ODESSA (AP) — Enrique Iglesias already has sold out three concerts in Los Angeles and two in Chicago, yet he's never before performed before a live audience.

That will change Sunday when he kicks off his tour from this West Texas oilpatch city.

"We chose Odessa because we liked the way it sounded," said Fernan Martinez, manager for the son of famed crooner Julio Iglesias. "Don't you think that's great — Enrique Iglesias got his start in Odessa, Texas?"

The 21-year-old Iglesias already has a Grammy to his credit and his second album, Vivir, has sold 5 million copies in just one week of release.

The Spanish-born Iglesias has lived in Miami since he was a child. So far he has only recorded Latin pop in Spanish, although he told the Odessa American that he plans an English record by the end of 1998.

PISD adopts split calendar for '97-98 year

The school calendar and school attendance zones are always a matter of concern for teachers, parents and students and this year is no exception.

After lengthy discussion with the calendar planning committee, teachers and students, the Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees Thursday voted to accept a split calendar for one year only.

The 1997-98 school year will have two start dates and two end dates depending on the grade of the student.

Pampa High School and Pampa Middle School students will begin classes on Aug. 11 and will end May 21, with graduation on May 22 for seniors.

Elementary students will begin classes on Sept. 1 and end classes on June 5.

Due to the renovation of the elementary schools, which will not be complete until the first of September, the later start date is necessary for the lower grades, but due to conflicts with the UIL competition, TAAS testing dates, six week exams and early graduation, the board decided this would be the best option for just one year.

With the renovations of the elementary schools comes new boundary lines.

After a considerable amount of work, the school board has adopted new attendance zones which Dr. Dawson Orr, school superintendent, hopes will be less confusing and keep the school population at about 450 students for each campus.

Austin Elementary School's attendance zone on the north and east includes the area within the district boundaries from a line extending Duncan Street north around to a line extending Harvester Avenue to the east. The west boundary extends from Texas Avenue north on Hobart/Perryton Parkway to the intersection of Duncan extending Duncan northward. The south boundary runs from Hobart Street along Texas Avenue to Red Deer Creek and along Red Deer Creek to Harvester Avenue extended eastward.

Lamar Elementary School's attendance zone includes the area from a line extending Buckler Avenue west to the district boundaries. It includes all the area south of the line formed by the Buckler Avenue extension and bordered on the east by Highway 273. The east boundary is Highway 273 from the south district boundary to McCullough to Osborne Street north to Albert Street and north on Cuyler Street to Texas Avenue.

Travis Elementary School will include all the area north of the line formed by the westward extension of Buckler to the district line and bordered on the east by a line from the intersection of Buckler Avenue and Hobart Street north to the Perryton Parkway and Duncan Street intersection. The eastern boundary from Perryton Parkway and Duncan Street follows a line extending Duncan Street due north.

Wilson Elementary School's zone includes the area south of the line extending Harvester Avenue eastward and along the east boundary of the district to the south district boundary, and extends along the southern district boundary westward to Highway 273. The west boundary is Highway 273 from the southern district boundary to McCullough Street, Osborne Street north to Albert Street and Cuyler Street from Albert Street to Texas Avenue.

Orr said that this will allow all four schools to accept bus students from the outlying areas. Students who will need to cross the railroad tracks will be eligible for bus transportation.

These new attendance zones should make bus access to the middle school and high school much more accessible.

Anyone having questions about the new elementary school district boundaries may contact the schools or the administration offices at Carver Center.

In other business, in executive session the school board accepted the resignations of five teachers and renewed all the contracts for teachers and other campus level administrators. The board hired Heath Parker as a teacher/coach, and Mark Helm as the high school basketball coach.

Parks Board opposes Sonic building

By SHERRY CROMARTIE
Staff Writer

After hearing from Mike Parker, manager of Coronado Inn, concerning the proposed building of a Sonic Drive In on the corner near the hotel-motel location, the City Parks and Recreation Advisory Board voted against the city granting easements for driveways across Coronado Park property.

In his presentation, Parker indicated Sonic's building project would require entryways of 30 feet to 45 feet on and off the streets at the corner of Hobart and Somerville, in order for the business to serve its customer clientele. He also indicated that the present statue located on that corner may need moving, and that the Sonic people would be willing to relocate the statue anywhere suggested by the park board.

"I was, frankly, shocked that Mike was actually in favor of a fast food service on that corner, and I'm personally opposed to it. I cannot visualize any commercial business on that particular corner," said Judy Elliott, member of the advisory board.

Further discussions were negative about the type of business located at that particular corner, the possible traffic hazards, and trash and debris that might accumulate around the park areas. The majority were not in favor of moving the Perry LeFors statue, and expressed their feelings that a fast food business located in the park area would be an eyesore.

It was pointed out by Reed Kirkpatrick, city parks director, that if the city should take action, it would have to go to a referendum, referencing deed restrictions on file in the county deed records, wherein the conveyance of the property is subject to restrictions that the property "shall never be used for any purpose other than for park and playground purposes, ..."

In other business, the board gave its unanimous support and approval on the recommendation presented by Clean Pampa Inc. member Jim Oblak to form a junior extension of CPI to adopt a park area under its supervision.

The original idea was recently presented to the CPI director, Lora Baggerman, by a local fifth grade student, Oblak said.

Oblak explained that through fund raising efforts and grants, it could be possible for local school students to develop a separate park, maintained by the students. He suggested the student population could hold their own fund raising projects, and although there is not sufficient funds available to take on a major location, small things can be started, like planting trees, flowers and small shrubs. He requested the board look into finding a location for another park area.

"The whole idea is to get the local children to exercise pride in having such a playground park to be their own," he said.

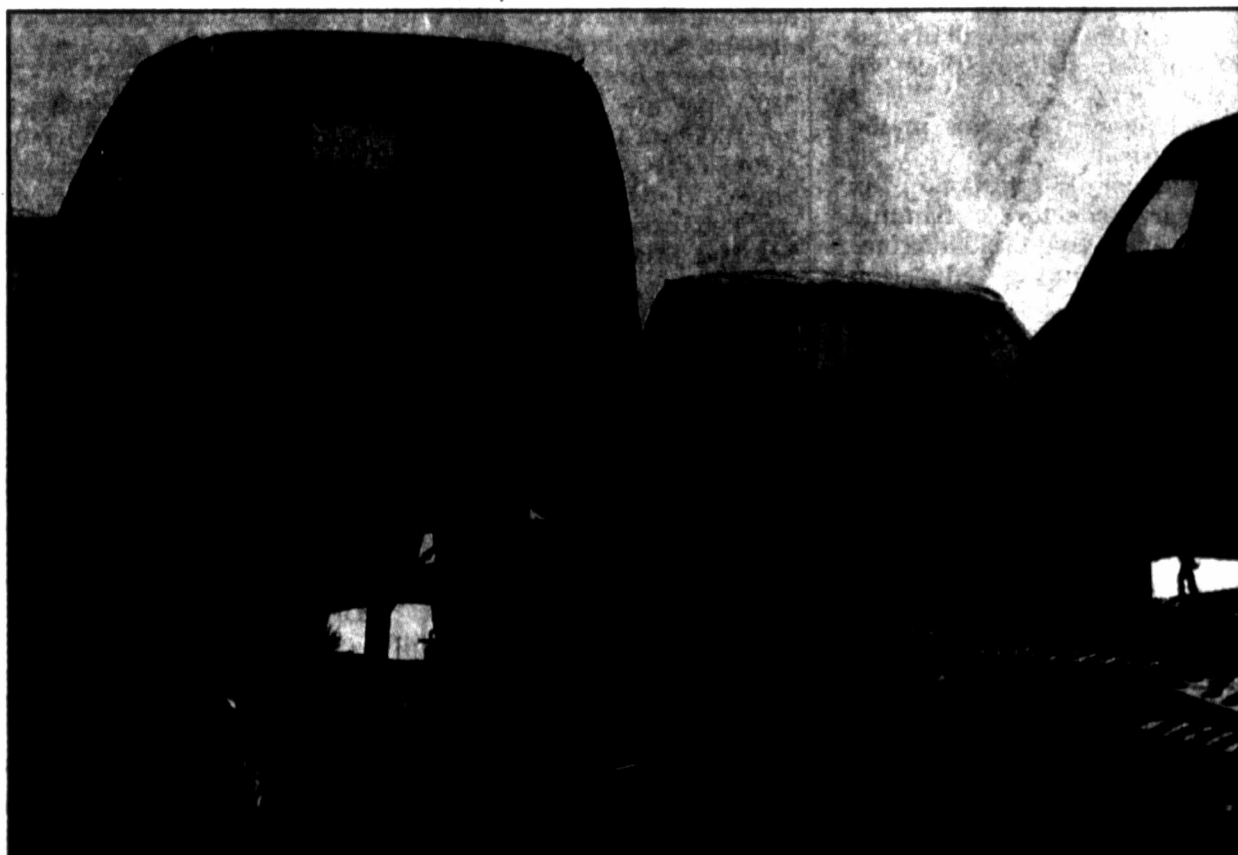

"I think it's a wonderful idea. It is good to have all students motivated — to give them a chance to give something back to their community," said board director Eileen Kludt. Others on the board agreed with Kludt.

In other matters, the board approved 5-1 using the water bill donations to complete improvements and repair on a multi-use sports court in Recreation Park.

"At this point, we do not have adequate information," said Elliott. "We should have a positive idea of accounting in the water bill donation account, and I would like to request an update report."

Kirkpatrick said money has been set aside for these improvements and recommended using it for the purposes of a basketball court/multi-use court as proposed. He agreed to see that an accounting report would be available at the next board meeting.

Researchers say Hale-Bopp erupting with chemicals of life

WASHINGTON (AP) — An analysis of the tons of organic molecules spewing out of comet Hale-Bopp supports a theory that such celestial visitors may have delivered to Earth the chemical seeds of life billions of years ago.

In studies published today, scientists report on the composition and character of the dust and gas that are jetting out of Hale-Bopp as the comet hurtles away from sun in its long journey back into deep space.

"Most of what we're seeing is water ice, but there are also plenty of hydrocarbons and organic molecules that you would need for the genesis of life," said Harold Weaver, a Johns Hopkins University astrophysicist.

"One of the major new findings from Hale-Bopp is all of these chemical molecules that are erupting from the comet as it heats from the sun," Weaver said.

Hale-Bopp, as are other comets, is an aggregation of ice, dust and chemicals, sort of a "dirty snowball," that remains frozen in the deep cold of outer space. Only when a comet approaches the sun does the ice warm up and send geysers of material streaming away as the distinctive comet tail.

But what makes Hale-Bopp different from other comets, Weaver said, is its size, 19 miles to 25 miles in diameter, and the fact that never before have sophisticated astronomical instruments gotten such a long look at a comet passing the sun.

"We've found that the surface of Hale-Bopp is an extremely violent place, with vents opening up as they are exposed to sunlight for the first time," Weaver said.

