CHILDRESS AND PAMPA TO BE EQUALLY MATCHED IN SIZE HERE TONIGHT

TWO REGULARS CERTAIN TO BE ON SIDELINES

SHOWERS AND MAXEY MIGHT NOT GO DISTANCE

How will the Harvesters stack up against a team about their own size? Is the question in the minds of Pampa football fans. That question will probably be answered tonight at Harvesters field when the Childress Bobcats come to town for the second game of the season.

Game time will be 8 o'clock with general admission 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students. Officials will be Duncan (Trinity); Brown (McMurry); Hicks (Baylor); Barrett (Georgia Tech). Duties will not be assigned until before the game.

It will be a crippled Harvester team that will take the field against the Bobcats. Co-Captain Roy Lee Jones will be on the bench with a badly bruised elbow. His place at end will be handled by "Topsy" Reynolds, promising youngster up from Corolla ranks. Earl Rice will also be on the sidelines by his doctor's orders. John Henry Nelson, a midget for a tackle job, will be in the starting lineup.

Although not in the best of condition, Roy Showers, fullback, and Glen Maxey, end, have been named starters. Showers has a head and back injury which might take him from the game at any time. Maxey received a gash over one eye and a cut cheek in the game last Friday and either might be unable to go the distance. Clements will be called into service. Norman Cox is Maxey's understudy. Both were Corolla last year.

Other members of the team came through the battle with the giant Oklahoma in fair shape. A few sore spots and cuts and bruises have pretty well healed.

Coaches have been busy this week polishing up an offense that is expected to get into motion. It will consist of sneaks, off tackle smashes, end runs and plenty of passes. Given a dry field, which is predicted, the Harvesters will fill the air with footballs. A defense to stop Terrell, 170-pound Childress quarterback, and Kimbrough and Patton, a couple of speedy half backs, has also been studied. Pass defense also came in for considerable attention following reports that Patton does a lot of chucking to his veteran end, J. W. Helms. Reynolds and Captain Horne, letterman guards, are powerhouses in the Bobcat line.

Changes necessary in the Harvester lineup will give the Bobcats a weight advantage of three pounds per man. Biggest weight difference will be in the backfields where the Harvesters will have a total weight handicap of 36 pounds.

Last year the Harvesters walked off with a 19 to 0 decision in a game played in a mist. The Bobcats of 1936 average 10 pounds to the man less than last year's team, which was still outweighed by the 1935 Harvesters.

Next Friday night at Harvesters field the locals will tangle with "Snorter" Luster's Norman aggregation that nearly defeated the mighty Amarillo Golden Sars. Friday night the Harvesters will be away from home playing the Capitol Hill Indians in Oklahoma City.

Probable starting lineups for tonight will be:

Childress	Pos.	Pampa
Hendrix	Def.	Reynolds
Swafford	LT	L. Jones
Hale	LG	Morgan
Barnett	C	Noblitt
Horne	RG	Mathews
Scott	RT	Nelson
Helms	RE	Maxey
Terrell	QB	Woodridge
Kimbrough	LH	Graham
Patton	RH	Enloe
Wright	FB	Showers

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

The time-worn adage, "Take nothing for granted in baseball," does not merely apply to the action on the diamond—it holds true in other respects as well. Take the cases of Jake Powell, Kemp Wicker and Bob Seeds. This trio is headed for a cut of the World Series melon and a possible chance at gaining places in the bright glow of the big series spotlight. Something they never dreamed of months, and in cases of Wicker and Seeds, even weeks ago.

The pennant-winning Yankees are counting the days until they will meet their National league opponents in the fall classic, and none of the Yankees look forward to that day more than do Powell, Wicker and Seeds.

Up to the middle of June, Jake Powell was floundering around with the rest of the Washington team. And then he exchanged uniforms with Ben Chapman of the Yankees. The entire outlook changed for Powell. And it became brighter and brighter as the Yankee machine thundered down the home stretch to win the American league pennant. It practically assures Powell a full share of the series swag, very likely to come close to the amount specified in the year's contract he brought from Washington.

Kemp Wicker is another fortunate. The left-hander came up from Newark to take the place of Ted Kleinmans. More than likely Kemp will split a series share with Ted.

Marooned in Montreal

But Bob Seeds is the most fortunate of all. A short time ago he was with the Montreal Royals in the International loop. His team was in sixth place, hopelessly out of the playoffs. Seeds' outlook was anything but bright. The best he could hope for was that one of the last place teams in the major leagues would draft him and give him another chance under the big tent. There wasn't too much chance of that, he figured. And then along came the New York Yankees.

The Yankees needed an experienced hand to bolster their outer defense, weakened by injuries. Seeds was just the man for the emergency. He celebrated his release from the gloom that gripped him in Montreal by crashing a couple of timely home runs. He filled in capably at third base. He has helped the Yankees—and how the Yankees have helped him!

Years ago Bob Seeds and Jack Taylor attended school together in Shamrock, Tex. Seeds went out into the world to seek fame and fortune in baseball and Taylor turned to the newspaper game. Taylor has taken time out from his labors on the Seaboard (Mont. Democrat) and Capitol to tell a bit about his former schoolmate.

"Bob must have a record number of nicknames. At home we called him 'Alabama' because his Southern drawl was more noticeable than that of any other citizen." Taylor said. "Other titles: 'Country,' 'Satchel,' 'Suitcase' and now — 'Hay' Seeds.

"You are probably acquainted with his country-farmer appearance. He's a nice, easy-going bloke. Well, as a high school kid he was quite a sight. Weighing about 160 pounds, he appeared to be knock-kneed. His big hands hung down to his knees. Big feet. Flat-footed. But speedy—he was the fastest man on any of the teams.

