SOME GUESSES!

MIDLAND—Sheriff A. C. Francis, re-elected by a large majority, not only knows what he wants but knows just how much he will get.

Home Talk by Betty

Well, the Hunter boys are wondering why the others ran so well, the others are wondering how Hunter got so many votes, the Ferguson folks wonder whether everybody who had been cursing the governor and the government voted and the governor wonders how Jim Ferguson got that way anyway.

Reason for Ferguson's hold upon nearly half of the voters of Texas is the most indefinable thing in American politics today, in any state. The best answer is that he has made himself the greatest artist in history at appealing to class prejudices; he's the world's champion bull-slinger, the all-time rock-holder at dishing out the hot iron and the government voters remember that hundreds of thousands lap it up like milk when, after you've digested it, you really find it's no more nourishing than when it's that the way to spell it?

Yes, we repeat the greatest evidence of Ferguson's shrewdness as a politician is that he has fooled more people longer than any other guy ever has.

Two years ago Sterling and Ferguson were the dominant candidates and Clint Small was the next strongest. This year Sterling and Ferguson again were dominant, Tom Hunter was the strong third.

Two years ago Mrs. Ferguson polled 102,275 votes in Howard county, while all other candidates combined received 1,821.

This year Mrs. Ferguson received 107,745 votes and all others combined polled 2167 votes.

Howard county's vote for governor this year was 421 larger than that of 1930 but Mrs. Ferguson received only 75 more votes than in 1930.

Governor Sterling polled 273 votes in this county two years ago; he got 718 votes here this year. In other words he received 443 more, or 22 above the total increase in the vote this year.

While Clint Small got 840 votes here in 1930 Tom Hunter received 1,354 here this year. We can attribute his greater strength, as compared to that of Small, to the hard work done here by Hunter supporters.

It appears that the local interest centered on the "third man" candidacy of Hunter gathered up the "scattering" vote and concentrated it under one banner.

Two years ago the candidates for governor who ranked below third place in the state got 708 votes here while this year only 87 votes were scattered among the "also rans," Hunter, of course, got some votes that otherwise would have gone to Ferguson and Sterling, but comparatively few.

This year Mrs. Ferguson has 1,097 to 718 for Sterling in the first primary. Two years ago she had 1,022, or 75 less than this year, while Sterling had 273 or 443 more than in 1930.

But, Mr. Sterling carried this county in the second primary two years ago by a narrow margin.

In the July 1930 primary Love had 276 (three more than Sterling), Young 57, Miller 128 and Mayfield 226. Mr. Sterling undoubtedly got much of this vote in the second primary, and then obtained much of the Clint Small vote.

But this year in the second primary he has no scattering vote to draw from to add to whatever he may get from the first primary vote of the third man.

The conclusion is that, although Mr. Sterling polled a considerably heavier vote and Mrs. Ferguson lost a big vote as compared with the July 1930 primary, Sterling must, if he repeats his run-off victory in Howard county, draw all of his additional strength from the Tom Hunter supporters.

Examination of the Hunter vote in Howard county shows 69.9 per cent of his vote came from the four city boxes. Of Mrs. Ferguson's vote 85.3 per cent was in town boxes, while 85.6 per cent of Sterling's vote was polled within

The School's Job
WHEN WARDEN Lewis E. Law of Sing Sing, complained to a convention of teachers recently that the schools are ignoring moral training, he voiced thought which has occurred to a good many Americans.

The splendid and costly educational program which has been the pride of our government through the decades, said Warden Lawes, "has done nothing to mold the character of the people. Its insistence on scholastics has left no room for character training."

This, perhaps, is a rather common complaint, and when you stop to think about it, it seems wholly justified. Yet it arises, in part at least, from a confusion as to the function of the school, a confusion which is and always has been widespread in the United States.

The school's job is to prepare its pupils for life, to fit them for their places in the modern world, to acquaint them with life about them and to train them so that they may make the most of their talents and opportunities.

