LEW KODRICK

KODRICK, King Kong, of the mat, and rated as the strongest welterweight grappler in the world, will pit his strength against that of Cowboy Goodwin at the Big Spring Athletic Club tonight.

A fan tells a good gridiron story on the Big Spring team which he says is true. It seems that several years back the Steers were playing in a neighboring town in which rivalry was quite hot. One of the local boys got away for a nice gain, and when he was tackled, the tackler in some way got knocked unconscious. Officials of the team opposing Big Spring immediately got suspicious and had the Steer player arrested and searched to make sure he wasn't padded with metal.

Big Spring, and not Colorado, had the game postponed from Thursday until Saturday. The postponement was made because in view of the fact there was no advance ticket sale whatsoever, the loss would more than likely have been great. Another reason was because the mentors did not want to take any more chances than necessary with their boys. They don't want anybody on the sick list when they get ready for the bi-district.

Our prediction of the Amarillo-pampa game was pretty good, wasn't it? To several dozen football fans we must make amends. It was not our fault, but a report got through last night that Ranger beat Breckenridge 19 to 7. A correction came later making the count 42 to 7.

Joe Coleman On The Sick List

FORT WORTH (Sp.)—The same eleven men who took the field against Rice in Houston last Saturday will probably start against Southern Methodist in Dallas tomorrow, Coach Dutch Meyer said today.

A possible exception is the quarterback position, Capt. Joe Coleman was ill Wednesday, and it will not be certain until the day of the game whether or not he will be in shape to play. Sam Baugh will get the call if Capt. Coleman is unable to play.

"There might possibly be a change at one of the guard positions, also," Coach Meyer said, "but the chances are that Ellis and Holt will start.

The starting line-up then will be: Walls, lg; Trueman, lt; Ellis, lg; Lester, c; Holt, rg; Grass, close, rt; Roach, re; Capt. Coleman or Baugh, q; Kline, lb; Lawrence rh; Manton f.

The entire T. C. U. squad will make the trip to Dallas by bus just before the game.

Rough Irishman To Tangle With Wilson

Tonight in the main event at the Big Spring Athletic Club, O'Shea, the rough and ready Irishman from New York City, will wrestle the popular "Prince of Abilene", Benny Wilson.

Wilson beat Jimmie Murphy here last week in two straight falls. However, O'Shea has been in training for the past week and says he's in great shape and expects to take Benny for a cleaning.

O'Shea was very unpopular here at first, but has turned out to be a favorite with the fans.

In the semi-final, Peck Goodwin, the cowboy who learned to wrestle throwing steers, will come to grips with King Kong Kodrick, the "little giant from Austria", strongest welterweight wrestler in the world who is undefeated here. Kodrick lost a lot of his popularity when he wrestled Blondy Chrane.

Tonight in ladies' night at the athletic club. The matches will begin promptly at 8:15.

P's Determined To Upset Froggies

DALLAS—(Special)—Having suffered defeat at the hands of the Baylor Bears last Saturday, the Southern Methodist University Mustangs started practice with set jaws and determined looks on their faces. They have one idea in mind and that is to defeat the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs Saturday afternoon and partially regain some of their lost prestige.

The Mustangs have not defeated the Frogs since 1927 when they handed them a 28 to 6 trouncing. In 1928, 30, 32, and 33, the Frogs won hard fought games over the Mustangs, while in 1929 and 1931 the two teams played tie games.

This year the two teams have played on comparatively even terms. Both have lost games and both have won games that were in the balance before the contest.

The Frogs seem to have grown in strength as the season has progressed while the recent games of the Mustangs have indicated that they were not playing their best ball.

Last Saturday the Frogs dropped the undefeated Rice Owls and knocked them from their coveted pedestal. At the same time the Mustangs were handing one to the lowly Baylor Bears who won their first conference game.

For the first time in several games the Mustangs will have practically their entire strength to throw at the Frogs although some of the injuries are not completely healed. Captain Fuqua has been in uniform for the first time since the Fordham game and will be ready to see service. Robert Wilson will not be in the best of shape but he will probably be called upon in Saturday's contest. Buster Raborn, Arthur Johnson, and Truman Spain still have injuries, but will probably play. Robert Finley and Shelley Burt, halfbacks, are the only men that are definitely out of the game. Both are suffering from leg injuries that will prevent them from playing again this year.