"In football he was pretty fragile, getting hurt a great deal. In basketball he was an exceptionally good player, most adept with the ball, though to look at him you would have thought he'd stumble over himself.

"I think Bob can give full credit to his dad for his athletic prowess. Maybe the senior Seeds was an athlete in his day, though he didn't have that appearance. Anyway, he knows sports. I know Mr. Seeds has a great deal of pride in Bob's playing, but I never saw him get very much excited. He stood on the

Cardinals Take Twin Bill From Reds; Cubs Lose

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mr. and Mrs. New York woke up today to a complete monopoly of the 1936 world's series.

The Giants clinched the National league pennant yesterday by splitting a doubleheader with the Boston Bees, winning the right to meet the American league champion New York Yankees in the first "subway series" in 13 years.

The result is that Mr. and Mrs. New York—or any of the thousands who come to town for the classic starting next Wednesday—can get to the home grounds of both contenders, on opposite banks of the Hudson, to watch the price of a subway ride, five-cent piece.

The opener was the Giants' 91st of the season, and their 51st against 19 defeats (including the nightcap setback) in the tremendous drive they started on July 15 which shot them out of the second division and into the title.

Main interest for the rest of the way in the National league fight centers in the battle for the other first division berths. The Cardinals assured themselves of at least a tie for runner-up money yesterday by routing the Reds, winning the 12-inning opener 5-4, when Charley Gelbert singled the winning run across, and taking the curtailed nightcap 2-0 behind Dizzy Dean's four hit pitching for the six innings the battle went before darkness called a halt.

The Cubs dropped a 4-0 decision to the Pirates, with Cy Blanton holding the ex-champions to three hits. The result was that the Cubs will have to win their remaining two games, while the Cards lose the rest of their schedule, to gain a tie for second place.

And unless the Cubs come through in these two starts, they may find themselves in the number four spot, since the Pirates' victory boosted the Bucs to just one game away from third place.

The Dodgers and Phillies split their twin bill, rookie Hugh Mulcahy hurling the Phils to a 4-2 win in the 13-inning opener, which Jose Gomez's two-run single broke up, and Harry Eisenstat pitching the Brooklynns to a victory by the same score in the nightcap.

In only the second league game of the day, the Yankees wasted Monte Pearson's two-hit pitching for seven innings he worked, by dropping a 4-3 encounter to the Athletics.

6 SOUTHWEST TEAMS WARM UP SATURDAY

FROGS AND RICE FACE POWERFUL TEAMS IN GAMES

By FELIX A. MCKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Six of the seven southwest conference grid teams open fire Saturday against potent, mediocre and ever-dangerous "warm-up" teams.

Baptized last week in scorching heat, Texas Christian and Rice Institute will be playing their second games, but to Southern Methodist, Baylor, Arkansas and Texas A. and M.'s the lid blaster.

Top of the nation over is the Rice-Louisiana State university game at Baton Rouge. Until two of her star backs, Johnny Neece and Roy Royall, went out with injuries during heavy scrimmage, Rice's Owls, impressive in a 33-0 victory over Texas A. and I., rated an even choice in the L. S. U. game. Coach Jimmy Kitts planned to plug the right half gap with Dan Coffee, a fleet 165-pound sophomore.

Anything but impressive in their 6-0 triumph over Howard Payne Saturday, Coach Leo (Dutch) Meyer's Texas Christian Horned Frogs run the danger of early season defeat in their night game against Texas Tech's Red Raiders at Lubbock.

"This game will be as tough as any on the schedule," said Meyer. "The Tech Matadors' persistent thorns in the sides of conference elevens will attempt to dedicate their fine new athletic plant and stadium with an upset victory over the Sugar Bowl kings.

The arrival in varsity football of Dick Todd, Texas A. and M.'s publicized sophomore triple-threat, will feature the Aggie-Sam Houston Teachers college battle at College Station. Coach Homer Norton's first stringers looked their part as pre-season favorites last Saturday with a convincing 35-0 victory over the second string.

Baylor's veteran Bruins run into one of the strongest teams in Texas in the Hardin-Simmons Cowboys at Waco. The Cowboys opened last week with a 20-0 victory over the Daniel Baker Hillbillies, Baylor, boasting a veteran backfield of Lloyd Russell, triple-threat sensation "Bubba" Gernand, Carl Brazel and Bob Masters, will use that combination.

Coach Fred Thomsen's University of Arkansas Porkers, touted as strong contenders for the conference championship, will meet the Kansas State teachers of Pittsburg, Kas., without their big threat, Jack Robbins, junior passer and kicker, in the line-up. Injuries will keep him from the opening game but Thomsen said he would be ready for the Texas Christian game Oct. 3 at Fort Worth.

The University of Texas remains idle until Oct. 3, date of the Louisiana State game, but Coach Matty Bell's green Southern Methodist team, a rather far cry from the Rose Bowl aggregation of 1935, will open against the North Texas Teachers at Dallas. Bell, with only three veterans on hand, will depend upon a fleet backfield of Johnnie Sprague, N. C. (Cotton) Meyers, Johnny Harlow and Bob Finley. The Teachers offer stern opposition because of the presence of Johnny Stovall, slippery back.

sidelines in the role of stern critic and coach. We would make some comment to him about a good play by Bob, and Mr. Seeds would say, 'Yes, but—' and then go on to point out some flaw in form or technique. From the outset he must have been bent on making an athlete out of Bob, and whatever success the boy had I would say is directly due to his father's constant and wise coaching."