This job can hardly be done properly if the pupil's character development is ignored. Yet the school, from the very nature of things, can do only part of the way in that field. In a broad and general way it can instill certain fundamental principles into its pupils; but the real job of moral training, of character building, is the job of the parents. It always has been and it always will be.

If there is failure anywhere, it seems more probable that it is a failure on the part of the home rather than on the part of the school.

For the parent's responsibility does not end when he has given his children a comfortable place to sleep, plenty of food and clothing and a chance at a good education. Any state supported dormitory could do as much. Whatever moral training the child gets, the bulk of it must be imbibed at home. If we are sending out into the world a younger generation deficient in character—and there is lots of room for argument on that charge—it is not fair to lay the blame on the schools.

Texas Topics

By Raymond Brooks

"The Eyes of Texas" is a fine patriotic song. Naturally, people rise to their feet when it is played. . . . But after watching audiences six nights a week during the political campaign—people seated mostly on the grass, hustled to their feet for it's playing as some one of the myriad candidates for office marches to a platform, we believe there should be either less patriotic response to the music, or else less of its playing. . . . preferably that the patriotic Texas air should not be used as part of the political sideshow of every political harlot.

A $2,000,000-a-year cash benefit awaits the state for 1933 and 1934 in case the law permits a special session to change the date of a constitutional amendment election, and in case the special session announced by Gov. Ross Sterling is held in August.

It will be in August, if his race is won in the first primary, Gov. Sterling has said.

If the special session can reset the election on the pending constitutional amendment consolidating offices of tax assessor and collector, so as to be in effect and certified before the general election and will pass enabling legislation, these offices can be consolidated for the next two-year period, instead of going into effect Jan. 1, 1935.

It means not merely the fees of 254 officers thus dealt out—it means also 254 separate sets of deputies, ranging as high as 25 persons in some counties.

On an average, it would eliminate two deputies per county, as well as a fee officer, who is entitled to an $8000 fee in small counties and $12,000 a year in the big counties.

Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum recently requested an official ruling of the attorney general's department, since her department must prepare the general election ballot that shows whether two or one officer shall be elected, whether the election date can be changed by a special session and the economy measure made effective two years earlier. At that time Gov. Sterling had not called the special session, and the ruling was deferred. Now, since he has called it, the answer will be looked to as a guide to procedure.

It is known the voters over-whelmingly will adopt the amendment, when they ballot on it, to eliminate the duplicate offices by consolidating them. The special session also will be asked to consolidate the deputy staffs, even if the two separate officers are elected for another two-year term.

There are something like 12,000 Confederate veterans or widows—mostly widows—dependent on the state pension. Strangely, the list increases, instead of falling off, after the years. . . . The pension fund is running a million dollars behind now, and the pensions are being paid only by borrowing from the general fund.

Legislative committee members have said that probably 1000 or an eighth of the widows' names are on the rolls illegally or without right. They have been on the rolls a long time. It would take painstaking separate inquiry in each case to determine its validity. They probably will stay on until the registrants run out the string of years.

It is said now that the constitutional amendment to exempt $3000 resident homestead values from taxation will sharply cut into the Confederate pension fund, and put the fund still deeper in the red.

Status Of Nurmi Holds Attention Of Olympic Games

John Bull's Team Arrives

Finnish Runner Reticent Over Prospects For Reinstatement

By STUART CAMERON
United Press Sports Editor
LOS ANGELES (UP)—Newspaper raisings of Olympic flags of all nations reached a peak and an hiatus in one and the same breath today.

The English team, led by a titled building gentleman known as Lord David Buryghley, shimmered into Los Angeles on the Santa Fe. The British were the final imposing foreign delegation to go "ah" and "oh" over the beauties of San Bernardino, Pasadena and downtown Los Angeles.

But now that they are here the pre-Olympic activities assumed definite calm-before-the-storm aspect and these self-made activities will remain that way until Saturday.

Most of the conversations in Olympic Village centered about Paavo Nurmi, the wonderful Finn who is under suspension because of expense account matters the International Athletic Amateur Federation people didn't like the look of.

