PAMPA — The deadline for nominations to the Panhandle Veterans Hall of Fame is Tuesday, July 26. Chairman John L. Triplehorn urged those wishing to nominate veterans for induction into the Hall to get the information together in order to submit it by the deadline.

Information should include the branch of military service, numbers of years served, any awards or medals earned during military service, any unique accomplishments in the military, and information on post-military career, including occupation, clubs, organizations, community service and other relevant information.

The nominating material should be mailed to: Panhandle Veterans Hall of Fame, P.O. Box 657, Pampa, TX 79066.

For information, contact Triplehorn at the Gray County Veterans Service Office, 669-8040.

PAMPA — Deadline for entering the Great Texas Tumbleweed Festival logo contest is Aug. 1.

The contest is sponsored by the Pampa/Gray County Citizens Activities Association, an organization formed to help develop the festival and other activities for the community.

The contest is open to everyone in Gray County except professional artists. Entries will be judged on the most creative logo that best illustrates the festival name and Gray County. Size of entry is limited to 8 1/2 by 11 inches.

Entries should be mailed to: Pampa/Gray County Citizens Activities Association, P.O. Box 1041, Pampa, TX 79066-1041.

The winner will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond donated by Citizens Bank and Trust. The presentation will be made at the festival, to be held in June 1995.

For more information, call 669-8231.

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Senate passed legislation that provides emergency disaster aid to Texas farmers who suffered crop losses due to freezes and droughts in 1994, according to a press release for Sen. Phil Gramm's office.

Final approval of the bill is subject to an official budget request by President Clinton and passage of a House-Senate conference committee report.

Producers will be eligible to receive funding if they experienced a crop loss on their farm exceeding 35 percent if they had crop insurance or 40 percent if they did not carry crop insurance.

AMARILLO — Republican congressional candidate Mac Thornberry says he's against any invasion of Haiti.

Thornberry said an invasion should not be initiated if it is intended to gain political clout to pass health care reform on Capitol Hill.

He also criticized his opponent, Rep. Bill Sarpalus, D-Amarillo, for supporting Clinton administration budgets which lower defense spending and for voting against a measure that would have prevented U.S. troops being placed under United Nations control except in a presidentially declared emergency.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raw, unshucked oysters like the kind served at seafood bars may become harder to find from April through October because of health concerns.

The Food and Drug Administration says it may urge Florida, Louisiana and Texas to impose an annual six-month ban on raw, unshucked oysters harvested off their coasts and require warning labels for the shucked ones.

In a letter this week to the Interstate Shellfish Sanitation Conference, a group of state regulators and industry representatives, the FDA suggested the ban as a way to guard against a form of bacteria that can be deadly to people with liver disease or weakened immune systems.

Oysters from the three Gulf Coast states are marketed throughout the country. Those harvested from April through October, however, may contain vibrio vulnificus bacteria that the government estimates claim 15 lives a year.

HOUSTON (AP) — Data collected by one of the world's foremost heart surgeons could send theories about heart disease into a tailspin.

A preliminary study by Dr. Michael DeBakey suggests that genetic damage and not cholesterol may be the leading cause of atherosclerosis, the disease that causes recurring artery blockages.

The Houston Post reported Thursday that DeBakey presented the preliminary results of his findings to a Glasgow, Scotland, symposium this week. DeBakey, who serves as chancellor at Houston's Baylor College of Medicine, was traveling and unavailable to comment further on the study Thursday.

PISD trustees review corporal punishment issue

By JEFF CARRUTH
Staff Writer

An end to the use of corporal punishment in the Pampa school system may come at the next meeting at the district's board of trustees.

But while the district is looking at doing away with swats, discipline will be a much higher priority at Pampa Middle School in the upcoming school year, incoming PMS Principal Tim Powers told the board.

Pampa ISD trustees took no action on a measure that would have officially eliminated corporal punishment from schools after a 3-3 vote to table the issue. School board members James Frugé and Pat Kennedy led the effort to delay action, saying they wanted more time to consider the proposal.

PISD Assistant Superintendent Jane Steele told the trustees administrators have discussed the possibility of taking corporal punishment out of the district's discipline manuals for about 10 years. She said an increased threat of litigation, the possibility of unknowingly paddling a child suffering abuse and the decline in the administration of corporal punishment have spurred the request for a formal change in policy. Also, more parents are not in favor of corporal punishment, she said.

Corporal punishment is no longer used at Pampa High School, and "since it is not used with the older population of students, we need to look at the whole system in a serious way," Steele said.

The policy at PHS plus the announced moratorium on swats by an elementary principal cause need for a district wide policy, she said.

"There are no statistics to support that corporal punishment corrects behavior," Steele told the panel, adding that more states are discontinuing the practice.

Austin Elementary Principal Ron Warren said paddling is a swift means of punishment that can remedy problems quickly and get students back in classrooms faster than if he or she sustained an in-school suspension.

PHS Assistant Principal Betty Beyer said discipline was not less effective at that campus in the absence of corporal punishment and that a zero tolerance policy against many student offenses helped maintain an orderly environment.

Wilson Elementary Principal Ray Thornton said he did not want the schools to send a message that they were softer on student disruption. There would be less of a need for corporal punishment "if the parents would take the firm position they need to take in the first five years, but the school is more in the parental role as disciplinarian," he said.

Concerns were raised that alternative means of punishment, such as forms of in-school suspension, may not be effective on younger children.

Frugé noted that corporal punishment is one of 16 means of disciplining action at principals' disposal. Trustee John Curry said zero-tolerance brings parents into the process more.

If the board changes the corporal punishment policy after discipline management handbooks are distributed in the schools, supplementary material will be given to students and parents, PISD Superintendent Dawson Orr said.

Time for public comment is scheduled for every board meeting.

Powers presented a detailed revamping of discipline procedures at PMS to board members that has making a "safe and hassle free" environment as its goal.

The 31-page plan spells out categories of student offenses and procedures to be followed by the assistant principal during a student's referral to the office and by teachers in the classroom.

Punishment for offenses, ranging from one-day of detention hall for a first, minor offense to automatic expulsion for verbal or physical threats, are listed according to the number and type of referrals.

The draft proposal intended for implementation in the 1994-95 school year also includes extensive documentation of student referrals and any action taken by the disciplining school official.

However, the plan does not call for corporal punishment. "I believe we can have more strict discipline without corporal punishment," Powers said.

Powers also presented a revised attendance policy for the middle school and parental involvement programs to the board.

Mobeetie Bluegrass Festival

The Selby Family of Pampa will be one of the bluegrass bands featured this weekend at the Old Mobeetie Bluegrass Festival at the Old Mobeetie Jail Museum grounds. Performances will be from 6 p.m. to midnight today, noon to midnight Saturday and 9 a.m. to noon on Sunday. Music, food, and arts and crafts displays will be available. The Mobeetie Volunteer Fire Department will have the food concessions. (Courtesy photo)

Pampa school district aiming for no-growth budget for 1994-1995

By JEFF CARRUTH
Staff Writer

Financial administrators of the Pampa Independent School District are planning a no-growth budget for 1994-95.

Budget managers will possibly face some difficulties in meeting revenue requirements as property valuations and student enrollment continue a historical decline.

PISD business manager Mark McVay said it's too early to tell if the district's tax rate, now at $1.45 per $100 of valuation, will go up, but he hopes an increase will not be necessary. "We're still optimistic that we can obtain that goal," he said.

McVay briefed the PISD board of trustees at Thursday's regular board meeting about plans for writing the estimated $16.6 million budget.

The budget will be based on a taxable property valuation certified at $755 million, which is down $6 million from the October approved valuation. McVay said this drop was modest compared with previous years.

McVay said a no-growth budget means expenditures will not increase from the previous year and will not reflect natural growth due to inflation.

Data presented to the school board indicates an enrollment loss of about 300 students since the 1989-90 academic year, while average daily attendance has averaged just under 92 percent. Meanwhile, the district's property valuation has declined by almost $50 million since 1991.

The amount of money the PISD receives from the state is based on a formula which takes into account total enrollment and average daily attendance. The PISD bases its budget calculations on a 92 percent attendance level.

The state sets money aside for districts based on enrollment and average daily attendance levels for the previous year. One-third of Pampa schools' funding comes from the state at the rate of $2,300 per student, McVay said.

The PISD received more funds from the state than anticipated when attendance reached 93.9 percent during the 1993-94 school year. McVay told trustees this surprise attendance level helped the district to meet its revenue requirements.

Another boost to PISD finances in the 1993-94 budget year came with the return of $15 million in property to district tax rolls when the County Education Districts were dissolved, McVay reported. That helped offset a $20 million drop in valuation levels experienced during 1993.

The PISD fiscal year begins Sept. 1. McVay said preliminary enrollment estimates should be in within a few days.

In other financial matters at Thursday's meeting, PISD trustees accepted the bids on a sound system at Pampa Middle School and food service items. The panel also approved the sale of delinquent tax property.

Audio Video Corporation of Amarillo will install a $6,800 sound system in the Pampa Middle School auditorium. PISD Superintendent Dawson Orr asked the company to try and have the system installed by the time classes begin Aug. 17.

In personnel matters, trustees accepted the resignations of Pampa High School counselor John Middlebrooks, PHS coach Byron Bass, Wilson teacher Ramona Norton, Travis teachers Jennifer Webb and Sufran Bass, PMS teachers Laurie Brooks and Karla Richardson and Baker teacher Denise Donnell.

Reassignments were approved for Bettie Dacus, PHS librarian; Judy Hansen, elementary library counselor; Sue Thornton, parental involvement coordinator; Cara Morris, Travis teacher; Ann Watson, Travis teacher; and John Darnell, PHS teacher.

Trustees approved the hiring of Deborah Parsley, educational diagnostician; Crista Archer, elementary counselor; Denver Bruner, director of environmental services; Carl Johnson, Austin teacher; Robert Perez, Baker and Lamar physical educator; Pampa High School teachers Julie Watson, Michelle Tapp, Raye Lyn Stucker, Kevin McKinney and Jay Knight; Pampa Middle School teachers Karen Skaggs, Barbara Amrheim and Janis Spearman; Brenda Fenton, Wilson teacher; Wes Toller, Travis teacher; and Sandra Toller, Lamar teacher.

