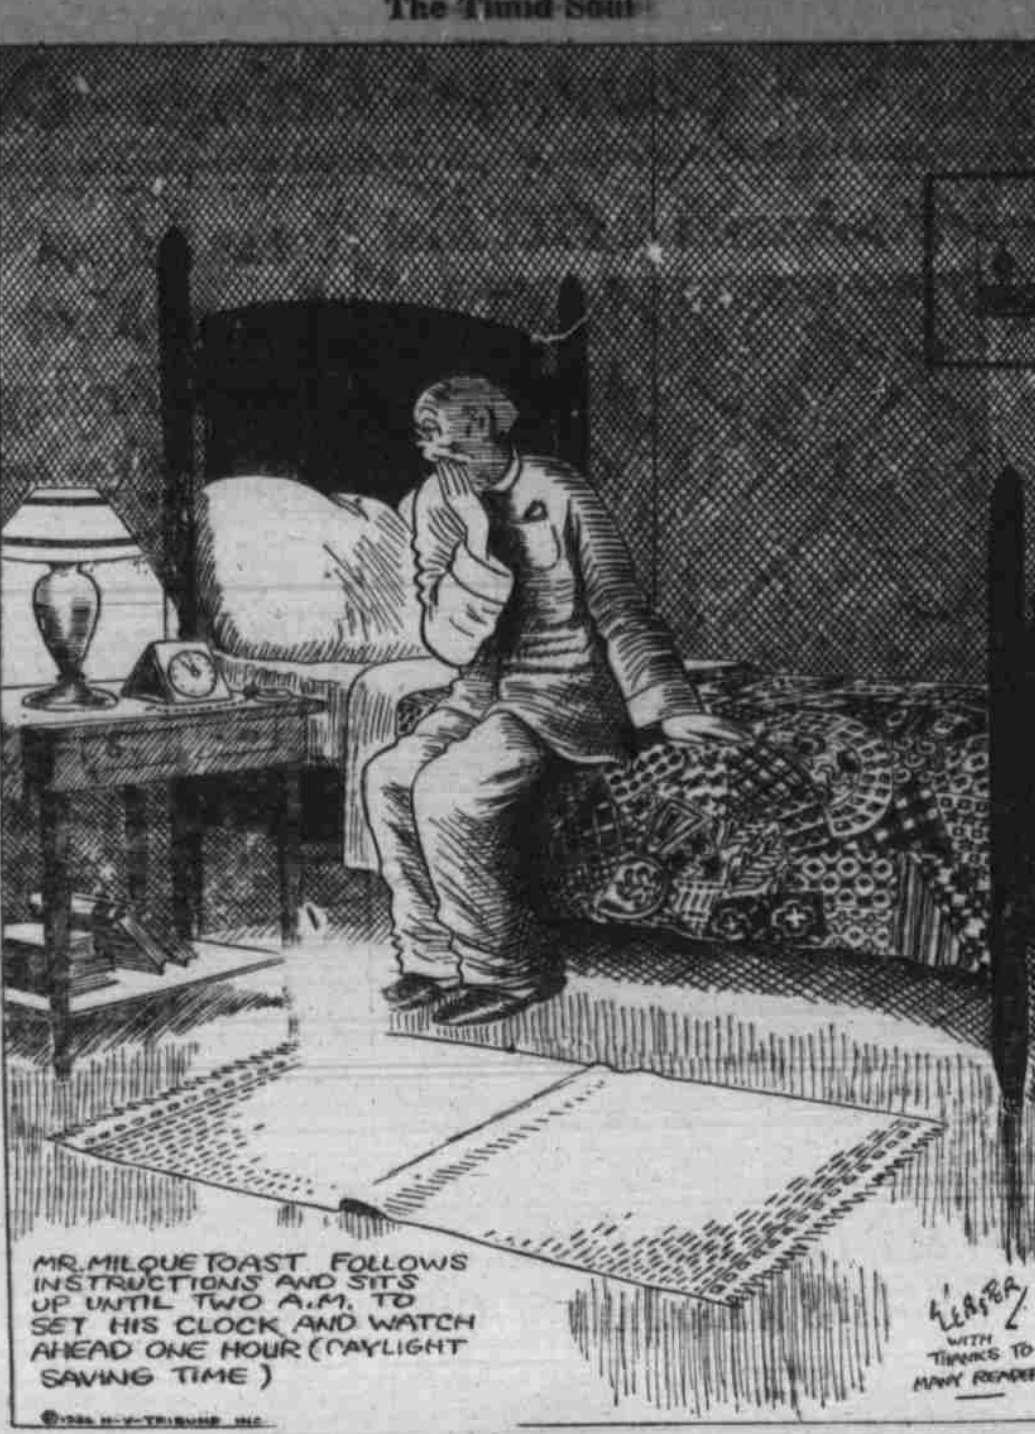

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round By DEWEY PEARSON and ROBERT A. ALLEN WASHINGTON—It looks as if the long and powerful arm of Andrew W. Mellon has penetrated all the way to Texas to wreak political vengeance against Wright Patman, the congressman who once introduced a resolution to impeach the "great secretary of the treasury" since Alexander Hamilton. Patman comes from Texas, Texas, in which town Mellon's Gulf Oil company once operated the Gulf Coaster. But after the Patman resolution, the plant—and its payroll—were moved to Port Arthur. Now Texas politicians report another Mellon move against Patman. A Baptist minister, David M. Phillips, appears to be financed through Uncle Andy to defeat the man who wanted to impeach him. Phillips has resigned his pastorate, paid all his debts, bought a new car, and seems to have ample finances for a vigorous political campaign for congress. Friends of the secretary of the treasury say that, he never forgets.

Early Caller Supreme Court Justice McReynolds is noted for his insouciant disposition both on and off the bench. He refuses to lunch with his colleagues, he read a newspaper while Justice Cardozo was indicted into office, and he talks in a loud, angry voice while delivering dissenting opinions. But the Tennessee bachelor has not only a mistress, and at a recent gathering of fraternity alumni he was rebuffed to the extent of relating the following story: A Scotchman (McReynolds himself is Scotch descent), leaving a pub one night after considerably imbibing, was approached by a Salvation Army lass who extended her tambourine and asked for alms. The man dropped a shilling into the tambourine and started to walk away. Then suddenly he turned and asked: "What are you going to do with that money? What's it for?" "It is for God." "For God," replied the Scotman, "well, in that case give it back, because, my girl, I expect to see him before you do."

