PAMPA, TEXAS

50¢ DAILY/SUNDAY $1

Low tonight around 60. High tomorrow in low 90s. See Page 2 for weather details.

PAMPA - FirstBank Southwest has set up a fund to help defray the medical costs for Edward "Cotton" Bogges.

Bogges was hurt during a sky diving accident in Amarillo last weekend.

Donations to the fund can be made at the bank by specifying they are for the Bogges fund.

AUSTIN (AP) - A 16-year-old boy has been sentenced to 30 years in prison for his part in an alleged murder-for-hire plot.

Jurors deliberated two days before assessing the punishment against Carlos Reynosa. He faced up to 40 years in prison for his conviction of capital murder.

According to prosecutors, Martha Hernandez plotted the killing of her estranged husband, Roberto Giral, 26, after Giral filed for divorce. She has been charged with capital murder.

Reynosa's was the first trial in the case.

Giral was killed in Zilker Park, one of Austin's most popular outdoor spots, on Dec. 3, 1996.

No ticket correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game.

A winning ticket would have been worth an estimated $21 million.

The numbers were 10, 15, 19, 31, 48 and 49.

Saturday night's drawing will be worth an estimated $31 million.

AUSTIN (AP) - Spurred by reports that lawmakers were failing to use cost-saving measures for travel, the House Administration Committee has unanimously approved new rules regarding travel reimbursement.

"The rules are going to standardize things, and, in most cases, result in a cost savings," said Rep. Tony Goolsby, R-Dallas, chairman of the committee, which voted 8-0 to approve the rules on Wednesday.

Among the major changes, House members will be required to either obtain a special credit card that will entitle them to state contracted prices for airfare and rental car services, or use a central travel agency selected to handle House travel.

PEDC considers sewage, parking lot problems

By LAURA HALEY
Staff Writer

Sewage and parking lot problems at U.S. Bus was a topic for discussion at the regular Pampa Economic Development Board of Directors' meeting Wednesday evening.

The economic district has spent approximately $529,000 already on forgivable capital improvement loans ($250,000 for U.S. Bus and $80,000 previously from Fork Stork now applied towards U.S. Bus), contingencies ($20,000) and the new building addition ($179,000). However, another $1,000-1,500 will be shelled out by the economic district to cover repairs to a broken sewer line underneath the building.

Members of the board decided at the meeting that the repairs would be paid by the PEDC. There is no way to tell when exactly the sewer line broke, explained Board President Lewis Meers, as they could not inspect underneath the building prior to the move.

Other members agreed that the funds for the repairs could be paid out of the contingencies fund and, after repair, U.S. Bus would be responsible for any additional problems with the sewer line.

The parking lot, however, is a much larger problem, said Meers.

While working on the new addition, some of the trucks for Plains Builders Inc. damaged the current parking lot. U.S. Bus President Irv Kushner has asked the economic development corporation to fix the parking lot. However, since the damage was caused by traffic during the construction of the new addition, the PEDC is asking Plains Builders Inc. to pay for any damages.

Plains Builders has agreed to pay up to $1,700 for the damages, Meers told other board members at last night's meeting. This, he said, would restore the parking lot to the original condition at the time of purchase. Another estimate, approximately $6,000, could improve the parking lot to a much better condition.

Board members, however, voiced the opinion that restoration to the original condition at the time of purchase should be the only requirement for repair of the parking lot by the PEDC.

"I don't think it's our place to fix the parking lot the way he wants it," said board member Wayne Stribling.

Other board members agreed that any improvements over the condition of the parking lot at the time of purchase should be footed by U.S. Bus.

A meeting is scheduled to be held among U.S. Bus representatives, Meers and a representative of Plains Builders to try and resolve the parking lot issue.

Other issues at the meeting were basically getting the "house in order" for the new executive director, Lew E. Mollenkamp. Mollenkamp's employment must still be approved by city commissioners, which is expected during a special meeting held at City Hall at 5 p.m. this afternoon.

In addition to the announcement of the new executive director, board members took a moment to speak of former PEDC member Larry Orman. Orman recently turned in his resignation because his family is moving out of the area. Newcomer Jerry Foote was on-hand at the meeting to fill Orman's unexpired term to the board. Other items approved by the board included:

- Action was taken to allow up to $400.10 to be spent per month for employee health coverage.
- A request for the PEDC to pay the cost of western hats, which are to be given to officials visiting from the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, was approved (board member Wayne Stribling abstained from the vote).
- A loan guarantee to Parker and Parker was renewed. This guarantee requires no money to be expended by the development corporation.

PEDC selects new executive director

By LAURA HALEY
Staff Writer

A three-month search for a new executive director has ended, announced the Pampa Economic Development Corporation Board of Directors Wednesday evening.

Lew E. Mollenkamp, 47, is a certified economic developer currently working as the executive director of the Chamber of Commerce Economic Development department in Roswell, N.M.

Pending approval by the city commissioners, which may come today, Mollenkamp will take over as the new executive director of Pampa's economic development corporation in mid-July, replacing the former director, Jack Ippel.

Ippel tendered his resignation in March of this year, leaving the PEDC in the midst of two major projects - development of a 213-acre industrial park and a new promotional mailing program.

However, the new leader of the PEDC has no qualms about jumping into the job midstream.

"I'm looking forward to getting up here," he said. "There's some opportunities in Pampa I'm excited about."

The 47-year-old, WaKeeney, Kan., native has been involved in the economic development field since 1976, and, in the two years at Roswell, he helped establish 700 additional jobs in that area.

PEDC board members are hoping Mollenkamp will have the same impact in Pampa. As for Mollenkamp's philosophy, he views Pampa's economic development has an opportunity, noting that the foundation for development has already been laid out.

"Now it's just a matter of implementing it," he said.

Mollenkamp's ideas aren't just to expand the existing projects and bring in other industries, but to work closely with local businesses as well.

"My hope is to make the EDC's relationship with the community and city officials a tighter bond and increase the level of cooperation," said Mollenkamp.

Jury sentences Dunn to 130 years in prison

WHEELER - Michael Ray Dunn was in Wheeler County jail today awaiting transfer to the Texas Department of Corrections after being convicted Wednesday and sentenced to 130 years for robbery, assault and kidnapping.

It took a Wheeler County jury about an hour to find Dunn guilty of robbing Puckett's Food Store in Shamrock on Dec. 30, 1996, assault on a deputy sheriff pursuing him following the robbery and kidnapping three store employees during the robbery. The same jury returned Dunn's sentence about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Dunn, convicted on all five offenses for which he had been indicted, was sentenced to 45 years for aggravated robbery, 25 years for aggravated assault on a public servant and 20 years for each of the three counts of aggravated kidnapping.

The 27-year-old Dunn was accused of robbing the grocery store, binding three employees in the store's back room during the robbery, ramming Wheeler County Deputy Jerry Bailey's car following a high speed chase east of Shamrock and leading area law enforcement officers on a three day manhunt over the New Year holidays.

Dunn was arrested after approaching a local rancher on New Year's Day.

Dunn had escaped a private prison Christmas night in Mansfield, Texas, where he was serving a 45 year sentence for armed robbery in Oklahoma.

Defense attorney David Scott of Perryton pleaded with the jury during Wednesday afternoon's sentencing proceedings to impose a minimum five year sentence.

District Attorney John Mann, explaining the crimes for which Dunn had been convicted could carry prison terms from five to 99 years, left the decision to the jury.

Ed Bailey, recently hired by the McLean ISD to serve as principal of McLean High School and assistant superintendent, visited in McLean Saturday to enjoy seeing old classmates attending the 1997 biennial school reunion. Bailey is a 1964 MHS graduate.

Former McLean student returns as MHS principal

MCLEAN - Ed Bailey has been hired by the school board of McLean Independent School District for the position of high school principal and assistant superintendent. He will assume his full duties on Aug. 1.

He is coming from the Memphis Independent School District.

Bailey was in McLean for the Route 66 Roundup festivities last Saturday and joined in the fun with his former classmates in their biennial class reunions. Bailey is a 1964 McLean high school graduate.

He says he feels good about taking the position in McLean ISD this year and likes the thought of coming back. He is somewhat familiar with everything already, having taught a science class in the local high school in 1974. Since he is a hometown boy, the transition will be smooth.

McLean ISD Superintendent John Griffin said, "We're proud to have him, and I expect he will do an excellent job for us here."

Ed will be an asset to the school and to our community."