With all of their strength on the field and ready to go, the Mustangs should defeat the Frogs, provided no more injuries appear. The Mustangs are a powerful aggregation when in full strength and it is very probable that one of their best games of the season will be unrehearsed by the Mustangs Saturday.

Clyde Carter, husky all-American tackle from Southern Methodist university, was only able to make his high school football team

Admission for Adults Set At 50c

Postponed from Thursday afternoon because of inclement weather, the annual Steer-Colorado football grudge will be settled at Steer field tomorrow afternoon starting at 3 p. m.

The Big Spring team, heavy favorites to dump the Wolves and clinch the district 3 crown, will be in good shape.

Colorado has two regulars on the sick list, Aycock, a guard and Ed

Morrison an end. Gentry announced that admission for adults would be 50c instead of 75c, and that all who had purchased tickets for 75c would be given a refund.

The Bovines will out-weigh their opponents by a wide margin. Officials will be H. Lewis and Ed Keys of San Angelo and Farris Bass of Big Spring.

3 per cent mortgages or Moffett should be given the right-of-way with his drive to coax private capital into the field with prospects of 6 per cent to 8 1/2 per cent profit, there is another angle of the general situation that hasn't been spotlighted.

Since Chairman John H. Fahey of the Home Owners' Loan corporation announced no new applications for mortgage refinancing could be taken two stories have been current. One inferred that Fahey had been trying to spend his available appropriation in a big hurry so he would be left with a flood of applications and congress would be forced to give him more money in January. FDR was supposed to have nipped this idea. The second story said Fahey foresaw himself stuck with a flock of applications that weren't so hot and shut down quickly with a view to forcing Moffett and his Federal Housing Administration to shoulder them.

An official answer to these is that, having already refinanced $2,000,000,000 in mortgages and finding himself with only $1,000,000,000 cash left but $4,000,000,000 in applications, Fahey sensibly closed his books.

Scramble

Elsewhere in Washington, at the right hour of day, one may hear that Relief Administrator Hopkins is trying to steal the subsistence-homestead program away from Ickes. Drop in down the street a bit and you might be told Ickes would like nothing better than to unload subsistence homesteads on Hopkins.

Then, providing there's no moon, you may hear most confidentially that Chairman Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, would like to get control of various portions of the federal lending program now in other hands. Jones' friends say loans he okays are being repaid, so why should he want responsibility for a lot that won't.

It is all very confusing. And no doubt irritating to all out personally, who must iron it all out personally. Sideline observers here hope his sideline moves are more adroit than the Ickes-Moffett "harmony" statement, which was dictated at Warm Springs and phoned to Washington for release under their names.

Slants

Floyd Olson, Minnesota's Farm-Labor governor, paid a visit to Senator William E. Borah's office during the course of his recent visit to Washington. Borah had been attacking Harry Hopkins' methods of administering federal relief. Olson thought the senator was all wet on some of his major premises.

The governor took particular exception to that part of Borah's recent radio speech in which the senator quoted figures from certain unnamed counties indicating almost every cent of government money went for administration and only a few dollars for actual relief. "Why you might say that in a lot of counties $800 went for administration and $10 for relief," the governor admonished, "and it would be true so far as federal money was concerned. A lot of counties let Washington's contributions take care of their office help, while county money pays for the relief itself."

The two parted good friends. Borah asked that the governor let him know any time in the future when he had similar slants.

Olson also tipped the Idaho Big Potato that Jim Farley and Emil Hurja had been trying to ease Hopkins out of the relief job because he wouldn't let them make a political organization out of federal relief. He said if Hopkins got burnt in a senatorial investigation, Borah and Farley could claim joint credit.

The governor, he it added, was state relief administrator for Minnesota. During the recent campaign his opponents said he was using the job to get votes for himself, so he resigned to Hopkins and got a nice wire in return. Which may account for his fervor.

Notes

Questions of taxation to finance the New Deal are thorny political problems. Utility attack on Tennessee Valley Authority raises novel legal questions. Secretary Morgenthau moves for indictment of "tax-fixers" who swindled taxpayers and the government. Relief administration gets busy to eliminate bad meat processed from drought cattle.