Blame for the latest labor eruption on the San Francisco waterfront is being placed, privately, on the shoulders of "Uncle Dan" Roper and Miss Frances Perkins. Labor leaders claim that had it not been for undercover sabotage by these two cabinet members, a formula might have been worked out to bring permanent peace to the entire maritime industry. Here is what happened: A group of new dealers knew that another explosion was brewing on the San Francisco waterfront. And fearing the adverse political effect which continued labor disturbances might have on West Coast political sentiment, they laid before the president a plan for a permanent peace agency. They proposed that congress create an independent marine labor authority, with powers to arbitrate disputes in this industry just as the U. S. mediation board does in the railroad field. This board has vicinously abolished serious railway labor trouble. Jealous This was in March. The president seemed favorable to the idea; also A. F. of L. leaders and ship operators. As a result, a tentative bill was drafted and leaders on Capitol Hill were asked to put it through congress. In fact everything appeared "set" for speedy action—when suddenly Roper and Miss Perkins began wielding their hatchets behind the scenes. Reason: Under the proposed bill both the commerce and labor departments would have been stripped of their powers to intervene in the ship-labor field. All their authority would be transferred to the new labor authority. Jealous of any curtailment of their powers, the two cabinet members succeeded in pigeonholing the peace plan. It is now side-tracked somewhere in a maze of bureaucratic red tape. Weeks have passed. Meanwhile, in San Francisco, the situation finally exploded into open strife.

