Good Evening!

AREA

PAMPA — A pair of Gray County residents were arrested Thursday and charged with robbery in connection with a Wednesday incident in which they allegedly forced a woman to write them a check for money they claimed she owed them.

Arrested about noon Thursday were Nancy Mata, 18, and Robert Manuel Rodriguez, 28, both of HCR 28 Box 359, who stand charged with robbery. They are in Gray County jail in lieu of $10,000 bond each. Melinda Forsyth told Gray County deputies she was attacked in her pickup truck at Moody Farms, east of Pampa on Texas 152, about 8:15 p.m. Wednesday after the pair demanded money they allege Forsyth owes them.

Forsyth, fearing harm, wrote them a check for the money, said Lt. Jess Wallace of the Gray County Sheriff's Office.

She suffered scratches and abrasions, he said.

DUMAS — A 16-year-old Cactus boy was being held by juvenile authorities today following a high speed chase that ended in Amarillo.

A Dumas police spokesman said today that officers tried to stop a 1981 one-ton Chevrolet pickup about 3:30 a.m. today in the 100 block of North Maddox street. Police said the truck had been reported stolen.

Officers said they chased the truck from the north side of Dumas to Amarillo reaching speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour. Law enforcement officials said police units from Dumas, Cactus and Amarillo joined in the chase along with deputies from the Moore, Potter and Randall County sheriff's office.

The chase ended, officers said, when the truck apparently blew an engine near the intersection of Arden Road and Interstate 27 on the south side of Amarillo.

PAMPA — St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church school will have a Fall Festival Friday, Nov. 4, at the church's school at 23rd Street and the Perryton Parkway.

Scheduled from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m., Friday, the festival will include a spaghetti dinner beginning at 5 p.m., games and food booths, according to Jana Meyer, home and school president for St. Vincent's. Raffle tickets for the Dallas Cowboys-Washington Redskins game will be available, she said.

"It's our big fund raiser for fall," Meyer said.

PANHANDLE — The 15th annual Veterans Day presentation in the Panhandle community is scheduled for 8:30 a.m., Friday, Nov. 11, in the high school auditorium.

The program will feature students from kindergarten through 12th grade with speaking roles by eighth grade students. About 300 elementary school students under the direction of Herilyn Laramore are scheduled to give a musical salute to the different branches of the nation's military services, school officials said.

Patriotic music by the Panhandle High School band under the direction of Tim Youree is also scheduled, as is music by the junior high and high school choirs under the direction of Kathy Bertrand.

Twenty-eight eighth graders will perform a flag drill, officials said.

WORLD

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — It was not exactly the sweet smell of success.

The curtain came down early after the orchestra abandoned a performance at the Sydney Opera House under a hail of candy thrown by students.

The Australian Ballet and Opera Orchestra was two hours 20 minutes into the Australian Opera's performance of La Traviata when a shower of Kool Mints on the orchestra pit damaged a $30,000 viola.

Music lovers in the audience of mostly children were disgusted.

"It was absolutely appalling behavior," said Geraldine Evans, who had traveled 180 miles from Canberra to take a second-row seat. "A few little hoodlums spoiled it for everyone."

Mrs. Evans said she heard "pings" from the orchestra pit minutes before 69 musicians walked out.

About 1,000 elementary and secondary students attended the performance of the Verdi opera.

Pampa man injured in crash with deputy

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

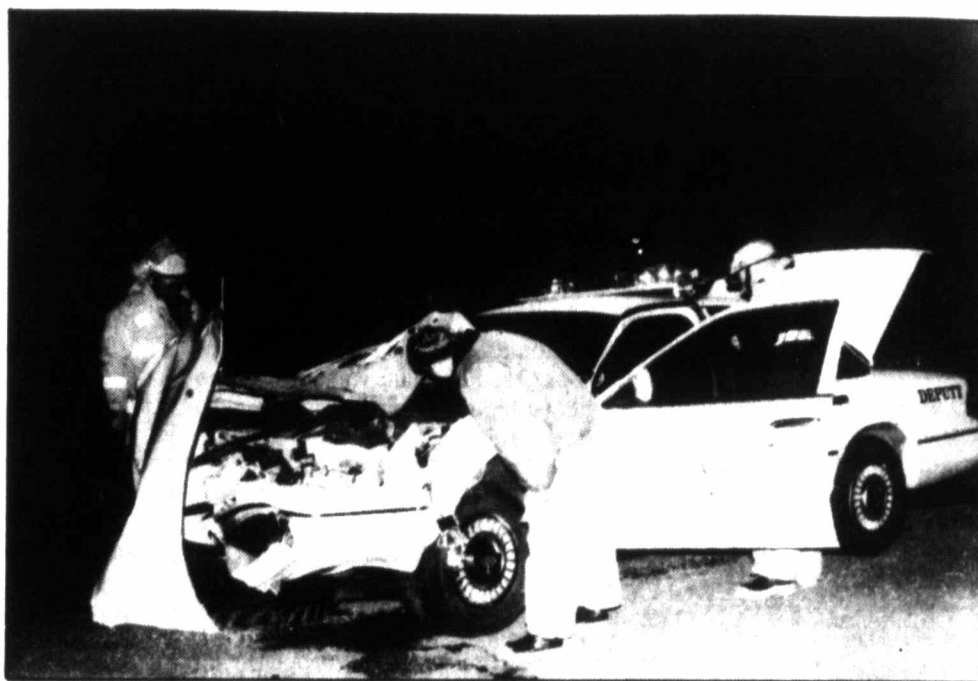

A Pampa man is in satisfactory condition at Coronado Hospital today and a Gray County deputy suffers minor injuries after the pair collided on Texas 70 across from Harvester Lanes about 11:40 p.m. Thursday.

Hospitalized is Garlynn "Gator" Thibodeaux, 22, 1327 Coffee, who was transported by American Medical Transport ambulance after the 1969 Chevrolet pickup he was driving and the 1993 Crown Victoria Walker was driving crashed.

Walker, transported by Gray County Sheriff Randy Stubblefield to the hospital, was treated and released. Walker suffers scratches and bruises, the sheriff said. Both vehicles are totaled.

It is expected Thibodeaux will be arrested today on a charge of driving while intoxicated, said Department of Public Safety Trooper Johnny Carter who is investigating the accident. Definitive results on a blood test will be available in mid-November, the trooper said.

Walker, deputies Paul Sublett and Steven Lewis, Stubblefield and Carter were southbound on Texas 70 to join other law enforcement officers on Interstate 40 in pursuit of stolen bobtail truck headed to Gray County from Carson County, Carter explained.

Officers, serving warrants on grand jury indictments, heard Carson County radio traffic asking for more law enforcement help along the interstate and they headed that direction, Stubblefield said today.

The interstate pursuit ended about midnight with the arrest of Ellis Hyatt, Yuma, Ariz., at the intersection of Texas 70 and Interstate 40. He remains in Carson County jail in lieu of $30,000 bond charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, evading arrest, driving while intoxicated - second offense, and aggravated assault on a public servant (see related Page 1 story).

Carter said today the five law enforcement vehicles were driving about 70 miles per hour with emergency lights activated at the time of the crash. When Sublett came up behind Thibodeaux, Carter said, the deputy hit the siren twice and Thibodeaux went to the west shoulder of the highway and Sublett passed to the left.

Walker began to pass also, said Carter, when Thibodeaux turned left toward the bowling alley parking lot.

"Just nearly in the center, it was a little in the north bound lane," Carter said of the impact.

Carter said he didn't consider the speed of the vehicles excessive.

"No, I was right behind them. My opinion's no. We could have been running 100 miles per hour," the trooper said.

Other facets of the collision continue under investigation, he said.

Walker was wearing a seat belt and the airbag in the car activated, Carter said. Thibodeaux was not wearing a seat belt. He was ejected from the pickup and discovered in the parking lot of the bowling alley, the trooper said.

Stubblefield declined to discuss specifics of the accident, referring questions to the Carter and the Department of Public Safety.

Driver of grain truck in Carson County jail after I-40 chase

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

The driver of a grain truck was in Carson County jail today following a 20-mile chase by law enforcement officers down Interstate 40 late last night.

Ellis Hyatt of Yuma, Ariz., was in Carson County jail today after being charged with aggravated assault, driving while intoxicated and evading arrest in Gray County. Gray County Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge set bond for Hyatt at $30,000. Charges are pending in Carson County, officers said.

Department of Public Safety officers said the Carson County Sheriff's Office received a 911 emergency call about 11:15 p.m. Thursday concerning a grain truck owned by an Amarillo manufacturing firm that was eastbound on Interstate 40. The caller reported from near Conway that the truck was driving erratically and trying to run other motorists off the road.

Trooper Christopher Ray found the truck, officers said, and tried to stop it about 11:30 p.m. on Interstate 40. Ray said he chased the truck for two miles at speeds not exceeding 45 miles per hour before Carson County Deputy Jeff Oldham joined the chase. Department of Public Safety Trooper Gary Davis from Groom also joined the chase as did Carson County Sheriff Loren Brand and Deputy Sgt. Ray Davis.

Officers tried to stop the truck, authorities said, as they sped down the Interstate at 55 to 60 miles per hour. Brand said the truck kept trying to ram the law enforcement cars.

"We were just hoping to get him off the interstate," Brand said. "The fog was setting in."

The truck left Interstate 40 and drove eastbound from Exit 114 east of Groom, officers reported, when Trooper Ray fired three rounds from his service revolver into the right rear tires of the truck. Officers said the truck made several attempts to run the pursuing law enforcement vehicles off the road. The truck was brought to a halt when Ray fired one round from his shotgun into the left rear dual tires of the fleeing vehicle.

Brand said he feared the truck might crash into a car on Interstate 40.

"We were worried that he might hit a car filled with a family and kids," Brand said. "A truck that big is hard to take out."

Officers reported that by midnight, the driver of the truck had been arrested and taken to the Carson County jail, where he remains in lieu of bond.

Cisneros hearing delayed

LUBBOCK (AP) — Attorneys postponed a hearing on Henry Cisneros' motion to quash his former mistress' attempts to view certain documents.

The hearing, originally ordered for Friday morning, has not been rescheduled.

The U.S. Housing Secretary claimed in his court motion that producing the documents would be unreasonable and cumbersome. Those documents in question include payroll and telephone records, flight logs and appointment books.

Linda Medlar is suing Cisneros for breach of contract and fraud. Ms. Medlar claims the former San Antonio mayor broke an oral agreement to pay her $4,000 a month for damages she suffered when news of their romance became public in 1988.

Cisneros has denied that a contract existed.

Don't forget to turn back hands of time

WASHINGTON (AP) — For most Americans it's nearly time to fall back into the sack and get that hour of sleep they lost when time changed last spring.

That extra hour — a boon to everyone except night-shift workers — arrives at 2 a.m. Sunday as most of the nation returns to standard time.

The shift in time originated during World War I and the fighting over the semiannual clock changes hasn't let up since.

At this time of year the change benefits morning people, with an hour of daylight shifting from the evening to the morning. To do that clocks are turned back — for example from 2 a.m. to 1 a.m.

Having that hour in the evening during summer's longer days provided extra time and light for picnics and recreation, and some daylight-time boosters have advocated using that measure all year, as a means of saving energy on nighttime lighting.

In addition to changing the clocks, public safety experts are again encouraging another change — putting new batteries in home smoke detectors.

The International Association of Fire Chiefs wants replacing smoke and fire detector batteries to become as common a ritual as changing the clocks, in an effort to reduce the nation's fire death toll.

Explosion rocks refinery, killing at least one worker

WESTLAKE, La. (AP) — An explosion this morning at the Conoco oil refinery here killed at least one worker and sent three others to hospitals. The blast rattled buildings a quarter of a mile away.

The death was confirmed by Teresa Wong, a spokeswoman for Conoco's Houston office. The person's identity was not immediately available.

Six workers were treated at the scene for minor injuries, Wong said.

Three others were taken to area hospitals with apparently minor burns, said Conoco spokeswoman Cathy Derifield at the Westlake facility.