PEDC seeking better ties with business prospects

By JEFF CARRUTH
Staff Writer

The Pampa Economic Development Corporation is looking to improve its ties with business prospects and organizations involved in acquiring businesses.

The PEDC Board of Directors approved measures during Thursday's regular monthly meeting to send PEDC Director Jack Ippel to three trade shows and an university seminar and for the PEDC to join the Texas Rural Development Council.

Ippel told the panel he plans to attend a week long Economic Development Institute course at the University of Oklahoma. He said OU was one of only two universities in the nation to offer such a program to assist economic acquisition.

The board gave its support to Ippel attending the Texas Industrial Development Council fall conference in San Antonio, the International Expo for Food Processors in Las Angeles the Assembly Technology Expo in Chicago later this year.

The High Ground fund supported in large part by Southwestern Public Service will help pay for the cost of the food show, Ippel said.

Ippel said the industrial development conference was a good opportunity for developers to talk directly to federal regulatory agency department heads which might help with red tape down the road.

The PEDC will hold its second day of free advice to businesses sponsored by the Small Business Development Center in Amarillo on Aug. 4, Ippel said. The first such day in July generated several inquiries, Ippel said. He said efforts to publicize the information days and increase attendance through civic groups would continue.

Membership in the Texas Rural Development Council would provide another way to access utility managers and regulators and therefore provide the groundwork to solve potential problems, according to Ippel.

PEDC board president Bill Waters noted that Pampa's designation as an enterprise zone will expire in 1995 and efforts to renew it should begin. Waters said renewal would be preferable to letting the designation lapse and having to reapply for the status.

The City of Pampa is the entity charged with renewing the enterprise zone. "Let's express to the city that this corporation wants it retained," Waters said.

The enterprise zone provides state incentives and benefits to businesses wanting to relocate or expand in designated areas.

An application to the Texas Capital Fund for a program that will provide guarantees to Small Business Administration loans was sent to the fund's office, Ippel told the board.

In other action, the PEDC board began consideration of the corporation's 1994-95 operating budget, elected officers for next 12 months and voted to retain Grantham, Cory, Call and Heare, P.C. as the corporation's auditor.

All the officers previously elected will retain their positions following Thursday's election. The officers are Bill Waters, president; Vic Raymond, vice president; Wayne Stribling, secretary; and Jim Morris, assistant secretary and treasurer.

On the budget, Raymond asked Ippel to compile a budget based on the current one and extrapolate what would have been spent in the past year if a director had been in place over the entire period. Ippel has held the director's position for three months after the job was open for six and a half months.

Ippel suggested separate line items for professional development and small grant assistance be included in the budget.

The PEDC is supported through city sales tax revenue.

O.J. Simpson arrives for arraignment

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson went back to court today for arraignment in the case that has commanded a global audience since the bodies of his beautiful ex-wife and her friend were found awash in blood.

Simpson arrived about at the courthouse an hour before his scheduled Superior Court appearance, bringing him a step closer to what promises to be one of the most closely watched trials in American history.

Simpson has pleaded innocent to murdering his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson, 35, and her friend Ronald Goldman, 25. Their slashed and stabbed bodies were found outside Ms. Simpson's condominium June 13.

Today's arraignment, which is required when a defendant is ordered to stand trial, designates a judge for the trial and sets a date for the first pretrial hearing.

Simpson was already arraigned in Municipal Court for the preliminary hearing. Defendants ordered to stand trial after a preliminary hearing must be arraigned again in Superior Court.

Technically, an arraignment is the reading of charges against a defendant. But Simpson will likely waive the reading and enter a plea. The arraignment should be brief.

Looking for something to do this weekend? Don't forget the Old Mobeetie Bluegrass Festival!!!

Guilty plea entered for Lake Greenbelt assault case

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
 News Editor

MEMPHIS — A former Pampa man indicted in 1993 on charges of aggravated assault after a fight at Lake Greenbelt has pleaded guilty and been assessed 10 years probation and a $1,000 fine on the charge.

Brant Spencer, 18, Amarillo, pleaded guilty Wednesday in 100th District Court in Memphis before Judge John Forbus who also ordered him to pay $6,547.20 restitution.

Spencer was indicted in May, 1993 in Donley County for his part in a May 7, 1993 fracas at the lake in which an Amarillo man, Scott Purvine, suffered an eye injury and cracked skull.

The fight, which erupted near the bluffs on the west side of Greenbelt Lake, involved students from Pampa and Randall high schools, though other nonstudents were involved, officials reported. Escalating tensions of the evening, football rivalry and alcohol use contributed to the fray, said Judge David McCoy, former district attorney in Donley County.

Spencer also faces a misdemeanor assault charge in connection with the fight. His case set as number six on the

Aug. 19 docket call in Donley County.

Also indicted in connection with the melee were 19-year old Pampa twins Justin and Jason Johnson who are charged with aggravated assault.

Their cases are still pending, said district attorney Jim Shelton.

Justin Johnson was indicted in relation to his fight with Juan Martinez III of Amarillo and Jason Johnson was indicted in relation to his fight with Chad Johnson of Amarillo. They are free on bond.

A charge of aggravated assault carries a maximum penalty of two to 10 years in the Texas Department of Corrections and a $10,000 fine.

Oklahoma governor tries different court for tax challenge

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. David Walters is trying a different court in his bid to get a new income tax law affecting out-of-state workers declared unconstitutional.

Walters filed the lawsuit against the Oklahoma Tax Commission with the Oklahoma County District Court on Thursday, after the state Supreme Court refused jurisdiction on the lawsuit.

Walters claims this year's Senate Bill 1121 provides a "discriminatory and hostile income tax levy" on non-residents and part-time residents.

Legislators overrode Walters' veto of the bill this spring, and insisted the measure only made nonresidents who worked in Oklahoma pay income taxes at the same rates as residents.

Besides Walters, Dallas attorney Ken Feagins is a plaintiff in the lawsuit. Feagins earns income in Oklahoma and Texas.

'Reach for Space' appreciation

Hoechst Celanese Chemical Group's Pampa Facility has been presented with a plaque in appreciation for continued support of the Perryton High School "Reach for Space" project. Participating in the plaque presentation Thursday are, from left, Hoechst Celanese representatives James Frugé, Cranz Nichols and plant manager Jerry Moore; Perryton High School representatives Bobbette Doerrie and Jerome Doerrie; and Hoechst Celanese representative Russell Hollis. The "Reach for Space" project, with Bobbette Doerrie as project director and Jerome Doerrie as launch director, involves high school students with amateur radio operators to launch weather balloon payloads to the edge of space — 100,000 feet above ground. Hoechst Celanese has helped the project by giving helium and providing assistance with the launches, engineering advice, field trips and a computer. The computer will be used for the tracking program and a projected computer bulletin board. Celanese employees involved with the project include Nichols, Frugé, Hollis, Bill Chidester, Brad Kogler and others. The plaque awards Hoechst Celanese a certificate of appreciation "for outstanding service and contributions" to the school's "Reach for Space" project, signed by Joe Gibson, school superintendent, and project director Bobbette Doerrie. ## Bad weather delays landing of shuttle

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Rain off the Florida coast today kept Columbia and its menagerie of sea creatures and bugs in orbit an extra day and will make shuttle endurance champs out of seven astronauts. The offshore storms violated NASA flight rules by encroaching within 34 1/2 miles of Cape Canaveral, Fla., thwarting plans to touch down at the landing strip there. The crew was told to try again Saturday morning. "The good news is you are all 'go' for the new space shuttle flight duration record. The bad news is ... we're going to wave you off for the day," Mission Control's Charlie Precourt told the astronauts. The delay means Columbia will remain in orbit at least 18 hours longer than the previous shuttle endurance record of 14 days, 12 1/2 minutes, set by another crew aboard Columbia last year. Earlier, Precourt informed shuttle commander Robert Cabana that one of three navigational units was again exhibiting abnormal readings. The shuttle needs only one of the units to land, but NASA requires that it have two good backups. The shuttle was packed up and ready to land with its cargo of fruit flies, sea urchins, jellyfish, mating Medaka and newborn newts. Columbia was launched two weeks ago jam-packed with 82 experiments involving more than 200 scientists from around the world. Chief mission scientist Robert Snyder was the only researcher to end the mission empty-handed. His experiment in separating particles with an electrical field was thwarted by equipment problems. All the other scientists got results, although minor equipment trouble prevented a few from obtaining as much data as they had hoped. The shuttle carried four Japanese Medaka fish, six Japanese goldfish, 126 jellyfish, four newts, 11,200 baby sea urchins and 500 flies.

Biologists wanted to see how the animals developed and behaved in weightlessness to better understand humans' adaptation to space. The crowded passenger list seemed to grow by the day. The guppylike Medaka — two male and two female — mated and produced dozens of eggs, one of which was believed to have hatched. Japanese biologists said it was the first known mating and reproduction of a vertebrate in space. Most of 340 Medaka eggs stowed aboard Columbia before liftoff also hatched in orbit, as well as several dozen ground-laid newt eggs. Four female adult newts, two of which died during the voyage, laid scores of eggs in space. Other casualties included 88 newt eggs and a few fruit flies. Researchers will kill and dissect virtually all the animals in Earth laboratories. Columbia's crew included six Americans and heart surgeon Chiaki Mukai, the first Japanese woman in space.

Thompson in line to become A&M's chancellor

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M University regents are expected to select Barry Thompson, outgoing president of West Texas A&M, as chancellor of the system, according to a published report. The A&M regents today will name Thompson, 58, as the lone finalist for the post, the Houston Chronicle reported Thursday, citing sources. Sources said Thompson will receive a two-year appointment. Texas law requires posting the names of finalists for state agency heads three weeks before a selection is made. William Mobley announced in June he was resigning as chancellor of the A&M system effective Aug. 31.

