No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $3 million.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 1, 3, 12, 31, 38 and 42.

There were 126 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,384. There were 6,306 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $100. And there were 125,533 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $10 million.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The killer whale population at Sea World of Texas increased by one Sunday.

Haida, a 16-year-old killer whale, gave birth to a 7-foot, 400-pound calf after one hour and 41 minutes of labor and delivery. The calf is the third born at the Texas park and the 10th born at Sea World parks across America.

The baby brings the Texas park's killer whale population to six.

Animal care specialists said they were cautiously optimistic about the progress of the baby whale, whose sex had not been determined Sunday.

In the wild, first-year mortality rates for killer whales run as high as 50 percent, according to studies by researchers in British Columbia, Canada.

NATIONAL

SKIATOOK, Okla. (AP) — A 12-year-old girl was in serious condition today after she was pulled from a blazing house where four other children died.

A boy and two women also survived the fire, which investigators suspect began in the attic of the 60-year-old house late Sunday. There were no smoke detectors in the building, said John Parasich, assistant state fire marshal in Oklahoma City.

Firefighters found a 9-year-old boy, a 1-year-old boy and a 4-year-old girl dead, said Don Andrews of the state fire marshal's office. The age of the fourth child, who died at the hospital, could not immediately be determined.

A 40-year-old woman was in critical condition; a 12-year-old girl and a 23-year-old woman were in serious condition, and an 11-year-old boy's condition was fair. The latter two, brother and sister, were being treated for smoke inhalation, authorities said. The cause of the fire was under investigation.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rock singer David Crosby was in critical, stable condition this morning after seven hours of surgery to replace his drug-ravaged liver.

That's normal for organ transplant patients, hospital spokesman Warren Robak. He said he had no details on the donor in Sunday's operation at the University of California-Los Angeles Medical Center.

Elliot Mintz, Crosby's publicist, urged fans to keep the 53-year-old musician in their thoughts.

"I think the best thing for all of us to do right now is just send him our prayers and well wishes," Mintz said. Crosby was admitted to the hospital with a deteriorating liver on Nov. 2. Mintz blamed his condition on decades of drug abuse.

"There was no question about it that substance abuse did, in fact, contribute to the condition of David's liver," Mintz said Sunday night. "He wrote about it in his autobiography, he never held back."

Crosby had been in considerable pain in recent months but still performed with Stills and Graham Nash at this summer's Woodstock '94 concert.

Police investigating criminal mischief cases

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS News Editor

Vandalism to property kept window smashers and graffiti artists busy as they broke eight vehicle windows and decorated two buildings and a trailer with spray paint over the weekend.

Pampa police are investigating the broken windows on cars and trucks parked at 2717 Seminole, 1710 Beech, 2601 Navajo, 715 Sloan, 1129 Charles, 2235 Mary Ellen, 2500 Beech and 855 W. Kingsmill. Vehicle owners told police they have no idea why anyone would choose their vehicle to vandalize. Damage estimates range from $70 to $300 on each car or truck.

In mid-November a rash of windows were shot out by BB or pellet guns at 409 E. Foster, 1705 Duncan, 445 Juniper and 2317 Comanche.

"It's possible if law enforcement find out who's responsible for this damage, their parents are responsible for restitution and they may get a Christmas present they're not looking for," said Sgt. Charlie Love of the criminal investigation division of the Pampa Police Department.

The weekend spray painting reports are not the first. Home and business owners began telling police about Oct. 30 their property was being marked with "BDK" or "VC," which stands for Varrio Central, and a variety of nicknames like "Lucky" or "Loco."

At least nine incidents of graffiti have been reported.

There is no doubt the marks are gang related, though Pampa is not overrun with gang activity, said school resource officer Bryan Hedrick.

"What that is (the nicknames) is a roll call to tell us who's a member of that particular gang," he said. "I think we're seeing an outward increase where they're coming out of the closet so we can see what they're doing."

The graffiti is graffiti only and not related to other offenses, he said.

The problem requires early aggressive intervention, Hedrick said.

"That intervention has to come from the police department, the school, community and parents," the officer said.

"It becomes a community issue. This is one of those things - the community can aid the police or accept it and let it run over us."

People who observe vandals at work can dial 911 to get an officer pronto or call Crime Stoppers, 669-2222, with information. Hedrick said he is available at Pampa High School, 669-4800, for those with information.

Graffiti cleanup

Jesse J. Barker, Coronado Shopping Center maintenance man, cleans the latest rash of graffiti off the back wall of the center. "This is the second one I had," said Barker. Earlier in the month, vandals struck another backside wall not far from their latest target. Barker said each time the vandals strike, the graffiti gets bigger. It takes a lot of time and money, he said, to clean up the mess and he imagines the owner of the center isn't happy about spending the money for cleanup, either. Barker added that he doesn't see what the vandals derive from graffiti. (Pampa News photo by Melinda Martinez)

NATO bombs Serb airbase, missile site

By SRECKO LATAL Associated Press Writer

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — In the biggest NATO attack ever, 39 warplanes from the United States and three other nations bombed an airbase and nearby surface-to-air missile site used by Serbs to terrorize Bosnia.

The raid on the Udbina airbase in a Serb-held section of Croatia was NATO's seventh since war broke out in Bosnia in April 1992 and by far the largest by North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in the alliance's 45-year history.

Previous NATO air strikes have all been in Bosnia and all involved a small number of planes against highly limited Serb targets, such as a single tank.

Adm. Leighton W. Smith, Naples-based commander of NATO forces in southern Europe, said the U.S., British, French and Dutch aircraft carried out "good hits" on Udbina's runways, taxiways and on planes parked nearby.

The bombers also targeted Serb anti-aircraft batteries and one surface-to-air missile site near the airport, Smith said.

He estimated the airfield in the Serb-held Krajina area of Croatia would be out of commission for 30 days due to the damage.

Smith said in a news briefing from Naples that 39 aircraft took part in the raid: Jaguars and Mirage 2000K planes from France; F-16s from the Netherlands, Jaguars from Britain and F-15E, F-16C and F/A 18Ds from the United States. He would not break down numbers by country.

There were no reports of losses among allied aircraft and all returned safely to their bases even though NATO officials said Serb gunners apparently fired at the incoming planes with surface-to-air missiles.

Today's raid was a measured response to bombing attacks by Serb planes from the Udbina airbase on U.N.-designated safe areas in Bihac, 22 miles away in northwest Bosnia. U.N. commanders requested NATO air support over the weekend but bad weather Sunday delayed the raid.

The NATO attack occurred the same day as Serbs, backed by renegade Muslim forces, were busy on the warfront: They attacked government troops across northwestern Bosnia and U.N. peacekeepers were targeted in three separate assaults.

Two of the five other U.N.-designated safe areas — the Bosnian capital of Sarajevo and the government-held northeastern city of Tuzla — also were attacked today by Bosnian Serbs.

A U.N. spokesman in Zagreb said government troops in and around Velika Kladusa, north of Bihac, were under attack as well this morning by Serbs from neighboring Croatia and Muslims loyal to renegade leader Fikret Abdic.

German government spokesman Dieter Vogel called the bombardment an "inevitable response to the Serbian attacks in Bihac. We hope the Serbs will reach the appropriate conclusion and stop their attacks against U.N. protection zones."

The top U.N. official in former Yugoslavia, Yasushi Akashi, described the airstrike as a "necessary and proportionate response."

Bosnian Prime Minister Haris Silajdzic seemed pleased. "I would like to say it is now very clear what is the character of this war in Bosnia. Some people thought that this was a civil war. ... It is an aggression, it is quite clear now. It is not a civil war. ... They are coming across the border to attack our people."

Chance of snow flurries in forecast

From AP and Staff Reports

The first snow flurries of the season fell in Pampa Sunday morning, and forecasters are calling for a possibility of more flurries in the area Tuesday.

A winter storm pushing out of the Rockies touched the Texas Panhandle, leaving an inch of snow on the ground Sunday at Dalhart, in the far northwest corner of the Panhandle.

In Pampa, cold north and northwest winds howled most of Sunday. They kicked falling snow around the city for about half an hour Sunday morning. None of the white stuff stuck to the streets.

While the temperature in Pampa today is expected to reach almost 60 degrees, the forecast for Tuesday calls for a high of only 45 and the possibility of more snow flurries.

Over much of the Panhandle and North Texas, freezing temperatures are in the forecast for tonight.

