PAMPA — Gray County commissioners plan to meet at 9 a.m. Friday in Gray County courthouse to consider a 13-item agenda.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with a sudden surge of Haitian boat people, the Clinton administration is reopening the U.S. naval base in Cuba to Haitians seeking political asylum in the United States.

Top officials took the action Tuesday evening after 2.472 Haitians were plucked from boats by Coast Guard cutters during four chaotic days between Friday and Monday. That figure eclipsed the number intercepted during all of 1993, when all Haitian migrants were forcibly returned to their homeland.

The migrants have been lured to sea by President Clinton's decision to give fleeing Haitians a chance to apply for political asylum for the first time since President Bush halted the practice in May 1992.

There was almost a crisis atmosphere on Tuesday after word reached here that 1,486 Haitians were picked up on Monday, the second highest one-day total since the ouster of President Jean-Bertrand Aristide in September 1991.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson's preliminary hearing will serve as a legal dress rehearsal for his murder trial, shining the light of public scrutiny on the prosecution's evidence for the first time.

Unlike the average felony case, Thursday's hearing isn't likely to end with a plea bargain or the charges being dismissed, legal experts say.

The hearing could show that some evidence reported in the media never existed, which would be a boon to the defense. Simpson's lead lawyer, Robert L. Shapiro, apparently sees an advantage in quick action: He insisted that the hearing take place as soon as possible.

'The faster the prosecutors work, the more likely they are to make mistakes," said Loyola University Law Professor Laurie Levenson, a former federal prosecutor.

Jury says son killed his father

BROWNSVILLE (AP) - It wasn't guilt beyond a reasonable doubt that moved a jury to conclude that Victor Lino Leal likely was the strangler of his own father.

But in this case, at least, it didn't need to be.

A civil court jury decided Tuesday that Leal should not get $500,000 in life insurance that his father had left him because he probably was to blame for the unsolved murder.

Dr. Victor Leal's estate contended that Lino Leal, 21, killed his father after a quarrel over the son's drug problems and frequent brushes with the law.

But Lino Leal's attorneys argued that the doctor, who himself had been indicted on federal drug charges, may have been killed by drug dealers unhappy about his reported cooperation with the FBI.

"I feel that the truth has not been known," said Lino Leal's mother, Maria Garza, who supported her son throughout the trial. "Anybody who knows him and his father knows that they both loved each other."

In the civil trial, the estate had only to show that Lino Leal was more likely than not involved in the killing - a much lighter burden than the "beyond a reasonable doubt" standard that a prosecutor would have to prove in a criminal trial.

The Cameron County district attorney's office has said Lino Leal is the only suspect in the case, and its investigation is contin-

Nine Texas A&M employees face misdemeanor charges

By CHIP BROWN Associated Press Writer

BRYAN (AP) - First rocked by resignations, Texas A&M now must contend with criminal indictments against a former vice president and the school's director of athletics.

The latest fallout from a 10-month investigation of the nation's third-largest university by state and federal authorities came Tuesday as a Brazos County grand jury handed down indictments against five A&M employees.

Four other university workers were charged separately, bringing the number of accused to nine.

All the charges are misdemeanors.

Robert Smith, a 30-year employe and the school's former vice president for finance and administration, was indicted on a misdemeanor charge for allegedly soliciting for his wife two expenses-paid trips to New York from Barnes & Noble Bookstores Inc.

The company had been awarded a multi-million dollar contract to run the campus bookstore in College Station. Athletic director Wally Groff was indicted with three other A&M employees on misdemeanor charges of falsifying government records. They are accused of disguising the purchase of alcohol on state purchase vouchers as food, soft drinks and ice.

Brazos County District Attorney Bill Turner said Tuesday's action by the grand jury represents the bulk of an investigation by the Texas Rangers and FBI, but said the probe will continue.

I would categorize this as one of the most important things we have done here in a long time," Turner said.

"There is crime that can be extremely serious in the

"In the whole scheme of things, keeping people on the right course, large groups of people, is extremely important," he said.

Groff said Tuesday he is disappointed that charges had been raised in regard to vouchers for alcohol purchases. saying the complaints were based upon an extremely technical interpretation of the law.

"I have never intended to violate any law, and there can be no doubt that I, nor the university, has gained anything in any way," Groff said in a statement.

Groff said the athletic department was operating, as it had for several years, "in accordance with what we perceived to be the proper university procedures."

Smith and Ross Margraves Jr., former chairman of the Texas A&M System board of regents, were the lead negotiators for a $10 million contract awarded to Barnes & Noble Bookstores Inc. in July 1990. Smith and Margraves also worked out a contract extension in June 1993 that could result in as much as $25 million in net sales for Barnes & Noble.

