Messinger Attends TALL Meeting In Washington D.C.

Jay Messinger, vice president of Muleshoe State Bank, recently returned from Washington, D.C. He met with various government representatives as part of the Texas Agricultural Lifetime Leadership (TALL) program.

Messinger was chosen to be one of 26 participants in the TALL program, a two year program designed to develop leaders representative of the food and fiber industry. One of the highlights in the curriculum is a visit to the nation's capitol to meet with various government officials and dignitaries.

John Sykes, TALL Coordinator, proclaims that the TALL program is producing experienced allies and advocates for rural Texas. "In the Washington seminar, TALL participants were able to discuss issues and topics of importance with those who are in the trenches fighting," he said.

TALL class members and their spouses met with Representative E. Kika de la Garza, Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee. Chairman de la Garza provided a detailed presentation of the financial impact of U.S. agriculture programs on the entire economy.

Agriculture comprises seven-tenths of one percent of the total government budget, yet it brings in about twenty percent of the gross national product (GNP). He pointed out that only twenty percent of the total USDA budget directly supports agricultural programs. The balance of the budget goes to programs such as nutrition, food stamps, Meals on Wheels, and school lunches.

The group also met with leading members of the Texas Congressional delegation including Larry Combest, Jack Fields, Craig Washington, Joe Barton, Greg Laughlin and Charles Stenholm. They provided updates and insight into the current Washington issues. Former Muleshoe resident, Larry Meyers, led a panel discussion of commodity group leaders. Meyers, a registered lobbyist, is president of Meyers and Associates. Representatives of the national cattle, wheat, wool and cotton groups joined Meyers to discuss with the TALL delegation ways for local producers to become more involved in the political process.

The class of 1973 will have a family picnic at the Bailey County Civic Center and dinner at O's Restaurant, by reservation.

Entertainment Begins Here July 1

Kicking off the big July 4th Celebration in Muleshoe will be Jana Stanfield, Red Steagall and Colt Prather.

Ms. Stanfield is scheduled to be at Joe's Boot Shop on July 1. Stegall will be entertaining also at Joe's on July 3 and Colt Prather on July 5.

Looking back fondly on the days when she gathered up her dreams and moved to Nashville, Ms. Stanfield said, "At first I thought I'd get a job as a songwriter. I tied every place that was hiring songwriters....Burger King, Dairy Queen, Wendy's..."

Things have picked up considerably since those early days. She has been featured on the Nashville Network, and her debut album has just been released. Each song on the album showcases the power, clarity and range of her captivating voice.

Ms. Stanfield first supported her music habit as a television news reporter in her home state of New Mexico. In Nashville, she does regular television features about the area's most interesting people and places for a PBS show called "Tennessee Crossroads."

Her ability to use words and music to share her infectious enthusiasm about life keeps her in demand as a speaker and performer. The poetry and songs of Red Steagall came to life in his new book, Ride for the Brand, published by Texas Christian University Press.

Stegall's fascination with the cowboy and his way of life is evident in this collection, which plunges the reader into the daily drama of cowboy life as it was in the frontier days and as it still exists today.

Bound together by a sense of pride in the western land and the people who work it, Stegall's work reflects the themes of nostalgia for the old days, love of the outdoors, sacrifices by faithful women, loyalty, death, faithful and disloyal horses and the amusing side of range life.

Hand-lettered lead sheets provide a visual image of Stegall's music as well as the opportunity for readers to explore the musical accompaniment to the words. With illustrations by noted members of Cowboy Artists of America---Bill Owen, Fred Fellows, Joe Beeler and Howard Terpning---Ride for the brand is a fresh and unusual tribute to the cowboy mystique.

In his forward to the book, Western novelist Elmer Kelton wrote: "Red Stegall's poems and songs reflect a tradition that began in open-range days when cowboys with time on their hands and a night herd to sing to make up the new lyrics to go with old melodies, new wood grafted onto an old tree to reflect a unique way of life."

Named Cowboy Poet of Texas by the state legislature in 1991, Red Stegall is best known for his Texas Swing dance music. His songs--"Here We Go Again", "Freckles Brown" and many others--are familiar to generations of Western fans, but many cowboys believe his best music is heard only around the chuckwagon campfires and never by the public.

Nonetheless, Stegall has been a folk singer, songwriter and television/motion picture personality for 25 years. Originally from Sanford, Texas, Stegall graduated from West Texas State University with a degree in Cont. Page 6, Col. 6

Announcement of the Chairman and members of the Texas State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) Committee June 2 was welcome news for High Plains cotton producers.

According to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG) the selection of Ray Joe Riley, of Hart, as Chairman of the State ASCS Committee bodes well for the future.

Riley, who grows cotton and a number of other crops, farms in Castro, Deaf Smith and Lamb counties. His extensive experience includes farming, serving for many years as a member of the PCG Board of Directors and as President of PCG as well as being involved in a number of other agricultural and civic organizations.

"PCG believes Ray Joe Riley's selection as Chairman of the State ASCS Committee will serve the High Plains cotton producers well in the years to come," says PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson. "His prior experience as a member of the State ASCS Committee combined with his knowledge of federal farm programs makes him an excellent choice for this position."

In addition to Riley, the four other members of the State ASCS Committee are Ed Lehman of Vernon, Raul Tijerina of Brownsville, Vera Harrington of Sulphur Springs, and Gerald Clark of Edna. In a previous announcement Harold Bob Bennett was named ASCS State Executive Director.