Contacted by the Amarillo Globe-News on Tuesday about the appointment, Thompson said, "At this time, it's not appropriate for me to say anything, except that I cannot confirm or deny the rumor." Thompson was brought in at West Texas in 1991 to heal a university rocked by fiscal mismanagement and a faculty no-confidence vote against former president Ed Roach. In May, Thompson announced his retirement as president of West Texas effective Aug. 31. He was to rejoin the A&M system to help develop a Center for Leadership in Higher Education. Thompson, a Kermit native, was president of Tarleton State University in Stephenville — another A&M school — from 1982-90. Some at A&M noted that while national searches typically take nine months, naming Thompson now would give the system a chancellor well-versed in Texas politics when the Legislature opens in January. Thompson is considered to have good legislative contacts. Others mentioned Thompson's experience calming turbulent waters at West Texas. A&M's flagship university in College Station has been plagued by criminal investigations, alleged faculty misconduct and athletic scandals. West Texas colleagues praised Thompson for restoring integrity to the school, helping to erase a $2.2 million deficit.

Democrats offer revamped health care reform plan as voting nears in Congress

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying they had "listened to America," Democratic congressional leaders alerted President and Mrs. Clinton that they are drafting legislation that would slow implementation of the administration's health reform initiative and make other changes. There were no details, but Clinton adviser George Stephanopoulos said after the Thursday evening Oval Office meeting that the president was in agreement, "ready to go and ready to fight." Congress is pointing toward an August showdown on whether reform will provide health coverage for all Americans, and how expanded coverage would be financed. "Our plans will be less bureaucratic, more voluntary and will be phased in over a longer period of time," Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, told reporters after meeting with the president, Hillary Rodham Clinton and top White House aides. Accompanying Mitchell was House Speaker Thomas Foley and House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt. Said Foley, "We believe we are proposing legislation that can receive majority support in the House and Senate." None of the participants provided details of the changes, which are still in the drafting stage. Mitchell said, "We're going to suggest different approaches to achieve the same objectives" as Clinton outlined last fall. John Rother, director of legislation and policy for the American Association of Retired Persons, said he expects the leadership bills will take "a couple of years longer" to achieve universal coverage than the Jan. 1, 1998, deadline in Clinton's bill and three of the committee-passed plans. Rother said the leaders were distancing themselves from the president's original, unpopular plan. "There's a lot of public confusion that health reform equals the Clinton bill," he said. "They are trying to get the public to take a fresh look" at their own plans that will be "quite different." On the most controversial of provisions, Foley said the House will vote on a requirement for businesses to pay for some portion of insurance coverage for workers. Mitchell made no such pledge, but when asked whether the so-called employer mandate would be excluded in his bill, he said, "It should not sound that way because that's not the way it is." Clinton proposed employers pay 80 percent of the cost of insuring workers and their families. The House bill is likely to provide additional protection for small firms and give them more time to comply; in private meetings, Mitchell has broached the idea of employers paying 50 percent of the cost of insuring workers, but not their families, an approach that key moderate Democrats find more appealing. "We've listened to America; we've listened to Republicans as well as Democrats," Mitchell said. The change in course came as Mrs. Clinton was preparing to fly to Portland, Ore., today to join the "Health Security Express," a bus caravan designed to promote health reform. In the Capitol, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., arranged a hearing at which the chief executive of Pizza Hut, Allen Huston, was defending his company's policy of not paying for coverage for workers, even though it does so in Europe. Kennedy also asked the heads of McDonald's and Pepsico to appear, but it was uncertain whether they would comply. The businesses say the requirements imposed by Europeans contribute to "unemployment, stagnant economics and high tax rates." The Oval Office meeting marked a turning point in Congress' long-running health reform debate, and came near the end of a tumultuous week in which Clinton said coverage of about 95 percent of all Americans would meet his test of universal care. He has since said he was misunderstood, and he's holding fast to his call for everyone to be guaranteed coverage.

U.S., North Korea nuclear talks to resume

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The United States and North Korea will resume talks aimed at ending a 16-month nuclear standoff on the Korean peninsula on Aug. 5, the North announced today. The agreement on the Geneva talks, which were suspended after the death of North Korean President Kim Il Sung, was reached after discussions at the United Nations. In another sign of easing tensions, South Korea announced today it will lift an order that put its 650,000-member military on high alert because of Kim's death. Defense Ministry officials cited the absence of unusual troop movements in the North. South Korea had ordered the alert because it feared instability in the North after Kim's death. White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said on Thursday the date for resumed talks had not been set because the agreement still had to be confirmed by both governments. U.S. sources in Washington, speaking on condition of anonymity, said they were expected to resume in early August. North Korea's official news agency, through a Foreign Ministry statement, announced today the talks would be held Aug. 5. The date was agreed on during Thursday's low-level talks, the Korea Central News Agency said. North Korea denies it is developing nuclear weapons. But it has refused for 16 months to permit international inspections to verify its claims. In two days of talks with South Korean officials in Seoul, Assistant Secretary of State Robert Gallucci, the lead U.S. coordinator on North Korean policy, reaffirmed the need for Pyongyang to remove doubts about the nature of its nuclear agenda. Both sides agreed on improving ties with the Communist country if it proves that it has not been developing nuclear weapons. Gallucci arrived in Tokyo today on the second leg of regional consultations on North Korea's nuclear problems. After Japan, Gallucci is scheduled to travel to Beijing and Moscow to enlist their support for efforts to persuade North Korea to fully abide by international nuclear obligations. China, as the North's only remaining major ally, is believed to have some influence on the hard-line Pyongyang government. One key issue discussed at talks between Gallucci and South Korean officials was a North Korean demand for a modern light-water reactor to replace its outdated reactor that produces an excessive amount of plutonium, a key ingredient of atomic bombs. South Korean officials agreed in principle to accept the Northern demand in exchange for a Pyongyang promise to give up its alleged efforts to develop nuclear weapons. Before the Geneva talks were opened in early July, the United States sought international sanctions against the North. The push for sanctions was suspended after the North promised to freeze its nuclear program during "good-faith talks" with the United States.

Panel won't renew Rush Limbaugh's contract for juice

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Citrus Commission is dropping Rush Limbaugh as an orange juice pitchman, but denies it is because of criticism from women's and other civil rights groups. The decision not to renew the conservative talk show host's $1 million, six-month contract when it expires in mid-August had been in their marketing plan all along, commission member Rex McPherson said Thursday. That didn't keep the National Organization for Women from claiming a victory. NOW's boycott of Florida orange juice and its letter-writing campaign "sent a message that hate and intolerance will not be tolerated by thinking consumers," said Kim Gandy, NOW executive vice president. The 2.2 million-member National Education Association voted July 4 to boycott Florida orange juice if Limbaugh's contract was renewed. Members said Limbaugh denigrated teachers, minorities and women. Limbaugh representatives didn't return a telephone call late Thursday to his New York TV studio.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Tyler Morning Telegraph on small business and health care:
Many small businesses are up in arms over President Clinton's proposed health care plan, and they have a good reason to be so — survival.

Karen Kerrigan, president of Small Business Survival Committee, has issued a battle cry to the nation over the problems a national health program will do to small businesses.

She said, "President Clinton wants to change the way America does business. He envisions a compatible alliance between government and business, but the former calling all the shots. Business should cheerfully underwrite and support the big government programs of Mr. Clinton's agenda. Under the Clinton management program, tame and regulated companies are desirable. A dynamic environment including millions of independent small businesses threatens the program."

She said the 1993 tax hike, assorted heavy-handed government regulations that have become law, and now a costly employer mandate to pay for health care reform is only phase-one of the Clinton administration's "business plan" for the nation's job-producers and risk-takers.

Kerrigan said, "Mr. Clinton says he 'feels our pain' — his real strength, however, is inflicting it."

The Paris News on the meaning of sports:

A man accidentally kicks a soccer ball into his own team's net, inadvertently scoring a goal for the opposing team. Just days later, he is shot to death by a fan in retaliation for his error.

A team enters the final game of the professional hockey association's championship round, but loses the game and, subsequently, the title. Less than four hours later, violence erupts throughout the team's home city.

It seems violence continues to go hand-in-hand with sporting events, and the tragic death of Columbian soccer player Andres Escobar, as well as the brutality of events in Vancouver after the Stanley Cup Finals, should send a wake-up call to all those who place sports on a pedestal.

From youth sports all the way up to the big leagues, players, coaches and fans need to constantly keep sports in perspective. Sports, for its dramatics, is simply entertainment, for those who watch as well as for those who play.

It's just a game.

Victoria Advocate on C-SPAN:

C-SPAN, the most significant public service offered by the cable television industry, is threatened in many parts of the country.

Paid for by fees imposed on the cable companies, C-SPAN 1 and 2 carry live coverage of Senate and House committee hearings and floor debates, press conferences and speeches by major national figures and panel discussions on the top political issues of the day. ... It has a small but avid audience and performs a crucial service. Unfortunately, C-SPAN is being dropped by many cable systems across the country.

The shrinkage of C-SPAN's reach is just one of the unintended consequences of the 1992 ("must carry" cable) law, which was originally intended to curb an industry whose steep and frequent price increases were infuriating many constituents. Until corrective measures are taken, the only way C-SPAN will survive in many places is through intense pressure from cable customers themselves.

"Look, Dippy, nobody SAID living with your new identity under the Witness Protection Program would be a piece of cake!"

Coming up from witchcraft

It is hard to believe that the whole of justice-minded America stood by breathlessly wondering whether the judge in Los Angeles would actually throw out as admissible evidence the bloodied glove apparently belonging to the person who killed Nicole Simpson and her visitor. Commentary the night before by Fourth Amendment cultists crowded over what they anticipated as a victory. A victory for what, exactly?

"It is as simple as this," lawyer William Kunstler announced on the Larry King program in words to this effect. "Either you believe in the Fourth Amendment or you do not believe in the Fourth Amendment." Well, there are those who both believe in the Fourth Amendment and believe that the bloodied glove discarded near the murder site is licitly used as evidence against an accused. It is odd how inattentively commentators referred to the Fourth Amendment, which guarantees against "unreasonable searches and seizures."

The operative word surely is "unreasonable," and while the detectives who spotted the glove might be reproached for not routinely calling in to a judge to get a warrant to search, this would be on the order of upbraiding a combat soldier for forgetting to shine his shoes. To suggest they were violating a constitutional right is voodoo constitutionalism. When William Kunstler takes such a position, he should appear on television with war paint on his face and a ring through his nose designating him as a tribal believer in Fourth Amendment witchcraft.