Roosevelt Boys Franklin Roosevelt, Jr. probably will not repeat his feat of making the Harvard Dean's List for the second half of the scholastic year. Harold Wolff, Cambridge cranial school car whose tutelage won Franklin the honor at mid-year, has announced that he thinks the action of Hyde Park has been spending too much time and energy on extra-curricular activities—rowing, dancing and attending wrestling matches. And Wolff is seldom wrong, which is why he is so successful at outwitting the university's scholastic requirements. He is none too hopeful, either, for John Roosevelt, who also enjoys his crew work and social pleasures. John has never made the Dean's List, but Wolff helps him to maintain a safe interval between himself and the probation mark. SEC Ghost Only real scandal of the securities-exchange commission has experienced was a charge which J. Edward Jones, old stock promoter, brought against Ray Bell, a discharged member of the SEC who is alleged to have offered to "fix" things for Jones with the commission in return for a consideration. The case attracted considerable publicity at the time, but eventually Bell was tried and acquitted. The other day when Frank Melton, SEC executive in charge of stock market trading, resigned, he was given a farewell banquet at the Shoreham hotel. About seventy-five SEC associates assembled to pay him tributes. Many were the toasts to his ability and vigilance.

GOVERNMENT TO MAKE STUDY OF PUNCH DRUNKS LONDON, April 27. (UP)—Radical changes in the conduct of business in Britain may be expected to result from investigations into "punch drunkness" which have been initiated at Guy's Hospital. The changes possibly will include the appointment of medical specialists with the power to stop a fight and to supervise the treatment of boxers who are knocked out. The object of the research is prevention of the condition of physical and mental disability, known as "punch drunkness," caused by excessive punishment in the ring, about which little at present is known beyond the fact that it is probably the most terrible and widespread disorder to which boxers are subject. Mistaken for Cowardice Ignorance of the symptoms and effects of the condition, which in its outward appearance closely resembles alcoholism, frequently has resulted in boxer being seized by the public for cowardice, when in fact the man has been suffering from the early stages of a complaint resulting in total paralysis and mental collapse. At the hospital boxers of all ages and classes are to be examined with regard to their physical and neurological condition. Scientific investigation will be paid to the effects of a single fight, especially where the fight ends in a knockout. An attempt will be made to classify working mechanisms of various types of knockouts and to study the difference between knockout and concussion. Symptoms to Be Classified A prominent feature of the research is that for the first time a scientific investigation will be made of the various stages and symptoms which include thickness of speech, unsteadiness of gait, slowness of movement and impairment of memory. These signs, although they frequently have been observed, hitherto never have been the subject of a comprehensive investigation from the present angle of representing them as varied symptoms of a single disorder. Apart from the importance of medical questions arising out of this research, the practical results are two-fold. It is hoped that with a complete knowledge of the first signs the expert may be able to stop fights at a time before serious damage has been done. At the same time it is expected that a first-hand study of the different ways in which pugilists who have been knocked unconscious are treated should make it possible to evolve a sound and uniform method of treatment to replace the varied ring-side procedure prevailing at present.

Chapter 22
CAMILLA AGAIN
 "I only wanted what the other girls had," Iris ended simply, "money for even and nice clothes like the others, and to give back little parties for their little parties. And sometimes to give Uncle Will things that I knew he never had, and run in to town to a show, and maybe own a Ford."
 She laughed, quite his friend again, he had listened so eagerly, smiled so sympathetically. "Just a small-town girl in the city; but, oh, it's a heavenly city. Aunt Phina giving me everything in the world, and a perfectly strange bunch of people asking me to a party the second day out. And I'm buying Uncle Will a radio tomorrow, and a dozen of the kind of shirts he always wanted."
 Her eager gray eyes, with their dilated black centers, her whole living intensity and charm, were close to him. But he answered quietly, smiling at her.

Factor! An' here I've spilled Georgia's beans, introduc'n' another new girl. Will Mother give me hell?"
 Iris stopped his cheerful monologue by a quick, "Do you mean to say Georgia didn't want me at the party?"
 "No, now, baby-child! Don't mind poor old dopy Dicky, best heart in the world! Course she wants you, I want you, everybody wants you, that's your trouble. Do you know the Double Trouble? Step I invent-ed."
 She removed herself resolutely from him in a convenient corner. She stepped backward in the half-gloom, found she had almost put a satin-slipped foot on somebody's hand. She dropped down beside this somebody in order to apologize and also to conceal herself from Dicky, who stared around vaguely, then—finding on a nearby table a untouched drink—drained the glass and wandered off.
 As her eyes became accustomed to the dark corner the large dark object proved itself to be, of all Dicky caught her up.