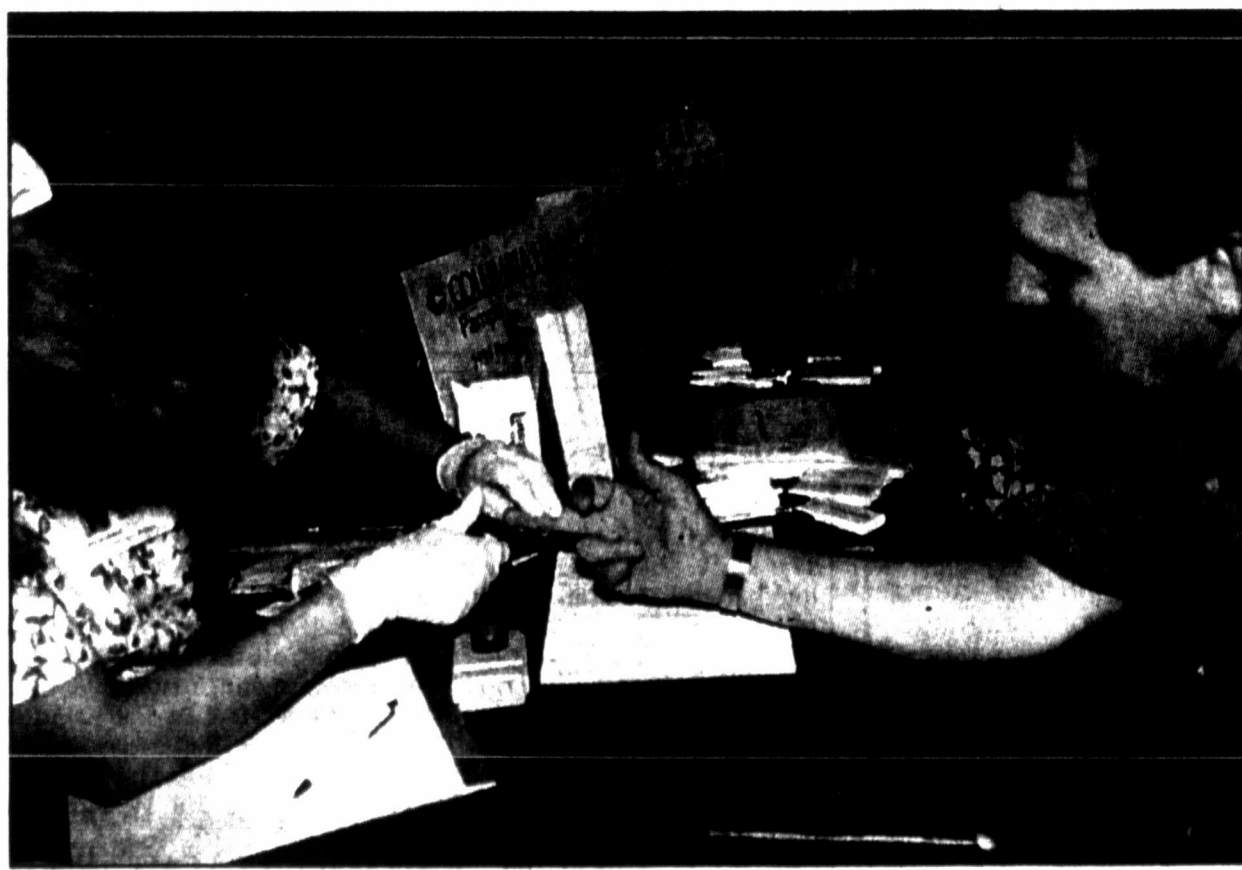

The Baileys are part of the early history in the settlement of McLean. He said his great-granddad was one of the early ranchers and farmers who settled in the area in 1907 at Bailey Fort, northeast of town. And he also does some farming at the old family farm and will be busy this summer before school starts.

"This is like, just sort of coming home, because the Baileys are of the old days, and are still around," said Bailey, sitting among several aunts, uncles and cousins who were also enjoying the noon barbecue dinner and school class reunions in the city park.

The family has a strong interest in local agriculture and farming. Principal Bailey is also an experienced ag teacher. Before being hired as junior high principal and later the high school principal for the past 11 years, he taught agriculture for 10 years in the Memphis school system. In all, Bailey has spent 26 years in public schools teaching and serving in school administration.

Correction

In the Wednesday, June 25, issue of The Pampa News it was reported incorrectly that LaTonya Jeffery was appointed to the M.K. Brown Auditorium Board and Jerry Wilson was appointed to the PEDC Board of Directors. Jeffery has resigned from the M.K. Brown Auditorium Board. Rev. Amy Lahey was appointed to fill her term. Jerry Foote was appointed to fill Larry Orman's unexpired term on the PEDC Board of Directors. We regret any inconvenience this may have caused.

Court rules no right to assisted suicide

WASHINGTON (AP) - In a unanimous decision that will echo through hospitals and homes, the Supreme Court said today that terminally ill people do not have a constitutional right to doctor-assisted suicide.

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, whose wife died in 1991 after a long battle with ovarian cancer, wrote the main decision.

He said the idea of having someone help end another's life conflicts with "our nation's history, legal traditions and practices."

The court upheld laws in New York and Washington state that make it a crime for doctors to give life-ending drugs to mentally competent but terminally ill patients who no longer want to live. Lower courts had overturned the statutes.

"The history of the law's treatment of assisted suicide in this country has been and continues to be one of the rejection of nearly all efforts to permit it," Rehnquist added in discussing the Washington state law.

"That being the case, our decisions lead us to conclude that the asserted 'right' to assistance in committing suicide is not a fundamental liberty interest protected by the due-process clause."

Justice Stephen G. Breyer, whose wife works with dying cancer patients, emphasized in his concurring opinion that both state laws "do not prohibit doctors from providing patients with drugs sufficient to control pain despite the risk that those drugs themselves will kill."

Hospice supports decision

Hospice of the Panhandle, a Pampa-based, not-for-profit agency which provides care for the terminally ill and their family, supports the U.S. Supreme Court's decision regarding physician-assisted suicide, according to Executive Director Sherry McCavit.

"We are glad the federal government didn't choose to control this issue and have left it up to each state to decide whether or not to legalize physician-assisted suicide," McCavit said today.

"As our state legislators consider the question of physician-assisted suicide, we hope that they will also look at end-of-life care as a whole," she added.

"The American Medical Association (AMA) has recently expressed a great concern about end-of-life care in the United States, that standard medical practices are not addressing all the needs of the dying. Many people believe that this could be the reason that the dying and chronically ill are turning to suicide."

"The question shouldn't be whether the state has an interest in allowing a person to ask a doctor to help them kill themselves, as much as whether the state has an interest in helping its citizens live out their last days in comfort and with dignity," she added.

"When terminally ill patients are given the right combination of care, pain and symptom control, and they and their families are supported emotionally, spiritually and socially, they find that they can deal with this final, and often difficult, journey."

McCavit referred to the philosophy of Hospice of the Western Reserve which states, "When we enter this world, we're surrounded by love, comfort and care. Don't we deserve the same when we leave?"

Hospice of the Panhandle supports the right of state governments to choose whether or not to legalize physician-assisted suicide, she said, as well as a patient and family's right to choose whether or not to see aggressive care until the end or the comfort care provided by hospice.

"Since 1988 more than 900 people have chosen hospice as an option in this area," according to McCavit. "And by far the majority of them have been satisfied with the end-of-life care they received."

"Hospice alleviates fear and suffering, two of the main reasons persons turn to suicide, and allows not only patients, but also their families, to participate in a natural process that gives them the opportunity to learn and grow."

McLean

Bailey earned his bachelor's degree in animal science from West Texas University at Canyon in 1968 and did some graduate work at Texas Tech University in 1968 through 1970. In 1986 he received his master's degree in education from West Texas A&M University.

He is married to Raye Bailey, county/district clerk of Hall County, and they have one son, Bubba. Mrs. Bailey will complete her term in office, and she and Bubba will continue living in Memphis.

According to Raye, the family is already used to commuting between the two towns because of their farming duties and therefore their lives will not be disrupted, with the exception of Ed, who will use the Bailey Fort as his McLean home.

Bubba is a sophomore in Memphis High School, where he is an honor student and participates in all sports activities, including football, basketball, tennis and golf. Bailey is proud of his son's accomplishments in sports. And just this summer the Baileys have followed their son to watch him play in at least 10 golf tournaments since the last day of school in May.

The son is an avid golfer. His goal is to earn a golf scholarship to attend the college of his choice following his graduating high school, said his mother.

This week he is playing in the North Texas PGA Junior Golf Tournament in Wichita Falls, and he has qualified for the area tournament in Odessa in July. On Saturday, June 21, he competed in the Pampa Hidden Hills NTPGA tournament, winning second place in the 14-15 year age group, she added.

During the weekend of June

13-14: Bubba won first place in the freshman division of the Jim Hitch Memorial Tournament in Guymon, Okla., and was overall medalist of all divisions.

His parents are supportive of their son's plans and expectations toward his future in education and sports, and understand his desire to complete high school in Memphis.

Bailey said of his own future in the McLean schools, "My goals are to try to improve the curriculum in the schools, and to strive to maintain the TAAS scores McLean has achieved, or even raise them higher. This school system has received recognition for its TAAS scores, and it has a great reputation in other aspects among the schools in this district."

"This is a good town and these are good people. It will be somewhat of a change, but a good one for me, and I'll enjoy my new challenges," Bailey said.

PEDC

He is already urging any local businesses needing help or wanting to expand to contact the PEDC for information.

Although not all businesses may qualify, Mollenkamp said he will attempt to find other resources for those businesses.

As the new director, Mollenkamp realizes the importance of improving the community relationship with the PEDC, especially with corporation's set expiration date in 2001.

If community relations are not improved, voters may not choose to extend the life of the corporation. This is a move Mollenkamp is hoping voters will not make.

"If you're not growing, you can stand still or go backwards," he said, adding that no business will move into a shrinking market.

