NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Thousands were without electricity Saturday after tornadoes ripped through central Tennessee and part of Alabama, killing one person and destroying or damaging more than 200 homes and businesses.

Barfield, a tiny community just southeast of Nashville, was hardest hit by the twisters and thunderstorms that rolled through on Friday evening.

Up to 8,000 customers in Tennessee were still without electricity Saturday, down from 20,000 immediately after the storm, utilities said.

The only fatality was a retired physician killed in Tuscaloosa, Ala., when a tree limb crashed into the windshield of a pickup truck he was riding in.

In Tennessee, 18 people were taken to hospitals but none of their injuries were life-threatening.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department says it is dropping its defense of a federal law that provides Medicare and Medicaid payments to Christian Science care-givers because it believes the law is unconstitutional.

In a rare move, Attorney General Janet Reno told the Senate legal counsel the law appears to run afoul of the Constitution's ban on government establishment of religion because it provides federal funds for "activities infused with religious content."

A federal judge in Minnesota ruled last August that the Medicare and Medicaid payments, allowed since the mid-1960s, violate the constitutional separation of church and state.

House leaders trying to repair ethics system

WASHINGTON (AP) — House leaders want to fix an ethics system battered by partisan politics and almost destroyed in the final days of the case against Speaker Newt Gingrich.

One change under discussion: make permanent the type of cost assessment penalty levied against the speaker for people who mislead the committee or who file frivolous complaints.

Another: a bipartisan agreement barring election campaign attacks against ethics committee members over the handling of an investigation.

Rep. Dick Armey of Texas, the Republican floor leader, and House Democratic Leader Dick Gephardt of Missouri are expected to name a bipartisan ethics task force next month. Creating such a group would bring yawns in normal times, but it has great significance now.

That's because neither party wants a repeat of partisan brawls within the House ethics committee such as this month's brouhaha surrounding the schedule for wrapping up the Gingrich case.

Nor does anyone want future ethics cases to follow the Gingrich investigation into the political arena, where an investigation's merits are fought out on the House floor and in news conferences and election campaigns.

"I'm hoping we're on the other foot now, where we're saying we narrowly avoided an institutional black eye," said Rep. Porter Goss, R-Fla. Like most members of the 10-member panel, Goss just finished his unpleasant tour of duty.

Goss decried the "spectacle" that sent out the message: "Congress, which is constitutionally supposed to police itself, cannot do the job."

Rep. Nancy Johnson, R-Conn., who as committee chairwoman took the brunt of the Democratic attacks, said, "If partisan conflict intensifies, the ethics system 'will not be able to survive.'"

Gingrich said last week he hasn't decided how to pay his $300,000 financial penalty, assessed for misleading statements that caused the committee extra work and expense.

As he contemplates whether to use his personal funds, lawmakers are thinking about making cost-assessment penalties a permanent sanction — especially for House members and outside groups who file frivolous complaints.

The reimbursement would be considered different from a fine, an existing penalty reserved for cases of improper personal gain.

The assessment would be aimed at politically inspired or retaliatory complaints, often with nothing backing up claims beyond a newspaper article that may be from a publication associated with a political cause.

"The ethics committee should have the option to make a finding that the complaint was filed frivolously," said Rep. Steve Schiff, R-N.M., who is expected to continue on the committee.

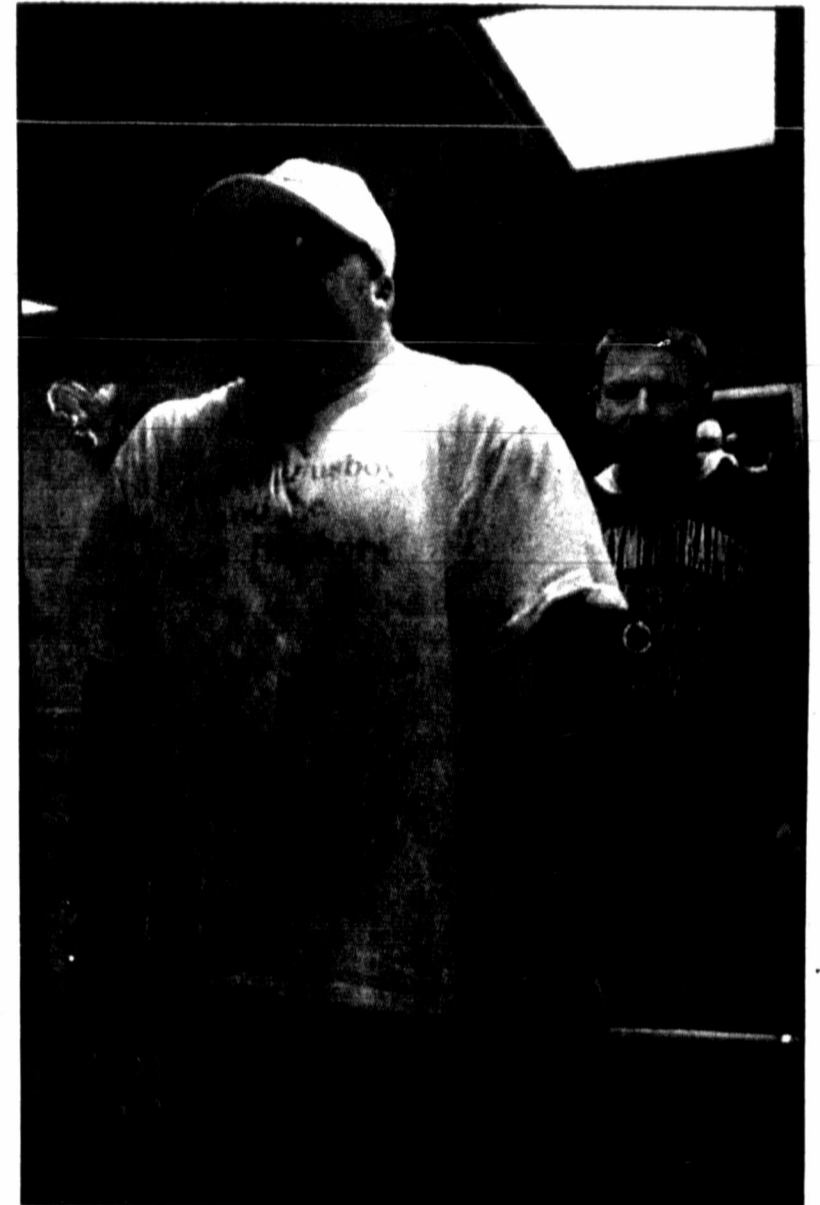

"The fact that a complaint was dismissed should not by itself have a penalty," he said. "A frivolous complaint has no sound basis to file it. It would be just to embarrass the member who was targeted."

Appearing at a series of town hall meetings Saturday in his Georgia district, Gingrich said: "We are going to ask the House to adopt a rule that says if, as (Democratic whip) David Bonior has, (you) filed lots and lots of false charges, than you ought to pay both the House and the person you filed against. And if the committee finds that you have maliciously, deliberately filed false charges, you should pay triple damages to the taxpayer."

Laura Nichols, spokeswoman for Gephardt, said Democrats believe "the volume of frivolous complaints is troubling, but we don't want it to impede or intimidate people" with legitimate complaints.

"We need to find a balance," she said.

Restoring the '55 Mercury

Jimmy Clark of the Walnut Creek division checks out the 1955 Mercury he and his son Layne have been restoring, including a new paint job and interior work trying to match the original colors. Clark purchased the car in Houston two months before he got out of the Army in July 1958. He and his wife Sharon had their first date in the car. The car had 32,000 miles when he bought it, and there are approximately 142,000 miles on it now. Clark said he and Sharon might take the car on a second honeymoon for their 40th anniversary, which will be in three years.

ACS chapter to hold Relay For Life organizational meeting

An organizational meeting to plan the American Cancer Society's Relay For Life fund raiser in Pampa will be held at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 28, at Shepard's Crook Nursing Agency, 2225 Perryton Parkway.

Those wanting to serve as committee members or team captains for the event sponsored by the Gray County Chapter ACS are encouraged to attend this meeting, according to Pam Dalton, president of the local chapter.

The Relay For Life will involve teams of 10 to 12 members who will walk or run around the track at the Pampa High School stadium for a 24-hour period on May 16-17 to raise funds for the American Cancer Society through sponsorships.

During the event, someone from each of the teams has to be on the track for the entire 24-hour period, either running or walking around the track in relay style for 24 hours. Team members will switch off during the period. Participants can camp out around the track, and when they aren't taking their turn on the track, they can take part in family fun activities.

"The key thing is it's family oriented," Dalton said. "You can bring your kids out there," with all kinds of activities planned for the occasion.

Music, entertainment and other activities will be provided during the entire 24-hour Relay For Life event, with the whole family, friends and co-workers being invited to attend.

"Approximately 25 10-person teams are being sought to participate in the event," Dalton said. "Anybody can form teams, including families, friends, businesses, churches, neighborhood groups, clubs and organizations."

Each team member is responsible for raising a minimum of $50 in sponsorship money to qualify for a Relay For Life T-shirt. Additional prizes are available for those raising $100 or more.

"Relay For Life is as much an awareness raiser about progress against cancer as it is a fund raiser," Dalton said. "Many of the participants will be people who have been cured of cancer themselves. Their involvement is proof of the progress that has been made not only in cancer cure rates, but in the quality of life following cancer treatment."

The Relay For Life will be held from 6 p.m. Friday, May 16, through 6 p.m. Saturday, May 17.

The first lap of Relay For Life will be designated as the Cancer Survivors' Walk, said Chris Hurt, field representative for the American Cancer Society, adding that cancer survivors will be invited to make the first lap around the track.

At dusk, relay participants will participate in a very special candle-lighting ceremony, Hurt said, with an accompanying luminary service. Luminaria in memory of someone who has lost their life to cancer, or to honor someone who has survived, will be placed around the track.

Then, Relay participants will continue to walk or run around the track until the 24-hour period has concluded.

Since all funds will be collected before the Relay, all participants need to do when the Relay is over is to tell their friends what a great time they had and then start forming a team for next year, Hurt said.

Dalton said the main thing for now is to form committees and designate team captains to begin preparing for the event.

Those interested in helping with the fund raiser should attend Tuesday's meeting to receive information. Those not able to attend the meeting but still wishing to help with the Relay For Life, either as a team member or sponsor, or to obtain more information, may contact Pam Dalton at 665-0356.

Those wishing to contribute to the Relay For Life fund raiser may mail their contributions to the American Cancer Society Office, 3915 Bell Street, Amarillo, TX 79109. Checks or money orders should be made payable to American Cancer Society.

The Golden Nail Awards are sponsored by the Arts Committee of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

Nominations are invited from individuals as well as organizations. Nomination forms are available at the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce office, 1000 S. of the Golden Nail Awards is to honor those whose financial, in-kind and volunteer contributions to the fine arts in Amarillo and the Panhandle area are of such magnitude that the impact on the arts is significant.

The Golden Nail Award categories include the Summit, Individual, Business, Foundation and Distinguished Volunteer. Each year, the Summit Award goes to an individual for lifelong support to the arts. Special awards are presented when warranted.

Golden Touch Awards are also presented for innovative ideas in the arts events and area activities. ACT I of Pampa received a Golden Touch Award in 1996.

Hail a cab, catch a bus ... or take a bike?

AUSTIN (AP) - Single-occupant cars are more prevalent than yellow cabs in this city. Now a nonprofit bicycle shop wants to make yellow bikes a preferred mode of public transportation.

The Yellow Bike Project kicked off Saturday with two dozen community bikes, completely covered in bright yellow paint, pressed into service as free transportation for commuters in Central Austin.

"It's free public transportation in the true sense of the word," said John Thoms, a project volunteer. "They're free to ride, but not to hide."

Thoms and Dave Barker, of the nonprofit organization Bikes not Bombs, worked together to acquire 24 bicycles in the last six months to start the program Thoms and a friend discovered in Madison, Wis.

The pair patterned the Yellow Bike Project after Madison's Red Bike program.

Portland, Ore. has what's believed to be the first community bike program in the nation - following the lead of European cities. Other cities with programs include Charleston, S.C., Misoula, Mont., Orlando, Fla., Denver and Boulder, Colo.

The Austin program is like a yellow cab service without the driver - or the fare. A person can ride a yellow bike anywhere, but once reaching the destination the bike is to be placed in an open area - unlocked.

"Like a cab, the bicycle might not wait around for its last rider. "There's always that risk," said Thoms. "But if people continue giving support, then you'll only have to walk a block or so and there will be another one."

The program began Saturday at Wheatville Co-op, a local grocery store in central Austin just blocks from the University of Texas. Randy Ramirez and friend Colleen Morton picked up the first bikes.

"I heard about it on the radio earlier in the week and I thought it would be a fun thing to do," Ramirez said.

Lawmakers call for water conservation plans

AUSTIN (AP) — Automatic sprinklers on the Capitol's new lawn activate right on schedule, regardless of whether the grass already has been soaked by morning dew and a light drizzle.

That has raised questions about the state's role in conserving water at a time when many state lawmakers have made a priority of persuading local governments and Texans to better manage their supplies.

After questions from the Fort Worth Star-Telegram last week, the State Preservation Board said it will install sensors in the Capitol's south lawn to keep sprinklers from operating when it rains.

underground extension, opened several years ago, have many water conservation measures, the newspaper reported Saturday.

There are no automatic shut-offs on water faucets at the Capitol and the extension, and there are few low-flow toilets in the lavatories.

Those kinds of water conservation measures have been incorporated into the ongoing remodeling of the Sam Houston Building, a state office building adjacent to the Capitol.

In 1996, roughly 7.8 million gallons of water were used at the Capitol and the extension, according to state General Service Administration records.

Past and present state officials say they will do what they can to conserve water at the Capitol, but they acknowledge it will be difficult now that the construction and remodeling are completed.

Water conservation, they say, was barely mentioned when the restoration work was planned.

"I don't remember any in-depth discussion on water conservation," said Dealey Herndon, who as executive director of the State Preservation Board from 1991 to 1995 directed the Capitol restoration project.