The studies published today include observations started shortly after Hale-Bopp was discovered on July 23, 1995.

Weaver said comets are thought to have formed near the edge of the solar system, beyond Jupiter, at about the same time as Earth and the other planets. Because the comets are so far from the sun, they may be composed of the original, unchanged matter that made up the stellar cloud that gave birth to the sun and the solar system bodies.

Windy day for moving

Moving a house against the wind gusts blowing across the Panhandle high plains land gives the W.K. Bigham & Sons truck drivers one more challenge in their 450 mile trek from Lubbock to Ulysses, Kan. Bigham, formerly of Lefors, relocated his house moving business to Lubbock several years ago. He says he is used to the wind blowing. "Sometimes, it even helps push this truck along a little easier!" he said. The house-moving entourage made a brief stop at the south side of Pampa Thursday to review the best and safest route to use going around the city as high winds blew across the area.

Entities receive tax assessment/collection bids

Pampa Finance Director John Horst was named the designated office to receive sealed bid packages on the Request for Proposal on Tax Assessment/Collection Services by the City of Pampa, Pampa Independent School District and Lefors Independent School District in a meeting at 11 a.m. Thursday.

Two bid packages were acknowledged received from the offices of Gray County Tax Assessor/Collector Sammie Morris and Gray County Appraisal District. Mrs. Morris, representing the county, and Pat Bagley, representing the Appraisal District office, were present. The bids were not opened for discussion. Copies of each proposal were provided to the proper taxing entities to be reviewed by each individual board.

Also present at the meeting were City Commissioner Jeff Andrews; Business Manager Mark McVay, of Pampa Independent School District; City Secretary Phyllis Jeffers and City Purchasing Secretary Crystal Roberts.

The City of Pampa and the Pampa and Lefors school districts are seeking applications for the contract services for the tax assessment and collection period of one year, beginning July 1, 1997, through June 30, 1998, or thereafter, until the successor shall have been duly selected and qualified according to state laws.

The primary objectives of the assessment/collection agreement, or component of the overall treasury and debt management programs of the entities, are:

- To consolidate all of the duties, actions and steps of assessing and collecting the property taxes for the City, Pampa ISD and Lefors ISD;
- To seek an assessor/collector that will calculate and publish the effective tax rates for the city and school districts;
- To seek an assessor/collector that will involve the city and school districts in the selection of a delinquent tax collection firm; and

- To adequately compensate the assessor/collector for services provided.

The city's and school districts' staffs and advisors, after reviewing the two proposals, will base final selection on the taxing/collection service's ability to perform the requested services; its agreement to points outlined in the Request for Proposal; and its qualifications and experience of tax collection and the cost of services.

Each entity reserves the right to request additional information or meet with representatives from the proposing organizations to discuss points in the proposal before and after submission, before entering agreed independent contracts.

According to Horst, the city commissioners will review the contract proposals at their meeting at 6 p.m. April 8.

The Lefors ISD board of directors will meet April 8, and Pampa ISD board of directors will meet April 24.

Research doctor allegedly tries to extort money

NEW YORK (AP) - A doctor who did research with laboratory rats has been arrested on charges of trying to extort $5 million from McDonald's by claiming he had ingested a fried rat tail while eating french fries.

Dr. Michael F. Zankis, a former associate professor at the New York College of Osteopathic Medicine, also was accused of trying to extort money from the Coca-Cola Co. with a false claim that he had ingested "small bits of greasy particles" from a can of Coke.

Zankis, 43, of Harding, N.J., was arrested Thursday in East

Orange, N.J., on charges contained in a 23-count indictment that was unsealed in New York.

Prosecutors said Zankis claimed he bought a Happy Meal on Jan. 15, 1996, for his son at a McDonald's in Port Jefferson Station and found a rat tail in the french fries.

He then demanded that he be paid $5 million or he would go public with the story and put his son in front of a camera holding the "fried rat tail," federal prosecutors said.

Zankis put the rat tail in the fries, the indictment said.

Prosecutors also said he falsely claimed he suffered nausea and gastritis from the grease in the soda, had to cancel patient evaluations and lost revenues because of the illness.

He eventually extorted $4,600 from Coca-Cola and a bottling company by threatening to take his story to the media, prosecutors said. The indictment charges that Zankis put the grease in the can.

If convicted, Zankis faces a maximum of five years in prison on each of 21 fraud counts and 20 years on each of two extortion counts.

Mass suicide cult leader hailed from Texas

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) - Cult leader Marshall Herff Applewhite was a West Texas native and a Corpus Christi High School graduate who impressed his teachers and excelled at music, friends and family members say.

Applewhite, 66, was the co-founder of the "UFO cult" that committed mass suicide in Rancho Santa Fe, Calif. His was among the 39 bodies found in the California hilltop mansion, the San Diego County Coroner's Office said today.

Eight other Texans also were believed to be among the victims. Their names and hometowns hadn't been released by early today.

Applewhite's 69-year-old sister Louise Winant, told Corpus Christi TV station KRIS that her brother developed cult ties after what she called a "near-death experience" about 20 years ago.

He had an illness in Houston and one of the nurses there told him that he had a purpose, that God kept him alive," Ms. Winant said. "She sort of talked him into the fact that this was the purpose - to lead these people - and he took it from there.

"We tried to talk him out of this," Ms. Winant said today on ABC's Good Morning America. "But he said 'You don't know me.' He was a sincere man and I'm sure he believed everything he talked about."

Ms. Winant, of Port Aransas, said she got a sinking feeling when she heard of the suicides of 21 women and 18 men, all with closely cropped hair and wearing identical black outfits.

"It's not surprising," she said. "He has so much charisma, he can convince others of almost anything." Asked if that included suicide, she said, "Yes."

From 1966 to 1970, Applewhite was a music teacher at the University of St. Thomas, a private Catholic college in Houston, said university spokesman Ryan Rice.

Father Patrick O. Braden, then president of the university, said in 1975 that Applewhite was a "very talented musician. He had great rapport with the students."

Applewhite was born in Spur, a town some 240 miles west of Dallas, on May 17, 1931, and was the son of the Rev. Marshall Herff Applewhite, the late founder of Parkway Presbyterian church, Woodlawn Presbyterian church and the former Westminster Presbyterian Church in Corpus Christi.

The younger Applewhite graduated from Corpus Christi High School - now Corpus Christi Miller High - in 1948.

Elena Reiser of Kingsville, who taught with Applewhite at Presbyterian Pan American School, remembered him as "very talented, very dramatic and very erratic."

County to continue airport project discussions

On Tuesday, April 1, Gray County commissioners will continue discussions concerning the Perry Lefors Airport Project. The court has received bids from three engineering firms for rehabilitation work on the runways, aprons and landing lights to be reviewed thoroughly before a contract is entered into.

Commissioners will also discuss whether the county should issue a possible fire ban. There have been several grass fires reported in the county and in nearby counties in the past weeks, and the National Forest Service has requested cooperation of the Panhandle area counties, asking county judges to consider a possible fire ban.

Other matters on the agenda to be discussed and considered by the court are:

- Address from Assistant District Attorney Tracey Jennings in regards to witness fees.
- Reggie Blackwell will discuss future improvements at Lake McClellan. Action will be taken if necessary.

- Sheriff Copeland will discuss creation of office space in McLean.
- Telephone problems in the courthouse.
- Recognition of Tax Assessor/Collector Sammie Morris and Gaye Guiliani completing continuing education courses; and
- Commissioner Joe Wheeler's request to advertise for bids to purchase a bulldozer for Precinct 1.

Pampa Nursing Center participates in RUGS program

By SHERRY CROMARTIE
Staff Writer

Nursing home environment has changed a lot in the last five years. Now anything done in relation to therapy care in our local hospitals can be done in our nursing home care facilities.

Local staff of Pampa Nursing Center introduces a new nursing care program, the Medicare Case Mix Demonstration Project, which is a Resource Utilization Groups program (RUGS), a combination of Medicare and Medicaid nursing home reimbursement system currently utilized in six states.

The program was initialized in late 1996, and is now available to local nursing home care patients who qualify.

According to information from Melba Marcum, administrator of Pampa Nursing Center, of the Living Centers of Amarillo, Pampa's center was chosen in the second group of 10 nursing homes to participate in this pilot program, starting April 1.

The goal of this demonstration is to improve the quality of resident care by creating a better match of reimbursement, with clinical services and staff effort, to the individual residents' needs.

"The program is designed to gather clinical information so that Medicare reimbursement could be based on the amount of hands-on care a patient might require," Marcum said.

"Over a period of 12 months, we've had about 10 to 13 percent rehabilitated patients to be able to live independently after leaving the Pampa Nursing Center premises," said Roger Wells, admissions coordinator.

If, however, the patient is not physically able to leave the nursing care facilities, the program will still help him reach his maximum functioning level and still maintain a better lifestyle for himself within the home care, he said.

"The program particularly targets rehabilitation services with a hope that patients can be discharged back into their communities and regain some dignity and independence," said

Pampa Nursing Center administrative and nursing staff announced a new Resource Utilization Groups Service program, which is a service combination of Medicare and Medicaid for patients of the local Amarillo/Pampa Living Center facilities. The nursing home staff pictured, from left, are Debbie Douglas, director of nurses; Roger Wells, admissions coordinator; Melinda Hillman, LVN/case/mix coordinator, and Melba Marcum, administrator (sitting).

Melinda Hillman, licensed vocational nurse and Medicare/Medicaid case mix coordinator for Pampa Nursing Center.

Under the RUGS program Medicare provides a broader range of covered services. The patient who has exhausted his long-term benefits may, under certain conditions, requalify for care in a nursing home facility, according to Hillman.

"This new opportunity will allow us to qualify some people who had used up their Medicare time in a nursing home," said Hillman.

Wells explained that all Medicaid guidelines are unchanged and remain the same under the current laws. For new admissions coming into the facilities from an acute care hospital, the patient must have had a three-midnight stay in the hospital prior to his/her admittance to the facilities. A resident of the home who might requalify will be reassessed by the facility case/mix coordinator.

He said the RUGS III model consists of 44 groups for reimbursement. The resident assessment coupled with the staff effort classifies the patient into one of the 44 groups, and Medicare Part-A qualified residents who fall into the rehabilitation, extensive services, special care and clinical complex classification system will qualify for the case-mix demonstration.

Uniform Medicare Part-A coverage determines:

- Payment based on accurately assessing the resident. The higher activity means a higher reimbursement;
- Payment adjustments based on resident status at time of assessment; and
- No Part-A denials while participating in the program demonstration.

Along with RUGS, the nursing home is offering its services in physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, respiratory therapy and other therapeutic services, including music therapy. Additionally, the center employs a state certified activity director to coordinate all other resident activities.

The local living center is an 86-bed facility, of which 12 are certified Medicare beds. There are 28 beds for the secured Alzheimer's unit. Other than the Medicare/Medicaid program, respite care is provided.