Mollenkamp has a bachelor's degree from Kansas State University and 53 hours towards a master's degree in community planning. He has served in various economic development positions throughout Missouri, Kansas and New Mexico.

Methodist youth minister takes over new ministry

First Methodist Church of Pampa has announced Paul Munsell as its new youth minister. Munsell began his new position on June 1.

Munsell has been in the youth ministry for nine years. He has previously served churches in Oklahoma City, Clinton and El Reno, Okla. He attended Oklahoma City University on a soccer scholarship and graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice. He is married to Shauna Graves, formerly of Pampa. Shauna will be going into business with her mother teaching dance and gymnastics at the Madeline Graves Dance & Gymnastic Center. They have one daughter, Jenna, who is four years of age.

House committee approves waste agreement with Maine, Vermont

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Commerce Committee has given its seal of approval to an agreement that would allow Maine and Vermont to ship their low-level radioactive waste to West Texas in a trash-for-cash arrangement.

The Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Compact, endorsed by voice vote Wednesday, will go to the House floor later this year — where opponents hope to derail its passage.

"This bill still has to jump the huge hurdle of winning on the House floor," said Rep. Henry Bonilla, R-San Antonio, whose sprawling West Texas district includes the proposed Hudspeth County dump.

"While the Commerce Committee agreed to the compact, we have no reason to believe that the full House of Representatives agrees," he said, adding that he and other dump foes will seek to educate lawmakers on the "negative impact this compact will have in the long run for far West Texas."

The compact bill is being sponsored in the House by two Texans: Reps. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, and Ralph Hall, D-Rockwall.

Congressional approval is necessary for Texas, Maine and Vermont to consummate a deal inked by their legislatures that would allow the Northeastern states to ship to Texas waste generated mostly from nuclear power plants. The Senate Judiciary Committee in March approved the compact.

In exchange for freeing Vermont and Maine from having to develop long-term waste storage solutions, Texas would receive $25 million from each state. The compact derives from a 1980 law nudging states to find a common solution for their radioactive waste problems.

Congress already has approved nine other compacts covering 41 states.

The Texas compact — supported by Texas Gov. George W. Bush and more than half of the state's 30 House members — was defeated in the House in 1995, setting the stage for this year's fight.

High court strikes down religious-freedom law

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a landmark decision that rebuked Congress and enraged religious groups, the Supreme Court on Wednesday struck down a law that made it harder for government to interfere with how Americans practice their faith.

The court voted 6-3 to invalidate the Religious Freedom Restoration Act, making important statements on religious freedom and the competing powers of Congress, federal courts and the states.

The ruling in a dispute between a small Texas city and the local Roman Catholic church left religious groups worrying about government intrusion and promising to revive the protections.

"This decision is a catastrophe for religious liberty in America, but it is more than that," said Kevin Hasson of the Becket Fund for Religious Liberty. "It is a classic conflict between the courts and Congress over the allocation of power. It sets the stage for a constitutional amendment."

Reaction in Congress was immediate but those opposed to the court's ruling seemed more inclined to seek new legislation than a constitutional amendment.

"Sadly, with this ruling citizens will be forced to choose between their government and their God," Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., said as he pledged renewed efforts to enhance protection for religious expression.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, added, "The Supreme Court has thrown down the gauntlet, and we intend to pick it up."

The justices did not say Congress has no role in protecting religious freedom, but concluded that its sweeping 1993 law went too far and usurped authority from federal courts and the states.

The law required that any federal, state or local law imposing a "substantial burden" on someone's religious beliefs must serve a "compelling" government interest in the least intrusive way.

That standard would let government protect public health and safety but also would give religious minorities far more legal clout.

Marc Stern of the American Jewish Congress said that throwing out the law "means that there's no realistic federal protection for religious believers anymore. States and local governments can intrude, as long as they don't single out any faith."

Justice Anthony M. Kennedy wrote for the court that the law imposed "a considerable congressional intrusion into the states' traditional prerogatives and general authority to regulate for the health and welfare of their citizens."

He said the law also unduly interfered with past Supreme Court rulings on the scope of the Constitution's protection for religion.

"It is this court's precedent, not (the 1993 law), which must control," Kennedy said.

He was joined by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Justices John Paul Stevens, Clarence Thomas, Ruth Bader Ginsburg and Antonin Scalia. Justices Sandra Day O'Connor, David H. Souter and Stephen G. Breyer dissented.

Congress was reacting to a 1990 Supreme Court ruling when it passed the law. That decision declared that laws that otherwise were neutral toward religion could be valid even if they infringed on some people's religious beliefs.

The St. Peter Catholic Church in Boerne, Texas, invoked the 1993 law after the city thwarted its attempt to tear down part of a 70-year-old sanctuary and build an addition.

Opportunity Plan Inc. provides low-interest loans to students

CANYON — As costs increase each year at colleges and universities across the country, many families find it difficult to pay for a student's educational expenses. Thanks to the generosity of citizens across the Panhandle, area students have a source of assistance right in their own backyard.

The Opportunity Plan Inc. of Canyon provides low-interest loans and scholarships to help students attend the college or university of their choice. Established in 1954, the program has provided financial assistance to more than 9,000 students.

A total of $2,700,000 is currently on loan to area students.

During 1996, $120,000 in scholarships was awarded through The Opportunity loan program.

Over the years, members of the Twentieth Century Cotillion Study Club in Pampa have raised funds to assist students from Pampa and the surrounding area through the Opportunity Plan program. Club members made their first contribution to the program in 1962 and four years later created the Twentieth century Cotillion Study Club Student Loan Division with a $1,000 contribution.

Since that time, members of the study club have held numerous fund raisers in support of the student loan division including an annual antique show from 1963 until 1987. A home tour which the club sponsored in December of 1996 raised more than $3,100 for the student loan division.

Three study club members served on the Opportunity Plan board of Directors for a number of years. Anne Campbell, Helen Hall and Fran Morrison have provided invaluable support and encouragement to the program.

Thanks to the fund raising efforts of the study club members, 128 students have been able to borrow $473,752 from the student loan division to help meet their educational expenses.

Seven students are currently attending school with help from the student loan division.

Loans awarded through the Opportunity Plan program carry an interest rate of seven percent. Payments on the loan are deferred and interest is not charged while the student is enrolled in school on a full-time basis.

The Opportunity Plan is currently accepting applications for low-interest student loans for the 1997-98 school year. Students who are interested in applying for a loan should contact a member of the Opportunity Plan staff at (806) 655-2528 or P.O. Box 1035, Canyon, Texas 79015.

Missing woman found buried in own backyard, son placed under arrest

EL PASO (AP) — Police are holding a 19-year-old man on a murder charge after discovering the body of his mother, missing for more than a month, buried in the family's backyard.

Police unearthed Rosa Taylor's decomposing remains about 4 a.m. Wednesday after interviewing her son, Anthony Taylor. He had been arrested downtown Tuesday and had been sought for questioning for nearly two weeks.

Police spokesman Sgt. Bill Pfeil would not discuss what Anthony Taylor told authorities that led them to look for the body at the family home in a cul-de-sac in east El Paso.

Officers went to the house and searched until "they found a likely area, soft earth, things like that," said Pfeil. The body of the 48-year-old woman was in a shallow grave, he said.

Taylor was charged with murder following the discovery and was being held Wednesday in the El Paso County Jail under a $100,000 bond. At least one other arrest was pending, Pfeil said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the covenant commandment.

Welfare fraud and abuse is rampant

Whenever Winston Churchill wanted immediate action on an issue, he pasted a sticker which declared, "Action this day," across a note or memorandum.

These days, instead of using the Churchill approach, the federal government all too often seems to be doing just the opposite — ducking action where it is most sorely needed, and putting off tough decisions until another day.

Take the issue of Medicare. For over two years now, we've known that the system is losing money and will be bankrupt by the year 2001. Unfortunately, the issue's been caught up in partisan politics and nothing's been done to prevent it. Fortunately, real action might be just around the corner.

The House is scheduled to vote on a plan that would extend the life of Medicare for another ten years. The plan is expected to achieve three goals. First, there will be no cuts in Medicare — spending will continue to increase, but not as fast as in the past. Second, it will give seniors the right to choose the kind of Medicare coverage that's best for them. And third, it will clamp down on fraud and abuse.

The last point is important. Health care is estimated to add an additional three to ten percent to your total bill every time you visit the doctor. If you apply these figures to Medicare, it means that losses to fraud and abuse in 1996 could have ranged between $6 and $20 billion dollars. It's critical that we eliminate this kind of waste, and this bill will help us do that.

Most importantly, it will do what Churchill would have recommended had he been around today — take action on an issue that needs immediate attention.

Express appreciation everyday

The big holidays are over now and since my colleagues wouldn't let me run a gallery page on famous Texas moms and dads, I'll say my peace now.

Mother's Day and Father's Day are great holidays. After all what could be more appropriate than setting aside a single day to honor our parents.

Traditionally mom's stay at home, send the kids off with smile and a hug and maybe even a cute little note in the lunch box.

Dad's on the other hand go off to make a living, whether it be a blue collar worker on a construction site, or high priced executive responsible for company mergers worth millions.

With the changing times, the roles parents play have also changed. All too often Mom is rushing out the door, as the kids catch the school bus, and dad's are all too often missing from the home for one reason or another.