Looking for an adjective to describe the start of the 1993 crop isn't easy according to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG).

Spotted, spotted, spotted was one description that came out of a bi-weekly meeting of High Plains crop watchers June 4. The meeting was held at PCG's Lubbock office and is designed to help provide a comprehensive report on the status of the area's cotton crop and coordinate recommendations to producers.

The general feeling after the meeting was that the biggest need at the moment is a general rain across the area to offset the dry conditions that exist around the area. This comes as no surprise to area producers that have planted as much as 85 percent of the 3.2 million acres expected to go into cotton in 1993.

PCG officials note that much of the non-irrigated acreage planted at this time has been put into dry seedbeds in hopes that rain will arrive to bring it up to a stand. Many producers seem to be remembering the 1992 crop when dry conditions that caused many to wait for moisture turned into a deluge eventually preventing them from planting cotton at all.

Producers with crop insurance also face reduced coverage levels if their acres are not planted by certain dates.

Several New Undersea Adventures At Texas State Aquarium

The Texas State Aquarium (TSA) will begin the 1993 summer season with an entire month of brand new activities and programs dedicated to those beautiful butterflies of the sea, the rays. The fun will begin Memorial Day weekend.

Visitors can enjoy a variety of exciting and entertaining videos with fantastic underwater footage of exotic places such as Sting Ray City located off the coast of Grand Canyon. Three times a day people can sit in on an animal interview and meet a stingray up close and personal. A few lucky audience volunteers will even get to feel what it's like to touch a ray.

During aquatheater, guests can choose from a variety of interesting and provocative programs including: "Food for Thought" with the Aquarium's staff nutritionist who will educate participants all about the unusual diet of rays and other sea animals; "Fish Doctor," a detailed look at the medical care of marine creatures; and "Creature Feature" dress-up for the kids with tailor-made ray costumes.

Twice a day, visitors can watch the feeding frenzy in the Islands of Steel Exhibit, a 132,000 gallon replica of an offshore oil rig habitat. They can observe as the sharks, amberjack and groupers devour more than 50 pounds of fish in just a few minutes. During Feeding Time at the Marsh, participants can try their hand at feeding the Aquarium's "Club Med" birds with TSA naturalists who will explain the rehabilitation area and the feeding characteristics of local birds.

Four days a week, the TSA divers will perform underwater demonstrations and shows in the Islands of Steel and Flower Gardens Exhibits. Visitors can watch the divers hand feed some of the Aquarium's most spectacular species including moray eels, cownose rays, giant tarpons and more.

The fun will continue in July and August with the Month of the Sharks and the Month of the Sea Turtles. Once again, guests can participate in a number of exciting activities featuring sharks and turtles, some of the sea's oldest and most fascinating creatures.

Schedules of all special activities will be available daily in the Aquarium lobby throughout the summer. The Aquarium's extended summer hours are Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Every Tuesday night, the facility will be open until 8 p.m. in honor of "Ten Cent Tuesday." One child will be admitted for only a dime with every fully paid adult between 6 and 8 p.m. Regular admission is $7 for adults, $3.75 for children between the ages of 4 and 17 (children under 4 are free) and $5 for senior citizens and active duty military with proper I.D.

For more information, call the Texas State Aquarium at (512) 881-1200 or 1-800-477-GULF.

"Quick Bites" Can Be Nutritious

Taking care of children out for a "quick bite" does not have to mean forsaking good nutrition.

Although fast-food outlets are notorious for fat, salt, and empty calories, parents can steer children to more nutritious offerings, said Dr. Corinne Montandon of the USDA's Children's Nutrition Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Instead of a cheeseburger, try a grilled-chicken sandwich or broiled lean meat hamburger. Add lettuce and tomato, but hold the bacon, mayonnaise and special sauce.

If the clan opts for pizza, Montandon recommends a thin-crust version topped with ground beef or mushrooms, green peppers or other vegetables rather than sausage or pepperoni.

If the choice is Mexican food, chicken fajitas, rice and green salads are healthy choices. Avoid high-fat taco salads.

Texas Lodging Industry Continues Solid Growth

The dramatic growth of the Texas hotel/motel industry continued during the fourth quarter of 1992, posting a revenue gain of 8.3 percent, for a 1992 average of 7 percent growth, according to a study released by the Texas Department of Commerce Tourism Division.

Continuously since 1988, annual growth in lodging revenues averaged 7.2 percent. Lodging ranks as one of the fastest growing industries in Texas, according to the report, titled "Texas Hotel Performance Report." The report was prepared under the direction of Commerce's Tourism Division by Source Strategies, Inc. of San Antonio.

Contributing to the gains during 1992 was a 3.1 percent increase in the number of room nights sold, a 3.8 percent increase in prices, and a 1.2 percent increase in the number of available rooms. Hotel/motel chains claimed the biggest share of occupancy increase, gaining 2.5 percent to 62.6 percent. The study also indicates occupancy rose 1.8 percent to 56.1 percent for 1992.

San Antonio lead the state with a 13.8 percent lodging revenue increase during 1992. Tourism officials speculate that San Antonio's second theme park, Fiesta Texas, contributed significantly to the city's increase. Other metropolitan areas with an increase above 10 percent during 1992 include Corpus Christi with 12.1 percent, Killeen with 11.3 percent, Austin with 11.1 percent, and Laredo with 10.3 percent.

