PAMPA — An emergency call to the sheriff this week turned out to be a bunch of bull.

Deputies at the Gray County Sheriff's office said a deputy was sent out on Texas 152 about 2:30 p.m. Tuesday after a person reported a buffalo on the highway west of Pampa. A second officer was sent on the buffalo hunt, explaining that full-grown buffalo could be difficult to corral.

"You don't herd them," a deputy said. "They herd you."

But the buffalo hunters failed to find any bison wandering the range as the caller had reported. They found only a large black Angus bull that had gotten out of his pasture.

PAMPA — Police were searching for a blue two-door sedan today in connection with a report of stolen gasoline.

Jenny Gamble, 41, of 1204 S. Faulkner, told officers she went into a convenience store at Wilks and Faulkner about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday to pay for gasoline for her car. When she returned to the pump, a man was pumping the gas for which she had paid into his car. When she objected, officers said, the man drove off.

Officers said the man was reported to have been driving a blue 1987 Buick two-door sedan.

PAMPA — A 20-year-old man was in jail today after a late night call from the Pampa Country Club. Kyle Ray Roberts, 20, of 1812 N. Faulkner, was being held in Gray County jail today on warrants from Donley County charging him with minor in possession and failure to appear.

Officers said they found Roberts driving around the golf course at Pampa Country Club shortly before midnight Wednesday. A check with authorities indicated the two outstanding warrants from Donley County.

NATION

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Wallace, dean of CBS' 60 Minutes, and a producer have been reprimanded for secretly videotaping an interview with a freelance writer.

"This is without equivocation a violation of CBS News guidelines, a violation of journalistic standards, an ethical violation and I won't tolerate that," said CBS News President Eric Ober, who rebuked both men Wednesday.

Ober said it was "very, very bad judgment" on the part of Wallace and producer Bob Anderson, who secretly videotaped Karon Haller during a visit to Wallace's 60 Minutes office about two weeks ago.

Haller covered the story of a man indicted for helping his terminally ill father commit suicide.

She discussed the story with Wallace, but was uncomfortable about appearing on camera. Anderson told Ober he rigged the secret camera so he could reassure Haller later about the way she conducted herself, Ober said.

"I thought I was working alongside them," Haller told The Washington Post. "I didn't think they were going to zero in on me."

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Diets are hard enough to keep, but Arthur Younkin is under pressure from more than a mirror — he could go to jail if he cheats.

After being convicted of forging $11,000 worth of checks, Younkin was put on probation in 1991 and ordered to repay the money. He repaid only several hundred dollars and was called back to court.

Younkin, who weighs 490 pounds, said he couldn't get a job because of his weight. So District Judge Clark Owens sent him to a halfway house and ordered him to stick to a 1,200-calorie-a-day diet.

Younkin was released in September after losing 60 pounds, but weekly weigh-ins now show that he has gained four of them back. His probation officer is threatening to ask the judge to send him back to the halfway house.

"I believe that interferes with my constitutional rights of freedom of expression, or freedom of something," said Younkin, 44. "I realize for my own health and benefit I should stay on a diet ... but no one has the right to order me to do it."

Gunman faces attempted assassination charge

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A man accused of firing a Chinese-made assault rifle at the White House was indicted today on new charges of attempting to assassinate President Clinton. He could face up to life in prison.

Francisco Martin Duran was charged by a federal grand jury with 10 other counts, including assault on federal officers, destruction of federal property, weapons possession by a convicted felon, use of a gun during a crime and interstate transportation of a firearm.

Duran, 26, of Colorado Springs, Colo., was arrested on a public sidewalk outside the White House grounds after the Oct. 29 attack.

He was expected to be arraigned before

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey within the next several days.

U.S. Attorney Eric Holder, who announced the indictment, chastised unidentified people, including some at the scene of the shooting, who "had information about Mr. Duran's intentions" but didn't tell authorities.

"Certain people did have information, did have contact with Mr. Duran," but failed to relay information that had given them "a basis to believe he was going to do what exactly did occur."

Clinton was in the mansion's family quarters watching football on TV when a man raked the White House with a semi-automatic rifle.

With evidence that includes statements Duran made to people before the shooting, Holder said prosecutors will be able to show at trial that the defendant intended to try to kill Clinton.

There were no injuries in the Saturday afternoon attack, but some of 29 shots hit pillars, walls and shattered a window to the press room in the West Wing of the executive mansion.

Duran's rifle was loaded with a 30-round clip of ammunition when he poked the weapon through the wrought-iron posts of the White House fence and began firing, Holder said.

"This shocking attack at the White House by a gunman with a fully-loaded assault rifle as nearly 100 startled tourists looked on in dismay amazingly did not result in anyone being injured," Holder said at a news conference.

Authorities had said that a search of Duran's pickup truck yielded papers indicating plans to kill the president.

The indictment returned before U.S.

Magistrate Deborah Robinson included one count of trying to kill the president, four counts of assaulting Secret Service officers and two counts of possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

It also included one count of damaging U.S. property, two counts of carrying a firearm during a violent crime and one count of interstate transportation of a firearm.

The attempted assassination charge carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment and other charges each have maximum prison terms of 10 years. There is a mandatory minimum 10-year sentence for one of the firearms charges.

Duran had pleaded guilty in 1991 to a felony assault while in the Army. He was imprisoned at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., for almost two years until his dishonorable discharge from the Army in 1993.

A taste for Texas

The taste of Texas is beef, according to Anita Brown, left, president of the Texas Cattlewomen; Eleanor Jones, president of the National Cattlewomen; and Sharon Spennath, president-elect of the Texas Cattlewomen. Brown, from Wheeler, was in San Antonio this week as her organization met in conjunction with the Texas Cattle Feeders Association during its annual convention. (Pampa News photo by David Bowser)

Child molesters subject of proposed bills

Repeat child molesters could request to be surgically castrated under a bill introduced in the Texas Senate by 31st State District Sen. Teel Bivins.

And one of the Amarillo senator's colleagues, Sen. Jane Nelson of Flower Mound, has introduced a bill that would "brand" the letter "S" on the driver's licenses of convicted child molesters.

Both Bivins and Nelson are Republicans.

"I've received letters from convicted child molesters requesting surgical castration because they know they can't control their sexual urges once they're released from prison," Bivins said. "We should give people the opportunity to receive the help they want."

Choosing castration would involve a lengthy procedure that would include interviews with a psychiatrist and a psychologist. It would not reduce a convicted molester's prison sentence.

"In European countries that have used voluntary castration, recidivism rates have dropped below 11 percent. Some studies show recidivism rates as low as 2 percent. The results speak for themselves," Bivins said.

Under terms of his bill, castration would be available only to child molesters who:

- Volunteer for the procedure.
- Have been convicted of at least one prior sex offense against children.
- Admit their guilt.
- Are screened by a psychiatrist and psychologist.
- Receive consent from their spouses.
- Are at least 21 years old.

Nelson's bill would permit anyone who leaves their children with caregivers — either at a daycare center or just with a neighbor — to ask to see that person's driver's license.

"Currently, employers and parents in Texas have little, if any, way of knowing whether children are being exposed to a previously convicted child molester," Nelson said.

She said she chose "S" to stand for sex offender. A letter was needed to differentiate from number codes on driver's licenses, she said.

Mrs. Nelson, a member of the Senate Criminal Justice Committee, said the profile of the average child molester is usually a person who is trusted by the child.

She also said that studies show there is little that can be done to rehabilitate child molesters.

"If we are going to release child molesters back into society, there must be a method of letting the public know of their presence. Putting an 'S' on their driver's license will 'brand' them," she said.

Gray County to change medical policy insurer

Gray County will change insurers the first of the year for their medical policy.

County commissioners voted this week to award the contract for the county's group medical policy to David Webster of Webster Associates. County Judge Carl Kennedy said the change would become effective the first of the year when the county's contract with Blue Cross and Blue Shield expires. County officials said the premiums would be lower.

Other business during the commissioners' Tuesday meeting included granting a request by Hoechst Celanese to upgrade county road No. H&5. Kennedy said the chemical corporation would use fly ash on the road at their expense.

Commissioner Jim Greene was appointed to the county appraisal board and the commissioners discussed a proposal for a lease option on Gaines County School Lands. The request centers on a tract of land within the school lands, Kennedy said, and would involve a $16,000 payment. The money is dedicated for school use.

"I think we're very close to an agreement," Kennedy said.

The commissioners court also heard from Commissioners Ted Simmons and Gerald Wright concerning silt removal at Lake McClellan.

"They're having good success," Kennedy said, "using county equipment to remove silt because there's very little water in the lake right now."

The group approved a request by Tax Assessor/Collector Sammie Morris to fill a vacancy in her office and set Dec. 15 as the date for opening bids for renovating a new building for the White Deer Land Museum.

The commission met with Pam Neilson of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission concerning a rural addressing agreement but tabled action.

The commissioners also tabled action on a request by City of Pampa officials regarding sale of delinquent tax properties.

"We normally break for lunch," Kennedy said, "and go and look at those properties, but we worked through lunch, so we tabled it until the next meeting."

The commissioners' meeting which began at 9 a.m. Tuesday ran through 5:30 p.m., he said.

Wisconsin company purchases National Bank of Commerce

Pampa's National Bank of Commerce is being sold to a Wisconsin-based holding company, bank officials announced Thursday.

Sale of the bank to Waupaca Bancorporation of Waupaca, Wis., marks the second major change in Pampa financial institutions in two days. On Tuesday, officials of First National Bank of Pampa announced their bank is merging with Boatmen's Bancshares Inc.

Sale of the National Bank of Commerce to Waupaca was announced in a press release that omitted how much Waupaca is paying for the Pampa institution.