"We welcome visitors each day, and enjoy giving a complete tour to those who wish to see the nursing care home. And, we encourage volunteers to offer their assistance or participate in our activities programs. It can be fun," said Marcum.

"Appreciation expressed from the people living here gives us so much satisfaction in our work. The individuals' expressions of gratitude is our reward," Wells said.

Inquiries concerning the new program should contact Melba Marcum at the Pampa Nursing Center office, (806) 669-2551.

Few students pass algebra examination

AUSTIN (AP) — Just 17 percent of Texas students who took the Algebra I end-of-course test last fall passed.

In assessing the poor showing, the Texas Education Agency noted Thursday that all students must now take Algebra I under tougher standards approved by the State Board of Education.

The board in recent years eliminated state graduation credit for lower-level math courses.

Students who finish Algebra I in the fall are taking something other than the traditional two-semester Algebra I course and may have failed previously.

The pool of students taking the test in the fall was relatively small, at just 22,932, officials said.

Last spring, 28 percent of the 226,348 students who took the Algebra I end-of-course exam passed it. The agency acknowledged that is still a low passing rate.

"The test results show that some students while in kindergarten through eighth grade did not develop the math skills needed to be successful in Algebra I," Education Commissioner Mike Moses said, calling results released Thursday "dismally low."

Gramm says Texas universities caught in crossfire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disagreement between the federal government and judges over affirmative action has placed Texas colleges in a "withering legal crossfire that can only damage them," says Sen. Phil Gramm.

The Texas Republican on Thursday urged Education Secretary Richard Riley to retract a top aide's position that Texas universities and colleges can continue to use race and ethnicity in making certain decisions.

That opinion by assistant education secretary Norma Cantu, head of the Office of Civil Rights, runs counter to the position staked out by Texas Attorney General Dan Morales.

Citing a 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling, Morales last month issued a legal opinion directing Texas colleges and universities to have race-neutral policies for admissions, financial aid, scholarships and other aspects of college life.

Morales issued the opinion after the Supreme Court left intact the 5th Circuit decision striking down the University of Texas law school's former affirmative-action admissions policy. The plan, designed to boost minority enrollment, amounted to unlawful bias against whites, the appeals court ruled.

But Ms. Cantu took issue this week with Morales' position, writing him that the 5th Circuit ruling doesn't invalidate "narrowly-tailored" race or ethnicity considerations in Texas higher education programs.

In a strongly worded letter, Gramm urged Riley to retract the Cantu position "immediately."

"It must be clear to you that Ms. Cantu has placed Texas colleges in a withering legal crossfire that can only damage them, their programs and their students," Gramm wrote. "Which of two feuding branches of our government are they to follow, risking punitive action from the other?"

Gramm's letter was prompted by outpourings of concern by Texas university administrators within the last few days, said spokesman Larry Neal.

The administrators are walking a tightrope, Neal said, fearful of disobeying a federal appeals court but at the same time worried that failure to follow Education Department mandates could jeopardize their federal funding.

Wrote Gramm: "In her zeal to pursue a political agenda, will Ms. Cantu be available to pay the fines and serve the sentence for contempt if she is successful in forcing Texas universities to flout the federal court's ruling?"

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

The Monitor (McAllen) on no-fault insurance:

Texas drivers must carry liability insurance - it's the law, and has been for 15 years. But it's a law that at least a fifth of the state's drivers ignore.

State legislators seem intent on doing something about this situation, more than a dozen bills have been filed to address it. Most of them, however, simply call for more of what they already doesn't work. The lawmakers want to stiffen penalties for those caught driving without proof of liability coverage.

If so many people statewide are ignoring the laws that already exist, what makes our lawmakers think more laws will be any more effective?

Drivers and insurers have long begged the Legislature to allow no-fault insurance policies in the state. Under the plan, anyone involved in a mishap involving a motor vehicle would simply cover his or her own expenses. Instead of paying ever-increasing premiums to cover any damage they might do to someone else, people would buy policies to protect themselves. A person who suffers physical or financial damage wouldn't face the double blow of having faithfully paid on his own policy, then being stuck with costs of his own damage because the other party wasn't insured.

Many states allow no-fault insurance, and in a majority of states it has meant lower premiums for drivers.

Such insurance seems more reasonable anyway. People shouldn't have to depend on others to insure them against the costs incurred in an accident. And the state shouldn't force people to carry policies against their will. Under no-fault, people would protect themselves, which might give more people an incentive to take out such policies.

Fifteen years of mandated liability coverage hasn't brought the desired result. Isn't it about time for a new approach?

El Paso Times on Texans and sports:

Among many Texans, the suggestion that sports are too important in this state borders on outright heresy.

That notion, though, came from no less a figure than the state's lieutenant governor. "I just think that sports has gotten completely out of hand in our state," Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said in Austin. We agree with Bullock. We also wish him luck if he wants to convert the rest of Texans. He'll need it.

Bullock cited two examples to prove his point, but there are many more. He wonders if mythical Bubba, the quintessential Texan and a fan of King Football, is proud of recent crime-related news and other controversies surrounding the Dallas Cowboys.

Second, Bullock wonders if the Legislature should be considering a plan to allow cities to raise a variety of taxes to help fund sports facilities.

Governments should support quality of life issues. Tax dollars have traditionally gone in many noncrucial directions such as stadiums, libraries and the fine arts. Bullock draws this distinction, though. Pro sports owners are fabulously wealthy. So are pro athletes. So, too, are the fans, judging from the large crowds of people who put forth triple-digit expenditures to take a family to a pro sports game.

Among all that wealth, serious commitment of tax dollars to pro sports stadiums is absurd.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram on Mexico as drug ally:

The Senate compromise on the certification of Mexico as an ally in the war against drugs - a compromise in which Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, played a major role - is a common-sense solution and one to which the House should agree.

Mexico is plagued and any damage to its economy (Hutchison's major concern) even the close economic ties between Texas and Mexico, maintained by continued certification. Yet the results of weak efforts and poor results at the Mexican end of the drug traffic is recognized. The president must report back to Congress on the two countries' progress toward better control of the drug traffic and efforts to weed out corrupt officials in Mexico. It should be clear to Mexican and U.S. officials that Congress will not be in a mood to accept platitudes.

However, the real problem for Mexico is the money generated by American demand for illegal drugs. Congress needs to admit that and deal with it, rather than blaming a neighbor.

Dr. Kevorkian takes to canvas

If you happen to be in Royal Oak, Mich., you can stop by the Ariana Gallery for a sampling of art work by none other than Dr. Jack Kevorkian.

The doctor works in oil on canvas, and according to The New York Times, he sometimes uses his own blood to decorate the frames.

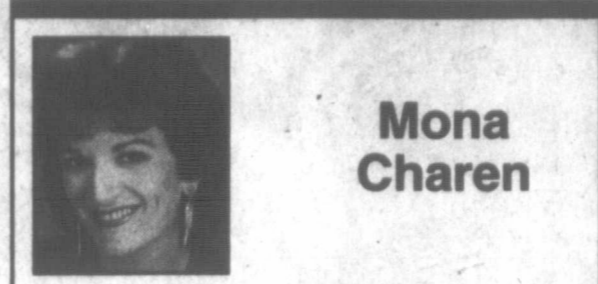

One picture, titled with almost humorous irony Very Still Life, features, in the words of the New York Times account, "a blue flower (blossoming) through the gaping eye socket of a skull with a twisted lower jaw." Another painting, called Coma, depicts bony fingers pulling a bedridden man into the jaws of a giant skull. In Paralysis, Kevorkian has painted a man whose brain and spinal column have been ripped from his body and hang above him from chains.

What an interesting glimpse into the mind of the great savior of the dying - the humanitarian who promises to put you out of your misery when a cruel medical and legal establishment will not.

One young woman viewing the exhibition has had second thoughts. "I used to respect what he did," Frida Macki, a 30-year-old accountant, told The New York Times. "These paintings changed my view. He's a sick person. How do I know he doesn't do what he does because he enjoys killing people?"

A worthy question - if a little late. Kevorkian has already claimed more than 40 victims. He has left corpses all over Michigan - with impunity. Three juries have declined to convict him of anything. Kevorkian is quite the artist - able to perform not just on canvas but in life.

Where, we must ask, is the common sense of those Michigan juries? Even if we were to take Kevorkian at his word, would a humanitarian offer lethal injections to people he had just met, people whose medical records he didn't even review?

Nancy DeSoto, 55, came to Kevorkian last October to "talk." She claimed to have multiple sclerosis (a non-fatal ailment). Within 24 hours, he delivered her corpse to William Beaumont Hospital and drove away.

Even the most die-hard advocates of doctor-assisted suicide would have to ask: Why this woman killed with no questions asked? She wasn't dying (many of Kevorkian's victims were not terminally ill.) We don't even know if she requested help committing suicide. But because Kevorkian has been thrice acquitted, he now has a blank check to show up at hospitals with corpses in tow. If the family of the deceased does not care and her friends remain silent (or she is friendless), simple murder is possible.

Rebecca Badger was 39 when she went to visit Kevorkian in July 1996. She had a history of psychiatric disorders, including depression. Her life had been difficult and painful. She, too, told Kevorkian that she suffered from multiple sclerosis. And Kevorkian obligingly helped her to die.

But a funny thing happened on the way to the cemetery. An autopsy was performed on Badger, and the coroner found no evidence of multiple sclerosis. "I can show you every slice from her brain and spinal cord," he told The Washington Post, "and she doesn't have a bit of MS. She looked robust, fairly healthy. Everything else is in order, except she's dead."

Another of Kevorkian's paintings features a severed head (blood dripping from the neck) held aloft by the hair. Two hands hold the hair; on one arm is a swastika, and on the other is a Turkish insignia with the date 1915, the year of the genocide against the Armenians. The picture is framed in barbed wire and colored with Kevorkian's own blood. He compares it to Picasso's Guernica. "Did you find that brutal?" he demands. "Is this more brutal or less?"

The answer is that Picasso's work was intended to condemn brutality, not savor it. Kevorkian's use of carnage is pornographic. "I wouldn't recommend anyone hanging them on a wall," said Kevorkian. "They're for enjoying; they're for thinking." Enjoying?

That Kevorkian continues to ply his death trade unmolested is evidence of a terrible naivete in the juries of Michigan. We too often judge people by their words and not their deeds. Perhaps this glimpse into the sick imagination of Dr. Death will clarify things.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Good Friday, March 28, the 87th day of 1997. There are 278 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On March 28, 1979, America's worst commercial nuclear accident occurred inside the Unit Two reactor at the Three Mile Island plant near Middletown, Pa.

On this date: In 1797, Nathaniel Briggs of New Hampshire patented a washing machine.

