STATE

AUSTIN (AP) — One ticket bought in Tyler correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot is worth an estimated $3 million.

The winning numbers drawn Saturday by the Texas Lottery, from a field of 50, were: 6, 23, 28, 38, 46 and 48.

In addition to the jackpot winner, there were 100 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,793. There were 6,346 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $102. And there were 113,167 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Wednesday's drawing will be worth an estimated $3 million, officials said.

DALLAS (AP) — The efforts of a coalition of Texas political leaders to have Interstate 35 designated as a "NAFTA Superhighway" could be in trouble.

It may be imperiled — at a cost of millions of dollars — by an internal squabble between North and Central Texas politicians over the route of such a superhighway, which would connect Canada to Mexico.

The dispute pits Tarrant and Denton counties against their southern counterparts in Bexar, McLennan and Guadalupe counties.

"If we let the squabbling derail this then we ... will have lost an incredible opportunity," said Fort Worth Mayor Kay Granger. "We will lose it, or it will be snatched up by someone else."

If I-35 is designated as a superhighway, it likely will receive hundreds of millions of federal transportation dollars. But the Central Texas leaders favor a plan that would involve Interstates 20 and 30 and bypass Tarrant and most of Dallas counties.

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Investigators have determined that lightning caused a pipeline rupture that released an estimated 400 barrels of crude oil into Nueces Bay.

The oil leaked from a Koch Industries pipeline four miles from Portland, flowed into Gum Hollow Creek and then spread into Nueces Bay, said Koch spokesman Rich Tuttle.

A lightning strike caused a malfunction at the company's Three Rivers pumping station, freezing a valve and placing too much pressure on the pipeline, Tuttle said.

Investigators from the Texas General Land Office still are reviewing the spill, but for now they attribute the cause to a natural accident, land office spokesman Bob Mann said.

Koch workers corralled about 140 barrels of oil in the creek, but strong rains Saturday morning washed another 260 barrels of oil — or 10,920 gallons — down the creek and into the bay, Mann said.

On Sunday, about 100 workers were cleaning up oily mud in Indian Point Park, Corpus Christi Beach and Oso Pier.

NATION

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — Victoria Ingram is promising her heart to fiance Randall Curlee. She's already promised her kidney.

Ingram and Curlee plan to marry Tuesday and spend their honeymoon in the hospital, where a doctor will transplant one of Ingram's kidneys into Curlee on Wednesday.

Curlee, 46, who knew he needed a transplant, took Ingram to see his doctor so she would understand how his diabetes would affect their future.

The doctor warned that only 4,000 kidneys become available each year for the 36,000 people awaiting a transplant. Curlee's relatives weren't compatible as donors.

"Victoria said, 'Why don't you test me?'" Curlee said. "Both the doctor and I looked at each other, and we thought it was way off the wall."

They got tested and forgot about it. Then the phone rang.

"The doctor explained to us that our immune systems are identical, and that it was like winning the lottery," Curlee said.

"I feel gifted," said the 45-year-old Ingram. "It's something I can give him that we'll both enjoy."

Judge allows portions of taped statement

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

At noon today, a district judge was considering objections by defense attorneys to statements contained in a January interview conducted by local law enforcement officials with a man accused of capital murder.

District Judge Kent Sims listened to a one-hour audio tape this morning in which Gray County Sheriff Randy Stubblefield and District Attorney's Office investigator Bill McMinn questioned Henry Watkins Skinner on Jan. 4 about his involvement in the triple slayings of Twila Busby and her two sons on New Year's Eve.

Skinner is accused of bludgeoning Mrs.

Busby and stabbing her retarded sons, Elwin Caler and Randolph Busby Jr., at 804 E. Campbell near midnight on Dec. 31.

On the audio tape, Skinner repeatedly denies remembering clearly events of Dec. 31, although he admits drinking vodka and possibly arguing with Mrs. Busby during the afternoon. He strenuously denies killing Caler and Randolph Busby. He claims only a vague recollection of how he got to the Henry Street house where he was subsequently arrested about 3 a.m. Jan. 1 on unrelated warrants.

At one point on the tape, he says, "I remember one thing. I remember waking up on the couch and somebody was standing over me with a knife."

Later crying, Skinner says, "I can't imagine me trying to do anything to one of them boys."

Defense attorney Harold Comer objected to the admission of the audio tape, saying his client did not expressly waive his right to counsel before it was recorded, though Skinner did receive Miranda warnings.

He also calls the taped statement made at the Gray County Sheriff's Office a "product" of a Jan. 1 videotaped statement made at the Pampa Police Department, which Comer said was inadmissible because Skinner asked for and was denied counsel before the statement was given.

The statement on Jan. 1, given to Det.

Terry Young, Comer claims, was the product of an illegal arrest.

District Attorney John Mann argued there is no connection between the Jan. 1 and Jan. 4 statements.

Sims agreed to allow the audio taped statements, except those which refer to extraneous offenses for which Skinner is not charged. The judge noted he had "misgivings" about its references to the Jan. 1 video taped statement at Pampa Police Department.

At press time, Comer, Mann and Sims were deleting transcribed statements which referred to extraneous offenses and the Jan. 1 video statement.

Expected to be considered later today was a defense motion for a continuance.

Up a tree

In photo at right, Crissy, 2-year-old pointer bird dog belonging to Guy and Gwyn Clement, 1834 Grape, is up on a tree as she tries to get to the possum, pictured above, also up a tree. The action occurred this morning in the Clements' backyard after Crissy spotted the possum. Mr. Clement takes Crissy quail hunting at Wellington during quail season, but apparently the dog also is interested in a bit of possum hunting. (Pampa News photos by Darlene Holmes)

Carbon monoxide suspected in death of White Deer man

WHITE DEER — A member of a longtime Carson County farming family was found dead in his home Sunday, and sheriff's investigators this afternoon were awaiting results of an autopsy to determine if Kenneth Karl Kotara died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Kotara, 36, an uncle of Carson County Commissioner Tracy Kotara, was found dead in the garage of his home at 705 S. Grimes by sheriff's deputies who were called by neighbors shortly after 7 p.m. Sunday.

"There were indications of carbon monoxide contact, but we won't know for sure until after the autopsy," Sheriff Loren Brand said. "At this point, we don't know the source of the carbon monoxide, if that was the cause of death."

He said red marks on Kotara's chest were an indication that he might have been overcome by carbon monoxide.

Brand said there was no evidence that carbon monoxide might have come from a vehicle in the garage, nor was there any visible evidence of foul play.

Justice of the Peace Sharon Harper pronounced Kotara dead at the scene and ordered the body sent to Lubbock for an autopsy.

Brand said he did not expect results of the autopsy until late this afternoon.

He said Kotara apparently was alone at his home when he died.

Funeral arrangements are pending with Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors in Pampa.

Kotara was born in Pampa and was a lifelong resident of White Deer. He was vice president of Kotara Farms Inc. and was co-owner of Tri-County Feed & Fertilizer.

He was a member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church, where he had served six years on the Parish Council, the last two as president.

He was a member of the Frank Keim Council No. 2767 of the Knights of Columbus in Pampa, and was a long-time FFA sponsor and member of the White Deer Young Men's Club.

Survivors include three sons, Abe Kotara, Thomas Kotara and Travis Kotara, all of the home; his mother, Theresa Kotara of White Deer; three brothers, Maynard Kotara, John Alden Kotara and Gary Don Kotara, all of White Deer; and four sisters, Joy Grange of White Deer, Marilyn Voyles of Corpus Christi, Gaylene Blaylock of San Antonio, and Debbie Huff of Grand Prairie.

His father, John Kotara Jr., died in 1990.

Quake aftershock rocks town

MARKLEEVILLE, Calif. (AP) — An aftershock to a strong September earthquake shook the Sierra Nevada, but there were no reports of damage or injuries.

Sunday's quake measured 4.4 in magnitude and was centered about 11 miles north of Markleeville, near the Nevada border, according to the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park. It struck at 8:07 p.m.

Sarpalius calls report on contractor 'an outright fabrication'

Compiled from Staff and AP Reports

An angry U.S. Rep. Bill Sarpalius today called a newspaper report about his connection to an indicted moving contractor "an outright fabrication and a damnable lie."

At a press conference in Amarillo, Sarpalius questioned the timing of reports in the Houston Post and the Washington, D.C., newspaper Roll Call that said federal investigators seized documents that show the San Antonio moving company operator made payments to Sarpalius, two other members of Congress and a former congressman.

According to the reports, investigators are looking into the relationship between Sherwood Van Lines of San Antonio and Sarpalius, Rep. Greg Laughlin of West Columbia, Rep. Jim Chapman of Sulphur Springs and former Rep. Albert Bustamante of San Antonio. All are Democrats and all deny wrongdoing.

"I find it ironic and very suspect that someone manages to start leaking information, coupling a simple clerical oversight with some half truths and outright lies just a few weeks before an election," said Sarpalius, who is facing a strong challenge from Republican Mac Thornberry of Clarendon.

The Post said documents it obtained suggest that:

— Each congressman received a $2,500 check for attending a 1989 convention held in Las Vegas by Sherwood President Leslie Alfred Taber, although each reported receiving $2,000 — the congressional honorarium limit at the time.

— Each received more than $1,000 worth of gambling chips at the convention but never reported it.

