Good Evening!

AREA

PAMPA — Pampans and residents of three surrounding communities contributed almost 20 percent of the more than $20,000 collected by firefighters in the annual Fill-the-Boot campaign to raise funds for the area Muscular Dystrophy Association.

According to the Muscular Dystrophy Association office in Amarillo, firefighters collected $1,186.44 in Pampa, $1,580 in Clarendon, $664.47 in Canadian and $561.92 in Borger.

The Amarillo area includes the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles and Eastern New Mexico. Firefighters in each town stand at intersections and collect the money, a portion of which goes to the national campaign through the annual Labor Day Jerry Lewis Telethon.

Based on populations of Pampa and the three area towns, Clarendon was the most generous to the firefighters' campaign, giving just under 77 cents per capita. Canadian was the next most generous, contributing 28 cents per capita. The per capita contribution from Pampa was just 6 cents, and in Borger it was 4 cents.

MIAMI — An annual audit report and the Academic Excellence indicator system will top the agenda for Miami's school board Monday night.

Lewis Meers, Pampa CPA, is scheduled to present the annual audit of Miami Independent School District at the board of trustees regular meeting at 7 p.m. Monday at the school administration offices, according to Allan Dinmore, superintendent. No irregularities are anticipated, he said.

The school board will also review the Academic Excellence results, Dinmore said.

"It amounts to a summary of last year's TAAS scores," he said. "We are at or above that state average in every category."

Other business includes budget comparisons, fund balances, lunch room report and tax collector's report.

PANHANDLE — Carson County Commissioners are expected to take action on bids for county auto liability insurance and road repair Monday morning.

The commissioners court is also expected to appoint War Memorial Committee members, approve a resolution relating to the county registration and title system and adopt a resolution concerning their records management program, according to Carson County Judge Jay Roselius.

A request to purchase equipment for the District Attorney's office will also be considered at the 10 a.m. Monday meeting of the commissioners court at the Carson County Courthouse in Panhandle.

Roselius said election results would be canvassed and Payment In Lieu of Taxes (PILT) funds would be discussed.

NATIONAL

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Pedro Zamora, who got the AIDS virus as a teenager and dedicated his life to educating the public about the disease, died early today. He was 22.

Zamora, who was featured on MTV's video verite The Real World, died at Mercy Hospital with relatives at his bedside.

Zamora learned he had HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, when he was 17. A gifted speaker, he went on a lecture tour, telling audiences at high schools and other organizations that he was infected through unprotected sex.

He testified at congressional hearings, gave interviews and made a television commercial about AIDS for the national Centers for Disease Control.

"Knowing that I could die has been scary," he said in the ad. "But what's even worse is knowing that my friends didn't learn a thing from all this. They're still doing what I did that got me infected."

BEDFORD, Va. (AP) — A foundation studying sites for a national D-Day monument has picked Bedford, which suffered the largest per capita loss of men in the invasion. The National D-Day Memorial Foundation was expected to announce its decision today, Veterans Day.

The 20-acre site in western Virginia was chosen because of its size, tranquility and the enthusiasm of local officials.

Bush plans to work with Democratic leaders

By LAURA TOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Republican Gov. elect George W. Bush says he knows he will have to include Democrats as he works to fulfill his campaign promises, but he says he's comfortable with such bipartisan endeavors.

"I made it really clear to people in Texas that in order to be an effective government, you don't think of it in terms of being a Republican or a Democrat. You forge philosophical alliances," he said Thursday.

"My dream is to rise above partisan politics," Bush said, adding he wants to govern in terms of what's best for Texas.

And so Bush said he plans to work well with Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, who presides over the Senate, and House Speaker Pete Laney, D-Hale Center. He has spoken with both men since his election.

"We (he and Bullock) had a very good discussion about a general willingness to work together for what's best for the state," he said.

"I will make it clear to them that I want to be helpful, that I'm not going to be an obstructionist. On the other hand, if the drift of the agenda is something I'm not going to like, then I'll be a part of the process to make sure it heads hopefully in the way I want it to head."

The newly elected governor was in Houston Thursday to thank volunteers and other supporters at his local campaign headquarters.

After spending the weekend at his lake house in Athens, Bush said he will return to Austin to resume the transition from managing partner of the Texas Rangers baseball club to Texas governor.

In about a week, Bush plans to announce some appointments, though he would not provide details. He also said he has not yet decided what he will do about appointments made by Gov. Ann Richards.

Bush, describing Tuesday's election as a mandate for change, repeated his plans to reform welfare and education system, to get tougher on juveniles who break the law and to end lawsuit abuse.

And although Bush ran campaign ads linking Richards' ties to President Clinton, he said he doesn't want to give much of the credit for his victory to the president's unpopularity in Texas.

Bush said he won because he defined himself as the conservative candidate who talked about the issues.

"This is a conservative state," he said. "I really do chalk it up to a philosophical victory ... the (political) wind at my back somewhat."

Bush, only the second GOP governor elected since Reconstruction, said Texas is finally a two-party state.

"You cannot really truly define a state as a two-party state unless you're able to look at local commissioner races and county judges. And that's where Texas is really beginning to make inroads," he said. "We did pretty darn good, as I understand, with county judges."

Moments remembered

J.M. Dickson, left, A.O. Dennington and Shirley Hale were among the standing room only crowd that packed Panhandle High School auditorium today for Veteran's Day ceremonies. The 15th annual gathering at the high school started with Mayor Les McNeill reading a proclamation at 8:30 a.m. today followed by a VFW color guard presenting the colors and patriotic music by George Hanna, the high school band, the junior high and high school choirs and elementary classes. The ceremony closed with taps played by Chad Bertrand and Benjy Burrell. A reception sponsored by the junior high school student council followed in the high school gym. Likely GOP chairmen ready agendas for Congress

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The incoming Speaker of the House, Newt Gingrich, said today he would cooperate with the Clinton administration only on those issues where they have common ground.

"I am very prepared to cooperate with the Clinton administration. I am not prepared to compromise," Gingrich said in his first speech in Washington since Tuesday night's stunning election results put his Republican Party in control of Congress.

Gingrich said on issues where they can find agreement with the Democratic White House, he would do so. But he went on to say that on issues where he believes the GOP represents the majority of Americans, "there will be no cooperation."

Gingrich said the election results were historic — "the most shattering one-sided victory since 1946" — and he believed they give his party a mandate in the new Congress.

GOP lawmakers likely to chair committees in the Congress that convenes in January say their Election Day landslide was a popular call to rein in a government that has become too big, too costly and too unresponsive. And for the first time in 40 years, their control of House and Senate panels will give them a huge advantage in moving legislation that does exactly that.

"Clearly, the public doesn't want so much government," Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., returning to his old job as chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, said in an interview Thursday. "We have to go out and get rid of some of government."

Without offering specifics, Domenici said his committee would look for programs "that aren't really working to see what we can get rid of." He also said it would move quickly to strengthen the president's ability to erase individual items in spending bills and to endorse a constitutional amendment that would require a balanced budget.

Behind the scenes, the GOP Senate staff is considering a plan that would trim federal spending by $500 billion to $700 billion through the year 2002, said one Republican aide who spoke on condition of anonymity. The plan is aimed at achieving a balanced budget by then and paying for $100 billion worth of tax cuts for the middle class, the aide said.

Domenici said he would seek support for a plan he has advanced with Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., dramatically reshaping the income tax. People would deduct their savings and investments from their incomes and pay tax only on the difference, which he said would encourage Americans to save money.

The man who will probably chair the House Ways and Means Committee said Thursday that one of his long-range goals is to eliminate the income tax altogether, replacing it with perhaps a national sales tax.

More immediately, Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, said the tax-writing panel would move quickly on several tax cut plans, including reductions in the levies paid by some better-off Social Security recipients, people who save money for future medical use and families with children.

Also on his agenda is a cut in the capital gains tax rate. That levy is paid on profits of sales of stocks and other property, and reducing the tax has been a long-range goal of Republicans.

D'Amato: Whitewater hearings probably will resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Alfonse D'Amato says he's not planning a witch hunt, but renewed hearings on Whitewater are near the top of the agenda for the Senate Banking Committee early next year.

The New York Republican said Thursday the hearings will be "responsible and thorough."

D'Amato, in an interview, said he hoped for cooperation from witnesses but would not hesitate to use subpoena power "if we find people not being cooperative."

"This will not be a witch hunt," he said.

Committee hearings earlier this year focused on the actions of White House and Treasury Department officials, once they learned that regulators recommended a Justice Department criminal investigation of Whitewater.

White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers today said the Clinton administration had cooperated with the last set of congressional hearings and questioned the need for further proceedings.

"We think that we answered every question that was posed to us in the first set of hearings," she said.

Whitewater refers to President Clinton's former investment in an Arkansas land development of that name, a possibly improper Small Business Administration-backed loan to a Whitewater investor and the failure of an Arkansas savings and loan that was owned by a business partner of Clinton and his wife, Hillary.

D'Amato said the hearings, to begin "either at the end of January or early February," might be held in stages, because Whitewater independent counsel Kenneth Starr has asked lawmakers not to impede his criminal investigation.

Gunman kills two Haitian employees at U.S. Embassy

By KERNAN TURNER
Associated Press Writer

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — A gunman shot and killed two Haitian employees of the U.S. Embassy, critically wounded a third and escaped with the embassy payroll.

"It was strictly a criminal act for the money," said embassy spokesman Stanley Schrage. "Tragic as it was, it could have happened in any country in the world."

The employees were carjacked Thursday as they were returning to the embassy with 110 pay packets they had picked up at a bank, Schrage said. He gave no dollar figure, but said it was a considerable amount of money.

The victims were found in their vehicle on a dirt road in Canape Vert, a hillside residential suburb of Port-au-Prince.

A watchman at a nearby house, Paul Merilice, 52, told The Associated Press he heard three shots and called a hospital for help. He said U.S. military police arrived at the scene after the victims had been taken to the hospital.

Slain were Kessel Jean-Paul and Sandra Rigaud, both in their mid-20s. Lamartine Guerrier, an embassy driver, was airlifted to the United States for treatment, Schrage said.

U.S. and Haitian authorities were searching for a suspect, the embassy said.

President Jean-Bertrand Aristide conveyed to U.S. Ambassador William Swing "his shock and grief and also has sent his condolences to the families of the victims," said Aristide spokesman Yvon Neptune.

"We're in a country that's trying to get back on track. Security hasn't been completely re-established, whether in Port-au-Prince or other parts of the country," Neptune said.

"Such criminal acts have no place in a Haiti so full of promise and peace," Swing said.

