Myers Takes Stand In Own Defense

Young Student Says He Asked Co-ed's Hand

Tells Jury He Had Nothing To Do With Death Of Marian Mills

NORMAN (AP) — Neal Myers told a jury trying him on a murder charge he had nothing to do with the death of Marian Mills, University of Oklahoma beauty queen he is accused of killing.

The student, white faced and shaken, denied he ever saw any instrument that might have been used in a criminal operation at the residence of Hazel Brown, where the Mills girl died July 10.

He denied seeing her take medicine she had come to the house to take.

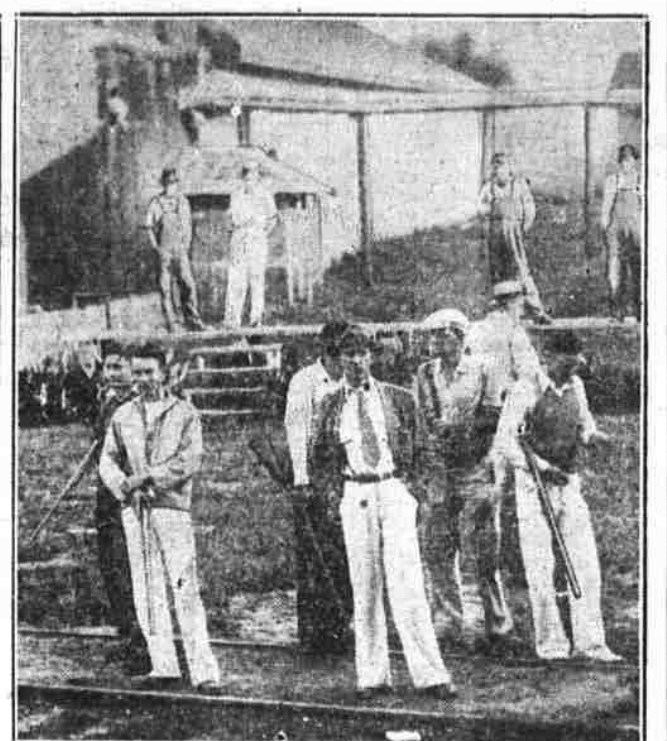

Myers denied he wanted her to prevent motherhood and testified he loved the girl and wanted to marry her.

Myers declared Mrs. Brown, former cook at his fraternity, called Marian into her bedroom a few minutes before her death and closed the doors while he stayed outside.

He said Mrs. Brown came out "while faced and excited," saying that the girl "was as good as dead" and advised him to flee to save his family from disgrace.

Myers told of summoning a doctor against Mrs. Brown's wishes and working over the girl until she stopped breathing, then fleeing to panic.

WOMEN PARADE, GUNS FLASH AS TEXTILE STRIKE BEGINS

With textile manufacturers declaring the general strike a failure, and with Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the strike committee, saying, "the walkout has exceeded expectations," the much heralded strike got under way officially. At left, women mill workers are shown parading at Macon, Ga., pledging their support to a peaceful strike. Special policemen are shown on duty at the right in front of the Boaz Cotton company's plant at Boaz, Ala., to protect non-striking workers as they arrived for their day's duties. ## Housing Program Explained Here By District Man

Explains Program

A far reaching program which has as its objective the absorbing of unemployment in building trades and allied industries was explained to a group of representatives of this section Thursday afternoon by R. A. Stuart, director of the West Texas district for Federal Housing Administration.

Stuart hailed the program as the "biggest and soundest proposition brought forth for recovery."

Declaring that success of the venture was dependent upon cooperation of the citizenry, Stuart cited four specific reasons for success: Financial institutions cooperating in the making of loans, labor, supply and material men, and the home owner.

Loans will be made on a sound basis, asserted Stuart. "The government doesn't want the bankers to play Santa Claus. The government wants this to be on a sound financial basis," he added.

Government Guarantee

He explained that the government will guarantee loans to the extent of 20 per cent of all the aggregate that banks could liquidize their loans by rediscounting them to the government provided they endorse the paper.

To obtain a loan, he said it would be necessary for the applicant to first be a home owner. If there were obligations against the place, they must be in good shape. "Good shape" was interpreted as meaning no past due principal, interest or taxes. It would be possible to get a housing loan if the original loan were in bad shape provided the lien holder endorsed the loan, he said. In so doing the lien holder would become liable.

Promissory Note Required

In instances where the loan is in good shape, the lien holder assumes no obligation. Housing loans will be made without all the customary formalities connected with real estate loans, explained Stuart. A straight promissory note will be given except in special cases where the banking institution will be allowed a mechanics lien to protect the investment.