No doubt someone will relieve Judge Kathleen Kennedy-Powell of the burden of giving a common sense ruling by quoting from a former chief justice of California. Roger Traynor wrote in 1955 (People v. Cahani):

William F. Buckley Jr.

"The rules of evidence are designed to enable the court to reach the truth and, in criminal cases, to secure a fair trial to those accused of crime. Evidence obtained by an illegal search and seizure is ordinarily just as true and reliable as evidence material to the issue before it: the guilt or innocence of the accused. How such evidence is obtained is immaterial to that issue. It should not be excluded unless strong considerations of public policy demand it."

What happened after 1955 is of course the evolution of the exclusionary rule, some of whose partisans wished to take it to such lengths as to eliminate consideration of the bloody glove. One observer of American judicial practice after the Warren court decisions remarked, "Only a system with limitless patience with irrationality could tolerate the fact that where there has been one wrong, the defendants', he will be punished, but where there have been two wrongs — the defendant's and the (police) officer's — both will go free."

The utter confusion engendered by some of the Warren court rulings is nicely portrayed in Coolidge v. New Hampshire (1971). Get this: The police, suspecting Coolidge of a brutal murder, went to interrogate his wife. Outside the house sat a car answering the description of the murderer's car. The police opened the door to take a look. They pulled out evidence of Coolidge's guilt. Everyone conceded, as they'd have done in the O.J. Simpson case, that if a magistrate had been there, he'd have issued a warrant to search the car.

Well, Coolidge was convicted. But then citing as inadmissible the evidence taken from the car, the higher court reversed. The plurality opinion of Justice Potter Stewart referred to the constitutional provision on the subject as an "uncertain mandate." The Warren court had overruled itself 27 times in its own decisions on search and seizure. In Coolidge, a dissenting opinion by Justice Byron White criticized the plurality opinion not merely as "unexplained," but as "inexplicable."

Justice Stewart described Justice White's opinion, in turn, as "nonsense." Separate opinions by Justices Hugo Black and John Marshall Harlan disagreed with the fundamental rationale of the plurality opinion, Justice Harlan noting that the law on search and seizure needed an "overhauling."

It is into that degree of confusion that the defense lawyers sought to sink Judge Kennedy-Powell. She resisted by using everyday language based on common experience, common reflexes. The notion that the two detectives were stormtrooping their way into the private residence of O.J. Simpson is insanely inappropriate under the circumstances. The planted axiom of the defense is that any search is "unreasonable" if a warrant hasn't been issued authorizing the search.

To give such sacramental meaning to a magistrate's warrant is, once again, to engage in legal sophistry. Anyone who thinks O.J. Simpson is not getting a fair hearing is out of this world.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, July 22, the 203rd day of 1994. There are 162 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Twenty-five years ago, on July 22, 1969, Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin and Michael Collins, safely reunited aboard the command module, blasted out of lunar orbit for the start of their journey home after the first manned mission to the surface of the moon.

On this date:

In 1916, a bomb went off during a Preparedness Day parade in San Francisco, killing ten people.

In 1933, American aviator Wiley Post completed the first solo flight around the world in seven days, 18 3/4 hours.

In 1934, a man identified as bank robber John Dillinger was shot to death by federal agents outside Chicago's Biograph Theater.

In 1942, gasoline rationing involving the use of coupons began along the Atlantic seaboard.

What kind of crisis do we have?

By now, I'm sure you've heard of the $10 Tylenol. You're home from the hospital. Your progress is good.

Then, you open your bill. The inflated costs of medical care are no secret. In an unstoppable progression, they've swirled out of control. A family of four would have a bargain if they paid as little as $500 per month for insurance.

No wonder Americans are in a tizzy. No wonder Candidate Clinton jumped on the problem when President Bush failed to address it.

But does the blame rest with our "greedy" health-care industry, or does the blame reside somewhere else?

In 1993, Northwestern Memorial Hospital in Chicago provided $42.8 million of uncompensated care. That's nearly $120,000 per day in charity care, bad debts and costs exceeding Medicare and Medicaid.

It's hard to run a business when your customers don't pay.

Let's take a hypothetical situation: Suppose 17-year-old gang member Darryl Washington is selling marijuana on the street corner near his housing project when a car full of rival gang members races up. Shots ring out, the car speeds off, and young Mr. Washington is left face down in a puddle of blood.

For fear of being implicated in the crime, bystanders gather at a distance as police and ambulance arrive at the scene. The paramedics load him onto a stretcher and rush to the hospital.

Paul Harvey

The wound is bad. Sophisticated machines, tubes, nurses, surgeons, technicians — there are hours of touch and go.

At last, the boy responds, but he is paralyzed. Although this particular situation is fictitious, real-life scenarios like this happen several times a day in cities throughout our nation. Young teens are shooting each other over territory or colors or dope. The costs to the hospitals are astronomical.

According to Northwestern, the average gang-related shooting costs a hospital more than $30,000. If there's a complication, like paralysis, it's more.

In the Darryl Washington scenario, Northwestern would have sent him next door to the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago for therapy. Only after six more weeks of medical attention and bills totaling $50,000 would he then be released.

Eighty thousand dollars for a kid who was illegally selling drugs on a street corner. But according to Ann Love Grove, director of Medical Services at Rehab Management, that's only the beginning. Continued outpatient care — including therapy, equipment needs and assisted living — would amount to $1.5 MILLION dollars over the next 50 years.

That's just if he doesn't come back with a new wound.

Dr. Stephen Adams, medical director of the emergency department at Northwestern, says, "It is not uncommon to see prior gunshot and stabbing victims return to the hospital with similar wounds within a year."

Who pays for this?

You. In the form of Medicaid and $10 Tylenol, the average tax-paying, insurance-carrying American picks up the bill.

Hospital administration calls it "cost-shifting." You might call it "sneaky dealing." But if the hospitals are to remain in business to serve the rest of us, they have to make up their loss.

So what kind of crisis do we really have? A health-care crisis — or something worse?

Danger of foreign policy distraction

WASHINGTON — At the outset, President Clinton said that without a disciplined, focused foreign policy, overseas problems would swarm in and divert him from the home-front issues he wants to handle.

Now there's a gathering swarm, Haiti to Bosnia to North Korea.

Republicans say foreign policy is a growing concern among the voters. An undertone of Democratic misgivings echoes the claim. Never high, poll ratings of Clinton's performance in that field are sagging.

He's being accused of indecision while the Senate Republican leader says he's saber-rattling on Haiti with talk of an invasion to oust defiant military bosses there.

Clinton thanked the incoming president of Panama on Wednesday for agreeing, guardedly, to shelter Haitian refugees — a reminder of the embarrassing rebuff in which the current president reneged on a deal to do it. Clinton is trying to force change in Haiti through economic sanctions, while reserving the option of invasion.

There's been a funeral pause in the high-tension diplomacy over suspected nuclear weapons development by North Korea since the death of Kim Il Sung on July 8. It is about to end.

The United States and four other nations sponsoring a Bosnia peace plan are to confer later this month on what to do if the Serbs reject it. One option would be to end an arms embargo that has prevented weapons aid to the Bosnian Muslims. Clinton favors doing so, but not unilaterally.

Either way, Defense Secretary William Perry, traveling in the region, said the U.S. military role is likely to increase as NATO tries to protect besieged Muslims in an intensified war, or as American troops are sent to help guarantee a peace accord.

Walter Mears
AP Special Correspondent

Clinton has said he'd send up to 25,000, but only after the warring sides agreed on a settlement, and with a clear expression of support in Congress.

The administration has opposed Republican-led attempts to have Congress require that he get approval for any invasion of Haiti. Clinton has said that option remains open in the effort to return the deposed, elected president, Jean-Bertrand Aristide, to power there.

But the skeptics say that in neither situation has the administration made a case to the American people that the national interest warrants the possible use of U.S. troops. It took some doing to make that case when Republican presidents ordered invasions in Grenada, Panama and Iraq, but the debates were overtaken by the outcomes — quick, successful, with relatively few casualties.

The more recent memory is Somalia, the humanitarian mission George Bush began and Clinton continued but allowed to be changed to an active effort to quell warring factions. After 18 Americans were killed in a street battle, Congress demanded withdrawal of the rest, relenting when Clinton agreed to get them out early this year.

U.S. policy in the disastrous strife in Rwanda has been no model of clarity. Clinton accused the government there of "genocidal massacre" of its rivals, and ordered its diplomats off U.S. soil — but only on Friday, after three months of savage conflict, with rebel forces about to win. The Pentagon has been sending humanitarian aid; Clinton just ordered an additional $19 million installment.

Before he took office, Clinton said he wanted to concentrate on domestic matters but would not neglect foreign policy. "We can either focus on these problems, come up with a decent policy and aggressively pursue it... or we can ignore it for a while, wait for it to explode, then the problems will swarm on us, and I might have to spend all my time on foreign policy," he said.

He has argued since that the administration is on course and defended his foreign policy team while changing management at the Pentagon and in the No. 2 slot at the State Department. And adviser David Gergen has just moved to the State Department in an effort to promote Clinton policy.

It's a vulnerable area. A Gallup poll for CNN and USA Today shows 33 percent approval of the way the president is handling foreign policy. That's down from 54 percent in January.

A half-dozen Republican senators said they are hearing increasingly about foreign policy as an issue when they talk to voters at home. Sen. Alan Simpson of Wyoming said people are talking about it as an embarrassment.

"Good foreign policy is good domestic policy," he said, "and this president is learning that the hard way."

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In a world where many marriages no longer last a lifetime and divorce is common, a few words of advice may help prevent much heartache for those we love the most.

Parents who have remarried and have adult children would be doing their children a kindness if:

1. they have written plans for their funeral, and have made provisions for its costs.
2. They have discussed in advance the passing on of heirlooms, pictures, etc. Parents might want to consider having copies made of family photos for all the children. It is wise to go through the household and make written instructions stating who should have what.
3. Parents took the time to write a family and/or personal history for their children and grandchildren.

Copies of all of the above should be given to the current spouse, the children and a lawyer. This will protect both the spouse and the children.