DALLAS LOSES TO TULSA 9-5 IN OKLAHOMA

GOLD-PLATED PITCHING STAFF SOCKED FOR 14 SAFETIES

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 25 (AP)—The Tulsa Oilers, mildly astonished and vastly pleased with their 9 to 5 bulldogging of the Dallas Stars in the first game of the final Texas league playoff, plotted further indignities for their visitors tonight.

Tulsa finished third in the regular season, while Dallas rested on the percentage pinnacle. The Oilers could hardly be blamed for sharing the feelings of the little boy who tossed his lasso in the dark and caught Santa Claus.

Dallas' gold-plated pitching staff was duck soup last night to the Cinderella boys. Baseballs plunked to earth like ripe apples in a windstorm as the Oilers victimized Fullerton, Baker and Stiles for fourteen safeties.

Max Thomas, hurling professor for the locals, scattered seven hits, fanned seven opposing batters, then threw himself into hitting gear and cracked out three singles in four times up.

Jumping Jim Levey, a renegade Oiler lured to Dallas early in the season with a promise of a pass to an educational fan dancing exhibition said to be on display at an exposition rumored to be playing that city, fairly jerked the rag off the bush as he stepped to the platter and carefully knocked in three Dallas conference members.

LSU Picked To Beat Rice; Minnesota Is Named Victor

But 'Heads or Tails' System Is Used Exclusively

BY HERBERT W. BARKER, Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP)—Charging up the theoretical aches and pains of last season to experience, the gridiron guessing fraternity eagerly plunged into another and, perhaps, happier campaign of football prognostications today.

Accustomed to an easy slate for the first two weeks of each season the fraternity turned a reproachful gaze on the schedule makers for bringing together Washington and Minnesota, Duke and Colgate, and Louisiana State and Rice on so early a date.

Using the "heads or tails" system almost exclusively, here's how the pairings look from this well-scarred corner:

Washington-Minnesota: Minnesota gets the nod here but the Gophers had better watch out for Byron Haines.

Duke-Colgate: The edge, it seems here, lies with Duke mainly because the game's at Durham.

Louisiana State-Rice: The hunch here is L. S. U.

Navy-William and Mary: The Yars have lost Buzz Borries and other regulars of last year's strong array but there should be plenty left to handle the newly-elected Southern conference members.

Purdue-Ohio University: Purdue should take even so tough an outfit as Don Peden's visitors from Athens, Ohio.

Tulane-Mississippi: This looks like Mississippi.

Virginia Military-South Carolina: South Carolina's Game-Cocks the slight choice.

JACKSON AND TERRY TO GET NEEDED REST

GIANTS' INFIELDING IS BETTER THAN RIVALS

By ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP)—One of the main advantages to be derived by the New York Giants from the fact they have finally clinched the National league pennant is that they can give the ancient underpinning of their Yankee neighbors, Manager Bill Terry and Captain Travis Jackson, a much-needed rest.

Upon the ability of these two veterans and survivors of the McGraw era to stand the series gaff without cracking up depends much of the hopes the Giants hold of overthrowing their Yankee neighbors. The defensive touches that they contribute to one of the game's most resourceful infields are vital to the operations of the National league's standard bearers.

Jackson, after nearly two seasons of inactivity because of a pair of bad knees, started a wonderful conference debut for Wake Forest.

Southern California-Oregon State: Pure a shot in the dark. Southern California.

Stanford-Santa Clara: Santa Clara.

Washington State-Montana: State Temple-Centre: Temple probably will have to fight to win this Friday night game.

Xavier-Kentucky: Ditto Kentucky in this one.

comeback by jumping into the giant lineup for the 1933 world series. Terry has been hobbling through this season on one leg, so to speak; playing through the critical stages of the pennant battle with characteristic defensive genius, but yielding whenever possible to Sambo Leslie.

Flanking Dick Bartell and Burgess Whitehead, probably the best double play combination in either major league, Terry and Jackson give the Giants at defensive edge over the Yankee infield. The question is whether that will be the payoff. The Yankees have a clear margin of over in the combination consisting of Red Hohe, Frankie Crosetti, Tony Lazzeri and Lou Gehrig.

The succulent statistics show, for example, that three of the four Giant infield regulars have better fielding records than their rivals, whereas three of the four Yankee inner workers enjoy a decided edge in stickwork. The Yankee infielders have driven in more than 400 runs. The Giants, on the other hand, have a margin in the double play department.

In a short series, of course, such comparisons may not forecast a thing. World series history is full of form reversals of heroic batting achievements by ordinarily weak hitters, and of astounding defensive exploits by otherwise erratic fielders.

PORTLAND AHEAD.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 25 (AP)—A brilliant tenth-inning finish which netted a 6 and 5 victory left the Portland Beavers one-up over Oakland today in the final playoff series for the Pacific Coast league baseball pennant. The teams gave way to the opening of Portland's interscholastic high school grid season today. The next game will be played tomorrow night and the third Sunday, after which the series will be resumed in Oakland.

TOO HOPEFUL

Spain's bloody civil war may be, as Walter Lippmann said in an article last week, a strong argument compelling the leaders of Europe to shun hostility. That point of view seems too hopeful, however.

Spanish bloodshed is a powerful argument against war, if any more powerful arguments are needed. It may be a demonstration of the inconclusiveness of war in a civilization grown so compact that fighting no longer is the prerogative of soldiers.

But it is hard to believe that the impression it will make on Europe's leaders will be deep enough to turn them from the militaristic path they are following. As individuals they may be earnestly opposed to war. As statesmen they may be convinced fully of the futility of war. As politicians they may be aware of the risk entailed in putting weapons into the hands of the masses. There still remains, however, the likelihood that they will lead their countries into another war sooner or later.

