RICHMOND (AP) — It would ordinarily have been a fairly routine criminal trial — but not with a deaf defendant, a deaf witness and a victim who could neither testify nor understand the proceedings.

A jury arrived Thursday at a sentence of five years' probation for Zane Owens, 44, a Missouri City crane operator accused of the attempted sexual assault of a 35-year-old retarded woman.

Although Owens pleaded innocent, he confessed both in writing and on the witness stand.

Lefors residents step up to answer city's call for help

by MIRANDA G. BAILEY & LAURA HALEY
Staff Writers

Concerned citizens took matters into their own hands when the Lefors City Council could not find ways to reduce the town's financial burdens at the Thursday night special meeting.

"I'm making a proposal that would save the city $10 per household," Lefors citizen Ken Miller yelled out.

Miller volunteered to pick up trash for the city with his own truck on Saturdays — his day off. He and other citizens decided to pitch in and help when the city council was unable to come up with any solutions to reducing the town's spending in lieu of the $40,000 in unpaid gas bills.

Mayor Ben Watson called the special session in an attempt find a solution for paying the delinquent bills and discuss the city's current financial situation.

However, the only two cost-saving proposals presented to rectify the situation were not accepted.

Watson asked the five council members to postpone hiring additional contractor labor.

Both citizens and council members rejected that idea because the labor, they argued, was needed to repair the city gas system.

Numerous gas pipelines throughout the city have been leaking heavily, which has added to the amount of wasted gas on the city's bills. The problem is not a new one, as Lefors has been cited for 14 gas leaks within the last year, according to another news source.

If contract labor is postponed, it is possible the city gas lines would not be repaired before winter. This, in turn, could delay further bill payments, councilors decided. By going ahead with this project, it would eventually save the city money by lowering the amount of gas being used, thus lowering the payments every month.

Tom Grantham, with Grantham, Cory & Heare accounting firm in Pampa who was also at the meeting, believes the gas leaks is one reason for the town's financial distress. Reserve funds, he said, may have been spent to cover the cost of maintaining and operating the city gas lines.

Because the leaks are so extensive, the residents' bills are simply covering the cost of the gas. An estimated 50 percent of gas the city is purchasing is being used by residents.

A second cost-saving option suggested by the new mayor was to not allow overtime for city employees. This, he said, would reduce city spending by $500 a month.

But the proposal was also shot down by citizens and council members.

The three city employees do not work overtime because they want to but because they have to, they reminded Watson.

In the end, it was decided that city employees continue to receive overtime pay.