Jerry Foote, executive vice president of NBC, said he was not at liberty to disclose that information.

Foote said the bank will still operate under the National Bank of Commerce name and with the same management.

The National Bank of Commerce currently has assets of about $30 million. Waupaca has assets of about $140 million, Foote said.

The sale must be approved by the Federal Reserve, a process Foote said could take about five months.

The press release quotes Archie Overby, president of Waupaca, as saying he "is very pleased with Pampa and the potential for business offered in the Pampa community."

The announcement, made jointly by Overby and NBC President Ben Shackelford, says that Waupaca "would like to expand lending in the Pampa area" and that "the affiliation will allow for a larger loan authority in Pampa and the surrounding area."

Foote said he could not elaborate on how the bank would expand lending.

Overby is a former resident of Rotan, Texas, and a graduate of Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Grays found guilty of attempted murder

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

A Pampa man is in Gray County jail today waiting his turn to go to prison after a jury found him guilty of attempted murder Wednesday.

District Judge Lee Waters sentenced Kizer Kip Grays, 21, to 20 years in the penitentiary for the shooting of 17-year-old Shawn Hancock on March 12, 1993. Hancock, formerly of Amarillo, is a quadriplegic dependent on a ventilator as a result of the shooting which severed his spinal cord. The teen lives in a Weatherford nursing home.

Attempted murder is a second degree felony. Twenty years in prison is the maximum prison time available on the charge, according to the Penal Code.

Grays has no prior criminal convictions, said Waters.

The seven-woman, five-man jury deliberated about 1 3/4 hours before reaching the verdict.

Testimony showed Grays fired a 380-caliber automatic six times into the rear of a Buick as it left BJ's, a club, in the 600 block of Gray Street.

Disputed was whether it was Grays' gun which fired the bullet which crippled Hancock or a bullet from the gun of another Pampa teen, Thalamus Malone, who admitted shooting a .38 Special toward the departing Buick.

Mayors endorse Bible

McALLEN (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union says three South Texas mayors violated the constitutional separation of church and state when they endorsed a proclamation urging citizens to read the Bible.

But McAllen Mayor Othal Brand, Weslaco Mayor Gene Braught and Edinburg Mayor Joe Ochoa said they did nothing wrong.

"It's completely appropriate," Brand said. "Anyone who doesn't think I would support reading the Bible is not very well informed."

Braught said he bases his life on biblical teachings and encourages others to do the same. Crime, divorce and other problems stem from the lack of moral standards, he said.

State workers criticize Sharp's proposed cuts

AUSTIN (AP) — State workers are criticizing belt tightening proposals by Comptroller John Sharp that include reducing state pension contributions and eliminating 11,683 government jobs.

Sharp spokesman Andy Welch said today the criticism is expected.

"There is opposition to every one of our proposals, and it's the people who have a vested interest in protecting the status quo," he said. "But our job is to save the taxpayers' money without jeopardizing the work that state government has to do."

Sharp's proposals include shutting down the transportation division of the Railroad Commission now that trucking, its primary responsibility, has been deregulated.

"It's easy to beat up on state employees," said Nim Graves, manager of public assistance in the Railroad Commission' transportation division.

"Nobody likes the bureaucracy ... But the Legislature puts more burdens every year on state employees and does less for them."

Lori Wehring, an administrative technician in the secretary of state's office, said she doesn't see any excess employees in her office.

"I'm concerned about government spending too," Ms. Wehring said. "But this past week has proven to me that everyone I work with is a vital part of the secretary of state's office," which oversees the state's election laws.

Sharp said if the Legislature were to put all of his plan into law it would save $2.1 billion over two years.

Legislator's bills would affect college campus life

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill that would allow colleges and universities to charge students for condom distribution on campus is among several higher education bills awaiting consideration by the Legislature in January.

Several controversial proposals were pre-filed by state Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston.

One would permit universities and colleges to charge students, most likely through student fees, for condom distribution on campus.

Another would require students to take a multicultural course. A third bill would require newsrooms and editorial boards of student publications to reflect the state's racial makeup.

Eric Glenn, Wilson's legislative aide, said the condom bill is needed for health reasons.

The multicultural course and racial makeup legislation would help quell racial and sexual harassment on campuses, Glenn told The Daily Texan, which is the student newspaper at the University of Texas-Austin.

"There is a struggle that goes on at every university ... by people who want to make sure diversity is echoed," he said.

'West Side Story' type turf war ends in death in Philadelphia

By WAYNE WOOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It began with a scuffle in a fast food restaurant — kids from a rival neighborhood shoved a girl and threw things at her car. False rumors that she was raped swirled around her school.

Teenagers planned their revenge for days, and by Friday night they were ready. Three carloads of boys and girls from suburban Abington met at a mall, armed themselves with bats and bottles and drove into the Fox Chase neighborhood, just over the city line in northeast Philadelphia.

They found their target near St. Cecilia's Roman Catholic Church. At least 20 youths chased 16-year-old Edward Polec and his friends, then bludgeoned Polec when he tripped and fell on the steps of the church where he used to be an altar boy.

Polec's skull was fractured. He died the next day.

"It was like West Side Story," said Dene Harris, a juvenile probation officer assigned to Abington High School. "It was almost like a community murder, so many people were involved."

"Some kids were joking about renting a U-Haul to go down there," said Billy Baldwin, 17. "I probably would have gone with them if I would have been around. I'm pretty glad now that I didn't."

Thomas Crook, 18, Bou Khathavong, 17, and Nicholas Pinero, 16, surrendered Tuesday after police received anonymous tips about the attack. They were ordered held without bail Wednesday and will be tried as adults on charges of murder, aggravated assault and weapons violations, Capt. John Apeldorn said.

Crook admitted he was involved in the beating but said he didn't strike a fatal blow, according to investigators. Several people claimed Pinero bragged about killing someone, police said. Apeldorn said there will be more arrests.

Hundreds of mourners attended Polec's funeral Wednesday at St. Cecilia's. Bruises were clearly visible on the faces of some of his friends, who said they were too upset to talk.

Clare Upham, who works with Polec's mother as a crossing guard, said the family was devastated. "They are good people. They raised their children the right way. This just ruined them," Upham said.

Polec's family pleaded with boys in Fox Chase and at his school, Cardinal Dougherty, not to retaliate. But teenagers in Abington said they were worried about venturing out alone.

"Everybody's afraid. Nobody wants to get caught out there," said George Manton, 15.

The Abington Galloping Ghosts don't compete in sports against the Cardinals. Teenagers say the long-running feud is embedded in the two adjoining communities, both predominantly white and middle class, and that they regularly trade insults and fight each other.

Police wouldn't say if Polec had tangled with the Abington youths before. Baldwin, an Abington student, claimed Polec recently had been in a scuffle after stealing an Abington teen's baseball cap at a party.

Still, "nobody in their right mind was planning on going down there to kill anybody," Baldwin said. "I'm sure things got out of hand. Way out of hand."

Robin Johnson, 17, a neighbor of Abington, said she wasn't surprised that the altercation escalated so quickly.

"I know all of the kids who were involved," she said. "They're nice kids, but they just think that they are big and bad and can do anything."

Gordon leaves shattered lives, soggy crops

BAREFOOT BAY, Fla. (AP) — Tropical Storm Gordon blew out of harm's way today after spawning tornadoes and floods that killed six people, destroyed dozens of homes and damaged the nation's winter vegetable crop.

More than 35,000 acres of winter vegetables was damaged or wiped out in Dade County. Squash, beans, cucumbers and tomatoes were under a foot of water, being devoured by fungus and bacteria. And in central Florida, the citrus groves were too wet for picking — a serious blow for the Christmas gift fruit shipping market.

"Man, this is terrible," said Bobby McKown, director of Florida Citrus Mutual, a grower's group. "This rain is going to have a tremendous negative impact."

The worst property damage was in the Atlantic Coast retirement communities of Barefoot Bay and Snug Harbor Lakes, where a tornado Tuesday night destroyed 68 mobile homes and damaged more than 380.

Jack Fuller was crushed to death and his wife, Jean, was critically injured when the tornado flattened their mobile home.

Frank Moyer, 68, was afraid he'd lost his wife, Delores, when the twister mangled their living room. Luckily, she had just stepped outside.

"If Delores had not gotten up and come looking for me, she would have been badly hurt, maybe killed,"

Moyer said. "Just thinking about it makes me want to cry."

Gordon also was blamed for two drownings and three deaths in car accidents in Florida, as well as an estimated 400 deaths in Haiti, Cuba and Jamaica.

At 3 a.m. CST today, Gordon's center was about 185 miles east of Daytona Beach. Maximum sustained winds were 50 mph, and some strengthening was possible later in the day.

All tropical storm warnings were discontinued for Florida as Gordon moved northeast at 15 mph. A flash flood watch was in effect for the coastal Carolinas, but most of the storm was expected to pass well to the east.

Study: Cow cell implants relieve chronic pain

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — People suffering chronic pain reported substantial relief after receiving an implant of cow cells that pumped out natural painkillers, a small, preliminary study found.

The study involved nine patients, eight of whom had cancer. Seven patients gained relief.

One patient who found no relief in standard painkillers has been pain-free for a year, Dr. Patrick Aebischer said. Two others whose pain had not responded to standard painkillers reported their pain was cut at least in half, and most patients who were taking morphine cut their dosage by at least half, he said.

Some or all the relief may come from the psychological boost of being treated, Aebischer acknowledged. Researchers have begun a more rigorous 30-patient experiment to check on this placebo effect.

If further study bears out the initial promise, such implants might be useful for treating many kinds of chronic pain that resist treatment, said Aebischer, a professor of surgery at the Lausanne University Medical School in Switzerland.