More to the point, there still exists the probability that circumstances will cause them to become embroiled in war as the culmination of a course of action always pointed in the direction of militarism. Adolf Hitler may not have looked forward to a major war when he began to reorganize Germany in the pattern of militaristic nationalism. When and if war comes, however, he will be obliged to recognize that he placed himself and the German people in its clutch by surrendering to the tradition of militarism. If the day ever arrives when leaders possess the courage and intelligence to exclude militarism as an easy avenue of appeal, then and then only may the world expect to live in peace.

TRUTH

It is worth noticing how often the word "truth" occurs in the speeches and articles prepared in honor of Harvard university's ter-centenary celebration.

The highest service any university, any group of scholars, or any group of men can perform is to contribute to humanity's progress toward discovery and acceptance of truth.

The emphasis placed on truth by the Harvard exercises is a reminder to thoughtful men and women that in no field is truth more difficult to find and at the same time more essential to the general welfare than in the field of politics.

In political discussion there is a particularly strong temptation to believe what it is pleasant to believe. Politicians take advantage of this circumstance to distort truth and, themselves, are tempted to think that the truth is what they want to believe.

Therefore, it is plain that the progress of people living in a political environment which permits them to determine their own affairs depends wholly on their ability to find the truth. That becomes an almost impossible exercise of judgment when each and every voter is surrounded by spokesmen for differing factions, each one claiming it is the sole guardian of ultimate truth.

This common responsibility for knowing the truth is the weakness of representative government.

BOTH SIDES of the CAMPAIGN

Official views of the Republican and Democratic National Committees on leading issues of the campaign are presented by leaders of the two parties in this series of 12 articles, taking the place of Rodney Dutcher's Washington column during Dutcher's vacation. The Republican and Democratic arguments are presented on alternate days.

BY BERTRAND H. SNELL

House of Representatives Minority Leader

The height of knavery in public life is to make political capital of human suffering and misery.

The New Deal stands indicted on its own record in this respect. President Franklin D. Roosevelt promised that no one should starve during his administration, yet countless thousands walk the streets without employment. New Dealers have put a political price of hunger, and have made relief a football to be kicked around at will by petty party leaders.

In February, 1934, President Roosevelt administered his relief officials to be "hardboiled" in dealing with local politicians seeking advantage from relief, and promised the backing of the administration 100 per cent, "even if you hit the biggest political boss on the head in carrying out this general program."

This is what the president said. The facts are, however, that newspapers all over the country printed photostatic copies of a letter written to New Deal committeemen by Charles McDonald, leader in the 14th ward in Philadelphia, on March 14, 1936, 10 days before the Pennsylvania primary registrations. That letter, as follows, speaks for itself:

"Contact all houses in your division and get the names of all men on relief, also of those holding WPA jobs. Urge them to register Democratic on March 26 or else lose their jobs."

When Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, was informed that politicians were meddling in relief, he waved it aside by declaring, "I cannot be held responsible for the acts of dumb politicians."

Gov. Alf M. Landon has made his position on relief clear. In his speech accepting the Republican nomination, he declared, "While we propose to follow a policy of economy in government expenditures, those who need relief will get it. We will not take our economies out of the allotments to the unemployed. We will take them out of the hides of the political exploiters. The question is not, as stated by the administration—how much money the American people are willing to spend on relief. The question is, how much waste the American people are willing to stand for in the administration of relief."

Most significant is the stand of the New Deal on politics in relief, and the extent to which Administrator Hopkins has gone in bottling up information regarding it. In

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

A handwriting expert (there's one lurking behind every coffee urn in town) reveals that sporting people almost always write in a bold, straightforward hand. While theatrical people show tendencies in the opposite direction. There was the case of the tennis star to the contrary, whose scrawl is probably the worst on record.

Recently he penned a billet-doux to a young woman student at Columbia University. Unable to decipher his hieroglyphics, she turned the letter over to the dean of romance languages, believing it to be in a foreign tongue.

Jack Dempsey's hand is hurried, though easily read. Neither masculine nor feminine, it tilts at an angle of about 40 degrees and is addicted to curves and curls. Jack always crosses his T's, but sometimes neglects to dot his I's.

On the other hand, Helen Hayes writes in gleeful, space-filling flourishes, sometimes using whole sheets for a single paragraph. When one considers how tiny a person she is, the effect of an envelope addressed by her is startling.

Jean Harlow could really qualify as an instructress in penmanship. Her characters, always graceful, are etched swiftly in sure, bold strokes.

The most untidy hand on record for an actor, continues to be that of the late Sir Henry Irving. It is remembered that Sir Irving once wrote a note to the manager of his theater, requesting that two tickets be delivered to the bearer. When it was presented the manager shook his head. "I'm sorry," he said, "but

"Me and old pappy mighty happy and mighty surprised," his mother wrote back. "When 'em old Yankee winds start moaning, make sis wear her heavy underwear."

"A day or so later he replied: "You'd be more surprised if you hear Sis in the hoosgow and not the show. Sis has got some city notions lately. Sis ain't got no heavy underwear. Sis ain't got no flannels. Sis ain't got no kind of pants."

HOW'S your HEALTH

DEAD DISEASES.

The public is frequently regaled with vivid descriptions of so-called new diseases. Recent years have witnessed the advent of pellagra, malaria, typhoid, and several types of encephalitis, loosely termed "sleeping sickness." In addition, diseases long prevalent but only recently defined—such as infantile and undulant fever—have added to the concerns of mankind.

By contrast, certain "dead diseases" once widely prevalent, are now entirely eliminated or rarely encountered. Such a list of diseases was recently presented by Dr. David Reisman in the Annals of Medical History.