The debate, of course, concerns whether he will be restored to the good graces of the I.A.A.F. in its meetings here on Thursday, two days before the games start. It's still a two-sided debate, but several men who should know believe definitely that Paavo will run.

The Finns themselves are playing quite close-mouth about the matter "off the record" one can learn that Finland regards the whole business as a distinct shame and disgrace—an injustice fostered up an unsuspecting running star's head.

Ask Nurmi himself. He pursues the same tactics as he did with the writer over in Hoboken a week or so ago. Nurmi is affable. He seems to remember you. But ask him any question about his status or anything else about running or track and field in general, and he places his right forefinger to his lip and shakes his head in perfect negative Finnish.

The real Olympic doings of the day will occur at the Los Angeles Athletic club tonight, when the United States final tryouts to determine the gymnastic team make-up will be held.

A field of 54 athletes, representing most sections of the country will climb ropes, tumble and swing clubs.

11th-Inning Rally Beats Houston Nine

Dallas Retains Lead Of Five Games In Pennant Race

TYLER—In an eleventh inning rally after two men were down, Monday night, Tyler took the deciding game of the series with the Houston Buffs, 3 to 2. After Ryba seemingly put the game on ice for the visitors with a home run in the first half of the seventh inning, successive singles by Cunningham and Washington and Fritz's triple sent the winning runs over for the Sportsmen.

It was a pitchers battle between Payne and Hollerson, the former fanning ten men.

DALLAS 11, SAN ANTONIO 1
DALLAS—The Dallas Steers retained their five game lead in the pennant race Monday night by beating San Antonio, 11 to 1. The Steers collected 14 hits off Vance and Sackett. One was a home run by Sam Langford with two men on. Minogue, southpaw, pitched 7-hit ball for Dallas. Morehart and Bonura led Dallas' attack with 4 hits each.

Gomez Hurls To Pair, But Loses Game

Home Run By Mule Haas Defeats New York Yankees

PHILADELPHIA—Vernon Gomez pitched to only two batters Monday but lost his fifth game of the season and his first to the Athletics when Mule Haas drove out a home run with Bishop on base in the ninth to give the American league champions an 8 to 7 victory over the Yankees.

Gomez, who defeated the Athletics at the Yankee stadium yesterday, entered the game in the ninth with the tying run on base, and Max Bishop at bat. He made Bishop hit into a force play, but Haas who had replaced Roger Cramer when the latter broke his left collar bone in the sixth, hit a circuit drive and broke up a nip and tuck ball game, in which Mahaffey outlasted four Yankee hurlers—Pennock, Brown, Allen and Gomez.

In addition to striking out seven Yankees, Mahaffey hit a home run in the sixth to give the A's a temporary lead. The lead lasted only until the eighth when Babe Ruth pinch hitting for Chapman, connected with a single scoring two runs. Gehrig followed with his 24th home run of the season to put the Yanks in front by three runs.

The Athletics cut the Yanks advantage to one run in the last half of eighth when Allen and Brown loaded the bases with three successive passes. An infield out and a line drive sent two runs across the plate. Two more walks again filled the bases but Dykes' grounder for the third out. Allen also put the tying runs on base in the ninth with a base on balls.

The four Yankee hurlers tossed 10 bases on balls while Mahaffey gave only two.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN
The American Interest

The world has had so much bad news for so long a time that it is difficult to appreciate how great was the achievement at Lausanne. Nothing was expected except another dreary postponement which would evade every issue that disturbs the peace of Europe and paralyzes the confidence of men. Instead we find that the long series of reparations is ended and that Germany is once again economically free. On that front the war is over. But that is not all. With the abolition of reparations as an issue in European diplomacy the great conflict between the French political interest in reparations and the British economic interest in the revival of Central Europe has been resolved. Britain and France are thus once again in a position to work as partners rather than as rivals in the settlement of other questions.