Thousands of U.S. soldiers arrived in Haiti in September to help restore the elected government of Aristide, who was ousted in a September 1991 military coup.

Although an interim Haitian police force, watched closely by international monitors, is back on the streets, there have been many recent reports of nighttime shootings, muggings and burglaries.

In one case this week, gunmen broke into a home in a wealthy suburb near a U.S. military camp and held those inside hostage until a neighbor's gunshots chased them away, Radio Signal FM reported.

The interim police officers were chosen from the old force and given a short course in ethics and human rights by U.S. trainers, who are setting up a police academy. Academy graduates eventually will replace the interim police.

In another development, about 150 Haitian refugees, most of whom had fled poverty and repression under old military regimes, flew home from Cuba. The United Nations arranged their return on a Cuban airliner, one of three U.N. flights this week carrying Haitian refugees who fled by boat directly to Cuban shores.

Grand jury indicts nurse in four hospital deaths

CHICKASHA, Okla. (AP) — A Grady County grand jury has returned four first-degree murder indictments against a nurse who allegedly told co-workers that she had a role in the deaths of four patients.

Aleata Beach, 48, of Rush Springs was ordered held without bond Thursday.

A bond hearing is scheduled Tuesday; the preliminary hearing will be held in January.

District Attorney Gene Christian said the indictment accuses Mrs. Beach of killing four patients at Grady Memorial Hospital. Flossie Fair, 88, of Cyril; Goldie Crumm, 83, of Rush Springs; Irene Mullins, 73, of Chickasha and Darrell Edwin Richie, 31, of Chickasha all died between Aug. 19 and 21.

Mrs. Beach attempted suicide Aug. 24. Co-workers said she told them she was despondent because of the deaths.

The bodies of the four patients were exhumed and autopsies performed. Final toxicology reports have not been prepared. Christian said the grand jury felt the facts were sufficient for indictment without any final reports on toxicology.

"Obviously, if these 12 people ... felt it (the evidence) was insufficient to go to trial, then we were wasting our time," he said. "It's going to be a major battle" to win a conviction, he said.

Defense attorney Scott Tack said he wasn't surprised by the indictments, but "it's a major disappointment, especially since there is ... no medical evidence that she did or did not" kill the patients.

"How can you indict, how can you prosecute, how can you try someone without that critical evidence?" he said.

Gwen Beach, the nurse's husband; said the two were expecting the indictments and that she was eager to start the court process.

"Right now, she seems to be in pretty good spirits," he said, adding that she expected to be cleared of the charges.

Texas' Gov. Ann Richards will be missed by friends and foes

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Ann Richards made the governor's mansion a haven for grandchildren and motorcycles, and turned the Statehouse into a stage for her acidic one-liners.

As the silver-haired Democrat who matched wits with David Letterman and Jay Leno prepares to leave public office, even Republicans admit they'll miss her dynamic personality.

"She used humor as well as any governor this state has ever had and probably as well as any national political figure," said Republican political consultant Mark Sanders. "It gave people in other states a new impression of Texas."

"Too many people think there are cowboys and Indians still running around here and she was an articulate person who gave people an intelligent impression of what's going on here," he said.

Elected in 1990 after serving two terms as state treasurer, Richards' ability to rub elbows with the stars and punctuate any idea with a cutting barb made her a national celebrity.

She also became one of the state's most popular governors. Crime has fallen three years in a row, student test scores are up and Richards says Texas leads the nation in creating new jobs.

But she couldn't translate her 60 percent approval rating into re-election Tuesday as she was swept aside by a GOP tide and, perhaps, a bit of backlash over her famous tart tongue.

An exit poll of voters showed that 31 percent of voters felt Richards had unfairly attacked Republican George W. Bush, whom she called a "jerk," "shrub" and "boy George."

Only 14 percent felt Bush had unfairly attacked Richards. The poll of about 1,600 voters had a margin of error of 3.5 percentage points.

Richards, 61, said the race would have been boring if she held back. After all, it was her caustic wit that catapulted her to national prominence in 1988 when she ridiculed Bush's father at the Democratic National Convention.

"Poor George," she drawled about the elder Bush, then the vice president and a presidential candidate. "He can't help it. He was born with a silver foot in his mouth."

A star was born — and Bush continued to be her best material when he became president.

Of his economic recovery plan, Richards called it "a Brylcreem agenda, a little dab'll do ya." On his performance in foreign policy, Richards said, "Even a 17-year-old debutante can bow from the waist."

And after it appeared Bush would lose to Bill Clinton in 1992, she said, "Stick a fork in George Bush. He's done."

Richards says the humor was born from despair. A recovering alcoholic, she found the lighter side the only way to deal with life after liquor.

"In that way she is sort of a great model for people, a great inspiration that they can take control of their lives and achieve whatever they want," said Karl Rove, the GOP consultant who helped orchestrate Richards' defeat.

For Richards, the lighter side includes a parrot named Gracie, a love of sports, her grandchildren and, of course, motorcycles.

In 1992, the governor casually mentioned that she would like to celebrate her 60th birthday with a motorcycle ride. Harley-Davidson promptly presented her with a pearl-white cycle decorated with the Texas flag.

To keep from violating ethics laws she gave the bike to the Department of Public Safety. But she plopped a helmet on her neatly stacked coiffure, went through driver's training and received her motorcycle license last year.

"There's something about turning that throttle up, turning your head and watching that machine go with you," she said. "You feel as if the machine itself is a sort of extension of you."

Richards' spunk played well in Hollywood. She frequently traveled to California and convinced producers to make movies in Texas. Campaign donors included Steven Spielberg, Marlo Thomas, Anne Archer and Lily Tomlin.

Richards always played down the attention she received.

"All of the hype and the publicity stuff, you know the only value of that? It makes people think about us," she said. "And if it makes people think Texas is a good or interesting or profitable place to be, then that's great."

Attorney, Renaissance man Louis Nizer dies at age 92

By VERENA DOBNIK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Attorney Louis Nizer, a Renaissance man who won an important anti-blacklisting case and advised some of America's most famous people and top politicians, has died at 92.

Nizer died of kidney failure Thursday at Beth Israel Medical Center, said Perry Galler, a partner in the law firm Nizer co-founded, Phillips, Nizer, Benjamin, Krim & Ballon.

In addition to arguing hundreds of cases across the nation and in foreign countries, Nizer wrote 10 books, composed music, painted and played golf.

He advised politicians such as former New York Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia and President Lyndon Johnson, for whom he also wrote speeches.

Nizer's celebrity clients included Johnny Carson, Charlie Chaplin, Salvador Dali, Eddie Fisher, Alan Jay Lerner and Mae West, in addition to many large corporations such as Occidental Petroleum.

"Louis Nizer was this country's quintessential Renaissance man," said Galler, the law firm's managing partner. "He taught and inspired a whole generation of younger lawyers in the firm and around the country."

One of the flamboyant lawyer's best-known cases was the libel suit of John Henry Faulk, a CBS radio personality who in 1956 said he was libeled by AWARE, an anti-Communist group that "cleared" performers for sponsors. When Faulk opposed AWARE, the organization branded him a Communist and ruined his career.

Nizer won Faulk a then-record $3.5 million in damages, and the case was credited with helping to stop blacklisting in broadcasting. The award was reduced to $725,000 on appeal.

In a 1975 docudrama about the Faulk case, Nizer was portrayed by George C. Scott.

Another of Nizer's successful cases — the libel suit writer Quentin Reynolds brought against columnist Westbrook Pegler — was the basis of the 1963 Broadway play A Case of Libel.

Louis Nizer

Nizer also prepared an analysis of the Warren Commission's report on President Kennedy's assassination, which was appended to the report when it was released in book form.

Nizer's books include his best-selling 1962 autobiography, My Life in Court and The Implosion Conspiracy, a study of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg's espionage case. Based on his cases, he also wrote The Jury Returns and Reflections Without Mirrors. The 1992 book, Catspaw, Nizer's last, is about a man tried for a double murder Nizer says he didn't commit.

His paintings were exhibited at galleries in the United States and Canada.

Nizer was born in London and raised in New York City's Brooklyn borough from age 2, as the son of a dry-cleaning store owner. A lifelong New York City resident, he received undergraduate and law degrees from Columbia University.

He reportedly remained active in his law firm until 10 days before his death.

Nizer's wife, Mildred, died last year. He is survived by two children and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

First Jewish veteran to get Medal of Honor remembered

By TRUDY TYNAN

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A medal, a jacket, and two brothers.

The Medal of Honor presented to Leopold Karpeles, the Springfield store clerk who became the first Jewish war veteran to receive the nation's highest military honor, went on display for the first time this Veterans Day in the city where he donned Union blue.

But in a poignant reminder that the Civil War split families as well as the nation, the uniform jacket next to the medal is the Confederate lieutenant's grey worn by Karpeles' brother, Emil, who fought with the Texas forces.

"The medal belongs here in Springfield where the people can see the history that has come to their city from its Jewish war veterans," said L. James Williams of Providence, R.I., a great-grandson of Karpeles, who presented the artifacts to the Connecticut Valley Historical Museum.

Until they brought it to the museum, along with Leopold's sword, canteen, rucksack and medals, the family hadn't realized the uniform jacket that during the Battle of the Wilderness on May 6, 1864, when the Union forces were in confusion, the young man, described on his enlistment papers as 5-foot-5 with black hair and eyes, alone stood his ground. Against all odds, and despite being severely wounded, he managed to rally enough men around him to hold his position and prevent the capture of his troops.

When he was brought to a Washington hospital, doctors feared they would have to amputate his wounded leg. But Sara Mundheim, a volunteer at the hospital, offered to take him home and nurse him. Her care saved the leg and she and Karpeles were married in 1865. After September 1862, Leopold, then 23, signed up to fight for the Union, first with the 46th Massachusetts Infantry and then with the 57th Massachusetts Volunteers, where he served as color sergeant.

Jury rejects 'urban survival' claims, convicts teen in deaths

FORT WORTH (AP) — Tarrant County jurors have rejected claims that a teenager had to kill two men to survive in his inner-city neighborhood and have convicted him of capital murder.

Daimion Osby, 19, was convicted Thursday in his retrial in the shooting deaths of two Fort Worth men.

In Osby's first trial, in April, his attorneys argued that he suffered from a kill-or-be-killed paranoia from growing up in a high-crime urban area. That ended with a hung jury when one juror held out for an innocent verdict.

The second jury deliberated 5 1/2 hours before delivering its verdict, which carries an automatic life sentence.

Osby, who must serve 35 years before he can be paroled, was convicted in the double slaying of Marcus Brooks, 19, and his cousin Willie "Peanut" Brooks, 28, in April, 1993.