"I doubt you could change it now," she said. "You'd have to tear out the finished wood and go through plaster walls. Maybe when the Capitol is

Key provisions of water bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Key provisions of water management legislation filed by Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson:

- Local water districts, river authorities and municipalities wouldn't be able to qualify for state grants, loans or permits without enacting a drought management plan.
- Leaves intact the state's "right to capture" law, which allows property owners to pump as much water as they want from their property, regardless of how it affects adjoining property owners.
- Leaves water use limits up to local governments.
- Calls on the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission to use increased discretion in approving interbasin transfers — the pumping of water from one area to another.
- Imposes increased penalties on those who pump water that doesn't rightfully belong to them. The fines would increase from $1,000 to $10,000 a day.

remodeled in another 25 years, it could be done then."

In 1991, the state adopted water-saving performance standards, but the renovation designs already were in the works.

Allen McCree, hired to draw plans for the project in 1988, said more attention was paid to saving energy and meeting requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act than to conserving water.

Office lights governed by adjustable motion detectors turn off when people leave a room. Ventilation fans in parking garages run only when sensors detect high carbon monoxide levels.

"Water conservation was never emphasized," McCree said. "It may have been one of the things that slipped through the cracks."

Museum to hold Bolo Ball

CANYON — The fourth annual Bolo Ball will be Saturday, Feb. 1, from 7:30-11:30 p.m. at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon. Dancing, Texas size hors d'oeuvres and an opportunity to add to your personal art collection at the silent auction will highlight the evening.

Entertainment will be provided by the Panhandle's own Young Country with a unique blend of current, classic country and country rock. Their instrumentation, vocals and harmonies cover all types of music.

Through the years Young Country has performed with such top artists as Hal Ketchum, Kathy Mattea, Steve Wariner, Rie Trevino, Lee Greenwood, Holly Dunn, Michelle Wright, Ricky Skaggs, Davis Daniels, Rona Reeves, Ricochet and the legendary Bo Diddley.

Proceeds from the annual event will allow the Museum to continue its worthwhile efforts in educational activities, ranging from in-house school tours to adult lectures.

Tickets prices are $50 per individual, $100 per couple, $125 for patron single, $250 for patron couple, $750 for a patron table of six, and $1,000 for a corporate table of eight. Those who purchase corporate tables, patron tables, patron couple and patron single tickets will have preferred reserved seating.

"The success of Bolo Ball, our annual fund raiser, is important not only to the Museum but also to the entire region. Our underwriters have been great to pledge their support to the Museum so it can continue to serve the Panhandle," said board member and event co-chairman Pam Bibb.

Deadline for reservations is Monday, Jan. 27. For additional information or to make reservations, call (806) 656-2244.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Whose television is it, anyway?

Critics are already complaining that the television industry ratings plan offers only broad, vague categories that don't provide parents enough information to make an informed judgment.

Will a "TV-PG" rating, for example, signal a program of graphic, disturbing violence or just some questionable language? The critics are right: The ratings as proposed don't tell us much.

But this is understandable. No rating system that tries to reduce the sometimes subtle stuff of drama and comedy to the question of whether it is appropriate for the average 14-year-old and who might that be? - can succeed completely in a diverse society.

It ought not to be surprising, moreover, that a plan put together by a recalcitrant industry under considerable political pressure might end up disappointing some of the affected parties.

Are the critics' complaints reason to turn up the pressure on the TV industry by the Federal Communications Commission?

On the contrary: The difficulty of the task, as we've seen by the TV industry's troubled attempt, should finally disabuse ourselves of the notion that a single information system born of political considerations offers an effective shortcut to the always painstaking, seldom easy job of being a decent parent.

As communications media have expanded and assumed a more pervasive role in society, the challenge of exercising informed control or influence over what our children watch on the tube has become more difficult in many ways.

But the basic admonitions still serve: Spend time with your children, pay attention to what they're watching, discuss the issues raised by disturbing shows.

In addition, parents these days can get help from numerous groups that critique TV shows, from the relatively liberal People for the American Way and Children Now to the more conservative Media Research Center and gadfly Bill Bennett. Parents should seek out the advisers who most closely match their values and beliefs.

Given the diversity of guidance available, there's no need for government to mandate yet another rating system - especially in a one-size-fits-all form. And, the specter of government approved entertainment content raised by the mandate is chilling in a society that has always valued freedom of speech.

The FCC should back off trying to tightly define television content - and let a hundred critical flowers bloom.

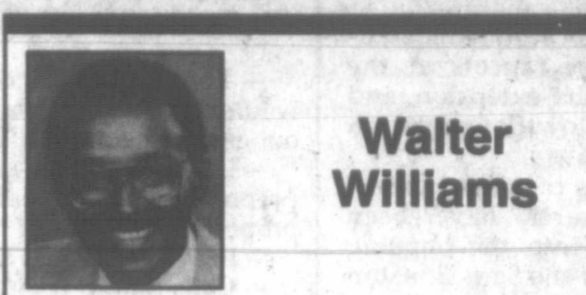

Corporate welfare needs reform

There are few instances where handouts are more flagrantly immoral than those to corporations. Corporate tax cuts don't qualify as handouts unless you believe that companies' earnings belong to the government and that it's a handout when the government allows corporations to keep more of their earnings. Corporate handouts refer to the evil government practice of taking our money and handing it to corporations.

According to Consumer Research (November 1996), a publication of the Washington-based Consumer Research Inc., President Clinton convinced the Mexican government not to "dump" low priced tomatoes in the U.S. market. Clinton doesn't have a monopoly on this practice. Presidents Bush and Reagan and their predecessors committed similar acts of corporate handouts. So let's look at the principle.

The government can give handouts to corporations simply by using the Internal Revenue Service to take our money and have the Commerce Department or Agriculture Department distribute it. The risk of visible handouts is that they can easily invite voter restriction. There's little bottom line difference between the government taking $100 from me to give to XYZ corporation and the government making it possible for XYZ corporation to charge me $100 in higher prices for what I buy.

Clinton was pressured into restricting Mexican tomato imports because of Florida tomato growers' complaints that the U.S. market has been flooded with $800 million worth of lower priced tomatoes. One administration official said Mexico agreed to deal because of Clinton's $12.5 billion Mexico bailout. Another Clinton official said, "The math is simple. Florida has 25 electoral votes, and Mexico doesn't."

During the winter months, Americans consume tomatoes grown mostly in Florida and Mexico. Nine wealthy Florida growers control 70% of the Florida market. They complain that the North American Free Trade Agreement, which lowered tariffs on Mexican tomatoes, threatens to drive them out of business. A more likely explanation for the demand for Mexican tomatoes is their taste and how they are grown. Florida tomatoes are picked green, while Mexican tomatoes are vine-ripened.

There's no case for handouts to Florida tomato growers, but suppose I'm wrong. At least the handouts should be visible and require an act of Congress. Florida's congressional delegation should introduce an "Aid to Dependent Florida Tomato Growers" bill for whatever millions of dollars necessary to ensure the survival of Florida tomato growers. That way, handout costs would be visible; Americans could make a more informed decision about whether we want to make corporate handouts.

We'll never see such a bill and for good reasons. Most Americans would be outraged at the thought of their earnings going to wealthy corporations whining about Mexican competition. The news media would have a heyday, and a congressman voting in support of such a bill would be run out of office. It's far more politically practical to give the tomato growers stealth handouts. Who's to know? Americans might grumble and groan about winter tomatoes costing a few pennies more. But it wouldn't make economic sense for consumers to organize and take action against politicians who caused the higher prices. From the growers' point of view, it's a different story. It pays them to spend resources pressuring politicians for handouts; it means millions to them. In fact, to demonstrate how much clout they have, the Clinton campaign reportedly feared Florida growers hitting them with negative ads.

Aside from the issue of evil corporate handouts is the issue of liberty. If I wish to purchase tomatoes from a Mexican producer, on mutually agreeable terms, is there a moral case for a third party to prevent me from doing so?

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, Jan. 26, the 26th day of 1997. There are 339 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Jan. 26, 1788, the first European settlers in Australia, led by Capt. Arthur Phillip, landed in present-day Sydney.

On this date:
In 1802, Congress passed an act calling for a library to be established within the U.S. Capitol.

In 1837, Michigan became the 26th state.

In 1841, Britain formally occupied Hong Kong, which the Chinese had ceded to the British.

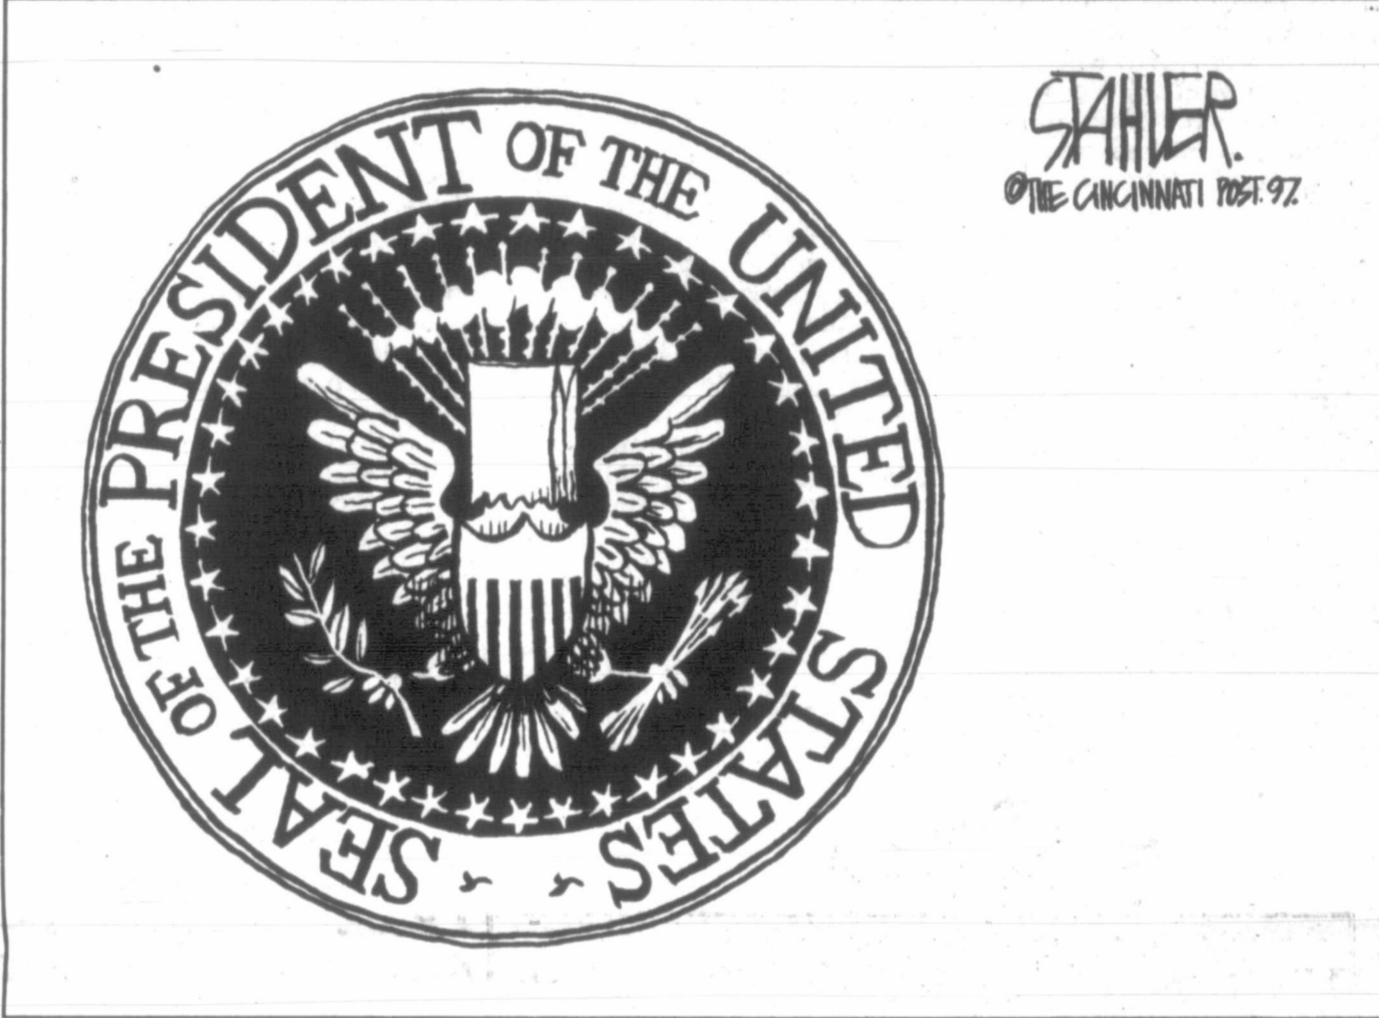

In 1861, Louisiana seceded from the Union.

In 1870, Virginia rejoined the Union.

In 1911, the Richard Strauss opera "Der Rosenkavalier" premiered in Dresden, Germany.

In 1942, the first American expeditionary force to go to Europe during World War II went ashore in Northern Ireland.

In 1950, India officially proclaimed itself a republic as Rajendra Prasad took the oath of office as president.

World government is our enemy

One of the basic questions Americans ought to ask and answer is, Do we wish to remain an independent country, or do we wish to merge into some transnational entity?

The fact that some people want to end the independence of the United States and replace it with a world government is not a right-wing fantasy. It is, in fact, an old idea. There are a number of public organizations that advocate it, and it has been talked about and written about for years.

Richard Gardner, now the U.S. ambassador to Spain, proposed in an article in Foreign Affairs (spring 1988), "an end-run around national sovereignty, eroding it piece by piece."

The push for this comes, as it always has, from international finance and business. One top IBM executive said, "The world's political structures are completely obsolete. They have not changed in at least a hundred years and are woefully out of tune with technological progress ... the critical issue of our time is the conceptual conflict between the search for globalization of resources and the independence of nation-states."

In the 1976 book Global Reach by Richard J. Barnett and Ronald E. Muller, the authors write, "A little more than a generation after the withering of the wartime dream of world brotherhood ... a new breed of globalists have launched an attack on the nation-state more radical than anything proposed by world federalists."

So, the issue is a real one. Now what does it mean?

Simply put, to remain an independent nation-state is to govern ourselves. We adopt what constitutions we please, pass what laws we please. If some international organization, some foreign government or some cabal of foreign governments doesn't like it, then it can file its objections where only a proctologist will ever see them.