Abby, we don't like to think about death or look at the negative possibilities that can result from it, but thinking ahead can prevent untold difficulties. I know! My father lies in an unmarked grave because his fourth (and last) wife refused to pay for the $6,000 funeral that she had arranged. My father's children and his sister were asked to leave the memorial service early, so "the family" could be alone with the deceased.

By the way, until that time, our relationship with my father and all of his wives was fairly civil. After the funeral, his last wife purchased a new Cadillac, sold his house, and took everything to another state, leaving no forwarding address.

LIVE AND LEARN.

DEAR LIVE AND LEARN: Your letter provides one of the strongest arguments in favor of prenuptial agreements that I have ever seen. It is a wake-up call for anyone who has been previously married and is contemplating remarriage. Before tying the knot, see a lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: We have a lovely home, and our garden is protected by a high thorny fence that has not prevented invasion of our privacy by literally hundreds of helicopter flights. Many swoop at rooftop-level within a few feet of our pool.

Helicopters are constantly flying over our residential areas and beaches as though they own all the airspace above the earth. The roar of their rotors is deafening! Low-flying helicopters have destroyed our quality of life, not to mention our freedom to backstroke au naturel in our own pool.

I suppose there is nothing you can do about this, but I just had to let off some steam.

NO PRIVACY IN PALOS VERDES, CALIF.

DEAR NO PRIVACY: Not all helicopter pilots flying overhead are out for joyrides. Some are surveying the area in pursuit of someone who is evading the law.

Helicopter pilots have located lost hikers and rescued accident victims to transport them to hospitals.

Newsmakers

Paul Loyd, son of Paul and Judith Loyd of Pampa enlisted in the United States Air Force this month according to SSgt Patrick Bell, Air Force recruiter.

Upon completing the Air Force's six-week basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, near San Antonio, he is scheduled to receive technical training in the mechanical career field.

Cal Ferguson, Pampa, has been named an All-American Scholar by the United States Achievement Academy. He is the son of Becky Epps and Al Ferguson. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Myrel Looper, and Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Gooch, all of Pampa, and the late A.C. Ferguson, Sr.

Ferguson, who attended Pampa Middle School, was nominated for this award by his teacher Sonja Dreher.

The All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3 or better grade point average. Only Scholars selected by a school instructor, counselor, or other qualified sponsor are accepted.

Ferguson's name will appear in the All-American Scholar Directory which is published nationally.

Free car wash

Bob Marx and Katie Cree, Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Pampa board of directors, and Marilyn Brown, executive director of the program, handle items that will be used in the car wash which is planned for Saturday in the Wal-Mart parking lot from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. The car wash is free but donations will be accepted. ## Celebrating 100 years with new ideas

By J. MICHAEL PARKER
San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO — Like the proverbial acorn that became a mighty oak tree, a summer Bible class that opened for 37 Illinois children a century ago has blossomed into a summer tradition embracing millions of youngsters.

This summer, churches throughout the nation are celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Vacation Bible School movement.

Emily McMenamin, a 6-year-old member of Leslie Boriack's class at King of Kings Lutheran Church in San Antonio, said she looks forward to the class each year.

"We get to do art projects and learn about Jesus. We're learning about how he healed 10 lepers but only one came back to thank him."

"The most fun thing about it is the music," she declared.

Classmate Lucas Mitchell agreed, saying: "It's a good way to learn about God, and it's fun."

In 1894, Mattie Miles, a Methodist preacher's wife in Hopedale, Ill., opened what's believed to be the first Vacation Bible School.

With the help of teen-age volunteers, she used music, crafts, storytelling, contests and games to illustrate scriptural teachings traditionally learned by listening to sermons and Sunday lectures.

Her idea spread to more than 100 religious denominations; and today, millions of American children attend Vacation Bible School in thousands of churches across the nation.

Although the movement's a century old, this year there's a new twist: Many schools are attracting adults as well as children.

Terry Schoenert, program director of St. John's United Methodist Church in San Antonio, said staff members proposed adding an adult class last year and it was a big hit.

"About 20 people signed up, which is a good response in a church our size for a first-time night class. This year, we have about the same number," she said.

"At night, adults and children are together, so parents don't use Bible school as a baby-sitting thing. We have a meal beforehand, and everybody's together at the beginning of the class and again at the end," she said.

Schoenert said Vacation Bible Schools are just as necessary today as they were a century ago.

"They bring the Bible stories alive. Students act out the stories, so they learn the stories better. They also have a lot of fun."

"We've had a lot of grandparents bringing their grandchildren. Many families don't make church and Sunday school a high priority, so VBS may be the only Bible study some children get," Schoenert said.

For today's TV-oriented younger generation, videos have become part of the Vacation Bible School scene.

"Many churches change classrooms into marketplaces of Jesus' time and let the kids earn and spend money. They can dress up in Biblical costumes and do the things children of that time might have done."

"A couple of years ago, we studied Jewish tradition, holidays, foods and things like that. We learned a lot not only about the differences between Christianity and Judaism but about what we've received from Judaism," Schoenert said.

Sherri Diggs recently obtained the keys to a new 1994 red Grand AM that Mary Kay Cosmetics leased for her from Culberson Stowers car dealership. Diggs, who has been with Mary Kay for three years, was able to recruit 12 people for Mary Kay and maintain a $4,000 commission for four months. She has to maintain the $4,000 commission to keep the car. (Pampa News photo by Darlene Holmes)

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

GIFT GIVING IN BIBLICAL TIMES
IN THE BIBLE, GIFTS HAVE BEEN GIVEN FOR COUNTLESS REASONS. BY FATHERS TO SONS, AS A DOWRY TO A DAUGHTER ON HER MARRIAGE, BY THE BRIDEGROOM TO THE FATHER OF THE BRIDE, TO FELLOW MEN OUT OF GOOD WILL OR TO SECURE A FAVOR. AS A CASE IN POINT, TAKE THE EXAMPLE OF JACOB'S GIFTS TO HIS BROTHER ESAU. JACOB, AFTER YEARS OF SEPARATION FROM HIS BROTHER, WAS FACED WITH THE GRIM FACT HE MUST MEET: ESAU WHOM HE HAD WRONGED IN THE PAST. AS A GIFT OF REPENTANCE HERE IS WHAT JACOB GAVE: "TWO HUNDRED SHE-GOATS, AND TWENTY HE-GOATS, TWO HUNDRED EWES, AND TWENTY RAMS, THIRTY MILCH CAMELS WITH THEIR COLTS, FORTY KINE, AND TEN BULLS, TWENTY SHE-ASSES, AND TEN FOALS." THAT'S SAYING YOU ARE SORRY IN A BIG WAY! THE GIFTS REQUIRED TO BARTER FOR A WIFE WERE ALSO VERY IMPORTANT WHEN ONE REALIZES THAT THE CONCERNED FATHER OF THE BRIDEGROOM HAD TO ARRANGE FOR THEM TO BE TRANSPORTED.....

...STURDY CAMELS ARE LOADED WITH FOOD, WATER, WINE, GARMENTS, AND RICH GIFTS OF SILKS AND FINE WOOLS - NOT TO MENTION SHEKELS OF GOLD AND TALENTS OF SILVER. FOR OBTAINING A WIFE IS A VERY COSTLY AFFAIR, AND SERIOUS, AS LONG JOURNEYS THROUGH THE WILD COUNTRY OF THESE ANCIENT TIMES ARE FILLED WITH MANY DANGERS AND HARDSHIPS!

San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO — Like the proverbial acorn that became a mighty oak tree, a summer Bible class that opened for 37 Illinois children a century ago has blossomed into a summer tradition embracing millions of youngsters.

This summer, churches throughout the nation are celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Vacation Bible School movement.

Emily McMenamin, a 6-year-old member of Leslie Boriack's class at King of Kings Lutheran Church in San Antonio, said she looks forward to the class each year.

"We get to do art projects and learn about Jesus. We're learning about how he healed 10 lepers but only one came back to thank him."

"The most fun thing about it is the music," she declared.

Classmate Lucas Mitchell agreed, saying: "It's a good way to learn about God, and it's fun."

In 1894, Mattie Miles, a Methodist preacher's wife in Hopedale, Ill., opened what's believed to be the first Vacation Bible School in a red brick public schoolhouse and an adjacent park.

With the help of teen-age volunteers, she used music, crafts, storytelling, contests and games to illustrate scriptural teachings traditionally learned by listening to sermons and Sunday lectures.

Her idea spread to more than 100 religious denominations; and today, millions of American children attend Vacation Bible School in thousands of churches across the nation.

Although the movement's a century old, this year there's a new twist: Many schools are attracting adults as well as children.

Terry Schoenert, program director of St. John's United Methodist Church in San Antonio, said staff members proposed adding an adult class last year and it was a big hit.

"About 20 people signed up, which is a good response in a church our size for a first-time night class. This year, we have about the same number," she said.

"We had it during the daytime for many, many years, but the only adult participants were the teachers," Schoenert said.

"At night, adults and children are together, so parents don't use Bible school as a baby-sitting thing. We have a meal beforehand, and everybody's together at the beginning of the class and again at the end," she said.

Schoenert said Vacation Bible Schools are just as necessary today as they were a century ago.

"They bring the Bible stories alive. Students act out the stories, so they learn the stories better. They also have a lot of fun.

"It's very different from Sunday school more active. They get to play more and interact rather than just sit there listening," Schoenert said.

And that's not all, she added. "We've had a lot of grandparents bringing their grandchildren. Many families don't make church and Sunday school a high priority, so VBS may be the only Bible study some children get," Schoenert said.

For today's TV-oriented younger generation, videos have become part of the Vacation Bible School scene.

"They're involved in a big way, as are cassette tapes. They make Bible school more inviting than ever before," Schoenert said.

But active participation still is the key to success.

"Many churches change classrooms into marketplaces of Jesus' time and let the kids earn and spend money. They can dress up in Biblical costumes and do the things children of that time might have done.

"A couple of years ago, we studied Jewish tradition, holidays, foods and things like that. We learned a lot not only about the differences between Christianity and Judaism but about what we've received from Judaism," Schoenert said.

Religion briefs

CHESNEE, S.C. (AP) — The City Council has passed a revised noise ordinance that has upset some street preachers who say the new rule is aimed at quieting them down.

The ordinance limits public disturbances and noise-making but does not specifically mention preaching.

