PAMPA — Residents zooming down Russell Street today may find themselves screeching to a halt at the intersection of Russell and Randy Matson.

Due to complaints from citizens living in that area, the traffic commission and the city commission approved the installation of stop signs for north and southbound traffic at that intersection. The stop signs will be installed Monday, July 28.

Until the signs are installed, temporary lighted signs will be placed at the intersection this week. The temporary signs will be used to inform motorists about the changes and allow time for drivers to adjust to the new four-way stop.

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — A federal penitentiary that's already one of the nation's largest is getting even bigger, with a third correctional institution under construction and a fourth in planning stages.

About 1,500 inmates are now housed at the U.S. Penitentiary between Port Arthur and Beaumont, with a staff of more than 200 guards in the maximum- and low-security institutions currently open.

Each institution has a warden and an administrative warden supervises support services for the penitentiary. Another warden will supervise a minimum-security prison camp once it is completed.

Warden Raymond Holt said his maximum-security institution began receiving prisoners in April and now has about 270 serving sentences from 18 years to life.

AUSTIN (AP) — There were no tickets matching the winning numbers in the Lotto Texas drawing Sunday night.

The winning numbers drawn were 10-17-19-21-42-47 for an estimated $4 million. The next drawing will be held Wednesday night for an estimated $8 million.

Four arrested on illegal drug charges on traffic stop, at least 151 pounds of marijuana confiscated.

By DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE
Staff Writer

Two routine weekend traffic stops by local Department of Public Safety Troopers ended with the confiscation of more than 151 pounds of marijuana and the arrest of four out-of-state travelers on felony possession charges.

Christopher Robert Wisrock, 22, and his traveling companion Jason Dale Rogers, 24, both of Rogers, Ark., were stopped about 7:30 Saturday evening by DPS trooper Jeremy Wallace at the 116-mile-marker while traveling eastbound on I-40 for a seatbelt violation.

Wallace said he stopped the 1987 Mercury Grand Marquis for a seatbelt violation and the driver volunteered information regarding some zig-zag papers and a joint in the car.

This information led the trooper to believe he had probable cause to search the vehicle.

Under the front passenger seat was a small brick of marijuana the occupants of the car had for personal use, and in the trunk was somewhere between 130 pounds and 150 pounds of marijuana.

Wallace said the Department of Public Safety lab in Amarillo was weighing the marijuana for final determination of the exact amount.

It was not known at press time whether either individual had any prior drug-associated convictions.

Wisrock and Rogers remain in Gray County jail pending charges of felony possession of marijuana.

Less than four hours later, at about 10:40 p.m. Saturday, Trooper Chad Estes stopped a rental car, driven by Albert Wayne Milton, 43, of Phoenix, Ar., for failure to signal lane changes and two miles an hour above the posted speed limit. Milton was stopped at the 145-mile-marker, also traveling eastbound on I-40.

Estes said the driver and the passenger Chaletha R. Mitchell, 17, also of Phoenix, gave conflicting stories, and the renter of the car was not present, which made him suspicious.

He received written permission to search the vehicle; during the search he located 21 pounds of marijuana.

Estes said neither Mitchell or Milton had any prior drug-related convictions.

Mitchell and Milton also remain in custody in Gray County jail.

Estes said felony possession charges are levied when a person is found with at least two pounds of marijuana.

Agreement may soon be reached on $135 billion tax cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prospects for reaching agreement on a tax bill brightened as the White House signaled it was prepared to begin to cut a deal, officials said.

"We're poised to make some real progress," Rep. Bill Archer, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said after a 2

1/2-hour private meeting Sunday night with senior Clinton administration officials and Senate tax writers.

"They are in a position where they (administration officials) say they will be able to negotiate. They will be able to say, 'We will give this and you give that,'" Archer, R-Texas, said. "And that is very, very constructive."

Up to this point, the closed-door sessions largely involved detailed discussions of participants' major disagreements in a bill aimed at providing a $135 billion tax cut over five years, the biggest tax break since 1981, with $50 billion in offsetting new revenues.

Senate Finance Committee Chairman William V. Roth Jr., R-DeL., moved to jump-start talks Friday by offering a proposed settlement on six major issues, including a concession on his pet issue of expanding Individual Retirement Accounts. Instead of responding with a counter-offer, President Clinton sent a letter repeating his general concerns that any tax cut must remain fair to working people and not cause large budget deficits.

In the letter, Clinton complained that separate tax bills passed by the House and Senate "fall substantially short" of reaching a promise by Republicans to meet his goal of $35 billion in education-related tax relief over the next five years.

Several participants viewed the Sunday meeting as important because GOP lawmakers were prepared to write a final tax bill on their own if the administration hadn't expressed a willingness to negotiate.

Women's center offers breast cancer screening clinic

by MIRANDA G. BAILEY
Staff Writer

The Women's Center of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and Baptist/St. Anthony's Health System will conduct a Breast Cancer Screening Clinic at Pampa's Shephard's Crook Nursing Agency, Inc., 2225 Perryton Parkway, on Friday, Aug. 8.

The clinic is only available to women who need financial assistance. Participants will receive a screening that includes a mammogram and instruction in self-examination by a registered nurse. A minimum of 15 women need to register before the mobile mammography clinic will come to area towns.

"Breast cancer affects one in eight women and the key to winning the battle against cancer is early detection by having an annual breast exam, mammogram, and performing a breast self-exam each month," said Tracy Dougherty of the Harrington Cancer Center.

Funding is available through the Texas Department of Health for Texas residents who qualify for assistance. All exams are done by appointment only. Call 359-4673 or 1-800-377-4673 for more information.

chief lobbyist, said "I think we've moved forward" and that a bill could be completed by week's end.

Senate Majority Whip Don Nickles, R-Okla., said the tax bargainers were making progress and he expected the administration to begin offering ways to split differences on major tax disputes, perhaps by Tuesday.

One tax negotiator, Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., did not share his colleagues' optimism. "I'm not overly impressed with the progress that's been made this evening," he said, declining to elaborate.

Earlier Sunday, administration and congressional leaders appeared on television talk shows, where they acknowledged that fundamental issues remain outstanding.

Archer said on ABC's "This Week" that the "biggest hang-up" to negotiations is getting the White House to agree to net tax cuts of $85 billion over five years.

Republicans have insisted their proposed $500-per-child tax credit should go mainly to middle-class families, not low-income working families who don't earn enough to pay income tax and who already get other tax breaks.

But Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that it "is our view, and very strong view, that middle-income and lower-income working Americans deserve to get a child tax credit."

Democrats expected to hit on $50,000 donation to GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Democrats take the offensive this week in the Senate campaign finance hearings, they are expected to ask Republican witnesses about a $50,000 donation that House Speaker Newt Gingrich's closest political adviser obtained.

The money, given to the National Policy Forum, a now-defunct GOP think tank, was raised by consultant Joseph Gaylord in July 1995.

The $50,000 donation is a subject for scrutiny when the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee resumes hearings Wednesday. After two weeks of testimony on possibly illegal Democratic fund-raising, Democrats will be summoning Republican witnesses.

The source of the money to the policy forum was a California company, Panda Enterprises, owned by an Indonesian businessman who reportedly has close ties to China.

"We certainly intend to pursue it," said a Democratic investigator for the Senate panel, even though the businessman and his daughter gave far more — $250,000 — to the Democratic National Committee.