The defense theory in the case, which has attracted national attention, called Osby's actions a rational act of "urban survival."

"Two juries have rejected 'urban survival'; I hope now we see it die," said Tarrant County prosecutor Renee Harris. "I hope we can stop attacking the community and help build a community that has a crime problem."

Defense attorney David Bays said he continues to believe that the defense theory is valid, "but maybe we didn't have the right facts."

He said his case was crippled by explosive new testimony that the shooting victims were being restrained. The defense also was hurt by the prosecution's success in keeping the jury from hearing testimony from several defense experts, defense lawyers said.

"We couldn't talk about his state of mind, which was our whole case," co-defense attorney Bill Lane said.

During the seven days of testimony, prosecutors blocked the defense's expert witnesses from testifying about how conditions in Osby's Stop Six neighborhood might have affected his state of mind.

Jared Taylor, an author and race relations expert from Louisville, Ky., testified that national crime statistics show that young black males are 25 times more likely than average to commit murder.

Their victims are overwhelmingly other black males — and the sense of danger and fear that is generated by those numbers is well-known among inner-city black youths, he said.

Osby, who seemed shy and soft-spoken when he testified last week, hung his head when the verdict was delivered at 9:30 p.m. He wiped back a tear as a bailiff led him from the courtroom.

Astronauts test recliner platform

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER (AP) — Astronauts installed a platform today for new reclining seats to be used aboard Atlantis next year when the shuttle picks up three passengers from the Russian space station Mir.

Atlantis' next flight after its current 11-day mission is a planned June docking with Russia's orbiting outpost.

The shuttle will carry two cosmonauts to Mir and return with two cosmonauts and U.S. astronaut Norman Thagard. The three are to ride a Russian rocket to the space station in March.

After three months in orbit, Thagard and the cosmonauts will be too weak to return in conventional upright shuttle seats because of space-induced muscle and bone loss. Cosmonauts always return from Mir in a reclining position.

The reclining seats will be installed after Atlantis has docked with the space station.

Today, astronaut Jean-Francois Clervoy fitted a support platform and mounting bracket into the floor of Atlantis' crew compartment. NASA wanted to be sure the hardware fits when shuttle surfaces undergo the structural stress caused by space flight.

"There was no problem at all," Clervoy said. "It was easy."

The next shuttle mission, set for February, is a dress rehearsal for the Mir docking. Discovery and a crew of six, including Russian cosmonaut Vladimir Titov, are to fly within 100 yards of the 130-ton station.

Meanwhile, Atlantis' atmospheric and solar-energy monitors continued their work from the shuttle cargo bay today, along with a tag-along satellite conducting similar research.

By Thursday, infrared telescopes aboard the German satellite had gathered more than 10 million spectra, or atmospheric wavelength images.

Scientists hope information collected during the mission yields clues about the atmosphere's composition, especially the delicate ozone layer, and how the sun's energy affects it.

Astronauts released the $35 million satellite last Friday and were to pluck it from orbit Saturday with the shuttle's robot arm.

Atlantis and its six-member crew are due back in Florida on Monday.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coving commandment.

The Houston Post on Congressional Perks:

While you are struggling to make ends meet, pity your poor congresspersons.

What you pay them in salary and perks has gone up only $7,544 since August 1992, Money magazine reports. It's hard to see how they can possibly get along on such static recompense.

Money estimates the cost of running Congress this year at $2.8 billion.

The congressional salary, now $133,600, is up from $129,500 in 1992. Out of deference to the voters, the lawmakers have decided for the second year in a row to forgo an automatic 2.1 percent cost-of-living adjustment. They're even talking seriously about skipping a 2.6 percent COLA for 1995, Money says.

But there's no inclination (except in the taxpayers' minds) to cut the annual value of perks, which the magazine estimates now at $42,146 a year per member and boosts our annual support for each lawmaker to $175,746.

The estimate includes $27,121 for the lawmaker's pension plan, $6,680 in matching contributions to his or her tax-deferred savings plan, $3,648 for health insurance (75 percent of the premium) and some less-costly perks.

Congresspersons are being furnished — mostly at your expense — a Cadillac pension system few Americans can even dream of.

This retirement system not only pays monthly benefits far exceeding most private-sector pension plans, but includes cost-of-living adjustments.

Of course, congresspersons also get thousands of dollars a year free postage to tell you how valuable they are.

Maybe someday inflation would erode their pensions enough to bring them in line with their constituents'.

Their perks are way out of hand.

Austin American-Statesman on state tax reform:

... Kudos to House Speaker Pete Laney for rapping — however softly — on the door to a new tax era by daring to suggest in a recent speech that something has got to change.

There is little doubt that the state leadership realizes something has got to give, because the outmoded property tax — geared to work in a more agrarian economy — is rapidly reaching its limits. It is a problem that must be addressed, preferably before there is a crisis. Some would suggest there is a crisis now, one that is not widely recognized.

Laney made a good case for restructuring the tax burden and bowed to the reality of accomplishing that.

"The Legislature is not going to force a new tax structure upon Texas without strong public support for it."

"Now, editorial writers may denounce that as a lack of courage, but I believe it is a simple fact of life. ... The time for tax restructuring will come. It is inevitable," the speaker said.

Laney is right. There will be no significant change without the support of the people. The role of the leadership is to guide a rational, reasoned, informed examination of the topic. The hint Laney dropped ... is a step in the right direction.

"What's the matter — you don't know about 'dressing down' at offices on Fridays?"

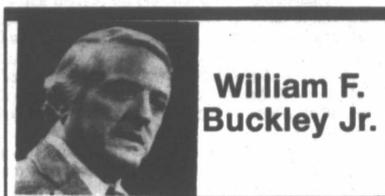

Giuliani's political maneuver

When in 1969 Norman Mailer ran his eccentric campaign for mayor of New York, he made only a single proposal that lingers in the memory, namely that New York City should be made a separate state. There are 62 counties in New York state, five in New York City, Staten Island (Richmond County) from time to time reminds us of its singularity, but the remaining four counties are impacted/suburban, and Mailer's point was that it is only by historical accident that they should share statehood with, e.g., Cayuga County.

Now the constant tug — New York City vs. New York state — has to do, as one might expect, with the allocation of revenues. And of course much the same applies at a higher level. The state of Ohio cares how much it gives to Washington, now much Washington "gives" — or more accurately, returns — to Ohio. Thirty states receive (slightly) more money from Washington than they remit. The other states send more money than they get back.

In the case of New York, as of 1993 the figure was: For every $1 sent by New Yorkers to Washington, they could expect 83 cents in return. The irony has been around for generations. Sen. Jacob Javits used to boast during his campaigns about the amount of money he had seduced Washington into sending to New York. He never spent any time describing the money seduced by Washington from New York, for the very good reason that the latter sum exceeded the former.

Rudy Giuliani knows all that stuff because he is a very bright man. To be a bright man in politics often means that you feed, and sometimes force-feed, popular superstitions. This point was brilliantly accentuated when 2 1/2 months ago, Giuliani came out for the federal crime bill. Why did he do this?

William F. Buckley Jr.

Previously he had argued that the "extra" policemen Washington was giving to the states were drastically underfunded. The crime bill will send out only about three-quarters of the actual cost of maintaining those extra policemen.

But even having made that point, Giuliani nevertheless came out for the crime bill, and he did this for one very simple reason, namely that $800 million was slated to go to New York City. Since those $800 million do not materialize like the gentle dew, simple arithmetic based on existing figures informs the inquirer that in order to receive $800 million from Washington, it becomes necessary for New Yorkers to send $964 million to Washington. What Mayor Giuliani was in effect doing was to tax New Yorkers over $100 million more than they'd have had to pay if the crime bill had not passed.

But to look at it that way is to take the longer perspective, and the longer perspective isn't often the thing that politicians want to stress. As far as Giuliani was concerned, he could say that he was supporting a bill that would cause $800 million to turn up in New York City. What more to ask? One has to suppose that there are Giuliani-crime bill supporters who think the money is coming from Las Vegas. Giuliani and Cuomo have a considerable stake in public ignorance.

It was an extension of short-order reasoning that caused Giuliani recently to announce his support for Mario Cuomo's re-election. All the reasons he gave for supporting Cuomo are sad testimony to political cynicism. Giuliani joined the ranks of the Republican Party presumably because he saw in the Republican approach to political problems a difference from the Democratic approach.

Suppose that George Pataki had been governor for 12 years, and that though he preached political sermons that made him sound like Ronald Reagan and Barry Goldwater, his record as an administrator was so dismal that New York state was losing money and losing business. A young and relatively untired Democrat called Mario Cuomo decides to challenge the etiolated Republican, so Mayor Giuliani says to himself: What the hell. Although I am a Republican, I have to look at 12 years of Gov. Pataki and come to the sad conclusion that he has been a failure. So let's give the Democrat a chance.

To have done as he did in exactly contrary conditions is inexplicable except on one assumption. Namely that he had privately concluded that Cuomo was going to be re-elected, and he wants Albany's money. There is zero other explanation, given the awful record of Cuomo as governor, and the presumptive allegiance by Giuliani to the principles that distinguish his party from the Democratic Party.

It is dismaying to think that he might have been right, that maybe Cuomo would have been re-elected. It is repellent to dwell on the political cant in which Giuliani engaged in his statement endorsing the tired, windy spendthrift against the young Republican challenger.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Nov. 11, the 315th day of 1994. There are 50 days left in the year. This is Veterans Day in the U.S., and Remembrance Day in Canada.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 11, 1918, fighting in World War I came to an end with the signing of an armistice between the Allies and Germany.

On this date:

In 1620, 41 Pilgrims aboard the Mayflower, anchored off Massachusetts, signed a compact calling for a "body politic" to enact "just and equal laws."