The so-called sweating sickness is one. This disease appeared in England in 1485, and spread with such rapidity and to such an extent that hardly one in a hundred escaped. The disease caused a rapid stiffening of the body followed by copious perspiration, headache, stupor and pain in the pit of the stomach. The attack was of comparatively short duration, the crisis being passed within 48 hours. During the reign of Henry VIII, several epidemics of this strange disease swept through England.

Tarrantism was another strange disease, now apparently non-existent, which prevailed during the middle ages. As the name suggests, the disease was thought to be caused by a spider bite. A few hours after the bite, the patient is seized with great difficulty of breathing, a heavy anguish of heart, a prodigious sadness, his voice is sorrowful and querulous, his eyes disturbed. By making allowances for the quaintness of the description, the symptoms are substantially like those witnessed today in persons bitten by the black widow spider.

Certain forms of mass hysteria, experienced during the middle ages, are unknown today (though possibly a future historian will see their like affecting our generations). Among these the most noteworthy is the dancing mania, men and women seized by this mania danced for hours, and days, and formed indeed wandering bands of dancers.

Numerous diseases, formerly widespread, are now, if not "dead," certainly much less prevalent. These include leprosy, typhoid, tuberculosis, diphtheria, and probably too, syphilis, diphtheria, and typhoid.

How diseases decline is not certain. Undoubtedly the "active opposition" of mankind has much to do with their elimination. However, diseases appear to have a life span, to which "old age and death" are natural terminations.

Gardeners recommend use of peat moss as a mulch for keeping soil cool during critical drouth weather.

Dr. Jack B. Hester, North Carolina soil technologist, recommends a lime application for controlling scab organism on potato plants.

Q Was scrip used in the United States in the panic of 1907? W. F.

A Scrip, in the ordinary accepted sense was not used. Banks which had suspended full payment of deposits on demand did issue clearing house certificates over a brief period, but these were chiefly in large denominations issued for the benefit of business men having substantial operations.

Small denomination scrip for popular use did not appear. In the 1907 crisis, approximately $250,000,000 in certificates sometimes called scrip, came into circulation. In New York such certificates were used for a period of twenty-two weeks.

Q When is Newspaper Boy Week? P. P.

A National Newspaper Boy Week sponsored by the Newspaper Boys of America, Inc., will be observed September 27 to October 3.

Q To what occasion did President Roosevelt refer when he said that he had seen war? M. E. C.

A Franklin D. Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy in the Wilson administration. In this capacity he went overseas in charge of inspection of the United States naval forces, July-September, 1918. When America entered the World War, Roosevelt said that he believed that every Navy Department head should actually see the war in progress, so that he would know how to serve his country in the emergency. He practiced his own preaching by sailing for France, where he made a complete survey and study of the situation, not only on the navy fronts but in the army front lines as well. He saw more of the actual war than many of the combatant troops and his inspection carried him over most of the battle front under all sort of conditions.

He visited King Albert on the Belgian front, he was Poch in the French lines, and toured the English trenches.

Q What is the earliest concert ticket in existence? F. H. M.

A The Eude says that the earliest known authentic admission ticket to a concert is a season ticket (price five guineas) for the series of six concerts given in 1764-5 in the Carlisle House, Soho Square, London.

TRANS-PACIFIC FLIGHT

By DECK MORGAN

CHAPTER V

The east-bound plane left the Central Airport at 8:05 with the three would-be stewardesses on board. They wore new uniforms of gray twill, like the pilots on the Overland Airways. As preliminary instruction they watched the regular hostess on duty.

She brought the passengers pillows, newspapers, magazines. There was cotton to be stuffed into cars.

Kay leaned back in the comfortable chair and watched the twinkling lights of the vast, sprawling city disappear in the darkness below. It was a thrilling sight. She had become used to the sound of the motors, and felt no sensation except that of joyous adventure.

She had to pinch herself one, like a child, to see if it were all true. Here she was on her way to New York!

Only the night before she had been one of those infinite small creatures down there, going home to sleep in a tiny bed. Tonight she was flying through the air!

The co-pilot came along the corridor of the liner, and Kay spoke to him. The co-pilot was a blond young man who had the most flashing pair of blue eyes she had ever seen. He glanced down at her, saw her uniform, and promptly sat down in the chair beside her.

He said, "I beg your pardon. I didn't understand—"

"The westbound plane that left Central Airport at 2:10," Kay repeated. "Where would it be now?"

"The blond young man glanced at his wrist-watch. "Cheyenne."

Kay repeated the Indian name. "Cheyenne!"

"The boy laughed, and leaned close to her. "Boy friend on that plane? Women are all alike. They won't let a guy alone even when he's in the air!"

Kay's teeth flashed. "Conceit!"

"I don't think I've seen you on this run before," he added, nonchalantly. "Just a trial flight? I'm Chuck Jones, co-pilot."

"You don't think I'll be sick or anything?"

Chuck laughed. "Oh, we'll have smooth flying tonight—might get some bumps over the Alleghenies, but I don't think so."

He looked around and saw the other two girls—Alice and Doris—in uniform. "What's this?" he exclaimed. "A girls' boarding school?"

Kay laughed. "Three of us taken on today. I hope we all make the grade."

Chuck's eyes twinkled. "So do I. By the way, what's your name?"

"Kay Dunn."

Chuck Jones opened a book and neatly inscribed the name therein. Then he looked up. "Say, that's a neat combination—red hair and green eyes. What's your telephone number in port?"

Kay laughed. "Sorry, I haven't any."