Other metro areas where the lodging industry grew faster than the 8.3 percent 1992 fourth quarter average include Tyler, Bryan/College Station, Ft. Worth/Arlington, MacAllen/Edinburg, Abilene, and Beaumont/Port Arthur. Texarkana and Brazoria were the only metropolitan areas showing a fourth quarter decline in lodging revenue for 1992.

The four largest metropolitan areas of Texas accounted for approximately 73 percent of the state's revenue increase, with San Antonio providing 25 percent, Dallas/Ft. Worth providing 26 percent, Austin providing 11 percent, and Houston/Galveston/Brazoria providing 11 percent.

Much of the increased demand for lodging was for the higher quality and higher priced rooms. Revenue for lodging priced below $60 rose only 1.3 percent in 1992, while it grew 13.9 percent for room rates above $60.

State hotel/motel occupancy tax for 1992 totaled $129.55 million, a 6.1 percent increase over 1991 and local hotel/motel occupancy tax revenue totaled an additional $148.89 million, a 7 percent increase over 1991.

The report states that for the first time since the early 1980's, when the state's supply of rooms began to exceed the demand, average Texas room prices are approaching the national average of $33.94.

Preventing Household Accidents

Although there's no place like home, more accidents occur in the home each year than anywhere else. In 1991, approximately 20 million Americans sustained injuries in the home that required medical attention.

"Most home accidents can be avoided by taking common sense precautions," said Chuck Barton, M.D. medical director of Methodist Hospital's Adult Emergency Center.

Following is a list of the most common type of home injuries and accident prevention techniques.

 Knife cuts- Injuries from kitchen knives are the most common type of injury in this country. To prevent this type of injury keep knives sharp to prevent them from slipping off the item being sliced. Keep hands and knife handles dry. Store knives where they can be seen (in a wooden block) not a kitchen drawer.

 Household chemical exposure- Accidental exposure to chemicals can occur through inhalation of vapors and sprays, ingestion and skin contact. Exposure to chemicals can cause eye, nose and throat irritation or corrosion, skin burns and damage to the kidneys, liver and nervous system. To prevent this type of injury only use chemicals in well-ventilated areas and wear protective gloves and safety goggles. Store household chemicals and cleansers out of reach of children.

 Falls from ladders- Ladders and stools are the cause of more than 150,000 accidents each year. These mishaps can be avoided by planting a ladder's feet one foot out from the supporting wall for every four feet up, and allowing three feet of overlap at the top. Never stand on the top two rungs of a ladder, and make sure it's adequately secured ideally with someone holding the base.

 Fires- Approximately one-half million home fires were reported in this country in 1991. The No. 1 cause of these fires was space heaters. Other culprits include faulty wiring, Christmas lights, overloaded electrical circuits and electric blankets. Fire prevention techniques include installing a smoke detector on each floor of the home (check the batteries at least one per month), keeping a dry-chemical fire extinguisher handy and if you must use a space heater, turning it off before leaving the house or going to bed.

 Burns- Cooking ranges and stoves are the cause of more than 40,000 injuries each year. To prevent burns make sure there is adequate lighting over the stove and wear short or tight-fitting sleeves while cooking.

 Hot water burns- Although this type of burn is less common, thousands occur each year, some of which are fatal. To prevent hot water burns, set the hot water thermostat at 120 degrees. Protect children from accidental scalds by using cool mist vaporizers instead of steam.

 Electrocutation- Generated electricity causes more than 1,000 deaths annually, usually due to cardiac or upper respiratory arrest.

To prevent electrocution, eliminate such hazards as open sockets, exposed connections and worn insulation on electrical cords, also, never use electrical appliances around a bath tub or shower.

Penny Postcards Cost Public Millions

The U.S. Postal Inspection Service announced today that it was taking the fight against fraudulent postcards to the streets with an unusual twist to an old scam.

In an extraordinary effort to educate potential victims about this perennial scourge, inspectors mailed more than two hundred thousand postcards to individuals all over the country, offering recipients a "GUARANTEED PRIZE."

This familiar ruse promises that you have definitely won one of several seemingly big-ticket prizes, such as a luxury automobile, vacation cruise, diamond necklace or cash. To claim your free prize, you simply call an 800 or 900 number furnished on the postcard. At this point, you're connected to a high-pressure "yak" (sales agent) who spells out the real deal.

Guess what? Before any prize is awarded, you'll have to pay the promoter a fee of some kind, be it registration fee or shipping charge. This is the tip-off to the rip-off. The scheme is aimed at separating the prize winner from enough money to cover the worthless vacation certificate or cheap costume jewelry which may or may not be sent in return, plus a nice profit for the operator.

Those who respond to the Inspector's postcard and call 1-800-448-5656 will get some helpful advice instead:

---Don't pay anything for a "free prize" if you don't know what you're getting. (Remember, calling a 900 telephone number costs money.)

---Don't deal with firms or individuals that make high-pressure demands for an answer RIGHT NOW! (Take time to check them out.)

Heat Stress

Summer's sizzling temperatures can subject the body to hazardous stress. The potential toll of excessive heat ranges from mild discomfort to life-threatening heat stroke.

"When it's both hot and humid, it becomes more difficult for the body to release the heat that builds up," said Lowell Johnson, M.D., family physician on staff at Methodist Hospital. "As a result,

Babies Can Get Acne

Babies can have acne just like teenagers.

Just like teenage hormones, baby hormones are very active, and acne is a normal response to this hormonal activity, said Dr. Moise Levy, a dermatologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Neonatal acne appears at birth or in early infancy and affects an estimated 20 percent of newborns, mostly boys.