The restoration of Franco-British understanding is as great an achievement as the ending of reparations. For on no other basis can Europe hope to obtain a period of tranquility. Rivalry between Paris and London has meant intrigue, maneuver and confusion in every European center and on every European question. It has precluded any possibility of Franco-British understanding by filling the extreme nationalists in both countries with dangerous fears and dangerous hopes. The diplomatic rivalry between Britain and France made all prospects of political appeasement and of reduction of armaments utterly vain, for unless these two countries know whether they are to be friends or opponents they can not and will not and dare not limit their powers of offense and defense. Franco-British co-operation does not solve all European questions, but it is the indispensable preliminary to their solution. Therefore, the so-called Accord of Confidence is the most promising political event in the recent history of the world. It can do more to promote peace and restore confidence and make possible the solution of other questions than any agreement that could have been devised.

Much energy has been expended in charging and denying that the Lausanne agreements mean a united European front in relation to the debts owing the United States. Those who are nervous on this point should ask themselves whether the general interest of all nations would be advanced if Britain, in order to obtain some financial relief for herself, were to desert France and leave her angry, humiliated and alone. What chance would there be then that nationalist and monarchist Germany could be kept from attempting some new adventure? What chance would there be for an agreement on armaments or for financial co-operation between London and Paris to restore Central Europe? Or for a termination of the tariff war that is strangling the trade of the world? Or for the eventual solution of German-Polish problems?

Those who now think that Paris and London ought to be rivals rather than partners in dealing with the debts take a short and narrow view of the situation. It is to the interest of France and Britain, it is to the interest of all Europe, and in any long view it is to our interest that the settlement of the debts should not drive a wedge between the two European nations who alone have the power to reunite Europe and save it from overwhelming disaster.

When the smoke blows away, when the confusion arising from mere phrases is forgotten, this will become, I venture to believe, the considered view of the American people. For what have we to fear and what have we to lose if France and Great Britain take the position that they will stand together in the forthcoming debt negotiations? If Congress refuses to consider a new settlement will the shock to the credit of the world be any greater if Europe make a common default than if each nation default separately? On the contrary, separate defaults would be the greater shock for they would signify bankruptcy and political confusion, whereas a common default would be recognized everywhere as a political act which did not really impair the validity of genuinely economic obligations. It would put political debts into a wholly different category from all others.

To say all this is not to invite a default but to face frankly the situation which would exist if there is no change in the present temper of Congress. For, of course, if Congress is absolutely inflexible against a new settlement it will without any doubt whatever precipitate the issue of repudiation. The existing debt arrangements can not and will not be carried out. They belong to a past which no longer exists and which is now irrevocable. But it does not follow from this that the only alternatives are repudiation or cancellation.

The way is still open to a new settlement which will compete the payments by a lump sum. That is almost certainly what our debtors mean to offer us and I can not believe we shall be so foolish as to reject it out of hand. There never was an intelligent creditor who refused a cash offer and preferred to cling to his obviously bad bonds.

When the time comes around for discussion of this question a cash offer will not be unattractive to the American people. Suppose we were offered a billion dollars in final settlement of all the debts. Would we really wish to reject that and then try to collect the payments nominated in the bond? Does anyone wish to condemn this generation and the next generation and the one after that to the task of collecting every cent of the debts?

I doubt it. Next winter when this

11 Injured In St. Louis Blast

ST. LOUIS, (U.P.)—Eleven men were injured, three seriously in an explosion Monday which wrecked the front end of a large service garage of the Pkewick-Greyhound lines. About twenty-five mechanics and bus drivers were in the building.

Joseph Barber, district passenger agent of the lines from Chicago, was among the injured. Firemen believe the explosion was caused by the accidental ignition of a gasoline tank.

Mr. Stripling is holding his wheat for higher price than is now being paid.

Local Barber's Visitor Pays $8 Contracted While In City 22 Years Ago

How's this for honesty? A local barber reported Monday a man came into his shop and called for the proprietor. He gave his name, and told the proprietor that he had lived in Big Spring twenty-two years ago, and had contracted a barber bill for $8, which he wanted to pay.