The National Policy Forum is among several tax-exempt groups investigators have been scrutinizing to see if they were misused for political purposes. The group was founded by former Republican National Chairman Haley Barbour, who will be called as a committee witness.

Internal documents suggest the forum was closely aligned to the Republican National Committee. But Barbour contends it was a separate organization that was permitted to — and did — accept foreign contributions. Foreign donations to the parties or their candidates are illegal.

The information about Gaylord was provided to the Senate committee by John Bolton, who was president of the forum from January 1995 through the end of 1996, when it went out of existence.

He told the panel that Gaylord "was paid a consulting fee by (the forum) to raise money, which he was not doing. Panda Enterprises was the first contribution that came in under his auspices."

"I looked at Panda Enterprises and asked what it was," Gaylord said.

Gaylord, a close Gingrich associate, did not return a telephone call to his office for comment.

The Los Angeles Times has reported that on July 17, 1995, $50,000 was transferred by wire from an undetermined source to the bank account of Panda, a California import-export company founded by Indonesian businessman Ted Sioeng and his daughter, Jessica Elnitiarta.

The next day, Elnitiarta wrote a check for $50,000 from the company to the policy forum. The Times quoted one of her attorneys, Mark J. MacDougall, as saying she made no political contributions on behalf of or at the direction of foreign governments.

Cable TV show picks on johns, prostitutes

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The cable show "John TV" has been a hit, at least in the only place city officials care about: the streets.

Since mid-May, anyone watching cable in metropolitan Kansas City on Wednesday mornings can see the police photos and names of those arrested for solicitation or prostitution.

The display, which includes a disclaimer that those shown are innocent until proven guilty, is supposed to embarrass prostitutes and their clients enough to discourage them from coming back to the oldest profession.

Housing official criticized for how she handled personal real estate

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A top local housing official repeatedly has been sued for failing to pay more than $31,000 in property taxes and fees and has failed to maintain several vacant properties, according to a newspaper report.

Choco Meza, a senior vice president for housing operations at the San Antonio Housing Authority, had five lawsuits against her dismissed after setting up payment plans.

But according to city and tax offices, Mrs. Meza and her husband still owe $23,700, the San Antonio Express-News reported Sunday in a copyright story.

"We're not wealthy folks," said Mrs. Meza, whose housing authority job pays her $90,000 annually. "We've worked hard to acquire what we have. At times, it's been tough."

Mrs. Meza's husband, Daniel, said he takes full responsibility for managing the finances.

said Joe Barton, president of Chaparral Rails to Trails Inc., which owns the corridor and will still try to build a trail.

The project would have turned a former railway into a recreational trail from Farmersville in Collin County to near Paris in Lamar County.

"I feel relieved. We finally got our voice heard," said Mike Lewis, a Hunt County resident who helped lead landowner opposition to the project.

All of a sudden, judges pushing divorce through the court system

HOUSTON (AP) — Had it with your spouse? Think the road to splitsville is just around the corner?

In the past, Houston's Harris County would be your last stop because divorce cases could linger in the courts for years.

But suddenly divorce cases in Harris County — where 32,000 are filed annually — are quickly making it to trial.

Recently, judges here have forged new rules to put divorce cases in the fast lane. Their target is to have divorces reach trial within one year of filing — even sooner if estranged couples commit to expedited trial settings.

"We hope this system has resulted in less delays in getting cases to trial," said state District Judge Jim Squier. "I know lawyers may have complained, and we have 'fine-tuned' the system. But we've got to think the litigants want to get to trial as quickly as practically possible."

State withdraws support from proposed rail trail through North Texas

DALLAS (AP) — Plans for a paved hiking and biking trail through rural North Texas have been put on the shelf because of a lack of public support.

The Texas Department of Transportation has withdrawn a $1.7 million grant for construction of the Chaparral Rail Trail after most cities along the proposed 56-mile route pulled their support.

Report: Nonprofit organization involved in Kelly transfer broke promise to woman

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A nonprofit organization that wants to build housing for the homeless on Kelly Air Force Base promised an elderly woman that her home would become a sanctuary for the elderly poor if she signed it over to the group, the San Antonio Express-News reported Sunday.

Instead, the house was demolished and Senior Resource's founder and president Patrick LaCombe sold the lot two years ago for $64,000 in cash, records show.

It's not clear how the money was spent, the newspaper reported in its copyright story. LaCombe had not released the nonprofit's tax returns for review.

He told the Express-News that his plan to turn the woman's Alamo Heights home into a shelter didn't work out. "It was in such poor condition, structurally and otherwise, it wasn't cost-effective to renovate," LaCombe said, adding that an architect and Alamo Heights city engineers advised against restoring the structure. The newspaper also reported that Senior Resources promised to ensure the woman's funeral as part of the deal involving her home. The newspaper did not reveal charity, has spent the last eight years mostly buying and selling real estate acquired from government agencies at bargain prices, the newspaper said. It operated in obscurity until last month when a Washington federal court blocked the $108 million transfer of Kelly AFB to the city.

U.S. District Judge Harold Greene temporarily blocked the transfer on June 26 after LaCombe contended the Greater Kelly Development Corp. board violated the federal base closure law when it sidelined his proposed plan to train homeless workers and build low-cost housing on the base.

Greene set Monday as the deadline for GKDC officials and LaCombe to reach an agreement, threatening to impose a settlement if one is not reached.

It was LaCombe's volunteer work in nursing homes that brought him in contact with the woman who eventually signed over her house to him in November 1992, the newspaper said.

The woman was a regular patient at the doctor's office where Blanca Guajardo was a nurse. She said the woman was seriously injured when a car struck her.

Ms. Guajardo said the woman needed help taking care of her bills while in the hospital. When she was transferred to a nursing home, LaCombe befriended the woman, taking her to his home for dinner and on family outings.

"She signed the house over to him," Ms. Guajardo said, adding LaCombe promised the woman she would get the kind of funeral and burial she wanted.

LaCombe also promised the woman that after restoring her property, he'd help her leave the nursing home and return to live at her former home, Ms. Guajardo said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers, so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Are our rights slowly eroding?

I read a great quotation in Forbes magazine a few months ago. It's from James Bovard's book, Lost Rights.

He writes: "While courts have created new due process rights for welfare recipients, disruptive school children, and criminal defendants, the rights of farmers, homeowners, parents, and businesses have been shredded. The modern idea of due process appears to be to permit citizens to exhaust their life savings fighting court battles against heavy-handed government agencies."

It seems to me, as well, that people who raise their families, pay their taxes, obey the law, keep up with their mortgages and mind their own business are the only ones for whom our society has not carved out special rights. Quite often they are treated as if their lives, property and livelihoods are of little consequence.

The government's treatment of an 82-year-old California woman offers a textbook case of how this works. Back in the '70s, Mrs. Suitum and her late husband bought an undeveloped lot near Lake Tahoe on which they hoped some day to build a home for their retirement. The cost of caring for her husband when he became ill absorbed most of their income for years, so it wasn't until 1989, after her husband had died, that Mrs. Suitum was able to proceed with her plans.