Winds gusting up to 63 mph Sunday kicked up dust across West Texas, blowing over street signs in Lubbock and downing power lines in Brownfield. The canopy outside a convenience store in Seminole fell onto a car, but no one was hurt.

In West Texas, where skies were clear to partly cloudy, early morning temperatures ranged from 26 at Marfa to 44 at Sanderson. Patchy thin clouds moved across North Texas, where morning temperatures varied from 42 at Wichita Falls to 57 near Killeen.

In South Texas, morning temperatures also dipped to 42, but reached 69 in Brownsville.

A chance of precipitation returns to parts of West Texas tonight and Tuesday with light snow possible in the northwest Panhandle tonight and in all of the northern Panhandle Tuesday.

Flurries are possible across the entire Panhandle on Tuesday with sprinkles and flurries across the South Plains and Low Rolling Plains and showers across the Permian Basin, Concho Valley and Edwards Plateau.

Lows tonight will range from the lower 20s to the lower 40s, while highs Tuesday are expected to vary from the mid-30s in the Panhandle to around 70 in Presidio Valley.

Skies over South Texas were clear to partly cloudy except for areas of low clouds and dense fog reported at Brownsville and Corpus Christi.

In North Texas, skies should be partly cloudy tonight with lows in the mid 30s in the western portion. Tuesday's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies and windy and cooler conditions with highs in the 50s and 60s.

Tuesday night lows will be from 30 to 35.

President Clinton issues his Thanksgiving Day proclamation

By The Associated Press

President Clinton's 1994 Thanksgiving Day proclamation:

As the end of another year grows closer, we are again filled with thankfulness for the blessings of a fruitful land. For more than 200 years, Americans have welcomed autumn's harvest with gratitude and goodwill. On Thanksgiving Day, we set aside our daily routines to acknowledge the bounty and mercy of Divine Providence. With full hearts, we bask in the warmth of family and community gatherings, and we reflect on the challenge, responsibility and privilege that are ours as citizens of these United States.

It is our great fortune to live in a country of abundance and promise — a land of freedom for all. Still only a few generations removed from our nation's founders, we continue to blaze a trail toward stability and justice. Aspiring to lift ourselves closer to God's grace, we remain determined to ease the pain of the many people who know only poverty and despair. Clearly, ours is an unfinished journey. Our destination must be to create the means for every one of us to prosper, to enjoy sound education, meaningful work experience, protective health care, and personal security. It is our responsibility to prompt the national conscience so that by fostering virtue, wisdom, and moral values, we rejoice in our growth as a people.

Our challenge is to give assistance and encouragement that are equitable and just and that alleviate human suffering. Our responsibility is to nurture the processes of peace and equal human rights everywhere with compassion and concern. And like other pioneers before us, it is our privilege to aim toward lofty goals.

Across this land as people gather together with loved ones to savor the bounty of the Thanksgiving holiday, I invite each family, each religious congregation, each community and city, to celebrate your experience of the American heritage. Reach out in friendship and cooperation to the people of your hometown. Take responsibility for bringing harmony and hope, peace and prosperity to all of the inhabitants of our world. Share the privileges of freedom and the challenge of working for a better world.

Now, therefore, I, William J. Clinton, president of the United States of America, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and laws of the United States, do hereby proclaim Thursday, Nov. 24, 1994, as a national day of Thanksgiving.

I urge the citizens of this great nation to continue this beloved tradition and to strengthen it by gathering in their homes and places of worship to express their heartfelt gratitude for the many blessings of our lives.

Attend the Community Thanksgiving Service at 7 p.m. Tuesday at First Christian Church

GOP governors demanding more leeway from Washington, prod Gingrich on welfare

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Emboldened by their swollen ranks, GOP governors are demanding more leeway from the federal government and warning House Republicans that "one size does not fit all" states when it comes to welfare reform.

Crowding a stage at their first post-election meeting, GOP governors and governors-elect vowed to serve as role models for the party as it takes control of Congress for the first time in 40 years, demonstrating how to govern compassionately while cutting taxes, spending and bureaucracy.

"People believe government spends too much, costs too much and is too intrusive," said George Pataki, who defeated Democratic Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York.

In all, Republicans gained 11 governorships in the midterm elections, meaning they will have 30 come January, the GOP's highest number since 1970.

The governors said they were prepared to help the new GOP majority in Congress enact its agenda, pledging to back the balanced budget amendment, tax cuts and a federal government downsizing. More than a dozen said they would be happy, for example, to see the Education Department eliminated and its powers shifted to the states.

"We'd like to be left alone by the federal government as much as possible," said Texas GOP Gov.-elect George W. Bush.

But in exchange for their help, ideas and example, the Republican governors said they expected Washington to finally understand that, in their view, it often does more harm than good when it imposes mandates and strict policy prescriptions on states — especially when it doesn't send along the money to pay for them.

That will be a recurring theme of the GOP governors' three-day meeting, particularly when the leaders get a chance to meet Tuesday with the Senate GOP leader Bob Dole and House GOP leader Newt Gingrich and the lawmakers who will run the House and Senate budget committees next year.

They warmed up for those session Sunday by putting their own party on notice that they want broad flexibility when it comes to welfare reform.

Gingrich, in line to become House speaker, is pushing for an early vote on welfare reform. The leading GOP plan would cut off benefits after two years and require recipients to work. It also would deny benefits to mothers who have additional children while on public assistance.

"One size does not fit all," said Wisconsin Gov. Tommy Thompson, who said governors were tired of going to Washington "on bended knee" to seek waivers from federal programs.

Thompson and a host of other governors said that decisions about work requirements and benefit cutoffs were best left to the states and that Washington should enact broad reform goals and leave the particulars to the states.

"Our message will be, to the Republican congressional leaders and people of this country, give us the ball and then get out of the way," said Utah Gov. Mike Leavitt, who is taking over as chairman of the Republican Governors Association. "We can solve these problems."

The meeting's host, Gov. George Allen of Virginia, compared the mood of the governors to the mood of the colonial settlers who revolted against the "oppressive monarchy across the ocean."

"We in our respective states are perfectly capable and intelligent and control our destiny," Allen said. "And we don't need it being micro-managed by a bunch of bureaucrats or a new monarchy that has instituted itself on the north banks of Potomac."

The governors' warning on welfare, delivered politely but firmly, was a sign of the potential tensions between the party's pragmatic governors and congressional Republicans who want to push a busy agenda when they take control of Congress in January.

The GOP governors and governors-elect also pledged to support a balanced budget amendment — but only if it includes language guaranteeing that states would not have to pick up the tab when the federal government cuts spending.

Without such language, Massachusetts Gov. William Weld predicted, the amendment would face "rough sledding" when it went for ratification by state legislatures.

Dole: GATT support tied to capital gains tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wooing of Bob Dole on the GATT trade accord hit another snag today, with the future Senate majority leader standing firm on his demand that the Clinton administration commit to a capital gains tax cut.

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said the administration has no plans to reverse its opposition to the tax cut to accommodate Dole. But Dole made clear today that he won't let the issue die.

"He only took one shot at it," Dole said of Panetta. "He can fire again."

Dole, R-Kan., said Sunday that before he signs onto GATT, he wants Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen "to give us some indication on capital gains — what his indications are in this next Congress."

Asked on ABC's This Week With David Brinkley if he was making a capital gains tax a condition to his support of GATT, Dole said, "I suggested that to him (Bentsen)" in a meeting on GATT Saturday. Also at the meeting were Trade Representative Mickey Kantor and Panetta.

The House and Senpanettaonvene in a lame-duck session later this month specifically to vote on the 123-nation accord designed to move the world toward free trade. House approval is expected, but Dole's support is key in the Senate, where the outcome is still in doubt.

Dole has previously asked for separate legislation that will enable the United States to withdraw easily from the agreement if U.S. interests are at risk. He is also seeking to change language in the bill that gives preferential treatment to three communications companies in obtaining licenses for the next generation of wireless telephone systems.

Dole said he and the administration were "getting close to an agreement" on working out differences. "I want to fix it and if we can fix it, then I'll vote for it."

An administration official who attended the Saturday meeting said Dole did bring up capital gains, but he did not feel Dole was making it a quid pro quo for GATT support.

On CNN's Inside Edition later Sunday, Panetta said such a tradeoff would probably not be forthcoming anyway.

"I don't think he's going to get a commitment from us that we're going to suddenly support a capital gains tax cut, particularly as part of" the trade accord, Panetta said.