The barber at first was unable to recognize the man, but after looking at him two or three times, finally recognized him.

After a short conversation the man gave the barber one $5 and three $1 bills and called it a day.

Labor Department On Five-Day Week

WASHINGTON - The labor department today began operating on a five-day-week basis. For the next 48 weeks, the department will be closed all day Saturday and Sunday to carry the provisions of the recently enacted economy bill.

In making the announcement, Secretary Doak said that by eliminating the Saturday half-day the requirement of furnishing each employee for 24 work days would be carried into being.

Meanwhile, the labor and commerce departments continued a study of the five day week in industry. This was begun recently at President Hoover's request.

meals a day. Thus, the ever increasing parade of brightly clad young women neatly straddling a shaggy mount has come into being.

Still, the riding business has gone modernistic. Very few know a good pair of boots when they see them. Duck pants are "too uncouth." Actually, some of the fairer sex will tell you that chaps are "so utterly horrible." And the indispensable bandana has been replaced by the dainty silk handkerchief folded neatly in the upper coat pocket.

New Brand This new brand of riding wasn't picked up on the range. Many of the young women had two and a half hours a week, the college course called of Riding 201, riding the most spirited mounts in the Quartershire Stables. No doubt Papa threw a well executed fit when the scholastic reports showed that daughter had "satisfactorily passed 'cawtering 201.' But with all that, nine out of ten are at loss to distinguish between pacing, a canter, a good old gallop, and a race. Revvy, it is astonishing to discover that only one in a hundred knows the left side is the right side of a horse.

Down on a West Fourth street lot each Sunday afternoon there is a set of men who generally know how to ride. They think they know how to rope goats, but they don't. The average cowboy of twenty-years ago could rope, butcher and barbecue a goat while three of the best on hand now manage to pen up one poor nanny. Some of the ropers are the cowboys of twenty-years ago, but they are getting old. They can't see. Occasionally one catches a goat. He looks like a champion. He caught a goat. Nobody else could do it.

The real West Texas rodeo seems to be a thing of the past, although there are several efforts at re-creation. When it begins to look like the cowboy is asserting himself, some lady in Cleveland, O., writes in to local authorities protesting cruelty to animals. Then club women take up the fight. To hear them rave you would think a rider had been hung on the public square.

Perhaps these remarks are too cynical. After all it took more than a day for the automobile to replace the horse. The old cowboys inherited their ability to rope and ride. It's hardly right to expect that modern cowboys could inherit the same ability by driving the latest model car.

Good old depression! If it has done nothing else, it has written another chapter in the car-horse fight here. Right now it is looking as if these parking lines may have to be supplanted by the latest thing in hitching posts. But blessings on the horse and his new found clientele. It certainly gives the tourist from New York something to talk about when he gets back home.

Big Spring. In numbers of votes the three polled the following numbers in the city boxes: Ferguson 702, Hunter 954, Sterling 612.

In the strictly rural boxes Ferguson got 374, Hunter 227 and Sterling 36 votes in Howard county. In Forsan and Coahoma boxes Ferguson totaled 86, Hunter 183 and Sterling 66 votes.

In the second primary Ferguson will receive about 20 per cent of Hunter's vote in Forsan and Coahoma, with Ferguson polling 80 per cent of it. In the strictly rural boxes Ferguson will get 95 per cent of the Hunter vote.

If these estimates hold true Ferguson will have 767 votes and Sterling 160 outside of Big Spring. In Big Spring if Sterling and Ferguson split the Hunter vote 50-50 Ferguson will poll a total of 1,946 to 1,249 for Sterling.

On this basis, therefore, Sterling must receive 698 or 73 per cent of Hunter's 954 votes in Big Spring in order to carry the county, by one vote.

Whether he does it or not depends upon two things: energetic efforts from now until August 27 by Sterling's friends and challenging of every vote to make certain no one without a poll tax receipt casts a ballot.

Prichard's Vote At Forsan Is 210

J. I. Prichard, running unopposed for county clerk, received 210 votes in the Forsan box in Saturday's primary. It was erroneously carried Monday as 201. Judge Dubenport, unopposed for county judge, received 203 instead of 193.