According to the indictment, Smith arranged to have Barnes & Noble pay for airline tickets, lodging, meals and theater tickets for his wife on separate trips the couple took to New York in May 1993 and July 1992.

'It's an outrage," said Smith's attorney, Dick DeGuerin. "He didn't solicit anything, and when he learned that Barnes and Noble had paid for his wife's portion, he reimbursed Barnes and Noble with his own check.

"If that's all they can come up with, it's a terrible misuse of the grand jury.

The Associated Press first reported in October that form of violence, and sometimes there (are) simply reg- Smith and Margraves had taken several trips to New York deluxe lodging, limousines and Broadway show tickets. Barnes & Noble has defended the trips, saying the university was the beneficiary, not the individuals.

"While we are pleased that the authorities found no wrongdoing on the part of Barnes & Noble Bookstores, Inc., we are sorry to learn of the charges against Mr. Robert Smith. We believe in the presumption of innocence and that Mr. Smith should have his day in court without prejudice from media coverage," said J. Alan Kahn, president of Barnes & Noble Bookstores.

Earlier this month, Smith was demoted to executive director of special projects. A&M's new president, Ray M. Bowen, said the move simply allowed him to install his own staff and wasn't a reflection on Smith.

Bowen said Texas A&M has cooperated fully with the investigation and will continue to do so.

"Both in that role and as a concerned citizen, I accept the grand jury's decision to indict these individuals and will wait for the judicial system to offer our employees the due process they so rightly deserve under the law before making any additional comments," Bowen said.

Turner said the investigation will now turn primarily to allegations widely circulated in an anonymous letter last year that accused Margraves of orchestrating A&M business so he could personally profit.

Margraves has denied the allegations and says the probe by the Texas Rangers and FBI will vindicate him. In the past three months, Margraves and William Mobley, chancellor of the seven-university Texas A&M System, have resigned.

Margraves said he stepped down because he had become a lightning rod for negative media attention focusing on the school.

Mobley said he grew tired of being an administrator and wanted to rejoin the A&M faculty.

Smith had authority over more than $346 million last year as vice president for finance and administration. He was criticized in recent months for his efforts to privatize parts of the campus, namely food services and the university's bookstore. Smith's position with A&M included oversight of NCAA rules compliance within the athletic department. The Aggies' football program has been placed on probation by the NCAA and won't be allowed to appear on television or in a bowl game next season. Indicted with Groff on charges of falsifying state purchase vouchers were: - Penny King, associate athletic director;

- Ronald Carter, manager of business and facilities operations in the chemistry department; and John Wormuth, professor and interim head of the oceanography department. Four others, while not indicted, were also charged with falsifying government records. Turner identified the four as Don Hellriegel, a professor in the management department; Sabrina Saladino, an academic business administrator in the management department; Jesse Malon Southerland, vice president for student affairs; and Sheran Riley, an assistant to the president. Smith, Groff, Wormuth and Ms. King each face up to two years in jail and $6,000 in fines if convicted. Carter, Hellriegel, Ms. Saladino, Southerland and Ms. Riley each face up to one year in jail and $3,000 in fines. Mobley has said the A&M administration bears responsibility for a widespread practice of listing alcohol purchases on state vouchers as food, cups and ice. He said he regrets that employees are paying the price for the failed procedure.

Two secretaries for the board of regents were indicted previously on felony charges of falsifying vouchers.

Arafat to make trip to Gaza Strip

By NICOLAS B. TATRO Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) - PLO chairman Yasser Arafat will visit the Gaza Strip and Jericho for at least three days starting Friday, his first trip to the territories since the beginning of Palestinian self-rule, an aide said today.

Nabil Shaath, the PLO's top negotiator with Israel, said he told Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of the visit, which came as a surprise after several delays. But Rabin said he was not sure the trip was possible on short notice.

"There will not be a visit in Gaza without coordination," Rabin said on Israel radio. "I will check this matter, and when I have decided, I will let you know.'

Arafat planned to visit Gaza and the West Bank town of Jericho for three or four days, but will not enter Jerusalem, Shaath said. Jerusalem's mayor and right-wing settlers had vowed to block him from coming. Arafat had been expected to arrive in the self-rule territories in June, but had repeatedly postponed the visit. He has given various reasons for the delay, including demands that donors first turn over $42 million in aid. Shaath told The Associated Press that Arafat would come despite concerns about security, both for his safety and for controlling the hundreds of thousands of Palestinians expected to pour into the streets to greet him. "Mr. Arafat took a lot of risks in the struggle to go home, so this will not be a determent. But for sure our police are preparing for all the security requirements," Shaath said.