That, I believe, is the position of a majority of Americans.

To lose our independence simply means that someone else we don't elect outside our borders will govern us with laws and rules we don't adopt. To lose our independence would be the same as being conquered and occupied by a foreign power, the only difference being that we would have surrendered before the war even started.

This is clearly a question to be decided by the American people. Unfortunately, the ruling elite is doing just what Gardner proposed - making end-runs around sovereignty.

For example, let's look at the World Trade

Organization. We passed a law that says we don't import tuna fishermen to kill dolphins in the process of catching tuna. Mexico took it to the WTO. The WTO has ruled that our law is a barrier to trade and we must either repeal it or pay a penalty. If that isn't a loss of sovereignty, skunks don't stink.

Traditionally, treaties were nothing more than agreements between sovereign nation-states governing their relationship. For example, a defense treaty simply says one signer will come to the aid of the other, if the other is attacked.

More recently, treaties are being used as an end-run around sovereignty. The treaty on children's rights, for example, does not govern relationships between nations. Rather, it dictates to nations how they must govern their own citizens within their own borders.

No such treaty should ever be ratified by the U.S. Senate. Under no circumstances should we allow foreign or international control of domestic issues to be imposed on the American people by the subterfuge of a treaty.

Under no circumstances should we ever allow one single American citizen to be subject to anyone's jurisdiction except that of his own country based on his own country's laws.

Independence is an issue that should not be compromised.

The 1960s coat-and-tie radicals

Do you think that House Speaker Newt Gingrich has again been exposed in an ethical lapse? I did. Hence, during a television interview, I was very critical of him. I am an American naif. I take most of my news from our national press, most notably The New York Times. How much better informed I would be if I followed the White House's recently released theoretical monograph, positing London, England, and Pittsburgh, Penn., as the offices of all news. According to the White House's theory of a conspiracy by conservatives to distribute theories of conspiracy about the White House, I play a dominant role in the "media food chain."

Yet, the truth is that my "food chain" often begins at The New York Times, and earlier this month, I suffered food poisoning. As the Times reported it, Gingrich had been caught leading a defense strategy session with other Republican notables, a strategy session that he had supposedly vowed not to hold. Consequently, we readers of the Times thought Gingrich had lied to us.

Well, the news story was inaccurate and misleading. Those of us who took a shot at Gingrich after reading it were wrong. Worse still, the published transcript of the strategy session appearing in the Times was from an illegally taped telephone conversation. Finally, the initially unnamed source of the illegal tape was a Democratic congressman, the Hon. James McDermott from the great state of Washington, who, it now turns out, violated House rules in procuring the tape - a Gingrichian lapse! Most of us were also misled as to the identities of those who illegally taped the telephone call and gave the tape to McDermott. They were not as they presented themselves, "Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Citizen," but partisan Democrats with a history of party and union involvement.

It is a hilarious touch that all these deceptions were committed by the voices that otherwise plead for a "spirit of bipartisanship" an end to "gridlock" and a return to "civility." More hilarious still is the fact that the Times and McDermott proclaim themselves as the forces of reform and a return to ethics. They, along with such other moral fantasists as David Bonior, are the high-minded liberals whose lives are devoted to making the world a better place, disinfecting the Republican Party and writing yet another glorious chapter in the long and venerable history of American Liberalism: The New Freedom! The New Deal! The New Frontier! The Great Society! The New Covenant! What?

What is it that The New York Times, Bonior, McDermott and the rest of these giants plan to usher in once they have rid us of Gingrich? It had better be a colossal blow for the betterment of humanity to justify wire taps, invasions of privacy and a major newspaper misleading its readers. What we are actually witnessing is not traditional political give and take but the final corruption of a political point of view, late 20th-century Liberalism.

And there is more. The Times' pratfall, McDermott's felonies and all the serial controversies, scandals and ineptitude of the Clinton administration reveal the bust-up of the last generation of liberals, the late 1960s Coat-and-Tie Radicals. That psssss sounding in bookstores is the arrival of but another gaudy failure from these poseurs, the so-called autobiography of Clinton cronies Dick Morris. Behind The Oval Office is more than 300 pages of glibly prose and general vulgarity. The rogue Morris' relationship with Boy Clinton is described as a "symbiosis." The narrative alters from the confessions of a problem child ("Walls close in on me when I'm alone. I don't do well.") to the boastfulness of a fool ("I don't spin anything. I put new substance and ideas before the voters.") to the cheap materialism of a yuppie.

Yet, Morris is not alone in his failure. A great publishing house paid $2.5 million to him, knowing he is only a coarse hustler with a few anecdotes and no talent for writing. Scores of reviewers even now are solemnly conveying to their readers the book's complicated merits. Television interviewers take him seriously as he blubbers on. And then there are all the Coat-and-Tie Radicals now fattened by middle age whom Morris discourses on: The White House aides, the media geniuses, his therapists of all varieties, the Clintons. They compose the sleaziest generation of con artists in the history of the republic. Watching them blow up is a thrill.

"The Dow is NOT falling! The Dow is NOT falling!"

Letters to the editor

We don't need more laws

To the editor:
My heart goes out to Dr. Keith Black and his family. The loss of a child may be the most devastating event any person must endure. It is in the natural order of things that children bury their parents. When it happens the other way around, the emotional chaos is almost unbearable. I am truly sorry that he has lost a child.

In his letter Dr. Black warns everyone of the extreme dangers of floating or rafting on the Guadalupe and Comal Rivers between Canyon Dam and the city of New Braunfels. I think that is right and proper for him to do so. Such information may convince people not to float/raft on those waters and may save some lives. I hope so.

Dr. Black asked for help in convincing State Representative Warren Chisum and our State Senator Teel Bivins to do something because the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission will do nothing. The only thing that TNRC could do, to insure the safety of all citizens, would be to ban recreational use of these rivers.

We do not need any further restrictions on our freedoms. We have a monumental overload of restrictions on our personal freedoms now. We will continue to receive more restrictions anytime our various lawmakers get together to pass more laws.

Each time a law is enacted someone's freedom is diminished. That someone may be you. You cannot ride a motorcycle without wearing a helmet. Wearing a helmet while driving a motorcycle is a good idea. Making it a misdemeanor, not to wear a helmet, is not good law. It is rumored that there is a move afoot to require bull riders to wear helmets. Is nothing sacred? People must be allowed to use their judgment where their own person and property are concerned. Lawmakers have a bad habit of taking a good idea, such as public safety, and, by overreacting, making it a bad idea.

The law that restricts your freedom to punch me in the nose is a good law. The law that restricts my freedom to drive my car without buckling-up is a bad law. The trouble is that we have so many more bad laws than good laws. The multitude of laws on the books makes lawbreakers of us all. Our lawmakers are getting more invasive all the time. We are being micro-managed by the Federal Government, the State, the County and the City. Do not forget Commissions, Courts (yes, nowadays our Courts are making laws), Agencies and various Taxing Entities.

My plea is that if you are inclined to contact Mr. Chisum and/or

Mr. Bivins that you ask them not to pass ANY laws this session, but maybe repeal a law or two.

Rear children by the Bible

To the editor:
In The Pampa News Thursday, Jan. 16, 1997, page 3, was the following:

"The Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority Child and Adolescent Services is offering parenting classes for parents, grandparents, foster parents — anyone who has children in the home and is looking for DIFFERENT WAYS TO DISCIPLINE CHILDREN" (Whatever happened to the BIBLE WAY???) Why do we need some government agency to tell us how to discipline and rear our children?

Here's why: When we leave God out of our lives, neglect to learn from the Bible and stop attending Church, the result is a VACUUM that must be filled with SOMETHING. That something is usually more government.

Everything we need to know about parenting can be learned from the Church, the Bible and the Wisdom of the Holy Spirit.

But when a people become secularized, they soon discover that without God and adherence to His laws, everything falls apart. So they turn to the government.

Historically, every society that has substituted government for God has collapsed. The family unit, which is the basic building blocks of society, is the first to go. Then comes an increase in poverty, crime, debauchery, anarchy, chaos, destruction and death.

Maybe it's not too late for us to return to God and His Way. If no one else will, why don't you and I go it alone?

The Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority may be better than nothing at all. But some people may think a bogus $20 bill is better than no money at all.

Wouldn't it be better if people who are having difficulty rearing their children would return to God and His Way?

"Choose you this day whom you will serve — God or Caesar."

Note: I am not anti-government. But I do believe we should all "Render unto God ALL that belongs to God and render unto Caesar ONLY what belongs to Caesar."

The Lady and The Cop to be at Knife & Fork Club meeting

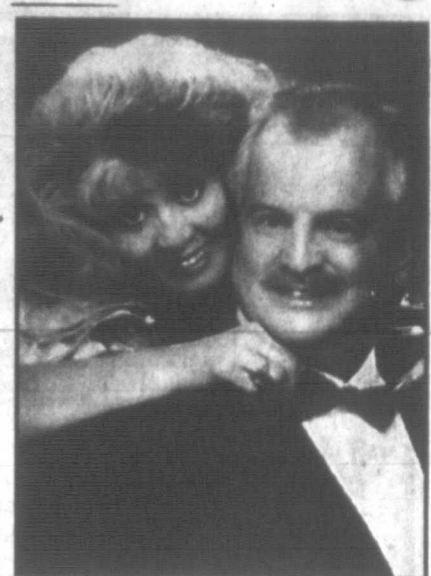

Margo and Jimmy Carter, singers and entertainers, will be the featured artists for the Top O' Texas Knife and Fork Club at 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 3, at the Pampa Country Club.

Their program is titled "An American Potpourri," according to Julia Dawkins, president.

The Carters, billed as The Lady and The Cop, have entertained all over America for audiences numbering as few as two to as many as 13,000, from Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis and Tulsa, to Atlanta, Louisville, Roanoke and Charleston.

Margo is a home maintenance engineer, while Jimmy is a former chief of police. Both love to entertain. Each has taught self-defense courses, and Jimmy has authored numerous articles as well as a weekly newspaper column.

"An American Potpourri" includes just a sampling of the 1,200 songs the Carters know. Inspiration is a big part of their program, and when they add their music and unique brand of humor to the music, there is pleasure aplenty for everyone.

Tickets may be purchased by club members at Dunlaps in the Coronado Center through Saturday, Feb. 1. Price is $9.50 per member.

Mexican 'wild rockers' battle police

NEZAHUALCOYOTL, Mexico (AP) — A large crowd of wild rockers battled police in a protest against a new ban on street corner "fiestas."

At least 30 people were injured in the scuffles, police said Saturday.

A police report said about 300 "Chavos Banda," as they are known in Spanish, were involved in the protest Friday outside city hall. None were hospitalized.

Armed with stones, sticks and empty bottles, they charged at about 200 riot police and forced their way into the municipal building, where they broke windows and wrecked furniture.

They were evicted and dispersed half an hour later, the report said.

Nezahualcoyotl is a largely poor community with 1.4 million people adjoining eastern Mexico City.

The "Chavos Banda" have been holding rock concerts and street dances on weekends at that spot for more than a decade in Nezahualcoyotl, the nation's fourth largest city.

That was when the Institutional Revolutionary Party was in power, as it had been since 1929. However, it changed with the November election of new municipal officials from the opposition Democratic Revolutionary Party.

West Point cadet acquitted of raping female cadet

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — A West Point cadet acquitted of raping a female cadet during a night of drinking at an off-campus party will go on to be a fine officer, one of his attorneys said.

But it was unclear if his accuser would choose to return to West Point.

A jury of seven male U.S. Army officers deliberated for five hours Friday before finding cadet James Engelbrecht, 22, of Conroe, Texas, innocent of rape and committing an indecent act.

"It was a fair trial. All the evidence came out," said defense attorney Capt. Arthur Coulter. "She got her day in court, and that was the important part of it all."

Engelbrecht, he said, "will go on to graduate this spring and go on to field artillery (officer training) and be a very good officer."

The 20-year-old female cadet, who is on medical leave from the U.S. Military Academy, started sobbing after the verdict was read.

She left the courtroom with her mother and two sisters without speaking to reporters.

"We expected this in a man's world," the woman's mother said.

Engelbrecht's father, Paul, who apparently overheard the mother's comment, said: "This is a world of all kinds of people, male and female, black and white."

Engelbrecht could have faced life in prison and dismissal from the Army if he had been convicted of raping the woman at the Memorial Day weekend party in New Jersey.

Engelbrecht, who started crying and hugged Coulter after the verdict was read, said he felt "great, and that's an understatement," before he left the building, smiling and holding hands with his girlfriend.

Engelbrecht having sex with her ing and holding hands with his girlfriend.

"It's like an incredible burden's lifted off of me," Engelbrecht said. "It's been on my shoulders for eight months."

He claimed the woman initiated sex at a Memorial Day weekend party in New Jersey. West Point prosecutors said the woman was too intoxicated to agree to sex. Prosecutors refused to comment on the verdict.

The trial — the first of its kind since the academy began admitting women 20 years ago — began Tuesday with the female cadet's testimony. She said that she was "highly intoxicated" at the party, passed out and later awoke to Engelbrecht having sex with her.

Defense attorney James Fitzgerald said West Point officials decided to bring the case to trial to avoid accusations that they weren't taking the case seriously.

"The shame of that type of action is that James Engelbrecht ... was put through the greatest amount of stress that I think any human being can be put (through)," he said. "I think maybe the academy should rethink its position with respect to handling these complaints."

SPE symposium targets production costs

RICHARDSON - With accelerated exploration expenditures in the United States increasing the demand for drilling rigs and other upstream services, the subsequent need for maintaining cost effective production operations services and technology presents a continuing challenge to oil and gas producers.

The 1997 Society of Petroleum Engineers Production Operations Symposium will address this issue March 9-12 at the Myriad Convention Center in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Using the theme "Production Optimization from Spud to Sales" the symposium will present industry experts examining the latest technology and methods for cutting costs while optimizing oil and gas production.

Some 100 technical papers will be presented in 16 sessions on subjects including: Stimulation (four sessions); Reservoir Engineering; Production Operations (two sessions); Artificial Lift (three sessions); Facilities/Production Chemistry/Reservoir Fluid Properties; EOR/Water Coring/Water Control; Drilling and Cementing; Perforating and Logging; Sand Production/Gravel Pack/Formation Damage; and Horizontal Wells.