— Laughlin, Sarpalius and Phil Duncan, Sarpalius' top assistant, paid less than full price for their moves by Sherwood from Texas to Washington, D.C.

Taber was indicted last month by a federal grand jury in San Antonio for allegedly illegally funneling $11,000 in Sherwood corporate funds to Laughlin, Sarpalius, Chapman, Bustamante and five other Democratic members of Congress.

All have pledged to return any illegal contributions.

As for the convention, Laughlin, Chapman and Bustamante reported $2,000 payments. Sarpalius didn't report anything until December 1993, after it became public knowledge Taber was under investigation. Sarpalius said that jogged his memory about the honorarium. He said he found no tax document showing he had been paid but acknowledged receiving money for his speech that he did not disclose.

The Post obtained copies of the invoices and check duplicates dated Dec. 28, 1988, from Sherwood. Each member's check was for $2,500. Laughlin and Sarpalius questioned whether that proves anything because they are not original canceled checks.

Sarpalius said he was not sure of the amount and did not rule out the possibility it could have been more than $2,000.

One item obtained by The Post that has been given to authorities is a copy of a list allegedly handwritten by Taber that details this distribution of gambling chips:

$1,500 each to Laughlin, Chapman and Duncan, $1,300 to Bustamante, and $1,100 to Sarpalius.

Sarpalius and Laughlin both said they wouldn't even know how to use the chips. Bustamante and Chapman also denied being given chips.

That allegation seemed to anger Sarpalius the most.

"Somebody is playing a vicious game here ... The slimy way this information is being leaked clearly is designed to damage me politically," he said.

Sarpalius said he met six months ago with investigators looking into Sherwood Van Lines and that he "cooperated openly and fully."

He said he heard no more about the matter until reports were published over the weekend in the Houston Post and in Roll Call.

Newspaper: Probe finds some deaths in construction avoidable

HOUSTON (AP) — The construction industry still can be hazardous, despite improvements in working conditions over the years, according to a study by the Houston Chronicle.

The Chronicle conducted a nine-month investigation of the construction industry, which employs more than 7 million full- and part-time Americans, including 400,000 Texans.

According to the probe, some, and perhaps many, of the deaths, illnesses and injuries in the construction industry are preventable, the newspaper reported Sunday in a copyright story.

Statistics suggest conditions are especially poor in Texas. New federal data show that Texas had more construction industry deaths than any other state in the 1980s, when 1,436 construction workers in the state died.

California and New York, with larger populations, had 990 and 481 construction deaths, respectively.

In 1992, the last year for which complete data are available, a total of 95 Texas construction workers died on the job — a rate 50 percent higher than the national average.

In addition, there is no way to know how many others developed work-related serious ailments, the Chronicle reported.

The federal Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that in 1992, 209,000 U.S. construction workers were hurt or sickened on the job to the extent that they lost time from work; another 903 were killed.

But the Occupational Safety and Health Administration stated in February that illnesses "are probably grossly underreported" in the construction industry.

In its investigation, the Chronicle interviewed more than 350 people and reviewed thousands of pages of industry, government, medical and legal documents.

Among the findings: — Some refineries, chemical plants and contractors along the upper Texas Gulf Coast still violate fundamental health and safety rules, such as providing proper respiratory protection for crafts workers in the presence of potentially lethal chemicals and ensuring that work permits clearly spell out any required protective measures. Since August 1991, for example, at least four workers in the region have died from exposure to hydrogen sulfide, a fast-acting toxic gas. Three of the four plant owners were cited by OSHA for serious violations.

Corporate officials knew decades ago about a variety of life-threatening chemical hazards at refineries and chemical plants but often failed to protect workers. The Chronicle obtained internal memoranda and studies that show a remarkable depth of knowledge about asbestos insulation, benzene and other compounds years before companies acknowledged even vague associations between these substances and disease.

Hispanics, who make up much of the construction work force in Texas and other states, may be at elevated risk of illness, injury and death because of language difficulties and employer apathy.

On the positive side, construction jobs are generally safer than they were decades ago, as companies have acknowledged dangers long denied or have been forced into safer practices by regulators.

Then there are the reasons workers in the building trades in Texas and throughout the United States continue to die, get hurt and fall ill at rates far above those in other industrialized nations and some Canadian provinces.

Denial or minimization of risk are commonplace not only among employers, but also among industry-oriented doctors and politically pressured government officials, the newspaper reported.

"There is so little sympathy for these people in our society," said Knut Ringen, director of the Center to Protect Workers' Rights, the research arm of the AFL-CIO's Building and Construction Trades Department. "There's a deep trait that goes through the American culture, and that is that once you're in a workplace you're part of production and the democratic rights you would typically take for granted do not operate."

Endeavour's radar collects 'bonus day' data

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The radar aboard Endeavour scanned ocean currents near the Antarctic Circle and forests in North Carolina today as scientists worked to make the most of the shuttle's extra day in space.

Endeavour was originally scheduled to land in Florida today after 10 days, but NASA last week extended the mission until Tuesday so the radar could conduct additional Earth mapping.

As of Sunday, the $366 million U.S. and European radar had collected enough data to fill nearly 52 miles of tape, officials said. It first flew in space aboard Endeavour last April.

Emitting microwaves in three frequencies to give images three-dimensional quality, the radar scanned the icy Southern Ocean for oceanographers examining waves and currents.

Other targets included Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula for a geology study and North Carolina's Duke Forest, where ecologists are attempting to map vegetation and determine seasonal changes.

Endeavour spent the weekend maneuvering to repeat its orbital path every 24 hours so mountains, forests and deserts could be scanned from the exact same spot in space on consecutive days.

Scientists will combine the images, taken from slightly different angles 127 miles up, to produce 3-D topographic maps accurate in elevation to within six yards. The best maps now are accurate to within 10 yards.

The six-man shuttle crew has kept busy by taking photographs and video to complement the radar images. About 14,000 frames of film are aboard the space shuttle.

U.S. reinforcements reach Persian Gulf

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first major U.S. air and naval forces were arriving in the Persian Gulf region today to try to deter Saddam Hussein from a repeat of his 1990 invasion of Kuwait, Defense Secretary William Perry said.

Perry said more than 200 Air Force warplanes were arriving in the Gulf area today, and a Navy carrier battle group entered the Red Sea, in addition to 28,000 American ground combat troops now committed to reinforcing tiny Kuwait.

He said an unspecified number of U.S. ground forces already had arrived there.

"We're putting ... forces there that are sufficient to soundly and decisively defeat any military moves he would make," Perry said in an interview today with AP Network News.

"If he sees that force, if he understands that we are prepared to use that force, then he should be deterred from any military action," Perry added.

In morning appearances on all the major TV networks, Perry stressed that while the Clinton administration was unsure of Saddam's motives, it was acting on the assumption that he would invade.

"If he continues in the direction he's going, it looks like the same buildup, in many ways almost an identical buildup to what he did when he invaded Kuwait before," Perry said on NBC. "We dare not assume other than he is preparing for another invasion."

Perry confirmed to CNN that Saddam would have nearly 80,000 ground troops in the vicinity of the Kuwaiti border if a third division of troops that has been detected moving in that direction actually deploys there with two other divisions. Other officials said one division is within 1.2 miles of the demilitarized zone separating Iraq and Kuwait.

"We take this action very seriously; we consider it provocative," Perry said.

Asked whether the United States would make a preemptive strike at Iraq, Perry said he would not rule that in or out. The defense secretary told AP Network News that President Clinton would not allow U.S. forces to get pinned down in the Gulf indefinitely.

"We will want to resolve the crisis quickly," Perry said.

Dick Cheney, who was U.S. defense secretary when Saddam invaded Kuwait in 1990, said today on NBC that the United States should launch missile strikes at Iraq if Saddam does not agree to reverse his troop buildup on the border.

"We ought to take the initiative," Cheney said, and tell Saddam he must back down "or we will strike." He suggested hitting Iraq's power grid and oil system.

U.S. officials have said the American ground, air and sea force could reach nearly 70,000 troops if all the troops now on alert are actually sent.

With the Iraqi leader's intentions still unclear, administration officials sought to dispel any notion that the United States would stand idly by if Kuwait is attacked, and suggested Saddam may already have done enough to provoke a U.S. response.

Madeleine Albright, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said Sunday that discussions were under way within the administration and with allies about "under what circumstances the regional instability" caused by the Iraqi deployments "becomes intolerable."

"The main message ... to Saddam Hussein is, 'Do not make a mistake. Do not cross that border. Do not create circumstances that will force us to act,'" she said.

Perry said two of Iraq's premier Republican Guard units were still moving into position and would not be ready to mount a strike against Kuwait until the end of the week.

It will take at least until the end of the week before the first major wave of U.S. ground troops would be able to reach the region, Pentagon officials said.

Clinton interrupted a Columbus Day weekend at Camp David, Md., on Sunday for a 90-minute meeting with his national security team at the White House.

Later, he called King Fahd of Saudi Arabia for what a White House official called "a very positive conversation" in which the king expressed agreement with Clinton's assessment of the "seriousness of the situation and the need to move quickly to deter any Iraqi aggression."

On Saturday, Clinton warned Iraq not to misjudge "American will or American power" to respond with decisive force in the Gulf despite the simultaneous deployment of a U.S. occupation force in Haiti.