Republicans have long pressed for a cut in the tax rate, currently at 28 percent on gains from the sale of assets, and the "Contract With America" agenda of House Republicans calls for a capital gains tax cut.

First funeral in 60 years planned for Dallas cemetery

DALLAS (AP) — A symbolic memorial service is planned for Dec. 2 at Freedman's Cemetery, a burial site for more than 1,500 former slaves and their descendants that was found and saved during expansion of a highway.

The ceremony is planned to remember all 1,513 persons believed to have been laid to rest on the land that was once part of Freedman's Town.

The last bodies likely were buried there around 1925, then some were moved in the 1930s as the first of many road projects began carving through the area. By the 1940s, little was left to show where the cemetery was.

In 1965, the city erected a plaque explaining the history of "Freedman's Park" was erected on behalf of descendants of those who had been buried there.

In the mid-1980s, city officials were interested in part of the park's land for their expansion of North Central Expressway.

"If our project had not come along, it would have probably been ignored," said John Kelly, who was manager of the North Central project for the state transportation department until last year.

Highway officials realized what they had struck upon after looking at the land, the plaque and a single battered tombstone.

"We thought it was a couple of dozen remains," Kelly said.

Amid all the debate, lots of children already pray in school

By CAROLE FELDMAN
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As with previous generations of Americans, many of today's students pray silently before tests, say grace before lunch and read the Bible in after-school clubs. And there's no law to stop them.

With all the talk about a constitutional amendment to bring prayer back to the nation's public schools, it's easy to lose sight of the fact that some children already pray in school.

"Children have the absolute right to pray in school today," said Perry Sansing, an attorney for the Jackson, Miss., school district.

What is not allowed is organized, state-sponsored prayer in public schools, even if students are allowed to leave the room or refrain from participating. The Supreme Court ruled in 1962 that such prayer violates the First Amendment.

Rep. Newt Gingrich, expected to become House speaker when the new Congress convenes in January, has promised a vote by July 4 on a constitutional amendment allowing voluntary prayer in public schools. President Clinton has said he wouldn't rule out supporting such an amendment, depending on the language.

Congress grappled with the question of school prayer during debate on two education bills over the past year. The issue was resolved with language affirming the right of students to participate in voluntary, constitutionally protected school prayer.

Georgia public schools observe a moment of reflection at the start of each day. If students want to pray during that time, they are allowed to do so, silently.

"That's entirely their right and was their right before this law was passed," said Berney Kirkland, director of community relations for the public schools in Gwinnett County, Ga.

At South Gwinnett High School, the day begins with the principal on the intercom announcing the moment of reflection.

Marlene Melvin, a world history and American law teacher, said it is a wonderful way to get started. "It settles the students down. It gets them focused," she said. "You move right into the lesson."

All teachers were not as receptive. Brian Bown, a South Gwinnett High School teacher who refused to comply with the moment of reflection, was fired, Kirkland said. He is challenging the state law in federal court.

In 1985, the Supreme Court struck down an Alabama law calling for a moment of meditation or silent prayer, but left open the door to other moment-of-silence laws.

Also enmeshed in a legal challenge is a Mississippi law that would allow students to pray at school activities if they initiate the prayer. A federal judge has ruled the law unconstitutional and appeals are being readied.

In a case from Idaho, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled 2-1 last week that school graduation prayers are unconstitutional even if a majority of students vote to pray.

"Elected officials cannot avoid constitutional mandates by putting them to a majority vote," said the opinion written by Judge Charles Wiggins, a former Republican congressman. "The decision (on whether to have a prayer) is made by a majority of the senior class and imposed on a minority."

Sansing said children in Jackson are probably praying in school, "but it's none of the school district's business."

"We encourage children to exercise their religious rights at school and at school events," he said. "They can talk about the great effect religion has on them. They can form a Bible club. There's the Fellowship of Christian Athletes."

"The key is that it is all voluntary," he said. "The state can't force children to participate in a religious exercise."

The Supreme Court has ruled that extracurricular religious groups must be given the same access to school facilities as other groups.

Sansing said a constitutional amendment allowing voluntary prayer in schools would have no real impact. "We don't need to go to the extent of tinkering with the Constitution to educate children about the rights they already have," he said.

The American Civil Liberties Union is concerned that Gingrich may go further, pushing an amendment that allows a teacher to select and lead the class in a prayer, while students who don't want to participate "sit quietly with their hands folded," legislative counsel Robert Peck said.

Such an amendment, he said, "would dictate when, where, how and with whom people pray. The idea is completely inconsistent with religious freedom."

Said Mike Russell, spokesman for the conservative Christian Coalition: "We're not supporting a mandatory prayer and we're not in support of necessarily starting the school day with a prayer. It should be left to what the students want and their First Amendment rights should be upheld."

Texas colleges spending more to teach basics

HOUSTON (AP) — Teaching Texas college students the basics of reading, writing and arithmetic — skills normally covered in high school — will cost more than $127 million during the 1994-95 school year.

That's nearly four times the $35 million Texas paid for remedial college classes six years ago, according to a new report by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board.

"This shows taxpayers are having to pay twice to teach kids basic skills," board chairwoman Nancy Atlas told the Houston Chronicle for Sunday editions. "And underfunded colleges are being stretched even thinner."

The skyrocketing remedial course work isn't unique to Texas. Experts say spending has increased dramatically nationwide since the 1980s, though no national statistics are available.

In Texas, the increase is driven largely by the Legislature's 1988 imposition of the Texas Academic Skills Program, a mandatory placement test that identifies incoming college students in need of remedial help. Roughly a third of college freshmen fail the test annually.

Educating students who fall short is shared by large state universities, but about 85 percent of all remedial instruction is taken on by community colleges. The smaller schools now devote about 20 percent of their academic instruction to the cause, up from 5 percent in 1987.

"This isn't a development we've cheered," said Stan Calvert, executive director of the Texas Association of Community Colleges. "Community colleges would like nothing better than to get out of remedial education and teach college-level work."

Remedial courses are considered "developmental" and don't count toward a degree. They can range from math classes on fractions and percentages to basic reading courses and instruction in grammar and punctuation.

Nearly $60 million, or 46.2 percent of the total spent on remedial courses in 1994-95, was spent teaching basic math skills. Writing classes took 32.9 percent of the total, while reading courses took 20.9 percent.

The coordinating board report is being touted by some as proof that public schools are failing to do the job. "Those numbers are a great indication of public schools' failed curriculum," said George Scott, president of the Tax Research Association of Houston. "They show we're spending money the wrong way."

Some public school leaders acknowledge the problem but say progress is being made by phasing out less rigorous courses and implementing college-preparatory classes.

Ed Hines, professor of higher education at Illinois State University, said the issue is more complicated, noting that a larger, more diverse segment of society now seeks higher education.

Train fire injures dozens in Canada

BRIGHTON, Ont. (AP) — An express train carrying over 400 passengers turned into a fiery arrow after its diesel tank was ruptured and two cars exploded in flames.

Dozens of passengers were injured Sunday night in what police suspect was a possible case of vandalism along the most heavily travelled train route in Canada.

Terrified passengers smashed windows and jumped from the burning Via Rail train after it hit an object on the tracks and caught fire. At least 46 people were treated at local hospitals, mostly for cuts, bruises and burns.

None of the injuries appeared life-threatening, Via spokeswoman Dianne Graham said. The train was bound for Montreal from Toronto.

The first-class car, directly behind the engine, was sprayed with burning fuel after the train hit an object at about 6:20 p.m., puncturing the diesel tank. Fire also spread through the second coach.

Passengers as far back as the sixth car — carrying a wheelchair basketball team — saw flames racing by their windows.

"You couldn't recognize it as a train because it was all on fire. It was going very fast. It kinda looked like a comet, just like on TV with a lot of sparks and flame," said Richard Cook, 19, who lives near the train tracks.

Police seized a section of track and police dogs were scouring the scene around the burned and twisted skeleton of the train.

"We're probably looking at mischief," said a Canadian Rail official who requested anonymity. Canadian Rail, a government entity, owns the track.

"Vandalism is something we have to deal with from time to time, though we're still speculating," Graham said.

Passengers described the terrifying ride as the train was suddenly engulfed by flames and smoke.

"People screamed at first, then everyone calmed down. (They were) pushing to get into the second car, but it wasn't really panic," said Geoff Amess, a salesman from Toronto.