Chesnee police, however, say they will warn the preachers to watch the volume of their sermons.

"The last resort would be to put a preacher in jail," Lt. Jack Wiggins said. "We'll warn them and warn them and warn them."

For the past two years, members of at least two Chesnee churches have spent Sunday afternoons preaching to teen-agers cruising the town. They have stepped up their efforts in the past several weeks.

The Rev. Charles Hyatt criticized the revised ordinance.

"I think it's another blow to Christianity," said Hyatt, pastor of the Metropolitan Baptist Church. "They're trying to block the church from doing what it's supposed to do."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Roman Catholic Archdiocese has invited gubernatorial candidates Gov. Pete Wilson and Democrat Kathleen Brown to debate in a forum proposed by Cardinal Roger Mahony.

"I'm not aware of anytime before that the Catholic Church did this," said the Rev. Gregory Coiro, a spokesman for the archdiocese. "But Cardinal Mahony felt there are some very important issues this year."

One issue that the church is especially interested in is immigration and health and welfare reform. Both Wilson and Brown have run television ads touting their tough stance on illegal immigration.

The archdiocese has yet to receive a response from either candidate to the invitation, which was issued last week.

The two dates suggested were Aug. 30 and Aug. 31.

Aides to Brown and Wilson said that more than 50 requests from various groups have been received. All will be reviewed when the two sides meet to negotiate on debates.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Fewer than half of the Ohioans interviewed for a statewide survey said they had attended a church or synagogue within the previous week, the Ohio Poll reported.

Still, 59 percent of those surveyed said religion was important in their daily lives, 28 percent said it was "somewhat important" and 13 percent said it was not important, the poll said Monday.

Forty percent said they had attended a church or synagogue within the previous week, while 60 percent said they had not.

The religious preferences of the Ohioans are similar to those of the nation, the poll reported. Fifty-five percent of those questioned said they are Protestants, 28 percent said they are Roman Catholics, 8 percent said they preferred some other religion and 9 percent said they have no religion.

The University of Cincinnati's Institute for Policy Research conducted the telephone poll May 18-28 with 794 randomly selected adults. The university and The Cincinnati Post sponsored the poll.

The poll's margin of error was 3.5 percentage points.

The Collegians of Southern Nazarene University Church of the Nazarene to host university choir

The Collegians quartet of Southern Nazarene University, Bethany, Okla., will appear at Church of the Nazarene, 500 N. West, at 10:45 a.m. Sunday.

The Collegians serve as student admissions counselors for Southern Nazarene University. They travel a four-state region of Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas, appearing in church services, summer youth camps, civic organization functions and on-campus activities. Some of their activity includes bringing special music, providing devotionals, sharing information about the university and providing entertainment for church youth activities.

Members of the Collegians are second tenor Mike Cotton of Houston; accompanist Brent Hofen of Alva, Okla.; bass Joey Marsh of Poteau, Okla.; baritone Chris Tims of Houston; and first tenor Jason Worthington of Evans, Ga.

Southern Nazarene is a fully accredited, four year liberal arts university with graduate level programs. It is located in Bethany, Okla. Founded in 1899, it is under the leadership of Dr. Loren Gresham. The school offers concentrations and majors in over 50 undergraduate areas and masters in business, education, counseling, ministry and religion.

Church budget woes impact ministries to handicapped

By DAVID BRIGGS
Associated Press Writer

No one in Ginny Thornburgh's church ever asked why she left her third son at home during Sunday worship. They didn't ask about the mentally retarded boy, and she assumed he would be unwelcome.

But just how little her church cared about her disabled child became clear when Thornburgh's fourth child was born. This baby was not handicapped, and her fellow congregants told her all about the nursery and implored her to bring the child.

"That's when it hit me, and I've never rested since," she said.

Thornburgh, wife of former Attorney General Richard Thornburgh, is now the director of the religion and disability program of the Washington, D.C.-based National Organization on Disability. Her son, Peter, goes to a church where he assists the minister at worship.

But such gains may soon be in danger of slipping away as several denominations cut back on disability ministries due to budget woes.

In the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, the disability ministry office has been cut back from full-time to part-time and in 1995, it will be eliminated. The Episcopal Church has already done away with a disability ministry office at its New York headquarters.

And in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), a half-time position was eliminated and the job given to another staff member who is able to devote less than a tenth of his time to disability ministry.

Disability programs are suffering the same painful cutbacks as other ministries as giving to national church offices in many large Protestant denominations has dropped, some church officials say.

"I disagree with the notion it was an easy cut," said Dennis Busse of the Lutheran Office for Disability Ministries.

Others say the severity of the cutbacks indicate handicapped ministries took a disproportionate but not unexpected hit.

"The church has a continual record of failing to recognize people with disabilities," said Mark Wendorf, executive director of the Presbyterian Health, Education and Welfare Association.

What concerns advocates for the disabled is the very thing they have been fighting for — increased visibility and recognition of the disabled — will be undermined as national church bodies do away with offices that forced denominations to be sensitive to such ministries.

"Until a person experiences a disability themselves or has a family member with a disability, it's far from their consciousness," says Alonna Gautsche Sprunger, consultant to the Committee on Disabilities of the National Council of Churches.

One day, churches may on their own become accessible to the disabled.

"That's our goal, but there's a lot of concern we're not at that point yet, and ... there are a lot of people being lost on the way," said Sprunger.

FLASHBACK
July, 1970: Dick Kastein of Pampa had the first hole-in-one in the history of Sunset Hill Golf Club in Waupun, Wisconsin. He got the ace on the 170-yard, par 3, No. 4 hole.

MULTI-PURPOSE FACILITY
PAMPA — The hamburger fry and dance to help raise funds for the Pampa High School multi-purpose facility is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Aug. 6 in the parking lot behind the westside stands at Harvester Stadium. Preliminary plans call for the building to be situated between the current athletic offices and the football stadium. The building will be used for athletic programs as well as other school and community-related events.

PHYSICAL EXAMS
PAMPA — Physical examinations for incoming Pampa 7th graders and 9th graders who will be involved in athletics the next school year will be given by Dr. Keith Black. These athletes can receive the physicals by making an appointment with Dr. Black. Physicals for the incoming 7th and 9th grade athletes will also be given Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 10 a.m. at Coronado Hospital. There is no charge, but the physicals will be administered to athletes only.

SOFTBALL
HEREFORD — The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a softball tournament Aug. 12, 13, 14, in conjunction with the Hereford Jubilee. The tournament is for Class D teams only. Entry fee is $125 and entry deadline is Aug. 10. A home run hitting contest is also planned. For more information, phone Mark Andrews at 364-7792 or Eddie Morton at 364-8386.

BOXING
NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing promoter Don King packed 'em in to hear his plea of innocent to wire fraud charges Thursday in U.S. District Court. "I bet he hopes he has this many people in Bismarck," a boxing writer joked. King is promoting a triple championship card Saturday in the North Dakota city. "Not guilty," King proclaimed loudly at an arraignment before Magistrate Nina Gershon, who set bail at $250,000. King signed a personal recognizance bond. The plea made, more than half the people jammed into courtroom 318 left. Those remaining were involved in other arraignments. "I'm completely innocent," King said of his most recent encounter with the federal government in a career marked by investigations and litigation. "I believe in the American system of justice and I will be cleared," King said outside the courtroom. "I've done nothing to warrant this action." Sarah Chapman, the prosecutor, said she could not comment beyond what was contained in the indictment.

FOOTBALL
AUSTIN (AP) — Rodney Peete is second-string and happy. Peete is a backup to Troy Aikman and without prospect of starting unless injuries knock the Dallas Cowboys All-Pro quarterback out of the lineup. "It's a different role, but there comes a time when you have to face reality and I had to do that," Peete said. "Reality" to Peete was Detroit. He was the starting quarterback for the Lions last year before he was injured in the third game and his performance suffered. In the last four games of the season, Peete was the designated third starter for the Lions. Peete started 47 games for the Lions and passed for over 1,000 yards in each of his five seasons. He is a 57 percent passer in the NFL with 38 touchdown passes to 57 interceptions.

ALL-STAR GAMES
HOUSTON — The 1994 McDonald's All-Star High School Football and Basketball Games will be held in July with 94 of Texas' premier schoolboys scheduled to participate. The basketball game will be held July 25, starting at 7:30 p.m. in Hofheinz Pavilion. The football game will be held July 26, starting at 7 p.m. in The Astrodome. The all-star games are being held in conjunction with the Texas High School Coaches Association's annual clinic in Houston. Head coaches for the all-star basketball game will be Mike Wacker, Converse Judson, for the South team, and Dan Hamrick, Canyon, for the North team. Head coaches for the all-star football game will be Scott Phillips, Waxahachie, for the South, and Art Briles, Stephenville, for the North. For more information, call 713-546-2230.