Aebischer did the work with scientists from CytoTherapeutics Inc. of Providence, R.I. He discussed the results before describing them Wednesday in Miami Beach, Fla., at the annual meeting of the Society for Neuroscience.

Dr. Gavril Pasternak, a professor of neurology at the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, called the approach intriguing. While its usefulness for treating chronic pain in general remains to be determined, it may prove valuable for some patients, he said.

The painkilling implants contained cells from the adrenal gland, which sits atop the kidney.

Scientists wanted to show that animal cells can work in people without the use of drugs to prevent rejection of the cells, Aebischer said. Animal cells eliminate the problem of limited supply from human donors, he said.

Guard, reserves cutting nearly 40,000 slots

By JOHN DIAMOND
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scores of National Guard and reserve units across the country will be closing their doors over the next 10 months as the military tries to cut costs.

The cuts, announced by the Pentagon on Wednesday, will affect reserve units in 39 states, the District of Columbia and six foreign countries.

National Guard and reserves in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force will drop from 1.036 million to 996,100, a reduction of nearly 39,900, or almost 4 percent.

Long-term Pentagon plans call for cutting an additional 44,400 by 1999.

Defense Secretary William Perry said the cuts will eliminate redundant forces and enable the remaining guard and reserves to operate at a higher level.

"To do that, it is imperative that we eliminate force structure we don't need and apply our finite resources to enhance the mission-readiness of those who remain in the force," Perry said.

Cuts were made with geographic equity in mind and with an eye to trimming those units judged below par in their operating readiness. Cutting out those units saves the Pentagon the annual operating costs they consume, as well as extra funds that would have been needed to bring them up to par.

Members of units being deactivated or subjected to reductions will have opportunities to move to other units where possible. If there is no new position available, "the individual will be separated with the appropriate transition benefits," according to the Pentagon announcement.

Those enrolled in the Montgomery GI Bill program will continue to receive benefits.

The cuts were ordered by Congress in the fiscal 1995 budget passed earlier this year as part of a long-term reduction in size of both the active-duty and reserve military forces.

While reserve forces are getting smaller, the parallel reduction in the active-duty force means the reserves will play a larger role in military operations, Perry said.

The largest cuts are coming from the Army and Navy reserves: 1,800 from the Army National Guard; 25,300 from the Army Reserve; and 9,100 from the Navy Reserve. Marine Corps Reserve and Air National Guard forces will be cut only slightly. The Air Force Reserve will be cut by 2,900.

A handful of states actually will get a net increase in guard and reserve strength. The "winners" are: Georgia, Hawaii, Maine, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Texas and Wyoming.

Pennsylvania and New York are the two hardest-hit states, losing 5,558 and 4,577 guard and reserve positions, respectively. Others hard hit include: Alabama, 2,235; California, 2,830; Kentucky, 1,980; Tennessee, 2,611; and Wisconsin, 2,997.

Father kills two daughters, self in domestic dispute

FRIENDSWOOD (AP) — Two young girls were shot and killed by their father before the man shot himself.

The man's mother-in-law was severely wounded in the attack.

Officers found the bodies of Daniel Kennedy, 37, Ashley Kennedy, 3, and Alexis Kennedy, 8 months, in the apartment of the girls' grandmother about 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

All three had been shot once in the head. Kennedy's body was found lying on a handgun believed to be a .380-caliber semi-automatic, Police Chief Jared Stout said.

The grandmother, Marjorie Roberts, 48, was airlifted to John Sealy Hospital in Galveston with gunshot wounds to the face, shoulder and neck. She was listed in serious condition, Stout said.

Officials said Ms. Roberts was baby-sitting her granddaughters while their mother worked when she called emergency operators about 7 a.m., saying Kennedy was forcing his way into the apartment.

"It does appear that he may have kicked the door in and made entry," Stout said. "From what the dispatcher heard, it appeared that they really didn't have a chance."

Police arrived on the scene and tried for several hours to contact Kennedy before entering the apartment.

Karen Kennedy, 26, was probably her husband's intended target, but she was able to fight him off in the apartment parking lot and seek refuge with a friend, Stout said.

"The friend may well have saved her life," Stout said. "I believe she was his target."

The couple, who lived previously in nearby Pearland, had recently separated, Stout said.

"We are checking reports that perhaps as much as four to six weeks ago there had been a fairly substantial fight in their residence in Pearland, that he had in fact been arrested and jailed for a time," the chief said.

Friendswood is about 30 miles south of Houston.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

GATT trade pact deserves passage

One of the most encouraging stories of the 1994 campaign has been the fizzling of international trade as an issue.

A year ago at this time, labor unions and Ross Perot were vowing vengeance against members of congress who voted in favor of the North American Free Trade Agreement, the pact lowering trade barriers in Canada, the United States and Mexico. As Perot himself said during his televised debate with Vice President Al Gore, "We'll remember in November."

Sorry, Ross, but voters this fall forgot all about NAFTA. Or, more likely, they have refused to hold passage to NAFTA against the majority of representatives and senators who voted for it.

And for good reason. NAFTA is good public policy. By lowering barriers to trade and commerce, it encourages modernization, growth and rising living standards in all three countries that signed it. It has already stimulated the creation of export-related jobs and will boost the spending power of consumers through lower prices and more choice.

The absence of trade as a campaign issue doesn't mean voters are indifferent to the trend toward a more global economy. It does mean the large majority of voters support, or at least do not feel threatened by, the movement toward freer trade. Politically speaking, an anti-trade message has always been and continues to be a loser at the polls.

Campaign '94 failed to become a referendum on free trade because there is no real debate anymore about its benefits. There hasn't been since Scottish moral philosopher Adam Smith intellectually demolished the protectionist cause with his book The Wealth of Nations more than 200 years ago.

The absence of trade as a campaign issue offers hope that Congress will put aside special-interest politics and approve the GATT treaty during its lame-duck session later this month. The General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade would lower trade barriers among more than 120 nations, stimulating the global economy and creating new opportunities for American exporters.

For Texas, it is essential that Congress pass GATT — for both production and jobs. Texas stands to gain from GATT in specific ways, including exports of electronic, industrial and analytical equipment because of import tariff reductions of more than 50 percent on electronic equipment, industrial machinery and computers and computer peripherals. The agreement also would benefit our farm and ranch industries by opening new markets and expanding the existing ones. Combined with the NAFTA agreement, GATT offers increased economic advances in nearly all areas of industry and commerce.

Voters proved that free trade is still good politics.

Berry's World

"The party tonight is dressy. Go put on a CLEAN tank top."

Where's all the good scandals?

"Why Are You So Angry?" That is the question asked on a recent cover of U.S. News and World Report, and inside, the magazine offers the usual answers: economic pressures, crime, welfare and pessimism about the future. No one seems to have considered that maybe we're mad because the Brits get all the good sex scandals.

It's true. Candidates are out on the campaign trail slinging mud every day, and what is the worst they can accuse each other of doing? Dianne Feinstein, the California senator, crows that her opponent, Rep. Michael Huffington, supports a measure to stop illegal immigration even though he employed an illegal immigrant as a nanny. Huffington retorts, with devilish ingenuity, that Feinstein had one too.

In Texas, the most grievous charge lodged by Gov. Ann Richards is that challenger George W. Bush is a poor excuse for a hunter because he mistakenly shot a killdeer when he was out for doves. In Illinois, Democratic gubernatorial candidate and former law professor Dawn Clark Netsch made the devastating disclosure that incumbent Jim Edgar is less intelligent than she.

Challenger after challenger berates some incumbent member of Congress for such lurid failings as being out of touch, making a career of politics, staying too long in Washington and falling captive to the special interests.

Is it any wonder Americans are grouchy? The least you can expect from your political leaders is entertainment, and protracted squabbles about household help and the solvency of the Medicare trust fund don't quite hit the spot. We are supposed to be scandalized by behavior that is barely sufficient to keep us from dozing off.

There was once a play called No Sex, Please, We're British, but the rule apparently doesn't apply to people in government. I don't have to mention

Stephen Chapman

Prince Charles and Princess Diana, who look like models of restraint in public but have randier private lives than Wilt Chamberlain.

In Britain, even politicians seem to find time to indulge the most sordid pleasures. The current government is composed of people who belong to the Conservative Party, but "conservative" doesn't describe their off-duty exploits.

Earlier this year, Prime Minister John Major's government was rocked by one sex scandal after another. One married official resigned because he had sired a child by his mistress, another conservative politician. Then a Tory lawmaker left his wife and vacationed with a male friend in France, where they shared a double bed in a hotel.

The height of the spectacle came when a Conservative parliamentarian made an unforgettable exit from this world wearing only a garter belt and women's stockings, having managed to asphyxiate himself with a plastic bag and electrical cord during an unconventional auto-erotic session.

And what have Americans had to compete with this titillating fare? Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros has attracted some attention for an adulterous relationship, but only because he may have told the FBI the truth about money he paid the woman after their breakup. The case of Rep. Mel Reynolds, accused of bedding an underage female, has interrupted the tedium in Chicago but hasn't helped bored voters in the rest of the country.

Even the once-indefatigable Ted Kennedy has remarried and evidently given up all vices but gluttony. Chuck Robb's indiscretions are old news; Gary Hart and John tower seem like memories from a previous century.

Americans may be especially irritable on this subject because the election of Bill Clinton held out the prospect of a gala four-year parade of bimboes going public, a la Jennifer Flowers. But the only sleaze emanating from this administration has been of the mind-numbing financial kind, and critics seem content to hate Bill and Hillary for their actual policies. The best we have gotten is Paula Jones, who merely epitomizes the drought: She is famous for not going to bed with Bill Clinton.