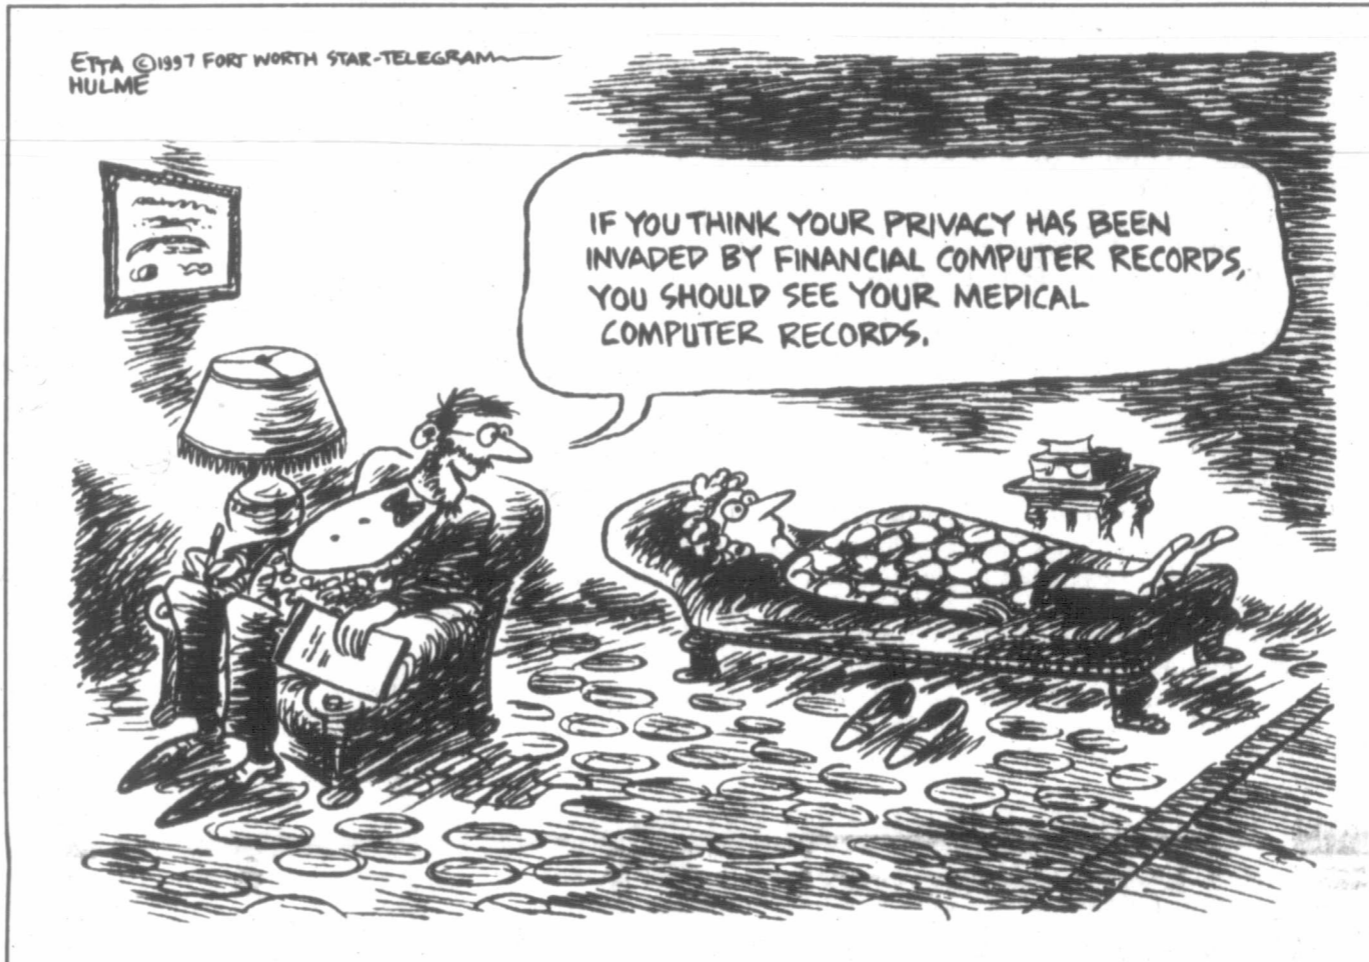

In 1834, the U.S. Senate voted to censure President Jackson for the removal of federal deposits from the Bank of the United States.

In 1854, during the Crimean War, Britain and France declared war on Russia.

In 1896, the opera Andrea Chenier, by Umberto Giordano, premiered in Milan, Italy.

In 1930, the names of the Turkish cities of Constantinople and Angora were changed to Istanbul and Ankara.

In 1939, the Spanish Civil War ended as Madrid fell to the forces of Francisco Franco.

Ominous predictions are bunk

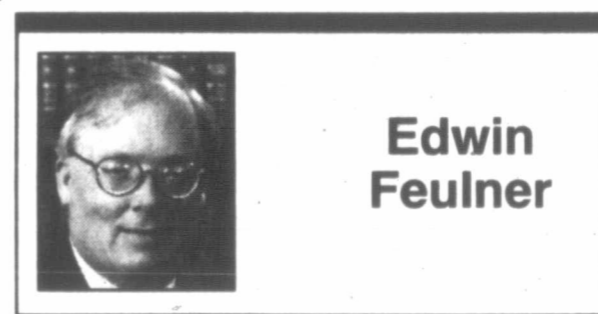

With the president and Congress committed to balancing the budget by the year 2002, expect to hear some ominous warnings from politicians about the need for "belt-tightening."

The very phrase sounds painful, as if requiring the federal government to practice a little frugality will spread famine across the land. But does balancing the budget really require the country to go on a gut-wrenching crash diet?

Of course not. In fiscal year 1996, the federal government spent $1.56 trillion. That's trillion with a "t," or, if you like big numbers, $1,560,000,000,000. Now, if balancing the budget demanded true sacrifice, you'd expect spending for fiscal year 1997 to go down. But it doesn't. It goes up. In fact, in his recently released budget President Clinton proposed increasing spending in 1997 to $1.63 trillion - a $70,000,000,000 jump.

Then surely 1998 is the year the "tightening" begins. Hardly. Spending under the president's budget would rise to $1.69 trillion - another $60,000,000,000 boost. How about 1999? Still no crash diet; spending would increase to $1.76 trillion. And so on to the years 2000 ($1.81 trillion), 2001 ($1.84 trillion), and 2002 ($1.88 trillion). If this is belt-tightening, what does a spending binge look like?

Even the programs supposedly suffering the cruelest "cuts" get a big boost in the president's budget. Consider welfare. This is the program, you'll recall, that amid great fanfare was "reformed" last year. We have President Clinton's signature to prove it. But there it is in the president's budget: an increase in welfare spending of 5% a year, every year, between now and 2002. Only in Washington can reforming something cost more than leaving it broken.

Or how about the National Endowment for the Arts? This is the federal agency that has poured taxpayer dollars into such edifying works as a crucifix submerged in a jar of urine. During the current fiscal year the government will spend $99 million on this agency. But under the president's budget, that figure would rise to $136 million in 1998. This despite the fact that Congress agreed two years ago to kill the agency, believing that taxpayers should not be forced to subsidize art.

Such spending increases are common across the federal landscape. But every rule has an exception, and the president's isn't too hard to find: national defense. From a high of $285 billion in 1985, funding for the Department of Defense under the president's budget will drop to $251 billion in 1998 (and that's without adjusting for inflation). As a percentage of the total economy - which is probably the best way of looking at the numbers - the president would reduce defense spending to its lowest level since before World War II. If this keeps up, defense analysts warn, the United States may not even be able to fight and win another Gulf War.

In short, the priorities in the president's budget are backward: He scrimps and saves on the vitally important function of national defense, while throwing dollars at a host of programs that don't work, have outlived their usefulness or duplicate other programs.

All this in a budget that doesn't even balance. That's right: Despite White House claims to the contrary, the president's spending plan would leave a $117 billion deficit in 2002, according to an authoritative new analysis. And that's just one year. All told, the president's budget would saddle the country with $718 billion in cumulative new debt over the next five years.

So the next time you hear politicians caution about the need for belt-tightening, take it with a grain of low-calorie salt. Uncle Sam could gulp Slim Fast for a decade and still have to buy suits at the Big & Tall shop.

Washington has the feel of Watergate

Mike Feinsilber
AP Special Correspondent

where is everybody else?" Not until Sen. Sam Ervin gaveled televised hearings to order in May 1973 did the country tumble to an absorbing drama.

And today? With Sen. Fred Thompson's hearings still in the offing, "The country is largely saying, 'I don't care about that,'" independent pollster Andrew Kohut said. "There is no profound sense of, 'Oh, my God, did that really happen?'"

"It is like a lot of other Clinton 'scandal' stories: It doesn't look good, but there is nothing so wrong about it that people are ready to condemn the president and think the worst about him. They just see it as Clinton stretching things," Kohut said. "The American people seem to have a thick skin these days."

Watergate started with the arrest of five burglars at Democratic headquarters. Almost until the day of his resignation, Richard Nixon insisted upon a lack of knowledge or involvement. Twenty-six months of tension passed before the "smoking gun" emerged, a tape on which the president was heard conspiring to thwart the FBI's investigation.

In the Clinton fundraising affair, there is less mystery about the president's role: Clinton was, after all, the host at those White House coffees.

The gut issue is whether favors were performed for favors rendered. Clinton's memo approving hospitality for generous donors - "Ready to start overnights right away" - is hardly a smoking gun.

The Watergate scandal involved only Nixon & Co., not Congress. Once Nixon's role became known, even his band of Republican loyalists jumped ship, demanding impeachment.

Political fundraising, and all the grubbing for money that it involves, is an activity every politician in Washington engages in.

This griddle can burn anyone who touches it. Small wonder that much of the parrying in Congress has concerned whether to limit the investigation to White House and Democratic Party activities. An investigation going wherever the evidence led could quickly quell congressional curiosity.

Maybe the biggest difference lies in the characters of the two presidents on the griddle. Hess, author of books on the interplay between the press and presidents, notes Clinton's aptitude for coping with questions of character.

"This president has turned stonewalling into an art form," Hess says. "He got through two elections with Whitewater hanging over him."

Leonard Garment, Nixon's friend and lawyer, wrote a New York Times essay remarking on that key difference, too. At Clinton's last full news conference, Clinton seemed "infinitely elastic, positive and resilient," Garment said. Nixon, at a comparable moment, "looked like Mr. Gloom, sweaty and defensive."

Concludes Garment: "The country is in for a year or more of dizzy, distracting prime-time scandal politics. But I wouldn't hold my breath waiting for the ultimate political cataclysm."

Canada implicates Saudi man in bombing

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's intelligence agency says a Saudi man linked to a militant Islamic group participated in the 1996 bombing that killed 19 U.S. airmen in Saudi Arabia, an unsolved attack that has frustrated American investigators.