She said the explosion occurred in the catalytic cracking unit of the refinery while it was being started up.

"It had been down for two weeks for maintenance and they tried to restart it," Wong said.

The 8:20 a.m. blast sparked a fire at the refinery but the Calcasieu Parish Emergency Planning Office said it was soon contained.

Westlake Postmaster Charles Thompson said the explosion could be felt at the nearby post office.

"We're pretty close, about a quarter of a mile away," Thompson said in a telephone interview. "It jarred the doors."

Thompson said there was a thick cloud of dark smoke immediately after the explosion, but "it's getting thin now."

Thompson said he re-routed letter carriers in the area after local television stations broadcast a warning from plant officials to avoid the plant.

There were no reports of evacuations outside the plant, however, and plant manager Jim Leigh said there were no signs of pollution off the plant site.

Stolen household goods recovered

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
 News Editor

Two pickup truck loads of stolen household goods have been recovered from a North Wells home after law enforcement officers, executing a search warrant Thursday, found the loot covering tables, in boxes and stuck in corners of the residence.

Arrested Wednesday and charged with burglary of a habitation at 901 S. Osborne was Andrea Collins Horton, 42, 1052 N. Wells. She was freed on $10,000 bond Thursday.

Horton was arrested in the Osborne Street house about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday by Pampa Police Department officers initially called to the scene.

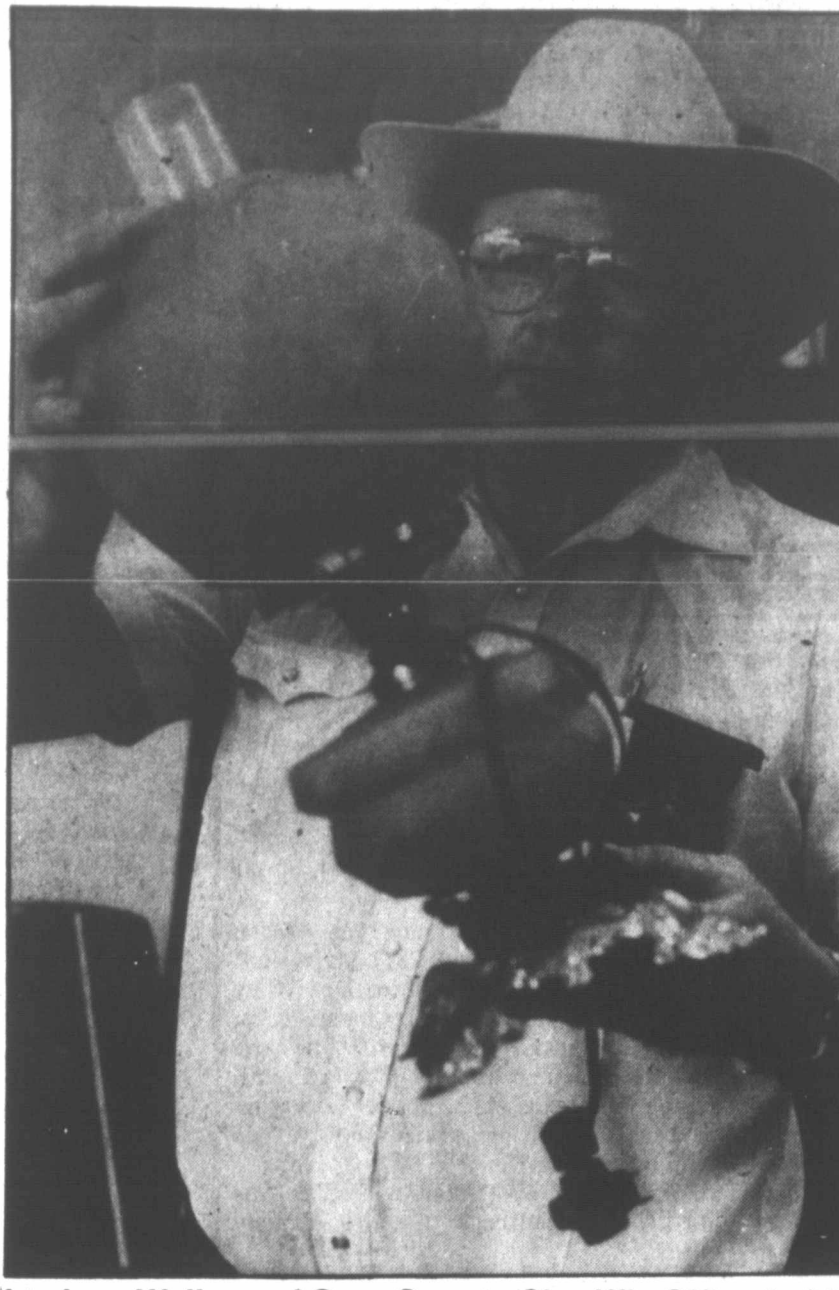

She was turned over to county officers and booked into Gray County jail when it was determined the house was in the county, said Lt. Jess Wallace of the Gray County Sheriff's Office.

When deputies went to Horton's home about 3:15 p.m. Thursday, Wallace said he asked Horton which of the goods came from Osborne Street and she pointed them out. He believes deputies didn't recover all the property taken from the residence.

The goods will be returned to the owners at the conclusion of the case, Wallace said. There are other suspects in the burglary which continues under investigation, he said.

Recovered items include sewing supplies, jewelry case, ash trays, doilies, a Duncan Phyfe table, table cloths, butter and candy dishes, lamps, bottles, hats, desk, gas fireplace, recipe box, canisters, luggage, quilts, two pictures, shelves, railroad light, three purses, bed spread, stools and Christmas lights.

"Antiques as high as they are, I'd say $3,000 to $4,000, something like that," Wallace said of property's value.

Wallace and Deputy J.R. Walker executed the warrant and were assisted by deputies Paul Sublett and Larry Wallis.

For 40 years he served as livestock superintendent for the Amarillo Tri-

State Fair and the Amarillo Livestock Show. He retired from those positions in 1992.

In 1982, he was named first director of the newly created High Plains Food Bank. His other endeavors included reorganizing Potter County 4-H Clubs and creating new programs for them, serving as secretary and show manager for the Panhandle Hereford Breeders Association and as administrative assistant for the Amarillo Production Credit Association.

He had served as president of the Texas County Agricultural Agents

Association and in 1981 was recipient of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service's first Distinguished Performance Award.

He was a native of Coryell County and served in the U.S. Navy during World War II. He received his bachelor's degree in 1949 from West Texas State College at Canyon and earned a master's degree in 1951 from Sam Houston State College in Huntsville.

Moler, West running for district clerk post

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS

The question of experience is the one issue which marks the November contest for district clerk, according to Democratic incumbent Yvonne Moler.

Moler was appointed district clerk by Judges Kent Sims and Lee Waters in 1991 to replace Republican Vickie Walls, who resigned 11 months into her term. Moler was elected on her own in 1992. She worked in the office nine years before her election.

Voters need to consider the quality of the candidate, whether they are knowledgeable in office duties and the law as it applies to clerk operations, Moler said.

Yvonne Moler

size of other district clerk offices in similarly sized counties, Moler said. The office is open during the noon hour.

Moler's campaign literature notes she returned $23,000 of a $150,000 budget to the county in 1992. When asked about the return Moler said she tried to eliminate a deputy position but found she was unable to keep the office open for lunch, cover vacations and illnesses and keep filing up to date. The deputy position was filled in 1993, Moler said, because she felt filling the job rendered more efficient service.

Moler says she has voted in both Republican and Democratic primaries.

"I always feel I vote for the candidate who is most qualified for the job regardless of party affiliation. When I was working for a Democrat I always voted for my boss. I felt I owed them that loyalty," she said.

Bobbie West, Republican candidate for district clerk, says she's not afraid of hard work.

West, employed as secretary to Pampa Independent School District's assistant superintendent Jane Steele, believes she can take over the job of district clerk though she has not worked in that office previously. West said she has visited the district clerk's office in Potter County, but not the Gray County office.

The candidate graduated from Floydada High School and attended the University of North Texas and Texas Tech for one year each. She worked in a bank, as a receptionist for Malcolm Hinkle Inc. and then signed on with Pampa Independent School District.

Her number one qualification for the job is possession of people skills, West says. She worked nine years as secretary at Austin Elementary School, dealing with children, parents, faculty and staff. Since transferring to Carver Center two years ago as Steele's secretary, she said she learned word processing. The office also deals with attorneys and teachers, she said.

Her experience with legal affairs includes learning state-mandated rules for school districts.

"At the district clerk's office, I guess if you have a boss it's the law books," West said.

Experience with budgeting includes keeping up with supply and curriculum accounts for teachers at Austin Elementary, West said. She now watches expenditures for curriculum, consultants and Region XVI for Steele, West explained.

On the question of supervision, West responded at Austin she took care of children's and teachers' needs - coordinating teacher/parent conferences, getting messages to students.

"I don't know if you'd say that's supervising but I took care of the doctoring when the nurses weren't there," the candidate said.

She doesn't anticipate replacing the four current employees in the district clerk's office unless she discovers problems.

"That's part of the job, managing personnel and working with the judges and lawyers," West said.

West is not a lifelong Republican.

"I've voted both ways through the years ... I think I'm becoming more conservative through the years," she said.

HHS to test home visits for teen welfare parents

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal government is launching a three-year experiment to test whether sending local case workers into the homes of teenage parents on welfare can improve their chances of becoming self-sufficient.

Donna Shalala, secretary of Health and Human Services, announced Thursday that the government would spend $1 million this year to begin the home-visiting projects in five communities: Chicago; Portland, Ore.; Dallas; Montgomery County, Ohio, including Dayton; and Baltimore.

HHS expects to spend $3 million over the next three years on the demonstration. The Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation will contribute about $1 million to finance an evaluation of the project.

The home visits will target teen parents participating in the federal Job Opportunities and Basic Skills (JOBS) training program, which provides parents on welfare with education or job training.

Kevin Concannon, director of the Oregon Department of Human Resources, said the home visitors will be "friendly mentors."

Linda Rae, a planning specialist with the Texas Department of Human Services, said she hopes the home visits help the women become better parents, decrease the number of repeat pregnancies, and encourage preventive health care.

The experiment will test the feasibility of including weekly home visits in the JOBS program. Visits will be made by staff members who work with the JOBS case managers, and they will try to establish a close relationship with the mothers and their children.

HHS said the demonstrations would attempt to improve the health, economic, social and personal well-being of the families. Home visitors will provide instruction and guidance on parenting skills, family planning, health care and child support.

"There is evidence that the presence and active participation of a caring adult is often the critical factor which influences positive outcomes for teens," said Mary Jo Bane, assistant secretary for children and families.

"This demonstration is an example of our continued efforts to assist teen parents who are at risk for long-term welfare dependency," Bane said.

But Robert Rector, a welfare expert with the conservative Heritage Foundation, criticized the study as ineffective.

"This proposed study is trivial and will have no effect on the No. 1 crisis facing America today, the collapse of the American family," Rector said. "President Clinton has predicted that within the foreseeable future, half of all American children will be born out of wedlock, yet he proposes no policies to address this crisis."

"Face Off" is a series of stories designed to let local candidates tell readers why they want to hold elected office and what they believe the issues to be. The Pampa News will feature opposing candidates from now until election day, Nov. 8.

Early voting is being conducted on the first floor of Gray County Courthouse. It will continue through Nov. 4.

The office is required to manage $345,000 in trust funds which are invested per court order, act as custodian for court records, file all court papers, issue subpoenas, temporary restraining orders and warrants, and compile court minutes. The district clerk provides records management services and acts as financial officer and jury manager. Office personnel collect and disburse $1.5 million in child support payments.

President Clinton addresses U.S. troops in Kuwait

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

DOHA, Kuwait (AP) - At a desert U.S. outpost near the Iraq border, President Clinton today signalled his determination to deter any repeat of Saddam Hussein's 1990 invasion. "You are the steel and the sword of American diplomacy," he told American forces.