"I'm sorry the Ford and the movies are all you wanted; I am a collector of sorts; I was hoping you cared enough for Matisse to come see my place."
 "Why, thank you, I'd love to," she said politely.
 "But not mad about it? Like this sort of thing better?" His voice was piqued, and yet a little relieved.
 "I do love it!" she answered joyously. "I hope lots of people ask me to lots more parties and I have ones like this myself."
 He glanced around then. The ac-cordian was playing justly with loud exaggerated rhythms. The dancers in their reds and blacks and tinsels swung and moved and sang the whining exciting silly words to the negro tunes.
 "I don't," he said wearily.
 "Then why do you come to places like these?"
 "Because," he said, "I come of a race that's run out; too tired, too devitalized. I happen still to have a sufficiently good brain to realize that. And so I play about with these yelling dancing children instead of my own generation because they have what I want. Life, vividness, vitality. That's why I come to Georgia's idiotic parties. Georgia is vital. The parties aren't."
 "Why, everything's alive, every-thing's vital!" Iris said, surprised. She did not understand him.
 "You are," he said. "More than anyone I have seen for years Iris people, Camilla Wendell, sitting as concealed as possible in the back-ground of the party.

 "I begin to think I'm in Wonder-land!" Iris quoted. "Is everybody I've met in New York in two days at this party? How nice to see you again, Miss Wendell!"
 "I'm sorry," said Camilla—which was, Iris learned later, Camilla's nearly invariable beginning to her sentences. "But people do go in groups, you know, and Georgia Blair is my cousin, she told me at luncheon she was having a party, and who was coming, and I said, if I paid the caterer couldn't I come? And she said yes; she's hard up, you know, and I'm not. It was very nice of her and I'm so awfully glad to see you."
 She peered across Iris through the gloom, her eyeglasses held tight.
 Iris did not know whether to be sorry for her, or a little shocked. Then she realized that poor Camilla had been made to feel so un-attractive that the transaction she had just mentioned was a common-place for her. It had of course enabled her to spend two hours in the same place with Owen.
 Iris remembered with dread a quotation of Uncle Will's from Thackeray, to the effect that any woman without an absolute hump could marry any man whatsoever. Which recalled a letter from Uncle Will she had received just as she left and thrust down inside her dress to read at the first opportu-nity. Camilla wouldn't care.
 "I've just remembered a letter from my uncle," she said, reaching for a candle high above her and holding it near the letter. "Do you mind if I read it?"
 "Oh please don't mind me," said Camilla eagerly. "It's so nice to have company in this corner."

Dicky, lit to his usual state, caught her up and away in the dance before she heard the end of it. Allan had been saying, "Where you been all my life?" he demanded inevitably.
 "Just waiting for you," Iris said as she would have said back home.
 "This is noble of me, taking you away," Dicky informed her. "I like it, you know. But's nobility. If Georgia sees you burning up Allan Heckley she'll bite your ear off, darling. Georgia threw his cousin Jimmy last year when Jimmy's dad got into the tabloids as a male-factor of great wealth, and then finished himself and some of the wealth."
 "But she seems to have a taste for the family—and who wouldn't I ask you? Social stuff to burn, money to burn, nice summers, well-known polo player and art collector. Girl collector, too. Georgia thought she had him hung over the side of the boat.
 "Lots of girls thought they had Allan hung over the side of the boat, but he's a collector. Member, I warned you, Beautiful, he's a col-

Brokerage Firm Is Cited By The SEC
 NEW YORK, April 27. (AP)—The Securities & Exchange com-mission Saturday served to show cause and hearing order on the prominent stock exchange firm of White Weld & Co., charging firm, and certain partners, with illegal manipulation of the stock of A. O. Smith & Co.
 The order, which required the concern to show cause why it should not be suspended for one year or expelled from membership in the New York stock exchange, the New York curb exchange and the Chicago board of trade, was vigorously attacked in a statement issued by the brokerage firm.
 The White Weld statement said that any allegation or implication that it had engaged in any manipu-lative or rigging practices had no justification in fact.
 "Millions of tons" of a new pe-troleum product called "olyeca" and described as "petroleum in a nascent state," have been reported found in Brazil.