The baby's oil glands are driven by the mother's supply of the male hormone androgen, which causes acne. As the mother's hormones run their course, the acne improves and disappears.

To prevent acne from spreading:

- * Clean the baby's face gently with mild, unscented soap.
- * Limit the baby's sun exposure and avoid drying the skin by over-bathing.
- * Be certain the baby gets plenty of rest and eats regular, nutritious meals.

Communication Important For Families With Cancer

For families and friends of cancer patients, open communication is often the key to coping with the disease.

People deal with cancer the same way they handle other major life stresses, said Dr. Lois Friedman, a psychologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Some family members may avoid talking about the illness or may withdraw from the patient. Others react by maintaining a cheerful facade.

Friedman offers these suggestions for coping with cancer in a family:

- * Include the patient in all family activities.
- * Inquire about the patient's illness.
- * Do not avoid using the word "cancer" around the patient.
- * Avoid being overly protective of the patient.

the body temperature begins to climb. Initially, this might cause mild discomfort-headache, dizziness, and fatigue are typical symptoms."

Following are the three degrees of heat stress, how to recognize them and prevention techniques.

 Heat Cramps- Represents the mildest form of heat stress. They are most often seen in poorly conditioned athletes who drink inadequate amounts of liquid before and during exercise. Symptoms included painful muscle spasms and sweaty skin. To relieve heat cramps, sit or lie down in a cool area. Drink cool water and stretch cramped muscles.

 Heat Exhaustion- Results when heat stress produces excessive fluid loss. Heat exhaustion causes nausea, vomiting, headache, muscle aches, dizziness, rapid pulse, thirst and clammy or pale skin. When heat exhaustion is mild, the treatment is the same as for heat cramps. However, if vomiting, confusion or headache persists, gently apply wet towels and call for emergency help.

 Heatstroke- Heat exhaustion can rapidly lead to heatstroke. a condition in which the temperature regulating center in the brain fails. At this point, the body temperature soars, leading to severe and even fatal brain, liver or kidney damage. A person experiencing heatstroke may lose consciousness. If conscious, symptoms include confusion, a staggered walk and agitation. Other symptoms include hot, dry skin (rarely sweating) and a body temperature of 105 degrees Fahrenheit or more. A person experiencing heatstroke should be moved to a reclining position in a cool area. Emergency help should be called immediately. If the person is conscious, cool sips of water can be given. Large amounts of cold or ice water should be applied immediately.

When the temperatures rise, avoid heat stress by scheduling exercise for the early morning or evening, drinking plenty of fluids, avoiding the sun, keeping your home cool and wearing lightweight, loose-fitting clothing.

Pass It On

You've worked hard to get where you are today. If you're like most people, you've put years of careful effort into building and maintaining your estate. And, like most people, you probably want to have your estate distributed among your family and friends after you pass away.

Unfortunately, estate taxes may take a big bite — with rates as high as 50 percent. Probate and administrative fees may consume another 5 to 10 percent. And the estate your heirs receive may be quite a bit smaller than the one you left. It doesn't seem fair, does it?

Fortunately, there are a number of strategies you can use to make certain your estate goes to the people you want it to. Some will even help your heirs avoid estate taxes and probate.

Come to our FREE workshop on estate planning. We'll show you how you can pass on your estate to your heirs. Instead of the probate court and tax collectors.

| 1 8 oz. can tomato sauce | 3 lbs. shredded cheddar cheese |
| 1 teaspoon cumin | 28-30 (12 inch) flour tortillas |
| 2 28 oz. cans refried beans | 12 green onions, thinly sliced |
| 8 medium tomatoes, finely chopped | 2 12 oz jars salsa |
| 2 32 oz. containers dairy sour cream | guacamole |
| 3 (2.25 oz.) cans sliced ripe olives, drained | |

Place board on a flat surface; cover with wax paper. For meat filling, brown ground beef; drain well. Add tomato sauce and cumin; simmer, covered, 10 minutes. In saucepan, heat refried beans about 10 minutes or until warmed through.

Wrap tortillas in foil, making two packages. Heat in 350 degree F. oven for 15 to 20 minutes or until warm. On wax paper-lined surface, arrange tortillas in two rows of 14 or 15 tortillas overlapping. Spread beans in a line down center of double row of tortillas. Spoon mixture over beans. Spoon salsa over filling. Spoon half of the sour cream over salsa. Roll up tortillas, first folding over top side, then bottom side, pressing gently onto filling. Top with guacamole, remaining sour cream, and sliced olives.

To serve, cut burrito crosswise into 3 or 4 inch pieces. Serve with any remaining ingredients as toppings. Makes 24 servings.

VLB Reduces Interest Rate On Home Loans

The Texas Veterans Land Board (VLB) has reduced the interest rate on veterans home loans made through participating VLB lenders to 6.99 percent interest - the lowest rate offered by the board since the home loan program began in 1983.

"Lowering the interest rate to 6.99 percent makes our home loan program the first place to look for financing if you're a veteran in the market for a home," said Gary Mauro, chairman of the VLB. "It's far and away the best deal in today's market if you're a Texas vet."

"Today's rate reduction places us well below the VA, FHA, and conventional rates," Mauro said.

Mauro urged any Texas veteran thinking about a home loan to call the VLB at 1-800-252-VETS for assistance.