In searing heat, Clinton stood between two battle tanks and greeted about 2,000 troops gathered on the sand.

"Because of you, Iraq got the message in a very big hurry," said the president, who sent 28,000 troops into the region after a menacing Iraqi military buildup by the border.

Speaking at an encampment called Tactical Assembly Area Liberty some 50 miles from Iraq, Clinton vowed to keep U.S. promises to protect Kuwait from Iraq and keep Iraq from again possessing weapons of mass destruction.

"I thank you for what you have done for Kuwait," Clinton said. "I thank you for what you have done for the United States of America."

He drew cheers from the troops, mostly from the 24th mechanized infantry division of Ft. Stewart, Ga., when he said he had signed an order to "right a wrong" and restore their subsistence allowance of $210 a month for enlisted personnel and $146 for officers to pay for food. At home, they receive subsistence allowance, and it has come to be seen as part of their regular pay. But it was withdrawn in Kuwait under previous rules that dock the pay in field zones where they receive free food packages.

The troops also shouted approval when Clinton said he expected them to be able to do their Christmas shopping - meaning going home for the holidays.

Clinton is the first sitting U.S. president to visit Kuwait, one of the world's wealthiest nations. George Bush - regarded as a national hero in Kuwait for his leadership in the Persian Gulf War - visited in 1993 as a private citizen.

Later in the day Clinton was to talk to King Fahd of Saudi Arabia about Persian gulf nations commitments to defray costs of the new buildup.

Clinton spoke from a platform supported by two battle tanks. The equipment at Liberty was deployed earlier in the year to support what the Pentagon calls Operation Vigilant Warrior.

Afterward, Clinton, in a short-sleeved green shirt and hatless in the heat, signed autographs for the soldiers.

Arriving here near the end of his six-nation Middle East trip, Clinton told the troops he had come "to say a simple thank you."

After flying to Kuwait from Jerusalem, Clinton was greeted at Kuwait International Airport by the emir, Jaber al-Sabah, and together, they reviewed an honor guard.

He was accompanied to the outpost on his helicopter by Crown Prince Abdullah al-Sabah.

In advance of Clinton's arrival, the Pentagon announced that two dozen American "Warhog" tank-killer jets will be based there to discourage any Iraqi aggression.

The Pentagon's move will allow U.S.-based troops to be flown in on short notice - as in the most recent crisis when Iraq moved more than 70,000 troops south toward Kuwait.

"We stand with the people of Kuwait," Clinton told the U.S. soldiers. "We have no quarrel with the people of Iraq," he added, saying that it is only Iraq's leadership that has brought pain to its people.

And, directing his remarks to Saddam, Clinton warned: "We say again to Iraq, obey the law of the international community. That is the only way to have a normal life."

"The United States and the international community will not allow Baghdad to threaten its neighbors now and in the future. That is not our threat, that is our promise," he said.

Before leaving Israel, Clinton attended ceremonies at Jerusalem's Yad Vashem Holocaust memorial, which commemorates the six million Jews killed by the Nazis in World War II.

"I leave redoubled in the support of the American people for the people of Israel and redoubled in my determination to continue until we have a comprehensive peace," Clinton said.

Clinton told reporters what he wrote this morning in the memorial's guest book:

"I wrote that today we are one step closer to the time when the people of Israel can live together in peace with all of your neighbors, the time when the people of Israel will never again suffer death and destruction ..."

State cleans last of river oil spill

HOUSTON (AP) - With the last burning pipeline capped and thousands of barrels of crude recovered, crews have begun their work on area shoreline ravaged by the spills and floods.

The Texas Land Office on Thursday outlined its plan to use oil-eating microbes to clean the soiled shoreline.

"Because we could go big early with mechanical techniques, a majority of the oil has been removed or has evaporated," said Deputy Land Commissioner Russel Lutz. "Now we hope to apply bioremediation techniques to those areas difficult to reach and those areas where mechanical cleanup is environmentally hazardous."

It will be two to three weeks before crude is removed from the oil-stained shoreline, Coast Guard spokesman David Silva said. The cleanup so far has cost $6.2 million, he said.

The last burning pipeline, owned by Colonial Pipeline of Atlanta was capped at 4:30 a.m. Thursday, Silva said. By Thursday morning 11,000 barrels of an oil-water mixture had been retrieved from the river.

On Oct. 20, four pipelines carrying petroleum products ruptured in the rain-swollen San Jacinto. Two were owned by Colonial, one by Valero Energy of San Antonio and a fourth line carrying crude is owned by Texaco Inc.

On Thursday, the Texas Department of Health lifted advisories against consumption of fish, shrimp and crab from the San Jacinto and Trinity rivers in several flood-affected counties and part of Galveston Bay.

"The situation regarding the oil and gas spills has sufficiently stabilized," said Dr. David Smith, Texas health commissioner. "We no longer have reason to believe the consumption of fish or shellfish from either of the two rivers, or fish from the upper portion of Galveston Bay, will cause any adverse health effects."

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

The Brazosport Facts on children without car seats:

We see it all the time, and it should makes us cringe each time. Small children riding in the lap of an adult in a moving vehicle, sometimes even in the lap of the driver.

There is absolutely no excuse for this, although we do hear them: "I was only driving a short distance," or "Little Chelsea hates those car seats," or "I've never had an accident in my life." But none of those are good enough when considering a small, lightweight child becomes a projectile in a serious auto accident, and has little chance of coming out the winner in a battle with the dashboard or window glass.

Children can't be expected to know how important it is for them to be in a car seat every time the vehicle is moving — that responsibility is up to the adults.

And when the adults are negligent the children's lives are at stake.

San Antonio Express-News on Middle East:

The mad bombers in the Middle East cannot be allowed to disrupt the march toward peace in that long-troubled region.

Hamas, a group of radical Palestinians, opposes peace between Israelis and Arabs. The bombing of a bus in downtown Tel Aviv on (Oct. 19) was the third major attack in Israel in 11 days. Gunmen sprayed a Jerusalem cafe and an Israeli soldier was kidnapped and killed.

The bus blast also exploded the euphoria that had followed the completion of a peace treaty between Jordan and Israel. President Clinton is to attend the formal signing of the treaty next week. ...

After decades of war between Arab and Jew, the momentum toward a regional peace is strong. Egypt, the PLO and Jordan have reached treaties with Israel. Syria should be next.

Hamas' crimes are horrible. The perpetrators should be found and punished as the peace process continues.

Victoria Advocate on human embryo research:

The Clinton administration is preparing to wade into an ethical quagmire: government funding for research on human embryos.

Is the embryo property or person? Is it merely potential life or life itself? Should embryos be produced solely for research? But before you get to these questions there is a simpler one: Is there a line that should not be crossed even for scientific or other gain, and if so, where is it?

Reverence for life — at its beginning and its end — is being sorely tested. Abortion is considered little more than a form of birth control. Euthanasia is promoted as a weird mix of social good and self-determination. ...

Those who believe in the sanctity of life should be incensed at the prospect of being forced to pay for bizarre adventures in human engineering. Given the track record of the Clinton administration, that possibility is all too probable.

The creation of human embryos for the purpose of using them in research and then destroying them is monstrous.

Will Cuomoism entice voters?

The political race in New York is not getting the attention of the race in Massachusetts, where a considerable number of voters are seriously considering a genocidal elimination of the Kennedy virus. It is understandable that this should be the case, given the hold the Kenhedy name has on the political imagination, particularly among those who brush away anything that stands in the way of the mythogenic imperative. If the latest book on JFK were to document that he had also disposed of the women he had loved, yet another candle to his memory would be lighted in the political nurseries.

Texas and Florida are pretty sexy arenas because they feature two young men whose father was president and about whom it was widely thought that his political blood ran anemically. Not so in his progeny. In Florida, incumbent Democrat Lawton Chiles is discovering that his traditional walk around Florida is not nearly fast-footed enough to handle fast-gun, fast-moving young Jeb Bush, and it looks now as though the only way Gov. Chiles can make it back in is if, en route to Haiti, Father Aristide stops by Havana and ousts Fidel Castro.

And then in Texas, George W. Bush is running rounds about Gov. Ann Richards, the wonderfully amusing late-night political comedienne who announced in 1988 that George Bush had been born with a silver foot in his mouth. It is the quite solemn intention of young Bush to ignore that foot, and tread steadfastly to the statehouse in Austin.

The race in New York has not got off the ground in part because Mario Cuomo doesn't inspire his troops to screechy, agonized adulation unless he is orating to 25,000 people on three networks, the very rafters of the convention hall ringing to the music of William F. Buckley Jr.

"The Grapes of Wrath," which is Mario's song celebrating the permanent inequities of life in America.

Three times the voters of New York said, well, OK, governor, you see these issues in very bright black and white chiaroscuro, so we'll just turn the state over to you and you tell us what to do. The trouble was that after 12 years of Gov. Cuomo in New York, the only detectable movements were crime going up, illegitimacy going up, SAT scores going down, taxes going up and mobile business persons moving out of state.

A mystique simultaneously developed around Mr. Cuomo and twice it was thought he would contend for the presidential nomination, but twice he let that cup go by, whether the old Grapes of Wrath nostrums would appeal to a majority of Americans who didn't think their country was a spiritual disgrace.

It appeared for a while that any Republican challenger would easily unseat him, but what happened was that a relative unknown emerged from the mists of a Republican convention whose primary qualification was the enthusiastic endorsement of Sen. Al D'Amato. That would hardly seem to be a burden, given that Sen. D'Amato is the senior Republican in