Right-wing Jewish settlers planned large-scale protests of Arafat's visit, said Aharon Domb, spokesman for the Settlers Council, which represents 144 settlements in the West Bank and Gaza.

"Rabin and (Foreign Minister Shimon) Peres have lost their minds. Arafat is the master terrorist, and we will do what we can to make sure that life in this country will be disrupted," Domb told The Associated Presss.

Extremists Israelis have threatened to assassinate the Palestine Liberation Organization leader for past terrorist acts, and Domb said, "I wouldn't be sorry if it happened. We have to bring him to trial in Israel."

Shaath said Arafat would arrive with 70 or 80 officials at the Rafah crossing between Gaza and Egypt. He said Arafat would not bring his wife, Suha.

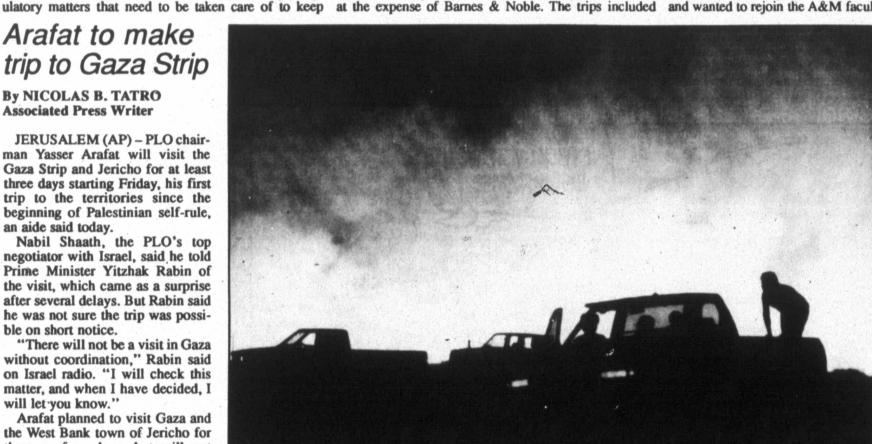

"It is a historic day that Palestinian people have waited for a long time," said Dr. Ahmed Tibi, an Arafat adviser. "It symbolizes the beginning of a long trip for reconstruction and independence."

In Cairo, Foreign Minister Amr Moussa of Egypt said Arafat would enter Gaza via Egypt after meeting with President Hosni Mubarak on Thursday.

Arafat, who was last in Palestinian territory in 1967 after the Six-Day War, had planned to visit the West Bank town of Jericho first. But his visit has been repeatedly postponed.

Among the problems has been the lack of funds for Palestinian self-government offices and Israeli restrictions on freedom of movement for Arafat. Security concerns have also been cited. Arafat's visit has been anxiously awaited by Palestinians since Israel withdrew from the Gaza Strip and West Bank town of Jericho on May 18.

West Texas range fires sparked by lightning

Lightning and hot, dry conditions have sparked range fires in the Permian Basin, destroying at least two homes and burning more than 10,000 acres.

In South Texas, a young boy had to leap over a wall of flames when fire erupted where children were playing hide-and-seek in a large vacant lot.

No more rhetoric; prepare for attack

If anyone needs reminding that the world is still a dangerous place, look no further than the heavily armed border between North and South Korea

For 40 years, an uneasy peace has prevailed on the peninsula. But now a deadly and destructive war could break out again over the issue of North Korea's nuclear program. How President Bill Clinton handles his looming crisis will be the biggest test of his foreign pol-

At the heart of the crisis is North Korea's secretive nuclear program. North Korea's government denies it, but most experts in the West believe it has diverted nuclear fuel from its domestic energy program to its weapons program. CIA analysts quoted in the news media believe North Korea may even have already built one or more

North Korea signed the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty in 1985, but it has denied international inspectors the access they need to determine whether North Korea is abiding by it. The Clinton administration has threatened to seek sanctions against North Korea if it continues to thwart the inspections. North Korea has responded that sanctions would be considered an act of war.

Coming from North Korea, the threat of war must be taken seriously. This is the same communist regime, after all, that invaded the south in 1950 - launching a three-year war that claimed 4 million lives, including 50,000 Americans.

For its part, the Clinton administration should de-escalate its rhetoric, and quietly escalate preparations to repel any military aggression from the north.

Sanctions, in particular, should only be a last resort. They would probably not have much, if any, effect on North Korea, already one of the world's most economically isolated regimes.

Instead of sanctions, the administration and South Korea's government should bolster their joint ability to repel an attack. The Clinton administration has already deployed a battery of Patriot missiles to shoot down North Korean SCUD missiles. Unfortunately, because of unconscionable cuts in missile defense research, America's ability to thwart an attack has been compromised. To keep rogue regimes such as North Korea from engaging in missile blackmail, Congress and the Clinton administration should restore adequate funding for missile defenses.