LINER QUEEN MARY TO MAKE FIRST VOYAGE NEXT MONTH, MAY NOT SEEK SPEED MARK

High above Southampton harbor, an aerial photographer for The Associated Press snapped this attractive picture of the Queen Mary and accom-

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 27. — How fast the 80,775-ton liner Queen Mary can travel with her engines "full out" may remain a mystery even after she negotiates her maiden voyage to New York late in May.
 It is rumored, as the latest Atlantic colossus undergoes further test runs after registering 29 knots in early trials, that no effort will be made to break existing speed records on the first trip across.

Engines To Be "Broken In"
 The 16 giant turbines, generating 300,000 horsepower if used in a three-story-high, white-walled engine room, are to be given every opportunity to work themselves in properly.
 Once the engine room indicator is put at full speed ahead, however, and it may happen on the maiden voyage for all that, it is confidently predicted that the Queen Mary will hit 32 to 34 knots, or close to 40 miles an hour.

Predicts 400-Mile An Hour Speed
 DETROIT, April 26. (AP)—Howard Hughes, millionaire speed flyer, predicted today he eventually would make more than 400 miles an hour—at high altitude—in his specially built racer.
 Holder of the world's land plane speed record, Hughes disclosed in an interview that a new engine which delivers its maximum horse-power at an altitude of 20,000 feet is being developed for his plane.
 Hughes, who has produced several motion pictures, came here from Indianapolis on business related to his extensive oil interests in Texas.

Water Glass Test Claimed
 "You can put a full glass of water on an engine casing and not spill a drop," was the proud boast of one of the engineers who was present on the first trial run.
 With her hull newly scraped and painted the new liner is ready for ocean service with the exception of final touches to interior decoration, organization of personnel and stocking supplies.
 It is estimated that no less than 250,000 persons have received employment, either directly or indirectly, in the building of the Queen Mary. A crew of more than 1,200 will have regular jobs.
 More than $25,000,000 will have of the fact.

OVER FIVE MILLION IN COTTON PAYMENTS MAILED OUT BY AAA

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The AAA said Saturday a total of $5,375,790 in price adjustment pay-ments had been mailed to cotton producers in ten states.
 These payments, constituting a subsidy to producers to equal the difference between 12 cents a pound and the average price for cotton on the date of sale are ex-pected to total between $35,000,000 and $45,000,000.
 Cully A. Cobb, director of the AAA southern region, said approxi-mately 7,000 checks are being mailed daily and that the peak had not been reached. He predicted most of the payments would be made by June 1.

WM. S. HART GIVEN VERDICT OF $85,000

NEW YORK, April 27. (AP)—An $85,000 verdict in favor of William S. Hart was written into the records of supreme court Saturday as the climax to the silent movie star's effort to collect $300,000 damages from the United Artists corpora-tion.
 The verdict in favor of the former actor was returned by supreme court jury at the close of an 11-day trial.
 Hart contended the company failed to exploit properly his last picture, "Tumbleweed," which he had produced and contracted with United Artists to distribute. Hart and his sister, Mary Hart, a co-plain-tiff, declared they lost money on the picture.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Those millionaires, the Boston Red Sox, failed to stop the lumbering bats of the New York Yankees as the Gothamites pounded out a 12-9 victory over the Croninmen in the feature game of the American League today.

The Sox used four pitchers in an attempt to silence the heavy guns, but Lou Gehrig hit a home run and a triple and Bill Dickey got two doubles and a brace of singles in the big eighteen hit assault. Jim Foss hit a home run for Boston.

Detroiters coasted into third place as they pounded out a 6-4 victory over John Whitehead and the White Sox in a game that saw Charles Gehring continue his hot scorch with the bat. Gehring got two for five, including one good for three bases. Cleveland bested St. Louis, 11-4, in another American League, and Washington continued to be the