But predatory land-use regulations, driven by narrow special interests, had a surprise in store for her. Although her lot was in a subdivided area, surrounded by existing houses and streets, she was told she could not build because her property was in a "stream environment zone." Run-off from her lot (just might) pollute Lake Tahoe. Only after an expensive, protracted legal battle did the U.S. Supreme Court finally rule earlier this year that she had been unfairly and unconstitutionally denied the use of her property. Poor Mrs. Suitum. For the elderly especially, justice delayed is justice denied.

There are countless other examples of this. Item: The Internal Revenue Service has announced plans to raise taxes on limited partnerships, a rule change that would impose tax increases on tens of thousands of small businesses, although Congress rejected this proposal less than four years ago.

Item: A night club in Bellevue, Wash., was assessed a $4,500 fine under the Americans with Disabilities Act because it did not have a wheelchair lift attached to its stage for disabled dancers.

Item: The EPA requires local drinking water suppliers to test for 25 additional contaminants every three years, regardless of whether they occur locally or pose any actual health risk. This costs municipal utilities millions annually, which must be passed on to citizens in the form of higher utility bills.

These are but a few of many depressing examples of government run amok. But there are reasons to believe that fewer such instances will occur in the future. Congress has enacted laws requiring that the economic impact of proposed new regulations be determined. This is slight progress, but we need more. And what we really need most in federal regulations is simple: common sense.

Solicitor general to the rescue

Some of the most ardent advocates of affirmative action can do more harm to that increasingly beleaguered remedy than its opponents. Deval Patrick, for instance, when he was head of the Civil Rights Division in the Department of Justice, devoted much energy and passion to a case from Piscataway, N.J.

The Board of Education there, in an economy move, was faced with two teachers of equal seniority and ability. The board fired the white teacher and kept the black teacher.

The reason, said the board, was the need for diversity in that business education department. The surviving teacher was the only black in the division. The Board of Education, however, did not claim that it was remedying past discrimination in the faculty of the high school as a whole, because there was no such discrimination.

Another factor looming over the case was that the Supreme Court had been giving very careful scrutiny to racial preferences that would result in people losing their jobs. It is one thing not to be hired; it is quite another to lose a regular salary and benefits.

There was a split around the country as to whether affirmative action was going too far when it resulted in letting go a teacher solely because she was the wrong color. And there was division in the Justice Department.

One of the critics, on constitutional grounds, was Walter Dellinger, then an assistant attorney general for the Office of Legal Counsel. I've known Dellinger through the years, and he deserves the sometimes loosely bestowed title of constitutional scholar. He is also a careful student of the Supreme Court.

The Piscataway case eventually went to the Third Circuit of Appeals which, last August, ruled against the Piscataway Board of Education, emphasizing that "unless an affirmative action plan has a remedial purpose (to deal with specific proven discrimination)," it is in violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act. And such an affirmative action plan, said the court, should not "unnecessarily trammel the interests" of non-minority employees.

The Third Circuit's decision was not unexpected because the Piscataway case was weak from the start, though not to Deval Patrick and his supporters. Nonetheless, the school board has appealed the Third Circuit opinion to the United States Supreme Court. A member of the Justice Department told Nina Totenberg of National Public Radio: "We couldn't win this case if our lives depended on it."

In January, the Supreme Court asked the Justice Department for its analysis of the case. By now, Walter Dellinger was the acting solicitor general and the friend-of-the-court brief to the court is essentially his. Dellinger disagrees with the idea that there should never be an affirmative action diversity plan unless its intent is to remedy previous proven discrimination.

There are times and places, he notes in the brief, when, for instance, "against the backdrop of racial unrest, a diverse police force may be essential to secure the public support and cooperation that is necessary for preventing and solving crime." So too, he says, there can be a compelling particular need for a diverse work force in prisons.

But the Third Circuit had ruled on any such non-remedial use of race. If this weak case were to be judged by the Supreme Court, it is very likely the Board of Education would lose and the broad Third Circuit prohibition of any non-remedial use of race would become the law of the land.

It is evident from Walter Dellinger's brief that he does agree with the Third Circuit that the firing of the white teacher was wrong.

The case, he says, is "an unrepresentative example of non-remedial, affirmative action in employment" since it is not school-wide. Furthermore, the school, though having had an affirmative action policy for 18 years, had only used it once and eventually got rid of it altogether. Accordingly, the school has had exceedingly limited experience with affirmative action.

The advice to the Supreme Court by Dellinger is to not take the Piscataway case. But he emphasizes in the brief that the Third Circuit made a "serious misreading of Title VII and its purposes" when it ruled there can be no non-remedial affirmative action in any case.

If the Supreme Court accepts Dellinger's advice, he will have saved the possibility of using race as a factor under certain non-remedial conditions. But if the ardent paladin of affirmative action, Deval Patrick, had prevailed, that window would have been closed throughout the country. It'll be interesting to see if some of Dellinger's critics, including those in the Justice Department, will openly recognize what he has done for the faith. A benison from Jesse Jackson would be in keeping.

GOP tax packages are a betrayal

My supply-side friends may accuse me of heresy, but I just can't muster much enthusiasm for the Republican tax cut bills. I give the GOP some credit for proffering Americans the "first tax cut in 16 years." But I hardly think this is the best that the party of Bill Archer, R-Texas, and Bill Roth, R-Del., (authors of the House and Senate tax cut bills) can do.

Just a year ago, Republicans were talking about a revolutionary change in the tax system. They recognized that the existing tax code had become hopelessly complex with its five different individual income tax rates, eight different corporate rates and hundreds of tax deductions, credits, exemptions and exclusions for individuals and businesses.

So Republicans promised us a simpler tax system. Dick Arney, R-Texas, the House Majority Leader, proposed a flat tax on individual and business income. We'd mail in our tax returns on a postcard, he guaranteed. Archer, the House Ways and Means Committee chairman, proposed a national consumption tax to replace the income tax. That would spell the end of the IRS as we know it, he asserted.

Yet, the Republican tax bills go in the complete opposite direction of a simpler, flatter tax system. Indeed, the present tax code is already 4,000 pages long. So what did Reps. Arney, Archer and their fellow Republicans do? They cobbled together a tax bill that ran 460 pages in legislative language (not including explanation). Over in the Senate, the GOP tax bill came in at a whopping 662 pages.

The Republican tax bills required so many pages because lawmakers included hundreds of new tax provisions. Because it is all so complicated, news accounts provide only an overview. So most

Joseph Perkins

Joseph Perkins is a columnist for the San Diego Union-Tribune and is a commentator for MSNBC.

Americans think that the tax bills have only a few components: The $500-per-child tax credit; the capital gains tax cut; the estate tax cut; the higher education tax credit; the expanded Individual Retirement Accounts.

But Jim Miller, counselor to Citizens for a Sound Economy, has found the devil in the details of the Republican tax bills. He notes that the House version contained 65 provisions that reduced taxes, 101 that are technically neutral and 36 that raise taxes. The Senate version listed 54 provisions that reduce taxes, 98 that are neutral and 42 that raise taxes.

This brings me to another problem with the Republican tax bill. While it does cut various and sundry taxes by $135 billion over the next five years, it also raises certain taxes by $50 billion over the same span. So, for instance, if you sell some stock at a profit, the Republicans give you a tax cut. But if you buy an airline ticket, the GOP socks you with a tax hike.