If North Korea does build its own bomb, that wouldn't automatically spell disaster. After all, North Korea already has enough conventional firepower to impose widespread destruction on South Korea. Meanwhile, America's nuclear arsenal in the Pacific will continue to provide a measure of deterrence against a nuclear attack.

The focus of American policy in Korea should not be trade sanctions, but a credible deterrent against aggression, whatever form it

In 1959, there was also a man who dared to declare that things could be different: Lee Kuan

Elected as the country's first prime minister, Lee, tedious step by tedious step, turned the sewer of Asia into the jewel of the Orient.

Today, Singapore is one of the world's great commercial centers with one of the world's highest literacy rates, with one of the world's lowest unemployment rates, with one of the world's highest standards of living and with one of the world's low-

The slums are gone. Crime, drugs, prostitution, poverty and illiteracy have all but been eradicated, and the inhabitants of Singapore are understandably

But how did Lee manage to make such a disciplined society out of a corrupt cadre of hoodlums when so much of the world, including America, was going the other way?

Morality and discipline. "We (the Singapore government) believe we had to take strong measures to make sure that people understand that other people's lives, their persons and properties have to be respected," said Lee in a recent Time interview. "We don't deal with criminal behavior the way Americans do. We don't have the concept of 'victim of society' ... This concept has led to a situation where if you kill your mother and father, because you were victims, you are not guilty. If you cut off your husband's penis, it's OK. But it is not OK. If we allow it to be OK, we'll have chaos. Maybe we are old-fashioned, but here, it works."

If only America were "old-fashioned" in dealing with crime, maybe it would work here, too.

Despite President Clinton's pleading for "mercy," Americans generally applauded the prospect of Michael Fay getting his due. They wrote letters, made phone calls and rallied their support for Singapore. Yet despite cries for justice to be done at home, America's milquetoast lawmakers have ignored their pleas.

In St. Louis, Alderman Freeman Bosley couldn't even get a second when he moved for lashes as a form of punishment.

In California, Assemblyman Mickey Conroy was rebuffed by the assembly speaker, Willie Brown, for wanting the same.

In Sacramento, the city council flatly refused to discuss a councilman's proposal of the idea,

The cruel irony is that in the 30 years that Singapore has sought to imitate the America of old, America has elected to emulate the Singapore of old. How dare we criticize it!

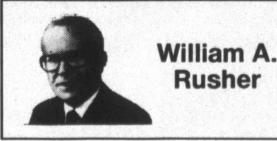

Clinton badly confused on Haiti, Korea further steps to make nuclear weapons."

The chaos in President Clinton's foreign policy is about to escalate. Hitherto all America has lost is its hard-won respect as the leader of the world. Now, as Mr. Clinton starts to implement various policies, we are going to begin losing American lives as well.

It seems clear that a military invasion of Haiti is in the works, probably within weeks. So, for the first time in modern history, American soldiers wil' be ordered to risk and if necessary lose their lives in an operation that involves no "vital national interest" whatever. The restoration to power of the flaky ex-priest Jean-Bertrand Aristide was pledged by Mr. Clinton to the Congressional Black Caucus last year, in return for its indispensable support for his budget proposal (which passed by one vote). If the death of American soldiers strikes you as too high a price to pay for redeeming that pledge, take it up with your congressman.

Meanwhile in North Korea, where a vital American interest really is involved, Mr. Clinton has turned the old-fashioned cringe into an instrument of foreign policy. It was more than a year ago that Kim Il-Sung disclosed his intention to go into the lucrative business of manufacturing and selling (perhaps using) atomic bombs.

The problem was turned over to Secretary of State Warren Christopher, a world-class ditherer, who dithered for a solid year, offering Kim everything from economic aid to recognition as the permanent plan is intended to deter North Korea from taking dictator of North Korea if only he would abandon his intention. But Kim went grimly ahead, banning international inspectors from key sites and adding a line of intermediate-range missiles to his arsenal.

So now the doves in the Clinton administration have drafted a proposal for international economic sanctions against North Korea, allegedly designed to bring it to heel. They will, of course, do no such thing, and won't even succeed in delaying the crisis until after the 1996 elections - Mr. Clinton's favorite closet for ugly surprises that must be sprung on the American people. For one thing, the sanctions to be imposed are ridiculously weak. I invite you to try to make sense out of the following sentence by New York Times reporter Michael R. Gordon: "Administration officials say that by withholding stricter sanctions, the

Meanwhile the serious men still in the U.S. government - notably Defense Secretary William Perry - have submitted a plan that contemplates military action against North Korea (probably "surgical" air strikes against its nuclear installations) within a matter of months if Kim takes the remaining few steps necessary to go into full-scale bomb production.