"Heat was cracking the windows while we were still moving," said Bob Bosada, 57, a Toronto lawyer who was riding in the first-class car.

"When we stopped, the heat and smoke became overpowering...so we began breaking windows to get out," said Bosada, who broke his hand.

Sue White, an administrator at Trenton Memorial Hospital, said 30 people were treated there. Cobourg District General Hospital reported handling four people, and Belleville General Hospital said 12 passengers were treated there. All were in stable condition.

The rest of the 407 passengers — some blistered and bloodied — were taken to Brighton High School and nursed by residents before most were taken to Montreal on buses. The train also carried 10 crew members.

It was the second suspicious incident involving a Via Rail train on Sunday. A locomotive and baggage car derailed at about 2:30 a.m. as a train carrying 60 passengers left Rimouski, Quebec.

Rimouski police const. Daniel Lebel said that large cement blocks had been placed in the switching system. No one was hurt.

Police have made no arrests but say vandals probably were responsible.

Japanese ministry apologizes for delayed war warning

TOKYO (AP) — The Foreign Ministry today officially apologized for the first time for the delayed delivery of a virtual declaration of war before Japan's 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor.

The declaration — a formal notice of the breaking off of talks aimed at averting war — was delivered almost an hour after the surprise attack.

Documents declassified on Sunday said the ministry had blundered by failing to give Japan's embassy in Washington sufficient warning of its urgent task.

"It is extremely regrettable that such a thing happened, which we consider inexcusable," ministry spokesman Terusuke Terada said today.

In one of the newly disclosed documents, Katsuzo Okumura, a senior embassy counselor at the time, said he was shocked when heard news of the Pearl Harbor attack on the radio after he finished typing the last page of the declaration.

In the Dec. 7, 1941, air raid on against the U.S. Pacific Fleet, the Japanese killed 2,400 people and destroyed 120 U.S. planes and 19 ships.

President Franklin Roosevelt called it a "date which will live in infamy," and the United States entered World War II the following day.

The ministry says the latest disclosure is the most comprehensive account and the only existing government record of what happened in Washington in the final hours before the attack.

The reports say that even after most of the declaration had been deciphered, since there was no warning of urgency, all the embassy officials gathered at a Chinese restaurant for a farewell party.

CIA agency is its own worst enemy

The U.S. Senate committee on intelligence issued its report on the Aldrich H. Ames spy case earlier this month. From what the panel had to say, there isn't a doghouse big enough for the chiefs and senior officers of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Between 1985 and 1993, the report said, the CIA chiefs failed to detect what has turned out to be the worst intelligence fiasco in U.S. history. The damage began when an agent with a record as a lazy, inept, high-living alcoholic was promoted in 1983 to counter-intelligence chief of the CIA's Soviet division. From 1985, the division chief also doubled as Moscow's man.

By the time the mole named Ames was caught in February 1993, he had blown the identities, and caused the executions, of 10 double agents for the United States; derailed more than 100 intelligence operations; and passed thousands of secret documents to Moscow.

The report, detailing the CIA's efforts to find the mole, describes an agency apt to chase Soviet-planted red herrings and distracted by misinformation. It describes a CIA that protected its turf, refusing for seven years to share information with the FBI's spy catchers. It also showed an agency that could not investigate itself but allowed agents with obvious problems — like Ames' alcoholism and questionable lifestyle — to advance.

You can't blame the Soviets for playing a smarter game. In the double-crossing world of espionage, a country is only as good as its agents, and Ames' years of betrayal showed up the CIA at its incompetent worst.

The extraordinarily lousy performance the report describes more than justifies the Senate intelligence panel's harshest criticism.

But more disheartening yet is that when the incompetence was fully exposed, the current director of the CIA could only muster letters of reprimand to 11 senior officers who were Ames' supervisors. Only four of those supervisors were still with the agency when the reprimands were issued this year.

For such astounding failures in supervision, management and accountability, the reprimands are mild by any standard, though Director R. James Woolsey insists they are fair enough punishment. Hard as that is to accept, there may be little point now in elaborating the issue.

However, the CIA has more serious questions to face up to. Where is the credibility of a spy agency that could not find a lazy, drunken mole in its midst for eight years? Whatever information Ames passed on obviously did not save the Soviet Union from crumbling, a process the CIA also failed to see coming. How reliable is the agency, and has the time come to consider restructuring it?

The Senate Intelligence Committee, reasonably, is venting its anger at the chiefs who led the CIA over the past decade. When an agency bumbles this badly, it calls even its entire mission into question.

Judge Ito will let us see trial

Judge Ito having raised most (but by no means all) of the reasons not to permit television in the Simpson trial, he proceeded to rule in favor of television. The technique is of course conventional. You advance the arguments of the people on the other side in order to give the advocates who are there the opportunity to shoot them down. You allow your inclination to be overruled — by yourself. And you therefore inspire confidence in the judiciousness of your temperament.

The TV defenders stressed many points, singular among them that 17 million Americans had watched the earlier, televised proceedings. When one network dropped coverage, the lawyer witness said proudly, the public responded by simply turning off that channel and going to another, more loyal to Simpson v. California. He was making the point that there is near universal interest in the Simpson case. If there is any doubt on this question, one has only to ask about the circulation of the National Enquirer, which is up a half million because of its intensive coverage of the case.

What is less than established is that where there is curiosity, there is an appetite to learn. There was endless blather by the TV lawyers about the importance to the successful workings of democracy of a universal inspection of the processes of democracy, pleading that an elevation of the respect in which the courts are held would follow upon intense scrutiny of the epic trial ahead of us.

At this point Judge Ito made a vulnerable comparison. If it's true — the more spectators, the greater respect engendered — how come the respect for Congress continues to descend even though its sessions have been televised for the last three years?

The lawyer to whom he addressed that question never had a softer ball thrown at him. The reason, your honor, is that the people who give speeches in Congress are giving those speeches to the television audience. Much of the time there isn't another human body in the Senate chamber or in the House as the orators drone on. There is a public perception of the phoineness of it all and a corresponding lessening in respect for the proceedings. Whereas when we address the court, your honor, we are speaking not to the crowded stadiums on the air, we are talking to you, to the witness on the stand, and to the jurors. Nothing else matters. And the seriousness of our proceedings has got to inspire confidence in the viewer.

Well then, said Judge Ito, how do you account for the heavy mail that came in — most of the 15,000 letters on the subject — urging me to ban television?

That mail was in response to the urging of newspaper columnist Mike Royko, who looked in on one of the early hearings, was disgusted, and urged his constituency to record a corresponding disgust.

The TV lawyer countered by saying that anybody who was in the business of soliciting letters urging this or the other course of action could get a heavy delivery: He could do it himself. But, your honor, we are aware that you are the last person in the whole world to be influenced by public opinion on matters that have to do with justice (his honor purts his agreement on this point).

What wasn't mentioned in the hours taken up in the discussion is the lurid nature of the crime committed and the notoriety of the man charged with that crime, which are of course the reason for the interest of the public in the spectacle.

That evening, William Bennett made a flashy polemical home run. The deplorers were going on and on in the MacNeil-Lehrer news show about how awful the political campaign had been, with all the negative advertising, etc. Bennett, one of the panelists, with the expression of an innocent school-boy on his face, said that the first segment in the show that evening, which focused on the race in Virginia, had established that the contestants there, Oliver North and Charles Robb, did indeed accost real issues.

Self-satisfied purr from everybody. One second's dramatic pause by Bennett: "Yes, your coverage of the serious side of the Virginia race consumed about 20 seconds."

So is it with the Simpson trial. For every hour of the proceedings, 20 seconds will appeal to the serious listener, and the rest of it to the sensation-monger. When the DNA witness says yes, the blood on the glove is the blood that courses through the veins of O.J. Simpson. ... When they play the tape of the dead wife pleading with the police to come and rescue her from one of O.J.'s warm-up rages a year or two back. ... The listening audience isn't there to gain a greater understanding of Wigmore's Rules-of-Evidence.

Judge Ito ruled in favor of unlimited access to the circus. It will be an uplifting experience.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Nov. 21, the 325th day of 1994. There are 40 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Nov. 21, 1877, inventor Thomas A. Edison announced the invention of his phonograph, which he dubbed a "talking machine."

On this date:
In 1922, Rebecca L. Felton of Georgia was sworn in as the first woman to serve as a member of the U.S. Senate.

In 1942, the Alaska Highway across Canada was formally opened.
In 1963, President Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline, began an ill-fated, two-day tour of Texas.