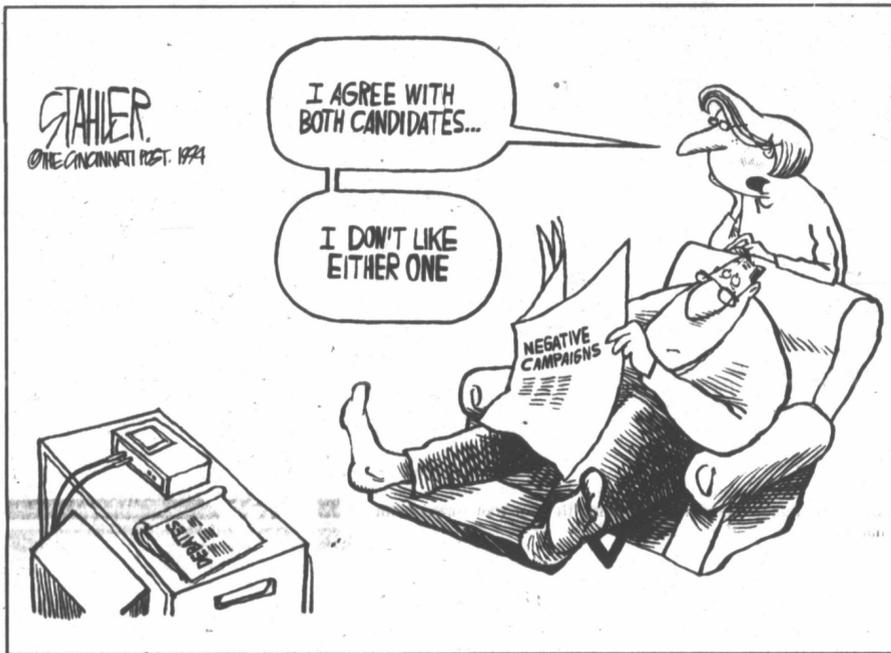

In 1831, former slave Nat Turner, who had led a violent insurrection, was executed in Jerusalem, Va.

In 1889, Washington became the 42nd state.

In 1921, President Harding dedicated the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

In 1939, Kate Smith first sang Irving Berlin's "God Bless America" on network radio.

In 1942, during World War II, Germany completed its occupation of France.

Music of the night brings light

When communists invaded South Korea in 1950, there was carnage in many villages below the 38th parallel.

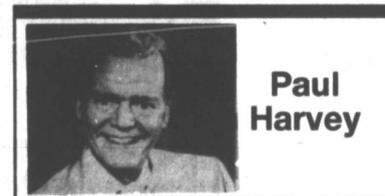

One of the enemy bombs found the village home of a tiny 3-year-old girl named Kim. Scores of villagers died that day. She was among the few to be spared — though the bomb blast left her grievously wounded.

Girl babies were more of a liability than an asset to impoverished Korean families anyway. So, a short time later — the war still raging — Kim's father, frustrated by his inability to feed his children, took this one down to the river to drown her.

He had already drowned another baby daughter, but this time, the child's mother interceded. She came running and screaming, refusing to allow her baby Kim to be disposed of this way.

After much discussion, the desperate father relented and took the child to an orphanage in Taigu.

It was there that she was nursed back to health, and it was there that the child learned to sing. Soon, she was soloist in the orphanage church services.

Paul Harvey

When Kim was 10, she was adopted by the George Wickes family of Dayton, Ind. Now, Kim had an American home and an American name: Kim Wickes.

In return, she has rewarded us all.

An outstanding student, she graduated first from Wheaton College and then from the Indiana School of Music. She won a scholarship to the Vienna Institute of Music and studied under Frau Ludwig in Europe.

And, in the years since, Kim Wickes has brought audiences to their feet in Europe, Malaysia and Hong Kong. She's been to Israel 11 times. She received a triumphant welcome home to Korea.

When she soloed with the Billy Graham Crusade, in the Hollywood Bowl, the evangelist called it "some of the best music the Hollywood Bowl has ever heard!"

And as she inspired him, his message convinced her. Now a Christian with concerts, recordings and radio and TV performances, Kim Wickes has entertained and motivated uncountable millions on every continent.

We who have heard her in person have heard vocal music with the delicacy of bird song and with the might and majesty of a heavenly host of angels.

Listeners may come and go, hearing and heeding her Christian message, and yet not know what I have related about the child of Korea — whose father sought to drown her as "useless" at the age of 3.

And who, from the enemy bombardment of her village, was sentenced to a lifetime of sightlessness.

It is music of the night that is now turning on lights all over the world.

Clinton has two years to earn his title

WASHINGTON— "They used to call me the Comeback Kid," President Clinton said before the Republican torrent swept the nation. Now he's got two years, with an opposition Congress confronting him, to earn the title for a second term campaign.

Actually, that comeback label was his own in the first place, a ploy to ease the impact of defeat in his first presidential primary election in 1992.

Now, any Clinton comeback is going to have to be real, not just the cover story for a temporary setback. Not after the tidal wave that carried the GOP to control of the House and Senate and to dominance in the nation's statehouses.

Come 1996 there will be Republican governors in eight of the nine biggest electoral vote states, the ones that spell victory or defeat.

The president's options are narrowed now; whatever he gets done in Congress will have to be gained by compromise. He said so Wednesday at a subdued, conciliatory White House news conference, not really changing his proposals so much as his tone, to stress cooperation, bipartisanship, common ground ideas for the new Congress.

Clinton said he'd take his share of the blame for Tuesday's Democratic drubbing. He said the voters don't like what they see when they watch Washington at work, and they held the Democrats accountable because they were the party in charge.

"They sent us a clear message. I got it, and I'm going to redouble my efforts," he said, to deliver the governance people want, and to work in tandem with Republicans.

Walter Mears AP Special Correspondent

But there was a certain familiarity in the message. It seemed to be that what voters punished was not so much performance as what they'd heard about it. He said he'd spent too much time trying to pass bills to spend enough reassuring Americans that they were part of the process.

"They still believe that government is more often the problem than the solution," Clinton said, in a line echoing Ronald Reagan's texts. Now he's got to convince a majority that he can deliver solutions they want.

To do that, there's no option but bipartisanship, of course, with a Republican Senate, an astoundingly Republican House, Republican governors dominant in the states that are crucial in presidential elections.

He spoke of welfare reform as a common ground program, of lobbying and campaign finance reform, applying the laws to Congress that cover everybody else, the line item veto to curb spending. All those are in Republican programs, too.

The difference, and the discord, will be in the details.

That's doubly so on health care, where he said he remains committed to reform the system.

His choices are narrowed, his challenges greater. And this is a president with a lot of convincing to do. "We've got plenty of time to worry about the next election," he said. To be precise, four days short of two years. First the primaries, of course; New Hampshire's, probably on Feb. 20, 1996, is where Clinton produced his preemptive concession in 1992, calling defeat a comeback.

So the Democrats had better not wait long to start worrying about a way back. For nearly three decades, election upheavals like those of the Tuesday balloting — not a single Republican incumbent for Congress or governor lost, only Democrats — have been prefaces to presidential peril.

So it was in 1966, for example, the Republican revival that won the White House two years later. And in 1974, in favor of Democrats, the preface to Jimmy Carter's one-term presidency. Four years later, Republican gains foretold Reagan.

And these Democratic defeats dwarf any of those. The last time such a midterm trend was totally reversed was in Harry Truman's 1948 upset of the century.

"I will do everything in my power to reach out," Clinton said amid the Democratic wreckage on Wednesday. "I want to work with them."

But he'll have to work against them, too. Would-be GOP challengers called the elections a total repudiation of his programs, a change order to the president, an anti-Clinton landslide.

And the president, asked whether he would have won had this been the presidential re-election year, said he'd like to think so. "I would have been a ferocious defender of what we have done," he said.

Famed jazz singer Carmen McRae dies

By NIKO PRICE
Associated Press Writer

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Carmen McRae, the veteran jazz stylist hailed for her innovative scat singing and sensuous phrasing, has died. She was 74.

McRae died at home Thursday night. She had fallen into a semi-coma four days earlier, a month after she was hospitalized for a stroke, said her secretary and friend of 26 years, Jan March.

"She said, 'I don't want a memorial. I don't want a funeral. I don't want flowers. All I want to be remembered for is my music,'" March said. "That was her whole world."

McRae had been bedridden since suffering respiratory failure four years ago during a show at the Blue Note nightclub in New York, March said. She never performed again.

In December, the National Endowment for the Arts named McRae one of its masters of jazz, hailing her "instinctive feeling for rhythm, her skillful vocal technique, her innovative scat singing, as well as her relaxed manner of presentation."

Jazz saxophonist Stanley Turrentine today called McRae "the last great stylist of her time. ... She was spicy. She was Carmen. And she didn't hesitate to speak her mind."

Carmen McRae

"The world has lost an icon, a very precious gift that was given to us all," said jazz singer O.C. Smith, a longtime friend. "At least we have her music, her gift, to remember her by."

A pianist as well as a singer, McRae was one of jazz's best-known female performers. Her repertoire included "God Bless the Child," a song closely associated with her biggest influence, Billie Holiday; Cole Porter's "I've Got You Under My Skin;" Billy Joel's "New York State of Mind;" and Dave Brubeck's "Take Five."

"She picked unusual songs, not standard songs," Turrentine said. "She was a great piano player too. Not just a vocalist, a great musician."

She was born in New York City's Harlem on April 8, 1920 (some references say 1922). McRae's parents sent her to piano lessons in the hope that she'd become a concert pianist, but "I'd keep sheet music of pop tunes hidden among the classical stuff in the piano bench, and when everyone was out of earshot I let go with the pops," she told the New York Post in 1966.

At 17, McRae won an amateur talent contest at the Apollo Theater and went on to sing with Benny Carter, Count Basie and Earl "Fatha" Hines.

After World War II, she went solo. By 1953, she'd been named Downbeat magazine's new star of the year. Her first album came out in 1954, and in 1955 she tied with Ella Fitzgerald for best female vocalist in a Metronome magazine poll.

McRae's focus was always the words, delivered in a contralto that she modulated from a purr and guttural points of punctuation.

"Every word is important to me," she once said. "It's like an actress who selects a role that contains something she wants to portray. If I don't have something new to offer in a song, well, I just won't sing it."

Administration drops attempt to overturn conviction in mail-order child porno case

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration is dropping its attempt to overturn a child pornography conviction in what a conservative group hailed as a prudent response to Republican election victories this week.

Reversing position, the Justice Department urged the Supreme Court on Thursday to reject an appeal from a man convicted of buying mail-order videos showing girls' clothed genital areas.

"If they had not backed down, it would have been an act of political stupidity on their part," said John McMickle, litigation coordinator for National Law Center for Children and Families, a conservative group that filed several court briefs in the last year supporting the conviction.

"We strongly feel that the Justice Department's latest position is a result of over a year's worth of effort and the Clinton administration's defeat in the Tuesday elections," McMickle said. "This is the first indication we have from the Clinton administration of how they are going to react in a more conservative Republican world."

In an unusual move, the administration's new court brief was signed by Attorney General Janet Reno and not by Solicitor General Drew Days, who had filed the earlier brief arguing the conviction should be overturned.

The case has been a political hot potato for the administration since September 1993 when Days reversed the position taken by the Bush administration supporting the conviction.

Days' brief said the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had erred in upholding the conviction because it "utilized an impermissibly broad standard" for determining what is child pornography. That enraged conservative groups like Enough is Enough and the National Law Center for Children and Families. Eventually, 234 members of Congress filed a brief arguing that Days' view would weaken child pornography law.