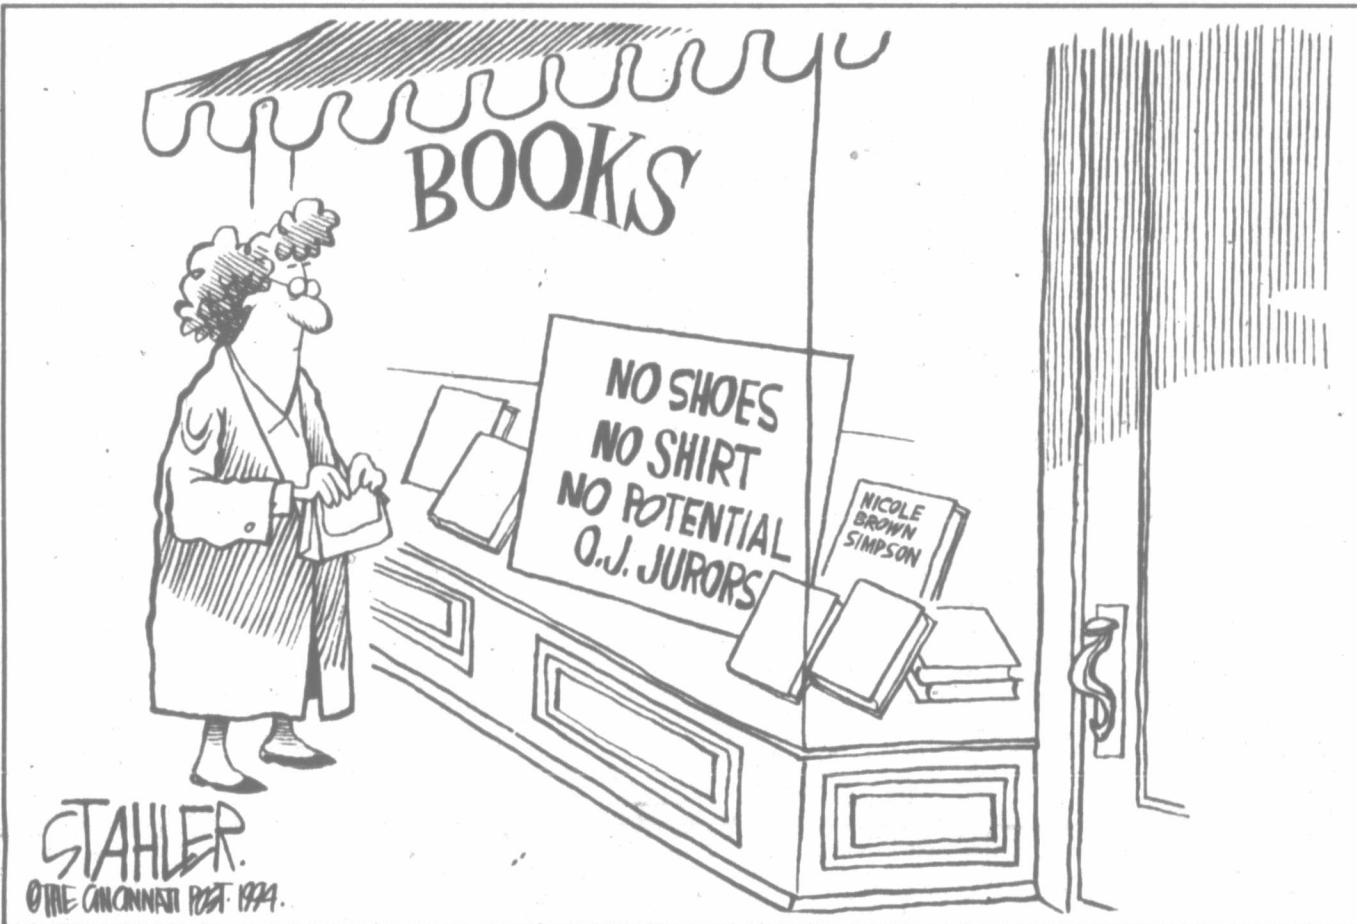

New York state. But the senator has had personal problems involving his own brother, and Gov. Cuomo's campaign has made every effort to persuade New Yorkers that a vote for George Pataki is the equivalent of a vote for D'Amato and that the umbilical cord between the two gentlemen is as firm and God-defying as the chains that bind the Constitution to protect the citizen's right to abortion.

Granted, Mr. Cuomo has done the conventional things. He has promised to reduce taxes, conceivably even to the level to which he promised to reduce them four years ago. On his beloved commitment to oppose the death penalty to the end of his days, he has made a little compromise: He will submit the question to a plebiscite of sorts and bind himself by the result.

But mostly it has been what the press aptly calls a "negative campaign." The strangest fuel was added to that particular fire toward the end of the week when Mrs. Cuomo predicted that if George Pataki was elected, there would be "race riots." This threat was not an instant geophysical landslide. For one, it required voters who heard it to consult their memories on the question: what race does George Pataki spring from? Would New York Italian Americans get so mad at New York New York Greek Americans for electing one of their own? After all, Sen. D'Amato is living proof that the people of New York have no objection whatever to voting for an Italian American.

Ah, but you see, the purpose of it all is to suggest that a vote against Cuomo is a vote against Italian Americans.

Will it work? Who knows. Cuomoism has worked for 12 years, and if that clock can be got to turn, what can't be?

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Oct. 28, the 301st day of 1994. There are 64 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Oct. 28, 1886, the Statue of Liberty, a gift from the people of France, was dedicated in New York Harbor by President Cleveland in the presence of its sculptor, Frederic Auguste Bartholdi.

On this date:

In 1636, Harvard College was founded in Massachusetts.

In 1793, Eli Whitney applied for a patent for his cotton gin (the patent was granted the following March).

In 1919, Congress enacted the Volstead Act, which provided for enforcement of Prohibition, over President Wilson's veto.

In 1922, fascism came to Italy as Benito Mussolini took control of the government.

In 1936, President Roosevelt rededicated the Statue of Liberty on its 50th anniversary during a re-election campaign stop in New York.

Who wants just to be a doctor?

Cynics insist that the noble medical profession that once lured young men and women with a passion for healing is now attractive mostly to mercenary who can brown nose his or her way through medical school and become eligible for high fees, kickbacks and Thursdays off.

Aren't there some healers out there somewhere — young men and women in whom the passion for helping others yet lives?

Yes, as a matter of fact, there are. One high school has demonstrated that many students, when properly introduced to medical practice, are eager for medical careers.

The program is called FutrDOCS. It's the idea of Dr. Fred Hurst of St. Mary's Hospital in Knoxville, Tenn. It amounts to a partnership between hospitals and high schools, enabling interested students to experience day-to-day hospital routines.

Hurst, recognizing our nation's need for more "family-practice doctors" and remembering his own eagerness as a high-school student to learn more about health care, focuses FutrDOCS on primary-care specialties — family practice, women's health, pediatrics and internal medicine.

As is, only one in five of this year's medical school graduates wants to go into family practice. Most prefer the higher-paying medical specialties.

The program of FutrDOCS could help remedy that shortfall.

There is no cost to students or schools. High-school students, from exposure to an actual hospital environment, are able to envision themselves as physicians. Students who demonstrate an interest in and aptitude for health care accompany Hurst and other specialists on patient rounds; witness surgery, attend pre-med lectures and visit with a wide spectrum of medical experts.

Further, the hospital will help students find jobs working in the hospital or in doctors' offices.

Any community in the United States that is interested in emulating this school-hospital liaison can do so. For guidance, you can write to FutrDOCS at P.O. Box 18200, Knoxville, Tenn. 37928.

Student Christi Lietzke is a senior at Rutledge High School in rural East Tennessee. She says, "The FutrDOCS experience confirmed to me that I want to be a family practitioner. I was much impressed with the program, with the hospital, with everything. In Rutledge, there are only two family doctors, and they're both near retirement age. I want someday to come back here to practice, to help people in my own community."

Christi enters the University of Tennessee this fall as a pre-med major.

Many candidates run on fame or name

WASHINGTON — Across America, the November election ballots are dotted with the names of the famous, the once or near-famous or their kinfolk.

They include a bunch of political relatives, the latest candidates from the Kennedy dynasty, players from show business and sports, a Watergate figure and one from Iran-Contra days. And, for good measure, a pair trying to make history.

—The relatives: Jeb and George W. Bush, the two sons of former President Bush, running to be governors of Florida and Texas, respectively.

Kathleen Brown, seeking the governorship of California, the job once held by her father, Pat, and her brother, Jerry.

Hugh Rodham, the brother of first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, running for the Senate from Florida. His opponent, Republican Sen. Connie Mack III, is the grandson of the longtime owner-manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, a baseball team long departed from that city.

Mitt Romney, son of former Michigan Gov. George Romney, running against Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in Massachusetts. Romney's father, a builder of automobiles, once sought the presidency.

—The new Kennedys: Patrick, son of Edward, running for Congress from Rhode Island. If he wins, he would join his cousin, Rep. Joe Kennedy, D-Mass., the son of Robert F. Kennedy. Joe Kennedy has no Republican opponent. Joe's sister, Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, running for lieutenant governor in Maryland.

And another member of the extended family, Mark Shriver, the son of John F. Kennedy's sister, Eunice Kennedy Shriver, is seeking a seat in the Maryland Legislature.

—Two other progeny:

Mike Feinsilber
AP Special Correspondent

Hamilton Fish Jr., the most dynastic candidate on the 1994 ballot. Fish seeks to follow his father, grandfather, great-grandfather and great-great-grandfather to Congress. His father, representing a Hudson River district of New York state, is retiring for health reasons after 13 terms. The new Fish is different from his forebears in one big respect. They were Republicans; he's a Democrat.

"I would be running," he says, "even if my first name were Tuna."

Bernadette Castro, once a televised tot. The daughter of an immigrant businessman who manufactured convertible sofas, she starred in commercials and on a Times Square billboard as a 4-year-old dressed in a nightgown who showed how easily her daddy's sofa beds could be opened. She's a Republican candidate for the Senate from New York.

—From the stage: Sonny Bono, of the Sonny and Cher singing duo, running as a Republican for Congress from California. He served as mayor of Palm Springs and lost a race for a Republican nomination for the Senate.

Ben Jones, who played the mechanic, Cooter, on The Dukes of Hazzard TV show and now is running against Newt Gingrich, the Georgia congressman in line to become leader of House Republicans in January. Jones served one term in Congress, then was redistricted and lost his seat.

Lawyer Sheila Kuehl, a candidate for the California Legislature. She played Zelda Gilroy in The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis TV series in the 1960s.

—The sports figures:

Ex-football star Steve Largent, who in 14 years with the Houston Oilers and the Seattle Seahawks was one of the most prolific receivers in pro football history. He's running for Congress as a Republican from Oklahoma.

So is J.C. Watts, who led the University of Oklahoma Sooners to Orange Bowl triumphs in 1979 and 1980, then played professionally in Canada.

In Missouri, Ron Freeman, who played for Pittsburgh and Orlando in the U.S. Football League in 1984-87, is a Republican congressional candidate.

And "Big Daddy" Don Garlits, a drag racer who, during 40 years behind the wheel won 144 national events. He is a Republican congressional candidate from Florida.

—A son-in-law and an Iran-Contra figure: In Virginia, Sen. Charles Robb, married to the daughter of former President Lyndon Johnson, is opposed by former Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North, best known for his role in the Iran-Contra affair seven years ago. North's conviction growing out of his false testimony to Congress was overturned on appeal.

—Two setting out to make fists:

Larry EchoHawk, great-grandson of an Indian warrior known for his bravery. He seeks to become governor of Idaho and the first American Indian ever to govern a state. EchoHawk, a Democrat, is the state's attorney general and a Mormon. Some Idaho Indians oppose him because he frowns on casino gambling, which has made tribes elsewhere rich.

William E. Brock. He served as a senator from Tennessee years ago. Now he is running for the Senate again — this time from Maryland. If he wins, he would be the first person ever elected to the Senate from two states since the Constitution was amended to provide for popular election of senators.

Controversial lobbyist blamed for killing adoption registry plan

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adopted as a day-old infant, Linda Sargent Thompson has spent 20 years searching for her birth mother. She scans faces everywhere she goes, looking for a resemblance that will bring her closer to the family who can make her feel complete.

For many adoptees and the parents who give them up, a reunion is a healing experience. Until they find each other, they say, there's a hole in their hearts.

"Knowing who your brothers and sisters are, who your (birth) parents are, is a basic, basic human desire," said Bill Betzen, administrator of Catholic Counseling Services in Dallas. "It goes right to the core of being human."

Congress came close to helping reunite the adult adoptees, birth parents and siblings who search for one another. The legislation, which would have established a centralized, national network to process requests for reunions, died in the last days of the session.

Sponsored by Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., and backed by the Clinton administration and numerous adoption organizations, the registry ran into sharp opposition from William Pierce, president of the Washington-based National Council for Adoption, which represents 130 private adoption agencies.

Pierce argued that Levin's registry was an intrusion by the federal government into a state issue and raised questions about privacy rights.

Levin, however, said Pierce's campaign against the bill misstated what it would do and the opposition generated by the lobbyist wound up killing it during a House-Senate conference.

"Pierce has flat-out lied about my bill. The word 'distorted' is too weak a word for what he's done," Levin said. "It's inhumane to do what he's done."

Pierce replied: "I think it's certainly not accurate and I find it very disappointing."

"That kind of rhetoric doesn't have any place in civil discussions between people who have different points of view," Pierce said.

Levin cites a 1991 document from Pierce's group that claimed the registry would "bankroll 'search groups' and private investigators who snoop and confront people who want to be left alone."

Levin said his plan was "totally mutual and totally voluntary."

Pierce argued that a national registry is not an appropriate federal activity and that thousands of Americans "want their privacy rights protected and are particularly concerned about any federal data bank which could possibly lead to inappropriate disclosure of their private, sensitive information."

And he said that Levin's plan was too vague and was unnecessary because 47 states already have a system for exchanging information.

Rep. Thomas J. Bliley Jr., R-Va., also questioned the measure and was on the House-Senate conference committee that stripped it from a larger bill, minority health legislation that later died in the Senate.

Bliley, who adopted two children, is an honorary member of Pierce's advisory board, but his spokesman, Charles Boescl, said that had nothing to do with the congressman's position. He said Bliley opposed the registry because it was being rammed through at the last minute.