Treasury Notes Oversubscribed

WASHINGTON - Secretary Mills announced Monday night the offering of $50,000,000 in treasury notes placed on sale Monday morning was over-subscribed at the close of business this afternoon.

The government will use $412,369,000 to meet relief and other financial needs. The remaining $7,631,000 will be used to pay indebtedness. The reconstruction finance corporation will administer the relief funds.

The notes were in two series, both dated and bearing interest from August 1. One was for $300,000,000 to run two years and bear 2 1/4 per cent interest; the second was for the same amount, to run four years and bear 3 1/4 per cent interest.

The prompt over-subscription was taken as an indication of the eagerness banks with large reserves to make safe investments.

NEW YORK - Coca-Cola International corporation earned profit of $1,201,631 in second quarter of year, against $841,847 in preceding quarter.

Little George and Virginia McEntire of Sterling City were expected to return to their ranch home Monday in their Robin plane, piloted by George, following a visit in San Antonio with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vance. Mr. Vance is pilot on the Big Spring-San Angelo-San Antonio air mail line of American Airways and on his run files over the McEntire ranch house, often dropping newspapers and other message.

D. R. Crouchman and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Littell, the former en route from Los Angeles to Dallas, the latter from Los Angeles to Ft. Worth, were passengers on the Monday evening eastbound American Airways ship.

Miss Ethel Evans is returning to her home in Strawton Wednesday where she will spend the rest of the summer.

Mrs. Vesta Leverett is spending a week or ten days with her family in Cooper.

THANKS VOTERS I want to thank those who supported me, especially the home-folks, in my race for state senator. I also want to say that I am voting for Arthur P. Duggan of Littlefield in the run-off, and ask my friends to consider his candidacy for this place in the run-off August 27th.

Sincerely, CLYDE E. THOMAS -adv.

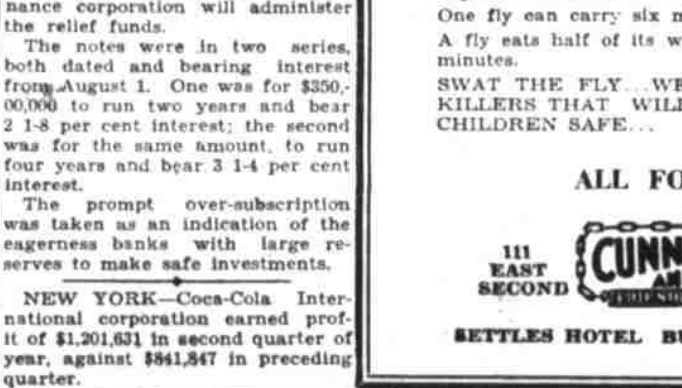

"FLIES"

The house fly carries and transmits over thirty diseases. It contributes to the death of 75,000 people each year. The fly is directly responsible for 95 per cent of typhoid fever.

In one season the female fly may be responsible for over five trillion off springs. (If she doesn't meet with any birth control). One fly can carry six million germs. A fly eats half of its weight in food or filth in a few minutes.

Women who patronize Conoco Service Stations are delighted with the courtesy and helpfulness of Conoco salesmen. There is nothing forward or obtrusive about their service, but it has the little touches of respect and thoroughness that make it pleasing.

Conoco men always see that your windshield is polished clean, that your tires are checked accurately and that the radiator is filled... without splashing. They are glad to furnish battery water, if you desire.

Women are especially pleased with the spotless, plainly marked Conoco rest-rooms which are available for them.

Women who are traveling by car find Conoco service invaluable. At any Conoco station they can learn the condition of near-by roads, receive accurate mileage and route information, obtain dependable road maps and authentic details about local hotels, camps, sports and sources of supplies. The Conoco man will check packages and arrange to handle mail and telegrams.

All of these services are free, of course; not only free, but rendered with a spirit that leaves no doubt that the Conoco man is eager to be helpful.