At the root of the problem is that politicians, who once sought office for all the sins it facilitated, now find the office itself so intoxicating that they don't need anything else. They will deny themselves anything just to be re-elected. They lust, but only for good committee assignments.

Alabama's current governor is Jim Folsom Jr., who has no apparent ambition to provide his constituents with the diversions furnished by his father, "Big Jim," who was governor until he showed up one night on TV drunk.

Aides once informed the elder Folsom that his enemies were plotting to lure him into a compromising situation involving a beautiful woman and some fine Scotch. The governor drew himself up and replied, "Oh, they do? Well, if that's their bait — a good-looking blonde and a bottle of whiskey — they'll catch big Jim every time." Big Jim, come back — all is forgiven.

Today in history

Today is Thursday, Nov. 17, the 321st day of 1994. There are 44 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 17, 1800, Congress held its first session in Washington in the partially completed Capitol building.

On this date:

In 1558, Elizabeth I ascended the English throne upon the death of Queen Mary.

In 1869, the Suez Canal opened in Egypt, linking the Mediterranean and the Red seas.

In 1917, sculptor August Rodin died in Meudon, France.

In 1925, actor Rock Hudson was born in Winnetka, Ill.

In 1934, Lyndon Baines Johnson married Claudia Alta Taylor, better known as Lady Bird.

In 1962, Washington's Dulles International Airport was dedicated by President Kennedy.

In 1970, the Soviet Union landed an unmanned, remote-controlled vehicle on the moon, the Lunokhod One.

It's not always easy to be green

It is not easy to be green. I learned that recently when my home was invaded by a new and especially prolific generation of the flea people.

Now, as everyone knows, if you choose to live with cat people and dog people, you will also live with flea people. That's especially true down here on the 29th parallel where a hard freeze is so rare as to be page one news. Florida is a paradise all right — for entomologists.

The normal procedure, of course, is to douse the little critters with toxic chemicals and vacuum up the remains. That's the ungreen method of evicting members of a species which, God forgive me, deserve extinction.

My green son, however, politely objected to toxic chemicals and asked if we couldn't find a natural solution. I reluctantly agreed. Aside from character guidance, I've always allowed my children to be their own persons. After all, the last thing this world needs is another me.

And I am sort of green myself. I don't use herbicides or pesticides in the yard. I don't mind sharing a few leaves or tomatoes with aphids and caterpillars. As for the lawn, as long as it's green and doesn't dent the mower blade, let it grow, I say.

But inside the house is another matter. Still, why not try a natural solution? My son came back from the ecostore with a sack of diatomaceous earth, which I hadn't seen since my grade-school chemistry set. This stuff, he says the store assured him, will dry out the fleas and thus kill them. It didn't seem to me as merciful a death as plain poison, but I let him spread it on the carpet.

It didn't work.

It made the fleas thirsty all right, and we all know that fleas don't drink soda pop. I had to fight my way to the coffee pot the next morning and, after showering, sneak out the bathroom window. Enough of this, I said, and roared off the find the most toxic chemical available. I would have bought nerve gas if I could have found it. Where is the military industrial complex when you need it?

Now you will see the dark side. I came home with a large can of one of those ozone-destroying, kill-forever pesticides with long, hyphenated names probably cooked up in a Third Reich laboratory and stolen by the occupation forces along with the rocket scientists in 1945.

I flung open the door, holding the can aloft, and said to the fleas, "No more Dr. Jekyll. Mr. Hyde has come to visit, and I'm killing every stinking one of you little !&$!&!"

That's what I did. I enjoyed it, too. I sprayed the carpets, the hallways, every crack and crevice, and I relished the image of the little bugs flopping around on their backs, holding their throats with their antennae and hacking their guts out.

Now there's a point to all this. It has cosmic significance. Our fearless leader, President Clinton had better understand the meaning of that story.

I know that's strange. It's hard to imagine Franklin Roosevelt recounting the story of a schoolyard fight and then casting an eye toward Nazi Germany and saying, "I hope Herr Hitler understands the meaning of this story."

But we live in strange times. So the cosmic moral of my story is this: You can talk about progress. You can develop philosophies and religions, and you can stage industrial revolutions. You can welcome prophets, messiahs and the Salvation Army.

You can invent social workers, talk shows and TV panels, and you can encourage the proliferation of universities and learned papers. You can proclaim political correctness and the virtues of green from every podium. But remember: Every heart hides a Hyde, and all it takes are itchy ankles to set him loose.

Drawing the line on accessibility laws

You could call it the case of the reading pits held hostage, or "The Pit and the Preposterous."

Several of the popular "story pits" in Springfield, Mo., public elementary schools have been covered over with plywood. The pits, multi-level reading and story areas in the libraries, have been judged "inaccessible" in lower levels to students in wheelchairs by the federal Office of Civil Rights, and until they are made accessible, they're off limits to all students.

Children cried when learning that the areas where they loved to curl up with a book or choose their spots to listen to a teacher's story would be covered.

It's not that I disagree with federal accessibility laws; not at all. But in this case the term "accessible" is murky fit best.

One of the schools, which has a large population of disabled students, designed its pit specifically so that students in wheelchairs could sit on the top level where other children also sit. Because these kids are small enough to be easily carried, teachers often brought them down to the lower levels.

I had a lengthy discussion with Steve Stratton, acting regional director for the Office of Civil Rights, and we disagreed on terminology. He told me the school system had "voluntarily" come up with the idea of boarding off the pits until it could come up with a more inclusive solution. Yet if the school system hadn't acted, he said, the federal agency "would have had to resort to our administrative enforcement authority to terminate federal funding." In other words, use it and lose it. Lose federal funding for the entire system.

When I told Stratton it seemed to me as if the system had "voluntarily" acted much as I had responded to police-car lights and pulled over when I was speeding, he asked me, "Ma'am, do you have a child in a wheelchair? If you did, you might understand how the child would feel in not being able to get to all areas of the library."

Well, he had me there. I don't have a child in a wheelchair. But for several years while I played "big sister" to a deaf child, I thought I took a sensible approach to her struggles. I was thankful for the law which mandated that the school system supply her with an interpreter for her classes and special tutoring help, yet I didn't insist that all children in her classes become fluent in sign language so she would be less excluded. I once angrily called a coach because she hadn't heard about a team party announced by verbal invitation, but I realized the steps the school was taking in her behalf and appreciated them.

I advocate that the school system take steps to make the story pits more inclusive, and officials are working on plans to retrofit the areas which they hope the Office of Civil Rights will accept. But to insist that a school cannot have a reading pit unless every child in a wheelchair can sit in every area of it seems as ridiculous as demanding that the school gymnasium or auditorium contain no areas that cannot be reached and used by children in wheelchairs — thereby no bleachers and no chair-back seats.

And why the either/or approach? School officials had to wait several months for the Office of Civil Rights to make a ruling on the pits recently, and expect to wait as long to hear if their new plans are accepted.

Even the new Americans With Disabilities Act, which was passed in 1990 and mandates accessibility in all public institutions, didn't insist on retrofitting overnight. Institutions and businesses were given from one to four years to become accessible, based on criteria such as number of employees.

This kind of heavy-handed inflexibility makes people resent disability laws. It harms, rather than helps, the cause and ideals of accessibility.

Bishops oppose euthanasia, suicide in health care systems

By DAVID BRIGGS
AP Religion Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A week after Oregon voters approved physician-assisted suicide, U.S. Roman Catholic bishops today declared that suicide and euthanasia are morally unacceptable.

In ethical directives to the nation's largest private health care system, the bishops said the more than 1,200 Catholic health care facilities "may never condone or participate in euthanasia or assisted suicide in any way" and cannot honor advance directives that violate the church's moral teaching.

At the same time, the bishops said doctors may give pain medications to the terminally ill even if it indirectly hastens their death and said patients have the right to forgo extraordinary means for extending life.

"We are not the owners of our lives but trustees with the duty to preserve and use our lives for the glory of God. Consequently, we have no absolute power over our lives," the bishops said in the health care directives, which were approved unanimously.

The Catholic Church spent more than $600,000 in an unsuccessful attempt to defeat Ballot Measure 16 on physician-assisted suicide in Oregon. This week, the bishops' conference added $80,000 to the Secretariat for Pro-Life Activities budget to finance educational efforts against euthanasia.

On Wednesday, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops unanimously approved a statement on violence that called euthanasia — along with abortion and the death penalty — part of a social trend to seek violent answers to some of the country's most difficult social problems.

"A society which destroys its children, abandons its old and relies on vengeance fails fundamental moral tests," the bishops said. "Violence is not the solution: It is the most clear sign of our failures."

In their statement, "Confronting a Culture of Violence: A Catholic Framework for Action," the bishops ask their 59 million-member flock to oppose both euthanasia and the death penalty, budget cuts affecting the poor and the proliferation of assault weapons, abortion and violent protests at clinics.

The Catholic Church oversees the nation's largest private health care system. In 1992, Catholic hospitals recorded more than 5 million admissions, accounting for more than 15 percent of all hospital admissions.

In their new "Ethical and Religious Directives for Catholic Health Care Services" — which update regulations last revised in 1975 — the bishops declare all people have a right to adequate health care, and say Catholic institutions should distinguish themselves by service to and advocacy for the poor, uninsured and underinsured persons, addicts, minorities, immigrants, refugees and the disabled.

On ethical issues at the end of life, the bishops ban the practices of euthanasia or assisted suicide.

However, the bishops also say a person may forgo extraordinary or disproportionate means of preserving their lives if they do not offer a reasonable hope of benefit or pose an excessive burden to the person or family. Even giving a patient food and water by medical procedures is not morally obligatory if they bring no comfort to a person close to death.