Hani al-Sayegh, 28, allegedly conducted surveillance at the military housing complex in Dharhan, Saudi Arabia, and drove the car that signaled the go-ahead to the driver of a fuel truck packed with 2 1/2 tons of explosives.

The June 25 explosion blew the facade off the Khobar Towers, killing 19 Americans and injuring more than 300 Americans and Saudis.

Canadian intelligence agents told a court Thursday that al-Sayegh, who was arrested last week at an Ottawa grocery store, should be deported as a national security threat. He has requested refugee status in Canada, claiming he was persecuted in his homeland for religious reasons.

Both Saudi and U.S. officials hope to question al-Sayegh, who denies any involvement in the bombing.

A report from the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, parts of which were made public Thursday, said al-Sayegh is a member of the Saudi Hezbollah, a militant Shiite Muslim group with links to pro-Iranian organizations in Lebanon.

It said al-Sayegh was a lookout at the towers and drove the car that signaled the driver of the fuel truck to approach the compound.

Al-Sayegh allegedly contacted Iranian diplomats in Ottawa and made references to the 1996 bombing in phone calls to Iran as well as to his wife in Saudi Arabia.

The Canadian report did not list the sources for the allegations, but the claims are believed to have originated with Saudi and U.S. authorities.

The deadliest terror strike ever against a U.S. target in the Persian Gulf, the bombing struck at the heart of the region's U.S. military presence. Investigators have blamed Muslim militants opposed to Western forces in the Saudi kingdom, home to Islam's two holiest shrines at Mecca and Medina.

The Dhahran explosion came less than a month after Saudi Arabia beheaded four Muslim militants convicted in the November 1995 bombing of a U.S. compound in Riyadh. Five Americans and two Indians died.

The Saudis reportedly have detained dozens of suspects in the Dhahran attack, including some with ties to Iran, but have not released any details of the inquiry. U.S. officials have been frustrated by lack of access to suspects.

Al-Sayegh says he is being targeted by the Saudi government because of his opposition to the ruling regime. He says he was in Syria at the time of the Dhahran explosion.

Mutated cell linked to killer cancers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two teams of researchers working independently have identified a mutated gene that fosters aggressive forms of brain, breast and prostate cancer.

Discovery of the gene may lead to a test to help identify cancers that are fast growing and which should be treated with stronger therapy, researchers said in studies published today.

In its normal form, the gene acts as a tumor suppressor. But the scientists said that when it is mutated, the gene is found most often in cancers that are difficult to treat and are often lethal.

Though the finding advances an understanding of brain, breast and prostate cancer, the researchers said it will offer no immediate help to cancer patients.

"This is an exciting discovery, but we don't want to exaggerate it," said Dr. Ramon Parsons of the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York. "It will require a lot of work before it has clinical applications."

One team that identified the gene was led by Parsons and Michael Wigler of Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory in New York. They named the gene PTEN and their study is published today in the journal Science.

Twentieth Century Club

Twentieth Century Club met March 25 at the home of Myrna Orr. Members continued making plans for the Garage-Plant sale slated for April 19 at Dorothy Stowers home, 2015 Charles. All present were: 1) reminded of the Friends of the Library sale April 4-6 in the Pampa Mall; 2) cautioned about starting fires — especially grass fires; 3) asked to study the boucher system in education; and 4) reminded of the Community Concert April 14 in Borger.

Martha Tiedt introduced Mary Wilson who presented the program "One Person Can Make a Difference." She cited J. Pierpont Morgan as an example of one such person who made a difference in American business — national and international. He always kept a detailed and accurate account of the money he spent. He was a deeply religious Episcopalian, serving the Lord with a deep faith. His father was wealthy; therefore, J.P. was educated in the best schools.

His business career began as a junior accountant. He was a conservative and associated with the rich and famous. He liked good wine, good cigars and wives who were ignorant of business. His routine daily habits were church, a brisk walk and dressing for business on Wall Street.

In 1897, he began to look ahead and seized upon the idea of national and international markets. He took over a cross country railroad (Maine to California) that was bankrupt. He created U.S. Steel and collected one of the largest and most remarkable art collections in history.

He was a powerful and interesting man who enjoyed traditional dinners, traditional religion. He was deeply conservative, energetic, bold, imaginative, yet his credo was simple. His is a story of a powerful, fascinating personality in America.

Their next meeting will be at 1:30 p.m. April 8 in the home of Cleo Worley.

El Progreso

El Progreso Club met March 25 at the Pampa Country Club with President Carolyn Smith presiding. Mary Fain served as hostess and Mabel Ford led the club collect. Twelve members were present.

The program, "Blooming in Texas," was presented by Lois Strong. Strong said the Texas beautification program dates as far back as 1929 when the Texas Highway Department initiated practices to spread and preserve trees and wildflowers. She related stories of spiderworts, blue bonnets and Indian blankets and showed pictures of many Texas wildflowers.

In addition, she distributed leaflets with information about plants. Each member received a note card on which she had painted wildflowers characteristic of Texas.

The next meeting will be April 8 at the Hughey House with Eloise Lane serving as hostess. Maxine Hawkins will present the program, "Parks in Texas."

Principal's daughter sentenced in shooting death of mother

FLORESVILLE, Texas (AP) — A school principal's teenage daughter has been sentenced to 20 years in prison for murdering her minister mother.

State District Judge Stella Saxon handed down the sentence Thursday after Maggie Ward, now 17, pleaded no contest in a plea bargain. Miss Ward must serve at least ten years before becoming eligible for parole.

As she was led away to jail, Miss Ward, said tearfully that she loved her mother and that she misses her. Then she blamed a teenage friend for the fatal shooting of Janet Ward, 47.

"I didn't kill my mom," Miss Ward said. "I watched my mom die, and now I've got to sit in a cell with nothing and pay for it."

Miss Ward said she didn't want to risk going to trial.

"Everyone here walks around with their eyes closed and they've all chosen to tell me that I'm guilty. ... So there's no point in a trial when everyone's got their mind made up," she said.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

HISTORICAL GIBEON!

GIBEON WAS BOTH A CITY AND AN AREA WHICH WAS STEEPED IN HISTORICAL TRADITIONS FOR THE ISRAELITES. BEFORE THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN, IT WAS THE CHIEF CITY OF THE HIVEITES (JOSH. 11:19). THE GIBEONITES OBTAINED A TREATY WITH JOSHUA BY FALSE PRETENSES. ALTHOUGH THE ISRAELITES DISCOVERED THE DECEIT (JOSH. CH. 9) THE TREATY WAS RESPECTED! SEVERAL CENTURIES LATER KING SAUL MASSACRED SOME GIBEONITES AND HAD TO EXECUTE 7 OF HIS OWN SONS (II SAM. 21:1-9) BECAUSE OF THIS TREATY! IT WAS HERE, ALSO, THAT DAVID GAINED A VICTORY OVER THE PHILISTINES (I CHRON. 14:16). IN THIS VICINITY JOAB MURDERED AMASA (II SAM. 20:8)! THERE ALSO, IN DAVID'S REIGN AND PART OF SOLOMON'S REIGN, STOOD THE TABERNACLE AND BRAZEN ALTAR, AND THERE SOLOMON SACRIFICED AND IN A DREAM RECEIVED A MESSAGE FROM GOD (KINGS 3:4-15). YES, GIBEON ABOUNDS IN HISTORY! ACCORDING TO JOSEPHUS, GIBEON WAS ABOUT SIX MILES FROM JERUSALEM. ITS SITE IS FOUND AT THE MODERN VILLAGE OF EL-JIB, 5 1/2 MILES NORTHWEST OF JERUSALEM. A GREAT OVAL HILL STANDS IN THE MIDDLE OF A BASIN CONSISTING OF BROAD VALLEYS. THE HILL IS STEEP OF ASCENT, BEING COMPOSED OF HORIZONTAL LAYERS OF LIMESTONE THAT FORM GREAT STEPS FROM THE VALLEYS UPWARD! SUCH A TERRIFIC SITE FOR DAVID'S AMBUSH WHICH RESULTED IN A VICTORY OVER THE PHILISTINES SO LONG AGO!

St. Matthew's Episcopal Church to conclude its Holy Week events

By EDYTH JACKSON

Following the season of Lent, Easter arrives for the most celebrated annual event in Christendom.

St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, 727 W. Browning, again invites the public to join the parish family for worship to proclaim, "Alleluia. Christ is risen," and to exclaim the response, "The Lord is risen indeed. Alleluia."

The Rev. Jake Clemmens, rector of St. Matthew's, issued the welcome, saying, "The people of God at St. Matthew's hope worshipers will come from the community to be with us this Easter. With the conclusion of Holy Week, we have experienced the passion of our Lord and celebrate His resurrection."

The Holy Saturday Liturgy is set for 10 a.m., the Easter egg hunt for children at 4 p.m. and the Great Vigil of Easter at 7 p.m. to include the administration of Holy Baptism within Eucharist for four candidates.

On Easter Day, celebrations of the Holy Eucharist are timed for 8 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. in the church. Easter breakfast in the parish hall is planned for parishioners and guests at 9 a.m., between worship services, hosted by Holly Burger.

Biblical reference to assembly each Sunday for celebrating the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, on the first day of the week, the new beginning, is recorded in the letter from the Apostle Paul to the Christian congregation at Corinth. (1. Cor. 16:2) in the New Testament.

According to the Gospel of John, Jesus Christ was crucified the same hour that the sacrificial lamb was slaughtered in the Temple in the observance of Jewish Passover; and for the first two centuries in Asia Minor the church's New Year holiday was celebrated on the third day after the first full moon of spring, regardless of the day of the week in which it occurred, as calculated on the basis of the Jewish Passover.

In the Gospels according to Matthew, Mark and Luke, the Last supper took place on Passover Eve and the Resurrection occurred three days later; and today Catholic and Protestant Churches celebrate Easter on the first Sunday following the first full moon of spring — sometime between March 22 and April 25 — evolving from agreement that Easter be on Sunday and settlement of the Easter Dispute in 325 from the Council at Nicaea, the introduction of the Alexandrian calendar in Rome in the sixth century and the adoption of the Gregorian calendar, currently in use.

Poll: Prime-time TV gets low moral ratings

By DAVID BRIGGS
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Montgomery Burns, the warty, amoral tycoon of The Simpsons is TV's likeliest hell-bound character, and the beatific Tess of Touched by an Angel is who Americans most want as their child's Sunday school teacher.

Overall, Americans gave prime-time low spiritual ratings in a national poll, with two-thirds of respondents saying television has become less moral and religious in the last five years.

"People have a real interest and desire for television shows that touch on a big part of their lives, which is spirituality and religion," said Steven Reddicliffe, editor in chief of TV Guide, which commissioned the survey. "It seems to be a void."

The national telephone survey of 804 adults was conducted Feb. 21-22 by Peter D. Hart Research Associates of Washington. The poll has a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points.