The symposium's Monday, March 10 welcome luncheon will feature keynote speaker Aubrey K. McClendon, chief executive officer of Chesapeake Energy Corp. His will give an address entitled "Competitive Advantages."

Chesapeake Energy Corp. is one of the energy industry's leaders in enhanced seismic and advanced technology drilling and well completion techniques. The company focuses on developing new oil and natural gas discoveries in major onshore producing areas of the United States where its 925 undrilled locations provide a five year inventory of growth opportunities.

McClendon has served as chairman of the board, chief operating officer and director of Chesapeake since the company's inception. From 1982-89, McClendon was an independent producer of oil and gas operations in affiliation with Tom L. Ward, the company's president and chief operating officer.

McClendon is a member of the Board of Visitors of Duke University, is a Executive Committee member of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association and is director of the Oklahoma Independent Oil and Gas Association. He is a 1981 graduate of Duke University.

The symposium also includes a short course on "Formation Damage Prevention" which will be held Wednesday, March 12.

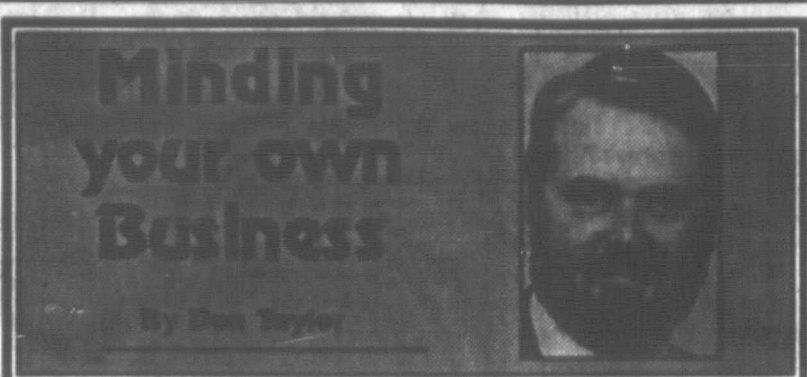

The course will combine practical field experience and research theories in an overview of formation damage problems and methods of overcoming or minimizing them.

Course instructors will be Derry Sparlin and Raymond W. Hagen, International Completion Consultants, Inc.

Service and supply companies will exhibit their latest advancements in tools, services and equipment that apply to production technology in another symposium feature.

Among social activities scheduled are a welcome reception on Sunday, March 9; an Exhibition Reception on Monday, March 10; and a complimentary luncheon sponsored by Wedge Dia-Log, Inc. on Tuesday, March 11.

The Society of Petroleum Engineers is a nonprofit, technical and professional association whose 52,000 members from more than 100 countries are engaged in energy resources development and production. SPE collects, distributes and exchanges information on techniques and operations related to exploration, drilling, production and management of energy resources.

Waitley's Seven C's

During the last few weeks, I've had time to revisit a few of my favorite books. One of the best is Seeds of Greatness by Denis Waitley. As I reread Chapter 3, I realized there was a column topic worth writing about.

For some time now, I've been concerned about how we Americans fail to take responsibility for our own actions. If we are illiterate, we blame the educational system. If we are poor, we blame the government for not providing wealth for us. If we are lazy, we blame business for failing to provide easy jobs. If we engage in crime, we blame the establishment when we're caught and punished. If we smoke and develop lung cancer, we blame the tobacco company.

It is never our own fault. There is always a reason for our shortcomings or failures. We have forgotten Galatians 6:7, which says that we reap exactly what we sow. Long term, we become the sum of our own actions. If we plant seeds of hard work, integrity, perseverance and faith, we will reap a life of prosperity and happiness. If we fail to be responsible, we lose our self-confidence and motivation and become more dependent on others.

Become self-reliant

In Seeds of Greatness, Waitley references a University of California at Berkeley study on self-reliance. The study indicated that the happiest, most well adjusted individuals were those who believe they have a strong measure of control over their own lives. They are doers who take responsibility for their own actions.

These self-reliant types do not look for someone else to blame for their troubles. Instead, they analyze and learn from past mistakes. They are people of action. They constantly look for ways to better their situations, rather than looking for someone to blame for them.

They continually set higher standards for their own personal and professional behavior. They are willing to exchange hard work for freedom of choice.

An important characteristic of self-reliant people is their willingness to postpone ecstasy. They possess self control. They do not jeopardize their credit to drive an exotic new car or to own a home on "mortgage row." They don't buy groceries with their credit cards because they spent their paychecks on lottery tickets.

Waitley's Seven C's

Waitley lists what he calls "The Seven C's of Self Control" on pages 90 and 91 of his book. Here is a brief synopsis.

- 1) We control the clock. Waitley says that we can use our time any way we choose. He suggests that before we begin any activity we ask, "Is this the best use of my time?"
- 2) We control our concepts. We control our thoughts and creative imaginations. Waitley says that we become what we think about.
- 3) We control our contacts. We determine who we will spend our time with. We should find successful people to use as role models to learn from and share with.
- 4) We control our conversations. Waitley points out that we are in control of what we say and how we say it. He adds a reminder that we can benefit greatly from learning to listen.
- 5) We control our commitments. Waitley says that we are in charge of setting our own pace by what we agree to do ourselves and others.
- 6) We control our causes. Our goals become our causes, Waitley says. We can gain confidence and courage by striving toward worthy goals.
- 7) We control our concerns. Waitley points out that we can build a self-reliant character by becoming concerned about constructive issues. We should be concerned, but not worried.

If you haven't read Seeds of Greatness, you will find it helpful. It recently reminded me that I alone am responsible for my own actions.

Therassage professional completes workshop in myofascial release

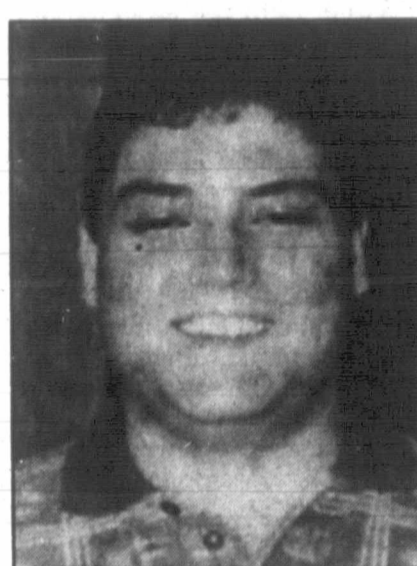

Blaine Going, a registered massage therapist at Therassage Bodywork Professionals in Pampa, recently completed an 18 hour workshop in myofascial release for the shoulder and thoracic area, through the Healing Arts Institute in Lubbock.

His training focused on eliminating soft tissue pain and dysfunction in the shoulders and thoracic area. Some of the techniques involved postural assessments, muscle testing, fascial stretching, trigger point technique, range of motion evaluations, stretches and re-education of the muscles.

Myofascial release is a "specialized" practice of massage therapy which focuses on pain and relief and injury rehabilitation. The myofascial technique deals mainly with manipulations to correct improper functions of fascia.

Fascia is a sheath of connective tissue that envelops an organ system. Fascial sheaths surround the muscles of the body adding tensile strength. Healthy fascia allows muscles to move freely over one another without pain or discomfort. Any trauma to the fascia can cause a lock down. This can limit full range of motion in the muscle or muscles damaged. Pain and dysfunction accompany a fascial lock down.

Having a different goal than that of the standard Swedish, or relaxation massage, myofascial release deals with assessing the problem area with the modalities needed. This approach gives the client a much quicker result in alleviating their pain.

Going has attended eleven advanced training workshops since graduating from the Austin School of Massage Therapy in September of 1995. He will go for his certification in myofascial release in the summer of this year. This training, along with Swedish massage, and neuromuscular background, gives him a broader range of therapeutic skills to better benefit his client, Going said.

Senator: State shouldn't support filth

AUSTIN (AP) - Irate over "filth" on record albums put out by MCA, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee is pressuring state trust funds to reconsider their investment in MCA parent Seagram Co.

"They ought to be concerned that the public would be indignant that the state would hold such holdings," Sen. Bill Ratliff said, citing criticism that MCA albums contain vulgar and violent lyrics.

"MCA ... puts out filth in the form of records," said Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant. "I don't think there's any question that this kind of thing has a negative impact on children who listen to it day after day."

Seagram spokeswoman Amy Goldberger said the company had no comment on the matter. Seagram owns 80 percent of MCA, she said.

Alexandra Walsh of the Recording Industry Association of America, which includes MCA, said the association already has a program in which stickers on recordings alert parents to explicit lyrics.

"We think it's absurd that the senator would be considering penalizing MCA. They put out a ... very diverse spectrum of music including Christian music and jazz and R&B," she said.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Bring on the Oscars.

Hollywood found out what the foreign press thinks is the best of 1996 cinema with the Golden Globe awards last week, as the Hollywood Foreign Press Association feted dramas with a definite foreign tone.

The English Patient was honored as best picture, England's Brenda Blethyn as top actress for Secrets & Lies and Australia's Geoffrey Rush for Shine.

Evita, the musical chronicling the life of legendary Argentine political figure Eva Peron, was a triple winner — taking honors for best musical or comedy movie, best musical-comedy actress for Madonna and best original song, "You Must Love Me."

"I have been so incredibly blessed in this past year," Madonna, who had her first baby last year, said in accepting her Golden Globe. "Making this picture has been a great experience artistically and spiritually. I will never forget it."

No movie swept the awards, which launch Hollywood's movie awards season and often presage the Academy Awards. The dark comedy Fargo, which has won a trophy case full of critics' awards in recent weeks, went home empty-handed.

After years of struggling for respect because of claims of voting corruption, the Hollywood Foreign Press Association finally achieved a degree of respectability last year with a prime-time TV broadcast.

Golden Globes were also bestowed on The People vs. Larry Flynt, with awards to director

No movie swept the awards, which launch Hollywood's movie awards season and often presage the Academy Awards.

Milos Forman and writers Scott Alexander and Larry Karaszewski.

In the television categories, The X-Files was voted top TV drama and its stars, David Duchovny and Gillian Anderson, won top TV dramatic actor honors.

NBC-TV's 3rd Rock From the Sun won for top TV musical or comedy series and its star, John Lithgow, won for best actor in that category. Helen Hunt of Mad About You was the top TV comedy actress.

Tom Cruise, the sports agent of Jerry Maguire, was the musical-comedy actor winner.

Ms. Blethyn, who plays the mother of a black daughter she never knew in Secrets & Lies, was virtually unknown to American audiences before the movie's release.

"I'm so happy to be in the building much less standing up here," she said in accepting her award.

Rush, who played the mentally troubled piano virtuoso of Shine, was a hugely popular winner with the stellar Beverly Hilton Hotel audience, which gave him an unusual standing ovation.

"I'm very proud to be part of a film that has taken such a vulnerable, peculiar and very human character and placed him at the heart of a film," Rush said.

Forman was picked best motion picture director for The People vs. Larry Flynt. Mel Gibson, last year's director winner for Braveheart, handed Forman the trophy.

Veteran actress Lauren Bacall, who played the possessive mother of Barbra Streisand in The Mirror Has Two Faces, and Edward Norton, the suspected killer in Primal Fear, won movie supporting actor trophies.

"I'm in a state of shock. This is the first time I've been nominated for an award in any role," Ms. Bacall said.

The 72-year-old actress concluded her acceptance by saying, "It's taken a long time to get here and I'm not giving it (the Golden Globe) back."

The Golden Globe for best foreign language film went to the Czech Republic's Kolya.

HBO's Rasputin won the top TV miniseries or movie award as well as top actor for Alan Rickman and supporting actor for Ian McKellen.

Helen Mirren won the top actress Golden Globe in a miniseries or movie for Showtime's Losing Chase and Kathy Bates won the supporting actress trophy in that category for The Late Shift.

One Golden Globe was announced before last Sunday's ceremony: Dustin Hoffman, the Cecil B. DeMille award for service to the cinema. Cruise offered a tribute to him during the show.

Sandra Bullock feels need for speed

NEW YORK (AP) — Sandra Bullock is feeling the need for speed again.

After starring in A Time to Kill last summer and In Love and War that opens Friday, she's working on the sequel to Speed, the hit movie she made with Keanu Reeves.

"The last two films were very heady and internal and I wanted to do something that was fun and physical to balance things out," she says in the February issue of US magazine.

The 32-year-old actress says, "this is the last time I'll do something like this."

Ever? "Ever," she replies. "Probably."

BASKETBALL

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Julie Lake scored 22 points and Rene Hannebut hit three free throws in the last 32 seconds, carrying No. 14 Texas Tech to a 64-58 victory over Iowa State on Saturday.

Alicia Thompson added 15 points for the Lady Raiders (13-4, 5-2 Big 12), who fell behind briefly early in the second half but controlled most of the game.

The Cyclones (9-7, 2-4) scored the first five points of the second half to turn a 28-24 deficit into a 29-28 lead. They also led 31-30.

A 3-pointer by Lake with 16:40 to go put Tech back ahead for good, and the Lady Raiders led by as much as 43-33 with 12:49 to play.

Iowa State made a late run behind consecutive 3-pointers by Tara Gunderson that pulled the Cyclones within 59-53 and 61-56.

Hannebut then iced the game from the foul line.

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — Tysmon Jolivet scored 22 points and Davanzio Carter added six 3-pointers and 20 points, carrying Stephen F. Austin past Nicholls State 83-79 in overtime Saturday.

Wayne Allen had 16 rebounds, 11 points and seven assists, and David Henry added 10 points for the Lumberjacks (9-8, 5-3 Southland).

The Colonels (5-13, 2-6) got 27 points and 12 rebounds from Kenderick Franklin, who also had a team-high five assists. Taurus Howard and Keith Richard both scored 13 points and Wayne Edwards and James Banks added 10 each.

Nicholls led 35-32 at half-time, then it was 68-68 at the end of regulation. SFA outscored Nicholls 15-11 in the extra period.

AUTO RACING

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — A blown engine, a broken oil line and a down-pour helped Eddie Cheever to a victory Saturday in the Indy 200, his first race as an owner-driver.