This simply perpetuates one of the biggest flaws with the present tax system. It prefers certain categories of taxpayers over others. Indeed, I'm all for cutting taxes for families with children, people selling houses survivors inheriting property, parents with kids in college, folks saving for retirement. But there are millions of taxpaying Americans who are childless, who own no home, who expect no inheritance, who have no kids in college, who have no IRA. The Republican tax bill does nothing for these categories of taxpayers. But surely they deserve a tax cut too.

All taxpaying Americans took a hit in the pocketbook when George Bush raised taxes by $263 billion in 1990 and Bill Clinton raised taxes by another $275 billion in 1993. So every taxpaying American should share in whatever tax relief the federal government ultimately provides.

As it is, the net tax cut Republicans have put forward is really rather minuscule. It adds up to $85 billion over five years. Considering that the 1990 and 1993 tax hikes amounted to a total of $538 billion, taxpaying Americans will still be $453 billion in the hole when and if the Republican tax package is enacted.

The most amusing thing is that both the Republican leadership in Congress and the Clinton White House are suggesting that the $85 billion in net tax reduction is generous. But the federal government is taking in $1.6 trillion each year. The tax cuts amount to little more than one percent of revenue.

I, for one, expected more from a Republican tax bill. I was hoping for a measure that would make the tax code simpler and flatter, that would return more of the dollars to taxpayers that the 1990 and 1993 tax hikes took from them, and that would reduce the tax burden on all, rather than select categories, of taxpayers.

Alas, the GOP tax package falls woefully short on all these counts.

The world is changing for the better

I am almost 64, born in 1933. I am amazed when I see the creepy crawler on Mars. I am not a great student of it, but I doubt that as much important history has ever been crammed into such a short time. The older stuff is easier to pigeonhole. We seem to know it all, and have locked it into place. (Hence the market for revisionism.) History easily becomes cliché. What's hard to understand is that history is still happening, with vigor, even as we say politics is sooo boring these days. (Maybe that's why we need ripe scandals.)

We know that in 1933 America was sunk in its greatest depression. Most of the world was not any better off. President Franklin Roosevelt came to office and helped re-inspire the nation. Progress against economic catastrophe was sluggish. Germany's Adolf Hitler was elected in the same year. In the Soviet Union, Joseph Stalin ruled with an iron hand. Expansionist nationalists were running Japan. The stage was set for Act One of the great struggle for global liberty.

We know what happened in World War II. My father was a soldier in World War I. He got angry because I could never remember which countries were on which side. But kids today seem to know more about WWII than some of the participants do, thanks to old movies and television documentaries. The good guys won.

We now know what happened in the Cold War. Communism ended up on the ash heap of history. (Some day maybe we'll even understand what Vietnam meant in the process.) In 1989, the USSR's

Ben Wattenberg

Eastern European satellites broke away. The Berlin Wall came down. In 1991, the Soviet Union disintegrated. The biggest mystery is why there isn't a holiday for the end of the Cold War.

But things get fuzzier as they get closer. It's hard to understand that what happened yesterday is very much in that same zone of intense historical activity.

The clown show going on in Europe about a unified currency obscures a great achievement: a peaceful Western Europe, which is a patch of land as blood-soaked as any on the planet. And now, Poland, Hungary and the Czech Republic are joining NATO. President Clinton will parachute into Romania to say he feels their pain and wait till next time. (Will Johnny Huang follow up?) A free and united Europe, expanding! - formed with our help by the folks whose grandfathers slaughtered each other with glee.

And what about China? Yes, they swallowed Hong Kong. But it remains to be seen whether it was a tiger swallowing a healthy man or a sick man swallowing an antibiotic. China may be cured by Hong Kong. One day they may join the good guys club. (Russia has.)

What happened in Mexico should not be underestimated. There are almost 100 million people there, and they now seem to have a serious democratic government for the first time. In the last 30 years the Mexican fertility rate has fallen from 6.8 children per woman to 2.8. They're ready. Chile will likely join NAFTA, opening up hemispheric trade as never before. The Chileans pioneered privatized Social Security and the idea is spreading around the world. It may well make lots of poor wage slaves into well-to-do stakeholders.

There are almost 20 wholly or partially democratic countries in Africa today; many struggling. But there were almost none just a couple of decades ago. Birth rates are dropping sharply in Muslim countries, and everywhere else too.

In the Middle East a hawkish Israeli government is pushing land for peace. It might even happen. Meanwhile, the forces of democracy, demilitarization, markets, trade and technology seem to be reshaping the economy of the world into something far more prosperous than what has gone before.

Of course, don't forget technology: computers, telecom, biotech, e-mail (I love it), let alone the cute little guy on Mars. Granted, Rover is in an unusual place. But if the creepy crawler wants to see some really interesting formations, it should look this way.

USS Constitution sets sail again

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (AP) — Batten down the hatches! The USS Constitution is ready for its first solo journey in 116 years.

The Navy's oldest commissioned warship still afloat was towed to Marblehead Harbor on Sunday. It was to turn around and sail back to Boston under its own power today, the 200th anniversary of its launch.

An estimated 25,000 people, on land and on sea, watched as the USS Constitution arrived, accompanied by a fleet of sailboats and modern Navy ships.

"Today, right now, I just have this gigantic, marvelous feeling," said Edna Strom, 71, of Quincy. "I really never felt more proud to be an American."

A chorus of cheers filled the air as the ship left a 21-gun salute.

"If it wasn't for those ships and those men, this country probably wouldn't be here," said Dorothy Foisy, 82, of Bradenton, Fla.

Launched as one of the Navy's first warships, "Old Ironsides" was undefeated in 30 engagements. Her victory over the HMS Guerriere in 1812 signaled America's arrival as a naval power.

Letters to the editor

To the editor:

I would like to do something that isn't done very often by an inmate for a staff member at a prison. I am an inmate serving a 15-year sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections at Rufe Jordan Unit in Pampa, Texas. I am hoping that the editor of this newspaper will print this message in your daily news for a very good cause and a very special individual.

I am speaking of Michael P. Frazier, a resident of your city — Pampa, Texas, and instructor of the Major Appliance Repair, a Windham School District Vocational Course, offered at the Rufe Jordan Unit for inmates who are seriously willing to make some positive changes in their lives. I have chosen that direction, and I am very pleased that I did because Mr. Frazier has proven to me that he has a great desire to help individuals like myself who want to learn about the refrigeration business.

This man has taught me more than I could have ever learned in a course offered out in the free world, and I am very grateful and I would like to commend this individual for helping me save my life, and I honestly feel that learning this trade will enable me to be released in the near future and make it very easy to find meaningful employment. I have been taught far more than what most "outside courses" offer, and I thank you Mr. Michael P. Frazier for being the kind of human being that it takes in order to get a convicted felon on the right track.

What you have done for me and "many other inmates" is what GOD calls a professional, and you deserve more than a hug. Thank you very much from not only me but also from my family who is extremely excited about what I have been taught about the refrigeration business, and I am even more excited because today I know for sure what I am talking about in this business, and I don't have to be afraid anymore because I can honestly do a good job for any employer. Thank you so much Mr. Michael P. Frazier. You may not think about it but YOU SAVE LIVES.

I have noticed that the site is updated more and do appreciate the Daily Record being added. I'm sorry to say that I remember many of the people in the obits, but do appreciate the addition. Thanks for letting me keep the Pampa connection open.

Re: What role do you think religion should play in the public schools?