Pierce's tactics have been questioned before. Last fall, pushed by complaints, the State Department wrote to 50 nations explaining that the National Council for Adoption was not an official U.S. agency and that governments can work with whomever they chose in international adoptions.

Some adoptees, birth parents and their advocates are unhappy that the registry was not approved. And they are angry with Pierce.

DPS suggests plans for safe trick or treating

It's nearing the end of October, the leaves are falling, temperatures changing and children getting excited about Halloween.

Although private parties have taken over for the traditional door-to-door "trick or treats," still many young children will be taking to our neighborhoods for that all familiar chant, said Department of Public Safety Trooper L.B. Snider.

"Many disasters can be prevented this Halloween if parents and motorists will use good judgment," Snider said.

"Small children should be accompanied by older children or adults, and trick or treating should be confined to those areas that the parents are familiar with," he suggested. "Costumes should be light in color, non-flammable, and any type of mask should not prevent the child from being able to see."

Snider said parents should also instruct their children in some traffic safety tips, insuring they look in all directions before crossing streets and to walk, never run. A flashlight carried by the child can serve as a warning to motorists, and children should be instructed to use sidewalks wherever possible.

Motorists should use extra caution in residential areas and be on the lookout for kids darting into the streets between parked vehicles, he said. "Remember, they are excited and pre-occupied with trick or treating. Drivers need to be extra alert," he said.

"For those who wish to participate in this upcoming Halloween evening and receive a visit from that little ghost or goblin, it is a good idea to remember to leave that front porch light on and to insure there are no obstructions in the walkways," Snider said.

Demand passes supply in state for recyclables

AUSTIN (AP) — For the first time, the demand in Texas for recyclable material — including newspapers, steel and glass — has surpassed the supply, state environmental officials report.

John Hall, chairman of the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, said the finding runs counter to the view of many that recycling in Texas is rich in supply but poor in demand.

"It is clear that recycling is taking off in Texas," Hall said.

His comments came Thursday at a meeting of the Texas Recycling Market Development Board, which released a strategic plan for recycling markets.

Major recyclers told the board that large investments have been made in recycling facilities and that the capacity now exists to process more materials than ever before.

"Recycling has moved away from being an environmental fad and has developed into a mature, stable, market-driven industry. We can now focus our efforts on ensuring that this new industry has a reliable supply of materials so that it will continue to grow," Hall said.

The strategic plan looked at seven products: waste paper, glass, motor oil, steel cans, plastic packaging, tires and compost.

The study found that for the most commonly recycled materials — paper, brown and clear glass, steel cans, plastics and used oil — more programs need to be developed to meet the increasing needs of those industries.

Texas, which has a 14 percent recycling rate, has the potential to outpace many other states' recycling efforts, officials said.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

SAILING SHIPS

AS EARLY AS 3000 B.C., OR EVEN BEFORE, MEN HAD LEARNED TO NAVIGATE ON THE NILE, AND SHIPS FOR THIS PURPOSE WERE BUILT. SOME OF THE PHARAONS HAD OCEANGOING VESSELS ALSO FORMING THE FIRST NAVIES OF THEIR TIME. MANY OF THE BOATS ON THE NILE WHICH WERE USED FOR FISHING AND FOWLING WERE MADE BY TYING BUNDLES OF PAPYRUS REEDS TOGETHER AND DAUBING THEM WITH PITCH...

...THE ISRAELITES WERE NOT A SEAFARING PEOPLE BUT THEY CARRIED ON TRADE USING THE SEAWAYS. SOLOMON CONDUCTED COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISES THROUGH HIS FLEET OF SHIPS BUT THESE TRANSPARENT EFFORTS WERE MORE OR LESS DEPENDANT ON THE PHOENICIAN SAILORS WHO MANNED THEM. SOME OF THESE SEAGOING VESSELS WERE PROPELLED BY SAILS ALONE--OTHERS BY SAILS AND OARS.

Pastor strives to bring multi faceted approach to ministry

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Guest writer

Quiet and gentle are two adjectives that first come to mind in describing Darrell Evans, First Christian Church of Pampa's new senior minister. After getting to know him better, one could add "multi faceted" and "conviction" to this list.

Evans is to be installed as pastor of First Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), 1633 N. Nelson, at installations services, 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 30. The Rev. Margaret Harrison, regional minister, is to perform the installation ceremony. The public is invited to attend.

The road that led Evans and his wife Billie Sue to Pampa has been 35 years long. It began with his first position as a minister to a church in the tiny east Texas community of Hull-Daisetta as a 19-year old student at Texas Christian University.

Now the Evanses come to First Christian Church here armed with their beloved Old English Sheep Dog, evangelistic hearts and a "manifold view" for the church.

"I see myself as an enable," Evans explains.

"What attracted me here was that it was a strong lay led church. I see myself as a resource person, a spiritual leader and advisor. My goals are to teach and preach the love of God through Jesus Christ.

"I have a manifold view for the church," he adds. "As you well know, mainline churches have been in decline for the last 30 years. If it continues that way, not long after the year 2000 there will be no more mainline churches. I am determined there are concrete ways that that can be changed.

"Experts say (mainline churches) need to incorporate different styles of worship into our services. First Christian is already working on adding a praise and worship service on Sundays," Evans says.

"Experts say we need to be more open to various styles of worship. I want to think we will always be open to different ways of worshipping God. I believe worship is the way to get to know the living God. If we don't have a balance in these things, we leave someone out."

Evans says he wants to see young families and children included in the church. He points to a gumball machine standing in the corner of his office.

"That's the reason that is there. I want the children to feel comfortable coming in my office. I want them to know there's always going to be a bucket of pennies there for the gumball machine," he explains.

"I enjoy so much being around children. One of the most delightful things I do on Sunday morning is the 'Children's Moment.' I love to see their faces looking up at me, all bright eyes and innocence."

Evans hopes to complete First Christian's Family Life Center "to provide a safe place for young people to come and have a good time." He enjoys seeing it used for large gatherings such as family reunions and events for the community's youth.

"Young people have so many pressures against them. I see the church as a safe place where they can go and be able to be themselves without all the pressures of the outside world," he says.

A church is a "sin hospital," in Evans' view.

"It's a place we can come to get well spiritually."

He also believes the church is where people can strengthen and deepen their faith.

"One of my goals is that everyone has the opportunity to hear the redeeming message of Jesus Christ," he adds.

Evans wants to see prayer in school and strong values as an accepted part of life.

"In this part of the state, it seems like people are more attuned to those kinds of concepts of our faith," he says. "I think the hope of the world as we know it lies in this kind of thing."

A graduate of Texas Christian University and Brite University, Evans' doctoral studies in pastoral counseling have been through Phillips University. He was ordained in 1967. Since that time he has ministered in Fort Worth, Amarillo, Oklahoma City, Kansas City, Mo., Alvin, Houston and Odessa.

A trained pastoral counselor, Evans served as executive director of Individual and Family Counseling Center in Oklahoma City and as youth rehabilitation coordinator for the Fort Worth Area Council of Churches.

In addition, Evans served a stint in the Merchant Marines as a cook on an oil tanker off the Gulf Coast.

His wife Billie Sue is employed as a teacher with Pampa Independent School District. She received her education from Texas Christian University and Lamar University. For many years she taught fifth grade at an Episcopal school in Dallas and later became a team leader at Stafford public school. She teaches at Pampa Learning Center.

Grace hosts services

The Rev. Richard Coffman, pastor of Grace Baptist Church, 824 S. Barnes, announces nightly services 7 p.m. Oct. 30 through Nov. 6.

The Rev. Jeff Coffman, pastor of Country Side Baptist Church, Dublin, is to preach.

The father-son team states: "There will be various activities and a nursery will be provided."

Emphasis is to be on revival, according to the church.

where he also serves as youth minister for Northwest Christian Church and works on his uncle's farm.

Born and raised in the Rio Grande Valley community of Donna, Evans knew he wanted to be a minister since he was a little boy.

"They say I used to get an apple box and preach to the kids," he laughs.

"My grandmother would read the scriptures to me and she taught me to play the piano," he remembers.

Evans first attended church services when he was two weeks old.

"It's always been the natural thing," he says, adding, "On reflection, that's probably why it makes it difficult for me to understand why it isn't that way for everyone."

He describes being a child during the second World War as a "unique experience." He recalls the residents of Donna gathering in the town square to listen to the radio program "Hit Parade" broadcast from speakers hung in trees.

"It was the best of times and the worst of times. Steinbeck was right about that," Evans says. "My father died when I was nine years old. He was a grocer in the Valley. He was very much loved and respected. When he died, we had no insurance. Within 24 hours, the community presented $5,000 to my mother. In 1949, that was a lot of money."

Evans says his family instilled in him a belief that leadership in the community and leadership in the church belong together.

"They helped me over the years to see the value of all human beings. We had a lot of illegal aliens living around us and it wasn't popular to be nice to them. It became important to me that justice prevailed. A lot of Mexican nationals lived on the farms of my uncles. And they always tried to see that they had a good place to stay and what they needed to live."

Evans confesses a fascination for the two dark times of American history - the Civil War and the civilization and removal of the Indian tribes - in an effort to understand what makes people behave as they do.

He and his wife have visited a number of Civil War sites, including Vicksburg and Shiloh and are looking forward to learning more about the Indian history in this area.

"We're both very attracted to this part of the state," Evans says. "It's so different from the swamps we're used to."

They also draw and paint and enjoy photography. Evans points to a photograph of Billie Sue in a field of bluebonnets.

"We really try to stop and smell the flowers," he explains.

At their home in Houston, Evans raised 50 varieties of roses including the exotic colors of blues and purples and "even an antique green rose," he says proudly.

"There's been times in our lives when we were so busy with our careers, we didn't take time to 'stop and smell the roses,'" Evans says. "Now we're at a point in our lives when we are going to stop and enjoy God's creation."

FBC's TeamKID aimed at elementary youth

First Baptist Church of Pampa is offering TeamKID, a ministry aimed at children grades first through fifth. TeamKID meets 5:30 to 6:50 p.m. Sunday in the fellowship hall of the church.

Dale Moreland, minister to preschool and children, reports 123 children and adults are participating in the ministry. Recreation and Bible study are combined in a non competitive format. TeamKID meetings feature games and recreation, Bible memory and studies and creative learning activities designed to help children deal with everyday problems.

Problems such as "How to be a Friend," "Rules Are Needed - for Better Living," "Learning to Make Wise Choices," "Money Can't Buy Everything," and "Enemies of Health and Happiness," and more are studied.

Refreshments are prepared by Sharon Haley and Reba Howard. Children are able to earn points which will allow them to buy items from the TeamKID gift shop.

As one parent said, "Our children can't wait to come back next week."

"It's real fun. I enjoy the games and Bible stories and refreshments the most," said Keaton Hutto.

Other TeamKID leaders include Janice Powers and Jeanna Miller.

U.S. hit grim landmark for prison this year: Over 1 million inmates

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States hit a grim landmark this year: More than 1 million people behind bars for the first time in history.

Of the 1,012,851 inmates as of June 30, 919,143 were in state prisons and 93,708 in federal prisons, the Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics reported Thursday.

California's 124,813 inmates and Texas' 100,136 accounted for more than one-fifth of the total.

That means one of every 260 people in America was imprisoned, and that doesn't include the approximately 440,000 in jails, many of whom are awaiting trial or serving short sentences. The total is more than double the 462,002 prison population of Dec. 31, 1984.

"If you look over the last decade or so, the reasons for the growth are clearly linked to adults arrested for serious crime and the increasing likelihood of incarceration given an arrest for a serious crime, most prominent for those arrested for drug violations," said Allen Beck, the deputy associate director of the statistics bureau.

The number of arrests for drug-law violations has doubled and there has been "a fivefold increase in the likelihood of incarceration given an arrest for drugs," Beck said.

But Marc Maurer of The Sentencing Project argues that the growth in inmate population hasn't bought the nation any security.