Pampa Bambino teams win West Texas State titles

PLAINVIEW — Clutch pitching and timely hitting propelled the Pampa 11-12 year-old Bambino All-Stars to the West Texas Major Bambino State Championship Thursday with a 5-3 win over the Plainview Blue All-Stars. Pampa and Plainview Blue traded runs in the first two innings. In the top of the first, Tommy Lozano walked for Pampa and was forced at second by Casey Owens. Owens advanced to second and third on wild pitches and scored on a passed ball for a 1-0 Pampa lead. Plainview came back in the bottom of the first to tie the score on a home run to the left field fence by Ruben Castillo. Jesse Francis opened the second inning for Pampa with a walk. He trotted home when Cody Shepard unloaded a home run to deep right centerfield for a 3-1 Pampa lead. Shepard is the sixth Pampa player to hit a home run in the state tournament. Musquiz walked to open the Plainview Blue in the second inning and scored moments later on a home run to left by Sergio Zuniga, which tied the score at 3-3. Plainview seemed to gain some momentum when Pampa left runners stranded at second and third in their half of the third inning. However, Francis came on in relief of Lozano and struck out the side in the bottom of the third to regain the confidence factor for the Pampa team. Pampa slipped ahead in the fourth inning. Shepard drew a walk and went all the way to third on a single by Lozano when the left fielder let the ball get through. One out later, Trey Rogers walked to load the bases. Jonathan Waggoner hit a high hopper which third baseman Jacob Jones snared and made a great tag on a diving Lozano, but Shepard scored on the play. Francis got the lead-off batter to fly to Owens in right field and then walked a batter in the bottom of the fourth. He settled down to strike out the next two batters. The West Texas State champions added an insurance run in the fifth inning. Kaleb Snelgrooves walked and went to third on two wild pitches. He scored on a single by Owens. Francis struck out the side in the bottom of the fifth. Pampa went out in order in the sixth to set the stage for clutch pitching by a tiring Francis. Francis struck out the first batter and hit Castillo, who had previously homered, with a pitch on a 3-2 count. Struggling for control, he walked the third batter. He slipped a called strike by the next hitter, but walked Zuniga, Plainview's other home run hitter for the evening. With the bases loaded, the tying run at second and the winning run at first, Francis fanned the next hitter on three pitches to sew up the championship for the Pampa All-Stars. Francis picked up the win for Pampa, pitching four sterling innings of relief in which he gave up no runs, no hits and struck out 11. He walked three and hit one batter. Plainview scored all its runs off starter Tommy Lozano, who allowed only three baserunners on two hits and one walk, but all three scored. Lozano struck out one. Jon Musquiz pitched with great heart for Plainview Blue, allowing five runs on only three hits during the five innings he pitched. Musquiz walked 12 and struck out eight. Luis Rogers came on in the top of the sixth for Plainview Blue and allowed no runs and no hits. Snelgrooves at shortstop and Russell

Robben at second base turned two hard-hit groundball each into seemingly easy outs in the first two innings by throwing to a stretching Shepard at first for Pampa's defensive plays of the game. Castillo turned a ground ball into a shortstop to first double play for Plainview's defensive gem. The Pampa All-Stars will travel to Springdale, Ark. next week for the 1994 Southwest Regional Bambino Tournament. They will compete against the state champions from Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and other regions of Texas. The winner in Springdale will be one of eight Major Bambino teams to play in the Bambino World Series next month. Pampa American League 9-10 year-old All-Stars captured the state championship for the West Texas area Thursday night, pounding the Tulia All-Stars, 20-3, at Optimist Park. Pampa now advances to the Southwest Regional Tournament, which will be held at Pampa's Optimist Park beginning July 29. Pampa American won the state tournament by pounding out 14 hits and rode the effective pitching of Luis Gonzalez and Randy Tice, who combined for a no-hitter. Gonzales walked five, had five strikeouts in his two innings. Tice gave up no walks and struck out six in his two innings. The game was called after four innings due to the 10-run rule. Pampa started the game off by scoring four runs in the top of the first. Tice led off with a single, followed by singles by Michael Galloway, Matt Driscoll and Max Simon. Tulia came back, scoring two runs in the bottom of the first to cut the lead to two runs. The locals blew the game open in the top of the second. Chase Babcock led off with a single, Ryan Nash hit a triple, Tice got on by an error on the shortstop, Nathaniel Hill, Galloway, Driscoll and Kyle Francis singled, driving in two more runs. Seven runs scored, making it 11-2. The fourth inning was highlighted with a two-run double by Adam Rogers and a single by Dane Ward as the Americans scored nine more runs, making the final score, 20-3. Pampa was led in hitting by Driscoll, who was three for three with four RBI. Tice and Galloway each had two hits.

724 series

Carrie Duroy bowled a 724 last week, the highest series ever bowled by a Pampa woman. Mrs. Duroy's high game was a 297, which included 11 strikes in a row. Her previous high series was a 656, bowled about a year ago. (Pampa News photo)

Alfredsson fires record 63 at United States Women's Open

LAKE ORION, Mich. (AP) — Who could blame Helen Alfredsson if she just stayed away from work? There was almost no way she could duplicate the job she turned in the previous day. The native of Sweden shattered the U.S. Women's Open record by 2 strokes Thursday with an 8-under-par 63 in the opening round on the Old Course at Indianwood Golf and Country Club. "I have no idea what I might shoot in the second round," Alfredsson said. "That's my moodiness coming out. We'll go out and see how it goes." For one day, at least, it went very, very well. The 63 matches the lowest round in a major championship by any golfer, male or female. The only woman to reach that figure was Patty Sheehan at the 1984 LPGA Championship at King's Island, Ohio. It has been accomplished 10 times in majors by men, the last by Vijay Singh in last year's PGA at Inverness. "I'm not aware of all the history," Alfredsson said. "I know that Johnny Miller shot 8-under at Oakmont (in 1973). I think it's unbelievable that he did that." Alfredsson, whose only victory since joining the LPGA Tour in 1991 was the 1993 Dinah Shore, played a bogey-free 18 holes over the 6,244-yard Old Course. Her near-perfect performance gave Alfredsson a 3-stroke lead over Sheehan, Tammie Green, Judy Dickinson and amateur Carol Semple Thompson. Dale Eggeling, Sally Little and Donna Andrews were at 67. Alfredsson, with a pair of high-tech sunglasses sometimes resting on the bill of her black-and-white cap, broke the record of 65 shared by three others — Little, Ayako Okamoto and Dickinson. Okamoto's 65 also came at Indianwood, during the final round of the 1989 Open. Alfredsson had few close calls. She saved par with a 4-foot putt at the eighth hole and got down in 2 from 25 feet for par at 18 to seal her place in golf history. "I wasn't really thinking about each shot needing to be perfect," Alfredsson said. "A lot of times when you do that, you actually keep making some birdies." "It wasn't that hard. That's how you feel. You wonder, 'Why can't I do this every day?'" Other days you think you'll never shoot 8-under in your life." Alfredsson set the Open 54-hole record last year at 207, only to finish second to Lauri Merten at Crooked Stick by one shot. Alfredsson's best finish this year was a tie for fifth at the Atlanta Women's Classic, and she has earned $115,082 so far this season. "That's golf, you know?" Alfredsson said. "You never know. That's how golf functions sometimes." The low first-round scores were made possible, in part, by a heavy overnight rain that softened the course. When Betsy King won the Open on this course in 1989, her four-round total was just 6-under. The forecast for today was for more rain. "The course is nice right now," Alfredsson said. "It's almost like walking on a carpet." Thompson's round of 32-34 included an eagle 2 on 16. She called it the worst shot she hit all day. "I was 172 yards out, and I skulled a 5-iron," Thompson said. "But I stood there and watched as it went right in the hole. I mean, it was ridiculous." But Thompson is no fluke. This is the 25th time she has qualified for the Open.

Munchak retires

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — It was a training camp arrival like no other for guard Mike Munchak. Munchak showed up wearing a suit with his wife and two daughters to announce that after 12 years, nine knee surgeries and nine Pro Bowl elections, it was time to retire. At 34, Munchak felt he could have played another year but the pain in his knees told him, no. "I wanted to be able to run and play basketball with my kids in five years," he said. "I guess I won't be doing any skiing or playing full court basketball." "That was one of the considerations in deciding not to push the knees any more." Munchak will remain with the Oilers as assistant to football operations, working with the offensive line on a day-to-day basis. "What I'll miss the most is the camaraderie of the offensive line," Munchak said. "When you walk away from football, you never have that again. Offensive linemen have to stick together." "So, I'll remember those times when we weren't winning but we were still busting our butts trying to win." The Oilers will retire Munchak's No. 63 jersey on Nov. 6 during halftime of the Oilers game in the Astrodome against Pittsburgh. Munchak is the fourth Oiler to have his jersey retired following Elvin Bethea (65), Earl Campbell (34) and Jim Norton (43). Munchak was the Oilers' No. 1 draft choice out of Penn State in 1982. The Oilers didn't make the playoffs until 1987, when they started a string of seven straight appearances.

White Sox increase lead over Indians

By The Associated Press
Unfortunately for Albert Belle and the Cleveland Indians, one man's hot streak can't beat one team's hot streak.

Belle homered for the third straight night, but it wasn't enough to prevent the Indians from falling another game behind Chicago. The White Sox beat Cleveland 6-5 Thursday night in the opener of a four-game series at Jacobs Field between the top two teams in the AL Central.

Frank Thomas hit his 35th homer for the White Sox, who have won 17 of 21 overall and 11 of their last 12 on the road. The Indians, meanwhile, have lost four of five.

Chicago now leads Cleveland by three games, its largest lead since May 30.

First baseman Eddie Murray's throwing error led to Chicago's tying and go-ahead runs in the eighth inning. The White Sox, trailing 5-4, started the eighth with singles by Julio Franco and Robin Ventura.

Murray then slipped as he fielded Newton's bunt and threw wildly past first, letting one run score. Mike LaValliere's sacrifice fly made it 6-5.

"The grass was wet, and when Eddie tried to make the throw, he was off-balance," losing pitcher Dennis Martinez (9-5) said. "You cannot blame one guy. With the kind of team they are, in a situation like that, they find a way to get the runs in."

Wilson Alvarez (11-5) gave up five runs — four of them unearned — and six hits in 7 2-3 innings. He retired the last 14 hitters he faced.

The game was bereft of any allegations of cheating or corking. It was last Friday night, when Cleveland opened a series at Chicago, that Belle's bat was removed from the game at the request of White Sox manager Gene Lamont.

The bat was found to be doctored and Belle was suspended for 10 days, but he has continued to play — and play well — while appealing.

"The bottom line is, we have to win the series, and the bat situation is out of hand," Thomas said. "The guy's a great hitter, corked bat or no corked bat. He came out and showed us what he could do."

So did Thomas. His two-run homer gave Chicago a 4-0 lead in the third before Cleveland rallied.

"They can use all the corked bats they want to, but I don't need a corked bat. That's why I work so hard in the offseason," Thomas said.

Cleveland tied it 4-4 with four runs in the third, all of them unearned because Chicago shortstop Ozzie Guillen mishandled the throw at second on Kenny Lofton's potential double-play grounder. Jim Thome doubled home one run, and Belle hit a three-run homer on the next pitch.

The Indians took a 5-4 lead on Alvaro Espinoza's RBI grounder in the fourth.

In other games, Toronto beat Texas 9-3, New York defeated California 11-7, Oakland edged Baltimore 4-3 and Milwaukee downed Minnesota 7-3. The Baltimore at Seattle game was postponed because of ceiling problems at the Kingdome.