How could anyone say, just leave it like it is? If you read the newspaper, listen to the news on TV or the radio you have to know the lack of morals in this nation is almost beyond hope. All religions teach morals, kindness, love, respect and a decent way to live. Our children need all the help they can get.

If we had a choice between the two, sex education or a bit of religious education, give me religion. That would cover both!

Thank you.

I'm writing to you to thank Columbia hospital, the Red Cross, Vicki Ogden and Lynda Duncan for giving me and some other girls the Red Cross Babysitting course.

They taught us CPR, rescue breathing and the Heimlich maneuver. They also taught us what to do in case of an emergency. The hospital provided each of us a Babysitting Guide. But that's not all we did, we had fun! Now, I'm a certified Babysitter. I'm also certified to give CPR, rescue breathing, and the heimlich maneuver to infants, toddlers and all children.

To the editor:

July 1st has been declared World Population Day by the United Nations. It is a time to reflect on the many challenges in the fight to stem the potentially devastating impacts of runaway population growth.

In 1960, world population was three billion. It is now approaching 5.9 billion and is expected to double again in only 40 years — with 98 percent of the increase occurring in the developing world. This growth has stretched resources to the limit as 82 countries are today unable to produce or purchase sufficient food to accommodate their own populations, and 1.5 billion people live in absolute poverty.

With a disproportionate grasp on world resources (a per-capita production of 1,600 pounds of municipal waste per year and a 26 percent share of the gross world product), citizens of the United States are considerably more fortunate than those who live in the developing world. But our participation in this dilemma is not limited to our over-consumption. We also feel the strain of population growth, as the current U.S. population of 267 million is expected to hit 400 million by 2050. The United States experiences the largest population growth of any industrialized nation — 2.4 million additional people a year — and the growth rate of states west of the Mississippi is equal to growth rates in Africa. Water shortages, traffic congestion, crime and population are among the long list of problems compounded by population growth.

Sustainable development requires effort toward enabling couples to choose the size of their families through education and access to family planning. While the United States should devise a rational population policy, the United Nations Population Fund is an ideal vehicle for confronting world population growth. The UNFPA's multi-lateral approach spreads the necessary leadership and burden-sharing to people of all colors, continents, creeds and cultures.

Mexican deaf-mutes held against will in subway operation

NEW YORK (AP) — All manner of beggars and panhandlers scrounge a living on New York City subways, from musicians on station platforms to the down-trodden who recount tales of woe as they ask riders for money.

But it was the most silent of the city's underground entrepreneurs who may have been in the most desperate of straits.

Authorities are unraveling an operation in which dozens of deaf and sometimes mute Mexicans were illegally smuggled into the country and sent to work on the subways, living in "virtual slavery" for bosses who confiscated their earnings as payment bringing them here.

Acting on a tip from four Mexican deaf-mutes who walked into a Queens precinct house early Saturday, police found 57 people, most of them also deaf-mutes, living in two crowded homes.

Seven other Mexican immigrants, some of them also deaf, were arrested Sunday on charges that include alien-smuggling, grand larceny and extortion. The alleged ringleader was still at large.

The immigrants, who appeared to be in good health, worked 18-hour days begging and peddling cheap trinkets, authorities said.

"Essentially they were being used as slaves," said Mayor Rudolph Giuliani. "This is a situation in which a certain group of people in this day and age held them in bondage."

Such peddlers are familiar to anyone who rides the subway. They move through trains, placing keychains with tags reading "$1, I am deaf" on the seats, then rush back to retrieve those not purchased.

The trinket sales apparently were lucrative for someone — $30,000 in cash was seized at one house, the mayor said.

"The conspiracy has to be bigger," said Giuliani, who called the arrangement "virtual slavery."

In Mexico City, the Rev. Martin Montoya Garcia, director of the Rosendo Olleta Institute for the deaf, said the news confirmed his fears.

Hidden Genetic Defect Forces Woman To Find Her Secret Son

DEAR ABBY: I recently had major surgery. After the operation, my surgeon advised me that I had a genetic defect which had complicated the procedure. He advised me to notify my children so they could be checked for it.

I notified my four children and they all have a similar problem. Here is my dilemma:

When I was in college, I foolishly had an affair with an older man and became pregnant. I couldn't support a child at that time, so I chose to give my son up for adoption. Because of my genetic defect, I decided to attempt to locate this child to let him know about it. I hired a private detective who soon located him, but his adoptive mother had told him I died shortly after he was born.

When I married him 30 years ago, my husband knew I'd had a child, but the subject has been taboo ever since our wedding. None of my children know they have a half-brother.

Should I contact my son even though he thinks his birth mother is dead? I'm sure it would be upsetting to learn that his adoptive mother lied to him. He may need to know about the problem that runs in our family. Please advise me.

TORN IN TOLEDO

DEAR TORN: Since the information could affect your son's health, it's important that he know about your medical history. You do not have to meet with him to give him the information. Ask your surgeon to write a letter to your son which covers the family medical history.

Abigail Van Buren

Your son will probably be shocked to learn that his adoptive mother lied, but he may want to get in touch with you. Many adoptees feel the need to meet their birth parents in order to feel "complete." Experts have told me that the vast majority of birth parents and children who have been reunited were gratified with the outcome.

DEAR ABBY: You printed a letter from a woman asking questions about her grandchild traveling unattended on an airplane to visit her.

You might be interested to know that the American Automobile Association has prepared a brochure addressing this situation. It's titled "Flying Alone: Handy Advice for Kids Traveling Solo." Parents interested in obtaining a free copy of the informative brochure should send a long, business-sized (No. 10), self-addressed, stamped envelope to:

AAA, Flying Alone — MS75, 1000 AAA Drive, Heathrow, Fla. 32746.

JERRY CHESKE, DIRECTOR, PUBLIC RELATIONS, AAA, HEATHROW, FLA.

DEAR MR. CHESKE: I think the little booklet is a dandy for any parent who is contemplating sending an unaccompanied child anywhere by air. It gives helpful tips about what to expect at the airport, lists the various age restrictions for unaccompanied minors, and offers suggestions concerning what to say and do prior to the child boarding the plane. Thanks for letting my readers know it's available. And the price is right — it's free!

DEAR ABBY: I am 30 and engaged to a 28-year-old woman I'll call Sharon. Her best friend, "Janie," asks very personal questions, like "How often do you two have sex?" Sharon will lie to her and reply "Twice a month." I'm not there when Janie asks these questions, but I hear about it afterward from Sharon. I resent the questions and prefer that Sharon ignore her and pretend she didn't hear the question.

Sharon reasons that if she tells her friend a lie and the woman knows it's a lie, it will keep her guessing. I feel it is none of her business and doesn't deserve a response. How do you think this should be handled?

BOB IN NEW HAMPSHIRE: DEAR BOB: Ask Sharon, "What's wrong with telling your friend that you do not care to respond to such personal questions?"

Smith, 26, who led Clemson in receiving from 1990 to 1993, had kicked in the door of Angela Smith's home when DeKalb County officers arrived shortly before 7 p.m. Friday and saw the knife-wielding Smith holding the woman closely, with their 2-year-old daughter sandwiched between them.

CANYON — West Texas A&M University Head Football Coach Stan McGarvey announced today the hiring of Jeff Cordell as a full-time assistant coach working with the Buff linebackers and aiding in the recruitment process of future WTAMU players.