In 1964, the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge opened, linking the New York City boroughs of Brooklyn and Staten Island.

In 1969, the Senate voted 55-45 against the nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth to the U.S. Supreme Court, the first time a candidate for the nation's highest court had been rejected since 1930.

WE NEED HELP, JUDGE ITO, STOP US! STOP US BEFORE WE KILL AGAIN!!!

Riding the 'Gentleman's Roadster'

Today's "big-three" car makers helped make our nation the powerhouse of this planet. We owe them that.

But General Motors, Ford and Chrysler will never be out of debt to more than 4,000 creators of other American motorcars whose names we rarely hear anymore, though their innovative ideas contributed immeasurably to accelerating the evolution of today's handsome, powerful, safer-than-ever automobiles.

When Henry Ford was first experimenting with a horseless carriage in the garage behind his home on Bagley Avenue in Detroit, a young lad from the neighborhood was helping: Alanson Brush. Alanson P. Brush.

This was in 1905 — 89 years ago. Al Brush was a dutiful employee — he shared Ford's enthusiasm about the future of horseless travel. But Ford's resources ran low and then ran out, and he could no longer afford an employee.

So Al Brush took his dreams "across the street" and, in his own garage, began to make a car of his own by hand.

It would have wooden axles and wooden wheels and a primitive one-cylinder engine, but by 1907, the Brush runabout was put-putting down Bagley Avenue and around the neighborhood, and customers were eager to buy as many as Brush could make for $500 each.

Eventually, Al Brush made and sold 18,000 of them. More than 100 that I know of are still around and running!

Recently, I journeyed to south suburban Chicago to the home of Charles Fabian. Fabian is enjoying his retirement in the company of his wife and half a dozen garages filled with vintage cars.

Would Paul Harvey like to drive the Brush? Would I ever.

I got a briefing on gear shifting, braking and acceleration from Fabian. Then, sitting high on this single-seat open-air horseless carriage, it and I became part of the autumn afternoon.

It had kerosene side lights and a bulb horn. Wide open, I never topped 25 miles an hour.

But hold everything — what's this? I'm not bouncing along. I'm suspended on expansion coil springs. Not compression coils — expansion coils. That's a suspension system as new as now.

Essentially, they were adjustable shock absorbers!

This "Gentleman's Roadster," as it was called, has a brake that disengages the transmission — automatically.

And you and I thought the automatic transmission was invented in 1938. Oh, no, it wasn't. The Brush, vintage 1909, has no clutch! It has a planetary gear box.

There were bigger cars being built in 1907 — such as the Buick, Reo and Maxwell. But this one-lung, open-air flivver was enough in demand to sell 18,000 between 1907 and 1913.

With all its innovative technology, you and I might still be driving a Brush — except that in 1913, the man across the street, Ford, built his first Model T with a roof over it.

And while the Brush retailed for $500, Ford's "tin lizzie" came out at $495. The $5 difference in 1913 was enough to put Brush out of business.

I hope it would please Brush to know that one of his $500 cars these days sells for many thousands.

And they are still giving a full measure of pleasure. Surely I will remember the beautiful autumn afternoon when I revisited yesterday — and I found it real nice.

No reason to fear the implications of IQ

Every society has its taboos, and one of America's biggest is against open discussion of possible genetic differences in the average intelligence of various ethnic groups. So Charles Murray and the late Richard Herrnstein must have known they were walking into a buzz-saw when they wrote The Bell Curve.

The book's most controversial contentions are (1) that some portion of every individual's "intelligence quotient" (the authors estimate it at 60 percent) is genetic in origin and therefore heritable; (2) that a person's IQ is "predictive of many educational, economic and social outcomes"; (3) that America's blacks score, on average, 15 points lower than whites on standard IQ tests, while Asians score higher than whites and Ashkenazi Jews from Eastern Europe score highest of all; (4) that it is unlikely that non-genetic factors such as the environment can account for the whole of these group differences; and (5) that therefore efforts to reduce the blacks' group IQ deficit and its socioeconomic consequences by making purely environmental improvements must, to some large extent, fail.

In addition to the inherently unpalatable nature of such a contention, it flies in the face of one of liberalism's oldest and most cherished convictions: that human nature is infinitely malleable and hence capable of unlimited improvement. Moreover, at a grimly practical level it threatens to reduce the expenditure of government funds on projects designed to improve the black population's environment for the aforesaid purposes — expenditures that may not help their nominal beneficiaries much, but which assuredly benefit all sorts of people, from Congressmen to teachers and social workers, who are involved in (and profit from) their delivery.

So the furor the book has caused is understandable. It has included hysterical attacks on the two scholarly authors as "racists," flat denials that there is any such thing as "intelligence," or that, if there is, it can be measured, or that genes play any part in intelligence whatever, and — contradictorily — that much or all that the authors assert has long been known and hence isn't "news."

Many critics seem willing to concede, however reluctantly, that the 15-point disparity is real, but challenge the alleged genetic component of the lower average black score and stress instead its supposed environmental origins. But this effort is fatally undermined when one considers its implications for the high end of the IQ curve. If poor prenatal care (for example) is, as some argue, a major reason for blacks' group deficit in IQ, must we conclude that Asians' prenatal care is necessarily better than that of whites, and that East European Jews enjoy the best prenatal care of all?

Commentators such as Harvard's Glenn Loury, who wonder whether these delicate matters ought to be discussed publicly at all, raise a legitimate point. But in a democracy, which depends on an informed citizenry, I see no alternative. Certainly we can never hope to reach valid policy decisions if we deliberately blind ourselves to the facts upon which such decisions should be based.

One other point. Many liberals are, apparently, genuinely terrified that, if they acknowledge the validity of Murray and Herrnstein's contentions, conservatives will seize on this as an excuse to "do nothing" to help America's blacks achieve full self-realization and happiness. I think this fear is thoroughly unjustified. It does a grave injustice to the moral dimension of American conservatism — a dimension that liberalism, that child of the Enlightenment, tends to lack, and therefore naively assumes that others lack as well.

But even if the liberals' fear proved justified, I think any such "conservative" view would be swiftly and rightly rejected by the great majority of Americans of all ethnic origins. America is too great a nation — essentially too kind — to have to fear any truth whatever.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last May 27, I received a call telling me that my father was finally getting his lung transplant. We flew to Cleveland, and while we were in the hospital waiting room, we met a family who had come for a heart transplant from the same donor.

A nurse came in and told us that the organs would soon be arriving, so my husband and I rushed to the 11th floor to watch the helicopter land. Through the skylight, we saw two people carrying a cooler. I knew they had Dad's life in their hands. I cannot describe the feeling it gave me.

I thought about the family who had lost a loved one (he was 42 years old) that Memorial Day weekend, and the pain they must have felt. But in the midst of their sorrow, they bestowed the most generous gift. (We were told this same donor donated not only his lungs and heart, but also his pancreas, liver, kidneys, and bone marrow.)

As the doctor came out afterward to tell us the procedure had been successful, and my father had received a healthy lung, we applauded for each other's loved ones and shed tears of relief.

Dad's birthday was the following Friday — and the heart recipient's birthday was that Tuesday. What a wonderful birthday gift our father received.

K.C. IN MICHIGAN

DEAR K.C.: I appreciate being able to share your family's joy. Not all families are so fortunate. Read on....

DEAR ABBY: I have never written before, but I'm a longtime reader and I really enjoy your column.

I lost my son, Charles Wayne Jones, last March 22. He needed a heart transplant and one could not be found in time.

I would like to warn parents with young ones to keep an eye on their children when they are told, "It is only a virus." That's what started my son's problems. It was "only" a virus, but it settled in his heart and, over the years, slowly deteriorated one side until it no longer functioned.

I am also writing to appeal to your readers to donate organs — not only from young children but from older children as well. My son was only 29 years old. You rarely hear about individuals that age getting heart transplants (it's usually the very young or older folks), but in this age group there are also people in need.

I cannot bring my son back, but I can alert others to the need so that other mothers will not have to lose their sons as I did.

SHEILA LEATHERS, ANDERSON, IND.

DEAR SHEILA: Please accept my sympathy on the untimely loss of your beloved son. And chance to remind my readers that the need for vital organs is great. Every medically acceptable organ can be utilized, including donated tissues — such as corneas, bone, skin and heart valves — which can be put to use despite advancing age in the donor.

The families or estates of the donors are charged nothing. (The recipients pay the costs of obtaining the organs.)