Lake McClellan retention wall completed

A retention structure, designed to filter silt-laden lake water and built across a draw on the northwest side of Lake McClellan, has been completed, said Precinct 3 Commissioner Gerald Wright.

Begun in July, the 480-foot by 135-foot retaining wall created from an excavated bowl on the lake's north side is designed to hold up to 160,000 gallons of muddy silt dredged from Lake McClellan, filter water through it and return the silt-free stream to the lake.

The next step in readying the lake to hold water, creation of a dike inside the lake perimeter to act as a silt filter, is being undertaken by U.S. Forest Service employees who are staking out the location of the proposed dike.

Wright said county road scrapers are to be used to pile dirt from the lake bed to build the dikes. Upon completion, wet lake silt will be pumped behind the dikes for filtration and return to the lake.

recreation area, but concedes with a dry lake bed, prospects are slim. "Without water you don't have a lot for recreation," Wright said.

One long-range plan is to build an amphitheater at the lake, he said. Another project being considered is the construction of a camper's bath house.

In the future, he would like to see the lake's permit office turned into a U.S. Cavalry Museum or a George B. McClellan Museum.

"It would help the lake, too. You have a certain group of folks that go to museums," Wright said.

Gray County SWCD to have director election

An election of a district director to serve in Zones One and Two on the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District Board is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday at the Gray County Courthouse Annex, 2501 E. Frederic, in Pampa.

To be eligible to vote in a soil and water conservation district election, a person must own agricultural land within the district where the election is being held. The person also must live in a county all or part of which is in the district and the voter must be 18 years of age or older.

A candidate for the office must own land in the subdivision he or she represents, be 18 or older and be actively engaged in farming or ranching, plus meet the above qualifications for an eligible voter in the district.

SWCD directors serve four-year terms of office.

Zone One of the district includes an area from a line beginning at the southwest corner of Gray County and taking in an area bordered on the west by the county line to the line of Section 286, east along the section line to the northeast corner of Section 65, then south along the section line to the county line in Section 16, then west along the county line to the place of the beginning.

Zone Two includes an area from a line beginning on the south county line at the southeast corner of the Rockwall County School land of Gray County, then north along the section line to the northwest corner of Section 50, then 9 miles east along the section line to the southeast corner of Section 18, then south one-fourth mile to the southwest corner of Section 12, then east along the section line to the county line in the south line of Section 11, then south along the section line to the southeast corner of Gray County, then west along the county line to the place of the beginning.

Current members of the Gray County SWCD board are David Bowers, Pampa, chairman; Troy Ritter, Grandview, vice chairman; Tony Smitherman, McLean, secretary; and members James Shaw, McLean, and Terry O'Neal, Pampa.

The purpose of the Gray County SWCD, with headquarters in Pampa, is to promote sound soil and water conservation programs on agricultural lands within the district and to serve as a voice for farmers, ranchers and local community entities on conservation matters.

The district board coordinates the conservation efforts of various local, state and federal agencies and other organizations and has the authority to enter into working agreements with these governmental agencies and private concerns to carry out its purposes.

All conservation programs managed by the district are of a voluntary nature to the landowner or operator or other potential users of the SWCD's programs.

Persons with disabilities who plan to attend the zone election and who may need auxiliary aids or services, such as interpreters for the deaf and hearing impaired, readers, large print or braille are requested to contact Shonda Meadows at 665-1751 by Tuesday so that appropriate arrangements can be made.

Drill team captain's death mars homecoming

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — The message on J.J. Pearce High School's marquee this weekend as students arrived for the homecoming dance was a reminder not to drink and drive.

The lesson was learned tragically with the death of popular drill team captain Laura Welborne in an accident that police say involved alcohol.

School officials considered cancelling Saturday's homecoming dance, but Ms. Welborne's parents asked them not to.

Still, Ms. Welborne's Pacesetter teammates did not attend. Other girls came in dark dresses.

The 17-year-old senior died on a rain-slick road about 2 a.m. Saturday after she and her boyfriend, former Pearce football star Wade McFarland, left a post-game party.

McFarland, 18, was driving his Mitsubishi 3000 GT when it spun out of control and hit a tree. The Louisiana State University freshman walked away from the wreck and called paramedics.

Police say he had been drinking. He has been charged with intoxication manslaughter, a second-degree felony charge created under a new law that took effect Sept. 1. Previously, most accused of drunk driving when a death was involved were charged with the lesser charge of involuntary manslaughter, a third-degree felony.

McFarland's father arrived at the Welborne home Saturday to beg forgiveness, according to Ms. Welborne's sister, Jayme Welborne-Jones.

"He fell to his knees. He was crying because that shattered their lives," she said. "He said, 'I'm so sorry, I can't believe this happened.'" The younger McFarland also called the family after being released from jail on $2,500 bond.

Ms. Welborne's father said all he could do was listen.

"I don't feel any animosity right now, personally," Jim Welborne said.

As students arrived for the homecoming dance Saturday night, still displayed on the outdoor marquee was the message "don't-drink-and-drive."

School officials and the local chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving had tried to make the message relevant last week. On campus they displayed a car in which four students from Garland were killed in a 1991 accident that involved alcohol.

"I guess you watch the news programs and you always hear these stories," Welborne said. "It can happen to you. Know where your kids are."

District clerk now can accept faxed court materials for filing

The Supreme Court of Texas approved rules which allow the Gray County District Clerk's office to receive and file electronically transmitted court documents, said Clerk Yvonne Moler.

"I obtained approval of our district judges in March," Moler said. "I then presented our request to the Texas Supreme Court. After following up on it, I finally obtained formal approval on Sept. 14."

Supreme Court Order No. 9130 authorizes Moler to accept for filing by electronic transmission any document which might be filed in a court action except returns of service, bonds and signed orders or judgments.

The order requires the District Clerk's Office to have a plain paper facsimile machine that produces archival quality documents.

"Since we already have this equipment, we will be able to serve people and their attorneys better without any additional cost to Gray County," Moler said.

"The attorney will keep the original," she explained. "However, the fax we receive will be recognized as the original record for filing or evidentiary purposes when one of our deputies or I place the district clerk's official date and time file stamp on it."

"Fax filings will be required to be submitted on letter size paper," Moler continued. "It must be signed by an attorney of record, with his or her State Bar of Texas identification number, address, telephone number and telecopier number on the instrument. A cover sheet must accompany every transmission identifying the sender, the documents faxed, the number of pages and instructions to the District Clerk's Office."

"We will have more responsibility on a fax filing than on a regular filing," Moler said, "because our office is required to verify the completeness of the document before officially filing it. That decision will, in most cases, be based on my experience. If it is incomplete, our office will notify the sender that the fax has not been filed."

"We will continue to try to keep up with changes in technology and procedures that will assist us in serving the public," Moler said.

Loaned executive

Robert A. Smith, director of the Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority — Pampa Center, is volunteering his time to serve as a loaned executive during the 1994 Pampa United Way fund-raising campaign.

Smith worked with the 1993 campaign, co-sponsoring one of the volunteer workers check-in events and appearing on a radio interview to urge support for the Pampa United Way.

"I felt that the 1993 campaign did a good job of gathering wide support in the community, particularly from business," he said.

Smith has a master's and doctorate degrees in psychology. His other community involvement includes being a member of the Greater Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce and serving as a vol-

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP OF TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveyng commandment.

Open records change is ill-considered plan

State Sen. Florence Shapiro, R-Plano, wants to make it easier for governmental entities to skirt the Texas Open Records Act. This is a bad idea whose time should never come.

Shapiro proposes that city councils be allowed to secretly negotiate "economic development initiatives" with firms they want to lure into communities until a deal is ready for approval. "My concern is I don't want anything to hamper our ability to bring jobs to Texas," Shapiro said. Things such as ethics, fair play and legality, one could suppose.

Such a law would in essence be a nullification of the state's open records laws. If meetings where money and tax incentives are likely topics are not open, what then should be?

Shapiro qualified her proposal by stating that the legislation would require that all issues discussed in private meeting be made public prior to a vote on an agreement. So, once a deal is brokered, public input is sought? Now all groups involved will be truthful? And what of public input after the deal is already made?

Were citizens to disagree with the deal and their concerns registered, untold hours of meetings will have been a waste because public reaction was not considered or sought.

And what if the parties involved are not forthcoming? It is much easier to conceal the truth after meetings and dealings are complete and the public tacitly approves a deal.

We are not the only ones concerned by this proposal. For once, Common Cause in Texas has put forth a valid complaint. "I think taxpayers have a right to know if you're getting ready to give away the store in order to get a business to move into your locale," said Common Cause in Texas Executive Director Suzy Woodford.

Not only do the taxpayers deserve an explanation, they are entitled to a guarantee that all dealings are above board and legal.

There are already provisions that allow for some discussion of business contracts to be conducted in private meetings, as they relate to information that would give an unfair advantage to competitive bidders or information related to property affected by a forthcoming public announcement regarding a project or formal contract award. But those concern business dealings involving expending public funds, in which saving taxpayers' money is a valid issue. Awarding large tax breaks or spending public funds to purchase land or erect utility connections for private enterprise businesses is definitely a matter in which the public has an interest, especially if such deals would put a larger tax burden on others in the community.

Whether Shapiro is as naive as her ill-considered proposal suggests, or merely feels more responsibility to special interests than to her constituents, the idea is hopelessly flawed and should be laughed out of the Legislature, if it ever travels that far.