Cordell comes to WTAMU after serving as the secondary and receivers coach at Aubrey High School since 1995. In addition, he was the head track coach at Aubrey H.S.

"Jeff is a great addition to our staff," McGarvey said. "He is a young man with success as a student athlete. He has spent five years as a high school coach in the Dallas area. Jeff is a high-energy kind of guy and will relate well to our defensive players. His personality and hard work will pay off for us at WTAMU as a coach and recruiter."

McGarvey also pointed to Cordell's ability to recruit in the area will be enhanced by his previous coaching in the region and his family connections to the Texas Panhandle.

"Jeff has a tremendous knowledge of the area which will be a definite asset in his ability to recruit in Texas," McGarvey said. "Further, he has family in the Lubbock area, which will provide yet another link to this area of the state."

Cordell also worked two years at Carrollton's R.L. Turner High School as its secondary coach, assistant track coach in charge of sprinters and the freshman basketball coach. He obtained his first full-time coaching position at Vivian Field Junior High School, a feeder school into Turner H.S., where he coached football, basketball, and track from 1991 to 1993.

Upon graduating from Austin College with a bachelor's degree in 1991, Cordell worked as a graduate assistant at his alma mater for the following season. He earned his master's degree in teaching from Austin College in 1992.

As a student-athlete at Austin College, he earned first-team all-NAIA and Kodak All-American honors as a defensive back. Cordell was named the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association Defensive Player of the Year as well as Austin College's Most Valuable Player as a senior. He was a four-time all-TIAA selection.

Greer's homer gives Rangers' win in 10th

By JAIME ARON
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Rusty Greer's two-out home run in the 10th inning — his seventh game-winning homer since 1995 — gave the Texas Rangers a 7-6 victory over the Detroit Tigers on Sunday night.

It was the 10th time in three seasons that Greer has driven in the game-winning run in Texas' last at-bat. He's done it three times this year with home runs. He has 14 homers this season.

John Wetteland (5-2) struck out the side in the 10th, getting the last two batters looking for his first victory since June 13. A.J. Sager (2-3), the sixth Detroit pitcher, took the loss.

Rusty Greer

The Rangers, who improved to 4-0 in extra-inning games, ended a three-game losing streak and won for just the second time in seven games. Detroit missed a chance for its first three-game sweep in Texas since 1992.

Detroit took a 2-0 lead in the second on an RBI double by Bob Hamelin and a sacrifice fly by Raul Casanova. The Tigers made it 5-0 in the fourth on another RBI double by Hamelin, an RBI single by Casanova and a run-scoring fielder's choice by Damion Easley.

Lee Stevens' two-run double in the fourth put Texas within 5-2, then an RBI single by Bobby Higginson in the seventh put Detroit back up 6-2.

The Rangers tied it in seventh with four runs off relievers Doug Brocail, Dan Micelli and Mike Myers. Mark McLemore and Ivan Rodriguez each had RBI singles, then Juan Gonzalez hit a two-run double.

But Gonzalez failed to come through in the eighth, popping out in the middle of the infield with men on first and second with two out.

Scott Sanders, acquired Friday from Seattle for pitchers Omar Olivares and Felipe Lira, allowed two runs on five hits in five innings in his Detroit debut. He struck out four and walked one in his first start since May 26.

Texas' Matt Whiteside made his major league start after 201 relief appearances and allowed five runs on six hits in four innings.

He struck out one and hit a batter.

Notes: Whiteside had only started 13 games in his eight-year pro career; seven in Triple-A last year and five in the Pioneer League in 1990. ... Hamelin, not the speediest of runners, scored on Casanova's second-inning sacrifice fly. Left fielder Greer didn't even throw home to contest him. ... All-Star catcher Ivan Rodriguez threw out Damion Easley and AL steals leader Brian Hunter trying to steal second. ... The Tigers are headed home for the first time since the All-Star break. Pitcher Justin Thompson will come off the disabled list to face the Chicago White Sox. ... Opposing No. 9 hitters have a 12-game hitting streak going against Texas.

Hidden Hills course besieged by aces

PAMPA — A rash of hole-in-ones has struck the Hidden Hills Public Golf Course.

During a 17-day span, there have been three hole-in-ones registered at Hidden Hills, all on the 143-yard No. 6.

"It's weird," said Hidden Hills pro David Teichmann. "Hole-in-ones have been known to come in spurts, but not all on the same hole. We've hadn't had a hole-in-one in six months."

The first ace came on July 5 on a 6-iron shot by Gabe Crossman. Witnesses were Tim Kelly and Ken Crossman.

The second ace came on July 15 on a 9-wood shot by Elmer Wilson. It was witnessed by Butch Reynolds.

The third ace came on July 22 on an 8-iron shot by Martin Stevens. Witnesses were Rick Valingo, Derrick Eldridge and John Malone.

Hidden Hills is hosting The Pampa News Gray County Championship Saturday and Sunday.

The tournament is open to golfers from age 18 throughout the Gray County area. It will be 36-hole medal play for each division, flighted according to handicap. The ladies division and the senior men over 50 division is separate.

Prizes will be given in each division.

Leonard wins British Open

TROON, Scotland (AP) — The engraver was going to work on the Auld Claret Jug when Justin Leonard walked up the 18th fairway, his ball safely on the green and the cheers growing louder with every step.

Until that moment, the Texan from Highland Park had been a forgotten man.

Despite a U.S. Amateur title and two PGA Tour victories, the 25-year-old Leonard had never been tested in a major championship like Jesper Parnevik at Turnberry in 1994.

And if Parnevik couldn't hold a two-stroke lead in the final round of the British Open on Sunday, maybe Tiger Woods could top a 64 and make a run from eight strokes behind.

Too far back? Fred Couples was only five strokes back, same as Leonard.

Even when Darren Clarke was trying to hang onto the lead in the third round, a British broadcaster said at least the 28-year-old would not be in awe of his playing partner — Leonard, of course.

They can't help but notice Leonard now.

Leonard won the British Open with the kind of round required at Royal Troon — birdies on the front, survival on the back — and a putting stroke that wins major championships.

Pampa All-Stars advance to Southwest Regionals

By JOHN WARNER
Pampa News correspondent

TULIA — The Pampa Optimist Major Bambino All-Stars are Arkansas-bound after winning the Major Bambino West Texas State Tournament Saturday with 12-4 and 7-4 victories over Plainview.

Daniel Heuston was the winning pitcher in both games, getting help from Ryan Zemanek in the first game and from Zemanek and Max Simon in the nightcap.

Pampa spotted Plainview two runs in the first game and one run in the second, but came back to batter four different Plainview pitchers for 23 hits in the two games.

Heuston got off to a shaky start in the first game, giving up a single and a walk to the first two batters. A wild pitch put both runners in scoring position for a two-out, two-run single by Plainview first baseman Michael Chavez. A throwing error on the next batter threatened a repeat of the previous game between the two teams when Pampa errors led to four unearned runs in a 5-4 Pampa loss. However, first baseman Zemanek picked up the overthrow near the fence in right field and fired a strike to catcher Carlos Solis, who ended the inning by tagging Chavez trying to score all the way from first on the play.