It was also the first victory for the 39-year-old Cheever in 19 years of top level, open-wheel racing — including Formula One, CART and the IRL.

"Normally I don't like rain," Cheever said when the race was stopped following the 149th lap on the one-mile Walt Disney World Speedway tri-oval. "In this circumstance, though, I'm sorry for the spectators, but I'm happy for the rain."

GOLF

KOHALA COAST, Hawaii (AP) — Three-time defending champion Raymond Floyd earned $40,000 and Hale Irwin and Jack Nicklaus also won skins Saturday on the first day of the Senior Skins, but most of the money was left on the table.

Setting up a bonanza for Sunday, $440,000 of the $540,000 purse will remain up for grabs on the final nine holes of the two-day event.

The 10th hole alone will be worth $140,000 since the final four holes were tied Saturday and the money carried over.

Nicklaus kept the pot building when he missed birdie putts at the eighth and ninth holes.

Irwin, a Senior Skins rookie, also won $40,000 the first day at the Mauna Lani Resort course.

Harvesters fall to Herd

HEREFORD — Hereford, using a flurry of second quarter points, went on to defeat Pampa, 72-59, Friday night in District 1-4A boys' basketball action.

With the win, Hereford is now 6-3 in district play and 14-14 for the season. Pampa is now 4-4 and 11-16.

Pampa had more rebounds, 28-26, and less turnovers than Hereford, 14-15, but the Whitefaces went on a 19-point scoring spree in the second quarter while limiting the Harvesters to 7. That gave Hereford a 17-point bulge, 34-17, going into half-time.

Isaac Walker led Hereford with 19 points while Johnathan Keenan was right behind with 18. Keenan led Hereford rebounders with 5.

August Larson also had 19 for Pampa while Shawn Young chipped in 10. Devin Lemons had 8 points and 11 rebounds.

Coronado sweeps local soccer teams

PAMPA — Pampa fell to Lubbock Coronado in a non-district soccer doubleheader Saturday at the PHS complex.

Coronado won the boys' match 3-0, scoring two of its goals in the first 20 minutes of play.

"We got two goals down in the first 20 minutes because we played scared and were intimidated by one of the top teams in the region," said Pampa coach Warren Cottle.

Coronado shut out Pampa, 6-0, in the girls' contest.

"Coronado is a 5A team, but I felt like we should have won the match," said Pampa coach Matt Gantz.

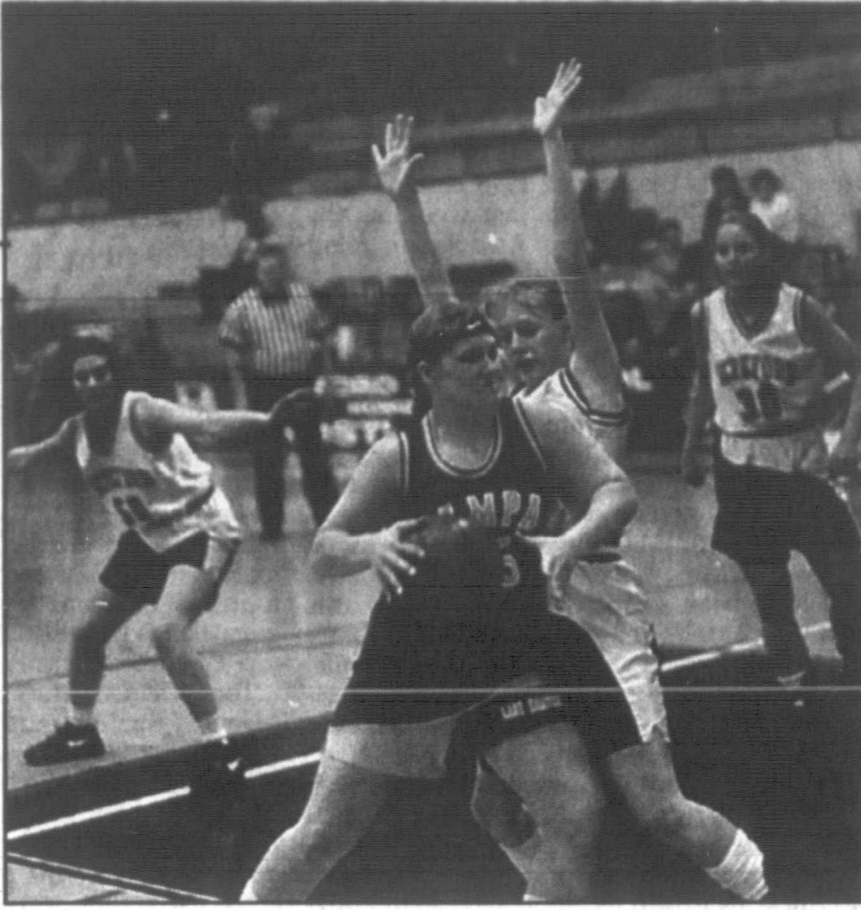

Pampa captains Marisol Resendiz and Christi Walkup played outstanding games, according to Gantz.

"They both played a very intense and aggressive match. They showed why they're the leaders," he said.

The Pampa teams travel to Palo Duro for non-district matches Tuesday, starting at 4:15 in Amarillo.

Pampa opens district play Feb. 1 at Randall.

Pampa's next home matches are Feb. 4 against Amarillo Caprock starting at 4:15 p.m.

Could the Pack be the real 'America's Team?'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — They arrived with a curfew, from a place with little trouble and a lot of cold and snow.

Their biggest star, Brett Favre, withdrew $5 from an ATM machine for a night on the town in Mississippi, even though he had $67,000 in his account.

Their best defender, Reggie White, is a minister who preaches love, but has knocked more quarterbacks silly than anyone in NFL history.

Their coach, Mike Holmgren, figures it will take at least one title just to get an alley named after him.

No one on the team was arrested this season. No one was even suspended.

Could this be the real America's Team?

A league tired of thugs, troublemakers, trashmouths and pick-up-and-go owners certainly hopes so.

"We're not flashy and we don't have national commercials," Packers defender Sean Jones said. "You don't see us on the front page of newspapers doing this, that and the other thing. We're not sexy enough for everybody, but that's OK. Because you know what? When you wear that ring on your finger, there's a whole lot of people who think you're sexy."

It is no coincidence that 97,000 people who think that way reside in Green Bay, Wis. The team that resides there along with them dates back to Curly Lambeau and 1919, when the Packers became a charter member of the NFL. But the team didn't really dominate their lives until the mid-1960s. That's when a stubby, stubborn refugee from Brooklyn named

Vince Lombardi took over and won so often that the city renamed itself "Titletown, USA."

Nothing has been quite the same since. Especially now that the Pack is back in the only game that matters, this time against the arriviste New England Patriots.

"It would be hard to go back and replicate what they took 80 years to accomplish," commissioner Paul Tagliabue said on the eve of the Super Bowl, in his annual state of the league news conference.

"I don't think it's realistic to think any more major league sports franchises ... are going to be operated by the VFW post anywhere in America with community ownership as the key underpinning."

The part about the Packers being operated by a Veterans of Foreign Wars post isn't exactly true. For one thing, it's not a VFW post, but the Sullivan-Wallen American Legion Post 11. And for another, the post doesn't really operate the team.

In 1949, the club was on the verge of bankruptcy and somebody in the front office hit on the scheme of selling stock to the public. A total of 1,915 Packer partisans bought in at $25 each. Those shares are now held by people in all 50 states and three foreign countries. The last bit of genius to the scheme was the proviso that if the team were ever sold — its value is estimated at $160 million — proceeds from the sale go to American Legion Post 11.

Green Bay also built two stadiums essentially by passing the hat — the first in 1920 and what became Lambeau Field in 1957. That did not go unnoticed by

Hereford outlasts Pampa girls in triple OT thriller

HEREFORD — Going into the game Hereford had already clinched a post-season playoff spot and had beaten Pampa by 23 points earlier, but the Lady Whitefaces needed three overtimes to edge fired-up Pampa, 74-72, Friday night in a District 1-4A contest.

In the final overtime with Hereford ahead, 72-70, Pampa's Yvette Brown hit a jump shot from the foul line to tie the score with under a minute remaining. With seven seconds to go, Hereford's Kendra Wright was fouled and she sank two free throws for the two-point margin of victory.

Hereford improved to 9-2 in district and 20-6 overall. Pampa is 3-7 and 11-14.

Leading the way for Hereford was Julie Lampley with 15 points, followed by Catie Betzen with 13.

Jennifer Jones was high scorer for Pampa with 25 points while McKinley Quarles added 18. Quarles led Pampa rebounders with 6.

Tagliabue, who managed to make that act of selflessness sound like an endorsement for personal seat licenses.

"The public invested directly in that place and that time in their team in a way that was similar to what we're trying to do today," he said.

Still, sports' version of "It's A Wonderful Life" wouldn't have had a happy ending without Lombardi. He arrived as head coach in 1957 and inside his office soon afterward, on a bronzed plaque, he had inscribed the credo that Green Bay schoolchildren learn by heart to this day.

It begins "What It Takes to Be No. 1."

It ends this way: "... I firmly believe man's finest hour is that moment when he has worked his heart out in a good cause and lies exhausted on the field of combat — victorious."

But it took guys with names like Nitschke and Kramer, Thurston and Hornung, Taylor and Starr, and a dozen epic games played on tundra to breathe life into Lombardi's words — the first time. This time, the names are Favre and White, Butler and Bennett and the words are Holmgren's.

And all of them recognize there is still work to be done.

In the moments after these Packers beat Carolina to return to the Super Bowl for the first time in 29 seasons, Holmgren was careful not to measure his modest accomplishments — so far — against those of Lombardi and Lambeau.

"The two men who have things named after them in this town were really very special," he said. "Maybe if things go like this for another 10 years, they'll name a little alley somewhere after me."

He may not have to wait that long.

Lefors boys, McLean girls split district basketball tilts

LEFORS — Chris McKean scored 21 points to lead the Lefors Pirates to a 28-point win over the McLean Tigers in District 5-1A action Friday night, 65 to 37.

Lefors gained a strong advantage over McLean early on in the contest, controlling a 6-point lead after the first quarter and added more to the lead as the first half progressed, taking charge of a 19-point lead by halftime.

Following McKean's 21 points was Justin Howard with 17 of his own to help contribute to the Lefors victory, while Toby Purcell led the Tigers with 10 points.

The Lady Tigers won in the girls contest over the Lefors girls by 27 points, 51 to 24.

To lead the girls in scoring were Rachel Galley and Vanessa Glass for the Lady Tigers with 12 and 11 points, respectively, while Lefors was led by Nicki Bockman who had 8 points in the contest.

BRIEFS

BASKETBALL
DETROIT (AP) — Toronto Raptors forward Carlos Rogers ailing sister died, one day after he offered to donate his kidney but learned she was too weak for a transplant.
RENE ROGERS, 29, died about 3:09 p.m. EST of a septic infection. Carlos Rogers, 25, returned to his native Detroit on Thursday to be with his sister, who was in critical care for an infection related to a previous kidney transplant.
VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Brian Winters, who coached Vancouver to a 23-102 record in the team's 1 1/2 seasons, was fired and replaced by Grizzlies president and general manager Stu Jackson.

Vancouver is 8-35 this season, the worst record in the NBA. The move followed Thursday's 95-72 loss to Minnesota. Before taking over the Grizzlies, Winters had been an NBA assistant for 10 seasons in Cleveland and Atlanta.

Jackson was 52-45 with the Knicks before he was fired in 1990, 15 games into the season. PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Portland Trail Blazers acquired forward Stacy Augmon from the Detroit Pistons for reserve guards Aaron McKie, Randolph Childress and Reggie Jordan.

Augmon played on UNLV's 1990 NCAA championship team and was selected ninth overall by Atlanta in the 1991 NBA draft. He was traded to Detroit with Grant Long last summer for two conditional draft choices.

In five seasons at Atlanta, Augmon played in 380 games, averaging 13.7 points and 4.5 rebounds. But the 6-foot-8 Augmon averaged only 4.5 points and 2.5 rebounds as a reserve in 20 games with Detroit this season.

Augmon missed several games after getting into a shouting match with Detroit coach Doug Collins and walking out of practice earlier this month.

Mckie was the Blazers' first-round draft pick from Temple in 1994. Childress, from Wake Forest, was selected by Detroit in 1995's first round and traded to Portland with Bill Curley for Chris Thorpe.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Veteran forward Chris Loke was suspended one game by the Utah Jazz for breaking team rules. Morris did not travel with the team for tonight's game at Houston.

Morris, a 6-foot-8, eighth-year pro, signed as a free agent from New Jersey in October 1995. He averages only 4.7 points this season in 37 games.

HOCKEY
UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Mike Milbury resigned as coach of the New York Islanders, fulfilling the wishes of prospective team owner John Spano. Milbury will remain as general manager.

Assistant Rick Bowness took over Milbury's coaching duties. Milbury was hired as coach in July 1995 and became GM five months later.

OLYMPICS
NEW YORK (AP) — Tonya Harding might try an Olympic comeback to the strains of some other country's national anthem.

Harding's agent said he was near a decision on asking the U.S. Figure Skating Association to rescind the lifetime ban imposed for the two-time Olympian's part in covering up the attack on rival Nancy Kerrigan three years ago.

If the ban sticks, agent David Hans Schmidt said, Harding — scheduled to resume her skating career as a professional next month — was prepared to jump to another country for the chance to compete in next year's Winter Olympics at Nagano.

He also said Harding would "seriously consider legal recourse" if American and international sports officials tried to block her way. Those officials said they would not budge.

BASEBALL
SAN DIEGO (AP) — Police sent the case of New York Yankees left-hander David Wells to the District Attorney's office, meaning he could face felony charges for a Jan. 12 street fight.

Wells broke his pitching hand in the fight and will miss the start of spring training.

If Wells is charged, he likely would be notified by letter and ordered to appear for a court hearing.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros avoided arbitration by signing pitcher Shane Reynolds by giving him an $8.5 million, three-year contract. The right-hander — 16-10 with 204 strikeouts last year — could make as much as $10.1 million if he pitches 34 games and 235 innings per season.

MONTREAL (AP) — Pedro Martinez, ace of the Montreal Expos' pitching staff, avoided arbitration by agreeing to a $3.5 million, one-year contract — more than 10 times his $315,000 salary last season. Martinez, 25, was 13-10 with a 3.70 ERA in 1996, when he tied teammate Jeff Fassero for third in the NL with 222 strikeouts.