"These changes mean thousands of additional veterans can now find quality, affordable housing," Mauro said. "For example, the new rate means the monthly payment on an $80,000 home financed with a $45,000 Texas veterans home loan at 6.99 percent combined with a $35,000 federal VA loan at 7.5 percent would be $544.00."

"That's a savings of $5600 over the life of a 30-year note on the same house financed solely with a VA loan at 7.5 percent," Mauro said.

The board also reduced the interest rate on home improvement loans made to Texas veterans from 9.25 percent to 7.60 percent. The 7.99 percent interest rate charged on veterans land loans will remain the same.

The new rates cannot be used for refinancing.

"The rate reduction will result in substantial savings for Texas veterans struggling with the rising costs of home ownership," Mauro said. "It can make a real difference in how much home a young couple can afford and whether or not they can qualify for a loan."

New legislation raised the ceiling on a home loan a veteran can receive through the VLB to $45,000. But veterans are not limited to homes in that price range. Those who want to buy a home costing more than $45,000 can combine their VLB home loan with a FHA, VA or conventional loan to purchase a higher priced home.

International Marketing Award Goes To Texas Tourism

The Texas Department of Commerce's tourism division is being recognized as the 1993 J. Desmond Slattery Marketing Award winner by the Travel and Tourism Research Association. The award is being presented for the tourism division's marketing campaign, "Texas. It's Like A While Other Country." The campaign was developed in 1988 by GSD&M Advertising, and has been continually refined as a result of new research about the Texas travel industry.

According to TTRA guidelines, the international award honors "an innovative and significant contribution to travel and tourism marketing." TTRA is the only international organization of travel research and marketing professionals devoted to improving the quality and scope of travel and tourism research and marketing information.

"We are proud that Texas is receiving international recognition for its tourism marketing efforts. We have an excellent pool of talent in our research department and at GSD&M. It's very important to remember that our success would not be possible without the quality work force of the Texas travel industry. The tourism division's marketing efforts can entice people to travel to Texas, but it's friendliness and hospitality of the Texans working at the attractions and destinations that keep people coming back," said Ed McWilliams, manager of the Tourism Division's Research and Product Development Department. There were a number of factors that contributed to Texas receiving the award. Since 1988, there has been a four-fold increase in target markets of awareness of Texas as a travel destination and the number of advertising response inquiries has increased from 205,000 in 1987 to more than 920,000 in 1992. State hotel/motel tax revenues more than doubled to $120 million in 1992. Texas domestic travel spending increased 35 percent and Texas has gained national market share in travel expenditures every year since 1988.

Safe Disposal Of Automotive Products Urged By TAEX

The following article was published in the Cross Section by the High Plains Underground Water Conservation No. 1.

Oil from a single oil change can contaminate a million gallons of fresh water—a year's supply for 50 people.

Recycling and proper disposal of used automotive products is one contribution just about anyone can make to protect the water supply, according to an agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

A variety of potential pollutants are associated with the operation of cars, trucks, motorcycles, chain saws, and other equipment that use petroleum products," said Dr. Bruce Lesikar.

Motor oil, transmission fluid, hydraulic fluid, brake fluid, gasoline, and other petroleum substances may be highly flammable as well as toxic. Antifreeze and fluid from lead acid batteries are toxic if they enter a water supply.

"Never dispose of any of these products by pouring them on the ground or down the drain or by throwing them into the trash," he said.

Used oil is the largest single source of water pollution in the nation, said Lesikar. However, the oil drained from cars can be reprocessed and reused, thereby conserving petroleum resources and preventing contamination of the environment, he said.

Used motor oil should be put in a sealed container, such as a clean milk jug with a screw-on cap and taken to an oil recycling center.

Even though gasoline solvents and some paints are petroleum products, they should never be mixed with oil that is to be recycled, said Gary Davis, program manager for the Texas Water Commission's recycling and waste minimization section.

Non-petroleum products, including pesticides or other household chemicals mixed with oil also should never be recycled. Transmission fluids are similar to motor oil and can be added.

The best way to dispose of kerosene, diesel fuels, lamp oil and fuel oil is to use them for their intended purposes.

"If you have no use for them, give them to someone who can use them properly," he said.

Antifreeze is not only harmful to the environment, but it can be toxic to children and pets. It contains the chemical ethylene glycol, which poses a potential health threat to humans and animals.

"Its sweet taste and smell make it attractive to children and pets. Antifreeze should never be stored in a soda bottle or allowed to form a puddle on the driveway," Lesikar said.

Antifreeze can pollute water supplies if poured into storm sewers or dumped onto the ground. Some service stations now recycle used antifreeze.

Automotive batteries also pose a hazard because of the toxicity and the corrosiveness of the acid and metals in them, Davis said.

When replacing an old battery from a car or other equipment, take the used one to the retail or wholesale outlet that sells replacements.

"State law requires the retailer and wholesaler to accept these old batteries for shipment to a battery reprocessing facility. A fee will be collected on the sale of the new battery and used to clean up sites that have been contaminated," Davis said.

"If your community or county government does not provide recycling options for these products and there are no accessible businesses willing to accept your used oil or antifreeze, encourage your legislative representative to establish such programs."

Billions Available For Home Repair Grants And Subsidized Loans

Most homeowners are unaware that regardless of their income there are Federal, state and local programs that will help them repair and remodel their homes.