Pampa brought out its big bats in the bottom of the first inning with five of their six batters getting extra base hits. Tyson Moree, elevated to the leadoff position by virtue of two hits the night before, slammed the second pitch into the gap between left and center for a double. He made it home easily on a triple to right field by Heuston. Jordan Klaus followed with a triple to left field, scoring Heuston.

Zemanek was safe on an error that plated Klaus. A booming triple by John Braddock sent Zemanek home. Daniel Williams followed with a double, which allowed Braddock to trot home with the fifth run of the inning.

In the second inning, Pampa took up where it left off in the first inning. Plainview pitcher Eric Villillon, who was virtually unhittable in the earlier loss to Plainview, continued on the mound. Moree started things off with a single over an infield, which was drawn in after he bluffed a bunt on the first pitch. He sped home on a double by Heuston. A double of Klaus brought Heuston in to score. Zemanek forced Klaus at third and took second on a passed ball. He tallied when Williams slapped a single to left field to make the score 8-2.

Pampa picked up two more runs in the third. Solis was hit by a pitch and forced at second by Moree. A single by Heuston sent Moree to third. Heuston alertly went to second on the throw to third. A Klaus single up the middle scored both runners.

A hit batter, a walk, a passed ball and a throwing error handed Plainview a run in the fourth inning. Pampa made two more runs in the fifth. Klaus singled with one out and was forced at second by Zemanek. Braddock was safe on an error, scoring Zemanek. He went to second on a single by Williams. He took third on a passed ball and scored when the throw went into left field.

Plainview scored a meaningless run in the sixth inning on two walks and a single to bring the final score to 12-4.

Klaus with four hits, including a double and a triple, and four RBI, was the leading hitter for Pampa for the fifth game in a only twin killing for Pampa in the tournament.

In the second game Plainview got on the board first with an unearned run following a walk, a single and an error. Pampa came back in the bottom of the first to take the lead, scoring three times.

Heuston walked and Klaus was safe on an error. Zemanek boomed a triple to bring in both runners. Braddock followed with an infield single scoring Zemanek.

In the second inning Solis led off with a single and kept going to second when the ball got through the center fielder. He took third on a passed ball and scored on a ground out by Heuston.

Pampa upped its lead with two runs in the third inning. Williams singled. Jay Gerber stroked a single to center which the fielder let get through. Williams scored and Gerber went all the way to third and scored on an overthrow.

The winners scored one last run in the fourth inning on a single by Zemanek, a passed ball, a stolen base and an RBI single by Braddock.

Zemanek relieved Heuston in the fourth inning and allowed only one runner to reach base on an error.

Plainview refused to go quietly. In the sixth inning, Simon took over for Zemanek. With one out an infield single and a walk set the table for a run-scoring single. An infield out scored a second run. A walk and a wild pitch sent a runner home with the third Plainview run of the inning and sent another runner to second base. Solis then picked up a short passed ball and fired to Klaus at third to catch the runner stealing to end the game.

Bill Heuston is the manager of the all stars. Steve Williams and Terry Hall are the coaches.

Tri-State golfer Larry Freeman of Bullard, Tex. receives an umbrella from Barbara Rogers of the Ladies Activities Committee during registration for the Tri-State Senior Golf Association Tournament Sunday at the Pampa Country Club. The first round of the three-day tournament starts Wednesday, but the seniors will be involved in a scramble on Tuesday, starting at 7:30 a.m.

Gonzalez, Kile lead Astros past Expos, 9-0

MONTREAL (AP) — Luis Gonzalez hopes the Houston Astros are rising above the mediocrity of the NL Central. "I don't think any team in the Central has gone out and played well yet," Gonzalez said after hitting two home runs, including a grand slam, to back the pitching of Darryl Kile as the Astros blanked the Montreal Expos 9-0 on Sunday.

"We know what we're capable of. We're better than a .500 team, we know that. Hopefully we can get going, get on a roll and win some ball games."

"Pampa has a fine team and a fine program," said Tom Ford, the manager of the Plainview team, "But we are closing the gap."

In the championship game Zemanek with two hits, including a triple, two runs scored and two RBI and Braddock with two hits and two RBI lead Pampa's offensive efforts. Heuston had the outstanding defensive play of the game in the first inning with a diving catch of a foul ball.

Heuston notched his fourth win of the tournament against one loss. He allowed one run and two hits. He struck out two and walked one. Zemanek had one win and one save in the tournament. In the championship game he pitched two innings giving up no runs, no hits and no walks. He struck out two. Simon picked up a save during the tournament. In the final game he was touched for three runs, two hits and two walks in one inning. He struck out one.

Klaus, with 16 hits in the six games, was the leading hitter. Pampa was 5-1 in state tournament play and was the only team to come out with a winning record. Solis caught all but two innings of the tournament and had only three passed balls in the six games.

The Major Bambino West Texas State Champions will leave Pampa later this week to travel to Harrison, Arkansas, to face state champions from Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and two other regions of Texas. The tournament winner in Arkansas advances to the Bambino World Series next month in Altamonte Springs, Fla.

Cowboys' camp is to Aikman's liking

AUSTIN (AP) — Welcome to Camp Aikman. Troy Aikman is finally getting what he wanted from coach Barry Switzer and owner Jerry Jones: a Dallas Cowboys camp free of distractions, dawn to dusk hard work and a dedicated attitude.

Aikman first had a camp like that under coach Jimmy Johnson. After last year's unhappy result in which the Cowboys were bounced out of the playoffs by Carolina a game short of the NFC title game, Aikman hinted retirement if Dallas didn't brush up its image.

"I haven't made a decision yet about my future," he said back in February. "Certain things need to be addressed."

They were.

The Cowboys re-signed close buddy Daryl Johnston at fullback, hired Calvin Hill to clean up the team's public image and promised a no-frills, hard-working camp.

He also wasn't happy with a frantic preseason like last year's, when the team played in two different countries, scrimmaged three different teams and played one more preseason game than most clubs.

"There's a fine line between being 13-3 and 8-8," Aikman said. "We have to get the edge back."

It wasn't 8-8 for the Cowboys, but it was 10-6, not a mark to which Dallas is accustomed. Now Aikman is, enthusiastic again, buoyed by the appearance of Michael Irvin in camp and the signing of free agent Anthony Miller to complement him at wide receiver.

"We could have the best corps of receivers we've ever had," Aikman said. "In Mike and Anthony we may have the best tandem in the league. Certainly the best group of receivers since I've been here."

Aikman likes the healthy return of tight end Eric Bjornson and praises rookie first round draft pick David LaFleur, another tight end.

In fact, Aikman all but said Deion Sanders needn't worry about offense when he finally reports from the Cincinnati Reds.

"Deion might be able to help, but it would be hard because it (being a receiver) takes so much time," Aikman said.

Aikman also has been bubbly about his future.

"As long as we are a focused football team, I want to be part of it," Aikman said.

Lions, Sanders reach deal

UNIVERSITY CENTER, Mich. (AP) — Barry Sanders agreed to a five-year contract with the Detroit Lions on Sunday and will report to camp on Monday, the team announced.

The team did not disclose the financial terms of the contract, but said it includes an option for a sixth year. The Detroit News reported Monday that the contract is worth more than $34 million, which would make him the NFL's highest-paid player per season.

"This was obviously a complicated deal, and we're glad we could iron out the final details," said Chuck Schmidt, the Lions executive vice president and chief operating officer. "Barry's been an important player for this team for the past eight seasons. And with this deal, we're delighted that Lions fans will have the opportunity to watch Barry for years to come."