After conservative lawmakers accused the administration of being soft on pornography, President Clinton asked Reno to draft legislation to tighten child pornography laws.

Instead, on Thursday, she tightened the department's view of the existing legislation.

In a two-page statement explaining why she, not Days, signed the brief, Reno said, "I agree with the 3rd Circuit's construction. The solicitor general took a position in the Supreme Court which disagrees with that interpretation."

"This is an issue upon which reasonable people, applying the law in good faith, can and have, disagreed," Reno added.

"I believe the government must argue for that legitimate interpretation of the statute which prohibits the receipt and possession of child pornography to the maximum extent allowed under the Constitution," Reno said.

In 1991, police found in Stephen A. Knox's State College, Pa., apartment three video cassettes produced by a Las Vegas company.

Under a federal law that bans "exhibition of a child's genitals or pubic area," Knox was convicted of receiving through the mail and possessing visual depictions of minors engaged in "sexually explicit conduct."

The videos showed girls, aged 10 to 17, spreading their legs and mimicking sexual relations. They wore opaque bathing suits, leotards or underwear, but the camera focused on their genital areas.

The 3rd Circuit upheld Knox's conviction and five-year sentence on grounds the law applies "even when these areas are covered by articles of clothing."

Knox appealed to the Supreme Court arguing that nudity was required for conviction. The Bush administration urged the justices to reject Knox's appeal, but they agreed to hear it.

Then Days argued that, although nudity is not required, the genitals or pubic area must be discernible through tight or transparent clothing.

Noting the altered government view, the high court ordered the 3rd Circuit to restudy the case.

In June, the 3rd Circuit reaffirmed Knox's conviction and rejected both Knox's and the administration's interpretations.

Nudity is not required; a video can violate the law by depicting behavior that appeals to the lascivious interests of the intended audience, the appeals court said.

Knox appealed to the Supreme Court again Sept. 7. Thursday's Justice Department brief supported the 3rd Circuit and urged the high court not to hear the appeal.

Suicide bomber kills three in Gaza Strip

By DIANNA CAHN
Associated Press Writer

NETZARIM, Gaza Strip (AP) — A suicide cyclist with a bomb strapped to his body triggered the explosives as he veered toward an Israeli army jeep today, killing three soldiers and wounding a dozen Palestinians and Israelis.

Islamic Jihad, a militant group opposed to Israel-PLO peacemaking, claimed responsibility for the attack. The group said it was in retaliation for the Nov. 2 car bomb killing of an Islamic Jihad leader blamed on Israel.

The attack occurred at a main junction on Gaza's north-south highway, which is patrolled by Israeli and Palestine Liberation Organization forces.

Palestinian demonstrators had gathered at the intersection to protest Israel's barring Palestinians from jobs in Israel.

Seven Israeli soldiers were wounded when the cyclist set off the explosive as he drove near a jeep, an Israeli official said. Hospital officials said four Palestinians in a taxi were also wounded.

There were conflicting reports whether the attacker was riding on a motorcycle or a bicycle.

Brig. Salem Abu Omar, a PLO officer, said a Palestinian on a motorcycle got past PLO police, drove into an Israeli checkpoint and set off the bomb. He said Palestinian police had stopped several buses with protesters who had planned to join the demonstration.

A PLO police colonel was slightly injured in the blast, he said.

At a separate protest outside the slain Islamic Jihad leader's house in Gaza City, Islamic Jihad leader Sheik Abdullah Shami said the suicide attack was in retaliation for the Nov. 2 car bomb killing of Hani Abed.

Two masked men, each carrying an automatic rifle, told the crowd of about that Islamic Jihad claimed responsibility for the attack and claimed four Israeli soldiers were killed and a dozen wounded. They said the attacker rode a bicycle.

"This is one of our first responses to the death of Hani Abed," said an announcer at the rally.

Islamic Jihad is the smallest and most violent of the Islamic militant groups opposed to the Israel-PLO accord. It is led by Fathi Shikaki, a doctor based in Lebanon and Syria, and reportedly gets support from Iran.

Islamic Jihad is separate from Hamas, which has claimed responsibility for other terror attacks aimed at derailing the peace process, including the Oct. 19 bombing of a Tel Aviv bus that killed 22 people.

The explosion occurred 200 yards from the Jewish settlement of Netzarim. Israeli troops and PLO police gather at the junction to conduct joint patrols, and leaflets distributed after Abed's death threatened to attack one of those patrols.

"We heard a tremendous boom and (saw) smoke above the junction," said Haim Yifrah, a resident of the Jewish settlement who was near the intersection at the time of the attack.

The explosion occurred in an area of the Gaza Strip still controlled by Israeli forces. The army pulled out of most of the strip when the PLO took over in May but soldiers stayed in some areas to protect Jewish settlements.

From Netzarim, an isolated community of 180 people, the outskirts of Gaza City with its 300,000 Palestinian residents is clearly visible.

Other attacks claimed by Hamas in the past month include a shooting spree in a Jerusalem cafe district Oct. 9 that killed two people and the kidnapping of an Israeli soldier who was killed by his captors during a failed Israeli rescue attempt.

Official: U.S. plans to lift Bosnian arms embargo

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States plans to stop enforcing the arms embargo against the Bosnian government next week, despite opposition in the Security Council to lifting the ban, U.S. officials said.

"We plan to fully implement the legal requirement that no U.S. funds be used to prevent arms from going to the Bosnian government," James P. Rubin, a spokesman for the U.S. Mission to the United Nations, said Thursday.

President Clinton signed a bill last month that would cut funding to enforce the embargo against the Muslim-led government on Nov. 15 — Tuesday — unless the United Nations lifts the ban first.

The New York Times reported today that Clinton has directed the U.S. Navy to stop diverting ships carrying arms to Bosnia or Croatia beginning Saturday.

The Pentagon has scheduled a briefing for today on the embargo issue.

A U.S.-sponsored resolution to lift the embargo is pending before the Security Council, which could still act before the Tuesday deadline.

The Security Council heard debate on the embargo this week but deferred action.

The embargo was imposed in 1991 against all parties in the conflict as Yugoslavia disintegrated and fighting began in Slovenia and Croatia.

Fighting in Bosnia began in April 1992 when Serbs rebelled after the Bosnia's ethnic Croats and Muslims voted to secede from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia. About 200,000 people are dead or missing in the war.

American officials maintain the embargo prohibiting sales to all sides has placed the Muslims at a disadvantage against the Bosnian Serbs. Until August, they had been supplied by their patrons in Serbia, the largest republic left in Yugoslavia.

Serbia cut ties in August in a so-far unsuccessful effort to get the Bosnian Serbs to accept a peace plan, already approved by Bosnia's Muslim-Croat federation.

The U.S. resolution would exempt Bosnia's government from the embargo within six months if the Bosnian Serbs don't sign the proposed peace treaty.

Several nations are concerned that if the embargo is lifted, the Bosnian Serbs might attack U.N. peacekeepers. There are also fears that the resolution would endanger humanitarian aid shipments and that Serbia could get involved in the war.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE WOMEN TOOK CARE OF ALL THE MONEY
MONEY, IN BIBLICAL TIMES, WAS CARRIED IN VARIOUS WAYS. USUALLY PEOPLE CARRIED MONEY, OR OBJECTS OF GREAT VALUE WRAPPED IN THE FOLDS OF THE GIRDLER WHICH WAS WORN AROUND THE WAIST LIKE A SASH. AS A COMMON OCCURENCE MEN DID NOT BOTHER WITH THE PAYMENT OF DEBTS AND BILLS -- THIS WAS LEFT TO THE CARE OF THE WIFE OR MOTHER! A MAN ON A LONG TRIP INVARIABLY MADE SURE THAT THE WOMAN HAD COMPLETE CHARGE OF THE MONEY TO PAY FOR EVERY NEED. THIS WAS GOOD INSURANCE HIS MONEY WOULD NOT BE STOLEN DURING THE JOURNEY BECAUSE THIEVES AND BRIGANDS MIGHT SEARCH A MAN FOR MONEY BUT THE WOMAN WAS INVOLATE, POSSIBLY THIS WAS WHY THE WOMEN TOOK CARE OF ALL MONEY. BEFORE COINS CAME INTO USE, PIECES OF SILVER AND GOLD WERE TIED IN A BAG, OR IN A GIRDLER, OR STRUNG ON A CORD TO BE TAKEN OFF WHEN PAYMENT WAS REQUIRED FOR PURCHASES, AND WEIGHTS AND SCALES WERE CARRIED FOR WEIGHING OUT THE DESIRED QUANTITY.

Translators finish book of Luke in Gullah Riles evangelist at FCC

"She habe boy chile, e fusbon. E wrop um op een clothe wa been teah eenta leetle strip an lay un een a trough, de box weh feed de cow and oda animal. Cause Mary and Joseph beena stay weh de animal sleep. Dey ain't been no room fa dem een side de bodin house."
— Luke 2:7, the Christmas story, from the Gullah translation of Luke.

By BRUCE SMITH
Associated Press Writer

ST. HELENA ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — After 15 years of painstaking work, the Gospel of Luke has been published in Gullah — the language spoken by slaves and their descendants for centuries along the Southeast coast.

"De Good Nyews Bout Jedus Christ Wa Luke Write" is the first complete book of the Bible translated into the language that is a mixture of English and West African tongues. Translators hope to complete the entire New Testament in three years.

"What we are trying to do is let people hear the word of God in our own tongue," said the Rev. Ervin Green, the lead translator.

"It's our language. It's just wonderful to come to this."

Green, the pastor of Brick Baptist Church, and a team of 13 other Gullah speakers and linguists labored over the translation.