He slapped the little book shut and then stood up. "Okay by me! But when you get lonely in port just give me a wink. I'll be around."

When he was gone Kay laughed softly to herself. "The spoiled little brat! He can't be more than 22. In spite of his conceit, though, he's probably a nice boy."

She settled back into her seat and remembered the look of quiet resolution on Ted Graham's face. She sat quietly for a long time, until suddenly she turned and saw Doris Lee's angry face close to her.

"That co-pilot," Doris said. "He's just impossible!"

She tossed her yellow hair. "I was standing there trying to learn something from the air hostess when he came by and said we were blocking the aisle. And that's not all. He said, 'Get rid of some of that excess baggage, sister, if you're going to fly this line!' I turned beet-red. I know, but I'll fix that guy! He can't get fresh with me!"

Kay looked back and saw Chuck Jones' blond head close to Alice Miller's. His blue eyes were shining, and Alice seemed enormously pleased. Her brooding, timid air had somehow vanished and she was laughing at something he had said.

In a minute or two the co-pilot rose and walked past Kay without so much as a nod this time. Doris scowled after him. Chuck took the pilot's place, and a few minutes later the pilot appeared. He glanced at the two girls in uniform, but just as he was about to speak to them, one of the passengers, a dowager, leaned into the aisle to say, "Boy!"

The pilot jumped as if he had been shot, but he responded courteously.

"The plane passes over my daughter's house near Pittsburgh," the woman said. "It's on a big hill. I wonder if you'd go down low so I can see the lights of the house. I'm sentimental about those things."

The pilot's face concealed his mirth. "Sorry, madame, but at that point we can't fly lower than 3,000 feet. Government regulations."

He hurried on toward the rear of the plane.

Kay laughed. "I suppose an air hostess has to answer a lot of questions sillier than that. We'll have to learn a lot—about geography, and time-tables, and government regulations. And what is a gyropilot? Somebody stopped the pilot back there and asked him."

"Don't look at the pilot!" Doris said. "He'll think you're flirting with him. There old women passengers spoil them. Every one of them thinks he's the Winged Mercury! But we had him like that in the insane asylum, too. There was one who thought that there was John Barrymore."

Kay was not listening to Doris, though she wondered idly how long it would be before Doris forgot her bitter experiences in the psychoplace things to pass the time. The trip was uneventful.

"Nothing ever happens," the air hostess said, "except once in a while a passenger is sick. It's an exciting life, though. You're never sure just what might be ahead."

At midnight the plane glided to earth at the Newark Airport and the passengers disembarked.

Kay looked at her wrist-watch and judged that Ted Graham would be flying over the High Sierras now. Her thoughts spanned the continent and perhaps they reached Ted, for at that minute he sat back in his chair and thought about the three girls who had applied for jobs as stewardesses that morning. He carried a picture, neatly and precisely cloaked in his mind, of Kay Dunn's face.

Talks to parents

TYRANNY OF TEARS

By Brooke Peters Church

There are many grown women who get what they want by crying. It is simply a habit that they have carried over from childhood. Parents are to blame for turning out such incomplete samples of womanhood on an unsuspecting public.

Every man knows the secretary whose reaction to a reproval is a correction in tears. There are many husbands whose whole lives are spent under a tyranny of tears. Whatever their wives want from sympathy to a trip abroad, they cry for; and they even win arguments by bursting into tears in the end of the weary woman is the loser, for she cannot keep respect or admiration or even love, if she habitually uses such an unfair weapon.

There is no more reason for permitting a girl to cry than a boy. Boy and girl babies have the same sorrow.

They cry when they are in pain or hungry. As soon as they can listen to reason the difference in training starts. Tommy is told, "Big boys don't cry. You must learn to be a man. Suppose Daddy cried. Wouldn't it look funny?" But no one talks this way to Mary. And the new motto for true, and Mary would know it. She has probably seen mother in tears a dozen times. Weeping has been called woman's prerogative, like changing her mind and inconsistency.

If, however, women are to have the right and privilege of adult human beings they must also fulfill the requirements of being grown up. No one can have his cake and eat it too. Tears may have been necessary when men held the purse strings and ruled their wives. Today they are outmoded, and the new motto for true, and Mary would know it. She has probably seen mother in tears a dozen times. Weeping has been called woman's prerogative, like changing her mind and inconsistency.

When Bobby was three and Sally was 13, in Toronto, Canada—and incidentally in poverty—Sally gave up her singing and dancing career in order to promote Bobby's. She saved enough money for one ticket by bus to Chicago, and took Bobby there for his chance, holding him on her lap all the way.

Sally had to keep on working, of course, but Bobby eventually got his opportunity. "And all that," as Sally says, "is over now."

When Bobby was through for a while, we asked him what he did after a strenuous day like this.

"Go home and go to bed," he replied. "Sometimes I take my bath first, but sometimes I take it in the morning. And have dinner, of course. But every day's not as hard as this, and this is easy—because I've finished recording 'Ava Maria' and now I can sail through the rest."

They Flip On Bath

Other days, when he's merely acting, Bobby gets in some baseball. He spent the summer at a boys' camp where he was captain of the ball team.

"And I'm going to military school this year," he said. "I'm going to be a captain or a lieutenant there—'D sergeant anyway'."

While Bobby went back to school, his sister explained about his voice. It was natural, she said, and he'd never had a lesson. They had tried lessons but found he was losing his gift for "singing the way he feels."

And then Bobby came back with "sometimes we flip a coin to see when I'll take it, and Sally usually wins—but I always take it."

"Take what, Bobby?"

"Why, my bath," he said.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY.