COLLEGE
STORRS, Conn. (AP) — The NCAA suspended Connecticut center Kirk King for the season for accepting an airline ticket from a sports agent, then lying about his conduct.

Sophomore point guard Ricky Moore was suspended five games for accepting an airline ticket.

Hingis wins Australian Open

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Easier than falling off a horse, and as magical as bouncing up unhurt.

With her entourage shouting "right shot, right shot," 16-year-old Martina Hingis outmaneuvered Mary Pierce in rally after rally, taking less than an hour to become the youngest singles winner of a Grand Slam tennis tournament in 110 years.

The 6-2, 6-2 victory in the Australian Open final Saturday ended with a typical point. Hingis pinned Pierce deep, then drilled a forehand down the line as the 1995 Australian champion watched helplessly.

As for reaching No. 1 in the rankings this year, she said: "Yeah, why not? Just an injury could hold me away from that right now."

There was no injury when she fell from a horse named Magic Girl during a break from tennis on Tuesday.

Hingis said the fall helped her concentrate better, although the only problem she had encountered before that was needing one tiebreaker to beat Romania's Ruxandra Dragomir in the round of 16. She never lost a set through her seven matches in the tournament.

Still, her play seemed more magical than ever Saturday.

She took a 3-0 lead by ending the third game with a drop shot that dribbled off the net cord and down Pierce's side of the net.

Breaking Pierce for a 4-2 lead in the second set, she chased down a drop shot and anticipated Pierce's next move, closing off the side-line to hit a backhand volley winner.

Hingis said the fall helped her concentrate better, although the only problem she had encountered before that was needing one tiebreaker to beat Romania's Ruxandra Dragomir in the round of 16. She never lost a set through her seven matches in the tournament.

Still, her play seemed more magical than ever Saturday.

She took a 3-0 lead by ending the third game with a drop shot that dribbled off the net cord and down Pierce's side of the net.

Breaking Pierce for a 4-2 lead in the second set, she chased down a drop shot and anticipated Pierce's next move, closing off the side-line to hit a backhand volley winner.

Spurs down Mavericks, 97-87

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — As the San Antonio Spurs get healthier, so should their record.

Two of San Antonio's injured regulars returned Friday night and helped the Spurs to a 97-87 victory over the Dallas Mavericks.

Dominique Wilkins scored 24 points and Vinnie Del Negro added 21 off the bench for San Antonio.

"When we play hard and aggressive, the emotion is there," said Wilkins, who made 8-of-14 shots.

Wilkins was playing in only his second game since coming back after missing 10 straight because of a strained tendon in his right knee.

Del Negro has missed nine games due to assorted injuries this season.

"We need all the wins we can get," said Del Negro, who had 16 of his points in the first half. "We need to go out and scratch and find a way to win every night."

San Antonio was again without starters David Robinson, Chuck Person and Charles Smith. Robinson, who has a fractured bone in his left foot, hopes to be back by late February.

"It is difficult sometimes and frustrating at others not playing with your entire team," Del Negro said. "We just have to keep playing and wait until we get our big guys back."

Dallas, which has lost three straight, was led by Chris Gatling with 25 points. Jim Jackson added 22 and Michael Finley had 17.

San Antonio, the NBA's second-lowest scoring team at 88.2 points per game, had its highest-scoring first half of the year as it took a 60-46 lead.

"It was too much Dominique," Dallas coach Jim Clemons said. "He hit some baskets at crucial times and made some difficult shots. This loss was caused by turnovers. We've got to play smarter basketball, otherwise you are playing against yourself."

Dallas never seriously threatened in the fourth quarter as Avery Johnson had 12 of his 14 points in the final period for San Antonio. The Mavericks could draw no closer than six points.

Crazy for You

The Pampa High School Choir have been singing, acting and kicking their way to the old west town of Deadrock, Nevada, and are nearly ready to go public with their production of Crazy For You.

The musical, created by George and Ira Gershwin, has been reorchestrated with new dances to the original songs of sixty years ago and will be performed on Jan. 31, Feb. 2-3 at the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium and Civic Center.

The songs include "You Can't Take That Away From Me," "Embraceable You," "Someone to Watch Over Me," "Slap That Bass," "I Got Rhythm" and "Shall We Dance."

According to original London cast members, the London director Mike Ockrent has achieved a miracle of restoration and refurbishment, while the new script by Ken Ludwig would be the envy of the Marx Brothers themselves.

East meets West in the two-act musical which brings New Yorkers, Londoners and Old West cowboys together for a delightful creation of lost loves, romance and the intertwining strings of fate which can push an individual to the brink of despair and immediately lift the pall of depression and send one on their singing, flying way.

The dance steps pay tribute to Agnes de Mille, Bob Fosse and Michael Bennett and reference the whole history of the Broadway musical.

A London critic said Crazy For You is "one of those rare and wonderful evenings that send you dancing into the night with an inane grin of happiness on your face."

The story begins backstage of a New York Theatre in the 1930s for a performance of the "Zangler Follies."

The stage is set as a want-to-be actor flops badly at an audition and then has to face an unwanted fiancée and a domineering mother who insists he go out west to foreclose on a failing theatre.

As a means of escape, the actor chooses Deadrock, and once he arrives finds himself entangled in a web love, deceit and show business which involves all the residents of the small western town, tourists from London, and his New York fiancée.

In the tradition of most musical comedies, there is an unexpected twist to bring the play to its grand finale and happy ending.

Students have been working on the program since the beginning of school. Many have had to learn to dance techniques involving more than just a two step.

What has taken weeks of preparation and practice will soon be a musical production worthy of the most critical audience.

Above: London tour book writers Andre and Patricia — played by Ty Mote and Tish Hadley — offer their own very English version of "Stiff Upper Lip" to the residents and actors of the failing theatre in Deadrock.

Right: The real Zangler, played by Dave Bridges, and the imposter Zangler, Bobby Childs, played by Hugh Craddock, bemoan the fickle choices of their respective lady loves. Far right: The feisty postmistress, Polly Baker, portrayed by Nicole Meason, could fall for the charming Bobby Childs, played by Hugh Craddock, until she learns that he is in Deadrock to foreclose on the theatre owned by a New York bank.

Below right: The residents of Deadrock and the New York acting company have joined together to present a show which will save the failing theatre and raise the spirits of the town. Left: The rich New York girl, Irene, Amanda Howell, has fallen madly in love with and is in fact soul mates with the Deadrock hotel and saloon owner Lank Hawkins, played by Brad Allen.

Survey: Men want flowers, too

ALEXANDRIA, VA. — After generations of following traditional gender roles, men and women in the '90s are enjoying a more open and equal society. So today women are confronted with a daunting question: What do you give a '90s guy for Valentine's Day?

This February 14th no woman should struggle to find the ideal way to say, "I love you." As it turns out, women have long had the perfect Valentine's Day gift right under their noses. What men really want to receive is the same classic expression of romance they've been giving to women throughout the ages — flowers.

Indeed, 61% of men of all ages say they would like to receive flowers from a woman for Valentine's Day, according to a new nationwide survey conducted by Bruskin/Goldring Research for the Society of American Florists.

However, while the majority of men would like to receive flowers on February 14th, just 40% said they have received Valentine's Day flowers in past years, indicating that a substantial proportion of men have never enjoyed this hoped-for gift.

Contributing to this disparity is the fact that the majority of flowers are bought by men. In 1996, women made only 27% of Valentine's Day flower purchases according to the American Floral Endowment Consumer Tracking Study.

"Women may want to consider surprising their sweethearts with flowers as an unexpected Valentine's Day treat," said Denise Lee, floral consultant and trendspotter for SAE.

"Men in the '90s are open to being romanced. They know they give flowers to women to 'I love you' or 'You are special.' Now it's their turn to be on the receiving end," Lee continued.

"And don't forget, a man who experiences the enjoyment of receiving flowers will be wise to the art of giving flowers to the women in his life, whether sweetheart, mother, daughter, sister or friend."

Good eating habits help insure healthy life

It is obvious to most parents that they are responsible for potty-training their children, putting them to bed on time and teaching them good manners. It is also a parent's responsibility to help children learn good eating habits so that they will grow normally.

Normal growth in children is rapid during the first two years of life followed by a slow but steady increase in height and weight during years two thru 10 or until the onset of puberty. Teenagers grow rapidly during certain times after puberty. The obese child continues to rapidly gain weight between the ages of two and ten, or the age of puberty. Twenty-seven percent of children who are overweight between one and five will remain overweight or obese as adults. This number increases 42% for those who become obese between three and nine and to 83% for those who become obese between ten and thirteen.

Children who remain obese are at higher risk for several diseases than normal weight individuals. Obesity is the major cause of high blood pressure in children. Fifty percent of obese children also have high insulin levels although they may not have diabetes. This may lead to Type II diabetes as an adult.

Genetics is one of the underlying causes for why some people seem to control weight gain while others gain easily. Our genes will determine to a certain extent how easily we put on weight, the amount and location of fat on the body, our preference for fat, our desire to exercise and how fast we gain weight after we lose it. However, genetics is not the only reason people gain weight. A family's eating and exercise habits also cause them to gain weight.

Homemakers' News Donna Brauchi

The influence of genetics may be as much as 5% to 40%. The other 60% is accounted for as environmental and behavioral reasons.

The availability of food increases the probability that the genetic potential for obesity will be expressed. Now a variety of food is available most anytime and anywhere. Fast food establishments do not encourage weight control or development of good eating habits. Since most of these foods are coated with breading and then fried, they often contain high amounts of fat and calories. The problem is now aggravated by new sales gimmicks offering even larger portions.

Forming good habits is easier than trying to change habits practiced for a lifetime. Some ideas for establishing family guidelines to promote good eating habits include:

— Serve high calorie sweets such as pie, cake and ice cream only on certain days of the week or only occasionally if weight is a problem.

— Provide direction for children to know when, where and what they can eat.

— Plan and limit snacks. If weight is a problem for any family member, purchase of chips, cookies, candy and ice cream should be limited or not purchased. Provide instead, fruit, vegetables, pretzels, popcorn and nonfat frozen yogurt or ice milk.

— Do not use food as a bribe to make children behave or as a reward for good behavior.

— Serve as a role model for good eating habits. People who eat together eat similar kinds and amounts of food. All members of the family should learn acceptable portion sizes for children.

— Use the Food Guide Pyramid as a guide for eating for children and adults. Generally children need the same number of servings as adults but in smaller portions. If a child is gaining too much weight, the parents should serve the food to him, rather than allowing the child to serve himself.

— Remember that parents are role models for teaching their children to be active. Involve children in a variety of activities around the home including play, so the child uses the energy he eats.

— Children watch grandparents too. They can influence children to develop either good or bad eating and exercise habits.

THE WORD OF GOD TO NO PROFIT

"Let us fear therefore, lest haply, a promise being left of entering into His rest, any one of you should seem to come short of it. For indeed we have had good tidings preached unto us, even as also they; but the word of hearing did not profit them, because it was not united by faith with them that heard." (Heb. 4:1-2.) The Israelites had been instructed by God through Moses. However, as the Hebrew writer says, it did not profit them because they did not believe what they heard. Consequently, that generation, with the exception of Caleb and Joshua, did not enter into the land of Canaan (Num. 14:20-30; Psa. 95:11.) We wonder how those people could have doubted the power of God in His Word. They had witnessed the miracles performed by Moses in Egypt and the parting of the waters of the Red Sea. In the wilderness they had been fed with the manna from heaven and received the water from the rock. Still they would not believe the Word of the Lord to the extent that they would do what God told them to do. The Hebrew writer's point is that we, today, can fail to enter into heaven for the same reason those Israelites failed to enter Canaan. That is, if we do not believe the Word of God directed to us today. The warning of Hebrews four is appropriate for people today. We are dealing with the same God who still demands obedience by faith to His will (Matt. 7:21; Rom. 5:1.) He promises the reward of heaven for the faithful today even as he promised the reward of Canaan for the faithful Israelites. We live under the gospel of Christ today and must believe and obey that gospel if we are to be saved (1 Cor. 9:21; Mk. 16:15-16; 2 Thess. 1:8.) The Word of God directs one to believe in Jesus Christ (Jn. 8:24), repent of one's sins (Acts 17:30), confess Christ (Rom. 10:10), and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38.) The Israelites were not allowed to enter Canaan because of unbelief (Heb. 3:19.) Therefore, to refuse to do what one hears amounts to unbelief. Faith must work in order to avail (Gal. 5:6.)

rounding us or as an issue about which one cares deeply; 3) discovering on the Internet, educational material related to our eco-region.

Participants will need access to a computer. Even though the result of the project will become a part of a web page, the participants do not have to have Internet access. Youth may work in small groups or independently.

An orientation session on Explore Texas will be conducted at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 30 at Clarendon College. Angela Burkham, Extension 4-H and Youth Development Specialist will provide details concerning the project and review available resources and project materials.

The letters will be mailed one per week for four weeks. This educational opportunity is provided free of charge by the Gray County office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

To register for the letter series, call the Gray County Extension office at 669-8033.

Embattled Young Wife Wonders Whether To Lay Down Her Arms

DEAR ABBY: I am really confused: I am 21 years old and I have two small children. I got pregnant and married at 17, so I haven't had much experience at life. I felt if I was woman enough to get pregnant, I was woman enough to take care of the child and raise it as best I could — and I am doing that.

It never bothered me that I didn't have much of a teen-age life because I had been through a lot and had grown up fast. My husband, on the other hand, was not at all ready for a family. He married me, but when my baby was 8 months old he started messing around, so I left.

When I came back, things were OK — but then he started drinking a lot and got both mentally and physically abusive. Things just seemed to get worse and worse, so I kicked him out. Then I found out I was pregnant with our second child. I didn't know what to do. He was living with some other girl and still coming to my home, making my life a living hell.

Then he told me he wanted to come back to his family — so like a fool, I took him back. After my second child was born, I thought things were all right. But then I discovered that he was still seeing the same girl and that she had a baby. He swears it's not his; she says it is.