These changes have caused one parent to take on the roles of both feminine and masculine parent. The confusion of the children only increases as more parents take on these dual roles.

The children grow up seeing the in-house parent as the responsible party. They see Mom's

Dianna F. Dandridge

Pampa News staff writer

working on cars, mowing the lawn, laying down new carpet as well as all her traditional chores.

When Dad happens to be the in-house parent, the offspring not always, but often, see a hard working individual who may lack some of the traditional women's touches. That's not saying the men don't keep their house clean or feed the kids properly. It just means that something is missing.

Even if both parents remain in the children's lives there's still confusion. The parent who only gets the children for weekend visitation is faced with being the bad apple if they correct the children or don't give in to them, but when they do the custodial parent then hears all the attributes of the other and all of their own shortcomings from the children.

For the children with a missing parent and no close relatives, the trouble is even worse.

Think how sad it must be to never go to a father-daughter banquet or a mother-son picnic.

Here's my proposal. Let's set one day aside to honor all parents equally. Let's throw a big party with cake and hats and gifts. Just to let them all know they are remembered.

Then on every day the sun rises say "Mom, Dad, I love you. I'm glad you're in my life." That way everyone goes on their way with a happy thought and a good start to the day.

At night we could offer "Mom, Dad, you mean so much to me, I couldn't ask for a better guide or mentor."

Nothing really mushy or obnoxious. But you know, people, especially children believe what they hear and what they are told.

Wouldn't it be great to know that kids really felt this way, everyday rather than on just a couple Sunday's in May and June?

It may not be a bad thought.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, June 26, the 177th day of 1997. There are 188 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On June 26, 1945, the charter of the United Nations was signed by 50 countries in San Francisco.

On this date:

In 1870, the first section of the famous boardwalk in Atlantic City, N.J., was opened to the public.

In 1894, the American Railway Union, led by Eugene Debs, called a general strike in sympathy with Pullman workers.

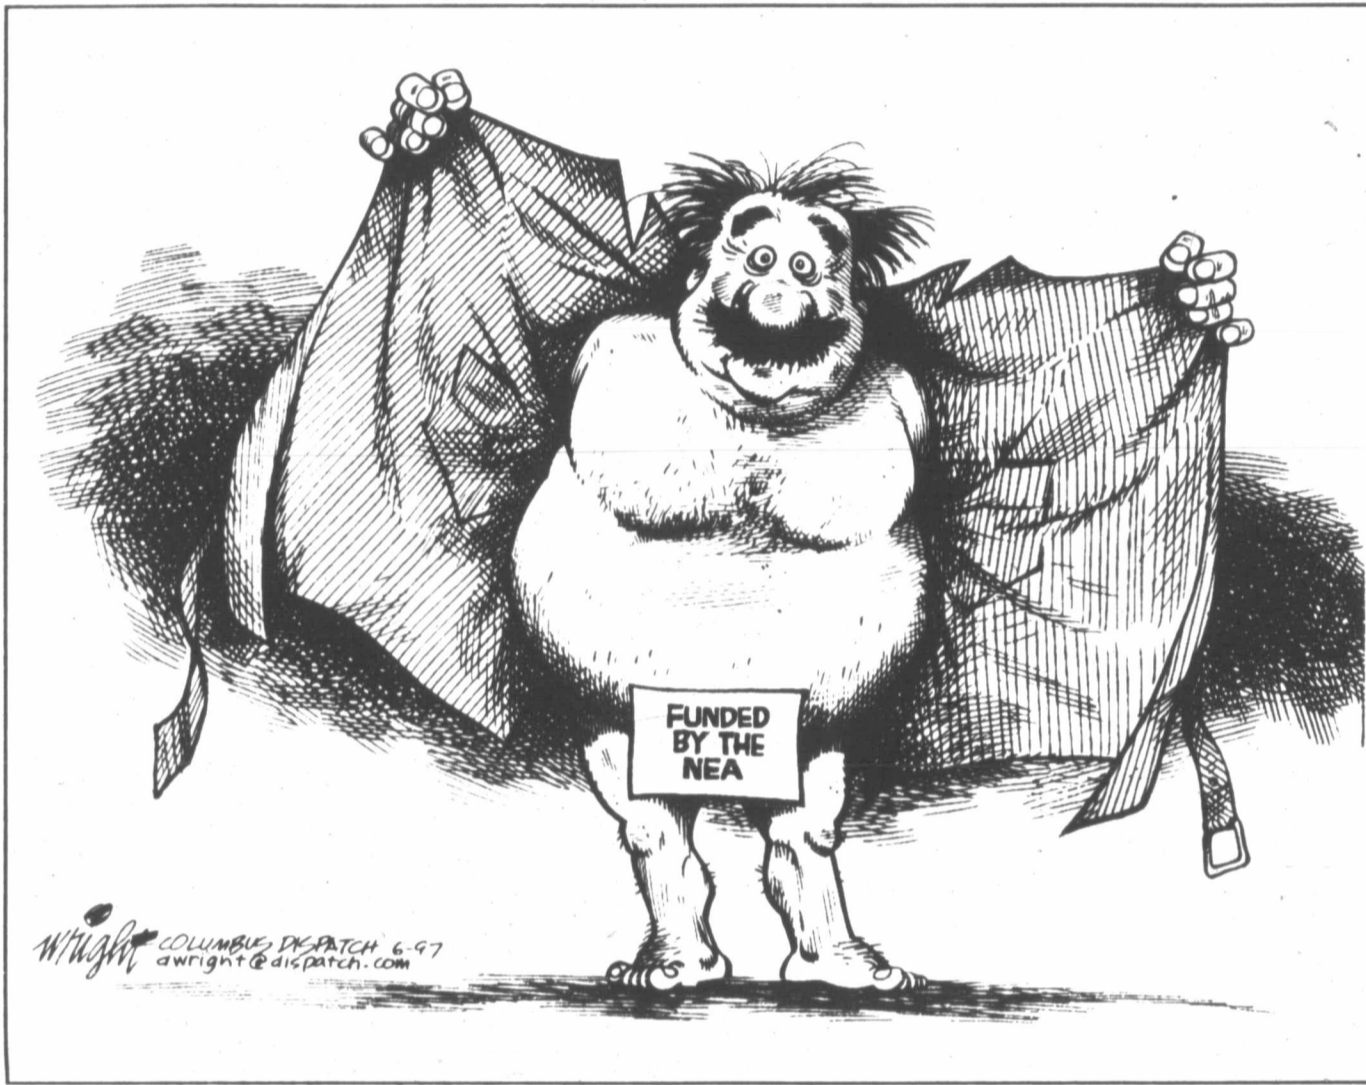

In 1900, a commission that included Dr. Walter Reed began the fight against the deadly disease yellow fever.

In 1917, the first troops of the American Expeditionary Force arrived in France during World War I.

In 1925, Charlie Chaplin's classic comedy, "The Gold Rush," premiered at Grauman's Egyptian Theatre in Hollywood.

In 1959, President Eisenhower joined Britain's Queen Elizabeth II in ceremonies officially opening the St. Lawrence Seaway.

In 1963, President Kennedy visited West Berlin, where he made his famous declaration: "Ich bin ein Berliner" (I am a Berliner).

McVeigh trial: There is no 'closure'

Charley Reese

Commenting on a criminal trial one did not attend inevitably results in banality or error, so I will confine my comments to the commentaries on the trial and conviction of Timothy McVeigh.

For the record, given the case his defense attorneys presented, I assume he is guilty. Their defense, at least as reported, offered no alternative explanations for the prosecution's evidence. From that I assume there weren't any.

One of the first cliches to crop up in the commentaries was that most despicable word "closure." The conviction will bring closure, some sap said. No, it won't.

If ever there were an example of nonsensical jargon, "closure" is it. Nobody who lost a loved one in the Oklahoma City bombing will ever get over it or forget it. They will carry the memories and the pain with them to the grave.

Nobody who was in the building and survived will ever be the same again. The illusion of predictability and certainty that most humans cultivate was shattered beyond repair for the people in that building. Never again will they wake up and assume that they know for sure how their day will go. The reality that a human being's future is uncertain has been blasted into their psyches.

Life for the McVeigh family is forever different from what it would have been. The same is true of the rescuers. Human life is not a series of airtight compartments. We don't move from one event to the next and seal the door behind us. Life is one continuous flow, and like a river, we carry all the sediment we pick up to the end.

The trial itself will not even end the legal process. There is another trial to go — Terry Nichols, also charged — and the appeals will wind their way through the courts for years.

Nor will the trial satisfy the conspiracy buffs, either those who think that McVeigh is innocent and that the federal government blew itself up (there are people who really believe that) or those on the left who are convinced McVeigh was a mere mechanic acting on behalf of some larger group of conspirators.

I've come to recognize that some people are addicted to conspiracy theories and that it's waste of time to throw facts at them. No matter what facts you offer they will explain them away as part of the conspiracy. And if you persist, they win conclude you are part of the conspiracy, too, and have been assigned the task of convincing the public there is no conspiracy.

Another banal comment involves "detering terrorists." You can't deter a terrorist who expects, going in, to die or one who is irrational. Only people who commit crimes for business reasons and are rational, if not moral, can be deterred, and not always them. The value of capital punishment lies not in deterrence but in elimination. The value of imprisonment is isolation, not rehabilitation.