Mr. Clinton has not yet signed off on this plan, and we can be sure that if there were a coward's way out of the dilemma he would take it. Repudiating his word (as in granting Most Favored Nation trade status to Communist China) would be no problem. Blaming our allies for American paralysis (as in Bosnia) would be easy. But what if Kim

Mr. Clinton no doubt hoped desperately that that master negotiator Jimmy Carter could pull some rabbit out of the hat on his "private" trip to Korea. But even if Mr. Clinton does finally "screw his courage to the sticking-place" and sign off on the Pentagon plan, he must then prepare the American people for the possibility of all-out war with Kim's rickety and desperate but still dangerously powerful regime. This, he has thus far totally failed to do.

No doubt he is unsure how the American people would respond to a call to arms by the First Draft Dodger in his new capacity of commander in chief. But he will just have to find out.

Arizona judge strikes down part of Brady

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Another federal judge has struck down part of the Brady law, saying it is unconstitutional for the government to require local police to check the background of potential handgun buyers.

U.S. District Judge John Roll also issued a permanent injunction against that requirement Tuesday. He said the background checks violate the Fifth Amendment ban on vague criminal laws and a 10th amendement provision that reserves for states all powers not specifically delegated to the federal government.

Roll let stand the portion of the law that requires a five-day waiting period for handgun purchases.

"My first inclination is complete elation," said Graham County Sheriff said Richard Mack, who filed the lawsuit and became a hero of the gun lobby. "I'm really proud to be part of a system that still works."

Justice Department lawyer Pamela Eppli, who argued the case, had no

A constitutional law professor at the University of Arizona said Roll's ruling has a limited effect.

"The ruling of a federal district judge is binding only in that judge's territory," said Robert J. Glennon Jr. "It does not bind other district judges, even within the same district.'

The National Rifle Association has backed similar federal lawsuits in five other states, including Mississipipi, Louisiana Vermont. A Montana judge issued a ruling similar to Roll's last month, and a Texas judge upheld the law.

The law is named for James Brady, the White House aide shot in an assassination attempt on President Reagan.

It imposes a five-day waiting period for handgun purchases. During that time, local law enforcement agencies are supposed to check the background of potential buyers to ensure they don't have felony convictions or mental problems that would block the purchase.

FCC says Coca-Cola violated anti-trust law

ATLANTA (AP) - The Federal Trade Commission ruled that Coca-Cola Co. violated federal antitrust laws eight years ago when it tried to acquire Dr Pepper Co., one of its largest competitors.

The commission ordered Coke Tuesday to obtain FTC approval before attempting to acquire any major brand-name competitors in the next 10 years. It also blocked the transaction, long since abandoned by Coca-Cola.

"We have all of our options open to us, including appeal," said Coca-Cola spokesman Randy Donaldson.

The ruling stems from the FTC's 1986 complaint alleging Coca-Cola's proposed acquisition of Dr Pepper would substantially lessen competition in the U.S. soft-drink market.

Dr Pepper was bought later in 1986 by Hicks and Haas, a Dallas investment firm. Dr Pepper was later merged with Seven-Up to form what is now the third-largest U.S. soft drink maker, behind Coca-Cola and Pepsico.

This Fourth of July give your grill a thrill with fajitas

By The Associated Press

Warmer weather lures us back outside for grilling, especially on July 4th. Grilled vegetable fajitas have the flavors of hot-pepper Monterey Jack cheese. The vegetables are basted with a butter made with cilantro, chili powder, red pepper and lime cutting board; repeat with remaining juice.

For a different taste, you can replace the Monterey Jack cheese with mozzarella and Parmesan cheeses. For this dish, use a buttery baste of fresh basil, garlic and balsamic vinegar instead of the cilantro

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for mentioning the trouble some people get into by investing their hard-earned money into those contests/sweepstakes.

I am a CPA who's had some of my elderly clients taken in by contest/sweepstakes promoters.

One client wrote checks totaling more than $17,500 in 1993. She had received 134 mail solicitations in a single week!

Multiple requests came from the same address — each with a slightly different pitch. In addition, there were two or three telephone requests every day.

The mail solicitations requested less than $100 — some less than $20; however, the telephone calls were something different.

They asked for sums from $500 to $2,500, and "guaranteed" that she had won!

If she didn't agree to send the money, they became verbally abusive! (They do not use the U.S. mail — they use Federal Express, thereby avoiding a mail-fraud charge.) I have spoken with FBI agents regarding those "boiler room" calls. As soon as the FBI finds these people and shuts them down, they set up shop at a different location. Sadly, many elderly people do not want a son, daughter or bank trust officer stepping in to control their finances, yet their failing vision, limited financial resources and the assurance that they have won the lottery make them easy prey for these promoters.