The relief office adopted a "no work, no eat" policy as calls came for cotton pickers for the bumper crop downstate. Exhibits in the Gray county booth at the Tri-State fair were given to relief officials to distribute to the needy for food.

Corillas and their coach, W. O. Workman, went to Perryton to meet the first team there in their first game of the football season.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY.

First fall weather arrived, with a heavy mist and temperature of 52 degrees.

to an audience. He is on his toes, seeks correction and advice and after each "take" asks eagerly, "Did I flat that?" or "Was that strong enough?"

Between "takes" and rehearsals, Bobby tapped a little jig, emitted tentative ah-ah-ah's, and dashed several times into the arms of his 12-year-old sister, Sally, on the sidelines. Bobby and Sally had exchanged knowing smiles all through the morning.

When Bobby was three and Sally was 13, in Toronto, Canada—and incidentally in poverty—Sally gave up her singing and dancing career in order to promote Bobby's. She saved enough money for one ticket by bus to Chicago, and took Bobby there for his chance, holding him on her lap all the way.

Sally had to keep on working, of course, but Bobby eventually got his opportunity. "And all that," as Sally says, "is over now."

When Bobby was through for a while, we asked him what he did after a strenuous day like this.

"Go home and go to bed," he replied. "Sometimes I take my bath first, but sometimes I take it in the morning. And have dinner, of course. But every day's not as hard as this, and this is easy—because I've finished recording 'Ava Maria' and now I can sail through the rest."

CAPITOL JIGSAW

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, Sept. 25 (P)—Legislation giving legal status to the volunteer parole boards appointed by Governor Allred may be submitted to the special session in January.

Fresh attention was directed to the problem of paroles by the interstate conference in Galveston and endorsement of the volunteer system by the state Democratic convention in Fort Worth.

Out of the conference may develop a compact under which Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Louisiana, Arkansas and Arizona can cooperate in handling paroled convicts. Governor Allred is president and W. W. Halcomb of the Texas state department is secretary of the temporary organization.

The Democratic platform commended the governor "for the worthwhile results" obtained by the parole boards and said "the salutary effects" should recommend the plan to the legislature.

According to Halcomb, the whole theory of parole in Texas has been wrong and ought to be changed. "Parole in the past too often has been clemency," he said. "Pardon actually should be the only form of clemency. There is a sharp difference.

"Parole should be based strictly on merit and granted after a man's case comes up automatically. It should be a means of giving him a chance to adjust himself under

FLOOD WATERS COVER UP PART OF WHARTON

By WILLIAMS

WHARTON, Sept. 25 (P)—While flood waters of the Colorado river inundated parts of the city, Wharton residents arranged a mass meeting for tonight to discuss methods of controlling floods, which have caused heavy damage in the lower Colorado valley in the last 18 months.

Its force diminished since its destructive sweep in Central West Texas, the river flooded parts of the negro section with from two to five feet of water last night.

Congressman J. J. Mansfield of Columbus and Jack Hutchins of Wharton, a director of the Lower Colorado Valley Authority, were named speakers at the mass meeting.

Sponsors said the authority would be urged to hasten its flood control program. Four serious floods have swept the area in the last year and a half.

supervision. That supervision should not be by an officer.

He advocated a four-point program, with reference to handling convicts, as follows:

1. An adequate probation law which would prevent men from going to the penitentiary who never should go there.
2. A system of classification and segregation "within the walls" to prevent the penitentiary from becoming a training school for crime.
3. Release under supervision for those entitled to parole and subject to rehabilitation.
4. Making the penitentiary a place to "keep criminals," that is, those whose record and background proved they were criminally-minded.

"Nearly everyone who has dealt with convicts," Halcomb said, "will, I believe, agree on this, strange as it may seem: 'Some convicts are serving life sentences who could be turned out safely; others are serving short sentences who should be kept there for life.'"

Stanhope Henry, member of the state board of pardons and paroles, expressed opinion volunteer supervision was "a big success" in many places.

LET'S KNOW TEXAS AND TEXANS

BY WILL H. MAYES.

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. An evidence of good faith inquiries must give their names and addresses, but only their initials will be printed. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. For whom was Willacy county named? G. D. Liberty.

A. For Hon. John G. Willacy, of San Antonio, who was born in Kentucky, Nov. 10, 1839, served in the Texas House and Senate from 1890 to 1916, and was honored by the Legislature in naming the county for him in 1910. He was afterward State Tax Commissioner.

Q. What was England's attitude toward annexation of Texas by the United States? E. H. Galveston.

A. England opposed annexation and endeavored to induce France to join with it and Mexico "in depriving all interference on the part of the United States in the affairs of Texas, or the adoption of any measure leading to the destruction of the separate existence" of the Republic of Texas. This active interest created a feeling that England had designs for the acquisition of Texas and became an issue in the presidential campaign and contributed to the defeat of Henry Clay.

Q. How was Caddo Lake formed? E. P. Longview.

A. An Indian tradition is that it was formed overnight, in 1812, by some kind of volcanic eruption in which many Indians lost their lives. It is fed by the waters of Cypress creek, a tributary of Red River.

Q. When and how was the Pilgrim Baptist church, near Elkhart, established? R. Y. Mansfield, La.

A. When Rev. Daniel Parker came to Texas on a prospecting tour and learned that Mexican authorities frowned upon the organization of Protestant churches in Texas, he returned to Palestine, Ill., organized the Pilgrim Primitive Baptist church there, composed of colonists moving to Texas with him in 1833, and located his colony and church at Pilgrim. Other members of the church and Parker family settled a little later at Fort Parker, now in Limestone county.