Now he has decided that he's finally ready to be a father and husband. I don't know what I want to do. I have held on and been through so much for him. But I don't trust him and don't know that I ever will. I don't have the same love for him that I once did.

Abigail Van Buren

Should I continue this relationship? Should I call it quits? Do you believe someone can change his whole way of life in only a few short months?

Please help me. I don't know what to do.

LOST IN JACKSON, MISS.

DEAR LOST: A person can make great strides in changing his or her attitudes if there is sufficient motivation — but considering your husband's history, I wouldn't bank on this reconciliation. Continue this relationship only on the condition that he agrees to joint marriage counseling with you, and that he make it possible for you to continue and complete your education. That way, if things do not work out, you will be able to support your children without having to depend on him. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 21-year-old single female in love with a 26-year-old male (I'll call Freddy) whom I hope to marry one day. Freddy and I have been dating for a year and have talked about marriage, but there is nothing definite yet.

The problem is Freddy's roommate, Ralph. Ralph's girlfriend, Debbie, moved in with him and Freddy. I'm not exactly jealous, but I hate the idea of the three of them living together in that little apartment. It's only big enough for two, and it must be very crowded and uncomfortable. Freddy says Debbie is only staying there until she and Ralph get married, but no date has been set yet and they don't seem in any hurry.

Abby, if Ralph and Debbie want to live together, don't you think they should get their own place? All my friends think it's the pits, and they keep asking me how I can let it go on. I'm really upset and don't know what to do. Is there some way I can get Debbie out of there? Or should Freddy move out? Please advise.

IN THE MIDDLE IN MIDLAND

DEAR IN: As I see it, you are not in the middle. You are more appropriately on the outside — Freddy is in the middle. If he's crowded and uncomfortable, he should move out. The decision is his, not yours.

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

WHEAT - (BULL)

Outlook: Last week we mentioned that every so often there is a major surprise in the first seedings estimate for the U.S. winter wheat crop. This is released by the USDA in mid-January.

The last major surprise came five years ago. In that year, the acreage estimate came in about 4 million lower than anticipated. The day after that report, the July of 1992 Chicago futures crossed above $3.50. Only six weeks later the July was 80¢/bushel higher.

This year's report came out with a surprise something like '92. The planted acreage, at only 48.2 million, was about 4 million under expectations. Apparently, the late row crop harvest in the Midwest cut into planted wheat acres. July 1997 wheat has just crossed above $3.50. It is at a 30¢ discount to the spot price, and with much of the growing season ahead of us looks cheap to me at this time.

Strategy: Hedgers: Our ultimate plan is to look for a low cost opportunity to buy new crop put options to hedge new crop prices without limiting upside potential. At this juncture, the market looks stable enough, even buoyant enough, to hold off on these purchases for a better deal. Kind of like shopping around for lower insurance premiums.

Traders: Look to buy July Chicago futures at $3.59 or lower. Risk to a close under $3.47, and leave the upside objective open at this time.

CORN - (BULL/BEAR)

Outlook: The January crop report confirmed what we had thought - namely, last year's crop was a big one. At 9.293 million bushels (this is the final crop year estimate) this was about 30 million higher than the November report. However, the report was not totally bearish, as feed use was reported at a record pace.

Because of this, ending stocks are now forecast at under 1 billion bushels. This is not particularly burdensome, or particularly exciting either. Based on these numbers, the corn market is probably finished falling for the time being. Based on large overhanging supplies, I do not look for a major rally either.

Strategy: Hedgers: Based on previous advice, you should be sold out of all old crop cash supplies at higher levels. If you wish to speculate on higher prices, you own call options. With calls, you profit from higher without unmanageable downside risk.

Traders: No new trading recommendations at this time.

CATTLE - (BULL)

Outlook: Harsh winter weather had turned the cattle price trend up for now. I've heard weights are as much as 30 pounds under a year ago. Weight gains are hampered by severe cold in some areas. Death loss in the Dakotas is high, but it is too early to tell how bad.

Weather could get better, but who knows? It's still early in the winter season, and this very tough winter might continue to trouble the cattle industry and subsequently tighten nearby supplies.

Strategy: Feeders: We've recommended the purchase of February Live Cattle 64 puts for downside protection. They are cheap, under a buck, and they are a better way to go in current market conditions than selling futures or forward contracting. Puts leave upside potential open, but place a guaranteed floor price under your market.

Cow/calf operators: Due to relatively tight supplies, and available feed, we've opted to accept the risk of the marketplace at this time. No hedges are recommended yet.

Traders: February futures never reached our purchase price under 6350. All recommendations canceled for now.

Soybean conference set in South Carolina

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -Soybean producers will have an opportunity to learn more about production research and soybean product technologies at the fifth annual Southern Soybean Conference, sponsored by the United Soybean Board (USB), on Feb. 11-13 at the Kingston plantation in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

"We have had tremendous successes with this conference in the past. Each year the conference gets better. We think this year's conference will draw the largest number of growers of any of the previous conferences," says USB Chairman David Winkles, a producer from Sumter, S.C. "The information shared at Southern Soybean Conference has contributed to the advancement of the soybean industry."

This year's conference program, which begins at 11 a.m. on Feb. 11 and runs through noon on Feb. 13, includes sessions on managing pest resistance, new insect and weed control strategies, risk management, financial planning, market outlook and innovations in conservation tillage.

"A major concern over the past few years is keeping up with the growing global demand for soybeans. For seven of the past ten years, soybean demand has surpassed supply," explains Winkles.

To meet this global demand, researchers are examining soybean varieties to increase yields while also improving protein. University Extension agronomists and researchers from North Carolina State University (NCSU), Texas A&M University, the University of Missouri and the University of Georgia will provide farmers with information on choosing the right varieties. There is also a session on soybean biotechnology advancements.

Researchers from Clemson University, Georgia and NCSU will conduct a session on nematode management, focusing on nematode sampling and identification, cultural controls for nematode management and nematode management plan development.

"Since soybean cyst nematode (SCN) is the most serious pest in the U.S., particularly in the Southern states, the nematode management session is expected to attract numerous growers," says Winkles. "The nematode can cause millions of dollars worth of soybean yield losses - up to 30 percent

- without any obvious symptoms."

Other conference highlights include a trade show with industrial and educational exhibits, a pest identification booth where farmers can test their pest management skills and a poster and educational paper presentation by land grant universities.

For a registration form or more information, write to: Southern Soybean Conference, 7219 Manchester Rd., St. Louis, MO 63143; call 800-266-0866; or send a fax to 314-645-4130.

The registration fee to attend the conference is $50, and spouses are free. The registration fee includes admission to all sessions, a barbecue dinner on Tuesday evening, continental breakfast on Wednesday and Thursday, lunch on Wednesday and all breaks. Those registering before Feb. 1 are eligible for an early registration prize drawing.

For hotel information, contact Radisson hotels at 800-333-3333 or www.radisson.com. Ocean-front hotel suites are available at a special rate of $95 a night. To receive the special rate, inform hotel reservationist that you are attending the Southern Soybean Conference.

Grain elevator workshop scheduled

AMARILLO - Post harvest problems affecting stored grain will top the agenda for the 1997 Texas High Plains Grain Elevator Workshop scheduled at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center on Thursday, Jan. 30.

The event will feature education updates on damage resulting from diseases, insects and rodents, and will address fumigation concerns, in addition to all laws and regulations of interest in the grain storage and processing industry.

The workshop is sponsored each year by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Tri-State Chapter of the Grain Elevator and Processing Society (GEAPS). It will be held from 8 a.m. until 3:45 p.m.

The workshop has been accredited by the Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) for five continuing education units (CEUs) and will be offered for commercial, non-commercial and private pesticide applicator recertification requirements. Categories and units will be given in integrated pest management (1.0) laws and regulations (1.0) and general topics (3.0).

Greg Cronholm, Extension pest management entomologist from Plainview, will open the morning session with a general conference overview at 8:45 a.m. Don Shaheen, with DeGesch America Inc.

from Weyers Cave, Va., will discuss toxicology, a new phosphine generator and phosphine corrosion issues.

Larry Whitlock with the Texas State Chemist's Office at College Station will present sampling data from 1992-96 on aflatoxin in grain and whole seed. The final speaker before a break for lunch at 11:30 a.m. will be Scott Hynstrom, Extension, wildlife damage specialist with the University of Nebraska from Lincoln, who will discuss rodent control in stored grain facilities.

The afternoon program will begin at 12:45 p.m. with David Hoffman, GEAPS Tri-State Chapter president, Amarillo, as moderator. Gerrit Cuperus with the Oklahoma Cooperative Extension Service at Stillwater will address integrated pest management issues in stored grain.

David Kostroun with TDA in Austin will provide a Karnal Bunt disease report. The final presentation on pesticide handling laws and regulations will be presented by Don Renchie, Texas Extension Service specialist from College Station.

The workshop will adjourn following the evaluation and CEU certification at 3:45 p.m.

The conference cost is $25. To register and obtain information, call Carl Patrick, Extension entomologist, at (806) 359-5401.

Gruber to host reduce-tillage farming program

GRUBER - Ridge-till and no-till producers and specialists from Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas will gather in Gruber on Wednesday Feb. 5 to discuss reduce-tillage farming.

The program will be held in the Hansford County Show Barn in Gruber, beginning at 10 a.m. Various implement dealers will have no-till and ridge-till equipment on hand. Four CEU's will be offered, and the noon meal will be provided.

With rainfall being the foremost limiting factor in crop production on the High Plains of Texas, the manner in which a producer makes use of his or her soil moisture can very well determine the profitability of the operation.

With the hike in the prices of diesel and natural gas, a reduction in pumping and equipment impacts can make a substantial impact on production costs. A growing number of procedures are finding that conservation tillage systems have the answers they are looking for.

Dr. Hans Kok, professor of Agronomy from Kansas State University, will provide the keynote address. He has performed extensive research into rainfall management, and farmers relate well to his explanations of how conserved moisture and restored organic matter translates into increased yields and profits.

In addition to Kok, some of the area's foremost authorities on ridge-till and no-till farming will provide presentations on their operations. These speakers bring a number of years of experience and diversity to the program. Systems highlighted will include non-irrigated systems, furrow and center pivot irrigated systems, and operations encompassing stocker cattle and cow/calf programs.

Scheduled to speak are Harold Brall and Kurt Stallwitz of Dumas; Bob District of Tyrone, Okla.; Gaylon Beer of Guymon, Okla.; Jim Reinert of Ensign, Kan.; and Richard Schad of Gruber.

These presentations will be given during breakaway sessions to allow producers to build their own program. There are four opportunities to hear classroom style presentations. Six speakers and topics will be offered, with each speaker making their presentation twice.

If attending, please RSVP by calling the NRCS office in Spearman at (806) 659-2330.

When cold weather comes, don't forget stock

CLARENDON - Low temperatures and cold, blustery winds can result in extra distress for your livestock and pets.

"With the cold weather and negative wind chill factors, prior planning is necessary," said Jerry Hawkins, Clarendon College Agriculture Department chairperson. "Animals expel more energy when the weather is cold. You may think they are shivering because of the cold, but actually all animals shiver to generate more heat for the body."

Hawkins recommends a few easy tips for protecting your animal:

— Provide plenty of high energy and high fiber feed. Adequate amounts of roughage are needed for livestock. An animal's digestive process actually creates heat.

— Protection from the wind is important for all animals. Barns, groves of trees, brush piles and the like are suitable for large livestock. Dogs and cats should be provided outside houses or moved indoors, such as in a garage. Avoid moving animals in and outdoors too much. The drastic temperature changes are not healthy for your pet.

— Supply plenty of fresh water. Keep ice broken off the top of tanks, troughs and watering dishes.

— If hay or wood shavings are used for bedding, keep them warm and dry.

When preparing for cold weather, don't forget your livestock and pets. A few moments of preparation can prevent costly vet bills and even death, Hawkins added.

TSCRA schedules School for Successful Ranching in Fort Worth

FORT WORTH — Two panels of highly respected cattle producers will headline the 1997 Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association School for Successful Ranching in Fort Worth, Texas, March 22-23, says TSCRA President Chaunce O. Thompson Jr. of Breckenridge.

"Last year, our participants told us they wanted to hear more from producers who have actually made a living in the cattle business," says Thompson. "So, we have gathered some of the best ranchers in Texas to share what they have learned through nearly 400 years of cumulative experience in ranching. We are extremely fortunate to have producers of this caliber on our program."

The range, pasture and wildlife session will feature a panel called "I've Been There," with six well-known producers discussing their experiences with drought over the years and what they would do differently if they could start over.

The lineup includes Gene Walker Sr. of Laredo; Lon Cartwright of Dinero; Ed Harrell of Claude; W.J. "Dub" Waldrip of Lubbock; Tom B. Saunders IV of Weatherford; J.E. White Jr. of Marfa; and moderator Wayne Hamilton of College Station.

Walker's experiences have brought him full circle from the days when he drove cattle on horseback to the railroad pens, to his present method of gathering by helicopter and selling via satellite.

Cartwright has been in the business for 50 years and runs a cow-calf and stocker operation called Twin Oaks Ranch.

Harrell represents the third generation of Harrell Ranch operations in Armstrong County, with 500 cows, a yearling enterprise and a partnership with his son.

Waldrip, president and CEO of Spade Ranches in Texas and New Mexico, has been nationally recognized for his management skills and has provided leadership to organizations such as the institution known at press time as National Cattlemen's Beef Association and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

White is only the third manager of the Brite Ranch Estate, which is more than 100 years old, and is involved with his family's two ranches which separately produce commercial and registered Hereford Cattle.

Saunders is a fifth-generation rancher whose father was the first cattle dealer on the Fort Worth Stockyards, and his family's sole income has been generated from livestock since they first came to Texas in 1850.

The panel will be moderated by Hamilton, director of the Center for Grazinglands and Ranch Management, who has been a consultant to Texas ranches and global range and livestock programs since 1968.

"Many ranchers are now considering a stocker program to diversify their operations and build up numbers," says J. David Eppright, a Bebe, Texas, rancher and chairman of the school's advisory committee. "We asked five producers, who together have more than 150 years of experience with stockers, to explain their strategies and answer questions from the crowd."

The stocker panel will consist of Don Keeling of Jouranton; Jay Gray of Gonzales; Alonzo Peeler Jr. of Jouranton; Kerry Cornelius of Fort Worth; Adolf Schmidt of Wellington; and moderator Jim Link of Fort Worth.