"Clearly we need a prison system for people who are truly violent and dangerous, but what's happened in recent years is that we've been locking up increasing numbers of drug and property offenders and we have very little to show for it in terms of reduced rates of crime," Maurer said.

The rate of prison population to the general public, according to the bureau, is 373 prison inmates per 100,000 residents, up from 187 in 1984. In calculating that rate, the bureau included only prisoners sentenced to terms longer than one year.

Texas had the highest incarceration rate, with 545 people sentenced to more than one year per 100,000 residents, the bureau said. Second was Louisiana at 514 per 100,000, followed by South Carolina at 504 and Oklahoma at 501. California's incarceration rate was 382, and New York's was 361.

North Dakota had the lowest incarceration rate, with 75 per 100,000 residents. Next was Minnesota, with 100 per 100,000 residents, followed by West Virginia with 106 and Maine with 113.

The recently passed crime bill authorizes spending $7.9 billion for state prison grants to help the states cope with a rapid inmate expansion.

Overall, the state and federal prison population grew by more than 71,000, or almost 1,400 a week in the 12-month period through June 30. But in the final six months of that period, the population grew by almost 40,000, or more than 1,500 a week. The annual growth is 11 percent faster than the average annual growth during the previous five years, the bureau found.

Eleven states had inmate population growths of 10 percent or more during the year: Connecticut, 20 percent; Texas, 18 percent; Tennessee, 15 percent; Montana, 14.5 percent; Virginia, 14 percent; Georgia, 12 percent; Arizona, Florida, Mississippi and Wyoming, 11 percent; and Idaho, 10 percent.

Several states experienced declines: Alaska, down 6.5 percent; Nebraska, down 4 percent; Vermont, down 3 percent; Kansas, down 2 percent.

Rise in violence by spurned lovers worries Italy

ROME (AP) — The coroner counted 24 stab wounds on the body of the red-haired girl who hoped to become a fashion model.

Police charged Stefania Massarin's former boyfriend with the murder. And Italians joined the victim's distraught mother in her tearful cry: "Why? Why?"

The Oct. 22 slaying in Genoa was the latest reminder of a rise in crimes around Italy carried out by jealous or jilted lovers, many still just adolescents or young adults.

Recent incidents — coupled with attention given to the O.J. Simpson murder trial in Los Angeles — have caused deep questioning about the nature of rage and whether the fabric of Italian society is beginning to fray.

The nation's top statistics clearing-house reported at least 40 such murders so far this year — about one a week in a nation where most homicides rank as top news stories. The statisticians, known by the initials Istat, said "acts of passion" — including attacks by upset lovers and family members — rose from 1,461 to 1,496 between 1992 and 1993.

Behind the raw figures, however, many theories are offered on why more and more broken relationships lead to violence. Some suggest young men are lashing back at the growing independence of women. Others blame the influence of violent television programs or a resurgence of a strong macho culture that led to clichés about hot-blooded Italians. The influence of drugs is also cited.

Men commit the majority of the so-called passion attacks.

"Young men tend to defend the object they possess with tooth and nail as demonstrated in the crime pages in newspapers ... They are reacting to an end to the tradition in which women could not rebel or decide to break relationships," said Fulvio Scapparro, a University of Milan psychology professor who specializes in youth issues.

"It is difficult to educate our young people these days ... to choose reason over violence," said the Rev. Giorgio Parodi at the funeral Mass for Massarin.

Recent weeks offer a snapshot of the type of assaults that are becoming more common: A teenage boy in Naples stalks his former girlfriend and stabs her in the leg; a young man beats to death his ex-fiancee and throws the body into a ravine; an abuse hot line in Rome says they have been flooded with calls from women afraid of their ex-boyfriends.

"What are we becoming?" asked Orlando Orafo, a schoolmate of Massarin's who attended her funeral.

On a television news show, young people were asked if crimes of passion could be justified.

"There's a question of honor," said one young man.

The girl next to him rolled her eyes.

Dr. Paolo Crepet, a psychiatrist, believes Italy may be heading for a new macho era as a backlash to the demise of traditions such as family-arranged courtships and wives solely dedicated to housework.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from John C. Jones, who told about a world War II soldier named Eddie Koslowski who covered his face with a washcloth when surprised in a GI bath (an open field) by a truckload of nurses who yelled, "Look at the tan on the blond kid!"

I didn't laugh. A generation later, I was a nurse in Vietnam. At one point, we were setting up a field surgical unit. Things were hot, filthy and primitive. Shortly after dark it started to rain, so my fellow nurses and I sneaked out the back of our tent (in the buff) for a Mekong shower. The camp had very few lights as yet, so we figured we'd be safe if we kept quiet.

Unfortunately, we weren't quiet enough. The perimeter patrol heard "something," and beamed their spotlights on us.

After a moment of silence, some guy yelled, "Holy (expletive)! Look at the bikini line on that redhead!" Just like Eddie, the redhead covered her face with her washcloth.

I didn't laugh at Eddie because I was that redhead.

At least I got sympathy from my tent mates. Eddie deserves some, too, but he didn't get it — not from you. I sure hope you changed his name when you published John Jones' letter

F.S., GAINESVILLE, FLA.

DEAR F.S.: I was not able to locate Eddie, but John C. Jones assured me it would be OK to use their real names.

DEAR ABBY: Here's another "clean" Army story: I was serving in the Fourth Armored Division, Gen. Patton's favorite unit, during the invasion of Normandy in 1944. To this day, I hate wearing anything on my head — and wearing my helmet, even in combat, I loathed.

My captain was always yelling at me, "Haley, put your helmet on! You wanna get killed?"

I'd put it on and wear it until he was out of sight, then take it off.

One morning when I was shaving, I had my helmet propped between my feet — using it as a wash basin and using the side door mirror on my truck for a mirror. Enemy shrapnel blew my helmet from between my feet, leaving a good-sized hole in the side of the helmet. With my finger stuck through the hole, I went to my captain exclaiming, "Captain, I'm sure glad I wasn't wearing my blankety-blank helmet when the shrapnel hit."

He told me to get a new helmet. I sure wish I'd kept the one with the hole in it.

JOSEPH MICHAEL HALEY, HOPATCONG, N.J.

DEAR MR. HALEY: Holy helmet! You certainly had a close shave!

DEAR ABBY: The mom who wrote about "the ruined wedding" was lucky. Listen to this:

Many years ago, my father lived in a small Oregon community where a prominent family had planned the wedding of the year.

A disturbed but harmless man who had not been invited to the wedding decided to "get even"; so, in the middle of the ceremony, with the bride and groom ready to exchange their marriage vows, to the horror of all present the uninvited "guest" came walking down the aisle absolutely nude — with a grin on his face!

Protect natural enemies of vegetable pests

By JAMES E. WALTERS

PHOENIX (AP) — Protecting the natural enemies of vegetable pests is simple and cost effective, according to Michael P. Hoffmann and Anne C. Frodsham of Cornell University's Entomology Department.

Their 64-page, newly published manual should be must reading for anyone concerned about the environmental and health hazards of pesticides.

It tells how to identify natural enemies of the pests, provides detailed descriptions, assesses their relative importance and gives their life cycles.

Hoffmann and Frodsham say the natural enemies can be found from backyard gardens to commercial fields.

Their list of "good guys" includes not only such generally well-regarded predators as ladybug beetles, green lacewings and praying mantis but also some possible surprises, such as ground beetles and stink bugs.

"The first rule of any integrated pest management program is 'know your pest,'" they say. "We believe 'know your natural enemies' should become equally important."

The full-color manual — titled "Natural Enemies of Vegetable Insect Pests" — is available for $22.50, including shipping, from Cornell's resource center, 7 Business-Technology Park, Ithaca, N.Y. 14850.

Hoffmann is assistant professor and Frodsham a research support specialist in the entomology department. The manual was supported by the Cooperative Extension Service.

"With the advent of chemical insecticides in the 1950s, easy control of insect pests appeared at hand," they note. "However, it soon became obvious that there were problems associated with the use of insecticides."

"Insect pests became resistant, environmental and health hazards were identified, nontarget organisms were adversely affected, and pest resurgence occurred."

Conservation of the existing natural enemies is described as "probably the most important biological control practice available to vegetable growers."

"Predators such as lady beetles and lacewings are mainly free-living species that consume a large number of prey during their lifetime," the manual says.

"Parasitoids are species whose immature stage develops on or within a single insect host, ultimately killing the host. Many species of wasps and some flies are parasitoids. Pathogens are disease-causing organisms including bacteria, fungi and virus. They kill or debilitate their host and are relatively specific to certain insect groups."

The manual makes no recommendations about the purchase or release of commercially available natural enemies but does provide information about their biology and behavior.

Examples of habitat manipulation include growing flowering plants (nectar and pollen sources) near crops to attract and maintain populations of natural enemies.

"Caution should be used with this tactic because some plants attractive to natural enemies may also be hosts for certain plant diseases, especially plant viruses that could be vectored by insect pests to the crop," they say. Included among the predators of insects and mites are beetles, true bugs, lacewings, flies, midges, spiders, wasps and predatory mites.

"Some are extremely valuable natural enemies of vegetables pests," the manual continues. "Unfortunately, some prey on other beneficial insects as well as pests ... There may be thousands of predators per acre, in addition to many parasitoids. Although the impact of any one species of natural enemy may be minor, the combined impact of predators, parasitoids and insect pathogens can be considerable."

The illustrations are first rate and cover the life cycle. For example, the illustration of the ladybug beetle (Hippodamia convergens) covers the eggs, larval stages, pupa and adult.

Adult lady beetles are described as small, round to oval and dome shaped. The species of benefit in vegetable crops typically have black markings on red, orange or yellow forewings. A female beetle may lay from 200 to more than 1,000 eggs over a one- to three-month period, commencing in spring or early summer. Eggs are usually deposited near prey such as aphids.

PAMPA — Pampa and Dumas battled to a 6-6 tie in a 7th grade football game Tuesday night.

Pampa's touchdown came on a 6-yard pass from Justin Barnes to Justin Trollinger.

In the B game, Pampa won, 16-0. Trey Rogers scored on an 8-yard run and Jason Hall scored on a 45-yard fumble recovery run. Caleb Snelgroves and Jeremy Hall had conversion points.

The 7th grade A team has a 1-3-2 record while the B team is 3-1-2.

Dumas defeated Pampa, 36-0, in the 8th grade A game, and 20-6 in the B game. Bryant Smith had an 8-yard TD run for the 8th grade B.

The 8th grade A team is 2-4 while the B team is 4-1-1.

Next Tuesday, Pampa hosts Herford White at 5 p.m. The 7th graders play at Herford with the A game starting at 3 p.m., followed by the B team game.

MIAMI (AP) — One of the week's biggest upsets may already have taken place. The Miami Hurricanes, masters of intimidation, are saying only nice things about Virginia Tech.

"Outside of Florida State, Virginia Tech is probably the best team we've looked at," defensive tackle Warren Sapp said.

"I expected Virginia Tech to be good this year," quarterback Frank Costa said. "Last year a lot of people were disappointed when we only beat them 21-2, but they were a good team."

Now the Hokies are 7-1 overall, 4-1 in the Big East Conference and ranked 13th, their best ever. A victory Saturday at Miami would further enhance Tech's reputation.

"This is our best team, and we're making progress," said coach Frank Beamer, in his eighth season with the Hokies. "We're trying to get where Miami is, and I'm not sure how far up that ladder we are."

The Hurricanes are 5-1 and 2-0, ranked sixth and still in the thick of the national championship chase. They'll be without leading rusher James Stewart, sidelined by a sprained ankle.

"The whole season will be erased if we lose this game," Sapp said. "Everybody knows what is at stake."

The Hurricanes, who have won their two Big East Conference games by a combined 62-9 score, anticipate a tougher test from the Hokies.

"They're one of the better teams in the country," coach Dennis Erickson said. "We think they're as good a team as we've played."

That would include Washington, which beat Miami last month, and Florida State, which lost to the Hurricanes three weeks ago.