In addition, the bishops say, medicines capable of alleviating pain may be given to a dying person, even if the therapy shortens the person's life.

"We believe that effective procedures to manage pain and give support and comfort to our sisters and brothers who are approaching death is the best way to show compassion and care for, and solidarity with, our fellow citizens at the end of their lives," Archbishop William J. Levada of Portland told the bishops' conference Wednesday.

On the third day of their annual meeting, the bishops voted 228-10 to urge the church's all-male hierarchy to make way for women to move up to the top ranks of theologians, administrators and canon lawyers.

Star Reader T-shirts

Cindy Conde stands by her second-grade teacher Connie Foote during an assembly Tuesday afternoon at Baker Elementary School in which she and 28 other students received T-shirts and certificates from the Altrusa International Inc. of Pampa for becoming the first Star Readers for this school year. First and second grade students were challenged to become Baker Star Readers during an International Literacy Day kick-off at the school. The certificates were signed by Principal Bill Crockett and Charlene Morris, president of Pampa's Altrusa Club. Each student earning the Star Reader status also received a "puckered pig" to pin on a decorate clothesline to remind Crockett of his promise to kiss a pig if all first and second graders earn the T-shirts. The 29 students earning the T-shirts Tuesday represent 36 percent of the children already involved in the program. Each improvement will earn the students another prize at each six-weeks grading period. (Pampa News photo by Darlene Holmes)

Ireland's prime minister resigns just before no confidence vote

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Prime Minister Albert Reynolds resigned today, saying he did not want the collapse of his coalition government to derail Northern Ireland peace efforts.

Reynolds' departure paves the way for his Fianna Fail party, which has played a key role in the peace process, to elect a new leader and perhaps return to power in a new coalition.

Reynolds submitted his resignation to Irish President Mary Robinson this afternoon, saying he was acting "in the interests of stability and in particular to ensure the continuation of the peace process" in Northern Ireland.

Reynolds left office as a result of a controversial judicial appointment as Parliament was about to hold a vote of no confidence. The government was certain to lose the vote after the Labor Party withdrew Wednesday from the two-year-old government coalition.

Close to tears and his voice breaking, Reynolds told parliament the main achievement of his government "has been the breakthrough to peace in Northern Ireland."

"A terrible cycle of death has been brought to an end," he said. The IRA began a cease-fire Sept. 1 and pro-British Protestant gunmen announced their own truce Oct. 13.

After Reynolds' brief statement, the parliament adjourned until Tuesday.

Gerry Adams, leader of the IRA's political ally Sinn Fein, said in London that his party is "willing to work with whoever is in power" in Dublin.

The peace process, he said, is "bigger than any one of us. ... And Sinn Fein remains absolutely committed to continuing the peace process."

On Wednesday, Reynolds told Parliament he regretted his appointment of attorney general Harry Whelehan as president of the High Court — an appointment that led to Labor's walkout from the Cabinet.

Reynolds said he had received new information that Whelehan had misled the Cabinet about the reason his office took no action on an extradition warrant for a Catholic priest accused of child molesting.

Had he known that last week, Reynolds said, he would not have gone ahead with Whelehan's appointment.

The priest, Rev. Brendan Smyth, returned voluntarily last year to Northern Ireland, where he was convicted and is serving a four-year prison sentence.

Dick Spring, Reynolds' deputy prime minister, was key to the resignation: He said he decided to vote against Reynolds on the confidence motion after learning that Reynolds had been informed of the discrepancies on Monday but had not mentioned them in his speech to Parliament on Tuesday.

Spring today praised Reynolds' pivotal role in the Dec. 15 Anglo-Irish declaration that laid out a framework for the peace process.

"I think it would have been very difficult to achieve the balance of the Downing Street Declaration and its importance without Mr. Reynolds' direct input," Spring said.

Vacuum cleaner firm assessed $1.7 million in rape lawsuit

AUSTIN (AP) — A jury has awarded $1.7 million in damages to a Seguin woman who claimed that she was raped in her home by a Kirby vacuum cleaner company salesman who had previously been convicted of indecency with a child.

The lawsuit was filed by a woman, who was 28 at the time of the attack, against the vacuum cleaner company and its area distributors.

The case highlights the need for companies to conduct thorough criminal background checks on salespeople who go into private homes, the woman's lawyers said.

Lawyers for the vacuum cleaner company contended that the salesman was an independent contractor and that Kirby was not responsible.

Testimony revealed that Mickey Lea Carter, 43, was selling Kirby vacuum cleaners when he went to the woman's home in Seguin on March 26, 1993, and allegedly sexually assaulted her.

Larry Wright, a lawyer who represented the victim, said the assault occurred while the woman's 4-year-old son and 2-year-old daughter were asleep in other rooms.

Carter, who lived in Seguin at the time, was on probation on a charge of indecency with a child, Wright said.

Carter's probation was revoked after the attack and Carter is now serving out his term at a state prison, Wright said. He has been indicted but has not been tried in the sexual assault case, Wright said.

"Our position was that Kirby should have required some kind of background check," said Wright. "In this case, they didn't call prior employers or anybody."

"Kirby requires the only way their vacuum cleaners can be sold is through personal home demonstration," he said. "That is their choice, but they have an obligation to make sure their (sales representatives) are not rapists."

The woman and her family have moved out of state, the lawyer said.

The suit named the Scott & Fetzer Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, as the defendant. The Kirby vacuum cleaner company is a division of Scott & Fetzer.

The lawsuit also named Kirby distributors in New Braunfels and San Antonio who recruited and contracted with Carter.

More kids than soldiers die in war

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Children are even more likely than soldiers to be killed in wars, according to a report by the relief agency Save The Children. The group says 1.5 million children died in war zones in the past decade.

Another 4 million children were permanently injured by bombs, bullets, land mines, chemical weapons and machete attacks, said the report, released Wednesday.

"The new world order has proved to be a world of disorder for civilians, and particularly children," said Mike Aaronson, overseas director for Save The Children.

"Nine out of 10 casualties of war are civilians," he said.

"Children are very often the main casualties — and they are indeed much more likely to be casualties of war than are soldiers."

Ten million children — one of every 200 worldwide — have been traumatized by the effects of war, 12 million have lost their homes and 5 million have been forced to live in refugee camps in the last decade, the report says.

A video released by the relief group shows chilling scenes of children burned, maimed, orphaned and traumatized in civil wars in Afghanistan, Africa and former Yugoslavia. A boy carrying a machine-gun boy in Liberia told interviewers he had killed two enemy soldiers.

About 200,000 children have been recruited to become soldiers or take an active part in war, according to the report.

Save The Children was founded after World War I to help young victims of war and now operates in 25 conflict areas. It provides counseling for emotionally distressed children and attempts to reunite families and find suitable homes for orphaned children.

But the group said the best way to help children long-term is to find political solutions to prevent war, and to give more development aid to countries fighting over scarce resources.

The report called on richer countries to stop supplying the weapons "which make these wars against children possible."

Feds target credit-repair scams

By DARLENE SUPERVILLE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Your credit is bad and nobody wants to lend you money. A company promises to fix the situation quickly, only if you send money.

Desperate for help, you do — but never get a response.

Federal officials say the scenario is typical of the many companies that promise consumers a quick fix for their credit troubles. Trouble is, there's not much redress for a bad credit history, especially if it's accurate.

"Credit repair clinics prey upon consumers who are desperate to improve their credit history, charging them hundreds, and sometimes even thousands of dollars," Federal Trade Commission Chairman Janet Steiger said Wednesday.

"Unfortunately, their false claims raise false hopes, and only further deplete their victims' often limited resources," she said.

Steiger announced a broadening of agency efforts against credit repair fraud that includes soliciting input from state attorneys general, credit bureau representatives and public interest and trade groups.

Private companies called credit bureaus keep track of an individual's credit history by collecting information reported to them by banks, mortgage companies, department stores and other creditors.

The Fair Credit Reporting Act permits them to keep negative information on file for seven years, as long as it's accurate. It cannot be erased before that time. Bankruptcies can be recorded for 10 years.

The law allows consumers to correct inaccurate or information more than seven years old at next to no cost, but many consumers are unaware of the law and its provisions, Steiger said.

Time is really the only antidote for a bad credit history.

"Credit repair clinics can do nothing for consumers that consumers can't do for themselves for a lot less money," Steiger said.

Steiger said the companies claim they can remove accurate, but negative, information from a consumer's record or promise to get a credit card or some other form of credit for the consumer — when they can do neither. They charge anywhere from $50 to $1,000.

Some companies also instruct consumers to lie on credit card applications to create a new credit identity, although doing that violates federal law.

The FTC also announced a settlement with Chase Consulting Co., and its owner, Brian Corzine of Sacramento, Calif. His information superhighway ad offered consumers a $99 program to establish a new, clean credit history.

The agency alleged that Corzine advised consumers to break the law by getting a new "taxpayer identification number" from the Internal Revenue Service and using it in place of their Social Security number on credit card applications.

Under the proposed settlement Corzine would pay $1,917 in refunds to people who bought his kit. He also would be prohibited from engaging in similar misrepresentations in the future and would be required to disclose certain information about future credit repair programs he offers.

Copies of a free FTC pamphlet on disputing credit report errors and spotting credit repair scams are available from the FTC's Public Reference Branch, Room 130, Sixth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Washington, DC, 20580 or (202) 326-2222.

Court looks at long locks

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court on Wednesday began combing through a legal tangle over the length of a former West Texas high school student's hair.

The state's highest civil court heard oral arguments in the case of Austin Barber, who was forced to cut his hair to avoid in-school suspension as an 18-year-old senior at Colorado High School in Colorado City in 1992.