"I SAID — How would you like to be a juror at the O.J. trial?"

Reefer madness at the Bar

It was at the second presidential debate, and the questioner addressed both President Bush and challenger Clinton.

"On the question of drug policy, it's been suggested that perhaps drugs should be legalized, the policy advocated by Milton Friedman and William F. Buckley Jr." (Perhaps one has become a little sensitive on the matter, but the questioner pronounced the names of the advocates of legalization as though he was going to add, "... and Groucho Marx.")

The debaters heatedly distanced themselves from any such position, and when Clinton assumed office the war against drugs went on uninterrupted, though there was a blip on the screen when Joycelyn Elders, the surgeon general, blurted out at a press conference that perhaps our drug policies ought to be reinvented. The whole of the executive branch descended on Mrs. Elders with flame-throwers, leaving no doubt in anybody's mind that if she had been a white male, she would have found herself an ex-employee of the Clinton administration.

Given, then, the hard establishment position on drugs, it appears a fantasy what the Association of the Bar of the City of New York has come out with. The 50-page report is titled, "A Wiser Course: Ending Drug Prohibition."

There were dissenters in that august body of lawyers, but they turned out to be in the minority, and so we have, on the record, a recommendation by learned and experienced men and women that the nation pursue a different course from the 100-year war we have been fighting.

This was not a wild, extemporaneous session of the New York Bar. "In 1986, The Association of the Bar of the City of New York, responding to a general perception that criminal and civil sanctions against the manufacture, distribution or possession of drugs (was) not 'solving,' or even ameliorating, the problems associated with drug use in our society, formed a Committee on Drugs and the Law to study our current drug laws and to report its recommendations on the wisdom of such laws."

As a particular matter, the committee advocates the repeal of all federal legislation dealing with drugs, leaving it to the states to write their own policies. This will remind you of the 21st Amendment: When Prohibition was repealed in 1933, each state was left free to write its own liquor laws.

The bar committee's report is patiently and methodically set down, and the footnotes exceed in length the text. The lawyers describe the impact of the drug laws on the judicial system. In some states it has become all but impossible to schedule a civil action, so clogged are the courts with drug-related cases. Twice as many Americans are in prison today as 10 years ago.

The drug war has become a war against drug users, and the result is a serious and comprehensive contraction of civil liberties. The narcs can do almost anything to you if you are suspect, and the law permits extraordinary penalties. The corruption is legendary — police, prison officials and, one reasonably supposes, magistrates. To what end?

The committee asks that question undogmatically. Are fewer drugs being consumed on account of the federal laws? No. Is it obvious that if drugs were legalized, the rate of drug consumption would dramatically rise? No — only 2 percent of Americans say they don't use drugs because they are illegal.

Aren't drug prosecutions paying off? No, they are not. Sending a man to prison for a year costs twice as much as sending him to a treatment center, where he has, on the record, up to a 70 percent chance of kicking the habit.

Aren't we rightly concerned over the violence that would result from legalization? But such violence is problematic — there are only two drugs associated with violent behavior. What there is a great deal of is violent and anti-social behavior by men and women who in order to sustain their illegal habits are engaged every day in theft, mayhem, prostitution and the communication of sexually transmitted diseases, including to children.

As with the attempt to do away with alcohol, "drug prohibition is also a failure that causes more harm than the drug use it is purportedly intended to control. ... The Committee recognizes the urgent and compelling need to make additional resources available for education and treatment. We believe that even at increased levels, however, treatment and education are not enough to control this country's drug problem. The Committee opposes the present prohibitionist system and recommends the opening of a public dialog regarding new approaches to drug policy, including legalization and regulation."

I swear, those mouthpieces at the New York Bar sound like John Brown.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Oct. 10, the 283rd day of 1994. There are 82 days left in the year. This is the Columbus Day holiday, as well as Thanksgiving Day in Canada.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Oct. 10, 1973, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, accused of accepting bribes, pleaded no contest to one count of federal income tax evasion, and resigned his office. (Agnew's successor, appointed by President Nixon, was Michigan Rep. Gerald R. Ford.)

On this date:
In 1813, composer Giuseppe Verdi was born in Le Roncole, Italy.

In 1845, the U.S. Naval Academy opened in Annapolis, Md.

In 1886, the tuxedo dinner jacket made its American debut at the autumn ball in Tuxedo Park, N.Y.

In 1911, revolutionaries under Sun Yat-sen overthrew China's Manchū dynasty.

In 1913, the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans commingled in the Panama Canal after U.S. engineers blew up the Gamboa Dam.

Finding our way back to Mayberry

Since television ran away from home, it has been wandering, searching, trying to find its way back — to Mayberry.

These days, no matter what I'm watching, I'm unfulfilled.

I can close my eyes and smell the crayon in Miss Crump's classroom. I can smell the bay rum in Floyd's Barbershop. But when I open my eyes, I see mostly mayhem.

And, as Charlene Darling would say, "That makes me cry."

From our weekly visits to Mayberry, we learned tolerance for Otis Cambell's weakness, we learned compassion from Opie's misused slingshot, and we were introduced to soft-love at Meyer's Lake.

The bumbling Goobers among us learned that we may still be smarter than anybody when it comes to fixin' cars.

Barney Fife, taking himself so very seriously, was a mirror reflection of most of us.

And Sheriff Andy Taylor understood.

Mayberry, where are you now, when we need you so?

Those of us who grew up with patchwork quilts, square-head nails and gourd dippers would be considered poor by today's ways of measuring.

Paul Harvey

But how rich we were back home in Mayberry! Might television ever find its way back to Mayberry?

Is the image of a father and son going fishing hand-in-hand too trite or too provincial for contemporary palatability?

One might think so, except the episodes remain evergreen in reruns after 35 years.

After all these years, the bullet in Barney's pocket still evokes a smile. After all these years, we recall the tedious front-porch deliberations between Barney and Andy over which flavor ice cream to choose.

City folks, intimidated, are seduced by drifters. Buddy Ebsen as a hobo was helped to discover his own conscience — in Mayberry.

Remember the impatient city visitor with "no time to spare," who ended up in the porch swing singing "Church in the Wildwood"? Opie slept on the ironing board that night. "Adventure sleeping," he called it.

Today, we laugh at one another. In Mayberry, we cared about one another. That was confirmed even in the way the writers wrote around Floyd's incapacity.

An observation that this professional people-watcher considers more impressive is that everybody for whom Mayberry was home might have been assumed by cynics to be play actors.

Yet, each, in real life, turned out real good. Aunt Bee remained in character until death did us part.

Whatever it was about that small town Brigadoon appears to have become an indelible influence on those who lived there — and on us, who visited.

Television owes us. And that accruing debt will be amortized, at least in part, if it keeps Mayberry alive against the day when "behave yourself" and "love your neighbor" come back in style.

Gridlock is not the best way to govern

I have often inveighed against what I consider the American people's bad habit of voting for a president of one party and a Congress controlled by the other.

In the old days, if the voters wanted a Democratic president, they gave him a Democratic Congress to pass his program. Then, in four years, if they didn't like what the Democrats were doing, they threw him out and elected a Republican president and Congress instead.

Of course, it wasn't always easy for the winners. Congress might refuse to give a president what he wanted, even if they belonged to the same party. After all, FDR failed to get his court-packing plan through the very Congress that was elected with him in the biggest landslide in history.

But such exceptions merely proved the rule. It is only in the last 50 years that it has occurred to a lot of voters that voting for a president of one party and congressmen of the other not only proves their independence but cleverly sets the two branches of government against each other, for all the world like two scorpions in a bottle. If this results (and it always does) in "gridlock," those same voters are capable of complaining piously about politicians who won't work together "for the good of the country" — which they themselves have just been busy undermining.

William A. Rusher

In 1992 I expressed the hope that voters would end the then-existing state of gridlock (between a Republican president and a Democratic Congress) by electing a president and Congress of the same party. At least we would be spared the sight of every presidential proposal being pronounced "dead on arrival" on Capitol Hill, while Congress passed all sorts of gaudy vote-getting giveaways in the comfortable knowledge that the president would veto them.

On Election Day the voters obliged me: We now have an all-Democratic government. But Mr. Clinton's record with Congress, albeit better than Mr. Bush's, leaves a lot to be desired. A number of bills that only a Democrat could love (e.g., the bill that enables a welfare recipient to register to vote while picking up his monthly check) have indeed been enacted into law. But the president's budget passed by a single vote; his NAFTA "victory" was handed him by the Republicans over the prostrate bodies of Democratic majorities in both Houses; and his "non-negotiable" health care bill is as dead as Caesar's ghost. Are we back to gridlock, despite the voters' best efforts?

I am, of course, delighted that Hillary's health care plan (for example) is a goner, but that is because I am generally a supporter of the Republican Party and its principles. But I disagree emphatically that "government by gridlock" is intrinsically a good thing, as many conservatives are now beginning to argue. For that is premised on the proposition that rational self-government is essentially impossible in this day and age, and I am not quite ready to concede that.

President Clinton is a victim of gridlock because of the piebald complexion of the Democratic Party in Congress. In order to achieve any legislative victories at all, he has had to make commitments to the Congressional Black Caucus that have fatally compromised his ability to rally Democratic majorities for other major policy initiatives. To pass his budget, for example, Mr. Clinton had to promise the black caucus that he would return President Aristide to Haiti by force if necessary. American lives will now be laid down to redeem that unforfeitable pledge.