Government at all levels recognizes that neighborhoods are the basis of life in our country. When a neighborhood deteriorates, many things happen both physically and socially. Homes that are shabby seem to make a neighborhood more attractive to crime and criminals. An area in decline is like a spreading cancer. As homes become rundown and in need of maintenance, the residents lose their desire to keep up the neighborhood. Streets become receptacles for trash, schools lower their standards and very quickly the selling price of homes in the area drops sharply. This accelerates the cycle of degeneration.

In order to keep and maintain the nation's housing and neighborhoods, government at all levels have programs to give homeowners money (that does not have to be repaid) for repairs or to lend them money at below market levels or at no interest. In many areas utility companies will do energy conservation work free or at low cost and in other places will lend homeowners money at no interest to pay the contractor of their choice for the necessary work. In addition there are tax incentives to promote efficient energy use.

These programs are not restricted to low-income people, slum areas or urban neighborhoods. Owners of single or multi-family dwellings are eligible for some programs regardless of income. Most of the loans offer long terms and low payments.

Some of the other home Fringe Benefit

Having a college or university in the community can be a financial boom to public schools.

Midland-Odessa taxpayers discovered that recently when the number of minority students exceeded the number of Anglos. The school districts weren't prepared to meet the educational needs of this changing student population.

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin in Odessa was prepared however. It created a special program to provide bilingual teachers to the area schools.

A grant from the United States Department of Education enabled the university to subsidize tuition, fees and books for undergraduate Hispanic students seeking training in English as a second language. These students are helping out as teachers in local schools.

improvements covered under these programs are: attic and wall insulation, new windows, outerwall siding, security doors and locks, window guards, sidewalks and masonry work, bathrooms and kitchens, electrical and plumbing work, new roofs, gutters or downspouts.

Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit consumer group, has just published CONSUMERS GUIDE TO HOME REPAIR GRANTS AND SUBSIDIZED LOANS, a 208-page book which lists over 8,500 sources of loan and grant programs offered by all levels of government, utility companies and others, typical programs offered and eligibility requirements. Form letters for inquiries to these loan and grant sources are included as well as detailed instructions on determining your debt-to-income ratio for eligibility. The book can be obtained for $12.95 plus $3 shipping and handling form CERC GRANTS, 350 Scotland Road, Orange, NJ 07050 or by calling 1-800-USA-0121 for credit card order.

Robert L. Berko of CERC, tells us, "Some of these programs have no income ceiling and others allow income of as much as $100,000 per year. There are even programs for which tenants are eligible and many allow loans or give grants to poor credit risks. One of the authors of this book received a $5,000 N.J. grant plus a $4,000 interest free loan from his utility company. In many areas, people with disabilities can receive grant to pay for needed repairs such as access ramps and widening of doorways."

Since it is important that the work be done properly, the book describes in detail how to pick a reputable contractor, negotiate a contract and insure that work is done properly and for a fair price.

"Laughter Is Good Medicine"

The inability to laugh at oneself is an alarming symptom, whether it is seen in men or in movements. We who are serious about our faith will probably be healthier and more effective the more we recognize that being serious about the faith does not mean being blind to our own often humorous inconsistencies.

"Laughter," Elton Trueblood writes, "is a solvent." It burns through and dissolves the twin dangers of self-righteousness and pompous pride. It may well be, Trueblood remarks, that a part of the childlikeness Jesus tells us we must regain to enter the Kingdom, is the easy, unaffected way children laugh at themselves and, thus, learn.

Is it any accident that the most pompous, most obviously "religious," most wrong men in the New Testament were also the most unlaughing? What an immense service the world would have been done if, when religious men like the Pharisees began to debate such lofty issues as whether or not a chicken's laying an egg on the Sabbath constituted work, or how many angels could stand on the head of a pin, one or two or a few good-hearted souls had sat back and just roared out a laugh! Partly because no one did, the whole directions of these religious movements became proper subjects for tears. One of the quickest ways for movements and men to die is to be always deadly serious.

But isn't religion serious business? So it is, but we'd best not forget that one of the most intensely likable things about the Founder of our faith is that he knew how to laugh. Why else would he jestingly dub over-serious disciples "sons of thunder" or poke fun at religious men scrupulously cleaning the outsides of their dishes while last week's dinner was molding inside?

There are times, you know, to weep with one another and times to rejoice with one another. Surely there are also times to laugh with one another and even, at times, at ourselves.

Say, have you heard the one about the preacher who....

How Safe Are Our College Campuses From Crime?

Although violent crimes always make the headlines, they are still rare. Latest figures show that the average U.S. college or university has only three violent assaults in 12 months and eight incidents of hate crime or violence growing out of hazing.

Law enforcement experts are not surprised that the leading crime on almost every Texas campus is that of auto theft. Of 19 schools sampled, only two—UT Dallas at Richardson and El Centro College in Big D—reported no cars stolen. Of the 171 cars taken on other campuses, 51 were taken at UT Austin.

However, it is to Austin—with the state's largest enrollment—that many schools turn for help in fighting crime. It is the headquarters of the University of Texas System Police Academy—rated among the nation's best in training law enforcement officers. Even the Texas Department of Public Safety often sends its personnel there for training.

It's not easy to get into, either. Most applicants must have two years of college credit, although some can be accepted without having attended college if they have had a minimum of two years experience as an unarmed guard. All have to take a tough pre-entry test, undergo a rigid background investigation and appear before an oral review board. Both men and women can be enrolled.

During training, cadets take an examination each week. If they fail two, they're allowed to take a makeup test. Three failures means expulsion from the academy.