Before a loan will be granted, the applicant must make an affidavit that he has an income five times the amount he expects to borrow. He must also make a statement as to what the money will be used for, and is liable to a federal prison term if he falsifies in these statements. His credit must also be good.

Types of Loans

Loans will be made for any repair or rebuilding work. This is sufficiently broad to allow for drilling of a well on a plot of ground, making additions to a house, laying of a tile subirrigation system, said Stuart. "You may do anything to a place that becomes a permanent fixture," he declared.

There is no time on ownership requirements, he stated. Loans will be made in any amount from $100 to $2,000 for one piece of property, the same amounts on as many as five separate holdings belonging to one man.

Since 1926 there has been a 90 per cent shrinkage in building trades and allied industries, he said. There were less than 100 new homes built in Chicago last year.

Definite Home Need

Seven out of every ten homes need some repair work, he quoted, making a total of 12,000,000 homes in the nation needing work. There is also a definite need of 2,000,000 new homes to take care of families driven to double up since the depression, he continued.

The new building section of the housing act is in the process of development pending the accomplishment of the repairing program, said Stuart.

The district director said that one third of the unemployment in the United States was in the building trades and allied industries. This could be absorbed and relief loads greatly lessened by cooperation in the housing program, he believed. "The housing program is a change," he commented, "from the dole to sound business."

Organization Urged

He stressed the importance of every community perfecting its organization regardless of the attitude of its banks. In event banks refuse to cooperate in handling loans, some other arrangement would likely be worked out, he predicted.

Stuart suggested that a general chairman be appointed in every county at once and that other details of organization be worked out at the earliest moment. The Big Spring chairman, said C. T. Watson, will be appointed within a few days.

Among towns represented at the meeting here were Stanton, Midland, Odessa, Fort Stockton, Big Spring and Comstock.

Stuart held a brief conference with bankers prior to the meeting held from the city auditorium.

R. A. Stuart, director of the West Texas district for Federal Housing Administration, brought a clear, interesting explanation of the federal housing program to a group of West Texas representatives here Thursday afternoon. The meeting was attended by delegates from an area extending from Colorado to Fort Stockton. He hailed the program as the "biggest and soundest program for recovery."

Employers And Labor Holding Own In Strike

Secretary Perkins Expresses Confidence Board Will Effect Settlement

By The Associated Press
 Both sides held their own in the general textile strike Friday.

With an estimated 360,000 idle, union pickets and "flying squadrons" met with little success in efforts to force shutdowns in additional New England mills.

In Washington, President Roosevelt's strike inquiry board went quickly into action with the announcement it would meet representatives of strikers and employers as "rapidly as possible."

Secretary Perkins expressed confidence that the president's board would be able to arrange a settlement of the strike.

She said the board's first task would be to hear "charges and counter charges" of each side. She saw nothing irreconcilable in the situation.

Control Board Is Favored For Relief Duties

AUSTIN (AP)—Supervision over disbursement of Texas relief funds would be vested in the state board of control under an amendment adopted Friday by the house to a bill to issue state bonds to relieve the needy.

The house favored the board of control over several other proposals to replace the present nine member board.

A crushing defeat was given to an amendment by Representative Long, Wichita Falls, to vest appointment of a new commission in James V. Allred, gubernatorial nominee.

Saturday is the last day for making applications for government, M. C. Weaver, assistant county clerk, said.

Offers made after Saturday afternoon will not be accepted by the government, he said.

Sheep buying is being handled differently from the cattle program, he said. All offers must be in by Saturday and will be sent to College Station, then to Denver where state allotments will be made.

When state allotments have been made, each county will be given its share of sheep to be purchased on the basis of number offered. The counties will pro rata the allotment to those who made offers.

There are an estimated 15,000 head of sheep in Howard county but until Thursday comparatively few had been offered for sale.

Engineers Die In Collision With Pusher

Father Of Mrs. Martin Johnson, Noted Explorer, Hits Locomotive

WINFIELD, (AP)—Sherman Lehighy, Santa Fe engineer and father of Mrs. Martin Johnson, African explorer, was killed Friday in a collision of his westbound passenger train and a runaway pusher engine five miles west of Grand Summit, Kansas.

Three other engineers were injured.

The pusher engine, en route to help a heavily laden freight train, ran wild down a hill over which it had just traveled and stopped at the base of another incline.

An only passenger on the train escaped injury. Cause of the collision was undetermined.