Barber, who is once again wearing his locks just short of his shoulders, is now a 20-year-old sophomore theater major at West Texas A&M University in Canyon.

On Wednesday, Pat Barber, the student's father, and James Harrington, an attorney for the Texas Civil Rights Project, argued that a rule prohibiting male students in Colorado City schools from wearing earrings and hair below their collar is unconstitutional.

"This is a classic case of individual freedom, of a person's right to privacy, of a person's right to symbolic speech, of freedom from gender-based discrimination and a right to education," Harrington told the court.

"A school board's right to set a dress code affects your life," Harrington said. "Hair is not something you can take off or put on like a pair of sneakers."

T.L. Rees, an attorney for the Colorado Independent School District, argued that while Barber and his hair were never a disruption in class, the rule was important because it taught students discipline and "how they are to work and live in our community."

"It's harder for a person in Colorado City to find a job with long hair," Rees said.

Rees said the Supreme Court should stay out of the case and allow local school boards to make their own rules.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last month, one of your columns included a letter from "Manless in Alabama," asking where women could go to meet decent men. Your reply included 10 likely places to meet single men.

While you offered some very good suggestions, you failed to mention the best, most reliable place — in a house of worship.

In most churches today, a great deal of interest and effort is directed toward "singles" — that group long neglected and expected to fit in wherever they could.

Here in Charleston, S.C., many churches, temples and synagogues have "Singles Departments" for Sunday school, Bible study, fellowships, retreats, and a host of other opportunities to socialize. While the purpose of singles ministries is certainly not for matchmaking, it is an excellent place to meet decent, interesting, unmarried people.

I have seen drastic changes in recent years: We are now finding an unusual imbalance — more single men (ages 22-60) than single women in the same age group.

So, Abby, please tell "Manless in Alabama" to call her local churches and inquire about single ministries.

A SINGLE FEMALE IN THE CHARLESTON AREA

DEAR SINGLE FEMALE: An excellent suggestion. As the good book says, "Ask and it shall be given to you; seek and ye shall find..." (Matthew 7:7)

DEAR ABBY: Within the last year, I have become a vegetarian. I belong to several animal rights organizations and am opposed to animal exploitation and eating meat. However, I don't try to push my beliefs on other people or "convert" meat-eaters. I believe eating meat is a personal choice, and I continue to respect people who eat meat.

We have a very large family, and it is the custom to take turns hosting Christmas dinner. It's a Christmas tradition to serve fish.

I spoke to my mother about my serving an acceptable substitute for fish, and she said it was out of the question — and I had no right to break the family tradition just because I have changed my lifestyle.

My question: Isn't it up to me to serve what I choose, since I am the hostess?

FAITHFUL READER, ELIZABETH, N.J.

DEAR FAITHFUL READER: Yes. In your home, it is your privilege to serve whatever you choose. As a vegetarian, you must know that there are many cookbooks featuring delicious dishes for vegetarians.

On the other hand, a gracious hostess wants to please her guests. To foster family peace and goodwill, why not serve vegetarian dishes along with the traditional fish?

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from the 93-year-old hostess whose guests stayed and stayed, and talked and talked, while another guest played the piano and sang endlessly, I was reminded of the story they tell about my wonderful great-grandfather:

One evening when he and my great-grandmother had dinner guests who would not leave, he finally stood up and said, "Come on, Gladys, let's go to bed so these nice folks can go home."

DIANNA HUTCHINSON, PORTLAND, ORE.

Fashionable exhibits

NEW YORK (AP) — If your money runs out before it's time to leave, wind up a New York shopping spree with some fashion-related museum hopping.

Admission is free for "Hello Again! Recycling for the Real World," an exhibition at the Fashion Institute of Technology's museum through Jan. 7. Among the more than 250 works by designers, artists and manufacturers are clothing and jewelry made from recycled or reusable materials. Fashions include a vest from college pennants and a coat from men's neckties. In addition, there's jewelry made from bottle caps, phone wire and recycled paper pulp.

At the Metropolitan Museum of Art — a $7 donation is suggested for museum admission — the Costume Institute's exhibition of Madame Gres continues through Nov. 27. Mme. Gres is the last surviving designer among the women — Chanel, Vionnet and Gres — who radically altered fashion in the 1920s and 1930s. She is known for her draped and pleated evening gowns.

At the museum's Special Exhibition Gallery for Egyptian Art is "Pharaoh's Gifts: Stone Vessels From Ancient Egypt," through Jan. 29. Of particular interest is a set of three obsidian and sheet gold ointment jars that date from about 1800 B.C. and small squat stone vases for eye makeup, which was important for both men and women during the Middle and New Kingdoms, from about 2000 to 1295 B.C.

Traveling the prehistoric trails of the west

By The Associated Press

The oldest wild west creatures were dinosaurs and other ancient animals, and visitors to Wyoming, Montana, the Dakotas, and Nebraska can study their fossils at a number of sites:

— The museum at Rock River, Wyo., displays finds of paleontologist Robert Bakker from his work at the "Dinosaur Graveyard" at nearby Como Bluff in southeastern Wyoming.

— The Geological Museum on the campus of the University of Wyoming in Laramie displays a Brontosaurus skeleton, and there's a full-size copper mold of Tyrannosaurus rex outside the building.

— Western Wyoming College in Rock Springs has several dinosaur casts from around the area, including a Tyrannosaurus rex.

— The Fossil Butte National Monument near Kemmerer, Wyo., contains a highly concentrated number of fossilized fish and plants. Fossil Butte's Wasatch Formation rises 7,500 feet above sea level with bright red, purple, yellow and gray colorings.

— The Museum of the Rockies at Bozeman, Mont., is one of the country's best known dinosaur attractions, with displays of dinosaur eggs, embryos and nests found near Choteau, Mont., an area now known as Egg Mountain. Egg Mountain is replicated at the museum with life-size reproductions of 32 dinosaurs. Skeletons and skulls of Tyrannosaurus rex, Triceratops, and others are on display.

— The Carter County Museum in Ekalaka, Mont., has fossils, dinosaur bones and a complete skeleton of an Anatosaurus, or duck-billed dinosaur.

— A recent Triceratops discovery is centerpiece of a new Visitors Center at Makoshika State Park near Glendive, Mont. The park has a number of interpretive trails and part of the Hell Creek Formation, a 65-million-year-old rock layer that winds through the Badlands of Montana.

— You can watch technicians at the Dakota Dinosaur Museum in Dickinson, N.D., prepare a 2,000-pound Triceratops skull, found in North Dakota Bad Lands, for permanent display. This new museum, completed last summer, also has ten full-scale dinosaurs, including an Allosaurus.

— The Museum of Geology in Rapid City, S.D., displays an extensive collection of Badlands fossils, including ancient camels, horses and a mother oreodon with skeletons of unborn twins encased in her bones.

— About 100 Columbian mammoths have been left entombed en situ at the Mammoth Site in Hot Springs, S.D. It's believed the 10-ton creatures were entrapped in the watering hole over 26,000 years ago when they either slipped in or ventured in without being able to retreat up its steep banks.

— Remains of exotic animals — three-toed horses, dog-sized camels, saber-toothed tigers, giant pigs, rhinoceros-like titanotheres — can be seen at Ashfall Fossil Beds State Historic Park between Royal and Orchard, Neb.

WTAMU theatre presents "Fortinbras"

The West Texas A&M University theatre program of "Fortinbras," a comedy by Lee Blessing, will be presented again at 8 p.m. this evening and Friday. The play will show again at 3 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday in the Branding Iron Theatre.

According to Royal Brantley, head of the Department of Art, Communication and Theatre and play director, the comedy is about what happened after Hamlet died.

"William Shakespeare's 'Hamlet' has been copied, twisted, analyzed.... But no one has written a follow-up quite like Lee Blessing's "Fortinbras," Brantley said. "Throw in some ghosts, some interesting prisoners of war and the most amazing army in the world and you have an ingenious comedy that is sure to delight every Hamlet fan and foe in the world."

At the end of Shakespeare's play, Hamlet dies and Prince Fortinbras enters pledging to restore justice and calm to the troubled "Castle of Elsinore." According to Brantley, Blessing continues the story by observing Fortinbras as he deals with the aftermath of corruption, murder and fear.

"Due to humorous adult situations, this play is not recommended for children," Brantley said.

Cast members for "Fortinbras" include Stefany Northcutt from Pampa.

"Fortinbras" is the last production of the fall 1994 semester. The Branding Iron Theatre season will continue next semester with "Barnum," a musical about P.T. Barnum, and "Our Country's Good," a dramatic and inspirational account of the colonization of Australia.

Tickets are $7 at the door or may be purchased at the Department of Art, Communication and Theatre, Room 151 of the Fine Arts Building on the WTAMU campus. For seniors 65 and older and children 12 and younger, tickets are $5. Students, faculty and staff may pick up two free tickets for each performance with a valid WTAMU ID.

The Branding Iron Theatre is located on the first floor of the Fine Arts Building. For reservations or information call 806/656-2798, or on MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin tailback Brent Moss, the MVP in the 1994 Rose Bowl game, was charged today with misdemeanor possession of cocaine.

Moss, 22, was arrested Nov. 9 during a traffic stop. Police said they found four-tenths of a gram of cocaine in his possession.

Moss's attorney, Gerald Mowris, earlier said he hoped Dane County district attorney William Foust would charge him with the misdemeanor possession charge instead of the felony of intent to deliver.

Mowris had said that statements to police by Moss indicated unfamiliarity with the legal distinction between possession and dealing.

The cocaine involved had a street value of $50, police spokeswoman Dorothy Doheny said.

Police said Moss and another man were arrested by officers from an antidrug task force.