Training includes rigorous physical exercise, too. But when it's concluded, they know how to handle confrontations such as demonstrations on campus, crowd control, stopping and frisking a suspect, the use of batons and firearms and other police procedures.

However, they also are taught to be courteous and service-oriented.

"We try to gear our training towards more interaction between the police and the university community," says Inspector John Slettebo, one of the academy coordinators.

After 16 weeks of daily classes from 8 to 5, those who pass receive a basic peace officer license. Graduates are qualified to become one of more than 400 guards at one of the UT System's components and start a career that could lead to a commission as one of the Systems more than 250 officers.

UT-trained police can be found on campuses throughout the state. The current class includes cadets from Baylor University Medical Center, Rice, and Southern Methodist University.

The Ivory Tower is not an armed camp, but its goal is to keep its students, faculty and staff safe at a time when crime is growing at unprecedented rates.

Murders, rapes, robberies, assaults, burglaries and auto thefts do occur as they would in a population of about one million—the total enrollment at the state's 149 public and private universities, colleges and institutes.

Nevertheless a sampling by the Dallas Morning News of the violent crimes at 19 of these schools chosen at random shows that the campus is a far safer place than the cities in which most Texans live.

Take murder. In 1991, there were 15.3 homicides in Texas for each 100,000 residents (Houston, San Antonio, Dallas, and other large cities tripled that). However, on the 19 campuses studied where the enrollment totaled almost

NFIB Deems Legislative Session Outstanding For Small Business

The state's largest small-business advocacy group today praised the Legislature and Governor Richards for "their outstanding efforts to improve the business climate" during the recently concluded legislative session.

"Lawmakers distinguished themselves on three critical issues," said Robert Howden, director of the 38,800-member Texas chapter of the National Federation of Independent Business. "They turned their backs on tax hikes; they approved products liability reforms that will make Texas much more attractive to out-of-state businesses, and they passed a small-business health insurance package that promises to make coverage more accessible and affordable to thousands to thousands of small-business owners, their families and employees."

"These actions cut across all types of business endeavors, setting the stage for broad-based economic recovery," Howden said.

The small-business advocate also applauded the Legislature for rejecting a proposal that would have prohibited employers from laying off or firing any worker with at least 10 years of seniority.

For NFIB/Texas, the session's biggest disappointment came when a constitutional amendment to cap the state franchise tax died in a Senate Committee. The measure had passed the House by a wide margin, and Howden expressed optimism that the proposal will make it through both Houses in the next session.

Meanwhile, NFIB will be concentrating on drumming up grassroots support for two measures coming up for voter referendum this November. The advocacy group's top priority is passage of the proposed constitutional amendment prohibiting adoption of a state income tax for individuals and unincorporated businesses without voter approval. The measure also provides that, should an income tax be enacted, any subsequent effort to raise the tax rate would have to be ratified by popular vote, as well.

NFIB also is backing "an admittedly somewhat more parochial" ballot proposal: one that would exempt from state property taxes any pollution control equipment purchased to comply with government environmental regulations. Howden noted that 275,000 there was not a single murder during that year.

Similar statistics apply to rape. In Texas, FBI Uniform Crime Reports show that there are 53 rapes each year per 100,000 population. However, of the 19 colleges and universities, only six of the schools recorded this crime during the year. The university of Texas at Austin, with more than 50,000 students, reported five rapes—less than half the number expected in a population of that size.

Other violent crimes like assault and burglary also were either nonexistent on Texas campuses or else far below the average for the general population.

mom-and-pop dry cleaners, paint stores and auto body shops may be required to install $100,000 "sniffers" or other devices to meet requirements of the Clean Air Act.

"It's tough enough to scrape up the financing to purchase and install this stuff," Howden said. "To turn around and tax these people for owning property you've forced them to buy is only adding insult to injury."

America's Best Teen Pageant Slated For Irving Debut

Twenty contestants from across the United States will meet to compete for the title of America's Best Teen at the Irving Arts Center's Carpenter Performance Hall. Girls, ages 13 to 18 years old, will be judged on their scholastic abilities, communication skills, and inner beauty.

Patricia Bauder and Pageant Productions founded the national pageant to help girls be positive role models in their communities and schools. "I want the girls to develop friendships and serve as role models, not just compete against each other and then go home," Bauder says.

Endorsed by governors from across the United States, America's Best Teen contestants must qualify for the competition by being a U.S. Citizen, having a minimum grade point average of a "B", being involved in school or community activities and being energetic and enthusiastic. Each contestant will participate in three rounds: interview, sports wear, and evening gown. Current event questions as well as characteristic and role model questions will be asked during each round. A talent competition is optional and separate awards will be given for this category.

Doors will open for the June 26 program at 6:30 p.m. Tickets for the program are $20 and will be available at the door. Proceeds go toward the pageant's 1994 scholarship fund and event, which will include two younger age groups in the competition: Princess, ages 7-9; and Preteen, ages 10-12. For more information call 1-(800)-643-TEEN.

Recycling Videos Available To Teachers

Just in time for the new school year, the Texas General Land Office announced completion of a fun new teaching tool designed to teach new information about Texas' recycling efforts.

"Don't Let A Good Thing Go To Waste...Buy Recycled," is a series of fast-paced videotapes geared toward older elementary school students who are learning about the recycling process. Unlike other recycling teaching materials, "Don't Let A Good Thing Go To Waste...Buy Recycled" colorfully explains why it's important to buy recycled products. The videos, along with supplemental "Buy Recycled" education material, are being offered free to Texas teachers by the GLO.