Any reader who is interested in giving the gift of life should sign an organ donor form. To obtain one, write to: The Living Bank, P.O. Box 6725, Houston, Texas 77265. No self-addressed, stamped envelope is necessary, but because this organization depends on donations to exist, a dollar or two would be appreciated. The Living Bank is a national organ and tissue donor registry.

Club News

HIGHLAND HOBBY CLUB
The Highland Hobby Club met recently with Elsie Nail as hostess for a business meeting conducted by Ferline Calvert, vice president.

The minutes and treasury report were given by Marilyn Kirkwood. Old business was a report on a Hobo Supper and a white elephant gift sale to be held within the club at a future date.

New business included plans to have a Christmas salad supper and to choose a name from the Angel Tree for Christmas.

Refreshments were served to six members. Jewel Holmes won the door prize. Pot holders were presented to the hostess.

The December meeting will be a salad supper with Marilyn Kirkwood as hostess.

MAGIC PLAINS ABWA
The Magic Plains Chapter of the American Business Woman's Association met recently at the Sirloin Stockade with 11 members and one guest present.

Evelyn Boyd gave the invocation. After introductions, Jamie Garren, director of the Sunshine House, gave a program on the agency of the Texas Panhandle Mental Health Association.

Francis Guthrie was installed as a new member. She works as purchasing agent for Coronado Hospital.

The club will have a Christmas party after the December meeting at Pat Winkleblack's house. Activity will include a cookie or candy exchange, with members asked to bring the recipes along with the goodies.

A Christmas project is planned for the Sunshine House, with members asked to bring those items at the next meeting.

Janie Morris and Pat Winkleblack gave a report on the progress of the style show planned for the spring. A contribution was made to the birthday jar for the month of November.

Winkleblack will have charge of plans for an entry in the Christmas parade.

Mildred Fulton, Jan Allen and Wynona Seeley won the door prizes provided by Estelle Malone and Ellen Malone.

GRAY COUNTY FCE CLUBS
The Gray County Family and Community Education Clubs sponsored a Best Chocolate Cake in Gray County Contest and recently released the recipe. Judges were Dorothy Miller, Jim Osborne and Mae Williams.

Winners were: First place, Pam Millican, who received a $20 gift certificate from Wal-Mart; second place, Judy Sutton, who received a $10 gift certificate from Coney Island; and third place, Chris Kirkpatrick, who received a gift from The Copper Kitchen.

The winning recipe is as follows:
Inside Out Chocolate

Chip Bundt Cake
1 pkg. (5.9 oz.) chocolate instant pudding mix

1 pkg. (2 layer size) devil's food cake mix

1 pkg. (12 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate chips

1 3/4 cups milk

2 eggs

Combine pudding mix, cake mix, chips, milk and eggs in a bowl. Mix by hand until well blended. Pour into a greased and floured 12-cup bundt pan. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 50-55 minutes, or until cake springs back when lightly pressed. Do not over bake.

Cool 15 minutes in pan, then remove from pan and continue cooling on rack.

The next FCE Clubs meeting will be held in January.

PRECEPTOR THETA IOTA
Preceptor Theta Iota met recently at the Lovett Memorial Library auditorium for the annual couples Thanksgiving social, with food furnished by the Social Committee and members.

Those in attendance for the evening of food and fun were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Carlson, Don Carpenter, Robert Broggin, Robert Benyshek, Jim Howell, Gene Sewell, Robert Sailor, Charlie Cross and Price Smith, and one guest, Regina Jordan.

In a second November meeting, Preceptor Theta Iota met in the home of Jan Chambers for a business meeting, with Ann Franklin presiding.

Afterwards, a silent auction was held, with the proceeds going to a service project. This year's service project includes a girl and boy from the Angel Tree and the Special Olympics banquet.

The next meeting will be Nov. 28 at the home of Nancy Broggin.

PROGRESSIVE CLUB, FCE
The Progressive Club of the Family and Community Education Clubs met recently in the home of Beulah Terrell.

Helene Hogan opened the meeting with a Thanksgiving poem, "A Thankful Heart." Roll call was answered with "Something Money Can't Buy."

Terrell gave the council report. Ruth Barrett was nominated as woman of the year and will be recognized at the annual council Christmas party in December.

Donna Brauchi, Gray County Extension agent, presented the program on "Modify Recipes to Meet Dietary Guidelines."

Pauline Dorman won the door prize. Eleven members and the county extension agent were present.

The next meeting will be at 11:30 a.m. Dec. 8 at Chaney's for a dutch-treat luncheon and gift exchange Christmas party.

Kody Martin, Conoco volunteer, shows students at Austin Elementary the proper procedures for evacuating a house in an emergency situation. Conoco recently had a safe-house which is a replica of a two-story house, at the school. The house had theatrical smoke that set off smoke alarms and allowed the children to experience as close as possible to what a real fire in their house would be like and what to do. Conoco, along with the Pampa Fire Department, brought the demonstration to the school to help teach children fire safety in the home by teaching the basic reactions to a fire in the home. Conoco plans to do other demonstrations at local and area schools. (Pampa News photo by Melinda Martinez)

Interviewing with certain style

NEW YORK (AP) — Most people who want the job will take whatever advice they can get to get it. Recruiting consultants stress that job candidates not overlook the importance of donning the appropriate attire for an interview.

To help recent college graduates and others who will be interviewing this year, Dress Barn representatives offer the following tips about how women should dress for the occasion: —A suit is a must for interviewing for executive positions. While pantsuits are acceptable to wear to work, a skirt suit is better for interviews.

—Skirt length should be conservative enough to accommodate any profession. Just above or below the knee is best. Avoid patterned hosiery.

—While short sleeves on a shirt or jacket may be appropriate in some instances, long sleeves are better and sleeveless is definitely unacceptable.

—Choosing the right color to wear can be tricky. The more creative the field, the more latitude you have. Dark color suits, such as gray, navy or black, are best for positions in banking or law, while marketing or sales positions may accommodate brighter colors. Extremes of bright colors should be avoided.

—Avoid cheap and unprofessional fabrics that wrinkle easily or cling to you.

—Accessories should be kept conservative.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL

PAMPA — At the McDonald's Classic, the Pampa Harvesters quickly established themselves as one of Class 4A's top teams.

The Harvesters bludgeoned two Class 5A teams, Abilene High and Midland Lee, over the weekend to jump off to a 2-0 start in the 1994-95 basketball season.

Pampa certainly didn't play like it was the season opener, shooting 59 percent from the floor in routing Abilene High Friday night in the Texan Dome at Levelland. Pampa's defense limited the Eagles to just 34 percent shooting. The defense was even better in the second contest on Saturday as the Harvesters held Midland Lee to just 21 percent.

"We played very good defense both games," said Pampa assistant coach John Darnell. "It was a very good team defensive effort."

It was also a very good team offensive effort. Four players, led by junior guard Rayford Young's 20 points, scored 10 points or better against Abilene High.

Young drilled 25 points against Midland Lee and again four players scored in double digits.

The Harvesters, ranked No. 7 in the state by the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches, hosts Palo Duro at 7:30 Tuesday night in the home opener.

ALTUS, OKLA. — Pampa's Lady Harvesters lost to Altus, Okla., 61-30, Saturday night.

Shay Fisher led Altus in scoring with 12 points and Serenity King led Pampa, also with 12.

Pampa hosts Palo Duro Tuesday night in McNeely Fieldhouse.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

CLARENDON — Wheeler shut down previously unbeaten Spur for three quarters enroute to a 14-8 win last Friday night in a Class 1A area playoff game.

Wheeler advanced to play Wink in regional action at 7:30 Friday night in Levelland.

Wheeler led 7-0 at halftime on a 1-yard run by Andy Francis in the second quarter. The Mustangs pushed the lead to 14-0 in the third quarter on a 5-yard run by Jarrod Ledbetter.

Spur scored with 4:03 left in the game on a 19-yard run by Michael Kelly.

Francis led the Mustangs in rushing with 49 yards on a dozen carries while Ledbetter added 40 yards on 12 attempts.

Wheeler improved to 8-4 on the season while Spur closes its season at 10-1.

Wink (11-1) beat Plains, 26-10, last Friday night.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Departing Texas A&M seniors didn't get the title but they did get some records.

The 23 seniors who played their final game for No. 8 Texas A&M on Saturday, finished their careers with a 29-0-1 record in Southwest Conference games and 42 total victories to become the winningest class in league history.