Sanders won the NFL rushing title last season with 1,553 yards, becoming the first back in league history to rush for 1,500 yards or better in three straight seasons. Sanders also was the first back to rush for more than 1,000 yards over eight straight seasons, and the first to rush for more than 1,000 yards in each of his first eight seasons.

The 1,553 yards was the second-best total of Sanders' career. He ran for 1,883 yards in 1994.

"I'm pleased that we were able to work this out, and I'm happy to have Barry in camp," said Lions first-year coach Bobby Ross. "Now we have to get to work. He has some catching up to do, and I'm anxious to start working with him."

Ross had previously expressed concern about Sanders missing a mini-camp and the start of training camp, although teammates were not as concerned.

"He'll get here when he gets here," Herman Moore said Sunday before the signing was announced.

Quarterback Scott Mitchell agreed.

"I honestly haven't been thinking about it at all," he said. "We've got enough other stuff that we've got to be thinking about while we're here."

Sanders, who won the Heisman Trophy in 1988 at Oklahoma State, is seventh on the NFL's career rushing list with 11,725 yards. He will enter the season 13 yards behind Kansas City's Marcus Allen on the active career rushing list. The career leader is Walter Payton with 16,726 yards.

Oklahoma hunting regulations are now available

OKLAHOMA CITY — Oklahoma's 1997-98 Hunting Regulations are now available at sporting goods stores and hunting and fishing license dealers state-wide. The regulations book outlines season dates and high-light regulation changes for this year.

"There are some pretty significant changes for this fall's hunting seasons," said Alan Peoples, assistant chief of game for the Oklahoma Department of Wildlife Conservation. "It is the responsibility of every hunter to know what regulations apply to them, and we've tried to print the regulations booklets in a format that makes them easy to understand.

Anyone who isn't sure about something in the regulations should call their local game warden or our offices."

Some of the major changes which are new for this fall and next spring are:

- Quail season begins the first Saturday in November (Nov. 1 this year) and continues through Jan. 31.
- Antlerless deer hunting opportunities have been expanded; consult a copy of the regulations for complete details on your area.
- The spring turkey bag limit in Seminole County was reduced to one tom for the 1998 spring season.
- The fall firearms turkey bag limit in Pawnee County was changed from one bird of either sex to one tom, and all of Garfield County is now open to fall firearms turkey hunting. The bag limit for fall firearms turkey hunting in Garfield County is one tom.

- Bobcat season has been extended to run from Dec. 1 through Feb. 28, and the daily bag limit was removed.
- The season limit has been increased to 20. Bobcat tagging requirements also were changed to allow the use of private tagging stations.
- All shotgun hunting on Wildlife Department-owned wetland and waterfowl units, state waterfowl refuges and hackberry Flat WMA will be restricted to federally approved nontoxic shot only.

"We've really made an effort to make these more user-friendly," Peoples said. "For example, if you want to hunt rabbits, simply look up the rabbit section and it provides season dates, bag limits, hunting hours, license requirements and everything else you need to know to hunt rabbits."

As a further service to hunters, the regulations contain a telephone directory of game wardens, wildlife management areas and information and education personnel.

A list of hunter check stations is included, as is a list of cooperating meat processors for the Sportsmen Against Hunger program.

Is wine that healthy?

Vintners' label proposal sparks fears of encouragement to drink ...

By CURT ANDERSON
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A little wine is fine. Numerous health studies have shown that moderate alcohol intake can even reduce the risk of heart disease in some people.

But the wine industry's proposal to include new wording on bottle labels referring to the "health effects" of "moderate" wine drinking has spurred criticism by federal health officials that it might be a subtle way to encourage people to imbibe too much.

The Department of Health and Human Services is urging the Treasury's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms to delay approval of the labels, which would be permitted on both domestic and imported wines sold in this country.

"The proposal under consideration is a thinly disguised attempt to make an affirmative health claim," said Dr. John M. Eisenberg, acting assistant secretary for health.

"I am deeply concerned that your approval of the label statements in their current form would be construed by the public as encouraging the consumption of alcoholic beverages," Eisenberg said in a letter to ATF Director John Magaw.

Despite the criticism, ATF officials have signaled they are likely to endorse the labels.

Wine labels already contain warnings that women should not drink during pregnancy and that alcoholic beverages can impair driving and cause health problems.

To the warning, a label proposed by the San Francisco-based Wine Institute adds these words: "To learn the health effects of moderate wine consumption, send for the federal government's Dietary Guidelines for Americans." It gives a mailing address and an Internet web site.

A second proposal would say: "The proud people who make this wine encourage you to consult your family doctor about the health effects of wine enjoyment."

Wine Institute President John DeLuca said the government guidelines discuss both the risks and benefits of drinking alcohol. He said the proposed wording makes no claims that wine is good for you.

"We're not saying health benefits, we're saying health effects," he said. "We're not for a blanket endorsement. We think there is a scientific balance struck in the guidelines, and we should be allowed to disseminate them."

DeLuca acknowledged there would be "some marketing benefits" to the labels, but he said the vintners' true purpose is providing people with a way to obtain government-endorsed information that wine is not all bad.

"The anti-alcohol movement has tried to depict us as no different than cigarettes or heroin," he said. "We want to improve our image."

So far, ATF's Magaw has rejected the argument that the labels make any claims about health and drinking. In a recent letter to HHS, he indicated that his agency was nearing a decision and would likely approve the change.

"They merely direct the consumer to a qualified source of information regarding the health effects of alcohol consumption," Magaw wrote. "Both statements are neutral. Neither statement characterizes health benefits or risks."

ATF's apparent willingness to endorse the labels has outraged some anti-alcohol and health groups, who want studies done to determine how consumers might perceive the new wording.

The labels might call to a consumer's mind positive publicity about the link between alcohol consumption and reduced heart disease, but not about alcohol's negative links to cancer, cirrhosis of the liver, car crashes and violence, said Michael Jacobson, executive director of the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

"Nobody's going to send away for the dietary guidelines or talk to their doctor — that's irrational," Jacobson said. "The labels will help create a climate that alcoholic beverages are not a problem."

DeLuca maintained, however, that what vintners really want is a "cultural development" that would make attitudes toward wine in the United States more like those in much of Europe, where wine is regularly consumed with meals, even by young children.

"Our science is only catching up with the wisdom of other cultures," he said. "This is only an educational tool."

Contact restored with Pathfinder

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Communications between the Mars Pathfinder and NASA were restored today, clearing the way for scientists to begin receiving data from the red planet for the first time in two days.

Relieved mission controllers replied to the lander's transmissions by ordering it to begin sending the information with its low-gain antenna. A session using the high-gain, or high-speed, antenna was to follow.

Controllers relaxed after communication was restored. "Believe me, there were a lot of happy faces when we saw that blip," said project manager Brian Muirhead at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena. "It was exactly what we expected it to be. It went off at precisely the right time."

Scientists had last received a signal from the probe at 4 a.m. Sunday, and it was weaker than expected and provided no science data. Then no signal was heard during a session scheduled for three hours later.

Scientists had been hoping to retrieve data missed Saturday because of a misconfigured Earth antenna. The material included pictures, rock analyses and a weather report.