Before we give up on democracy, though, let's give the Republicans a chance to show what they can do.

Lifestyles

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: It is a national disgrace that the United States has the highest fire death rate of any country in the industrialized world.

In recent months, we have all heard or read about devastating fire deaths. A number of firefighters have been killed this year, and recently eight children under 14, who were left home alone in Illinois, died in a house fire. As president of the International Association of Fire Chiefs, I am asking your readers to think seriously about fire prevention.

Every October during Fire Prevention Week, we encourage the public to change the batteries in their smoke detectors ("Change your clock, change your battery").

But you can do more to protect your family and home. I urge your readers to consider installing residential fire sprinklers. There has never been a multiple loss of life due to fire or smoke in a building equipped with a sprinkler system. For less than what homeowners pay to install carpeting, they can install an instant firefighting system that could save children, adults, senior citizens — even the family pet. (Part of the cost can be recouped through reduced homeowner's insurance premiums, but more important, sprinklers are the best life insurance policy money can buy.) It is a small price to pay to protect the lives of loved ones.

Abby, your readers should also be encouraged to stay in motels and hotels equipped with sprinkler systems. They should demand that facilities such as nursing and retirement homes have the same fire protection. Every year, senior citizens in these facilities die needlessly because they can't move fast enough to escape.

For readers who may think that sprinkler systems are conspicuous and ugly, or fear they may go off accidentally and ruin their homes, the newer systems are inconspicuous, and the chance of a sprinkler going off accidentally is only one in 16 million!

Individuals and families must take responsibility for their own lives. Installing a sprinkler system is the best way of fulfilling that responsibility.

CHIEF TOM SIEGFRIED

DEAR CHIEF SIEGFRIED: The fact that there has never been a multiple loss of life due to fire in a building with a sprinkler system is one every family should take into consideration.

Readers, for a free copy of "Fire Sprinkler Facts," write to: Operation Life Safety, 4025 Fair Ridge Drive, Fairfax, Va. 22033-2868. (Please allow eight weeks.)

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the grandmother who resented people asking how old she is:

I, too, am a grandmother, and I also look younger than I am; but when people ask me how old I am, I give them my sweetest smile and say, "I'm old enough to know the score, and young enough to enjoy the game."

MARY IN HOUSTON

DEAR ABBY: Regarding people who ask how old I am, I have a ready answer. I add five years to my age; then they say, "Really? You look great for your age!" I smile and say "Thank you."

SIDNEY KONIGSBURG, HOLLYWOOD, FLA. P.S. I'm only 76.

DEAR ABBY: I have the perfect answer to "How old are you?" Being 61, I reply, "I am celebrating the 40th anniversary of my 21st birthday." It gives the questioner something to think about — and also answers a dumb question.

Fashion is returning to a pretty look

By TOWN & COUNTRY
A Hearst Magazine
For AP Special Features

Fashion is fed up with grunge, neopunk and Plain Jane clothes and is returning to a pretty look.

The modern spin on prettiness is not about frills and fluffiness, however, Suzy Menkes wrote in an article in the current issue of Town & Country, but about softening streamlined clothes in shape, color or fabric.

Runways at the fall collections were filled with curvy jackets in sweet potpourri pastels and sophisticated plaids. Black was swapped for rich shades of brown, drab and droopy fabrics were banished in favor of the lush and plush — deep-pleat velvet, shaggy fake fur and gossamer-light mohair.

Skirts were on the rise, fluttering in gauzy pleats or flaring into an A-line that takes modern life in stride.

"I see a real change — I see a new woman," said Calvin Klein, whose collection featured graceful frocks and simple cardigans.

"Grunge was a moment, and it's over. What I am doing is a reaction to the baby doll, which makes fun of women. The whole thing is getting cleaned up in a new way. With the way I think clothes are going, feminine has to be important. Fashion should be sophisticated, modern and sensual. It's about a woman, not a child."

A feminine backlash has now come from all the leading designers, in interpretations as varied as Armani's jackets with soft-as-butter structure and Romeo Gigli's poetic colors and exotic patterns. Ralph Lauren showed cobweb-fine mohair blazers; Valentino, a curvy crepe cardigan over a slip dress; and Chanel, wisps of chiffon bordered with a racing stripe. The dress made sense as a body-conscious wrap from Donna Karan.

The easiest way for a modern woman to take to the dress is at night. For the fall season, the evening dress flowered with a crop of young American designers, including Bradley Bayou, Pamela Dennis, Badgley Mischka and Victor Alfaro, whose slim dresses in sugared-almond pastels or slinky black lit up with diamonds.

In Paris, Britain's John Galiano showed slithery bias-cut dresses.

Carolina Herrera described the quicksilver satin columns of evening dresses that finished her fall show as "clean, very modern glamour." In daytime, too, there are signs fashion is heading uptown. Marc Jacobs, whose flirtation with grunge caused the breakdown of his design alliance with Perry Ellis, presented a glamorous comeback collection with elegant hairstyles and makeup, real diamond jewelry and high-heeled shoes.

Isaac Mizrahi celebrated an exuberant femininity with bright, sweet colors, airy tulle skirts, vivid shearing jackets and fake furs. They were mixed in with simple suits in flecked tweed and plain tailoring, brightened with forsythia yellow or hyacinth blue blouses.

Designers who never succumbed to grunge include Valentino, whose clothes have never looked fresher, perkier or prettier. Yves Saint Laurent abandoned his signature tailoring this season in favor of pretty clothes scattered with print of roses. Oscar de la Renta, both in his own line and for Balmain in Paris, went for traditional elegance.

De la Renta noted that the trouble with the avant-garde is "the discrepancy between clothes and price," and Arnold Scaasi agreed, saying: "Of all the things that have gone on in the last year, one or two are wonderful for little girls of 17 to 23 with outstanding figures — but these clothes should not be retailing at $3,000, they should be $150."

The museum will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for the Fall Foliage Festival weekend.

Telling the story of losing their adopted child

Losing Jessica by Robby DeBoer

On August 2, 1993, Robby and Jan DeBoer were forced to give up the young daughter they had raised from infancy two and a half years before to her biological parents. Now, for the first time, and for the sake of children everywhere, DeBoer tells her own story. By telling what actually happened and what it all means, Robby hopes to change laws that now favor nature over nurture so that they begin to reflect the best interests of the child, which is what the institution of adoption was meant to do all along.

Brando: Songs My Mother Taught Me by Marlon Brando

The personal memoirs of a two-time Academy Award winner reveal his modest beginnings in Nebraska, his world travels and social commitments, and his experiences with friends, lovers, and professional colleagues. The author speaks of his enduring refusal to conform to public and professional expectations, an independence that has given way to rumor and misconceptions. He discusses his natural curiosity, his social activism, and his unwavering support of UNICEF and Native Americans. Additionally, he offers his personal appraisals of the people and performances in such films as A Streetcar Named Desire, Last Tango in Paris, and The Godfather.

Hollywood Kids by Jackie Collins

Jackie Collins deals bluntly with America's favorite hometown, and with the adult offspring of Hollywood royalty. Jordanna Levitt, the strong-willed daughter of a legendary producer, lives her life on the wild side — always searching for love. Bobby Rush, the son of a screen legend and himself an actor, has always lived in his father's shadow, until fate intervenes and he stars in an exotic thriller. And their friends, partners in privilege, are living out their American dream — until a murderer stalks them, and everyone's life is changed forever when a New York detective comes to town with a yen to reach the truth.

One True Thing by Anna Quindlen

When Ellen Gulden learns her mother has cancer, the disease is already far advanced and her father insists that Ellen come home to take care of her mother. Ellen has always been the special child, her father's intellectual match. Yet as Ellen cares for her mother, she learns many surprising things about her mother's life and the choices she made. She suddenly also sees the father she idolized as a vain, pompous, womanizing boor. As her mother's pain increases, so do the dosages of morphine — and when her mother dies, Ellen finds herself accused of murdering her mother in a mercy killing. Ellen is innocent — but she believes she knows who did it.

Tallos: Lives of the Mayfair Witches by Anne Rice

Ann Rice continues her universe-making, legend-building epic of the Mayfair dynasty of witches. In this third book of the sage, the Mayfairs help a lovelorn mystical being overcome a curse. Ashlar, who runs a successful doll company, belongs to a race of tall, super-intelligent, human-like beings he betrayed in the sixth century and he now is cursed to live forever loveless. Rowan and Michael Mayfair meet Ashlar in Europe, where he is searching for a soul mate to continue his lineage.

Nothing Lasts Forever by Sidney Sheldon

Readers are swept into the frenetic world of a big San Francisco hospital and into lives of three women medical residents. Dr. Paige Taylor inherited a million dollars from a patient, only to be charged with murder. Dr. Betty Lou Taft knew she needed more than brains to make it in medicine. And Dr. Kat Hunter swore never to let a man too close again. From the life-and-death decisions of the operating room to the tension-packed fire-works of a murder trial, the story surges toward an unpredictable ending.

Chargers down Chiefs to stay unbeaten

By MIKE FLAM
Associated Press Writer

The San Diego Chargers are dressing the way they did in 1961, and they're playing the same, too.