Another banality is "the system works." Well, of course, it works. The question is never, Does the system work or not work, but, How well does it work, and at what cost? Guess I'm old-fashioned, but I'm not prepared to say that murder trials that cost the taxpayers tens of millions of dollars and involves years of time are signs that the system works very well.

We have created a justice system that produces the most expensive and the most delayed results in the world. I suppose that's because our capitalistic inclinations cause us to turn bad health, either physical or social, into a major industry.

Finally, there is no big lesson to be learned, and no knowledge to be gained, that will "make sure it never happens again, etc." As long humans exist, some will do evil. We would do better to accept the human condition as it is instead of paying attention to twits who keep insisting Utopia is just one more law or one more election away. The only thing Utopians have created is hell on earth.

Take-charge corrections commissioner

Nat Hentoff

Nat Hentoff is a nationally renowned authority on the First Amendment and the rest of the Bill of Rights.

Without warning — according to a current federal lawsuit — a Georgia Department of Corrections tactical squad descends on a prison, hauls prisoners, some without clothes, from their beds, shackles them, and beats them. In passing, one of the officers takes a prisoner's family photo album.

Among the correctional institutions in the state visited by these black-uniformed officers in laced-up black boots, without name tags and wearing berets is the Hays State Prison in Trion, Ga.

In a sworn statement taken in that federal lawsuit charging brutality against these agents of the Corrections Department, a guard at the prison, Phyllis Tucker, described an inmate's head being driven into a wall.

"The prisoner screamed. Blood went up the wall. Blood went all over the ground, all over the inmate. I heard a sickening cracking sound."

She was not the only member of the resident Hays State Prison staff to openly accuse the flying special corrections squad. An Atlanta Constitution reporter, Rhonda Cook, notes that other prison employees saw many of the invaders "jump on the backs of convicts sprawled on the ground."

These "shakedowns" by the black-clad enforcers are part of Correction Commissioner Warren Garner's policy of not "coddling" prisoners. In the May 30 Atlanta Constitution, Garner wrote that before he came, the public had lost faith in the prison system that had "ignored the impact of crime" on the inmates' lives. He has said that one-third of the inmates — the Atlanta Constitution reports — "ain't fit to kill."

A former funeral home operator and state senator, Garner was called to deal with the living when he was appointed to his present post in 1995 by Democratic Gov. Zell Miller. Garner is so conscientious a keeper of the inmates that he sometimes travels — wearing the same black garb — with his impassioned tactical squad to witness their ministry firsthand. And he has been seen congratulating them for their efficiency.

Mike Light, a spokesman of the Department of Corrections, has a ready spin concerning the federal lawsuit: "It's outrageous that the persons who have killed, raped, molested children and robbed would attempt to sue the state for pain and suffering."

That tactic might work. Most people these days, and not only in Georgia, consider prisoners to have even less credibility than journalists. But this time, so horrifying was the raid on Hays State Prison that veteran prison guards risked their jobs to tell, on the record, what they saw.

In a stinging editorial demanding that Gov. Zell Miller remove his corrections commissioner, the Atlanta Constitution pointed out that "like police officers, prison guards" do not blow the whistle on their colleagues. Usually, the blue wall of silence is insurmountable. But the fact that eight members of the Hays State Prison staff testified against the traveling squad means "they can't easily be dismissed as soft-hearted prison reformers."

Steve Bright, director of the Southern Center for Human Rights in Atlanta — which represents prisoners shorn of their constitutional rights — tells me that unlike the Atlanta Constitution, most of the other papers in Georgia have been largely indifferent to what could be a historic prisoners'-rights lawsuit.

There are exceptions, but many newspapers around the country do not consider prisons as among the "communities" in their reporting orbit — unless there's a riot.

The attorney bringing this federal lawsuit, Robert Bensing, is on the staff of the Southern Center for Human Rights. During a deposition, he interviewed Linda Hawkins, a guard at Hays State. After watching the work of Wayne Garner's peacekeepers, "I went to my office and I cried. Then I went to the restroom and threw up."

It might have been instructive if Gov. Miller had also been watching all the blood. Not benefiting from seeing Wayne Garner in action, Miller, however, continues to express his support for his commissioner. After all, Garner has cut the legal staff for the prisons, along with academic and vocational teachers.

Another witness at Hays State Prison is guard Jan Chapman, who said in a deposition: "I think it's OK to go in and knock an inmate up, just knock him out, if he gives you reasons. But when you go snatching them out of bed for nothing ... beating them while they are shackled, that is wrong."

Now she's afraid of retaliation from on high: "We know that everything we say is going to go to the commissioner. I will answer any questions you have and then I would like to go, please."

But the inmates, who cannot go anywhere, wait for the next visit from their dedicated commissioner of corrections.

Police: Man plotted to kill in-laws

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A man wanted to get back at his wife for leaving him and taking their three children, so he recruited two men to murder his in-laws, authorities say.

U.S. Magistrate Judge Judith K. Guthrie refused Wednesday to release Oscar Dean Davis of Hughes Springs on bond pending trial.

Guthrie ruled there is enough probable cause to bind Davis over to a federal grand jury for possible indictment on charges of felon in possession of a firearm. The magistrate ordered him detained pending trial.

The FBI uncovered the alleged plot and arrested Davis Friday. An affidavit alleges that Davis wanted to murder his wife's parents in Denver to retaliate for his wife leaving him about two weeks ago.

FBI agents said two men told them they were associates of Davis and were supposed to carry out the murder plot.

One of the men, Simeon Douglas Robertson Jr., told authorities he traveled to Denver with Davis during the week of June 6 to locate the home of Davis' in-laws and plan their beating and murder, the affidavit said.

"While in Denver, Dean Davis took Doug Robertson to the residence and photographed the house belonging to Davis' in-laws from three different angles using a Polaroid camera purchased in Denver, Colorado for that purpose," the affidavit said.

The men then reportedly headed to Albuquerque, N.M., where they bought more materials to pull off the murder, including a black leather police uniform belt with handcuff holder, night stick holder and holster, and a night stick and badge.

90-year-old surrounded by bank

DALLAS (AP) — Ninety-year-old Ramon Rodriguez thought a stubborn "No!" and a stern look might discourage construction of a bank where his modest little house stands.

So much for the little man standing in the way of progress. The bank decided to go ahead with the project anyway, without the old man's land, and simply wrap the building, horseshoe-style, around the house Rodriguez shares with his scruffy dog, Baby.

When Overton Bank and Trust Dallas opens in mid-August, an automated teller machine will dispense cash 15 feet from where Rodriguez sleeps. (He does not have an account at Overton and doesn't plan to get one, either.) Drive-through customers will idle in front of his kitchen window. If he wants to know the time or temperature, he can poke his head out and check the 20-foot sign.

"I've lived here for 50 years, so why do they think I'd move now?" Rodriguez said as he rested in a rickety rocking chair on his front porch, less than 50 yards from the busy Dallas Tollway. "I don't care what they're building — I'm not going anywhere."

Suburban sprawl and expanding business districts are forcing more people, often elderly, to choose between staying in the family homestead and getting out of progress' way. In Atlantic City, N.J., an elderly widow is fighting to keep her home from Donald Trump, who wants to build a casino on her land.

PUBLIC NOTICE

BRIEF EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF PROPOSED

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

SPECIAL ELECTION

AUGUST 9, 1997

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 4 proposes a constitutional amendment which would increase the school property tax residence homestead exemption from $5,000 to $15,000. The amendment would also authorize the Legislature to limit all or part of the exemption to political subdivisions that are the principal providers of elementary and secondary education within their boundaries.

In addition, the amendment would authorize the Legislature to allow the transfer of all or part of the age 65-and-over tax freeze to another homestead. Specifically, the Legislature would be authorized to provide that the current limitation against increasing school property taxes on the residence homesteads of persons age 65 or older, or their surviving spouse who is eligible to receive the exemption, may be transferred if the person establishes a different residence homestead.

The amendment would also allow the $10,000 additional amount for the standard exemption to be used to lower the tax rate of persons currently receiving the 65-and-over tax freeze. Specifically, for a homestead affected by this limitation in 1996 or in an earlier tax year, the Legislature must provide for a reduction in the school property tax limitation in the 1997 tax year and subsequent tax years in an amount equal to $10,000 multiplied by the 1997 school property tax rate.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment providing school property tax relief by increasing the residence homestead exemption by $10,000 and providing for the transfer of the tax limitation to another qualified homestead for persons over 65 and a reduction in taxes subject to the limitation."

Este es el informe explicatorio sobre la enmienda propuesta a la constitución que aparecerá en la boleta el día 9 de agosto de 1997. Female sergeant testifies Army's top noncommissioned officer seduced her

WASHINGTON (AP) — A female Army sergeant who alleged she was pressured by the service's top enlisted man to have sex said it was an act of betrayal that destroyed their friendship and her military career. "I trusted this man, I opened up to this man," Sgt. Christine Roy said of her friendship with Sgt. Maj. of the Army Gene C. McKinney, who is accused of sexual misconduct involving four enlisted service women.

"After that night, it was different; he would call me and we had little to say," said Roy, who was nearly eight months pregnant at the time. She testified that she never saw McKinney face to face again until Wednesday at a proceeding to determine if he should be court martialled.