LINDA G. MONTGOMERY, SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR LINDA: Thank you for your input. Read on for another point of view:

DEAR ABBY: I have been enjoying your column since it began. Usually I agree with you, but regarding the daughter that was "hooked" on sweepstakes, I think you should have done some investigating before answering.

A legitimate sweepstakes never asks for money.

I know this for a fact because after I retired, I tried "sweeping" as a hobby.

Every entry blank I saw in a store or newspaper, I sent in. All together, I won 27 prizes in three years. The largest was $1,000; other monetary prizes were $600, two for $200, five for $25, and one for $10.

I also won a Singer sewing machine, two pressure cookers and a large world atlas. The rest were small items such as egg timers, electronic hair curlers, etc.

Once in a while, I received a request for money. After talking to the postal inspector, I was instructed to tape the original envelope shut and write "Forward to Postal Inspector" on the envelope, then drop it in the mailbox.

I have received letters from postal inspectors thanking me for helping them stop some of these fraudulent practices.

AUDREY JONES, TUCSON

DEAR AUDREY: Thanks for pointing out that not all con-

However, those that require the contestant to send money usually are.

DEAR ABBY: There is a historical precedent for the tale of Aunt Bev (who married three brothers in succession) sent to you by "Doug in Oregon."

Missouri's Claiborne Fox Jackson, elected governor, who tried to take the state into the Confederacy, married in succession Jane, Louisa and Eliza, daughters of Dr. John Sappington, frontier doctor who pioneered the use of quinine to treat malaria.

True or not, the story is told that when Jackson sought the hand of the third daughter (his first two wives having died), the crusty old doctor gave his consent, but growled, "Well, you can have her, too, but if you come back for the old lady (the doctor's wife), I'll have to say no."

Pampa bids a very farewell to Robertson

Lois Robertson

Pampa will soon be bidding farewell to a longtime resident as Lois Robertson leaves for Dallas where two of her daughters, Dr. Joan Cross and Tammy Shimon, both live.

For 53 years, Robertson has lived in Pampa but has lived in the area for 61 years. Her husband, Jack, was a plumber who worked here in town and had his own business. She helped him with the books and also made lunch for him and several of the people who worked for him.

They lived outside of Pampa until their first daughter was old enough to start school and then they moved into town.

In addition to Cross and Shimon, Robertson has two children, David Robertson, Pampa, and Jackie Annon who lives in California. She is the grandmother of nine grandchildren all of whom she appears to be very proud of their accomplishments.

Robertson said one of her grandsons is Sam Annon who plays with the San Diego Chargers and she also has a granddaughter, Kimmie Annon, who is a professional artist.

Robertson has been active in the Calvary Baptist Church of which she has been a member for the 53 years she has lived here. She was also active in the Democratic Party for nearly 30

One of seven children, Robertson said she first came to the area with her family trying to find work during the Great Depression after her father died.

"We lived around here in different places," said Robertson, who was originally born in Olusty, Okla., in 1919.

"I'll miss everything," said Robertson about Pampa.

Her friends are going to honor her with a farewell party at the Calvary Baptist Church at 900 E. 23rd Street this Friday at 7

Great gains in dental health By DR. MICHAEL FREEDMAN

Associated Press NEW YORK - The National

Institute of Dental Research has some good news to report: Far fewer Americans are losing teeth now than a generation ago, with particularly impressive gains among older people.

The use of fluorides, sealants, better nutrition and better consumer education apparently have made a huge impact in the past few decades on holding down tooth decay and gum disease.

The Dallas Mavericks are looking to rebuild. The San Antonio Spurs are searching for the point guard to run their offense. The Houston Rockets are just hoping to get lucky.

Dallas has three picks among the first 28, giving the Mavericks a now-or-never chance to turn around the team that's been the worst in the league the last two years.

"It's very important," new player personnel director Keith Grant said. "When a team builds as we are, this should make us even better.'

Grant and coach Dick Motta have a can't-miss pick at No. 2 and likely will spend their first pick on California point guard Jason Kidd despite his recent off-court problems and the rising stock of Duke's Grant Hill.

San Antonio's only pick is No. 22, which is fine because the Spurs may be only one player away into next year's top title contender.

Then there's the NBA champion Rockets, who only have the second-to-last pick of the draft.

Drafting 53rd, Houston would be lucky to find anyone capable of making their 12-man roster. They have their eyes on 7-foot-1 Zan Tabak, whom they drafted in the second round of the 1991 draft, to backup MVP Hakeem Olajuwon.