For the first time in 33 years, San Diego is 5-0, and the Chargers got there by holding Joe Montana and his Kansas City Chiefs without a touchdown for the second straight game.

Wearing their "throwback" sky-blue jerseys and white helmets with yellow lightning bolts, the Chargers beat Kansas City 20-6 Sunday to remain the NFL's only undefeated team. The victory gave them a two-game lead in the AFC West.

NFL roundup

"Being on top of the NFL, there's a lot of pressure on us," San Diego linebacker Junior Seau said. "Joe Montana is a legend. This is a big accomplishment. I've never been 5-0 in my life."

The Chargers had been 0-8 in regular-season games against Kansas City since sweeping the series in 1989. Their only victory was a 17-0 wild-card playoff win in 1992.

A career-high 125 yards rushing by Natrone Means and a defense that held Montana without a touchdown pass in 55 attempts were the keys. It's San Diego's best start since the 1961 team opened 11-0 and reached the AFL championship game.

"It definitely gives us confidence, because I guess this is the game that a lot of people were really judging us by," Means said. "This game kind of sends the message around the league that the Chargers are for real."

In other games Sunday, Denver beat Seattle 16-9, San Francisco downed Detroit 27-21, Dallas crushed Arizona 38-3, Philadelphia beat Washington 21-17, the Los Angeles Raiders edged New England 21-17, Chicago beat New Orleans 17-7, Green Bay took the Los Angeles Rams 24-17, Buffalo defeated Miami 21-11, the New York Jets downed Indianapolis 16-6 and Atlanta beat Tampa Bay 34-13.

Minnesota visits the New York Giants tonight. Cincinnati, Cleveland, Houston and Pittsburgh had byes.

Broncos 16, Seattle 9
Denver (1-4) broke a seven-game losing streak dating to last season, leaving Cincinnati as the NFL's only winless team.

John Elway scored on a short run, and Jason Elam kicked three field goals for the Broncos.

"I feel good for the players," coach Wade Phillips said. "They've come back from a lot of adversity. Now that we've got that first win, maybe it'll get the team rolling."

The host Seahawks (3-3) lost three fumbles, and Rick Mirer was intercepted twice.

49ers 27, Lions 21

At Pontiac, Mich., San Francisco (4-2), coming off a 40-8 embarrassment by Philadelphia, won its fifth in a row against Detroit (2-4). Fullback William Floyd ran for two touchdowns in his first NFL start.

"Nothing is easy for us right now, but we're hanging in there," 49ers quarterback Steve Young said. "It's not easy being down 14-0 on the road, but we've got some guys on the team who have been around a long time. We know that we didn't need to scream and panic. We just had to get going."

Cowboys 38, Cardinals 3

Buddy Ryan's seven-game hex on Dallas ended with his worst loss as an NFL head coach. Emmitt Smith, playing despite a sore right hamstring, scored twice and Troy Aikman threw two touchdown passes as the Cowboys (4-1) snapped a seven-game losing streak to Ryan.

Smith ran only nine times for 22 yards before leaving at halftime.

Jay Schroeder threw three interceptions in the first half for the visiting Cardinals (1-4), who suffered five interceptions overall.

Eagles 21, Redskins 17

Philadelphia safety Greg Jackson intercepted Heath Shuler's pass at his own 3 with 47 seconds remaining to keep the Eagles (4-1) in a tie for first in the NFC East.

Rookie Charlie Garner had his second 100-yard game in two weeks, rushing for 122 yards on 28 carries as the Eagles won their fourth in a row.

Shuler finished 10-for-27 with 186 yards and two touchdowns for the visiting Redskins (1-5).

Raiders 21, Patriots 17

At Foxboro, cornerback Terry McDaniel returned an interception for a touchdown, and the second of his three pickoffs set up the deciding score as Los Angeles (2-3) stopped New England's three-game winning streak.

Drew Bledsoe, who entered the game as the league's passing leader, threw for 321 yards as his fifth 300-yard passing day of the season for New England (3-3).

Bears 17, Saints 7

Steve Walsh remained unbeaten in three games as Chicago's starting quarterback.

Walsh directed two long second-half scoring drives, passing

Chargers' running back Natrone Means gains 23 yards before being dragged down by Chiefs' defender Mark Collins in the fourth quarter Sunday. Means rushed for 125 yards and a touchdown as the Chargers won, 20-6. (AP photo) for 174 yards, and Lewis Tillman rushed for 100 yards and a touchdown for the Bears (4-2).

Morten Andersen, one of the best kickers in NFL history, struggled with his footing at Soldier Field and had two field goals blocked for the Saints (2-4).

Packers 24, Rams 17

At Green Bay, Jerome Bettis, the NFL's No. 2 rusher, was held to 65 yards rushing on 22 carries as Green Bay (3-3) recovered from a 17-3 halftime deficit by scoring 21 straight points. Robert Brooks returned a punt 85 yards for a touchdown.

Bettis had four consecutive 100-yard games for the Rams (2-4).

Bills 21, Dolphins 11

Thurman Thomas ran for two touchdowns as Buffalo (4-2) won at home and moved into a first-place tie with the Dolphins (4-2) in the AFC East.

Thomas, who sat out last week with a sprained knee, ran 31 times for 125 yards — his fourth consecutive game with more than 100 rushing yards.

Dan Marino was 20 of 43 for 212 yards.

Jets 16, Colts 6

New York (3-3) snapped a five-year home losing streak against Indianapolis (2-4) in a game marked by inept offenses.

Backup running back Adrian Murrell keyed the decisive scoring drive late in the final quarter with a 19-yard run, and Boomer Esiason hit Johnny Mitchell with a 1-yard TD pass for the Jets' first TD against the Colts in three years.

Nick Lowery kicked three field goals, moving into second place on the NFL career list with 336.

Falcons 34, Buccaneers 13

At Atlanta, Vinnie Clark returned interceptions 74 and 21 yards, and Craig Heyward scored two touchdowns in his first start of the season in the Falcons' third straight victory.

Jeff George threw two touchdowns passes. Heyward rushed for 87 yards and a pair of short touchdowns as Atlanta (4-2) took a 24-0 lead late in the first half.

Tampa Bay (2-4) failed again to win two straight for the first time since the first two games of the 1991 season.

Pampa netters rout Caprock

Canadian crushes Highland Park

HIGHLAND PARK — Canadian, the defending District 2-2A champions, rolled over Highland Park, 42-7, Friday night in the district opener for both teams.

"It was a big win for us," said Canadian head coach Paul Wilson. "I was real tickled with the outcome."

Leading 20-7 after three quarters, the Wildcats put Highland Park away with a 22-point fourth quarter.

"We missed several opportunities to score in the first half and the third quarter," Wilson said. "We had a lot of turnovers and I wasn't real happy with that, but we made up for it by playing so aggressive and so hard."

Fullback Kevin Flowers rushed for 234 yards and scored four touchdowns to lead Canadian's attack. For the game, Canadian had 410 yards in total offense.

Canadian's defense — led by ends Cecilio Sanchez and Bryan Rupprecht, tackles Paul Graham and Cameron Coffee, middle linebacker Jason Folke and Flowers at noseguard — forced four turnovers and limited Highland Park to just 92 yards on the ground.

Canadian's last two touchdowns were scored by Thomas Ruiz on a 15-yard run and by Phillip Childress on an 11-yard run.

Canadian boosted its overall record to 4-2 while Highland Park dropped to 1-5.

The Wildcats host Clarendon at 7:30 next Friday night.

Wheeler 14, Sunray 13

WHEELER — Wheeler won a 14-13 squeaker over Sunray in a District 1-1A opener Friday night.

The score was tied 7-7 in the first half with Travis Stevens scoring Wheeler's touchdown on a 20-yard run in the first quarter.

Wheeler went ahead, 14-7, in the third quarter on a 17-yard run by Dusty Case.

Robert Vargas scored for Sunray on a five-yard run, but a missed extra point kept Wheeler in the lead, 14-13.

Wheeler finished with 200 yards total offense while Sunray had 142.

Wheeler is now 2-4 for the season while Sunray is 4-2.

Wheeler plays at Shamrock at 7:30 Friday night.

Seminoles hope to start another run

By STEVEN WINE
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Florida State knows it's possible to win a national championship with one loss.

The Seminoles did it last season, and now they'll try to do it again. Florida State fell to 4-1 by losing 34-20 Saturday at Miami. The defeat dropped the Seminoles from third to 11th in the latest rankings, moving them out of the Top Ten for the first time since 1990.

Coach Bobby Bowden still harbors hopes of repeating as national champs.

"Miami got beat by Washington, and I'd have to put them back into contention," Bowden said Sunday. "Now we've been through the same thing, and I hope we can make another run."

"I told the kids, 'What is the difference now from a year ago after Notre Dame?'" Last season, Bowden's team lost to Notre Dame in November and still finished No. 1.

The Hurricanes (4-1) derived a much-needed boost by beating Florida State. They climbed from 13th to eighth in the rankings and answered critics who said the program had slipped from its status as a perennial powerhouse.

Instead, Miami maintained its mastery over Florida State. The Hurricanes have won eight of 10 games in the series; seven of the Seminoles' 13 defeats since mid-1986 have come against Miami.

"Personally I would rather lose to Wake Forest than lose to Miami, because I have to come back home and hear from everybody how we lost to Miami," said Seminoles defensive tackle Tyrant Marion, a South Florida native.