In a nation where nine in 10 Americans believe in God, Americans want television to be more representative of faith in prime time, according to the poll.

Eighty-two percent of respondents said they would like to see more references to moral issues on television, while 68 percent said they were eager to see more prime-time spirituality.

A little more than half of respondents said television treats religion respectfully, but 68 percent said TV has become less religious in the last five years.

Reflecting TV's poor relationship with God is the perceived moral laxity of prime-time characters. Respondents, who gave themselves an average rating of 85 out of 100, rated prime-time characters an average of 46.

Fully 20 percent said Mr. Burns was most likely to go to hell, followed by 15 percent who named Dr. Michael Mancini of Melrose Place and 10 percent who said Cigarette Smoking Man of The X-Files was hell-bent for hell.

Murder runs a close second to adultery as TV's most-violated commandment, respondents said, with 32 percent citing infidelity, and 30 percent saying murder was TV's No. 1 sin.

On the heavenly side of the ledger, CBS' hit Touched by an Angel was the overwhelming choice for the most spiritually rich show.

Two-thirds said the show, about an angel who intervenes in the lives of humans, was the most spiritual show on TV, with Family Matters a distant second. Six percent chose the ABC comedy as the most spiritual show.

Tess, the angel supervisor played by Della Reese on Touched by an Angel, is the character half of respondents said they would most like to see as their child's Sunday school teacher.

A similar percentage said Tess is the character they would most like to have a conversation with about God.

Comedian Jerry Seinfeld of Seinfeld was a remote second in both categories, with 10 percent saying they would like to talk to him about God and 6 percent picking the Jewish comic as their favorite choice to be their child's Sunday school teacher.

Reddicliffe said it is difficult to understand the reluctance of television to deal with religious topics. "In an era when people talk about the deeply personal ... not to also touch on that is strange," he said.

First Christian to present 'Master, Is It I?'

A new format is planned for First Christian Church of Pampa's annual Easter presentation, Master, Is It I?

A potluck dinner will be included as part of the evening's activities set for 6:30 p.m. today at the First Christian Church Fellowship Hall, 1633 N. Nelson. The presentation and the dinner is free and open to the public.

Master, Is It I? depicts artist Leonardo Da Vinci's famous painting, "The Last Supper," with individual accounts of how Jesus affected the lives of each of his disciples. By telling their stories, the men offer insight into day-to-day life with Jesus as a man and as the Son of God.

The cast of Master, Is It I? includes Miles Cook as Luke and E.E. "Pinky" Shultz as Andrew. Peter is portrayed by Jim Osborne, Bartholomew by Duane Cash and James the Less by Ron Hayes.

Jack Gindorf brings power to the part of the tormented Judas, and Dave Bridges takes on the role of John. Sandy Clark, Cindy Gindorf and Sally Stringer serve the disciples' last meal with their teacher and friend as the "handmaidens."

Kris Gamblin plays the part of James. Steve Hawkins is Phillip; Mike Clark, Thomas, and Jim Crossman, Matthew. Scott White portrays Simon and Joe Stringer, Thaddeus.

The Rev. Darrell Evans, pastor of First Christian Church, is to serve as narrator of the presentation.

PAMPA — Evangelist Allen Hatch of Abilene will be presenting a gospel concert on Saturday, March 29, at 6:30 p.m. at Fellowship Baptist Church, 622 E. Francis in Pampa.

Brother Hatch also will be ministering during a special Easter worship service at 10:30 a.m. on Sunday, March 30.

The public is invited to attend both the concert and the special Easter morning service.

WHEELER — Bible teacher Charles Capps of England, Ark., will be at the Christian Center, 601 Red River, in Wheeler Saturday and Sunday.

Capps will be teaching on End Time events based on Biblical studies.

He will be speaking at 7 p.m. Saturday and will at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Sunday.

CHELFORD, Ark. (AP) — It took 100 volunteers from a dozen states less than a week to rebuild St. Mark's Missionary Baptist Church, which was torched in 1995.

The church rebuilding was finished in time for Easter by volunteers from Hosanna Industries Inc., a Presbyterian charitable-housing ministry based in suburban Pittsburgh.

"Man, they go in there like a bunch of ants," said George Jackson, 65, one of about 30 members of St. Mark's.

St. Mark's was among about 70 churches with black or multiracial congregations where race may have been the motive for arson in 1995 and 1996.

It's one of the first to be rebuilt with the help of a $100,000 grant from the Burned Churches Fund of the National Council of Churches. Also contributing were Habitat for Humanity and the Disciples' Reconciliation and Week of Compassion Ministries.

PEORIA, ILL. (AP) — Bishop John Myers of the Catholic Diocese of Peoria has issued a pastoral letter chastising men for forsaking their responsibilities as husbands and fathers.

Men need to be religious examples to their families, spend time with them and make it clear to their wives that they are partners in marriage and the raising of children, he said.

Myers is the spiritual leader for more than 234,000 Catholics in 26 central Illinois counties.

The bishop also decried the selfishness of what he called a "feel-good" culture.

"It's always been perplexing to me why people live lives based simply on emotions," he said.

Myers emphasized that while men and women are equal in dignity in the eyes of the Catholic Church, they do have different gender identities. The letter, Myers said, "affirms the roles of husband-father and mother-wife, and also speaks to the mystery of sexual identity."

Former Episcopal priest finds new home in Catholic Church

By DEBORAH DEGGS CARIKER
Beaumont Enterprise

BEAUMONT (AP) — The Rev. Martin Nelson is a Catholic high school religion teacher who spent most of the preceding 20 years as an Episcopal priest.

That in itself may not seem extraordinary, except that Father Nelson converted to Catholicism two years ago and is just three months — and two tests — away from becoming one of only about 60 Episcopal-turned-Catholic priests in the United States who is married and has children.

The native of Tampa, Fla., was raised in the Episcopal church. His father was an Episcopal priest, and he followed in his father's footsteps, after "giving up" his junior year in college.

"Did I always want to be a priest? Absolutely not. Uh-uh. Heck, no," he said with a clear, baritone chuckle. "When I felt God calling me, I ran the other direction, kicking and screaming."

Eventually, however, Nelson said he realized he couldn't be happy and fulfilled doing anything else. He was ordained in January 1975.

"It's difficult to express, but some Episcopalians are close in belief and practice to Roman Catholics. I was in that group," said Nelson, 48. "I really believe in Christian unity and it just made sense for the Anglican community to reunite with the church of Rome."

The Episcopal Church has its roots in the Church of England, or Anglican Church.

During his years as an Episcopal priest, Nelson became involved in ecumenical activities, later did a stint as a Navy chaplain with a Marine Corps infantry battalion, and then wound up in a Fort Worth parish. It was on an early morning flight back from a New York meeting that Nelson said his "goose was cooked."

"I looked at what the early church writers said and I had a copy of the letters of Pope Leo the Great. . . I was reading letters he wrote to the bishops throughout the world and it was obvious this guy had jurisdictional authority," Nelson explained. "I thought, 'Wait a minute. Here's a guy in the mid-fifth century and here's someone who had real authority over these other people. Now, is this (papal primacy) a humanly concocted scheme or a divine plan?' It was not a bolt of lightning. It was just revelation."

Nelson accepted the primacy of the Pope, and had no problem with the Catholic Church's emphasis on Mary, Jesus' mother. Nelson said he already held great appreciation for the Catholic church's stance on the sanctity of life.

"I just became convinced that what the Roman Catholic church said was true. Once you get to that point, you have no choice but to go in," he said. "I left the Episcopal church at the end of 1994, quietly, with no dramatics. I simply told my (congregation) that I had personally become convinced of the truth of the Catholic Church."

The next Sunday Nelson, his wife Sharon, and their two daughters went to St. Mary's Catholic Church in Arlington, a church that previously was Episcopal and whose whole parish voted to become Catholic. Nelson later was received into the Catholic Church there.

"I came in with no deals with the Roman Catholic Church, no promises," he said. "There were no stumbling blocks in terms of faith or doctrine. The only problem I had was that I felt God called me to be a priest and I wanted to remain a priest. If the Pope had said 'no' then I would have remained a layman in the Catholic Church."

But Pope John Paul II didn't say no. With the support of Beaumont's Bishop, the Most Rev. Joseph Galante, the Pope allowed Nelson to train for the Catholic priesthood under what is called Pastoral Provision, a special process for Episcopal priests who wish to become Catholic priests. The pope also dispensed Nelson from the promise and commitment of celibacy.

"I accepted him for service in the diocese and I had to get special permission from Rome to ordain him," Galante said.

"Why did I accept him? Because for one he's a very fine man and we certainly are in need of priests. He has great dedication and a great sense of service and also I feel our people will be very accepting of someone who is a Roman Catholic priest but is also married."

Before he is ordained, Nelson must pass a written test, administered locally in April, and an oral test in Boston at the end of May.

The first time an Episcopal priest was ordained a Roman Catholic priest was in June 1982, and there are only 62 or 63 such rare cases in the country out of the more than 53,000 Catholic priests in the United States. This is the first time it is happening in Beaumont's 30-year-old diocese.

"Well, yes, I'm excited, but I don't count my chickens before they hatch. When I pass both tests, then I'll get excited," Nelson said.

Barring complications, Nelson should be ordained in June. There are a couple of special restrictions. Should his wife die, Nelson would not be permitted to remarry — he said he wouldn't want to anyway — and second, Nelson will not be allowed to pastor a parish. Nelson said his wife and their daughters, ages 16 and 18, were very supportive of his switch. In fact, Sharon Nelson was raised Catholic but converted to the Episcopal faith before the couple married 25 years ago.

"Sharon was very instrumental in my conversion," Nelson said. "She and the girls thought, 'It's about time.' She was my sponsor when I was confirmed."

Sharon Nelson did not have to go through any classes when she decided to return to her Catholic faith. Former Catholics simply go to confession to be reinstated into the church.

Galante said Nelson will continue his ministry at Monsignor Kelly High School, and also may assist on weekends at a local parish, to be named at a later date.

Nelson continues to wear his clerical collar and everyone calls him "Father." He said those are ecumenical gestures the Catholic church makes to honor his previous ordination.

"Christianity always made sense to me, and I believe personally you either accept the whole banana or nothing," he said, again with that resonating baritone chuckle. "I'm a real questioner and I want to know why and I like the answers Christianity gives."

Bible scholars: Pilgrims travel the wrong way on Via Dolorosa

By ELIAS WOLFBERG
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Tens of thousands of pilgrims walk the Via Dolorosa every year around Easter week, carrying wooden crosses and singing hymns as they retrace Jesus' path to crucifixion.

Some Bible scholars now say the pilgrims have been going the wrong way.

"The Via Dolorosa has been determined by an accident of history," said Jerome Murphy O'Connor, a Dominican priest who recently published an article on the subject in Bible Review, a Washington-based magazine.