Blue Jays 9, Rangers 3

At SkyDome, Paul Molitor hit a pair of two-run homers and scored four runs as Toronto won its fifth straight game to move six games under .500 for the first time in a month.

Dick Schofield added a homer and an RBI single and Pat Hentgen (12-6) gave up eight hits in 6 2-3 innings for the win, striking out 10 for the third time this season.

Braves' Maddux going for third consecutive Cy Young Award

By R.B. FALLSTROM
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Nobody has ever won three Cy Young Awards in a row. Not Tom Seaver, not Roger Clemens, not Steve Carlton, not Sandy Koufax, not Jim Palmer. Nobody.

Greg Maddux is likely to change that, however. Maddux threw a five-hitter and lowered his ERA to 1.71 — more than one run per nine innings lower than any other starter — as the Atlanta Braves beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-1 for a split of Thursday night's doubleheader.

It was his third consecutive complete game, his major league-leading eighth, and his 13th victory, tying him for the league lead with Montreal's Ken Hill. And, for him, it was no big deal. As usual, he was in low-key form after the game.

"When guys make plays behind you, it helps," said Maddux, who's one of only five players to win consecutive Cy Youngs. "The guys put up some runs early and that helps, that really does."

The Cardinals, however, knew they'd seen somebody special.

"It's obvious he's going to win the Cy Young," Tom Pagnozzi said. "It seems like he never throws the ball over the plate."

"He's obviously the best pitcher in both leagues," Gregg Jefferies said. "I've faced those guys over there (in the American League) and Maddux is the best."

"What he does is the art of pitching," Cardinals manager Joe Torre said. Maddux (13-5) struck out eight and walked none, retiring 14 batters in a row in one stretch, as the Braves snapped a three-game losing streak and dropped into a first-place tie with idle Montreal in the NL East.

In the only other National League game, Houston beat Pittsburgh 13-6. Maddux's only rough spot came in the fourth, when Luis Alicea got a lead-off single and scored on Jefferies' double.

"I just threw some hittable pitches and they took advantage of them," Maddux said. "It didn't really hurt me, though."

In the last three games, Maddux has allowed four runs on 20 hits.

The Cardinals won the first game 6-3 on a three-hitter by Omar Olivares, but virtually conceded the second by matching Maddux with John Frascatore, making his major-league debut.

Frascatore (0-1) was called up from Triple-A Louisville on a one-shot basis due to the rare six-game series necessitated by consecutive rainouts in April.

Frascatore gave up all six runs on seven hits in 3 1-3 innings, including a two-run home run by Fred McGriff in the first and a three-run shot by Javier Lopez in the fourth. Then he was sent back to Louisville to make room for Tom Urbani, who was scheduled to start the first game today.

"I wasn't nervous," Frascatore said. "I made some bad pitches and they hurt me."

Unexpectedly, Olivares (2-2) was nearly as impressive as Maddux in the opener. He gave up all three hits and three runs in the first two innings, then retired the final 16 batters to win for the first time in eight starts.

Olivares walked five, but none after the fourth when Torre urged him to stop trying to hit the corners of the plate.

"It's the same thing we've talked to him about," Torre said. "He tries to be too fine and tries to hit spots, but his ball moves too much for him to do that. He just needs to let the ball do what it needs to do."

Jefferies was 3-for-4 with three RBIs, Ozzie Smith had two hits and an RBI and leadoff hitter Gerald Young was 3-for-5 and scored twice in the opener. Olivares, who's 5-for-20 at the plate, added a run-scoring single in the second off John Smoltz (6-10).

In six innings, Smoltz allowed six runs on 11 hits to spoil his 200th career start.

Astros 13, Pirates 6
At Houston, Ken Caminiti drove in four runs and Andujar Cedeno hit a three-run homer to help Pete Harnisch win his fifth straight start.

Harnisch (7-4) is unbeaten since returning from the 15-day disabled list on June 30. He gave up two runs and five hits in seven innings.

Houston, which has scored 39 runs in its last five games with Pittsburgh, has won five of its last six. The Astros built a 7-0 lead after three innings against Zane Smith (9-8), who gave up nine runs and nine hits in 3 2-3 innings.

Comet completes Jupiter bombardment

By PAUL RECER
AP Science Writer

GREENBELT, Md. (AP) — Comet fragments completed their bombardment of Jupiter today, but the scorched marks may remain for weeks above the cloudtops of the solar system's largest planet.

To astronomers, the comet shower on Jupiter has been more than just a light show.

The comet fragments provided a natural probe of Jupiter's atmosphere. By penetrating deeply and then exploding, the space rocks performed a sort of chemical analysis. Astronomers can use measurements of the light spectrum to identify molecules in the black patches left by the impacts.

Already they have found sulphur, ammonia and hydrogen sulfide. They are still looking for water.

The planetary pummeling has also allowed experts to verify their ability to gauge the size of comet fragments based on the apparent brightness. They used this scale to judge which pieces would be the largest and the impacts have proved their calculations correct.

By watching how the black impact marks eventually dissipate, planetary scientists could also learn more about the weather and wind currents of Jupiter.

As the marks dilute and eventually stream away, they'll act rather like a windsock, telling the speed and direction of atmospheric flow high above the planet.

Astronomers worldwide also have honed skills of tracking a comet and predicting its ultimate path. Calculations, some made months before, have proven accurate to within minutes. This could come in handy if ever a comet or asteroid is detected speeding through space toward an ultimate impact with Earth.

Fragment W, the last piece of comet Shoemaker-Levy 9, collided with Jupiter a little after 3 a.m. CDT today, according to Hien Nguyen and Joe Spang, who observed the impact through the University of Chicago's infrared telescope at the South Pole.

The impact of fragment W was slightly less bright than that of the largest fragments, the two astronomers said in computer messages responding to questions.

A day earlier, the comet hit the giant planet with a cluster bomb — four fragments that smashed in nearly at nearly the same point over a 20-hour period.

Fragments Q1, Q2, R and S all exploded within about 60 miles of each other, said Mordacai-Mark Mac Low, a University of Chicago astronomer.

"The fireballs all overlapped each other," he said. "Each impact dredged up more and more material and made it (the impact point) brighter and brighter."

The joint area where the fragments smashed into the cloud tops of Jupiter turned into "great big blobs" of bright infrared, or heat, recorded on a telescope in Antarctica operated by the University of Chicago, said Mac Low. The instrument, called the South Pole Infrared Explorer, can monitor Jupiter constantly this time of year.

Jupiter could possibly be hit by more than the forecast 21 fragments, said Eugene Shoemaker, co-discoverer of the comet and a U.S. Geological Survey scientist. He said there could be unseen pieces within the comet train that have gone into the Jupiter cloud tops undetected until impact.

Comets can become invisible to telescopes after they exhaust the loose material that creates their coma, or dust cloud, which reflects sunlight, he said.

Comet Shoemaker-Levy 9 was discovered in March 1993. Researchers backtracking its orbital path learned that it had passed very close to Jupiter the previous year. It is believed the immense tidal forces of the planet caused the comet to break apart.

The pieces lined up like a series of freight cars, looped far back out into space and then raced back toward collision with Jupiter.

Shoemaker said the original comet was about six miles across and probably weighed about 500 billion tons. The pieces all smacked into Jupiter at about 130,000 mph, creating fireballs and pocked the southern area of the planet with dark patches so big that they have become the most easily seen feature on the planet's face.

Slang dictionary offers rude language

By KIM I. MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you want to grok the language, get your mitts on the new Random House Historical Dictionary of American Slang.

From "A" — a euphemism for "ass" — to "gytch," to steal, Volume I has the straight dope on dirty words, insults, curses, and offenses against English and its speakers.

Lexicographers already have started calling the 1,006-page tome the beginning of the definitive work on American slang, comparing it to the Oxford English Dictionary in importance.

All of which has J.L. Lighter, the editor, a big flummoxed. "I never expected that it would receive so much attention," Lighter said Thursday.

He spoke at a brown-bag lunch at the National Endowment for the Humanities, which gave Lighter almost $400,000 in grants to complete Volume I, published last month. Cost: $50.

NEH Director Sheldon Hackney — calling himself a onetime cracker who's now a wonk — said slang "subverts power relationships of all kinds," is disrespectful and defines subcultures.

"I'm not sure what this dictionary is supposed to do — and whether the government should be subsidizing something so subversive," Hackney said.

Lighter, 45, who teaches linguistics, English and American studies at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, began collecting slang 25 years ago as a hobby. Halfway through college, at New York University, "I had close to 10,000 citations — in shoeboxes, in orange crates and so forth," he said.

Lighter showed his collection to a professor, who helped him publish his first scholarly work, on the military slang of World War I.

And the comprehensive work isn't even halfway done.

"If I had known the amount of material I was going to find ... I probably would have done something else," Lighter said.

Volume II of the dictionary, covering H-R, is due out in spring 1996; Volume III, S-Z, will be published in 1997.

Flipping through Volume I is amusingly edifying.

Out pop the words "dingbat" and "ding-dong pants" (bellbottoms), "double-bagger" (an ugly person) and "dim bulb." And who can resist "ankle-biter" (a small child) or forget "Where's the beef?"

The entries relating to the word "dog" go on for 12 pages and range from "short dog" — a half-pint bottle — to "barking dogs" — sore feet — to "see a man about a dog" — use the bathroom.

Some of the words cited have come to us through the miracle of television — such as "bippy," popularized on Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In; and "babelicious," from the Wayne's World skits on Saturday Night Live.

Others were inspired by what television has done to us — i.e., turned America into a nation of "couch potatoes," a term which, Lighter tells us, was registered as a trademark in 1976.

Lighter's opus disproves the commonly held belief that slang is transitory; terms such as "out of sight" and "sweat it out" date back to the 1800s. The earliest use of "bogus" he found was in 1798. And the word "bad" as good isn't new either, Lighter says; he found such references as early as 1877.

One of the longest entries is for a four-letter vulgarity for sexual intercourse which can't be printed here. Its variations fill 12 pages, testifying to Americans' endless inventiveness.

Lighter says he's weary of having to answer questions on that particular word.

"I understand the interest in it but I wish other people would start doing more linguistic research on the topic so I wouldn't be the one assigned all the questions."