The married mother of two said she looked up to the Army's top enlisted soldier both as a mentor who would listen to her problems and as a model for her own career.

"He was a great person, he would always listen to what I had to say," Roy told a proceeding convened in a makeshift hearing room at a mess hall at Fort McNair.

Now that she is a witness against him, "I feel my career is over ... I will never get to the positions I want to get to," she said.

Neither McKinney nor his wife, Wilhemina, showed any emotion during Roy's testimony.

Defense attorneys are expected to question Roy about why she did not mention the episode until the third time Army investigators questioned her about her friendship with McKinney.

Roy said she tried to repress the incident and didn't want to get McKinney in trouble. "It was easier for me not to believe it happened."

But the sexual encounter with McKinney last fall at his quarters at Fort Myer, Va., "changed my life completely."

"He started kissing me, touched my breast," Roy recalled.

"I pushed him back and told him I didn't want to do this." But Roy says McKinney exposed himself to her and pulled her hand to his penis.

"I was shocked, I was scared, I was intimidated." Roy said she didn't have the strength to push McKinney off her body.

"I felt it was just easier to do it, get it over with, be done with it," she said.

Prosecutors tried to show that the damage to Roy's emotional health as well as her career was the result of sexual harassment by a superior who abused his position of power and authority.

"I never forgot he was sergeant major of the Army. That was always foremost in my mind," she told Lt. Col. Mike Child, the Army trial attorney presenting evidence.

After the sexual encounter, Roy said "I wanted to Mother unaware daughter's corneas removed

FORT WORTH (AP) — It was five weeks after Robin Baldridge's 15-year-old daughter committed suicide that she found out the girl's corneas had been transplanted into a Fort Worth police officer.

The discovery this week was shocking, she said, since not only did the family not give permission for the transplant, it was not even consulted.

"The way I found out about it, I was just startled," Ms. Baldridge said Wednesday. "They did something like that without even telling me."

Removing eye tissue without consent is neither uncommon nor illegal. In Texas and about two dozen other states, the law exempts corneas from the consent requirements that apply to other forms of organ or tissue removal.

Jodie Bomar, executive director of the Lions Organ and Eye Bank, said her organization acted within a 1987 Texas law when it removed the cornea after one unsuccessful attempt to reach the family. Removing the eye tissue does not involve invasive surgery, Ms. Bomar said.

"Corneal tissue can be removed with permission from the medical examiner without the family's knowledge or consent," she said.

Space station crew dims lights, shuts down equipment

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

Desperate to conserve power, the three men on Russia's crippled space station Mir worked in the dark today with all non-essential equipment turned off after the worst orbital collision ever.

An unmanned cargo ship crashed into Mir on Wednesday, leaving a gash about the size of a postage stamp in the pressurized vessel, knocking out half the power and raising questions again about how long the decrepit spacecraft can function before someone gets killed.

"It's a serious situation," said astronaut Jerry Linenger, who returned from Mir in May after battling a blaze and other life-threatening problems aboard the aging, 11-year-old outpost. "Fire aboard a spacecraft and decompression are the two most dangerous things that can happen on an orbiting vehicle."

It was unclear how much longer the American and two Russians on Mir could remain on board, but they were said to be in no immediate dan-carbon dioxide removal system. They also were urged to move slowly to conserve oxygen.

Four of the space station's solar panels weren't working after the accident, which knocked the station away from the ideal sun angle for the remaining solar panels to keep charging.

This morning, the crew used precious fuel to fire thrusters to turn the station so its solar batteries could recharge, said Vera Medvedkova, a spokeswoman for Russian Mission Control.

"The crew's priority is to restore power," said Kathleen Maliga, a NASA spokeswoman at Russia's Mission Control center just outside Moscow. "But so far no additional power has been recovered."

Friday's launch of another cargo ship, this one carrying supplies to Mir, was postponed for at least ten days in order to load it with material for repairs. Russian space officials want to send up power cables to repair solar batteries on the damaged portion of the station.

The crew may either take a spacewalk to fix the solar panels or try to patch the leak inside the module, unidentified officials told ITAR-Tass.

The officials said it could become necessary to evacuate the crew if Mir's power supply is not restored to a level that would allow docking with the cargo ship.

While still trying to determine the extent of the damage, NASA said it will rethink its program of sending astronauts to Mir.

"Once we get the situation stabilized and understand what the long-term potential for operation on the Mir is and what its capabilities remaining are, then we will evaluate with the Russians where we go next," said Frank Culbertson, director of NASA's shuttle-Mir program. "We might at some point want to terminate the mission."

Even before the latest accident, some experts and Washington officials had argued that Mir was too old to fly safely.

The officials said it could become necessary to evacuate the crew if Mir's power supply is not restored to a level that would allow docking with the cargo ship.

ger. Mir has an attached Soyuz capsule that can bring the crewmen home in an emergency.

The men were forced to work in darkness with much of their equipment turned off to save energy. Unless more power is restored soon - how soon, NASA couldn't say - they may not be able to operate their life-support systems, such as the primary oxygen generators and the Prosecutor denies looking into Clinton's sex life

WASHINGTON (AP) - Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr denies he is investigating President Clinton's private life, amid a growing chorus of criticism from the president's supporters.

Clinton defenders from James Carville to one of Starr's former court colleagues, Abner Mikva, laid into the Whitewater independent counsel Wednesday after a front-page story in The Washington Post said investigators were questioning Arkansas troopers about any extramarital relationships Clinton may have had.

"Reports that this office is now investigating certain aspects of President Clinton's personal life" are "incorrect," Starr responded.

Mikva's said the Whitewater prosecutor should "renounce this inappropriate line of inquiry or ... resign." Former Clinton White House counsel Jack Quinn joined with Mikva, also an ex-counsel who served with Starr on the federal appeals court in the 1980s.

has become a jihad. ... For Kenneth Starr, the ends justify the means."

"I was a prosecutor for nine years, and any prosecutor who cares about civil liberties and cares a whit about keeping the public's trust knows full well that tactics like these are over the line," said

"... any prosecutor who cares about civil liberties and cares a whit about keeping the public's trust knows full well that tactics like these are over the line."

—Sen. Patrick Leahy

There also was consternation among Democrats on Capitol Hill.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said "this is not a responsible independent investigation. This

Leahy, the ranking Democrat on the Senate Judiciary Committee. "They muddy the reputations of those who practice them as well as the reputations of the victims."

Sagebrush Club to hold art show

CANADIAN — The Sagebrush Painters Club will have its 20th annual art show from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, July 4-5, in the W.C.T.U. Building, 500 Main Street in Canadian.

Each year the artist exhibits draw a number of visitors from the area, said club president Joe Keeney. Last year a total of 328 visitors signed the registry, and this year the club officers are expecting more.

The Anniversary Show features guest artist Harold Scott of Sayre, Okla., who specializes in western and landscape paintings.

"Our club was organized on May 10, 1978, to help foster and encourage fine arts in the Canadian area," Keeney said.

He said the members support artistic development of the youth in the community through involvement with local schools. Over the past several years, a number of Canadian High School students have exhibited their work in the Sagebrush Painters art shows.

"We have 25 members in our club, but we are always looking for new, interested people. We want oil and watercolor artists who work with canvas, china painting, or portrait artists who work in oils, water colors or ink," Keeney said.

Officers for the Sagebrush Painters Club are Keeney, president; Charles Heusel, vice president; Ja-nnet Williams, treasurer; Shirlene Vines, secretary; Ethel Adcock, art show director; and Mary Williams, assistant director.

Anyone wishing to join the artists' group or needing additional information may call Keeney at work (806-323-6141) until 6 p.m., or at home (806) 323-6693) after work hours.

Real Heroes Rise To Meet Life's Greatest Challenges

DEAR READERS: Yesterday's column was filled with the names (submitted by my readers) of individuals who managed to succeed against the odds, persevering in the face of life's adversities to become winners. Today's column is a continuation of that list:

— Have a thalidomide child born with a dwarfed, twisted body without arms, and you have a Terry Wiles, who, with the aid of mechanical devices, learned to play the electric organ, steer a motorboat and paint.

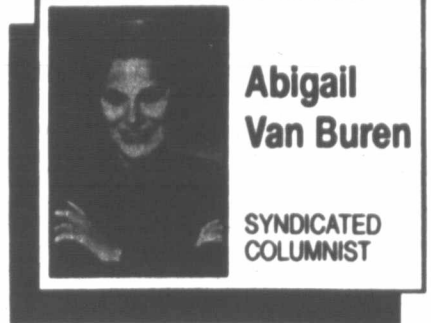

— Amputate the cancer-ridden leg of a handsome young Canadian, and you have a Terry Fox, who vowed to run on one leg across the whole of Canada to raise a million dollars for cancer research. (Terry was forced to quit halfway when cancer invaded his lungs, but managed to raise about $20 million.)

— Let a British fighter pilot who lost both legs in an air crash fly again with the RAF, and you have a Douglas Bader, who, with two artificial limbs, was captured by the Germans three times during World War II — and escaped three times.

— Blind him, and you have a Ray Charles, George Shearing, Stevie Wonder, Tom Sullivan, Alec Templeton or Hal Krents.

— Label him "too stupid to learn," and you have a Thomas Edison.