"It's been good to show the world that this team has a lot of character," senior linebacker Antonio Armstrong said. "This year has been full of conflict and bad circumstances but that makes us closer."

The Aggies (10-0-1, 6-0-1 in SWC games) complete their first unbeaten season since 1956 (9-0-1) but won't get to accept their fourth straight SWC trophy because they are on NCAA probation and can't play in the Cotton Bowl.

The Aggies beat Texas Christian 34-17 Saturday to remain unbeaten.

"Our goal at the beginning of the season was to finish undefeated and send the second best team to the Cotton Bowl," said junior cornerback Ray Mickens. "We know whoever goes to the Cotton Bowl, we beat them."

Their record became their trophy.

"We can't say we are the SWC champs, but years from now we can look back and say we were 10-0-1," senior linebacker Reggie Graham said. "As far as we're concerned, we're the champions."

There was little doubt after the third quarter that the Aggie seniors would go into the record books. Corey Pullig's 25-yard touchdown pass to senior Chris Sanders gave the Aggies a 24-10 lead.

Then, the Aggies' "Wrecking Crew" defense took over and shut down the Horned Frogs, trying to beat the Aggies for the first time in 22 years and keep alive hopes of playing in the Cotton Bowl for the first time since 1959.

"Everybody doubted us," said Sanders, a junior. "But we went out week after week and showed what A&M is all about. In my heart, I feel we have four SWC championships but on paper it will be three."

Rodney Thomas closed out his career by scoring his 45th career touchdown, tying him with Darren Lewis for the A&M record.

"We've done a lot of winning around here," Thomas said. "The Cotton Bowl is a reward. The reward also is winning."

The only blemish on the seniors' record was a 21-21 tie with Southern Methodist this season.

Their 42 victories broke the record of 41 victories by the 1993 Aggie seniors. They became the first senior group to have four 10-victory seasons, winning all 24 games they played on Kyle Field.

"For us, winning became a tradition, we don't know anything else but winning," Graham said.

TENNIS

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Top-ranked Pete Sampras survived a barrage of aces and beat Boris Becker 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4 Sunday, winning his second IBM-ATP Tour World Championship title.

Sampras, who also won in 1991, became the first two-time champion since the inception of the four-tournament event in 1990.

"This ends the year on a great note," he said. Sampras earned $1.225 million for his victory over Becker, who rose two places to No. 3 in the rankings despite the loss. Sampras increased his 1994 winnings to $3,607,812.

Sampras lost his serve only once, in the first set. Once he broke Becker in the second set, he took command of the match.

The critical moment came in the sixth game, when Becker served five double-faults and suffered his first break.

"I can't explain what happened," Becker said. "I lost my touch for five minutes and he took advantage of the opportunity."

Red Raiders move closer to Cotton Bowl

By JAIME ARON
AP Sports Writer

Another week, another step closer to the Cotton Bowl for Texas Tech.

The Red Raiders beat Houston 34-0 on Saturday, meaning they can capture their first Southwest Conference title as soon as Thanksgiving if Texas beats Baylor.

Going into the final week of the regular season, only Texas Tech and Baylor remain as possible hosts for the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 2 in Dallas, since No. 8 Texas A&M (6-0-1) is on probation and ineligible for the title.

Baylor can go to the Cotton Bowl only by beating Texas on Thursday, combined with a Tech loss to Texas Christian on Friday in Fort Worth. If the Bears lose to Texas, the Cotton Bowl berth belongs to the Raiders regardless how they do against TCU.

Both Baylor and Tech have 4-2 SWC records, while Texas,

Texas Christian and Rice are 3-3.

But Tech has the edge on any tie-breaker that would apply. In case of a two-way tie with Baylor, Tech has its 38-7 victory over the Bears in their head-to-head meeting. In case of a multi-team tie, Tech would go via the "last appearance" tie-breaker, since the Red Raiders have never represented the SWC in the Cotton Bowl.

The Red Raiders (6-4, 4-2 Southwest Conference) have known since Saturday a week ago that they were in control of their destiny, and they came out firing against Houston. The victory was their first shutout of the year.

"The kids did a good job considering what they heard all week," Tech coach Spike Dykes said. "Their concentration was excellent. They have done a good job of keeping everything in perspective. This team is very unique."

"This team has a little something that is different. Unselfishness, work ethic and practice hard — all of those things describe them. I am proud they have given themselves the opportunity they now have Friday."

TCU's 34-17 loss Saturday to Texas A&M eliminated the Horned Frogs from Cotton contention.

The Aggies (10-0-1) would've won the conference for a fourth straight year had it not been under NCAA sanctions. Nonetheless, A&M marched through the SWC season unbeaten for the first time in 38 years.

The 23 Aggie seniors became the winningest class in SWC history with 42 victories overall and a 29-0-1 SWC record. The only blemish was a 21-21 tie with SMU.

"I couldn't be more proud of these seniors," Slocum said.

In another game Saturday, Rice was a 29-17 loser to Navy. The Owls, who were in the driver's seat to go to the Cotton Bowl a few weeks ago, lost their chance for a winning season or a bowl by falling to 4-6. To play in a bowl, a team must have at least six victories.

Baylor already has seven victories, and Texas, TCU and Texas Tech already have six, which means all will be able to accept invitations elsewhere if the Cotton Bowl isn't possible.

Had Rice won Saturday, then defeated Houston next week, the Owls would've had the six victories that are required to go to a bowl.

Baylor and Texas were off Saturday. The two meet Thursday in a nationally televised game that at one time was expected to determine the conference winner.

Instead, it will be major exposure for a dying league that will have a two-loss champion for the second time in its 80-year history and could have a winner with three losses for the first time.

But Texas Tech, with a freshman quarterback, a freshman running back and several freshmen receivers, is on a roll. Since losing back-to-back games to Texas A&M (21-17) and Rice (24-21) to fall to 2-4 at midseason, the Raiders have gone 4-0 while outscoring their opponents 144-23. They rolled by Baylor 38-7, Texas 33-9, Southwest Louisiana 39-7 and Houston 34-0.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES

— Texas at Baylor: Bears need to win the Thanksgiving Day game, then hope for a TCU upset.

— Texas Tech at TCU: Tech goes to Cotton Bowl with victory; Horned Frogs playing for the attention of lesser bowls.

— Rice at Houston: Victor wins city championship, little else.

— Texas A&M (10-0-1) and SMU (1-9-1) have completed their season.

Oilers' offense may have some surprises for Giants

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — New York Giants coach Dan Reeves has a dilemma for Monday night's game against the Houston Oilers: he doesn't know whether to prepare for the run-and-shoot offense of former coach Jack Pardee or if new coach Jeff Fisher will come up with something different.

Assistant coach Kevin Gilbride, who was in charge of the Oilers' offense, was fired along with Pardee last week, and Dick Coury has taken over the game-day play-calling.

That's what has Reeves concerned.

"The thing that's unusual about this is when they make a coaching change during the season, the (rest of the) staff usually stays intact," Reeves said. "Since they let Kevin go too, there's an uncertainty about their offense and what they'll do."

The Giants (3-7) haven't had much success when they've known what to expect from the opposition. They've lost seven straight games after winning their first three.

They've struggled offensively. After being benched for one game, Dave Brown has returned to the starting quarterback job for the Giants, who are ranked last in the NFL in total offense.

The Oilers (1-9) also are experiencing a season of futility. They have lost six straight.

At least, Reeves knows the Oilers will still be aligned defensively in the 46 formation that Buddy Ryan installed last year before leaving to become coach of the Arizona Cardinals.

It could be a good time to play the Oilers since the Giants are facing the 46 for the second straight week, having lost to the Cardinals 10-9 last Sunday.

"I don't know if there's ever a good time to face anybody when you've lost seven in a row," Reeves said. "It's the same type of defensive alignment, but the philosophy within it is a little different."

"They (the Oilers) blitz a little more even than Arizona. ... They don't mind coming after you."

The Giants are 4-0 against the Oilers, but Houston is coming off its best offensive output in last week's 34-31 loss to Cincinnati.

However, Coury and Gilbride have different philosophies. Tight end Pat Carter can expect to play more in the passing phase of the Oilers offense, which will move slowly away from the run-and-shoot.

How will Coury approach his Oilers play-calling debut?

"I'll pray a lot," he said. "We're just going to keep it simple but try to be intelligent. We want to make sure that we don't put too much in and confuse our players."