No formal charges were filed at the time pending today's hearing.

Coach Barry Alvarez suspended Moss from the team "pending a legal resolution" of the case, but later said Moss would not be reinstated for Saturday's game against Illinois.

Moss was released last Thursday on a $2,500 signature bond co-signed by his father.

On Tuesday, Alvarez suspended reserve nose tackle John Todryk after he was charged in a Milwaukee drug investigation not related to the Moss incident. Todryk, 20, from the Milwaukee suburb of River Hills, is a redshirt freshman recruited out of Milford Academy in Connecticut.

Todryk was charged in Milwaukee County Circuit Court with the delivery of one ounce of cocaine, and has been released on $25,000 signature bond.

Moss was one of the most honored players in Badgers football history and had been touted at the start of the season as the school's first Heisman trophy hopeful since Alan Ameche won the award in 1954.

Last season, Moss set a school record by rushing for 1,637 yards and was named the Big Ten's MVP after leading the Badgers to a 10-1-1 mark and the first Rose Bowl victory in school history.

He was just 282 yards shy of breaking the Wisconsin career rushing mark when he was suspended.

Moss was known for his visits to church groups and classrooms to talk about the dangers of drugs and how he had escaped the streets in Racine, where two of his childhood friends were shot to death.

But Moss was cited by a university police officer in June 1992 for possession of marijuana on campus. He paid a $93 fine after pleading no contest.

In September 1992, he was charged with domestic disorderly conduct after a fight with his girlfriend. He paid a $63 fine.

Moss gained 833 yards on 156 carries this season, an average of 5.3 yards per carry and 119 per game. He is second on Wisconsin's career rushing list with 3,428 yards, trailing Billy Marek's 3,709 from 1972-75.

Moss missed two games this season with a sprained ankle and knee. His string of 17 consecutive 100-yard games was snapped Saturday when he was held to 52 yards on 20 carries in a 24-3 loss at Ohio State.

Alvarez has not indicated, if Wisconsin beats Illinois on Saturday and gets a bid to the Jan. 2 Hall of Fame Bowl in Tampa, Fla., whether Moss will be allowed to play.

TENNIS

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Top-ranked Pete Sampras came back after losing the first set and defeated Stefan Edberg to stay alive in the IBM/ATP Tour World Championship today, while Andre Agassi became the first to advance to the semifinals by beating Michael Chang.

Sampras beat Edberg 4-6, 6-3, 7-6 (7-3), while Agassi raised his record to 2-0 with a 6-4, 6-4 victory over Chang, a fellow American.

In the last match today, Sergi Bruguera played fellow Spaniard Alberto Berasategui.

If Bruguera wins, he will join Agassi in the semifinals.

"It's great to get in to the semis and have legitimate shot at winning it. My confidence is greater than ever," said Agassi, who won the inaugural tournament in this series in 1990.

Agassi has climbed to No. 2 in the computer rankings after bouncing back from wrist injury by winning the U.S. Open and 21 out of his last 22 matches.

Sampras, the world's top-ranked player, lost to Boris Becker in his opening match and needed to beat Edberg to retain hopes of advancing to the semifinals.

For one set, it seemed that Edberg would cause Sampras to make an early exit.

But Sampras raised his game and once he broke the Swede for a 4-2 lead in the second set, he took command. Sampras never lost his serve again and closed out the match after one hour, 55 minutes.

"He doesn't have any weaknesses anymore," said Edberg, a former No. 1 who has slipped to No. 8.

Edberg dropped to 1-1 and will play Becker (2-0) in his last match Friday for a place in the last four, while Sampras (1-1) meets Goran Ivanisevic (0-2).

The $3 million tournament is limited to the eight top-ranked players under a two-group round-robin format. The top two finishers from each group advance to the semifinals.

Sampras, winner of the 1991 tournament, allowed Edberg only one point in the first three games. But the Swede found his touch in the fifth game and broke back.

Edberg then got on a roll, broke for 4-3 and closed out the set with an ace.

"Before I knew it he won four straight games. He started returning better. But I told myself not to panic and to stay in there," Sampras said.

"I was down on myself after that first set but I got my spirits up again."

Neither player could break again until the sixth game in the second set. Sampras, up a break point, gained the vital edge by running down an Edberg volley and passing the Swede with a sizzling forehand.

"He got better after he broke me," Edberg said.

Alabama has edge in battle of unbeaten

By RICK WARNER
AP Football Writer

If Alabama and Auburn were both 0-0 going into the annual Iron Bowl, it would still be their most important game of the season. So it's hard to overstate the significance of Saturday's showdown between the undefeated intrastate rivals.

"After we lost to Auburn last year, I left the state," said Alabama defensive back Willie Gaston. "I didn't want to hear it. It would put a damper on my whole season if we lost to Auburn."

Both teams enter the regular-season finale without a loss for only the second time since the series resumed in 1948. It first happened in 1971, when Alabama beat Auburn 31-7.

This year's game in Birmingham pits fourth-ranked Alabama (10-0) against No. 6 Auburn (9-0-1), which had its 20-game winning streak snapped last week by a 23-23 tie with Georgia.

The tie probably knocked probation-plagued Auburn out of the national title picture. But Alabama still has a shot if it can beat Auburn, No. 3 Florida in the Southeastern Conference championship game and another Top 10 opponent in the Sugar Bowl.

College picks

"As long as we stay undefeated, we have a chance to win the national championship," Alabama quarterback Jay Barker said.

Barker is 33-1-1 as a starter and ranks fourth nationally in passing efficiency with a 64 percent completion rate, 11 touchdowns and only two interceptions.

The Tide's other offensive key is Sherman Williams, the SEC's second-leading rusher with 108 yards per game. Alabama is 20-0 when Williams scores a touchdown, 11-0 when he gains over 100 yards and, amazingly, 29-0-1 when he rushes for more than 12 yards.

Auburn features the SEC's leading rusher (Stephen Davis) and leading receiver (Frank Sanders), but the Tigers' greatest strength may be a big-play defense that has 21 interceptions and 10 fumble recoveries.

Auburn is favored by 1 1/2 points, and it should be that close ... ALABAMA 24-23.

Pampa opens 1994-95 season against Abilene High School

The Pampa Harvesters could be without all-district guard Duane Nickelberry in the high school basketball opener Friday afternoon against Abilene High.

Nickelberry sustained a knee injury in Pampa's scrimmage last weekend in Lubbock. The 5-9 senior hasn't been able to practice this week, causing PHS head coach Robert Hale some worrisome moments.

"We're very concerned about Duane because he's a big part of what we do," said PHS head coach Robert Hale. "We're wondering if we can get him well enough just to be with us (for the first game). It would be good insurance just to have him sitting on the bench."

Hale said junior guard Jimmy Reed would probably start in Nickelberry's position.

"We've got the guys from football out now and that will give us some depth. Hopefully, we'll be able to get them into the flow of things where they could play some for us this weekend," added Hale.

Hale looks for the Class 5A Abilene High Eagles to be a fast-breaking club.

"Traditionally, Abilene High has been a team which loves to press. They like the up-tempo game and they're try to force you into making more mistakes than you do. They like to keep the pressure on," Hale said.

Rayford Young, Pampa's other all-district guard, is expected to join Reed in the starting backcourt. Up front, the likely starters will be all-district performer Coy Laury, along with Robert Bremerman and Jason Weatherbee. Forward Jeremy King could work his way into the starting lineup and forward James Wilbon is expected to see plenty of action coming off the bench. PHS football players Hank Gindorf and J.J. Mathis reported for basketball practice this week. Both were part-time starters a year ago.

The Pampa-Abilene High game tips off at 3:45 at South Plains College in Levelland. The next afternoon at the same time place, the Harvesters take on Midland Lee, another 5A school.

Pampa was 26-9 a year ago and won its sixth straight district title under Hale. The Harvesters advanced to the regional semifinals. Pampa has won 22 or more games in each of the past six seasons and twice won more than 30 games in reaching the state semifinals in 1991-92 and 1990-91.

Miami, Fort Elliott win basketball openers

HEDLEY — Brock Mayberry scored 16 points and Mick Bryant added 15 as Miami opened the 1994-95 basketball season Tuesday with a 63-52 win over Hedley.

Hedley slipped by Miami, 49-48, in the girls' game. Shantelle Wheeler was high scorer for Miami with 14 points.

BRISCOE — Fort Elliott downed

Briscoe, 63-29, Tuesday in a boys' basketball opener.

Justin Westbrook led Fort Elliott scoring with 17 points, followed by Jake Swigart with 15.

Kelton's high scorer was J.W. Ray with 13 points. Brandon Lewis added 7.

Fort Elliott jumped out to an 18-6 lead in the first quarter.

Fort Elliott also won the girls' game, 52-32. Andrea Dukes topped the Lady Cougars with 15 points, followed by Lindsey Fillingim with 12.

Fort Elliott led by 13 at halftime, 26-13.

Jennifer Kirkland paced Kelton with 11 points and Kelly Crockett had 8.

Lady Harvesters host Spearman

It's something that doesn't guarantee a bunch of victories, but without it no team can hope to achieve much success.

It's called team unity and the Pampa Lady Harvesters have that trait going for them headed into the 1994-95 season.

"The one thing this team has got going for it more than anything else is team unity. They're really pulling for each other. None of them are worried about who does the scoring or who has the best personal statistics," said Pampa head coach Mike Jones.

The Lady Harvesters tip off the 1994-95 basketball season at 7:30 Friday night against Spearman in McNeely Fieldhouse.

"Spearman traditionally has had a strong program," Jones said. "They're going to be a formidable opponent, but we really don't have any easy ones on our schedule. We've got some experience, but our team is still very young."