For Dallas, the thought of a 1-2-3 combination of Kidd and previous top choices Jim Jackson and Jamal Mashburn is too good to pass up.

In a copyright story, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today that the Mavericks will definitely pick Kidd.

REDS DEFEAT ASTROS

HOUSTON (AP) — When Cincinnati pitcher John Smiley won a dramatic third-inning duel with Houston's Jeff Bagwell, "that was the ballgame," Reds manager Davey Johnson said.

Bagwell came to the plate with the bases loaded and no one out, but grounded into an inning-ending double play, and Cincinnati rode its 2-0 lead into a 5-3 victory over the Astros Tuesday night.

Bagwell has been among the National League leaders in nearly every hitting category, including first in RBIs with

He had three homers in a game against the Dodgers just last weekend and has been hitting at an especially torrid pace the last two weeks (24 for 49 for a .490 average) while winning back-to-back NL Player of the Week awards.

So it was scary for Smiley when Bagwell came to the plate in the third inning. Bagwell, who has 24 home runs and is only three RBIs short of a club record for most RBIs in a month (27 this month), took two mighty swings, then hit the ground ball.

Almost no one could believe it. Especially Smiley (7-8), who had been battered at a .429 lifetime pace by Bagwell before Tuesday.

"I threw him a curve to start him off," Smiley said. "I think that messed him up because he expected a fastball. He's a tough out. I just wanted to keep him off balance. He's just a pure good hitter. When he goes up there with the bases loaded, there's no where to put him.

"You've got to work hard on him. I pitched him in and then pitched him away and then I got the ground ball. One day you get him, the other day he hits you. He hit a threerun home run against me the last game I faced him. He gives 110 per cent all the time. He's the kind of guy you like to see in baseball.' Johnson liked seeing Bagwell head to the dugout.

"Bagwell hits the heck out of Smiley," Johnson said. "John really pitched him tough. Bases loaded and one out - that was the ball game. When you get him out in those situations, you're going to win most games against them."

"Smiley did a great job," Reds catcher Brian Dorsett said. "He made some great pitches. You can't make mistakes against (Bagwell). With the bases loaded, there's not much you can do. You just hope he hits into a double play."

Reggie Sanders had a home run and two doubles and Bret Boone added two hits and two RBIs as Cincinnati increased its Central Division lead to 3 1/2 games over Houston. The Reds have won eight of their last 10 while the Astros have lost five of their last seven.

Greg Swindell (5-6) lost his fifth straight, giving up four runs on eight hits over seven innings.

Cincinnati scored two runs in the first inning, padded the lead to 4-0 in the fourth, and that was enough for the victory. The Reds added an insurance run in the ninth. Houston got two runs in the fourth and one in the seventh.

While the Astros have counted on Bagwell for much of this season, manager Terry Collins said he knows the star first baseman can't do it every game.

'Once and a while, you find out you're human," Collins said. "I think that's why this is such a great game. Every night it's a different scenario. That's why it takes all the guys contributing.

"I know Jeff's frustrated. But those things happen once and a while. You've got to realize he's human. Bagwell understands that. He just doesn't like conceding such things when men are on base.

"I had my chance to help this team win and I didn't," he said. "It's a little disheartening to me.

"I don't mind taking the collar (0-for-4). But when there's runners in scoring position and I don't do my job, that bothers me. That's the reason I bat in the third spot, to bring people in. And I didn't do it tonight."

Freeh: U.S. hate-crime murders rival Germany's

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN Associated Press Writer

BERLIN (AP) - FBI Director Louis Freeh, arriving in a country long thought to have an acute problem with hate groups, said Tuesday that hate-crime murders are at least as common in the United States as in Germany.

There were 20 such murders just last year in the United States, Freeh said, citing the first report in FBI history specifically addressing this phe-

"It's very, very alarming," the FBI

The report cited more than 7,600 U.S. incidents of hate-motivated intimidation, vandalism and assaults in 1993. Freeh said the total falls far short of the full picture because only "a really small number of the nation's police forces," responsible for 56 percent of the U.S. population, reported hate crimes.

A 1992 law requires the FBI to compile the report, but merely encourages local police agencies to volunteer hate-crime data to the bureau.

Freeh released the report on the first day of a 10-day trip to Russia and eight other European countries. He and his hosts will discuss growing international crime problems such as hate groups, the spread of Russian organized crime and illicit traffic in nuclear materials.

Freeh said he worries that the result could be a nuclear bomb ending up in the hands of terrorists.

With 30 hate-crime murders since reunification in October 1990, Germany has averaged about 7.7 murders a year. That's just over one-third of the U.S. total last year, in a German population that is just under one-third the size of the United States.