— Make him a "hopeless" alcoholic, and you have Bill Wilson.

Abigail Van Buren
SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

— founder of Alcoholics Anonymous.

— Tell her she's too old to start painting at 80, and you have a Grandma Moses.

— Afflict him with periods of depression so severe that he cut off his own ear, and you have a Vincent Van Gogh.

— Your list would not be complete without a smiling Max Cleland, who lost both legs and an arm in Vietnam and formerly headed the Veterans Administration in Washington, D.C. He is now serving as a Democratic U.S. senator from Georgia.

— Don't forget Patricia Neal, the fine actress who suffered a severe stroke, but rehabilitated herself against overwhelming odds.

— Blind him at age 44, and you have John Milton, who, 16 years later, wrote "Paradise Lost."

— Call him dull and hopeless and flunk him in the sixth grade, and you have a Winston Churchill.

— Punish her with poverty and prejudice, and she may survive to become another Golda Meir.

— Pit her against sexual discrimination, and you have a Madame Curie.

— Tell a young boy who loved to sketch and draw that he has no talent, and you have a Walt Disney.

— Take a crippled child whose only home he ever knew was an orphanage, and you have a James E. West, who became the first chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America.

— Rate him as "mediocre" in chemistry, and you have a U Pasteur.

— Deny a child the ability to see, hear and speak, and you have a Helen Keller.

— Make him a second fiddle in an obscure South American orchestra, and you have a Toscanini.

Not all disabilities are visible. And not all who have won against the odds are well-known celebrities.

Every family has its own heroes and heroines for whom there is no medal distinguished enough to reward them for their accomplishments.

It is to you, whose names do not appear here but deserve to, that I dedicate this column.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? Get it off your chest by writing to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69480, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be extremely selective today regarding to whom you go to for advice. Your chart indicates your counselor may know less about the issues than you do.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Avoid groups today who make you feel uncomfortable. Why subject yourself to feeling uneasy when you can be around pals who make you feel good?

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your mode of behavior will be scrutinized by your peers today. Those who will be observing may be waiting to see if you lack social grace.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually your plans are reasonably well thought-out, but today you might give them just a lick and a promise, and leave them vague and ineffective.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you might move your funds around in ways that could rob Peter to pay Paul. Do not kid yourself into believing you're balancing your budget.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There are a number of assignments that might require your attention today, but if your heart isn't in your hammer, you could end up with broken nails.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Lady Luck could be a bit fickle today, so it's best you bank upon your common sense and not upon whims of fate. Play your cards carefully and realistically.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Librans are known for their graciousness and hospitality, but today you might not be in the mood for guests. You should be back to yourself tomorrow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Everyone makes mistakes on occasion, and you're no exception. If you err today, don't cover up. No one will think less of you for confessing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you may be a bit more careless than usual in the management of your resources. Conduct all financial affairs in a businesslike manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might be quite indecisive today. It is best you take a strong position and maintain it or you could get caught in a revolving RIVER ROAD — Mobeetie native Sheryl Estes is conducting a girls' basketball camp July 14-17 at River Road High School.

Camp times are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day with registration scheduled the first day of camp (July 14) from 9 to 10.

Estes currently coaches the Colorado Xplosion, a women's professional team in the American Basketball League. She has directed the Flying Queens Camp at Wayland Baptist University the past seven years.

She is also directing Xplosion Camps in Denver this summer.

As the coach at Wayland Baptist, she compiled a winning percentage of 75% and led the Queens to six National Tournament appearances. In her first season as a professional coach, she led the Xplosion to a 25-17 record and the Western Conference Championship.

For more information on The Sheryl Estes Hoops camp, call 806-355-4219 or 303-561-1763.

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Former Olympian and current Houston Comets star Sheryl Swoopes has given birth to a baby boy, hospital spokesman Eddie Owen said.

Jordan Eric Jackson was born Wednesday afternoon at St. Mary Hospital in Lubbock. He weighed 7 pounds, 9 ounces and was 21 1/4 inches long.

Both baby and mother were listed in good condition Wednesday, Owen said.

Swoopes and husband Eric Jackson, her high school sweetheart whom she married in 1995, weren't available for comment.

The Comets' WNBA season began last weekend and runs through Aug. 30. Swoopes has said she expects to return sometime in August.

Swoopes, a 6-foot forward, scored a record 47 points in Texas Tech's 1993 NCAA championship victory over Ohio State.

She led the NCAA in scoring that season at 28.1 points per game, and she averaged 23 points in the 1993-94 season with Bari, Italy.

TENNIS

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Once again, the busiest man at Wimbledon is referee Alan Mills. And, once again, his biggest headache is that old Wimbledon nemesis: wet weather.

For the second straight day, showers lashed the All England Club today and the prospects for any play were uncertain. More rain was forecast through the weekend.

"The latest report from the London Weather Center is not very encouraging, I'm afraid," All England Club chief executive Christopher Gorringer told fans over the public address system. "Rain is likely to continue on and off most of the afternoon."

With the tournament now more than 100 matches behind schedule, Mills is facing the possibility of play on the middle Sunday for only the second time in tournament history.

Nearly all of Wednesday's program was washed out, with Monica Seles and Jana Novotna winning the only two matches that were completed.

Seles downed Rachel McQuillan 6-0, 6-2 in a first-round match held over from Monday, and Novotna beat Wiltrud Probst 6-4, 4-6, 6-0.

Holmes holds off Boatmen's rally to remain undefeated

By MATT HUTCHISON
Sports Writer

PAMPA — Holmes scored three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to rally from two runs down to claim a 6-5 victory over Boatmen's on Tuesday night.

After a short rain delay, both teams took the field as Boatmen's snared the early lead. Holmes' starting pitcher Greg Lindsey found himself in trouble early, walking two runs in for Boatmen's on walks to Michael Campos and Brent Coffee in the top of the second inning. Boatmen's also posted a run on a wild pitch that allowed the runner to score.

Holmes' first opportunity to post some runs in the Babe Ruth contest appeared in the bottom of the third inning. Base hits by Jeremy Hall and Casey Owens led off the inning. An attempt to throw out Hall at third turned into a Holmes run after the ball got past the third baseman. Greg Lindsey produced the other run of the inning, sending a ball into shallow center field to score Owens before being gunned down at second by the center fielder.

In the top of the fourth inning, Boatmen's battled back, increasing their lead to two runs. After Holmes reliever Casey Owens gave up a base on balls to Casey Meharg, Jimmy Story came to the plate and cranked out a single to score the runner.

Boatmen's starting pitcher Brent Coffee did an excellent job holding off first-place Holmes at the plate, allowing Holmes' touted offense only three runs in six innings, two of those runs earned.

In the bottom of the sixth inning, Holmes scored their third run off a Kyle McCullough single to score the runner, Owens, who had drawn a base on balls earlier in the inning.

Boatmen's matched Holmes with a run in the sixth, produced an RBI double from Story to score the runner, Casey Meharg, who had preceded Story with a single.

Looking to upset undefeated Holmes, Boatmen's went into the bottom of the seventh still leading by two runs, 5-3. But timely hitting coupled with mediocre defense from Boatmen's allowed Holmes to steal away the game.

Matt Driscoll drew a walk with one out to put the first baserunner on for Holmes. Leadoff hitter Jeremy Hall was able to sneak onto base after a fielding error on the second baseman. Then, a clutch triple by Casey Owens drove in the runners to tie the game at 5-5. A walk to Lindsey followed, and while cleanup hitter Shawn Strate faced the plate, a pitch in the dirt headed for the backstop, while Owens alertly scrambled for home plate, sliding in safely to steal away the game in favor of Holmes, 6-5.

Spurs make it official: Duncan is number one draft selection

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — With the formalities of the NBA Draft over, top pick Tim Duncan heads to Texas today.

And the San Antonio Spurs have a Lone Star welcome waiting for him, complete with a Mexican food meal and a giant pep rally at the Alamogordo.

"It's fiesta time!" Gregg Popovich, coach and general manager of the Spurs, said with a grin Wednesday after San Antonio used the No. 1 pick to choose the center from Wake Forest.

The Spurs' selection of Duncan had been a virtual certainty since San Antonio won the draft lottery in May.

The consensus college player of the year for 1996-97, Duncan was the first player to repeat as a unanimous first team All-American selection since Shaquille O'Neal in 1990-91 and 1991-92.

Duncan averaged 20.8 points and led the nation in rebounding with 14.7 per game his senior year. He also averaged 3.3 blocks per game.

"Unbelievable talent... This guy is really special. It's going to be wonderful to have him," said Popovich, who monitored the draft in Charlotte, N.C., by phone and television from the Alamogordo.

As NBA Commissioner David Stern announced he was the draft's top pick, Duncan said, he got much more excited than he'd expected to be.

"It's been a long time coming," Duncan said. "It was a great feeling and really got my heart going."