Coup
The utility house is divided against itself. The Edison Institute's vigorous attack on the New Deal power program (predicted here some weeks ago) points up a sharp internal split.

Recent efforts of pacific elements in the history to seek a rapprochement with the administration via Harvey Couch haven't set so well with Tom McCarter—aggressive president of the Institute—and his supporters. It looked very much as if their flaming antagonism to what they consider an unfair threat against their very existence was about to be drowned in the rising tide of business cooperation with the government.

McCarter's vocabulary doesn't contain the word "concession." Insiders credit him with a neat coup to escape having his flag hauled down for him by vituperous advocates of better relations. He sought the legal aid of Newton Baker and James M. Beck on his own unofficial initiative to prove TVA unconstitutional. Naturally he knew in advance that his opponents would jibe with his. Then—armed with this weighty legal artillery—he sold the Edison Institute trustees the idea that they had grounds for an open declaration of war on the New Deal.

On top of this he named an executive committee for the Institute sympathetic to his belligerent attitude—thus checkmating utility pacifists who had planned to make the sub rosa dictator of In-Couch the flat-footed. The Institute is now officially committed to hostilities and the pacifists are out in the cold.

Waterloo

McCarter's coup widened and embittered the rift inside the industry. There won't be many signs of it in public. Both camps realize it would be fatal to clash openly. But important interests opposed to the Institute's new policy will do their best to negotiate private peace with Washington by discovering any responsibility for McCarter's act of war and by conforming quietly to government ideas on rates and service. Don't count Mr. Couch out of the picture. His unofficial liaison work on behalf of the "friendly" companies figures to be more important than ever.

The McCarter crowd have burned their bridges. No quarter will be asked or given as long as they run the Institute. Shrewd observers believe they have as much chance to win as a platoon of archers would have to capture a modern fort. But if they go down it will be in the spirit of Napoleon's Old Guard at Waterloo.

Stake

Watch for the annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance presidents in December. Utility men have worked their ears off to, enlist the prestige of this group in support of their battle against New Deal encroachments. Insurance leaders have been as wary as a stalked deer about going on record but the emergency has been sold them so emphatically they may loosen up this time. Chances are that anything they say will be more sarsaparilla than whiskey—but the utilities are getting so desperate that even sarsaparilla would be welcome.

There's no doubt that insurance concerns have a live stake in the power companies' future. Fifty-one legal life companies own nearly two billion in utility securities—about 10% of their total investments. Savings banks own nearly half a billion more and fire and casualty companies are also heavily committed.

Murder

Curiously Sam Inault's acquittal stirs no enthusiasm in New York utility circles. They figure legislative prospects will be worse because Sam wasn't given the works. "Sam's good luck is bad news for holding companies. Since he apparently got away with murder con-

CHAPTER III

A most unique signalling device was that hit upon by Aeneas, of Aristotle's time. Two oblong boards had various identical word groups inscribed on their surfaces. Each was fixed in a vessel of water, one at the place where the message originated and the other at the delivery point. At a pre-arranged sound, petcocks of the vessels containing water were simultaneously opened, water flowing off until at another signal, the petcocks were closed. The message desired was then read off from the words found at the water level of the boards.

Polypius writes in his History of the Punic Wars, that he had improved on the method of communicating by letter and courier, supposedly inaugurated by Cleoxantus, or according to other authorities, by Democritus. This method is dated B. C. 264, and consists of arranging the alphabet on five boards. The signal codes were given by torches. The torches in one hand indicated the number of the board; those in the other hand placed the position of the letter in its row on that board. Two long tubes, called dioptrical instruments, were trained upon the torchbearers to facilitate seeing them at greater distances.

Aeschylus, born 525 years before Christ, wrote a tragedy in which he related the account of the Fall of Troy, 1084 years before the Christian era. Agamemnon had besieged the city for ten years and when finally his famed strategy won, he signalled the event to his queen, Clytaemnestra, conveying the message over many hundred miles within a comparatively short time. An explanation of his method, we may discover in our next chapter, dealing chiefly with Caesar and the Romans.