The traditional Via Dolorosa, or Way of Sorrows, is a cobblestone path running through the walled Old City from east to west. But Murphy O'Connor, whose study is based in part on work by other scholars, says the real route Jesus took went from west to east — and never touched the Via Dolorosa.

Many pilgrims touring the Old City during Easter Week took the news in stride.

"I have traveled a few thousand miles, and if I'm off by a couple of feet, that's okay by me," said Allen Bowers, 60, a retiree from Royalston, Mass.

But Barry Essex, 60, of London, said it was "very hard to accept that something that is so traditional and steeped in history over thousands of years is wrong."

There is little dispute among scholars that Jesus ended his walk with the cross at the site marked today by the Church of the Holy Sepulcher. But where did he start?

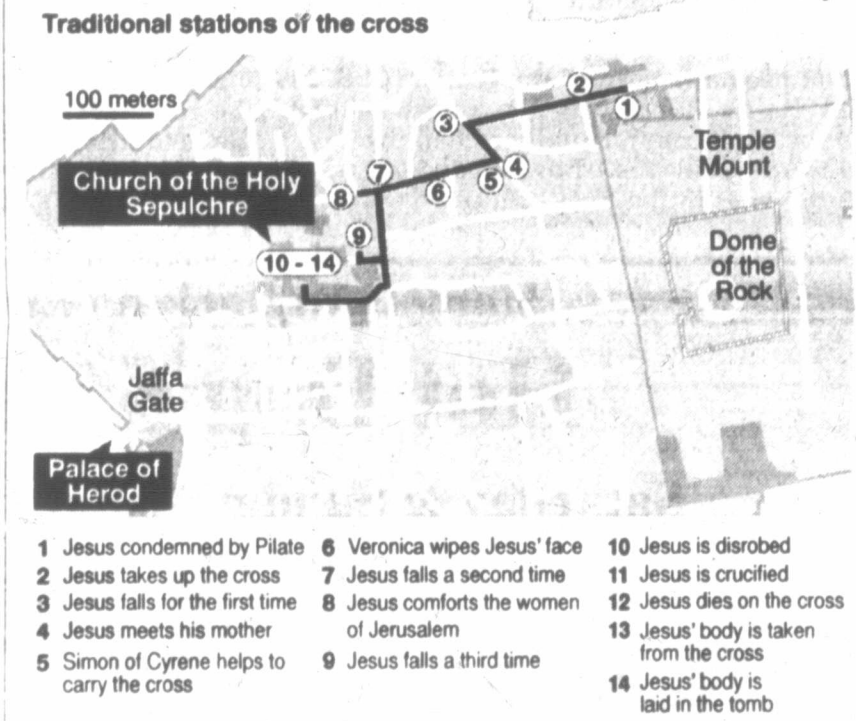

The traditional Via Dolorosa begins in the northeastern corner of the Old City at Antonia's Fortress, the Romans' military headquarters. Tradition holds that's where Pontius Pilate, the Roman procurator, tried and sentenced Jesus.

But Murphy O'Connor said it would make no sense for Pilate — who was visiting Jerusalem — to stay at the fortress rather than the more luxurious palace of King Herod. The palace also was known as the house of the procurators.

The palace is on the western

Wrong way of sorrows

Some Bible scholars believe Jesus' path to crucifixion went from west to east, beginning at Herod's palace and ending at today's Church of the Holy Sepulcher. The Via Dolorosa, the commonly accepted route, runs east to west.

Promise Keepers rally set April 26 in Amarillo

AMARILLO — Tim Anderson, youth pastor of The Potter's House in Dallas, and Fred Campbell, of Oak Cliff Bible Fellowship in Dallas, will speak at the area's '97 Promise Keepers Wake Up Rally from 4-7 p.m. April 26 in the Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum.

This will be the fourth area-wide Wake Up Rally sponsored by the Amarillo Regional Promise Keepers Task Force, announced co-chairs Greg Canada and Pat Davis. The event gathers men from different denominational, ethnic and cultural backgrounds for a time of worship, renewal and recommitment.

"This is the first time the event has been on a Saturday afternoon," said Davis. "We hope more men can attend a weekend rally."

Rev. Campbell is making a return visit to Amarillo, having served as a speaker in last fall's Foundations for Effective Men's Ministry Seminar, sponsored by the Amarillo Regional PK Task Force. Pastor Anderson will be speaking at the Amarillo-area event for the first time.

"We were really blessed by Fred Campbell's teaching in November, and found that he has God's heart for men's ministries," said Canada. "Tim Anderson has a profound message for young people. We're looking forward to hearing what God has laid on the hearts of both these men."

During the rally, men will preview the Promise Keepers organization's national conference promotional videotape, learning about upcoming conferences for 1997.

The event will open with a praise and worship time from 4-4:30 p.m., followed by the rally from 4:30-7 p.m. Last year's rally attracted nearly 4,000 men, some from as far as Oklahoma and New Mexico, according to Davis.

In addition to his ministry at Oak Cliff Bible Fellowship, Rev. Campbell is involved in an independent pastoral/teaching ministry, Living Grace Ministries, which he founded. He served for 22 years as the Senior Pastor at Faith Bible Church in DeSoto and started a men's ministry in that church.

He received his master's degree from Dallas Theological Seminary and is working on his Doctor of Ministry degree from Phoenix Seminary in Christian Leadership. Rev. Campbell and his wife, Carolyn, live in DeSoto and have one son, Derek, a student at Baylor University.

Pastor Anderson currently is serving as youth pastor at the Potter's House in Dallas under the leadership and guidance of Bishop T.D. Jakes. He travels extensively across the country preaching, teaching and expounding from the Word of God to youth and adults alike.

Anderson's life is stirring and dramatic story of God's healing and hand of intervention. Abandoned at the age of four months by his biological parents, Anderson was adopted at age four, but then returned to the Department of Children services of Ohio, where he spent the next nine years being shuffled in and out of the hands of the system.

The experience ultimately became a catalyst to a great turning point in his life. Once a crack cocaine dealer, addict and prison inmate, Anderson is a living testament to the reality of a caring God, who can rearrange tragedy into triumph, Davis said.

Tomb empty — for rest of story, attend church

JERUSALEM, AD 30 — After the Sabbath, as the sun just began to rise on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went to look at the tomb.

There was a violent earthquake, for an angel of the Lord came down from heaven and, going to the tomb, rolled back the stone and sat on it.

His appearance was like lightning, and his clothes were white as snow.

The guards were so afraid of him that they shook and became like dead men.

"Do not be afraid, for I know that you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified."

"He is not here; he has risen, just as he said. Come and see the place where he lay."

"Then go quickly and tell his disciples. He has risen from the dead and is going ahead of you into Galilee. There you will see him. Now I have told you."

So the women hurried away from the tomb, afraid yet filled with joy, and ran to tell his disciples.

Suddenly Jesus met them. "Greetings," he said. They came to him, clasped his feet and worshipped him. Then Jesus said to them, "Do not be afraid. Go and tell my brothers to go to Galilee; there they will see me."

This story is to be continued on Sunday, March 30, at 8:30 a.m. or 11 a.m. at Calvary Baptist Church, 900 E. 23rd, Pampa.

HiLand Pentecostal youth to have Rock-A-Thon

The HiLand Pentecostal Church Youth Group members are making plans to attend "Youth Quest '97" in Kansas City, Mo., in August.

The National Talent Program that will be taking place at this convention is a part of the Education Ministries Program. The program is designed to help young people achieve specific goals, realize, and develop their talents, but also teaches them to win in competition with humility and modesty, and to lose with grace and dignity.

After completion of the local side of the Old City, so Jesus would have proceeded eastward — through what is now a covered bazaar — to an abandoned quarry, the location of today's Holy Sepulcher.

Archaeologists say the real route toward crucifixion may never be known.

"We know where it ended, but we don't know where it started," said Dan Bahat, former chief archaeologist of Jerusalem. Bahat, however, said it was reasonable to assume that Jesus' trial took place at Herod's palace.

Murphy O'Connor said the traditional route of the Via Dolorosa was part of a tour for visiting pilgrims developed by the Franciscans, custodians of the Holy Land since the 14th century.

"Once (the new map) had been established, it acquired the sanction of tradition," he said.

Tens of thousands of people now follow the path every year, many of them during Easter week, although violence between Israelis and Palestinians this year has been causing cancellations.

Should Christians now follow a different path?

Palestinian shopkeepers who sell olive wood crosses and bottles of holy water along the Via Dolorosa don't think so.

"It would ruin the whole business," said Ibrahim Zahar, 44, who sells luminescent posters depicting Jesus.

Murphy O'Connor suggested it was better not to tamper with tradition: "The fact that thousands of pilgrims over thousands of years have prayed here is much more important than what I think."

through out the 16-hour period. This is the second in a series of projects planned. The group sold balloon bouquets at Valentine's and have a Mexican carnival and car washes to follow throughout the summer.

Anyone interested in sponsoring the youth may call the church or any member of the group. Sponsors are asked to pledge at least 50 cents an hour, and are invited to stop by between 5 p.m. today through 9 a.m. Saturday and encourage their rockers.

Jerry Arrington and Bob Bailey of First Baptist Church; Zan Walker of Central Baptist Church; Gary Jameson of Calvary Baptist Church; Joe Garcia of Iglesia Bautista Emmanuel; Jack Davis of Barrett Baptist Church; and Larry Heard of the Top-of-Texas Baptist Office.

The free concert will be at Calvary Baptist Church, located at 900 E. 23rd, 1 mile east of Wal-Mart in Pampa.

'Panhandle Singing Men' to be in concert

The "Panhandle Singing Men" will be in concert at Calvary Baptist Church at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 3. The concert will consist of several styles of music, ranging from contemporary, to Negro spiritual, to sacred.

This all-male group is made up of Ministers of Music from Southern Baptist Churches from all over the Panhandle of Texas. It also consists of a few other men that also enjoy singing.

The Panhandle Singing Men is one of six "Branch" choirs of the singing Men of Texas. The other five choirs are located in other regions of the state. Each of the choirs perform monthly concerts in their region. They also combine for large statewide events or to take a mission trip.

Several Pampa men will be singing in the group: John Glover, Vega A is first at 378 while Shamrock is second at 395. Mika Goad led the Mustangettes with a 92 while teammate Ashley Ware followed at 94. Other Wheeler scores were Rebekkah Morrison 103, Shea Lewallen 104 and Kara Keelin 128. Medalist was Shamrock's Sterling Steward with an 82.

BASEBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — The cost of baseball tickets this year rose at twice the rate of inflation. The average price of a major league baseball ticket is $11.98 this season, a 7.1 percent increase. The Boston Red Sox charge the most with a $17.69 average. Boston plays in Fenway Park, the smallest stadium in the majors. St. Louis, which won the NL Central last season, had the highest hike this year, 24.7 percent to $12.36, according to a study released Thursday by the Team Marketing Report. Montreal, which lowered prices by an average of 24.9 percent this year, has the lowest average price, the equivalent of $6.81 in U.S. currency. Baseball's average ticket price has risen 38.7 percent since 1991, when it was $8.64. Since then, the average price of an NFL ticket has gone up 41.8 percent, from $25.21 to $35.74. The average price of NBA tickets has risen 46.6 percent since the 1991-92 season, from $23.24 to $34.08. The average price of NHL tickets is $38.34 this season.