J. I. Hanson of Chanute, engineer of the pusher engine, later died enroute to a hospital.

WASHINGTON By George Durso

Finance

Rumors of impending inflation had made the bond market jittery to an extent that two weeks ago there was a distinct movement afoot to liquidate government holdings.

Morganthau's speech, plus Treasury support of its own bonds in the open market, had a steady effect but more rumors began to pop up. It was whispered about that Morganthau was planning to use his gold "profit" to pay off the September-October maturities which would be an inflationary move.

While the New Dealers were trying to still this rumor Douglas motored to Hyde Park and handed in not only his own resignation but that of his Assistant, Frederick W. Lowery, as well.

President Roosevelt was due to see the correspondents assigned to the "Summer White House" the following day but he cancelled the press conference. Secretary Marvin McIntyre said FDR had nothing to say on any subject—but what he failed to add was that most of Mr. Roosevelt didn't want to discuss Douglas' visit.

Hopes of keeping this latest rift in the official family quiet until after the terms of fall financing were announced proved short-lived. Word of the Douglas resignation leaked out in Washington.

The White House and Treasury had to move fast to offset the inferences certain to be drawn.

Secretary Morganthau also was in Hyde Park at the time. He hoped on the telephone and had his Washington aides announce, late that evening, that the September-October maturities—including $1,200,000,000 of Fourth Liberty Loan 4-1-4 per cent bonds—would be paid off with new securities. The exact nature of these trade-in (some financial observers are predicting they will be five-year propositions) will be made known Monday.

This was an unprecedented announcement. Ordinarily the Treasury confines itself to telling the date upon which refunding arrangements will be disclosed. But this time it was forced to reveal.

Milk Becomes "Drink Of The Hour" As 25,000,000 Pupils Return To School

About 10,000,000 sets of neck and ears will be washed and inspected by mother during September; 6,000,000 shocks of hair will be brushed, and at least 8,000,000 pairs of shoes shined to a brilliant dazle. For 25,000,000 youngsters will go back to school this month!

Of course the number of shined shoes and other estimates are but guesses but they must be near the truth, for 17,000,000 children of the above total according to the official census figures, are under thirteen years of age—the time when such things are very important!

More important, however, than shined pompadors and scrubbed necks is the daily diet of these millions of future citizens, who leave carefree vacation days to enter the regular regime away from mother's watchful eye. First and foremost item on this daily dietary, agreed upon by every dietitian in the land, is milk, for milk contains so many of the elements of the healthful diet—protein, fats, sugar, vitamins, minerals and water—and is especially valuable for building good teeth and bone.

Every adult should have a pint of milk, but each child should have a full quart daily. Since it is too much to expect that Junior and Jane will drink the daily milk without grumbling, some tested and child-approved suggestions will not be amiss.

They Drink "And Like It"

Accompanying the glass of milk with "rewards" is a time-honored means of bribing the younger generation. A package of chewy dates will make the milk go down faster and supply lacking vitamins to make a perfectly balanced meal. Doubles the energy value and if a theopony safe kind for children—may be bought for as little as ten cents, every mother's darling may have a package in his lunch box or one in his pocket after school. Of course the cookies and cakes made with the wholesome dates are welcome too.

"Plain" milk may be turned into a real "soda fountain beverage" which if properly made will add even more nourishment. A tablespoon of karo in the glass of milk doubles the energy value and if a little chocolate powder or syrup and a dash of vanilla is added and the whole shaken until foamy, make a delicious drink. The "shakes" are popular for any time of day, especially the new banana milk shake. Children love the nutritious banana and will "drink a banana" when they refuse plain milk. Simply mash a ripe banana with a silver fork or spoon, beat with your egg beater until creamy, then add a cup of cold milk and a fourth-teaspoon vanilla and beat until smooth and frothy.

Ways to Serve Milk

Besides drinking milk, there are dozens of ways to include it in the diet. Cereals serve to utilize more milk; creamed vegetables, soups, custards and puddings do their share. Besides the whole milk, skimmed milk (which contains all the elements of whole milk except the fat vitamin), buttermilk and cream may be used. Sour milk can go into the making of muffins or cottage cheese, and evaporated, condensed and dried milk may also be used. The following recipes—rich in milk—will help all homemakers serve those millions of quarts of milk every day.

Jack Horner's Cereal
(Serve with Milk or Cream)
Cereal prepared with modern

"plums"—golden dates—inside tempts the most finicky morning appetite. Stir the dates into the cooked cereal just long enough before serving to allow them to be heated through. Allow at least four dates to each person; one cup sliced dates is enough for 6 servings of cereal. "Eyes," "nose" and "mouth" may be made with dates on the plate of smooth white cereal—tickles the youngsters!