Spearman won the District 1-2A championship last season and advanced to the area round before being eliminated.

"We scrimmaged Childress and Wellington last Saturday and we showed a lot of improvement. I was pretty pleased with our play," Jones said.

Four starters return to the Lady Harvesters, but guard Misty Scribner is the only senior among them. Junior guard Serenity King, junior post Jane Brown and sophomore forward Jennifer Jones are the other returning starters. Erin Alexander is a returning letter winner. Other prospects include Kristi Carpenter, Melissa Treadwell, Danette Hoover, Jami Wells and Tashia Wilson.

"We'd sure like to fill this gym up," Jones said. "That would be a great sight to see. The girls have really been working hard since the beginning of school."

Moorer wants heavyweight title back

DETROIT (AP) — Michael Moorer, who lost his heavyweight titles to George Foreman Nov. 5, talks about retiring but it seems to be only talk. Moorer told The Associated Press in a telephone interview today that he will take some time off from boxing, but that he wants to become heavyweight champion again.

"We already have a rematch signed with Foreman," said John Davimos, Moorer's manager. "George will have one other fight and then we'll get the title back."

Moorer said Tuesday night on WJR-AM in Detroit that his loss to Foreman was the perfect opportunity to retire after just turning 27.

"The loss probably makes it easier to get away," Moorer said. "I don't have to stay in because I'm heavyweight champion. I don't have to worry about pleasing the people."

Today, however, Moorer said of the radio interview, "I have a personal matter and I was frustrated. I said something I shouldn't have said."

Moorer is currently involved in a divorce from his wife, Bobbi.

Moorer, who lives in Detroit, said that he wants to return to school.

"I've always wanted to pursue a career in the law enforcement area, and I will not return (to boxing)," he told The Detroit News in a report published today.

Foreman, 45, stopped Moorer with a two-punch combination at 2:03 of the 10th round to become the oldest champion in any weight class. Moorer, leading the fight in points on all three judges' cards, said he got lackadaisical.

Wheeler faces unbeaten Spur in area playoffs

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

Wheeler head coach Jim Verden knows one thing for sure when his Mustangs meet unbeaten Spur in the Class 1A area playoffs. The Mustangs will have to play much better than they did in bi-district last week against Claude.

"From the fans' standpoint, it looked like we did a lot of things right," Verden said about Wheeler's 34-7 win over Claude. "From the coaches' standpoint, we did a lot of things wrong."

Wheeler's offense started off sluggish against Claude, gaining only 11 yards on the first three possessions. However, the Mustangs finished with 333 total yards, including 248 on the ground.

"It took our kids awhile to get going. They started coming along and did a pretty good job, but we've got to be hitting on all cylinders if we're going to beat Spur," Verden said. "There's a lot of things we need to get corrected."

The Harris Rating System does give Wheeler a 4-point edge in the area tilt, which will be played at 7:30 Friday night at Bronco Stadium in Clarendon.

"Size-wise we'll match up pretty good with Spur, but we don't have the speed and quickness they have. Hopefully, we'll be able to match up with them with our effort," Verden said.

Wheeler has a 7-4 record for the season, but the Mustangs won the District 1-1A title with a perfect 5-0 mark. Spur is 10-0 and drew a bye in the bi-district round.

Wheeler is averaging 23.5 points per game and has limited opponents to 10.4 points per game. Spur's offense averages 40.2 points per game and its defense has held foes to 9 points per game.

Spur's high-powered offense is led by all-state tailback Michael Kelly, who rushed for over 1,800 yards last season. "Kelly weighs about 185 pounds and he's a tremendous runner. It's going to be a big challenge for us to be able to shut him down," added Verden.

Wheeler also has a 1,000-yard plus rusher in senior wingback Jarrod Ledbetter, who is averaging around 7 yards per carry. He's rushed for 7 touchdowns. Sophomore quarterback Dusty Case has passed for 69 yards and 6 touchdowns.

The Mustangs may have some additional help this Friday. Sophomore wingback-cornerback Travis Stevens could return to the lineup. Stevens, who also kicks extra points, has been sidelined with a thigh injury.

Under 10 champs

The Pampa Office Supply Posse won the Under 10 boys' soccer championship this fall with a perfect 9-0 record. Oilers' Fisher sets new pace

HOUSTON (AP) — Jeff Fisher already has shown he'll run on a fast track as the Houston Oilers head coach.

He started showing his pace to the team on Wednesday, in the team's first practice since Fisher replaced Jack Pardee on Monday and there were obvious differences.

The entire team gathered at midfield after the practice and then they ran wind sprints as a team. The emphasis was on team.

"We huddled together and then we ran together," linebacker Lamar Lathon said. "It's a team sport and that's what he's trying to do."

Fisher's first workout as head coach emphasized precision and fast-paced drills.

"There were a lot of people very alert in practice today," wide receiver Ernest Givins said. "Everybody was bouncing around. That was the thing, everybody was working hard to get things done in a smaller amount of time."

Fisher, who will continue his duties as defensive coordinator, also stepped over the offensive of the football.

"I kind of smirked when I first saw him over there," Givins said. "But he's the head man now and he wants to know the situation. He just has a lot of control."

Fisher said his team would be disciplined. He's already given the team a schedule that extends through Thanksgiving and its underlined by discipline.

"You have to be disciplined in anything that you do in this business whether it's coaching or whatever," Fisher said.

Timberwolves are still winless against Suns

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

One night removed from a drought-ending victory over the previously undefeated Golden State Warriors, things were looking up for the Minnesota Timberwolves.

Their chances to make it two straight appeared good because of injuries to the Phoenix Suns, who played without Charles Barkley, Kevin Johnson and Wayman Tisdale. But the dream gave way to historic reality for the Timberwolves, who had never beaten the Suns.

They still haven't after 105-90 setback Wednesday night. In six NBA seasons, Minnesota is 0-21 against Phoenix.

In addition to the other woes, the Suns lost center Joe Kleine to an ear injury in the third quarter. But Danny Manning remained on the court, and the Timberwolves had no antidote for him.

"Manning is carrying us right now offensively," Suns coach Paul Westphal said. "He is doing well, but I don't think we've seen the Danny Manning we are going to see, because when you surround him with guys like Barkley and KJ it makes a difference."

Manning scored 13 of his 22 points in the third quarter. He and Dan Majerle, who added 19 points, kept the Suns perfect against the Timberwolves.

Minnesota got a big effort from rookie Donyell Marshall. Pressed into the starting lineup when Doug West was scratched with a groin injury, Marshall had 30 points and led all rebounders with 13.

NBA roundup

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Boston 120, Seattle 93; Philadelphia 109, Miami 96; Chicago 94, San Antonio 92, and New York 110, the Los Angeles Lakers 89.

Minnesota also got 25 points from second-year player Isaiah Rider. But it wasn't enough, especially after Marshall tired late in the game.

"In the final quarter, I probably felt a little bit winded," Marshall said. "This was the first time that I really played a lot, and I felt it. It was close at the end, but they just pulled away."

So Minnesota, which snapped a 16-game losing streak spanning two seasons with a victory at Golden State on Tuesday night, was unable to make it two in a row.

Still, Christian Laettner, whose layup brought the Timberwolves within five points with 9:16 left, saw a ray of hope.

"I don't know why, but we play with more intensity on the road than we do at home. It's been that way since I got here," said Laettner, who finished with 13 points.

"Sometimes, I think our fans are rooting for us to fail.

"We have to take this home and play there like we did here and Golden State."

Bulls 94, Spurs 92
Will Perdue's dunk with less than a second left was decisive as visiting Chicago withstood another big night by David Robinson.

Perdue caught a perfect pass from Scottie Pippen, who was double-teamed at the top of the key, and streaked in for the easy basket.

Robinson led San Antonio with 30 points, 12 rebounds and seven blocked shots. Robinson, who scored at least 30 points for the fourth straight game, tied a franchise record with six blocked shots in the final period.

Ron Harper, who has struggled since joining the Bulls as a free agent, scored 27 points, including 12 in the fourth quarter.

Celtics 120, SuperSonics 93
Dominique Wilkins had his best game for Boston with 29 points and 10 rebounds. Wilkins, off to a slow start in his first five games, got the first six points of the third quarter as the Celtics rallied from a 53-53 half-time tie.

They outscored visiting Seattle 39-18 for a 92-71 lead. Boston's lead was 19 to 31 points thereafter.

Wilkins, signed as a free agent in the offseason, canned 10 of 15 shots after making fewer than half in each of his previous games.

Dino Radja added 28 points and 15 rebounds. Seattle was led by Detlef Schrempf with 19 points.

Knicks 110, Lakers 89
Hubert Davis had 14 of his 27 points while Patrick Ewing rested in the fourth quarter, and New York continued its mastery over Los Angeles.

Ewing, rested by coach Pat Riley after the Knicks entered the final period leading 82-59, had 22 points as New York beat Los Angeles for the sixth straight time. The Knicks have swept the Lakers — whom they don't play again this season — three years in a row.

The Knicks, winning for the first time in three tries on a four-game road trip, took a 53-36 lead with a 12-1 spurt in the final 2:19 of the second quarter.

Cedric Ceballos led hot Los Angeles with 19 points.

76ers 109, Heat 96
Jeff Malone scored 12 of his 31 points in the third quarter, leading Philadelphia to only its second victory in eight games.

Malone led the 76ers on a 16-4 spurt late in the third quarter after Miami closed to 67-66. He scored six points during a 10-0 run, and Dana Barros' 35-foot jumper at the buzzer made it 88-75 entering the final period.

Barros made four of six 3-pointers, and had 24 points and 10 assists. Clarence Weatherspoon added 16 points for the 76ers.