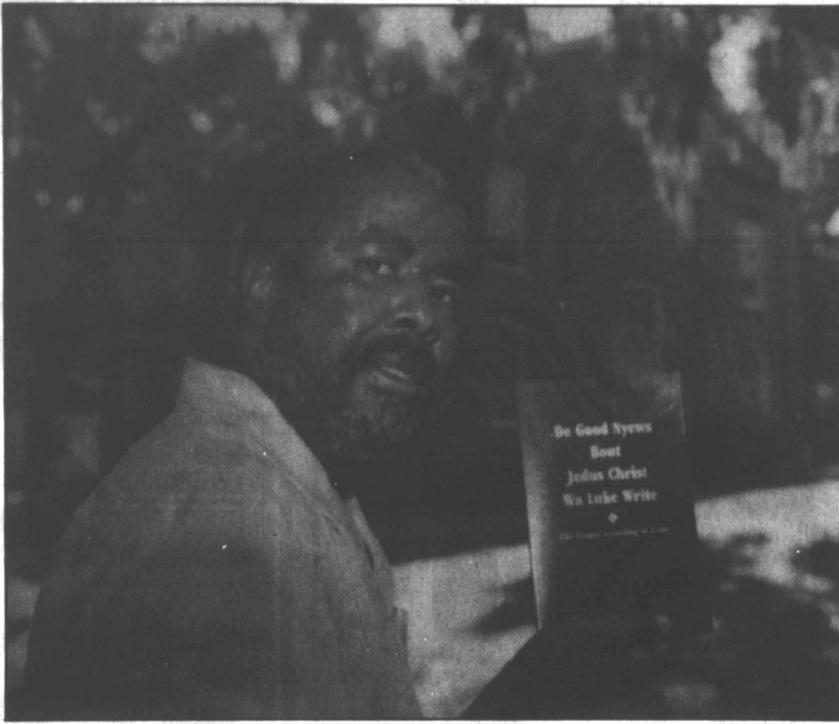

"What we have also tried to do with this is undo 350 to 400 years of indoctrination that the way we speak is bad and wrong," said Green, in whose brick church slaves were once relegated to the balcony while their masters worshipped below.

Gullah survived in its purest form in isolated black communities of former slaves and their descendants on the sea islands which were once home to massive cotton plantations. But for generations after slavery, blacks were told by their teachers to abandon their native tongue.

"It was drilled into us if you want to get ahead, you must get rid of the Gullah," said Green.

He said translation should bring a new respect to the language.

His church is nestled in an oak grove on the edge of the Penn Center which was founded after the Civil

The Rev. Ervin Green, pastor of Brick Baptist Church on St. Helena Island, S.C. holds the Gospel of Luke that has been published in Gullah. Green heads a team of 14 Gullah linguists who translated the book from the Bible over 15 years. He stands in front of his church in October.

War to educate freed slaves. The center now works to preserve the heritage of the sea islands. The new Gospel will be dedicated during a celebration at the center on Saturday.

The book, a 138-page paperback published by the American Bible Society, includes the Gullah text next to the familiar King James version of Luke. The society says at least one book of the Bible is now available in 2,062 of the almost 6,000 languages in the world.

Linguists estimate that 250,000 people from North Carolina to northern Florida can speak Gullah and for about 20,000 of them, Gullah is the primary language.

Gullah is an oral language. Before the Gospel could be translated, the research team had to study its structure and decide how to write it. It draws on Caribbean and West African dialects and a unique alphabet could have been developed.

"But the folks here felt it was wiser to use an alphabet based on English because a lot of people wouldn't spend the time to learn a new alphabet," said Pat Sharpe, a linguist from the Summer Institute of Linguistics who moved to the island with her husband in 1979 to assist with the translation.

Drawing on the original Greek texts, Green and others wrote first drafts in Gullah. The texts were checked for accuracy and read to other Gullah speakers in the community to make sure they were clear.

Fifteen years for a Bible translation isn't unusual, said Sharpe who has worked or consulted on over 100 translation projects which can take anywhere from 10 to 20 years.

"The team says it wants to do the Old Testament too," she said. "Now that we've done this, the work should accelerate. It all depends on the team members and their ability to get the drafts done."

The Rev. Jackie Riles is the evangelist for revival scheduled at Faith Christian Center, 118 N. Cuyler. Services are set for 6 p.m. Sunday and 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

Riles is a national evangelist and 11 years ago founded Greater Love Temple in Amarillo where he serves as senior pastor. For many years he has hosted "Threshold of Greatness," heard at 10 a.m. Sundays on KCLJ, Amarillo.

Riles is coming to Pampa to assist Faith Christian Center in establishing a church where people of all nationalities and backgrounds can worship together, according to a press release from the church.

A nursery is provided for each service for children through age three.

Fjordbak preaches at New Life

The Rev. Everitt Fjordbak of Dallas is to preach at New Life Assembly of God, Randy Matson and North Sumner, at 10:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Fjordbak has been a pastor-evangelist with the Assemblies of God for over 50 years. He has traveled worldwide preaching. He authored a commentary on Hebrews, Seven Sins Against the Holy Spirit and Seven Miracles of Calvary.

He was a pastor for 45 years with 34 years of that at Lakewood Assembly of God, Dallas. While at Lakewood he was producer of the Lakewood Hour television program, sponsored by the church.

Fjordbak appeared as a guest on CBS's 60 Minutes. He speaks at conferences nationwide. The public is invited.

'That Night' tickets available

Free tickets to the Christmas spectacular "That Night" are available beginning Sunday at Central Baptist Church.

The cast, choir and crew of "That Night" have been preparing since August for the annual pageant production. The format remains the same as in past years, but there are new songs, characters and scenes.

Presentation are set for 7 p.m. Dec. 10 through 13. Each person attending needs to have a free ticket, available by calling 665-1631.

Minister of music Zan Walker suggests notifying the church office as soon as possible with the approximate number of tickets needed.

Gospel singing set for Sunday

The monthly gospel singing is set for 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at First Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1700 Alcock.

Singers and musicians from various churches in Pampa and area towns will join the singing.

The Rev. Albert Maggard and the congregation welcome everyone to attend.

Catfish dinner offered by senior choir

The senior choir of Macedonia Baptist Church, 441 Elm, is sponsoring a catfish dinner beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday.

The menu will include catfish,

French fries and salad.

The Rev. I.L. Patrick and church family invites the public. To call in orders phone 665-4926. Donations accepted.

Religion briefs

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Bishop-designate George H. Niederauer says he will be attentive to the needs of Utah's Latinos and other minority Roman Catholics in Utah.

The 58-year-old Los Angeles priest was announced Nov. 3 as the new bishop of the Diocese of Salt Lake City, which includes all of Utah's 80,000 Catholics, about half of whom are Latino.

The diocese has been without a bishop since January, when Bishop William K. Weigand left to become bishop of the Diocese of Sacramento.

"Within the Catholic Church in Utah are growing numbers of Latinos, Asians, Native Americans and other minorities with their own gifts and needs based in language and cultural continuity," Niederauer said. "They can be assured of my desire to meet with them early and often, to pray with them and learn from them."

Niederauer's consecration is scheduled for Jan. 25.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Altoona-Johnstown Catholic Diocese said it plans to close 23 parishes next spring and will consider further reductions.

The Johnstown area will be hardest hit. The State College area will not be affected and may even see growth, diocese officials said.

Monsignor George Flinn, vicar general for pastoral life and ministry, said the changes announced Oct. 31 reflect shifts in population in the 129,000-person diocese in Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Centre, Clinton, Fulton, Huntingdon and Somerset counties.

The changes tentatively include merging 31 parishes and missions into 13 new parishes; closing five churches; and asking 10 parishes to share pastors.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have read and enjoyed your column for years, but I have never seen my problem addressed. I am a tennis coach (male), in my mid-30s, and live in Florida.

I coach a woman I'll call Susan. She is intelligent and very sensitive. She and her husband are in the early 50s and quite well-to-do. I have worked with them twice a week for nearly eight years.

Four years ago, Susan was "born again." From being not particularly religious, she has gone to attending church every Sunday, Bible study three times a week, and holds prayer groups in her home several times a month. If the church needs money for anything, the people there ring up Susan — who immediately responds with a generous check. Her husband has stopped tearing his hair out and has resigned himself.

About six months ago, Susan began inviting me to church and telling me it was time I settled down and had a family, and church is a great place to meet single women. I am not interested in her suggestion, and I'm running out of excuses. I don't want to risk losing my best client.

Abby, how can I get her off my back without hurting her feelings?
TRAPPED IN RIGHT COURT

DEAR TRAPPED: Your well-intentioned client is probably unaware that her persistence is making you uncomfortable. Try this approach: "Susan, I really appreciate your concern, but I must come to this in my own time and in my own way." If she persists, repeat it. The ball's in your court! Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: My husband recently passed away after a long illness, and many friends and relatives were very supportive during that time. His funeral was attended by such a large number of people, there weren't enough seats in the chapel to seat everyone.

"George" — one of my sons — was a pallbearer. A neighbor who attended the funeral had the nerve to ask me a few days later, "Has George cried yet?" What a terrible question! Even though George didn't cry at the funeral, I know his heart was heavy.

It's too bad we all can't cry when people expect us to. Besides, God gives us extra strength when we need it.

Abby, please put this in your column. Some folks are better at controlling their emotions than others.

STILL GRIEVING

DEAR STILL: Shame on that insensitive neighbor. Tears are healing, and some people prefer to shed their tears in private.

DEAR ABBY: To the fellow who complained that his wife said she'd had enough sex to last her a lifetime:

We have been married for nearly 40 years, and my husband read a recent survey that stated "middleaged couples have sex on the average of once a week."

He says we have to have sex once a day to offset the slack caused by that couple — it's sort of our civic duty, in order to maintain that average. Sign this ...

Astro-Graph By Bernice Bede Osol

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An unexpected invitation or a chance encounter could turn out to be an exceptionally fortunate for you today. Be hopeful and expectant. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically right for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Follow your compassionate instincts today in a touchy situation with family members. Let them know you remain loyal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be hesitant about developing big ideas today. Dealings with an older or more experienced person may be particularly successful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you may be compensated handsomely for your efforts. Focus on endeavors that can mean the most to you financially or materially.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Mediocrity is not something you are likely to be accused of today. Put your ambitious plans into action and leave room for Lady Luck to step in and help.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could be adroit at pulling rabbits out of hats today. This resourcefulness could be what extricates you from a very sticky situation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're likely to function more effectively today as a team player than an independent entrepreneur. If you're in a position to decide, choose the former.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Advancement or some type of special benefits are within reach today, so direct your efforts accordingly. Work or career involvements look especially favorable.

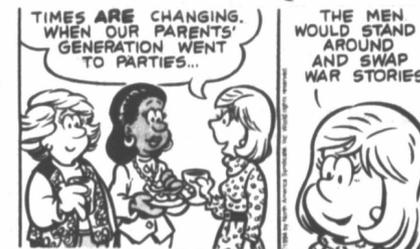

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The impression you'll make today will be excellent and could have a long lasting, positive effect. Get out and mingle with persons who can advance your interests.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) One of your group activities is starting to look even more promising. Everyone involved is basically sincere and benevolent.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Written or verbal agreements you make today should stand the test of time. Forge the links with confidence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A job done well on a special assignment today will bring benefits for a long time to come. Those who profit from your work will remember you favorably.

BASKETBALL
SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Spurs coach Bob Hill says San Antonio is getting used to playing without forward Dennis Rodman.

Rodman, who led the NBA in rebounding last season, was scheduled to return from his three-game suspension on Thursday. But he didn't show up for practice and was nowhere to be found.