Keeling has experience in everything from riding feedlot pens to managing large cow-calf and stocker operations. He now runs only stockers on native grass, improved grass and small grain pastures in South and West Texas, Louisiana, Kansas and Oklahoma, in addition to working for Friona Industries in customer services.

Gray is a partner in Gray Cattle Co., a family-owned and managed cow-calf, stocker and feeding operation. Also, as general manager of Graham Land and Cattle Co., he oversees an 18,000-head custom feedlot and 7,000-head growing operation on a daily basis.

Peeler has run stockers for 10 out of his 40 years in ranching. His retained ownership operation consists of calves bought from both auction rings and ranches, along with a cow-calf enterprise that now accounts for 40 percent of his business.

Cornelius is an assistant director of the Ranch Management Program at Texas Christian University, and was previously ranch foreman of the 6666-Brazos Division of Burnett Ranches Ltd. His family operation in Parker and Palo Pinto counties also includes both stockers and cow-calves.

Schmidt, born and raised in Germany, joined his father-in-law in the cattle business in 1978, but has operated the farm and ranch on his own for 10 years. He is strictly a stocker operator, running 1,000 to 1,500 head on winter wheat pasture, and 600 to 1,000 head on grass during the summer.

Link, director of the TCU Ranch Management Program, will moderate the panel. He was raised in the ranching business and currently runs a stocker operation which includes both native and Mexican cattle grazed in Texas and Kansas, depending on the season.

Along with the beef management and range, pasture and wildlife sessions, the program includes a special employee relations and business workshop.

The school is sponsored by Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association and funded through an educational grant from Donnell Ag. Products and DowElanco. For more information, contact Lionel Chambers or Sharla Adams at (800) 242-7820 or (817) 332-7155.

SPE schedules International Thermal Operations and Heavy Oil Symposium

With ten technical sessions, including 50 top quality papers from authors in nine countries, the 1997 Society of Petroleum Engineers' International Thermal Operations and Heavy Oil Symposium (ITOHOS) will offer a comprehensive presentation on thermal operations and heavy oil production.

Scheduled for the Holiday Inn Select in Bakersfield, Calif., Feb. 10-12, ITOHOS also will include four short courses as well as a trip to the Kern River Field preceding the symposium.

Technical sessions scheduled are: Surface Operations (two sessions); Modeling Rock Properties; Emerging Technologies/Downhole Operations; Simulation Studies; Case Histories; Advances in Cyclic Stimulation; Modeling Fluid Properties; Reservoir Management; and Horizontal Wells.

Keynote speaker for the symposium will be Robert A. Solberg, vice president of Texaco Inc. and president of Texaco's Middle East/Far East Division. Solberg's topic will be "Heavy Oil and Technology — A Winning Combination." His presentation will take place at the Keynote Luncheon on Tuesday, Feb. 11.

At the Keynote Luncheon, two Thermal and Heavy Oil Pioneer Awards will be honored. They are S.M. Farouq Ali, professor of petroleum engineering at the University of Alberta, and William E. Brigham, research professor of petroleum engineering and former associate chairman of the Petroleum Engineering Department at Stanford University.

The short courses will be conducted on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 8-9. They will include Steam Distribution and Metering; Steamflood Reservoir Management; Pitfalls to Avoid in Designing Basic and EOR Facilities; and Horizontal Wells for Heavy Oil Recovery.

The Kern River Field tour will start at 1 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 9. Discovered in 1899, the field was revitalized in the early 1960s through steamflooding and is a model for the latest innovations in that process.

Today, the field has 6,500 active producing wells with Texaco, host for the tour, owning approximately 60 percent of Kern River's 9,660 productive acres and operating more than 4,800 active producing wells which yield 95,000 BOPD and 700,000 BWPD.

More than 900 active injection wells inject approximately 250,000 barrels of water daily, which is converted to 80 percent quality steam using both steam generation and large cogeneration turbines.

A table-top exhibit providing information on new products and services pertinent to thermal recovery will be held outside the symposium session rooms.

"Anyone with an interest in thermal operations or heavy oil recovery will find this event extremely beneficial," said Vic Ziegler, co-chairman for the 1997 ITOHOS. "The symposium committee has done an excellent job of putting together a strong, well balanced program," added co-chairman M. Kumar.

Thermal recovery contributes approximately 1.3 million barrels per day to worldwide production, the most of any enhanced recovery method. Heavy oil and tar compose the world's largest hydrocarbon resource base, indicating the importance of the symposium's subjects.

Registration for ITOHOS may be made by calling Freda O'Brien at 1-805-321-6869. Additional information is available from SPE headquarters in Richardson, Texas, 1-972-952-9393.

The Society of Petroleum Engineers is a nonprofit, technical and professional association whose 52,000 members from more than 100 countries are engaged in energy resources development and production.

SPE collects, distributes and exchanges information on techniques and operations related to exploration, drilling, production and management of energy resources.

Windbreaks provide residence protection

LUBBOCK — On a farm or ranch, homestead windbreaks determine where the production land ends and the homestead or "yard" begins. In Gray County such windbreaks establish more than a living boundary, they also provide protection for the residence.

Homestead windbreaks, when planted 100 feet from the home, block the hot dry winds of summer and the cold gusts of winter which in some regions may also involve snow. Such protection increases the heating and cooling efficiency of the residence, according to Robert Fewin, Texas Forestry Service area forester, Lubbock. Multiple row breaks also add natural beauty, privacy and value to a homestead, and act as a sound barrier to a highway or farm road traffic.

To ensure maximum performance, Fewin recommends a four-row farmstead: an outside shrub row, providing low density protection; two interior evergreen rows, supplying year-round security; and an inside tall deciduous row, extending the zone of protection.

Within a homestead windbreak each row and its species play a unique and yet concerted role in the life and effectiveness of the break, he says. In regions where snow drifting is a concern, a north side shrub row planted 40 feet from the main windbreak, be it of nanking cherry or aromatic sumac, will prevent snow accumulation. And for landowners desiring wildlife, the shrubs produce fruit, cover and browse which will attract and sustain wildlife populations.

The interior evergreen rows, the backbone of windbreaks, create year-round surveillance and foliage for up to 75 years or more.

The deciduous tree row, which produces a tall barrier quicker than the evergreens, provides earlier protection and also extends the maximum zone of protection on the leaside.

Regions characteristic of heavy snow fall benefit from homestead windbreaks, also referred to as living snow fences. These living fences prevent snow build-up against the house and along the entry-way or drive-way leading up to the home or headquarters.

To create a farmstead windbreak in the spring of 1997, seedlings produced by the TFS West Texas Nursery can be ordered today through Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District. For more information contact your local district at 665-1751 or for assistance in planting a multiple row, farmstead windbreak contact the TFS WTN at (806) 746-5801.

Ag water management course planned

CANYON — The Dryland Agriculture Institute and the Continuing Center at West Texas A&M University will offer a four-week course on water management beginning in February.

"Agricultural Water Management" will meet from 2-10 p.m. Mondays Feb. 10-March 3 on the WTAMU campus. The course will focus on the basic principles of water conservation and water-use efficiency.

Specific subjects will include rainfall probabilities and distribution; assessing risk associated with growing corn under dryland or limited irrigation; understanding the Potential Evapotranspiration Network (PET); crop residue management for water conservation; and crop-livestock systems as an alternative to grain production for more efficient use of rainfall.

"I think it is so critically important to use our water efficiently," Dr. B.A. Stewart, director of the Dryland Agriculture Institute at WTAMU and instructor of the course, said. "As our water table declines, the irrigation portion of our agriculture is going to continue to decline. We've got to better manage what we've got left and utilize our rainfall. As irrigation declines, rainfall is going to be our dominant water resource." Stewart is a distinguished professor of agriculture at the University and former director of the U.S.D.A. Conservation and Production Research Laboratory at Bushland.

WTAMU is aiming the course at farmers, county agents, resource conservationists, crop consultants and other professionals interested in maximizing the use of precipitation and limited irrigation resources.

The cost of the course is $48. For more information or to register, call the Continuing Education Center at (806) 656-2037.

TAR endorses home equity lending legislation

The Texas Association of Realtors (TAR) has endorsed state Rep. Steve Wolens' (D-Dallas) proposed home equity lending legislation, saying that Wolens' bill is a pro-consumer bill that offers substantial constitutional protections to the homeowners of Texas.

According to Jim Davidson, TAR Board of Directors, Rep. Wolens' bill would allow Texas homeowners to borrow against the equity in their home for education loans, major medical expenses and reverse annuity mortgages. It would also allow first lien equity loans, which could be used for refinancing, small business loans and other investment purposes. Sen. Chris Harris (R-Arlington) will sponsor this bill in the Senate.

Historically, TAR has opposed home equity lending, particularly those bills that have been introduced of behalf of the Texas lenders. One of the primary reasons for this opposition was that the bills that were filed did not offer meaningful protections for consumers. In fact, Sen. Jerry Patterson (R-Pasadena) recently filed home equity lending legislation which allows for wide-open second mortgages with little consumer protection in the Texas Constitution.

Rep. Wolens' bill includes a multitude of meaningful consumer protections, which would be placed directly in the Texas Constitution. This means that all changes would require a two-thirds vote of the Legislature as well as approval from the voters of Texas.

A few of the many protections in Wolens' bill include stiff penalties for fraudulent lenders, no personal liability for consumers and strong protections against foreclosures.

"The best part about Rep. Wolens' proposed legislation," said Davidson, "is that it allows Texas homeowners to access the equity they've built up in their homes, while at the same time offering meaningful constitutional protections to reduce their risk of foreclosure."

Farm families moving as subdivisions replace farmland in Colorado community

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — Twice since 1970, farmer Dave Stephens has sold a farm on the edge of town and moved a few miles west. He may have to move again.

A crop of new homes is growing around Stephens and other farmers on Greeley's west side.

Subdivisions are commonly divided by fields turned golden brown with the stubble of last year's crop. Cattle graze next to towering new houses.

Stephens hopes to pass on his 200-acre farm to his son, but he said selling a third time may be "inevitable."

"I guess you need to move to Grover or Briggsdale to get away from the growth," he said, referring to remote towns northeast of Greeley and Fort Collins.

Most of Greeley's residential growth is on the west side — overlooking the Rocky Mountains, about 50 miles north of Denver and 15 miles east of Fort Collins.

And the steady growth shows no signs of tapering off.

Recently, the City Council gave initial approval to a 231-acre annexation, Greeley's largest in five years, said Rebecca Safarik, director of community development. Earlier last year, the city annexed the 160-acre Poudre River Ranch. Both sites are on the west side.

Greeley residents have voiced little opposition to growth, Safarik said, although some are concerned about whether the growth is paying for the increased demands on city services.

Greeley's growth is being fueled by the same availability of good land and water that made farming and ranching vital parts of the community, said Jim Smith, a retired teacher and former city council member.

"The water that used to go on corn is now going to houses," Smith said.

Teacher group says higher pay needed

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas will face a teacher shortage of crisis proportions unless it does more to attract and keep qualified educators, starting with better salaries, a state teacher group said Friday.

The state ranks 36th in the nation in average teacher salary, says the annual pay survey by the Texas State Teachers Association. Texas teachers made an average of $32,000 in 1995-96, the latest figures available. The national average was $37,846.

With a booming economy making other professions more inviting, one-third of new teachers leave the profession by their third year, and half are gone by their fifth year.

That will be exacerbated in the next 10 years as one-third of current teachers become eligible for retirement, while public school enrollment continues to grow, said TSTA President Richard Kouri.

"If we don't start to address teacher recruitment and retention, we're going to be dealing with a very severe crisis in the very near future, and we're going to have an increase in the number of classrooms in this state that don't have a certified teacher in them," Kouri said.

In 1995-96, 31 percent of Texas public school teachers weren't certified in the areas they teach, according to a recent report to the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board.

More than 25 percent of Texas public schools had vacancies that they couldn't fill with a qualified teacher, compared with the national average of just over 15 percent. Such vacancies may be filled by giving emergency teaching permits to people who haven't been certified to teach.

"If we don't begin to address teacher salaries ... that number is going to continue to increase as the veteran teachers leave and we're unable to recruit new teacher in Texas to replace them," Kouri said.

As a minimum, the teacher group wants the Legislature to increase the state salary schedule by at least 5 percent.

Lawmakers addressed teacher salaries in their last regular session in 1995, when they raised the minimum salary scale for teachers and tied it to the state expenditure per student.

Particularly if Gov. George W. Bush's push to relieve local school property taxes and increase the state share of education funding succeeds, that clause would mean an increase in the salary scale.

Clinton, Bush plan volunteerism summit

WASHINGTON (AP) - In a show of bipartisanship, President Clinton and former President Bush announced plans Friday for an April summit on community service and volunteerism.

Retired Army Gen. Colin Powell will run the Philadelphia meeting. "Citizen service belongs to no party, no ideology. It is an American idea which every American should embrace," Clinton said in an East Room ceremony attended by Bush and Powell.

Bush said volunteerism "is not partisan politics, one side against another."

Former Presidents Carter and Reagan have pledged their support for the April 27-29 event. "Much of the work of America cannot be done by government," Clinton said. "The solution must be the American people, through voluntary service to others."

Bush was Clinton's 1992 election foe. Powell was considered a serious threat to Clinton's reelection but decided not to run for president.

Powell will serve as general chairman of the event. Former Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros will be vice chairman.

The summit will be designed to remind Americans that "service to country and service to community are not Democratic ideas, not Republican ideas, but American ideas."

The hope is to build on the efforts of Bush's "Thousand Points of Light" volunteerism initiative and Clinton's AmeriCorps community service program to encourage more activism among Americans. No new government initiatives are expected to emerge from the summit, another example of Clinton using the presidential "bully pulpit" to call for action without federal spending.

Lady Bird Johnson, the widow of former President Johnson, also is expected to attend the summit, The Philadelphia Inquirer reported. The newspaper first disclosed the summit would take place. Nancy Reagan, wife of the former president, was expected to represent her husband, who has been diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease.

Mayor Edward G. Rendell said Philadelphia was chosen at the request of former Sen. Harris Wofford, D-Pa., who is director of Clinton's national service program.