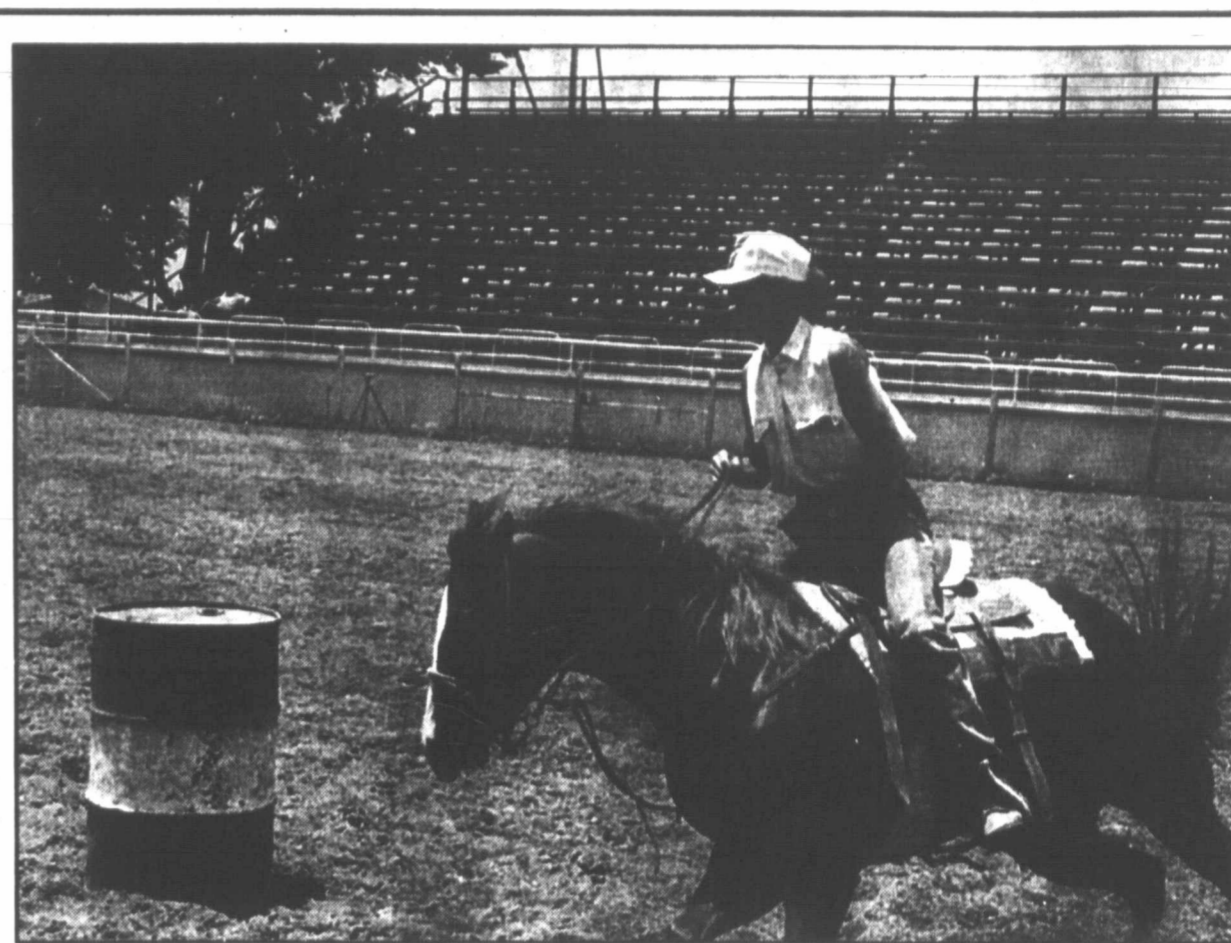

Duncan said he looks forward to playing alongside seven-time All-Star center David Robinson, who is expected to return fully healthy this fall after missing all but six games last season with back and foot injuries.

"I think it's a great opportunity for me because I get to sit back and learn from one of the best. It can only make my transition a lot easier," Duncan said.

"We have a great team coming back," he said. "Hopefully I can fit in."

Spurs players and coaches look for Duncan to do exactly that.

"Everybody's excited. The players are calling all the time wanting to know when we can all get together and what we can do. We're going to just take it slow, step by step, and bring him into the fold," Popovich said.

NBHA plans another barrel race

PAMPA — The Top O' Texas Rodeo Arena will still be a busy place after the rodeo leaves town next month.

On Sunday, July 13 starting at 3 p.m., the NBHA hosts a barrel race at the Pampa arena.

"So come and have some fun and watch some good barrel racing," said Judy Morriss of the NBHA.

The barrel race follows right on the heels of the annual Top O' Texas Rodeo, which is set for July 10-12.

The NBHA Texas Districts 1-2-3-4, in conjunction with The Fellowship of Christian Cowboys of Pampa, just recently held a benefit barrel race at the Top O' Texas Arena. Funds were raised to help feed Boys Ranch participants in the Pampa rodeo.

"The barrel race was a success as we had lots of people attend, some came and brought their children just so they could practice. We had kids from the age of four all the way to seniors in their 50's and 60's," Morriss said.

The announcing and time keeping was done by Ed and Christy Robinson.

Fellowship president John Stokes, along with several other men, set barrels. Jim Greene drove the tractor that was donated by Hansford Implement.

For more information on the NBHA, contact Judy Morriss at 835-2934.

Barrel race results are as follows:

Mariners' Griffey on the sidelines again

By The Associated Press

For the third consecutive year, baseball's All-Star game could be missing its brightest star.

Ken Griffey Jr. pulled up lame after hitting a run-scoring, first-inning double Wednesday night and could be out for up to three weeks.

"I saw him limping into second and I hoped it was a cramp," Seattle manager Lou Piniella said. "It wasn't a cramp."

The All-Star game will be played in Cleveland on July 8.

Griffey, who leads the majors with 29 home runs and the American League with 64 runs and 79 RBI, is currently the leading vote-getter for this year's All-Star game. He has missed the last two because of injuries.

He fractured his left wrist crashing into the center field wall on May 26, 1995, and missed 73 games. He broke a small bone in his right wrist while batting on June 19, 1996, and missed 20 games.

Griffey's condition was to be re-evaluated today by the Seattle Mariners' team physician, Dr. Mitchel Storey. Storey expects Griffey to be out only 3-5 days if the injury responds well to treatment, but 2-3 weeks if the hamstring is stiff and swollen.

With Griffey gone, Edgar Martinez led the power display as Seattle pounded four home runs in a 9-4 victory over the Oakland Athletics.

"This was a good win for us, but it could be a costly one," Piniella said. "We'll find out tomorrow." In other AL games Wednesday, it was Baltimore 9, Milwaukee 1; New York 3, Detroit 1; Chicago 8, Kansas City 7 in 10 innings; Texas 5, Anaheim 4; and Boston 13, Toronto 12. Minnesota at Cleveland was postponed by rain.

Martinez homered twice, while Paul Sorrento and John Marzano added homers to complement Bob Wolcott's 7 2-3 innings of strong pitching.

"We hope Junior won't be out long," Martinez said. "But if he is, we have a lot of guys swinging the bat well."

Jason Giambi went 0-for-4, ending a 25-game hitting streak — the longest for any A's player since the team moved to Oakland.

Glo-Valve advances in Major Bambino tourney action

Glo-Valve batter Nick Story takes a cut at the ball during City Tournament action Wednesday at Optimist Park. Glo-Valve defeated Rotary, 13-3, and will meet Celanese at 6 p.m. tonight.

PAMPA — John Braddock drove in five runs while Eddie Palma and Ryan Zemanek held Rotary Club without an earned run as Glo-Valve triumphed, 13-3, in the Optimist Major Bambino City Tournament Wednesday.

Palma won his eighth game of the year against one loss. He allowed two unearned runs and five hits in three innings pitched. He struck out four and walked one. Zemanek gave up one unearned run and one hit in two innings pitched. He also struck out four and walked one.

Max Simon and Kevin Youree were on the mound for Rotary. Simon allowed three earned runs and two hits in two innings. He struck out five and walked nine. Youree finished up for Rotary. He walked one and struck out five. He surrendered four hits and four earned runs.

Glo-Valve scored three runs in the first inning as six bases on balls and wild pitches put Zemanek, Hal Rogers and Braddock in the scoring column. Rotary rallied twice in the second. Aaron Simon led off with a single to center and he went to third when Ross Buzzard was safe on a throwing error. A single by Hunter Craig plated both runners.

In the bottom of the second for Glo-Valve, Derek Lewis and Palma were safe on errors. Cliff Spencer and Zemanek walked to force Lewis in and a wild pitch brought Palma home. Braddock's single scored Spencer and Zemanek. Braddock moved to second on the throw to the plate, took third on a passed ball and scored on a single by Steven Cameron.

Rotary made another run in the fifth inning when Blake Helms singled and continued around the bases on an error.

The game ended in the bottom of the fifth inning. Lewis walked and Palma singled him to second. Spencer, who had singled earlier, forced Palma at second and then stole second. Lewis scampered home on an infield single by Zemanek. All hands were safe on a fielder's choice hit by Rogers, which loaded the bases. Braddock cleared the bases with a three-run double, went to third when Clint Cox was safe on an error and scored on a throwing error.

Braddock was the leading hitter for Glo-Valve with two, hits; three runs scored and five RBI; Helms had two hits for Rotary and a run scored. Craig had a single and two RBI for Rotary.

Glo-Valve will play Hoechst Celanese Chemical Plant today at 6 p.m. Rotary takes on Dyer's Bar-B-Que at 8 p.m.