"Texans have enthusiastically contributed to the recycling process on the front end by sorting and saving recyclables from their garbage," said Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, "but there has been considerably less interest in what happens to that material once consumers 'drop it off' at the curb or the recycling center."

Mauro says that situation has created a backlog in the recycling process. "There aren't enough users of recycled material to absorb the supply."

The educational video series is one part of the larger "Buy Recycled" public awareness campaign mandated by the Texas Legislature.

The series is made up of three 15-minute videos that look at Texas' recycling situation through the eyes of 11-year-old Tony Spencer, who lives in an adult world and works as a TV news reporter. In that role, he meets a number of larger-than-life recycling experts who tell him that without consumer demand, manufacturers won't use recycled material in the making of new products.

Along with the videos, teachers will receive a week's worth of ideas for classroom and homework activities reinforcing the "Buy Recycled" message. Teachers interested in receiving the video package can contact their regional education service centers or call Geoff Wool, Julia Ruiz or Steve Speir at the Texas General Land Office at 512-463-5339 for immediate delivery.

Nontoxic Shot Needed For Teal Hunting

Texans will be able to shoot teal during a nine-day September season (Sept. 12-20) for the first time since 1987 and some questions have been raised about when nontoxic shot may be needed or possessed by a hunter.

Capt. Jim Robertson, TPWD game warden, said nontoxic shot, which includes steel shot, is required only for hunting migratory waterfowl. If a hunter possesses lead shot while hunting teal, other ducks, geese, and coots, he is in violation of the law. However, both lead and steel shot may be used to hunt doves.

When a hunter plans to hunt teal and doves in the same area, the best solution is to possess and hunt only with nontoxic shot. The hunter also could decide which game bird he wants to hunt. The hunter may hunt doves with lead shot as long as he does not shoot waterfowl.

PROUD POSSESSION

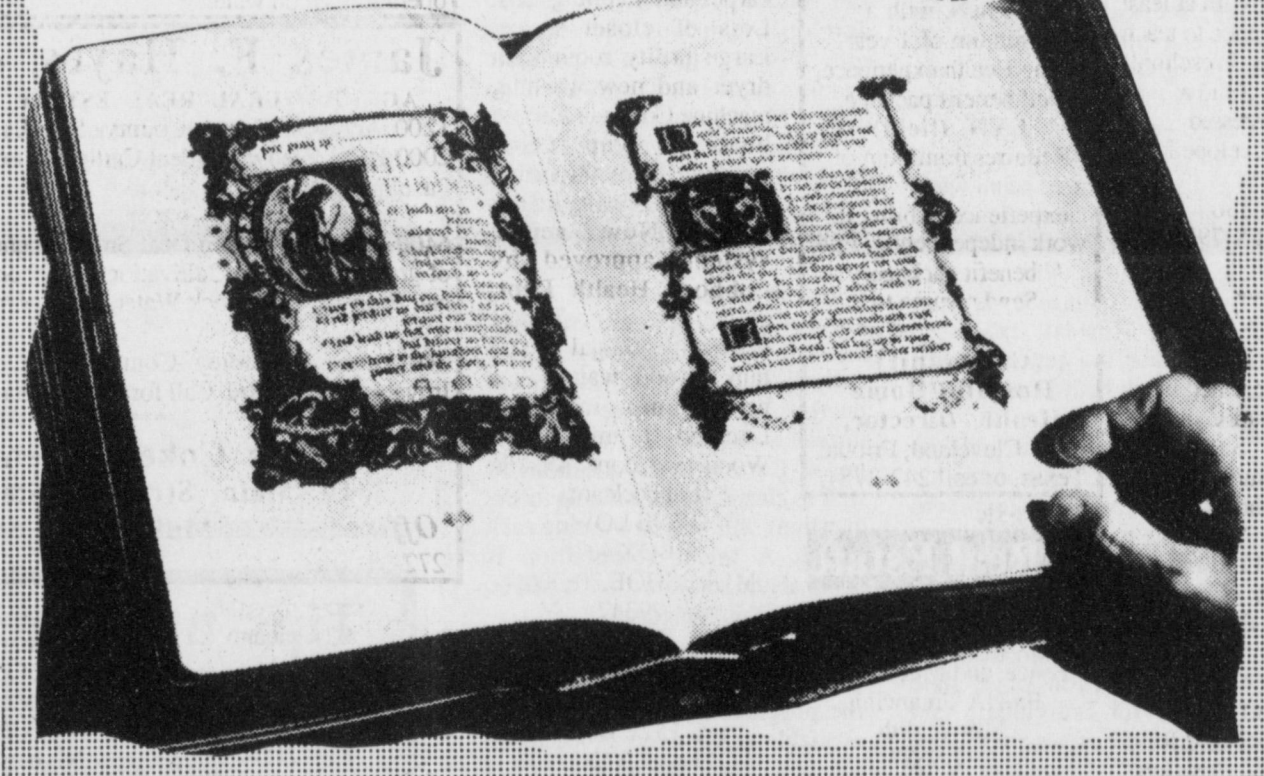

The craftsmanship and artistry that has gone into the production of many bibles does humbly honor God's word. This work is a reflection of men's appreciation and love for God. Many commit God's word to memory and their heart.

"I wait for the Lord, my soul doth wait and in his word do I hope."

Attend Church and study God's word.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.