The Hurricanes were 3 1/2-point underdogs on their own field. But they've now beaten Florida State five consecutive times in the Orange Bowl since the Seminoles' last win there in 1983.

Miami has handed Bowden his first loss in a season eight times.

"It says something for us, because there's not much difference in the quality of athlete," Hurricanes quarterback Frank Costa said. "We truly believe we can beat them every time we play them. I'm not sure they believe they can beat us every time we play."

Despite doubts about Miami around the nation, middle line-backer Ray Lewis had predicted a blowout by the Hurricanes. And they did indeed dominate.

"When I made that quote, the boys told me they were going to back me up," Lewis said. "This victory wasn't a surprise."

It was to many who had watched the Hurricanes' two previous games. Their 58-game winning streak in the Orange Bowl ended against Washington, and a lackluster victory at Rutgers followed.

"It doesn't look like the same club I saw against Rutgers or Washington," Bowden said. "You saw the Rutgers film and said, 'Hmm, maybe they're missing a link; maybe they're going downhill.' But they don't look any different than in the other years I've seen them."

Miami limited the Seminoles to 47 yards rushing and intercepted passes from Danny Kanell three times. The junior was pulled from the game in the second half, but his replacements fared no better.

Bowden said Kanell will start again for the Seminoles in their next game Oct. 22 against Clemson.

"The one thing we did find out from the ballgame is that we have the quarterbacks rated correctly," Bowden said. "Danny Kanell is the first-team quarterback."

Costa, meanwhile, earned a measure of redemption with a solid performance, completing 18 of 32 passes for 177 yards. He lost his starting job following a defeat at Florida State last year.

"I don't know who's happier for me — myself or my teammates," Costa said. Miami has a bye this week and plays at West Virginia on Oct. 22.

Holy Bull is main topic at Breeder's Cup Preview

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Racing Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Holy Bull wasn't on the card. He wasn't even in the state. He was, however, the topic of conversation on Breeders' Cup Preview Day at Belmont Park.

One of those talking about the Bull in the wake of Tabasco Cat's fourth-place finish Saturday in the Jockey Club Gold Cup was D. Wayne Lukas, the Cat's trainer.

"I haven't conceded anything, but that's not my nature," Lukas said. "But if Holy Bull is Horse of the Year, I'll stand up at the awards dinner and applaud him."

Lukas almost certainly will get the chance to applaud Holy Bull as 3-year-old champion and Horse of the Year.

The trainer admitted, "I felt we were in a position where we needed to win to sway the vote."

Tabasco Cat will complete his fine 3-year-old campaign in the Breeders' Cup Classic on Nov. 5 at Churchill Downs. His rivals will include Colonial Affair and Devil His Due, who finished first and second, respectively, in the 1 1/4-mile Gold Cup. Colonial Affair won by two lengths.

Holy Bull's 3-year-old campaign concluded with his monster win in the 1 1/8-mile Woodward Sept. 17 at Belmont. The gray colt is spending October at Keeneland in Lexington, Ky.

While Tabasco Cat's fourth-place finish disappointed Lukas, Kentucky Derby-winner Go for Gin's last-place finish in the nine-horse Gold Cup field absolutely puzzled trainer Nick Zito.

The performance still was a mystery Sunday because, Zito said, no physical problems were found after the colt was X-rayed and examined. Go for Gin is scheduled to run in the Breeders' Cup Classic.

Lukas's disappointment, however, was eased by a pair of 2-year-olds talented enough to earn him ovations at the Eclipse Awards dinner.

Timber Country was impressive in winning the 1-1/16-mile Moet Champagne for 2-year-old males, and Flanders was brilliant in winning the 1 1/16-mile Frizette for juvenile fillies.

Flanders, ridden by Pat Day, dominated three rivals in winning by 2 1/2 lengths in a time of 1:43.45, a fifth of a second faster than Timber Country's head victory over Sierra Diablo in the 11-horse Champagne.

"I think she's the best (2-year-old) of either sex racing right now," Lukas said of Flanders, winner of three straight Grade I races and unbeaten in four starts.

Flanders should be the shortest-priced favorite in any of the seven Breeders' Cup races when she competes in the Juvenile Fillies.

Timber Country is a solid contender in the Juvenile Colts, but that race appears wide-open.

Another probable Breeders' Cup winner to come out of Saturday's races is Lure, despite his nose loss to Nijinsky's Gold in the 1-mile Kelso Handicap on the grass.

Jockey Mike Smith appeared to believe Lure has the race won in midstretch and was caught napping. Lure carried 128 pounds and spotted 14 pounds to the winner.

Lure will spot no or few pounds to his rivals when he tries to win the Breeders' Cup Mile for third straight year.

"We knew this was our chance; with 14 pounds, we knew if he could outrun Lure, today was the day," said Stanton Powell, Nijinsky Gold's owner. Nijinsky Gold, a gelding, would have to be supplemented to the Mile for $120,000, and apparently won't run.

Lure is trained by Shug McGaughey, who saddled the 3-year-old Heavenly Prize for a 6-length win over stablemate Educated Risk in the 1 1/8-mile Beldame for fillies and mares. Her third straight Grade I stakes win makes Heavenly Prize a leading contender for the tough Breeders' Cup Distaff, where her rivals will include Sky Beauty, Lakeway and Hollywood Wildcat.

The France-based Tikkanen, who beat Vaudeville by a neck in the 1 1/2-mile Turf Classic, apparently will skip the Breeders' Cup Turf.

Sooners couldn't solve Longhorns' quarterback

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Longhorns were underdogs for the sixth straight year heading into their annual Dallas matchup with Oklahoma.

But they've won five of those six, and in doing so have made life miserable for Sooners coach Gary Gibbs.

"It's a very disappointed locker room," Gibbs said after Saturday's 17-10 loss. "I thought the key to the game was the play of James Brown. You definitely have to acknowledge his play. That and our inability to get the ball into the end zone is what killed us."

The heroes for No. 12 Texas (4-1) were Brown, a redshirt freshman quarterback making his first start, and a beleaguered defense that came up with two goal-line stands in the fourth quarter.

Brown had only played 11 downs and hadn't thrown a pass entering the game, but started for injured Shea Morenz and played brilliantly. He completed 17 of 22 passes for 148 yards and a touchdown, and ran for the Longhorns' other TD.

He killed the Sooners (3-2) with his bootleg passes and his ability to run and finished with 51 yards on nine carries.

"I didn't want to be a failure," said Brown, who found out he was starting just minutes before kickoff. "I was more anxious than scared."

Brown showed tremendous poise, especially considering it was his first start and it came in one of the most emotional games on both teams' schedules.

"We couldn't be more pleased and happy for him," coach John Mackovic said. "We said all along we could not afford to get away from our main game plan. I think James played every bit as well as we could have hoped for."

Texas' defense, which entered the game ranked 81st in the nation, made its biggest plays late in the fourth period.

The Sooners got their chance to win following a 41-yard completion from Garrick McGee to P.J. Mills that put the Sooners at the Texas 17. Three plays later, Oklahoma had a first-and-goal at the 6.

A run by fullback Jerald Moore moved the ball to the 3. Then McGee had a pass knocked down and nearly intercepted. On third down, he scrambled for no gain.

On their final play, the Sooners put tailback James Allen in the right slot and handed him the ball on a reverse to the left side. Texas linebacker Robert Reed came up and forced Allen to turn inside, where 343-pound noseguard Stonie Clark tackled him at the 1.

"You let us be one-on-one with somebody, and I don't know what else you could want," offensive coordinator Watson Brown said. "I'm not sure James wouldn't have got it, if somebody else hadn't come back and got him."

"Whether it's a good call or not, I don't know. It wasn't a good call because it didn't work."

Allen said the Sooners had worked on the play during practice last week and it worked as designed.

"I thought I made that person miss me," he said of Reed. "But they had backside penetration, and once they saw the flow going that way, they made a good play."

"That's what makes it hurt. You can either be the hero or the goat. I guess I'm the goat because I didn't score," James said.

Hatfield proud of the way his Owls came back

By JOHN MCFARLAND
Associated Press Writer

Rice coach Ken Hatfield returned to Southwest Conference play for the first time in five years — and he remembered how to win an SWC game.

Hatfield won 36 of 46 conference games while coaching then-league member Arkansas from 1984-89.

But that record wasn't doing him much good Saturday as Rice, which had won just two conference openers since 1975, trailed Texas Tech by a touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Then Josh LaRocca hit Ed Howard with an 11-yard TD pass to cap a 10-point comeback that gave Rice a

Two Americans awarded Nobel Prize in medicine for cell 'switchboard' study

By THOMAS GINSBERG
Associated Press Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two Americans won the Nobel Prize in medicine today for discovering an internal "switchboard" in cells that has helped scientists understand such killer diseases as diabetes and cholera.

Alfred G. Gilman and Martin Rodbell, who will split the $930,000 prize, were the first to identify proteins called G-proteins and the role they play in letting cells react to signals from other cells, said a statement from the Nobel Assembly at the Karolinska Institute.

"It is like a key component in a telephone switchboard," said Dr. Bertil Fredholm, a professor of pharmacology at the Karolinska Institute. Their discovery was "a complete surprise and it solved a number of problems," he said.