Both defenses have played much better than their offenses.

The Oilers are tied for eighth in the NFL in total defense and rank fifth in pass defense. Their problem has been stopping the run. They rank 21st against the run.

"We have to run the ball and establish that early," Brown said. "The key to beating this team is to hold your own against the blitz and hopefully get a big play or two against it."

Billy Joe Tolleriver will be the Oilers' starting quarterback. He's the third starter at the position this season, following Cody Carlson and Bucky Richardson.

"This is basically the offense we ran when I was with the Chargers," Tolleriver said. "I'm comfortable with the run-and-shoot too. We just have to make it work."

Coaches name District 1-1A Six-Man Team

Two players off Samnorwood's District 1-1A champions have been named to the 1994 six-man all-district football team.

Samnorwood's Marlon Bryant was named to the first-team offense at running back and to the first-team defense at linebacker. Teammate Deric Waters was named to the first-defense at line-

Miami's Steven Browning was named first-team quarterback along with Ty Gillespie of Follett. Tommy Green of Lefors was a first-team all-district choice on both offense and defense. He was also named to the first-team at punter. Other first-team picks from Lefors were Tommy Wyatt, offense; Dusty Helfer and Keith Franks, defense.

Miami lineman Nick Bryant was named to the first-team defense.

District runnerup Follett had four players named to the first-team all-district team.

The all-district players were selected by the district coaches.

Colts slip by Bengals, 17-13

CINCINNATI (AP) — Not even Jeff Blake could keep the Indianapolis Colts from their near-annual win at Riverfront Stadium.

Don Majkowski, playing with a torn ligament in the thumb of his passing hand, threw an 8-yard touchdown pass to Sean Dawkins with 1:54 left to give the Colts a 17-13 victory Sunday over the Cincinnati Bengals.

The Colts (5-6) took away Blake's deep passing all game and Ray Buchanan intercepted him in the end zone with 45 seconds left to seal their fifth victory at Riverfront in the last six years.

Blake, playing on a bruised left ankle, was 21-of-37 for 207 yards, by far his least-productive game in four starts for the Bengals (2-9). But it appeared he would keep their momentum rolling when he led them on a nearly nine-minute drive in the third quarter that culminated with a 15-yard touchdown pass to Damay Scott and a 13-7 lead.

The Colts managed to pull it out despite an injured quarterback and a season-worst game by rookie Marshall Faulk, who was held to just 28 yards on 16 carries.

Dean Biasucci kicked a 35-yard field goal with 6:31 left, and the Colts sacked Blake and forced a punt. Majkowski, who injured the thumb two weeks ago, came back onto the field and threw his best passes of the game.

Injury-riddled Cowboys down Redskins

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) — There are reasons no team has ever won three consecutive Super Bowls. The Dallas Cowboys just got hit with two of them.

The NFL champions lost two quarterbacks in one game Sunday in a damaging 31-7 victory over the Washington Redskins.

Both Troy Aikman and Rodney Peete were sidelined with injuries that likely will keep them from playing against Green Bay on Thanksgiving for the short term and, perhaps, for weeks in the long term.

"We've been through all this before," running back Emmitt Smith said. "But as long as we execute well, it doesn't matter who our quarterback is. Obviously, we'll miss Troy. We'll just have to play our best game."

Aikman, playing with a sore passing thumb and a broken nose, went down with a medial collateral ligament sprain of the left knee.

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said orthopedic surgeon Dr. Robert Vandermeer told him it could take three to four weeks for Aikman to recover.

The last time Aikman had a sprained knee was in 1991, and he missed five games. Aikman said Sunday this injury is worse, but added that he could have returned to play sooner than he did in 1991.

"It's hard for me to say just how much time I'll miss, but it certainly looks like it will be tough for me to play Thursday," Aikman said. "I'm targeting Philadelphia (on Dec. 4) for a possible return, but we're going to have to wait and see how things progress."

Today, on the morning of his 28th birthday, Aikman reported that his knee was "stiff and sore."

"I plan to keep it on ice and give it some whirlpool time," he said. "I'll let my body dictate when I return."

Trainer Kevin O'Neill on Sunday gave Aikman "a very small chance" of playing Thursday.

Peete sprained the thumb on his passing hand and was replaced by third-stringer Jason Garrett. Peete was scheduled to see a hand specialist today.

Peete threw a touchdown pass and Smith ran for two TDs as Dallas, smarting from a 21-14 loss to San Francisco last week, notched its 13th consecutive NFC East victory. Smith rushed for 85 yards and went over 1,000 for the fourth consecutive season. He has 1,074.

Wide receiver Michael Irvin said the Cowboys have been bedeviled by injuries since the season started, including one sustained in a car accident by starting offensive tackle Erik Williams that will keep him out for the season.

"It's been a strange year," Irvin said. "It's been one thing after another for us. This has been the toughest season with all the distractions and hurdles. Any time you lose a guy like Troy, it's going to be a struggle."

Aikman was hurt in the second quarter when he was tackled around the knees by linebacker Ken Harvey. Aikman called timeout, limped to the sidelines, then accompanied Cowboys doctors to the locker room. Wearing a knee brace,

"It's ugly for the Cowboys right now," said guard Nate Newton, who also was hurt. "It's an epidemic."

John Frieser, who began the season as Washington's No. 1 quarterback, replaced Gus Aikman was taken to a hospital for an MRI. He hit 8-of-13 passes for 87 yards before getting hurt.

After the injury, Peete threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Harper, giving Dallas a 24-7 half-time lead. Kevin Williams then dashed 83 yards on a punt return for a touchdown as Washington's record dipped to 2-9.

Peete jammed his thumb in the third period when hit by defensive end Dexter Nottage. Peete could barely grip the ball after the injury, but X-rays of the thumb were negative.

"I'll know more about my injury tomorrow," Peete said Sunday. "I'm worried about the ligament. I want to play Thursday. I just hope I can."

O'Neill wasn't so sure. "Rodney could possibly have significant ligament damage," O'Neill said. "We'll have to wait and see. He has an appointment with a thumb specialist in the morning."

The Cowboys (9-2) also lost guard Derek Kennard with a toe injury and linebacker Godfrey Myles with a knee injury during the game.

Ferrotte and hit Desmond Howard with a 19-yard touchdown pass for the Redskins' only score.

Heath Shuler also played for the Redskins, meaning six quarterbacks appeared in the game. "Who will our quarterback be next week?" Washington coach Norv Turner said. "That's a good question. We'll make a decision next week. We didn't play well today. We were out of it early. Gus didn't have a good day."

Ferrotte said he didn't understand why he got the hook.

"I was taken out early, and I'm not sure what the reason was," he said. "I don't have any say about who's going to be quarterbacking next week."

It was the first time Dallas swept Washington in their annual two-game series in 10 years. The Cowboys beat the Redskins 34-7 earlier this season.

Jones said the Cowboys will launch a search for potential backup quarterbacks. "We'll look for quarterbacks throughout the league, but for Thanksgiving we'll go with what we've got," Jones said.

Longtime losers

PRAIRIE VIEW, Texas (AP) — Prairie View A&M's fourth straight winless season has left the Panthers with a 46-game losing streak, the longest in NCAA Division I-AA history.

Unless the Panthers win one of their first five games next season, they will break the NCAA all-division record of 50 straight losses set by Macalester (Minn.) between 1974-79.

Before then, however, there's a chance the school might drop football. It's even more seriously considering moving to a lower class.

"I think to continue in Division I is cheating the kids, not giving them a chance," coach Ron Beard said after Saturday's season-ending 48-6 loss to Alabama-Birmingham. "It's like running in a car race where everybody else has hot rods while you just have an old chunker."

Beard considers it unlikely that football will be dropped. "I'm pretty sure the program will continue," he said. "But the administration is going to have to address the future and decide which way they want to go."

"The players don't want to end this season. They wished they had one more game ..."

Sixteen seniors will leave the team. One senior, Alphonse Provo, played in the last 44 losses. He hopes the school remains in I-AA.

"I think we can continue on this level," he said. "It just takes pride and keeping your head up. If you do that, anything can happen."

But it was more of the same Saturday.

Prairie View trailed only 7-0 after the first quarter, then the Panthers were behind 28-0 at halftime and 35-0 before scoring their only touchdown on a 26-yard pass from Reginald Prudhomme to Torrance Brooks.

Alabama-Birmingham showed no mercy in winning its sixth straight game to finish the season 7-4.