BASKETBALL

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Tim Duncan of Wake Forest, the only unanimous All-America choice this season and the first repeat selection in five years, was named today college basketball player of the year by The Associated Press. The 6-foot-10 center, college basketball's most prolific rebounder in the last 25 years, averaged 20.8 points and 14.7 rebounds for the Demon Deacons this season and finished his four-year career with 2,117 points and 1,570 rebounds.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Dean Smith is again chasing Adolph Rupp. Rick Pitino is going for history. Lute Olson is looking for respect. Clem Haskins is trying to shake the rookie tag. The Final Four always has a solid group of coaches and this year is no exception. Saturday's first matchup has Smith and his North Carolina Tar Heels going against Olson and his Arizona Wildcats, a rematch of the teams' season-opener won by Arizona 83-72. Then it will be Pitino's defending national champion Kentucky Wildcats against Haskins' Minnesota Golden Gophers, who are making the first Final Four appearance in school history. College basketball is a sport of coaches and this Final Four is no exception.

Smith moved to the top of the coaches' victory list in the second round of the NCAA tournament, passing Rupp with win No. 877. Two wins in Indianapolis will move Smith past Rupp and into second place on the Final Four victory list. This is Smith's 11th Final Four, one behind John Wooden's record, and a title would be his third and break him out of a logjam of seven coaches with two. Wooden won 10 titles, Rupp had four and Indiana's Bob Knight has three. "From 1967 to now a lot has changed even with the Final Four," said Smith, whose 65 tournament victories are well ahead of Wooden's 47 on the career list. "The big hoopla came somewhere between our trips in 1972 and 1977. In 1977, I couldn't believe the difference. Yet I believe I'd like our team to approach it as Arizona is the next game on our schedule." The Tar Heels (28-6) are on a 16-game winning streak and haven't lost since Jan. 29. Their first loss of the season was to Arizona in the Tipoff Classic at Springfield, Mass. "I won't even let our team watch that game," Smith said. "Both teams are so different now." Arizona (23-9) pulled off the upset of the tournament in beating top-ranked Kansas in the Southeast Regional semifinals and then had to sweat out an overtime win over Providence in the finals. "I think we're playing very well. We've not made it easy in terms of getting there with all four games going down to the wire," Olson said. "But without a doubt we're playing the best basketball that we have all year long." Olson took Iowa to the Final Four in Indianapolis in 1980 and this is his third trip with Arizona. Still, he's a coach whose name is more synonymous with being on the wrong end of first-round upsets. "I think our program stands on its own and you can't control what people say," Olson said. "Our program has been an outstanding program for a number of years now and we don't feel the need to protect that at all." Kentucky (34-4) won it all last season and is two games from repeating despite losing the crux of last year's team to graduation, the NBA and a midseason knee injury to star guard Derek Anderson. Pitino is trying to become the seventh coach to lead a team to a repeat title, the last being Duke's Mike Krzyzewski in 1992.

"With this team the only thing we've been trying to do is get better and improve," Pitino said. "We never thought in terms of, well I shouldn't say that, we did think in terms of defending the national title. When Derek went down all we did was try to get better. Now we have an opportunity to do that but we understand we're playing Minnesota and it's going to be a difficult task." The Golden Gophers (31-3), who have won 16 of their last 17 games, are the newcomers to the Final Four hoopla, but it doesn't seem to faze Haskins in the least. "We try to treat it like any game on the road. It's an opportunity once in a lifetime," he said. "We're here to play a couple of hours a day, relax a couple of hours a day and then enjoy what's going on with the kids."

Pampa's 1600-meter relay team knocked four seconds off their previous best time with a winning 4:09.26. In the shot, Pampa junior Barbara Wine had a personal best throw of 42-2. Her first-place throw is one of the best in the state so far in girls Class 4A. "I was pleased with how the girls performed. I was very pleased with their times and placings," said Pampa coach Mike Lopez. "Right now we're trying to get ready for district, which is two weeks away." The District 1-4A meet will be held April 11-12 in Dumas. Next weekend the Lady Harvesters will compete in the Amarillo Relays.

Orioles' Anderson may miss opener

By The Associated Press

Hitting 50 homers could be hazardous to your health. First, Mark McGwire got hurt. Now, it's Brady Anderson. McGwire had a cortisone shot this week to relieve pain in his lower back, and Anderson has a cracked rib. The status of both is unclear as next week's season opens approach. "The frustrating part is that the most important thing for an athlete to do is to train to get better," Anderson said Thursday after the Baltimore Orioles' doctors detected his injury. "The worst part for me is to not be able to train." Anderson, who hit 50 homers last season, got hurt Sunday when he dived back to first base on a pickoff throw during an exhibition game against the Atlanta Braves. McGwire, who led the majors with 52 homers in 1996, has missed six exhibition games because of the soreness. He left the Athletics' Phoenix spring training camp on Wednesday and flew to Oakland. Team physician John Frazier administered the anti-inflammatory injection during an examination Wednesday night. In other news, the Braves traded outfielder Jermaine Dye and reliever Jamie Walker to Kansas City for outfielder Michael Tucker and infielder Keith Lockhart, just two days after Atlanta's blockbuster deal for Kenny Lofton. "It's our young, upcoming star for their young, upcoming star," Royals manager Bob Boone said. "Dye's right-handedness fits better on our club and Tuck's left-handedness fits better on their club. Hopefully, it's going to be something that works out well for both teams." On Tuesday, Atlanta sent outfielders David Justice and Marquis Grissom to the Indians for Lofton and pitcher Alan Embree. The deals mean Andruw Jones will start in the outfield for the Braves. "I think at the beginning of spring training, they weren't so sure I was ready to play in the league," Jones said. "The last week or so, I started picking up. I think then they wanted to give me a chance to play every day." Tucker batted .260 for the Royals in 108 games last year, with 12 homers and 53 RBIs. His season ended in August, when he dislocated his left ring finger in a slide. "I guess I'm shocked," he said. "Believe me, if I get a World Series ring, I'm going to have to fly back to Kansas City and show it off."

Indians 2, Royals (ss) 1
 At Haines City, Fla., Marquis Grissom went 1-for-4 in his Cleveland debut, and Charles Nagy struck out eight in eight innings.
Astros 9, Royals (ss) 1
 At Kissimmee, Fla., Craig Biggio and Luis Gonzalez each had three hits and drove in two runs. Astros starter Shane Reynolds struck out 12 in seven innings, allowing four hits. Royals starter Kevin Appier was tagged for seven runs and eight hits in six innings.
Braves 3, Yankees 2
 At Tampa, Fla., Lofton went 2-for-4, stole a base and was picked off in his debut for Atlanta as the Braves beat New York in their first meeting since the World Series. John Smoltz allowed one run and five hits in four easy innings.

Marlins 6, Mets 5
 At Melbourne, Fla., Bobby Bonilla hit a two-run homer and Gary Sheffield hit a two-run double as Florida improved to 24-5 this spring.
Blue Jays 5, Pirates 4
 At Dunedin, Fla., Charlie O'Brien singled home the winning run with one out in the ninth. O'Brien, who earlier hit a three-run homer, hit his RBI single off Richardo Rinco.
Red Sox 6, White Sox 1
 At Fort Myers, Fla., Dave Martinez had three hits and two RBIs. Jaime Navarro allowed one run and four hits in five innings and walked two.
Phillies 6, Tigers 1
 At Clearwater, Fla., Curt Schilling struck out eight and allowed five hits in seven innings as he tuned up for opening day. Detroit has lost 12 of 15.
Expos 5, Orioles 0
 At West Palm Beach, Fla., Roberto Alomar went 0-for-2 and was booted in his first appearance of the spring. Sherman Olando hit a three-run homer in the first off Mike Mussina.
Cardinals 5, Twins 0
 At Fort Myers, Fla., Todd Stottlemyre pitched six shutout innings and struck out seven.
Reds 10, Rangers 7
 At Port Charlotte, Fla., Eric Owens homered twice and drove in four runs and Pete Rose Jr. hit a two-run homer. John Smiley, 5-1 this spring, allowed four runs and eight hits in five innings.

Fed up wife cuts up husband's head

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Fed up with accusations of infidelity, an Egyptian woman cut off her husband's head and chopped it into pieces with a cleaver, police said Thursday.

Mashhouna al-Dabbour, a 36-year-old housewife, killed her husband while he slept Wednesday night, police said.

Police caught al-Dabbour later that night when investigated a neighbor's complaint of strange noises. They found her burying pieces of her husband's head and body in a hole she dug by tearing up the floor under the couple's bed.

Al-Dabbour told police she was tired of her 50-year-old husband's mistreatment. She said her husband had accused her of having an affair with a neighbor — a charge she denied — and refused to give her money to buy food and other household items, said the officials, speaking on customary condition of anonymity.

Russia extradites former prime minister

BAKU, Azerbaijan (AP) — Azerbaijan's former prime minister was extradited from Russia on Thursday and imprisoned on charges of plotting coups in his homeland, Russia's ITAR-Tass news agency said.

Suret Huseinov briefly seized control over several parts of Azerbaijan in 1994. After he was ousted, he fled to Moscow, but was accused of organizing coup attempts in Azerbaijan in 1995 as well as 1996.

He also faces charges of involvement in drug trafficking, state-run television in Azerbaijan reported.

President Geidar Aliev has dealt harshly with political opponents in the former Soviet republic in the Caucasus, and has insisted on the extradition of a number of former officials who took refuge in Russia.

U.S. evacuation command post up and running

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo (AP) — In a sweltering tent on the edge of a lizard-infested African airstrip, rows of sweating U.S. military officers hunch over their laptop computers.

Welcome to the headquarters of the outfit that would rescue Americans from neighboring Zaire if things turn sour. Pull up a gray metal folding chair and sweat a while. Take a look around.

Inside this steamy hangar in Brazzaville you'll see all the accouterments of any busy office, everything from fax machines and printers to bulletin boards and in-and-out boxes.

The staff lawyer is tucked into a corner, murmuring into his field telephone. The doctor is around somewhere, probably handing out malaria pills or making sure everyone's drinking enough water. Equatorial Africa's climate is punishing; the staff weatherman says the humidity often exceeds the temperature. No one moves very fast here — except for these troops.

The joint task force began arriving in the Congo on Sunday from American bases in Italy. In less than 48 hours, the command center was up and running. You get on the Internet here or pick up your e-mail, or even watch CNN, thanks to the satellite dishes gazing skyward from the baking tarmac.