School Days Custard

3 eggs
1 cup maple karo
2 cups milk
1-2 teasp. salt
2 tbsps. Imperial brown sugar.

Beat eggs until light, add karo, sugar and salt and stir well, add milk, strain mixture and pour into individual cups. Set cups in baking pan in two inches of cold water and bake for half an hour or until custard is set. Serve topped with whipped or plain cream and a ripe banana, cut in dice.

GROWS AUSTRALIAN PLANT

FOXBORO, Mass. (UP)—Charles E. Holste has grown for the first time in New England a plant used mostly in Australia. The odd-looking vegetable, called Tasmanian butter fruit, measures more than three feet in length, grows on a vine and can be baked, boiled or fried.

Outdoor Picnics

Just at this time of the year about the most popular meat, for the outdoors at least, is the well known and well liked frankfurter. Perhaps you are not familiar with it by this name, for each section of the country seems to have a different means of identifying it.

It is claimed Germany named it after its famous town but probably if it were displayed or eaten by the real German, he would announce boldly that it was really "wiener wurst." Some refer to them as "hot dogs" or "red hots," but Mr. Frankfort really does not care for this term. Some states now have laws prohibiting these names to be used in connection with this meat food.

Regardless of the name, the process and ingredients are nearly always the same. In medieval days, sausage making was supreme as an art and nearly the whole carcass of the animal was devoted to it. Today, however, only part of the carcass is devoted to it, although sausage cookery still demands the skill of a chef.

Frankfurters are available at your market, grocery store, or favorite delicatessen shop.

At this time of the year the favorite method of serving them is in a sliced bun well spread with butter and mustard. There is something about the woody tang of a frankfurter cooked over an open fire in the out-of-doors that simply cannot be surpassed. Every fair and exposition has its quota of frankfurter stands. Whatever the weather, people still seem to line up for the tasty bun-sandwich with its spicy filling.

Broiled

Frankfurters broiled over an open fire, tender and juicy, are what hungry folks like when on picnics or hikes. Have the buns previously cut open and spread with butter. Don't forget to take the mustard or chili jar along. Buy the frankfurters, twelve in a pound package, or for large picnics the six-pound carton containing seventy-two frankfurters is most convenient.

Barbecued frankfurters are also enjoyed by many. They are quite simple to prepare.

In a large iron skillet make a sauce of the following ingredients: Melt one-fourth pound of butter; stir into it one and one-half teaspoons of mustard, one-fourth teaspoon of red pepper, one-half teaspoon of black pepper, and one-half teaspoon of salt. Add vinegar until the sauce is tart enough to suit the taste. Wipe off the frankfurters and saute in the sauce, turning often. When they have become a reddish golden brown color, remove to a hot plate and serve. This is enjoyed especially by those who like a spicy meat dish now and then.

Still another outdoor favorite is this simple rule for broiling frankfurters: Wrap a thin slice of bacon around a frankfurter and fasten with a skewer or toothpick. Broil under the broiler flame or over a fire until the bacon is nicely browned and the frankfurter is heated through. Serve with sauce made of equal portions of prepared mustard and butter spread on buns.

Giants Have Tough Battle With Cubs

NEW YORK (AP)—The Giants had to put on their seven-league boots Thursday to take another stride toward clinching the National league pennant as the third-place Cubs extended them to 12 keenly contested innings before the league leaders could eke out a 2-1 victory.

The triumph, their second straight in a series that once threatened to be a "crucial" one, gave Bill Terry's cohorts a nine-game margin over Chicago. They retained their seven-game lead over the St. Louis as the Cardinals turned back Brooklyn.

PIRATES 4, BRAVES 1

BOSTON—The Pittsburgh Pirates slashed their way to three runs off big Ed Brandt in the first two innings of Thursday's game with the Braves and then went on to win 4 to 1.

Lloyd Waner, pirate lead-off man, started the fireworks with a long double and then raced to third on Freddy Lindstrom's fly out. From this bag he scored on Brother Paul's single to center field.

CARDINALS 7, DODGERS 5
BROOKLYN — The Cardinals

made it two straight over the Dodgers Thursday, gaining a 7 to 5 decision on the strength of a five-run cluster that drove the veteran Tom Zachary out of the box in the fourth inning. The victory kept the Cards in second place, seven games behind the Giants, and increased their margin to two games over Chicago.