"The guys have demonstrated they can play well without Dennis," Hill said. "I like this team, I like the attitude, I like they way they have come together. And we have won the boards (rebounding) in every game."

The Spurs last week announced Rodman's suspension because of a series of problems during the pre-season.

He missed a team bus and meeting at the start of training camp; he was late to an exhibition game in which he wasn't expected to play; and he was ejected from the Spurs' final exhibition game.

Hill says he'd like to see Rodman return, but that the team can win without him.

"I've been focusing on the team, not thinking about Dennis," Hill said. "If he wants to be part of this team, that's fine. If not, that's his decision."

Spurs general manager Gregg Popovich, meanwhile, said Rodman's absence was a disappointment. "Our reaction to his refusal to appear will be discussed with our staff," Popovich said. "It's much more than disappointing because we can see we have a great group of players here who want to be a team."

Rodman remains on the team's suspended list, although no decision on any further disciplinary action has been made.

"These silly distractions are becoming monotonous; they are selfish on his part," Popovich said. "It borders on the ridiculous. I have no idea what he thinks he will gain. My hope is still that Dennis will grow up and become a part of this team."

After Thursday's practice, Hill and Popovich said they had been attempting to reach Rodman and had left several telephone messages for him. However, they said they had not heard back from him.

"It's my hope that Dennis will grow up and understand that the team really is more important than his constant irritation," Popovich said.

Without Rodman, the Spurs lost their season opener to Golden State, but then defeated New Jersey and Utah. San Antonio faces the New York Knicks on Saturday.

"Again, we would like to have this guy on our team, but it takes two to tango," Hill said. "He has to cooperate. He won't even return phone calls. I've called him three times and I know Pop has, too."

Sean Elliott said the players would maintain their emphasis on upcoming games.

"We're not going to be just sitting here waiting, waiting and waiting, like babies, for Dennis," Elliott said. "No, I am not surprised he didn't show up. Crazier things have happened."

David Robinson said there must be more to the story.

"I don't want to say anything about it until I hear Dennis' reason why he didn't come here," he said. "At this point, I'll give him the benefit of the doubt."

"I just can't imagine him just not showing up; there has to be a story. Even at his worst, he didn't just not show up."

Pampa, Borger winner goes to playoffs

PAMPA — It's a big game against a big rival. That statement would just about summarize Dennis Cavalier's thoughts going into the Pampa-Borger District 1-4A showdown tonight in Harvester Stadium.

The winner advances to the post-season playoffs. The loser stays home.

"Any Borger game is a special thing," said Cavalier, head coach of the Harvesters, who are trying to gain the playoffs for the third time in the past four years. Borger is a longtime rival and it's the type of rivalry that always tests a person's anxiety level. Coupled with that is the fact that it's the last game of the regular season and a playoff spot is on the line for both teams.

Pampa, 7-1-1 overall, holds down second place in the district race with a 4-0-1 record. Borger, 7-2 overall, is right behind at 4-1 in district. Undeclared Randall, which beat Borger, 6-3, and tied Pampa, 3-3, has already wrapped up one of the two playoff spots.

Pampa matches its No. 1 defense against Borger's No. 1 offense among the seven district teams.

"Borger's balance is outstanding. In the latest district stats, they've practically dead-even in blending their running and passing," Cavalier said.

Borger's offense, which is averaging 30 points per game, is led by do-everything quarterback Toby Guest, who has passed for 1,542 yards and 14 touchdowns.

"He's their catalyst," Cavalier said. "He's got a strong arm, he can throw on the run or he can stand in the pocket and throw. He seems to be good at reading coverages."

Tailback Cornell Jones makes Borger's ground game go. He's rushed for 1,091 yards and 18 touchdowns.

"Jones is the fastest back in the district. He has excellent size and agility and he's hard to tackle in any kind of an open field situation," Cavalier said.

Borger will be bigger on the line, but size has never seemed to bother the Harvesters.

"They'll have us by 20 or 30 pounds, but I feel like we have excellent quickness and we can handle just about any situation," Cavalier said. "That remains to be seen with the Bulldogs, but we've been outsized quite a bit this season and it's never been an overriding factor in the game."

Pampa's defense has allowed just over nine points per game and have held opponents to 154.7 yards per game. Pampa's offense is averaging 28.4 points and is ranked second behind Borger in that category.

Leal ready for 4A state cross country meet

Pampa senior Marcy Leal competes in the Class 4A girls' state cross country meet Saturday at Georgetown, but she won't be the only area athlete making the trip.

Duane Coffey paced White Deer to victory in the Class 1A boys' division at the regional meet last weekend in Lubbock. Coffey placed first with a time of 16:22.3. Others who placed in the top 20 from White Deer were Alexander Rapstine, 11th; Kory Tice, 15th and Stephen Sugar, 17th.

David Helton of Fort Elliott was fourth and teammate Johnathan Lester was eighth.

The top 10 individuals and the top three teams advance to state.

Leal ran a 12.11, her fastest time ever, to place third at regionals, which was held at Mae Simmons Park in Lubbock. It will be Leal's third trip to the state meet at Georgetown.

Leal said the two-mile course, which is held at Southwestern University's golf club, is one of most difficult she's ever encountered.

"It's a very tough course. At the start, it's almost 400 feet straight up. And it's also very humid there," she said. "I run at Hidden Hills (Golf Course) in the mornings to get used to it. Hidden Hills is a lot like the course at Georgetown, up and down."

Leal qualified for regionals by winning the District 1-4A title for the second consecutive year.

Owls looking for big victory

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
 AP Sports Writer

The Rice Owls won't look for a miracle on Saturday — just their biggest victory of the season.

The Owls, who haven't played in the Cotton Bowl since 1957, will host the Baylor Bears, who haven't been to the post-season game since 1981, in a battle to see who stays in the race to play in Dallas on Jan. 2.

Rice coach Ken Hatfield will keep his team's thoughts away from post-season.

"Our players have to learn how to handle it," Hatfield said. "You try to get across that they don't have to go out and play over their heads. It's not going to take a miracle to win. We just need to do the things you did to get here."

Baylor (6-3, 3-2) is a one-point favorite over the Owls (4-4, 3-2).

Texas (5-4, 2-3) is a 26-point favorite to beat Houston (1-7, 1-3) in Austin's Memorial Stadium; Texas Tech (4-4, 3-2) is a 21-point favorite at home against Southwestern Louisiana (5-4); No. 9 Texas A&M (8-0-1, 5-0-1) is a 12-point favorite at Louisville (5-3); and Texas Christian (5-3, 2-2) is a 2 1/2-point favorite at Southern Methodist (1-8-1, 0-5-1).

Still in the Cotton Bowl race, all with two losses in league play, are Rice, Baylor, Texas Tech and Texas Christian.

Baylor needs to win out against Rice and Texas to keep its Cotton Bowl hopes alive, but Texas Tech would be the immediate beneficiary of a Baylor win. If Rice loses again, the Red Raiders could go to the Cotton Bowl by winning their last two SWC games, against Houston and Texas Christian.

It's possible even for five SWC teams to end up with three losses, which would put Texas back in the Cotton Bowl picture. That could happen if Baylor were to beat Rice, then lose to Texas, and if TCU were to beat Texas Tech, then lose to Texas A&M.

Major League baseball talks produce new chief negotiator

RYE BROOK, N.Y. (AP) — The first day of baseball talks under mediator W.J. Uery produced a new chief management negotiator in John Harrington and a less confrontational tone.

"There was at least a feeling of what I'd call civility and sensitivity that maybe didn't exist at some of the previous meetings, but only time will tell," acting commissioner Bud Selig said.

Selig announced that Harrington, the chief executive officer of the Boston Red Sox, has become chairman of the owners' negotiating committee, a new role that supplants that of Richard Ravitch. Management downplayed the shift in public comments. But one owner and two management officials, speaking on the condition they not be identified, said Harrington would be the chief contact with union head Donald Fehr.

"I think John Harrington has the confidence of Bud Selig and the entire ownership," Ravitch said, "and I think that's why he was asked to be chairman of the committee."

Ravitch, hired in November 1991, has a contract that runs through next month. His role has diminished since Harrington and Colorado Rockies chairman Jerry McMorris began talking directly with Fehr in early September and he didn't even speak during Thursday's session.

Seminoles seek revenge against Notre Dame

By The Associated Press

This year things are different: there's no national championship on the line when Notre Dame and Florida State clash this Saturday.

Last year, the Irish handed Florida State its lone loss, although it still went on to win the national title. The Seminoles, however, remember.

"When you're playing somebody that beat you, and beat you pretty physically, I won't have to do a lot of motivating for this game," Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said of last year's 31-24 defeat at Notre Dame. "You can't help but remember that game."

If they want to repeat as national champions, the eighth-ranked Seminoles (7-1, 7-0 ACC) can't afford to stumble against the Irish (5-3).

"I'm not sure we're good enough to come in there and have a 50-50 chance against Florida State," Irish coach Lou Holtz said.

In other games Saturday, top-ranked Nebraska will be at Iowa State, No. 2 Penn State at Illinois, Georgia at No. 3 Auburn, South Carolina at No. 4 Florida, Pittsburgh at No. 5 Miami, No. 6 Alabama at No. 20 Mississippi State, No. 7 Colorado at Kansas, No. 9 Texas A&M at Louisville and Arkansas State at No. 10 Colorado State.

Also, No. 11 Kansas State is at Missouri, No. 12 Utah at Air Force, No. 13 Arizona at No. 17 Southern Cal, No. 14 Syracuse at No. 25 Boston College, Rutgers at No. 16 Virginia Tech, No. 18 Duke at North Carolina State, Minnesota at No. 19 Michigan, Maryland at No. 21 Virginia, California at No. 22 Washington and No. 24 Washington

State at Oregon State.

On Thursday night, No. 23 Brigham Young defeated San Diego State 35-28.

Florida State coaches believe that in last year's Notre Dame game they counted too heavily on Heisman Trophy winner Charlie Ward and failed to use some of their other weapons, especially tailback Warrick Dunn, who is averaging close to eight yards a carry this season.

"Dunn presents an awful lot of problems," Holtz said. "They get an awful lot of big plays from their running game and, of course, Kez McCorvey is an outstanding receiver."

In last year's game, McCorvey caught 11 passes for 138 yards and a touchdown. He leads the Seminoles this year with 43 catches for 635 yards and four touchdowns despite missing a game with a shoulder injury.

Florida State is led by quarterback Danny Kanell, who has thrown for 2,061 yards and 14 touchdowns, but also a dozen interceptions. Notre Dame's heralded redshirt freshman Ron Powlus has passed for 1,304 yards and 15 touchdowns with just seven interceptions.