The Big East has been easy so far this season for Miami, which beat Rutgers 24-3 and West Virginia 38-6. But the Hurricanes play at No. 14 Syracuse next week, and finish the season against dangerous Boston College.

"The Big East has come a long way since we joined it (in 1991)," Sapp said. "We knew it would happen, but not so fast."

Miami and Virginia Tech rank 1-2 in the league in total defense, scoring defense, passing defense and rushing defense. They're 1-3 in total offense, scoring and rushing defense.

But Virginia Tech has beaten a Top Ten team only once since 1964. And the Hurricanes have won all 11 games in the series.

"They're the best team in our conference," Beamer said. "They may be the best team in the country."

"When we kick it off, we may wish we were playing somebody else. But it's a good opportunity for our team."

The Hokies have made an impressive recovery from a 2-8-1 record in 1992. They go into Saturday's game still in contention for the league title and a major bowl berth, which suits the Hurricanes just fine.

"If Virginia Tech was 2-and-whatever, it wouldn't be a big game," Sapp said. "I'm glad they're good. I don't want to play a sorry team. That's no fun."

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Duke's Robert Baldwin has rushed for nearly as many yards this season as the entire Florida State football team. That can't happen Saturday if the ninth-ranked Seminoles are to end Duke's seven-game unbeaten streak.

Baldwin, leading rusher in the Atlantic Coast Conference, has gained 921 yards and averaged 131.6 yards per game compared to the Seminoles' 996 yards in six games.

"He's running hard and breaking a lot of tackles," Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said. "He doesn't like to go down and won't hardly go down with one tackler."

Florida State's leading rusher, Warrick Dunn, is averaging 71.7 yards per game and ranks third in the conference, although his 6.4 yards per carry average is the best among the 10 top rushers.

"Dunn, I think, is by far the best running back we've seen and he's very strong," Duke coach Fred Goldsmith said. "You've got to be concerned ..."

Duke (7-0, 4-0 ACC) is ranked 16th going into Saturday's game. Florida State (5-1, 5-0) is seeking its 22nd straight conference win, which would erase the mark it shares with Maryland teams of the mid-1970s.

"We hope we're beginning to iron out some of our problems 'cause it looks like we've still got 'em," said Bowden, who is concerned about an offense that has scored a total of 37 points in its last two games.

"We're just not playing that good yet and I'm still trying to figure out why."

Baldwin's 11 touchdowns lead a Duke offense that is averaging 35.6 points per game, just behind Florida State's league-leading 36.2 average.

Baldwin had been used primarily as a blocker until Goldsmith took over at Duke last spring.

"Robert was by far the best we had in the spring and showed some real flashes," Goldsmith said. "Then he got himself in great condition over the summer. We knew we had somebody special after that."

Florida State is hoping All-American linebacker Derrick Brooks gets untracked against the Blue Devils.

A first-team pick last year, Brooks has struggled this season. After being suspended for the first two games for accepting unauthorized gifts in violation of NCAA rules, Brooks has only 14 unassisted tackles in four games.

Pampa goes against Willis and company

PAMPA — Dumas coach Ron Rogers would like nothing better than to have another Jeff Willis on his team.

If he had, the Demons might have more than two wins this season and they might not be sharing the District 1-4A cellar with Caprock.

"Jeff is a fine all-around athlete. He's a good baseball player and made the state tournament team in wrestling. He does a lot of things," Rogers said.

Willis, a 160-pound junior running back, averages 4.6 yards per carry and has rushed for 10 touchdowns. He ranks third in district in individual scoring with 67 points and is No. 1 in punting, averaging, 36.2 yards per kick.

"I like the job Jeff has done carrying the ball for us," Rogers said. "He's got over 700 yards in seven games."

Dumas, 2-5 for the season, takes on Pampa (2-0-1 district, 5-1-1 overall) at 7:30 tonight in Harvester Stadium.

"We've had four, sometimes five sophomores starting. We lost 17 starters from last year and many of our upperclassmen didn't play much last year," Rogers said.

However, the Demons haven't been too far away from at least having a .500 season.

"We've had problems getting into the end zone," Rogers added. "We get down close and end up losing the ball. It's partly our execution and partly the other team."

The way things stand now, it looks like Pampa will hook up with archrival Borger on Nov. 11 to determine the No. 2 playoff seed. To set up that regular-season finale, Pampa, Randall and Borger would have to win their remaining games. Randall leads the pack with a 3-0-1 record while Borger is right behind Pampa at 3-1.

Pampa's 3-3 tie with unbeaten Randall last Friday night left Cavalier with kind of a flat feeling.

"When looking at the playoff picture, I was thinking of it as a loss instead of a tie, but that wasn't the case at all," Cavalier said.

"I thought we move the ball well and I felt like we outplayed the Raiders overall, but there's only one statistic that counts and that's the final score."

Pampa had more total yards, 167-70, but Randall had one more first down, which is used as the tiebreaker for either of the two playoff berths. The two teams were tied in penetrations, which was the first tiebreaker.

"Our total yardage certainly indicates that we outplayed them," Cavalier said. "Three of Randall's first downs were on penalties and I thought two were questionable calls. But that's part of the game and you have to accept it."

Midnight Madness will last about an hour and there will be

Midnight Madness at McNeely

If the Pampa-Dumas football game at Harvester Stadium isn't enough to satisfy sports fans tonight, they can take in the Midnight Madness basketball festivities right across the street at McNeely Fieldhouse.

PHS head basketball coach Robert Hale will unveil his 1994-95 Harvester team at 12 midnight. The Harvesters will have an intrasquad scrimmage consisting of four five-minute quarters.

The fans will also be able to get in on some action. There will be lots of door prizes, including two free season tickets, an all-expense paid trip to Dallas and a $500 deduction on a new car.

Basketballs, Harvester t-shirts, warmup pants, spirit towels and other memorabilia will be available.

Midnight Madness will last about an hour and there will be a 15-minute intermission during the scrimmage.

Later on, fans will be able to obtain autographed jerseys from members of the Clifton McNeely and Robert Hale state playoff teams.

"These won't be available tonight," Pampa assistant coach John Darnell pointed out. "We're going to have to send these shirts across the nation to get the signatures. So it's going to take awhile."

The Harvesters open the season Nov. 18-19 with back-to-back games against Abilene High and Midland Lee, both starting at 3:45 p.m. at South Plains College in Levelland.

The Harvesters first home game is Nov. 22 against Palo Duro. The first District 1-4A contest is Jan. 3 at home against Randall.

Cowboys' Williams to have surgery

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys All Pro tackle Erik Williams will undergo surgery Monday to repair a torn ligament in his left thumb.

Williams, who was injured in a one-car wreck earlier this week, was moved from Parkland Memorial Hospital to Baylor University Medical Center Thursday. The Cowboys use Baylor for all surgical procedures.

Williams suffered several injuries in the accident at 3:15 a.m. Monday, including torn ligaments in his right knee that may end his season.

Texas Department of Public Safety officials have said they're investigating the accident in which the 6-foot-6, 325-lineman hit a concrete retaining wall with his Mercedes Benz.

Meanwhile, defensive end Shante Carver said he was speeding when he crashed his truck Monday.

Carver's truck was found overturned about 2:30 a.m. on northbound Central Expressway at the ramp to westbound I-635.

Carver, who was unhurt, said he caught a ride home and did not report the accident until the next day after talking to his lawyer. Carver said he didn't want to get into trouble and embarrass his team.

"It was just careless, messing around with my CD player," he said.

Carver also said he did not place a call to police claiming his vehicle had been stolen.

Ninety minutes after the accident, someone identifying himself as Carver called police to report that his truck had been stolen.

Police said they will file no charges against the Cowboys' first-round draft pick and Carver's insurance will pay for damages to a guardrail.

Bills have extra week to prepare for Chiefs

By The Associated Press

The Buffalo Bills will salute their fans from north of the border with Canada Day Sunday. The Kansas City Chiefs would like to turn it into Montana Day at Rich Stadium.

Kansas City's last visit to Buffalo resulted in a 30-13 loss in the last AFC championship game, in which the Bills' Thurman Thomas rushed for 186 yards and three touchdowns.

The Bills (4-3) have had an extra week to prepare for the Chiefs (5-2) and Joe Montana, who has shaken off a two-game slump and led the Chiefs to two straight victories. He passed for 270 yards and two touchdowns in a 38-23 win over Seattle last Sunday.

Stopping Thomas again will be a major challenge for the Chiefs. He has run for 502 yards and four touchdowns this season.

Kansas City trails San Diego by one game in the AFC West. Buffalo is tied for second with the New York Jets, a game behind Miami, in the AFC East.

Other NFL matchups Sunday have Seattle at San Diego, Detroit at the New York Giants, Cleveland at Denver, Philadelphia at Washington, Miami at New England, the New York Jets at Indianapolis, Dallas at Cincinnati, Minnesota at Tampa Bay, Houston at the Los Angeles Raiders and Pittsburgh at Arizona.

Green Bay is at Chicago Monday night.

Atlanta, the Los Angeles Rams, New Orleans and San Francisco are idle.

Seahawks at Chargers
The Chargers (6-1) will try to resume their dominance of their AFC West opponents. They are 4-1 within the division, with the loss coming at home last week, 20-15 to Denver. Natrone Means will be seeking his fourth straight 100-yard rushing game of the season, against the Seahawks (3-4), who have won only once in their last five appearances at Jack Murphy Stadium.

Lions at Giants
The staggering Giants (3-4) will have to contain Barry Sanders if they are to have a chance of snapping a four-game losing streak. Sanders, the NFL's top rusher with 889 yards, rambled for 167 yards last week when the Lions (3-4) beat Chicago 21-16.

Browns at Broncos
The Browns will try to go 7-1 for the first time since 1963 and win six straight for the first time since 1972. But they have won only once in their last eight visits to Mile High Stadium. Denver (2-5) has suffered three losses by three points each and four defeats by a total of 16 points.

Eagles at Redskins
Philadelphia (5-2) will be trying for a second straight season sweep of the Redskins (2-6) in a bid to stay at least a game behind first-place Dallas in the NFC East. Washington rookie quarterback Gus Ferrotte was successful in his first NFL start, passing for 226 yards and two touchdowns in a 41-27 win over Indianapolis last Sunday.

Dolphins at Patriots
In passing, this should be the game of the day. Drew Bledsoe of the Patriots (3-4) leads the NFL with 2,314 passing yards. Dan Marino of the Dolphins (5-2) is the AFC's top-rated quarterback at 93.1. Marino threw for 473 yards and five touchdowns in the Dolphins' 39-35 victory over New England in first meeting this season.

Cowboys at Bengals
It shouldn't matter whether Troy Aikman or Rodney Peete plays quarterback for the Cowboys (6-1). When the game is over, the Bengals should be 0-8. It will be the 60th straight sell-out for the Cowboys at home or away.

Media day not much fun at Baylor

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Conference media day couldn't have been much fun for Baylor basketball coach Darrel Johnson.

Johnson spent most of Thursday's preseason event fielding questions about the fate of Baylor's beleaguered program and his employment status.

"I'm under a directive not to get into specifics," he said in response to questions about his team's troubles.

Baylor President Herbert Reynolds has placed the team on two years' probation for NCAA rules violations by players who cheated on correspondence courses.

The players who were involved are gone, but Reynolds declared the team ineligible for post-season play. He also said the university will cut all television money from last season and return all scholarships and the assistant coaching staff.

But Johnson stays on coaching with 11 scholarship players.

Why didn't Johnson leave? Why didn't he take a job offered to him by the Continental Basketball Association in Oklahoma City?

"I'm staying at Baylor because it's the moral, ethical thing to do," Johnson said. "Because of the problems in the program, it's my job to be part of the solution. I just couldn't walk away."

Sportswriters picked both the Texas Tech men's and women's teams as the favorites this season, but the cloud hovering over Baylor and Johnson took the spotlight.

Johnson said if he had taken another job "there would have been a perception that I was running away."

"My career is important. It might have been the easy thing to do, but it wouldn't have been the right thing to do," he said.