Although their research hasn't produced any treatments for the diseases, the institute predicted ultimately it will.

Gilman, 53, is chairman of the department of pharmacology at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas.

"I'm awestruck. I'm more excited than I've ever been," Gilman said today.

Rodbell, 68, is a scientist emeritus at the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences in North Carolina. He retired May 31.

According to the statement, the scientists made a "paramount" discovery that helped scientists understand the way cells handle information they receive from each other.

The scientists found once a cell has received chemical signals by means of surface proteins called receptors, G-proteins transmit and modify these signals within a cell to produce the cell's response.

Problems with G-proteins — too many or too few of them — can lead to disease. The name G-protein was chosen because it "binds" guanosine triphosphate, or GTP.

In some common diseases such as diabetes and alcoholism, scientists have found some symptoms may be due to bad signaling within the cell through G-proteins. Mutated and overactive G-proteins are found in some cancerous tumors, the statement said.

In cholera, toxin from cholera bacteria keeps one G-protein switched on like a stuck green light. That prevents salt and water from being absorbed from the intestines, which can lead to dehydration and death.

The scientists made the discovery while working separately from the 1960s to the mid-1980s. Rodbell and his team was working at the U.S. National Institutes of Health at the time, while Gilman was working at the University of Virginia at Charlottesville.

The medicine prize is awarded to scientists whose work is thought to have most benefited humankind. Like the other Nobel science awards, it usually honors basic research.

In recent decades, the prize usually has been shared by more than one scientist, a reflection of the growing interdependence and competition among researchers around the globe.

Most of the medicine prize winners — now 71 out of 157 — have been American. Only 19 other nations can claim a Nobel medicine prize winner. Britain has 23, Germany 14 and France eight. The former Soviet Union under Communist rule won none, with the last Russian winning in 1908.

The first medicine prize was given along with three other awards in 1901, endowed by Alfred Nobel, a Swedish industrialist and the inventor of dynamite who believed that society could advance best through science.

The economics prize, established in 1968, will be awarded Tuesday. Two prizes will be given on Wednesday, for physics and chemistry.

The Nobel Peace Prize — widely expected to be given to someone involved in last year's Mideast peace treaty — will be announced Friday.

Hamas says it was behind deadly attack in which armed Arabs opened fire on street

By GWEN ACKERMAN
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — The militant Islamic group Hamas claimed responsibility today for a terror attack in which two Arabs armed with assault rifles and hand grenades opened fire on a street crowded with outdoor cafes, killing two people and wounding 13 before being cut down.

The Palestinian attackers killed an off-duty Israeli woman soldier and a Palestinian bystander. One of the wounded was a U.S. diplomat, identified by the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv as Scott Dobberstein, 33, of Gary, Minn. Dobberstein was hit by grenade fragments.

Police and private citizens with handguns returned fire and the two assailants, who wore red bandannas and carried AK-47 Kalashnikov rifles, fell dead in the stone-paved Yoel Solomon Street shortly before midnight.

U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher called on PLO leader Yasser Arafat to reaffirm his commitment to the peace process by strongly denouncing the attack and acting "as firmly as he can against that kind of incident."

"I think Chairman Arafat should respond and condemn it strongly," Christopher said. "That is part of his commitment."

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, who has threatened to slow the expansion of autonomy for Palestinians unless Arafat reins in the militants, said "we will fight Hamas with all our might and will not let them harm the peace process."

Faisal Husseini, the PLO's spokesman on Jerusalem affairs, condemned the killings on Israel radio, saying the PLO was against the "killing of civilians, whether Israelis or Palestinians."

He called for expansion of Palestine Liberation Organization authority in the West Bank as a way to stop attacks and contended the PLO was doing all it could to prevent violence. "We cannot have full security when we do not have full control," he told The Associated Press.

Angry Israelis gathered at the shooting site today as shopkeepers and cafe owners swept up glass and children gathered around a tree trunk to dig out a bullet. Some cafes reopened and served breakfast.

Youths shouted slogans against Rabin for making peace with the Palestinians. "Rabin go home," shouted a group of about 20 teenagers.

In a leaflet sent to news agencies today, the Muslim fundamentalist group Hamas said the attack came in revenge for the Oct. 8, 1990, shooting of 17 Palestinians by Israeli police during clashes outside Jerusalem's Al Aqsa Mosque.

"Our bold military operations will not cease as long as there is an Israeli soldier left on our occupied land," the Hamas leaflet said.

The leaflet identified the assailants as Hassan Abbas from the Gaza Strip and Issam Muhana Ismail Jawhari from Egypt.

Israel radio said Jawhari was a PLO policeman who arrived from Egypt recently. PLO police denied Jawhari was a policeman, and Hamas officials said Jawhari, 24, was an Egyptian national who came to Gaza on a tourist visa in July and frequented the Sheik Radwan mosque, a center of Islamic militants.

Abbas, who spent two years in jail for being a Hamas activist, was the former driver of Imad Aql, a Hamas leader killed by Israeli soldiers last year, Palestinian and Israeli sources said.

WT to hold Wind Energy Workshop on Friday

CANYON — The West Texas A&M University Alternative Energy Institute (AEI) will offer a Wind Energy Workshop from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center in Amarillo.

On-site registration will begin at 8:30 a.m.

"The purpose of the workshop is to familiarize farmers, ranchers, electric cooperative representatives, public representatives and wind farm developers with the status of wind farms," Kenneth Starcher, AEI research associate, said. "We want to help people be informed about what wind farms can do for you."

According to Starcher, developers are now leasing land in the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles, Eastern New Mexico and the Trans-Pecos region for wind farms beginning at 40 megawatts. The cost of the Trans-Pecos project is estimated at $40 million.

The workshop will cover the basics of wind power generation using modern utility-sized wind turbines, wind characteristics and estimation of energy production. Economics and siting requirements of wind farms and the past history of the industry will also be presented.

Afternoon sessions will include discussions with landowners, utilities, developers and government representatives.

"We will help participants understand that wind farms are a legitimate business proposal and the expected return on investment," Starcher said.

Workshop presenters will be Starcher and Dr. Vaughn Nelson, a member of the Texas Energy Coordination Council, an 11-member council that makes recommendations on energy policy to the state, director of AEI and interim dean of the WTAMU Graduate School.

Conference sponsors include Southwestern Public Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture Research Service, American Wind Energy Association, Texas Energy Coordination Council, Texas Solar Energy Society and Sustainable Energy Development Council.

Cost of the workshop is $30 per person preregistered and $35 on site. Cost includes conference sessions, brochures and refreshments at breaks.

For more information or to make reservations, contact Starcher at (806) 656-2295.

The WTAMU Alternative Energy Institute is the state's primary source of information on wind energy.

Cedras expected to resign as army leader

By MITCHELL LANDSBERG
AP National Writer

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Three years ago, Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras joined a military coup to oust Haiti's first freely elected president. Now, squeezed by Haitian demands for democracy and by U.S. military might, his turn to leave has come.

Cedras' resignation as army leader — another milestone in Haiti's turbulent history — should clear the way for the return of exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

Cedras, who along with Brig. Gen. Philippe Biamby and police chief Michel Francois, ousted Aristide, has vowed to remain in the country. His presence in Haiti would present security and political problems to Aristide and the U.S. troops here to restore the elected government.

One of the three military leaders, Francois, fled last week to the neighboring Dominican Republic and took up residence in a Santo Domingo suburb with his family.

Cedras and Biamby face intense U.S. pressure to leave Haiti.

Defense Secretary William Perry told AP Network News today that he expected Cedras to leave Haiti a day or two after resigning. Biamby, like Cedras, also will resign, Perry said.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Stanley Schraeger said this morning that among the countries that could take in Cedras would be Panama, Spain, Argentina or Venezuela.

He also said he could not rule out the possibility of the United States as a future home for Cedras. The spokesman said the United States did not have any indication of when or even whether Biamby would leave Haiti.

Anticipation and anxiety are rising as Haiti prepares for what is sure to be an emotional — and potentially volatile — homecoming for its first elected president.

"We know it's going to be some very, very busy days," said Capt. Max Gutierrez of Indio, Calif., an American military police officer. Aristide is expected to return by Saturday, the Oct. 15 deadline Cedras and the military leaders agreed to resign in order to avert an American military invasion.

A spokesman for the Haitian high command, Col. Jean-Robert Gabriel, said Cedras will transfer power today in a simple ceremony to the army's No. 2 commander, Maj. Gen. Jean-Claude Duperval.

The ceremony comes nearly a year to the day since Cedras reneged on a U.N. plan for his replacement, when Cedras' allies staged a demonstration that persuaded President Clinton to withdraw the USS Harlan County, a warship carrying soldiers that would have helped enforce the U.N. plan.

Duperval, a 47-year-old former metropolitan police chief, is widely expected to be a short-term leader; a colonel with closer ties to the pro-democracy movement is likely to be promoted to carry out the Aristide-mandated reduction of the army from 7,450 soldiers to 1,500.

Physical Therapy Month

Gee Santos, right, a physical therapist with Shepard's Crook Nursing Agency, works with a patient at the patient's home through home health services. Physical therapists and physical therapist assistants in Pampa are joining with others across the nation in observing October as National Physical Therapist Month. Whether at home, in hospitals or at other facilities, physical therapists help 900,000 individuals daily to restore their health and alleviate pain. (Special photo)