But given that "thousands of hate crimes are not reported" in the U.S. study, Freeh said, "We have a much higher rate" of murders.

Freeh discussed the new U.S. crime data in a speech and news conference after meeting German officials. They pressed him again for help with hatemongers who send certain publications from the United States, where they are legal, to Germany, where they are banned.

In an interview en route to Berlin, Freeh said the FBI might be able to legally give German police the addresses to which hate material is shipped from the United States. This would facilitate seizures by German police.

Germany has garnered world attention for hate violence by neo-Nazis, skinheads and other groups, mostly directed at foreign workers during high unemployment brought on by combining the prosperous West with the underdeveloped East.

Germany's problem has been highlighted by fatal bombings of group houses, such as the May 1993 blast that killed five Turkish women in Solingen. But Germany's hate-crime total declined from a peak of 2,639 in 1992, when 18 died, to 2,232 last year, when seven died. Highlights of the FBI report on the

- There were 7,684 hate-crime incidents reported by police departments around the country in 1993. - Racial bias was the most frequent motivation, accounting for 62 percent of the incidents, followed by 18 percent for religious bias and 12 percent for sexual orientation bias, virtually all of it against homosexuals. The rest involved bias because of ethnic background or national origin.

- Crimes against people accounted for 70 percent of U.S. hate offenses. Intimidation, at 35 percent, was the most frequent, followed by vandalism and property destruction at 25

- The most common racial targets were blacks, 2,476 incidents, followed by whites, at 1,299 incidents. Jews were the most frequent religious targets, at 1,054 incidents. Homosexuals were targets in 777 incidents.

- Fifty-one percent of the known offenders were whites; 35 percent were blacks. Offenders were not known in 42 percent of the incidents. Freeh told German officials the FBI has to walk a fine line in assisting them in prosecuting hate groups who operate from the United States where, Freeh has said, their speech, "although despicable, is rightly protected by the Constitution.

Voting age population up 7.8 million

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - This fall's elections will see 7.8 million more U.S. residents of voting age than in the last midterm contests in 1990.

The Census Bureau estimates that 193,650,000 U.S. residents will be 18 or older this November, 4.1 million more than in 1992 and 7.8 million more than in 1990. Of course, not everyone who is old enough to vote does so. Some are not eligible to vote because they are not U.S. citizens or are convicted felons.

In 1990, just 33.1 percent of those who were eligible voted. And in 1992, when a presidential contest heightened public interest, turnout was still just 50.8 percent. In the 1990 elections, Democrats outpolled Republicans by 4.9 million votes for seats in the House voting for House seats was 5.1 million.

ballots is growing, the typical voter is also changing. The declining birth rates of the late 1960s and 1970s mean that fewer people are turning 18 than when the large Baby Boom groups were reaching voting age.

of Representatives. In 1992 the Democratic margin in While the number of Americans old enough to cast

And that means older people make up an ever larger share of the voting age population — a more experienced and mature population of potential voters than in years past. In November people 45 and over will be a larger share of the voting-age population than in 1990, while the proportion of those 18 to 44 will be down.

The Census projection expected people 18 to 24 to make up 13.2 percent of the voting-age population in November, down from 14.6 percent in 1990. Those 25 to 44 will be 43.2 percent, down from 43.6 percent. But people 45 to 64 will comprise 26.3 percent of the voting-age population, up from 25.0 percent. And those 65 and over will be 17.3 percent, an increase from 16.8

Other findings of the voting-age projection report:

 Women will comprise 52 percent of the voting-age population nationally, outnumbering men by 7.8 million. Women will outnumber men in every state except Alaska, Hawaii and Nevada.

 Whites will constitute 84.3 percent of the votingage population, compared to 11.5 percent for blacks and 4.2 percent for other races.

Hispanics, who may be members of any race, will make up 8.8 percent of the voting-age population.

Document: Santa Fe older than believed

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) - Has the nation's oldest state capital been understating its age?

In a newly discovered letter dated Aug. 10, 1608, conquistador Juan Martinez de Montoya writes to his superiors about having built a plaza in Santa Fe.

The city's founding previously was set at 1610, when Pedro de Peralta established a capital here for New Spain.

"In an innocuous field like history, I guess you could say it upsets the apple cart," said Tom Chavez, director of the Palace of the Governors, a museum in the nation's oldest public building still in continuous use.

He said that the 386-year-old letter was found in documents obtained from an antiquities dealer in London.

The letter and uncorroborated evidence of even earlier colonial activity in the area "lend weight to the hypothesis that as early as 1600 a Spanish settlement was most likely in existence where Santa Fe is today," Chavez said.