Has he asked or been asked to consider a pay-off and get out?

"No."

Has he been questioned by the NCAA?

"The NCAA hasn't sent a letter of inquiry yet," he said. "I've never met with them."

Can Baylor play in the SWC tournament?

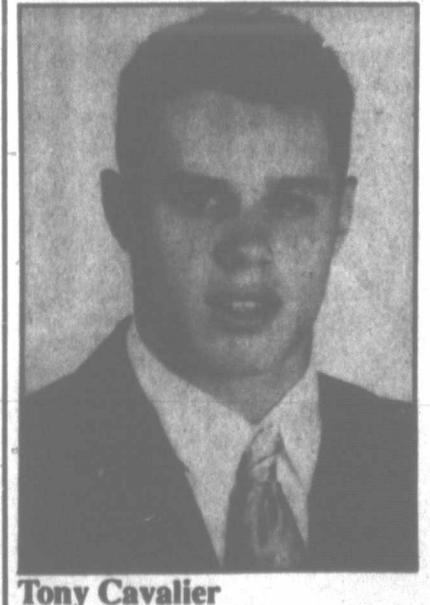

"That's still in the air. Dr. Reynolds will make that decision."

Johnson said he still has faith and tries to encourage his players.

"I tell the team we are still playing for our pride," he said. "We have six good, solid players. I've told them to get ready to play a lot of minutes. The guys are upbeat. I haven't heard them complain."

Meanwhile, Baylor got some words of encouragement from Texas coach Tom Penders and Texas A&M coach Tony Barone, who both said the Bears should be allowed to play in the SWC tournament.

Cavalier in red-shirt role this season

Tony Cavalier

Tony Cavalier of Pampa has been red-shirted his freshman year at Pittsburg State University in Pittsburg, Kan.

Cavalier, a quarterback-safety, was District 1-4A's Most Valuable Player in 1993, compiling more than 2,000 yards of total offense (1,200 passing, 800 rushing). He was also an honorable mention all-state selection.

Cavalier received a scholarship to play for unbeaten Pittsburg State, which is ranked No. 5 in the nation this week in NCAA Division II. He will have four more years of eligibility after this season.

An education major, Tony is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Cavalier of Pampa.

Sun Bowl officials strike deal

EL PASO (AP) — Sun Bowl officials have struck a deal guaranteeing that as of next year the game will feature a matchup between the Pac-10's third-place team and the Big Ten's fifth-place team.

"We think the Big Ten does a lot for us. You can't think of a bad team in the Big Ten. Certainly the same goes for the Pac-10," Tom Starr, the Sun Bowl Association's executive director, said Thursday.

The agreement with both conferences goes into effect next year and runs through 1997. Starr said it gives the game a lock on two good teams.

The Sun Bowl also has the option of moving up in the selection process if its team payments surpass those made by bowls selecting teams earlier.

Playoff spot up for grabs as Lefors hosts Miami

The 1994 Lefors football team can make the record book and end a 20-year playoff drought at the same time with a win over Miami tonight in a key District 1-1A showdown.

The Pirates have never made the playoffs in six-man football. The last year Lefors qualified for the playoffs was in 1974 when the Pirates reached the state semi-finals in 11-man. With Lefors having the homefield advantage, that situation could change tonight.

Both Lefors and Miami have 2-1 district records and are tied for second place behind first-place Samnorwood (3-0).

"It's a have-to win for us," said Lefors coach Ronny Miller. "If Miami wins, it would clinch the playoffs for them."

Lefors must face Samnorwood (7-1 overall) next week in the final game of the regular season. Samnorwood is ranked among the top 10 six-man teams in the state. Miami goes against winless Higgins in the season finale.

"We match up pretty good against Miami. They may be a little quicker than we are," Miller added. (Jeramie) Greenhouse and (Gene) Hurst are both good runners and (Steve) Browning is a good thrower.

Lefors, which is averaging around 380 yards in total offense, is sparked by senior running back Dusty Helfer and junior quarterback Tommy Green. Helfer has rushed for 1,076 yards and 17 touchdowns. Green has thrown 10 touchdown passes and has passed for over 500 yards.

Lefors beat McLean, 63-28, and Miami slipped by Follett, 36-32, last week to set up tonight's crucial contest.

Wins have been hard to come by for unbeaten Utah

By BOB MIMS
AP Sports Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Don't you dare tell coach Ron McBride his undefeated, 12th-ranked Runnin' Utes are a cinch this weekend to mark their best start since 1930.

That was the year Utah last went 8-0, but McBride isn't thinking about making history. He's been too busy plying over Texas-El Paso game film, and he doesn't like what he's seen.

"It's a great feeling to be 7-0. But each win has been very important and hard to come by. This one with UTEP will be the same way," he predicted as Utah prepared to host the Miners on Saturday at Rice Stadium.

"They just get a little better, and a little better and a little better," McBride added. "They hang around and hang around and then come after you. ... If you let up, they'll beat you."

The Utah coach doesn't care to hear that the Miners (3-5 overall, 1-4 in the Western Athletic Conference) field the league's worst offense and second-worst defense. Factor in also that Utah (4-0 in the WAC) has won four of its last five against UTEP.

McBride is troubled by the possible ramifications of the Miners' 34-28 near-miss last week against No. 20 Brigham Young. UTEP nearly rallied from a 20-point deficit before falling to the Cougars.

"UTEP could have beaten BYU. They closed hard in the fourth quarter," McBride said. "This is a very improved and disciplined team."

Utah's Mike McCoy, who has thrown 17 touchdowns and is completing 67 percent of his passes as the conference's top and nation's No. 7 passer, also worries about the Miners.

"We still haven't reached our goal — to win the WAC championship — and we have a tough four weeks ahead of us," the senior quarterback said. "We have UTEP ahead of us, and that's all we can think about."

Miners coach Charlie Bailey doesn't expect his third game against a ranked foe in as many weeks — UTEP lost 47-9 to No. 17 Colorado State two weeks ago — to be any easier.

"Lord, no," he said. "We've probably had the three toughest games in America, right in a row. All three of them are outstanding football teams."

Still, the Miners are not without resources, among them the WAC's No. 2 rusher, Toraino Singleton. The junior tailback averages 107.4 yards per game and is 141 yards shy of becoming only the fourth UTEP player to reach the 1,000-yard plateau in a season.

Meantime, quarterback Shawn Gray — who threw three touchdowns against the Cougars — is just 116 yards short of his 1992 single-season best mark of 1,297 yards passing.

However, Gray presides over an offense that has sputtered. At 306.8 yards per game in total offense, the Miners sit in the WAC's cellar in that category.

On Saturday, they face a stingy Utah defense that has allowed only 263 yards per game, good enough for first in the WAC and eighth in the country. The Utes' secondary is especially tough, first in the conference and fourth among the nation's 107 Division I-A schools, giving up just 179.6 yards per game.

The Utes also are brutal to opposing runners, surrendering just 82 yards an outing, which is tops in the conference and ninth in Division I-A.

"It's going to be really, really, really tough on us," Bailey said, then added for emphasis: "Really tough."

It will be indeed, since the Miners also have a porous defense that gives up 484 yards per game — ninth in the WAC, and better only than New Mexico (2-8).

On paper, it's a mismatch. The Utes are scoring a conference-leading 38.6 points per game while averaging 440 yards of offense.

McCoy has the WAC's Nos. 2 and 3 receivers to choose from with Deron Claiborne and Curtis Marsh, respectively, running routes against a UTEP secondary ninth among the league's 10 teams.

Still, McCoy makes no predictions — except that he and his teammates will not be taking the Miners lightly.

"They gave BYU a real scare, so we definitely will be ready for this game."

Arkansas visits No. 4 Auburn

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Auburn tailback Steve Davis is due for a big game Saturday.

Arkansas coach Danny Ford is all too familiar with the pattern. The Razorbacks play good one week and the next week, some back shreds them.

The Razorbacks played well in a 13-6 loss to Alabama and the next week Marcus Holliday of Memphis made 171 yards on 33 carries in a 16-15 victory.

The following week, Arkansas beat Vanderbilt 42-7. A week later, James Stewart of Tennessee made 85 yards on 11 attempts.

Two weeks ago, in their last game, Arkansas beat Mississippi 31-7. The Rebels had 156 yards.

Now comes the 6-foot-2, 223-pound Davis. He has made 691 yards this year, including 113 against Florida, 104 against Mississippi State, 120 against East Tennessee State and 158 against Mississippi.

"What worries us about Auburn is that we have come back after a win and not played well," Ford said. "We can't afford to go down there and miss a lot of tackles."

Auburn is 7-0 and No. 4 in the country after a 36-33 victory over Florida. Arkansas is 3-4. Both teams were idle last week and somebody on the Southeastern Conference teleconference insisted that Arkansas, because of its defense, is in a prime position to upset the Tigers.

Ford raved about Auburn's victory at Florida, the talents of Davis and quarterback Patrick Nix, who threw for 311 and 319 in his last two games.

"If that means they're set up for us to win, I'd like to be in their shoes," he said. "That ain't what Las Vegas says."

Auburn is a 14-point favorite.

He said Auburn is very experienced, but not old by any means.

"They are dogged good," he said. Ideally, he said, "we would play the best of our ability and see where we are compared to a program like Auburn."

"A lot of things here in Arkansas are not where we would like for them to be," he said. "We would like to be a football team that everybody respects. I don't think we have shown that or deserve that."

He said the Razorbacks do not appear to have much of a chance against Auburn. "They have to help us a whole lot," he said.

Auburn leads the nation in turnover ratio. And, the Tigers have scored 16 touchdowns and six field goals on 23 trips inside the opponents' 20-yard line.

Auburn coach Terry Bowden says the Tigers know they have to play as hard as possible to win. "An invincible feeling is the first step toward complacency and arrogance, and the first step toward losing," he said.

Kickoff at Auburn is 11:30 a.m. CDT.

Nebraska's Phillips has made rapid progress

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Four years ago, people who knew Lawrence Phillips figured he would be running from California authorities, not running for the Heisman Trophy.

Nebraska's sophomore I-back has come a long way since his troubled early teen-age days of running the streets in Ingelwood, El Monte and West Covina, Calif.

On Saturday, he'll be running for No. 3 Nebraska against No. 2 Colorado and its star running back Rashaan Salaam.

Phillips has rushed for 1,233 yards and 12 touchdowns this season and has averaged 6.7 yards per carry average. He ran himself into Heisman contention with eight straight 100-yard-plus games for Nebraska (8-0).

He used to run from school, discipline and authority.

In seventh grade, courts decided that the often-treat Phillips must get to school and placed him in a boys home in El Monte, then in a similar home in West Covina just down the street from an aunt.

In West Covina, Phillips met Baldwin Park High School coach Tony Zane. Phillips said he wanted to play football and Zane soon discovered a special talent.

Phillips was barely eligible academically and had taken few core courses required by colleges, Zane said. That changed, and so did Phillips' attitude.

Zane, assistant principal Ty Pagano and his wife, Christine, directed Phillips, counseled him, picked him up in the morning to take him to school and chewed him out when he needed it.

"I guess my sophomore year was when I started getting serious about school," Phillips said.

"I think I just started playing because everyone else was," he said. "I guess as football became important I started getting more serious about school. ... I discovered I might be pretty good and it was pointed out I might have a chance for a scholarship."

Phillips was a Southern Cal fan but coaching changes at USC turned him off. Nebraska called and convinced Phillips that a move to the Midwest might help him get his life in order.

It has worked better than Phillips could have hoped.

As a true freshman last fall, he stepped in for injured Calvin Jones and rushed for 139 yards against UCLA in a 14-13 victory. He ended with 508 yards on 92 carries for the season, third-best in school history for a freshman.

Jones left school early for the NFL, leaving Phillips as Nebraska's top runner on the nation's top-ranked rushing offense. He became more important to the offense when quarterback Tommie Frazier was lost for the season with recurring blood clots and a lung injury hampered backup Brook Berringer.