'GREASING' OF OFFICIALS IS PROBE CHARGE

STRIKERS FRAMED UP ON TESTIMONY SHOWS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—After producing statements that public officials were "greased" by salesmen bent on selling tear gas and tickling gas for use against strikers, the Senate civil liberties committee turned its attention to other lines of inquiry today.

The committee, headed by Chairman LaFollette (Prog. Wis.), summoned officials of the Pinkerton Detective Agency to the stand in a renewal of its inquiry into alleged violations of civil rights.

Late yesterday the investigators recorded letters and oral testimony of I. H. McCarty, gas and munitions salesman, declaring that sharp competition between the salesmen in California sometimes led to "greasing."

In a letter to a superior in his firm, the Lake Erie Chemical Co., McCarty had complained of "greasing" tactics employed by a competitor. He explained that his firm forbade him to give gratuities to officials.

Asked to define "greasing," McCarty said: "A more accurate term would be bribery."

Describing the San Francisco police department as "crippled," by politics, he said one unnamed police captain demanded a 25 per cent commission on gas purchased.

McCarty also wrote a letter to a superior calling the San Francisco police chief a "fake flag waver, always spouting about the danger of communism and what he is doing to combat it."

This brought a demand from Theodore J. Roche, president of the San Francisco police commission, that Chief of Police William J. Wynn be summoned to Washington to testify.

SHAMROCK WILL PLAY LEFORS THIS EVENING

Class B football teams will be in action over the state today with many clashes scheduled for this section of the Panhandle. The conference season will be on for many teams tonight.

One of the interesting battles will be staged at Shamrock tonight when the LeFors Pirates meet the Shamrock Irishmen, with the home team the favorites. LeFors showed excellent prospects in holding Canyon to a scoreless tie last week.

In the same district, the Wellington Skyrocks will test the strength of the Cleveland Bronchos. It will be the third conference game of the season for the Rockets who have a win over Mobeetie and a loss to Wheeler. Claborn will be making it first conference bid.

Mobeetie was in McLean this afternoon for another conference game. Injuries to McLean doped to win although hurtles to several Tiger stars cast gloom over the McLean camp.

Over in Panhandle, the Panthers of Coaches Pat Gerald and Lefty Fowler will entertain the Canyon Eagles in which should be a practice game.

The Miami Warriors and Wheeler Mustangs both have off days.

Seven-year-old Frank Marconi of Canonsburg, Pa., had 230 serum "shots" in various parts of his body over a period of 20 days to halt lockjaw.

Assumes Secret Service Post

Frank J. Wilson, ace internal revenue agent, shown above in a recent portrait, became acting assistant chief of the Secret Service as an aftermath of charges that Secret Service agents "spied" on activities of the "G" men. Wilson succeeded Joseph E. Murphy, former assistant chief, demoted for his part in the alleged "spying," but since recalled to aid Wilson.

GIANTS' BRAINS ARE PITTED AGAINST BRAWN OF YANKEES

(This is one of a series of stories dealing with the world series prospects.)

BY ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—The more or less nerve-racking approach of the New York Giants to the world series with the neighboring Yanks finds the dramatic outlook somewhat reminiscent of the last three baseball wars fought out on opposite banks of the Harlem river in 1923.

Then, as now, in a manner of speaking, it was "brains versus brawn." In other words, the record-smashing power in Yankee bats will be pitted against the resources of the best defensive club in big league baseball.

Instead of the battle of wits between the most famous of all master minds, John Joseph McGraw, and the greatest of all sluggers, Babe Ruth, this year's affray finds a pupil of the old master, William Harold Terry, devising strategy to meet the slugging ensemble led by Larruping

Lou Gehrig, the new home run king. Terry and his infield mate, Travis Calvin Jackson, were just two young fellows being ripened for regular duty when the last "subway series" was played. Jackson pinch-hit against Herby Pennock one afternoon but otherwise he and Terry were just so much background in a series that saw Ruth and company blast their way to triumph after two successive setbacks in 1921-22.

The complete shift in regular playing casts since those glamorous days has not been accompanied, however, by much alteration in rival methods. The Yankees, with Joe McCarthy directing maneuvers from the bench as the late Miller Huggins did, still operate on the theory that a home run is the best strategy. They have broken all records for circuit clouting this year with Gehrig setting the pace for a new batting order that swings from the heels, from top to bottom.

The Giants, possessing a brand of power that fades somewhat by comparison, still play "McGraw baseball." They aim for the breaks, feature a tight defense, and rely upon the resources of a pitching staff headed by the great Carl Hubbell. Under Terry's scheme of operation, Hubbell occupies much the same role the talented Art Nehf did for McGraw. Both rank with the great southpaws of post-war days. Hubbell, rated off his marvelous 1936 season, belongs among the all-time flinging craftsmen.

Kansas spent $28,500,000 for operation of its state schools in 1935.

GRID FANS FLOCK TO SEATTLE FOR BATTLE

SEATTLE, Sept. 25 (AP)—Football fans from California to Minnesota flocked to Seattle today for one of the nation's most important grid battles of the season—the intersectional clash between Minnesota and Washington tomorrow.

Special trains, including one bringing Coach Bernie Bierman and his Gophers, were arriving in the city from all directions. Fifteen hundred Minnesota supporters were due in one group from St. Paul. Other special trains brought hundreds of fans from the south.

Interest was at a high pitch because the game will bring together two of the outstanding elevens of the country. Minnesota has been undefeated in three years, and Washington has been hailed by experts and coaches alike as the greatest Husky eleven in many years.

University officials expected a sell-out of the 37,000 seats. Only a handful of tickets were available today.

Because of their amazing winning streak, the Gophers were quoted as 10 to 8 favorites.