But the Irish offense has struggled in two of its last three games, losing to both Boston College and Brigham Young.

Iowa State's Jim Walden final game as Cyclones coach will be against the top-ranked Huskers of Nebraska. The Big Eight Conference on Thursday suspended Walden for the Cyclones' season finale at Colorado on Nov. 19 and fined the coach $5,000 for breaking a league rule by criticizing the officials.

Aggies sign Killeen High basketball star

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Calvin Davis, who averaged 22 points and 18 rebounds per game last season at Killeen High School, has signed with Texas A&M during the early signing period.

"He's a prize recruit," A&M coach Tony Barone said Thursday.

He's one of four players who signed with A&M this week.

Davis, a 6-foot-8 forward, was the most valuable player in his district, and ranked as one of the top seven players in Texas by "Texas Hoops" magazine.

The Aggies, who finished second in the Southwest Conference and won a bid to the National Invitational Tournament, also signed Gary Nottingham of Otero Junior College in Colorado; Brad Stricker of Devine High School; and Joel Ockey of Payson High School in Utah.

Nottingham is a 6-foot-6 guard who averaged nine points, seven rebounds and three blocks as a freshman at Otero. He averaged 20 points and 13 rebounds the previous season, as a senior at Northside High School in Georgia.

Stricker, a 6-foot-11 center, averaged 27.5 points, 13.8 rebounds and five blocks as a junior at Devine. Ockey is a 6-foot-6 guard. He scored 16 points and grabbed six rebounds as a junior at Payson.

49ers have edge over Dallas

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

Maybe Alvin Harper shouldn't have played Monday night — the Cowboys didn't need him against the Giants, but they sure could use him Sunday when they play the San Francisco 49ers.

This game seems to be coming at the wrong time for the Cowboys. Not only is Harper gone, so is Erik Williams and possibly right guard Derek Kennard.

Pro picks

"We're going through what the 49ers did earlier in the year with all those injuries," Troy Aikman says. "There's no question we're not going to be as good a team. We've got some guys who are going to have to grow fast."

The 49ers are favored by three points, which is basically the home field. But with teams this good, home field rarely means much.

What might mean more are the injuries and the turf at Candlestick, which tends to come up in huge patches when it gets wet — and it's been wet in San Francisco. So Emmitt Smith may slip and slide.

At the same time, that kind of turf gives receivers an advantage and now Dallas is down to one star — Michael Irvin. There's also Kevin Williams and a couple of rookies.

So give San Francisco an edge and wait to see who ends up with the home field in the NFC championship game, which is where these two are likely to meet again.

49ERS, 24-20

San Diego (plus 3) at Kansas City

This is probably the key game in the AFC West. Stan Humphries will probably play for the Chargers; Natrone Means will run for 100 yards or so and Joe Montana won't get quite enough time to throw.

The Chargers won 20-6 the first time. Make this one ...

CHARGERS, 20-9

Cleveland (plus 6) at Philadelphia

Vinny's probably back at quarterback for the Browns.

It makes no difference. The Eagles are better and Cleveland is due to lose a couple.

EAGLES, 21-6
Buffalo (no line) at Pittsburgh (Monday night)

Are there enough people standing to make this a game?

STEELERS, 9-5

New York Jets (plus 6) at Green Bay

The Jets have injuries. That probably doesn't matter — when they go on the road after a big win, they tend to ...

PACKERS, 27-18.

Minnesota (minus 2 1/2) at New England

The Patriots haven't scored a touchdown in a month and go against this defense?

VIKINGS, 22-9

Chicago (plus 7 1/2) at Miami

Steve Walsh is 4-0 and goes back to where he played in college.

So what?
DOLPHINS, 20-16

Raiders (minus 3) at Rams

This one is sold out. That might not happen in St. Louis.

RAIDERS, 14-12

Arizona (pick 'em) at Giants

The Giants had to hit bottom in Dallas.

Really?
CARDS, 10-9

Tampa Bay (plus 10) at Detroit

Wayne Fontes may not like it, but Dave Krieg is an improvement over Scott Mitchell.

LIONS, 27-8

Atlanta (plus 2 1/2) at New Orleans

The Saints either left it in Minnesota or they didn't.

They didn't.
SAINTS, 20-17

Houston (plus 1) at Cincinnati

Jeff Blake for Newcomer of the Year.

BENGALS, 13-9

Seattle (minus 6) at Denver

Down, down, down go the Seahawks.

BRONCOS, 29-19
Last Week: 5-8-1 (spread); 10-4 (straight up)

New AIDS boss urges teenagers to delay having sex as long as possible

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Patricia S. Fleming, tapped by President Clinton to lead his AIDS policy office, says her advice to teenagers is to delay having sex as long as possible to protect themselves from the deadly virus.

Fleming, elevated to the post on a permanent basis Thursday, also expressed alarm that young people "are increasingly tuning out the prevention message."

Clinton, whose first AIDS policy director was widely criticized as ineffective, pledged that Fleming would have "direct access to me" and the Cabinet.

He asked her to prepare "a detailed report on the rapid increase in AIDS among adolescents."

Clinton noted that a quarter-million Americans have died from AIDS. One million have been infected with the HIV virus; more than 400,000 have developed the disease, with 40,000 new infections each year.

Fleming said half of all HIV infections occur before age 25, and one in four who become infected contract the virus before their 20th birthday.

"The trends are particularly troublesome among women, people of color and adolescents," Fleming said at the White House ceremony. "While the rate of increase among gay men has lessened, AIDS still tears at the core of that population, particularly young gay men."

Fleming spent the past two decades as a top aide to liberal Democrats on Capitol Hill and in health and education posts in the Carter and Clinton administrations.

As an aide to the late Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., on a House oversight subcommittee, she recalled spending the first 12 years of the AIDS epidemic "banging on the doors of a bureaucracy that too often turned a deaf ear to the cries of the American people."

Until recently, she was Health and Human Services Secretary Donna E. Shalala's special assistant, helping coordinate that agency's prime role in the AIDS fight.

Fleming said she accepted the national AIDS policy director job permanently after initial reluctance because "I realized it was not impossible."

"I have power. I have authority. I have access. I can make things happen," Fleming said in an interview before the ceremony, which was attended by a score of leaders of AIDS groups, including some that had demanded the ouster of her predecessor, Kristine Gebbie.

Gebbie, who gave up the job in June, infuriated conservatives early in her tenure when she complained that the United States was a "repressive Victorian society" that tried to deny homosexual activity, particularly in teens.

Fleming tiptoed carefully around a question about teens and sex. The HIV epidemic "certainly puts a pall on growing up if you're sexually active," she said.

Fleming, who has three sons in their 30s, said, "I think kids today have to delay having sex as long as possible to protect themselves."

"My advice would be to try to abstain from sex until you find a partner you want to stay with for a long, long time," she said.

She counsels safe sex and urges women to protect themselves instead of relying on their partners.

"Sexually active kids should have access to condoms. But as to where they get them, that is a local decision," said Fleming, echoing Clinton administration policy.

With Republicans taking charge of Congress, Fleming stressed that AIDS funding and research have always enjoyed bipartisan support. AIDS "touches every state ... and every congressional district," she said. "AIDS is not a partisan issue. It's not politics. It's people."

Conservative Republicans in the past have blocked federal sex surveys and criticized graphic sex education programs.

"Whether it's Democrat or Republican, we're still going to have to fight for money," said the 57-year-old Fleming, a Vassar graduate. "My fight will be first of all within the president's budget ... (to) get increases for the programs that deserve them and need them, and then see what happens on the Hill."

"It will be more difficult. But I don't expect to lose," she said.

The Clinton administration says public health spending for AIDS programs has risen by 30 percent since Clinton took office. That includes an 82 percent increase in the Ryan White act, which provides services for people with the disease, and a 25 percent jump in biomedical research. Clinton appointed a prominent immunologist, William Paul, to head a new Office of AIDS Research at the National Institutes of Health.

Activists say home AIDS test needs more study

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — AIDS activists want the government to hold off approving the nation's first home test for the disease, contending that company promotions are unduly influencing the kit's evaluation by federal regulators.

Three major AIDS organizations filed a complaint accusing Johnson & Johnson of violating Food and Drug Administration prohibitions against promoting unapproved medical products.

The activists contend promotions of the experimental Confide home AIDS test, including intensive political lobbying and paying doctors for their support, are an attempt to ramrod the kit through FDA.

They think the attempt is working because of a memo to White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta that says FDA is expediting its review of home tests — and Confide is the only test far enough along for approval.

"There are no policy impediments to the approval of a home-use HIV test," FDA Commissioner David Kessler wrote Panetta, in the memo obtained by The Associated Press Thursday. "Any remaining concerns about impact of product approval on the public health will be examined through post-approval studies."

Panetta asked about the test in September at the request of House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia, who quoted Johnson & Johnson's paid consultant — former Surgeon General C. Everett Koop — in pushing home tests.

The National Association of People With AIDS, Americans for a Sound AIDS Policy and the National Lesbian and Gay Health Association charge that Johnson & Johnson illegally:

- Organized TV demonstrations of its Confide home test by Koop.

- Funds a national AIDS magazine that advocates the test.

- Funds direct-mail campaigns giving people ballots to mail to Congress and the White House urging approval.

- Pays experts to testify favorably about the test, including at a June hearing where FDA advisers said the company had stacked the list of public speakers.

Johnson & Johnson denied any illegal activity but would not comment specifically on the charges. "We'll take that up with the FDA if they choose to do so," said spokesman Jeffrey Leebaw.

FDA is investigating but hasn't determined if Johnson & Johnson violated any regulations, said spokesman Don McLearn.

Proponents say the kits' privacy would encourage more people to get tested. At least 40 percent of the estimated 1 million infected Americans have never been tested.

Critics fear telephone counseling isn't adequate and that children or employers would use the tests. They also say home tests conflict with laws in more than 11 states that require confidential named reporting of HIV patients and face-to-face counseling.

The activists filed the FDA complaint Oct. 26, but made it public this week amid renewed concern about Kessler's statement that home tests' impact could be determined once they hit the market.

"He is under great pressure to write those things," said Shepherd Smith of Americans for a Sound AIDS Policy. "There is something fundamentally wrong here."

Buyers of home tests would prick a finger, send dried blood spots to a lab and learn by telephone if they have HIV, the AIDS virus.

FDA's Kessler wrote Panetta that most members of an FDA advisory panel in June "believed that the potential benefit of home ... kits outweighed potential risks."

In fact, that panel was so divided that it called for a massive pilot test to answer its questions.