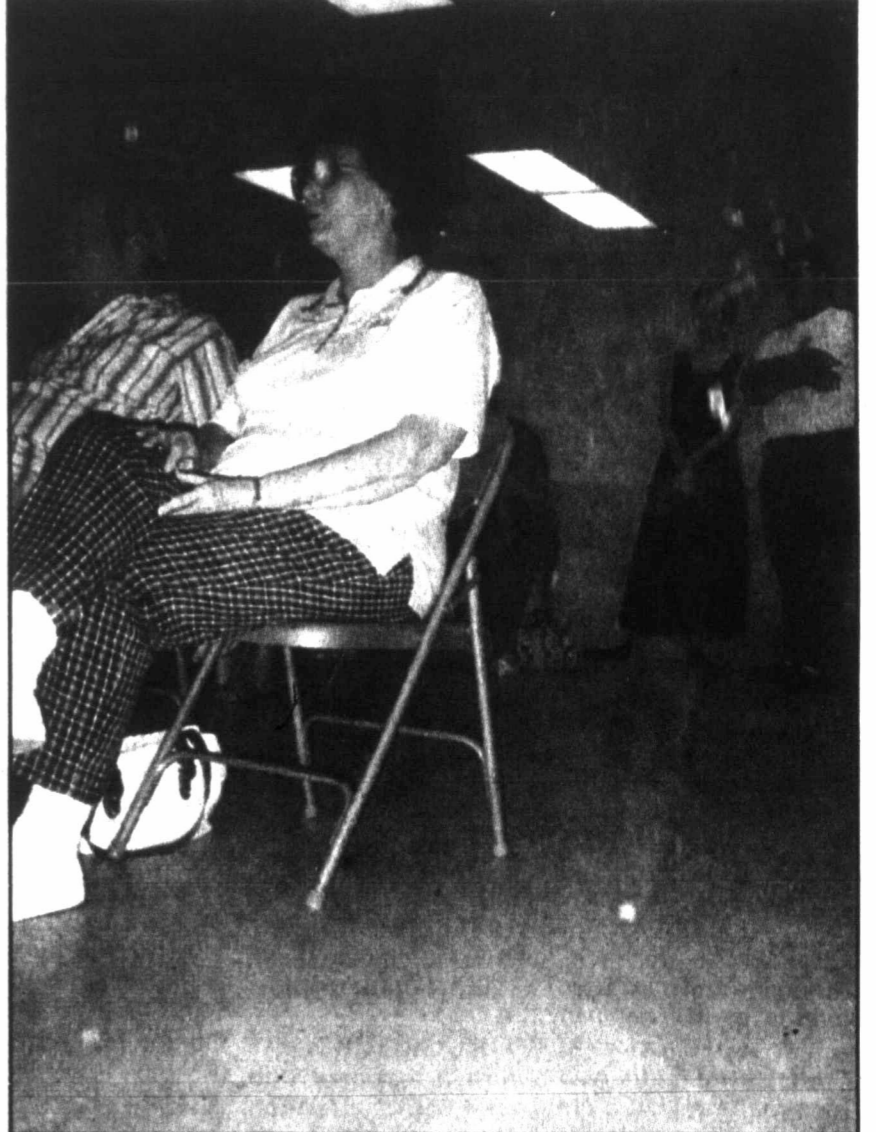

In an effort to get the city's accounting records back on track, Grantham submitted a proposal to Lefors councilors. In the proposal, which was adopted by the city council, his firm would conduct 36 months worth of bookkeeping — for the two years in arrears and an additional year.

Accounting records for the City of Lefors have not been kept since September of 1995, according to Grantham.

But, with the city's check stubs, bank statements and other documents, Grantham promised to have the town back on track by October of this year for a fee of $1000 the first month, and $500 a month through September 1998.

Some citizens suggested that council members "shop around" and look for other local bookkeepers in attempt to save additional money. But after much debate, the council accepted Grantham's offer.

Watson concluded the meeting by asking the council members to consider a new tracking system for purchases. A complete purchase order, with a receipt attached, is now required for all future purchases made by employees.

Lefors residents gathers last night to hear city councilors discuss money-saving options. The special meeting was called to address past-due bills, totaling approximately $40,000. Although several options were offered, councilors refused most. Some of the slack, however, was picked up by residents Ken Miller and Maxine Watson (background) who offered to help with city trash collection services.

Residents question accounting policies

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY & LAURA HALEY

Residents leaving the Lefors City Council special meeting Thursday night were still wondering two questions: How long had city finances been sliding? and why wasn't something done previously?

The special meeting did not do much to alleviate many of the financial problems the city is currently facing.

Neither of the proposals to cut city spending — by postponing contract labor or temporarily eliminating city employee overtime pay — were accepted. However, the council members did accept a proposal to hire a certified public accountant for a contract fee of approximately $7,000.

Try as they might to resolve the financial problems, city councilors faced their toughest critics at the meeting — the residents of Lefors.

Citizens, upon discovering the city's accounting books had not been touched for two years, realized the necessity of hiring an accountant as soon as possible.

But this brought up another issue: How long had the city council known about the unkept accounting records?

Watson admitted that the session was called after the city could not pay overtime last Friday because of a $40,000 debt they owe to the gas company.

Previous reports indicate Watson and the council knew the books had not been kept since at least April of this year. It was then the Florida investigation into Columbia chain continues

By KARIN MILLER

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — If Columbia/HCA Healthcare Corp. got federal money for operating hospital gift shops, that's clearly a violation of the law.

But the issue gets a little grayer when it comes to federal repayment for operating hospital cafeterias, and advertising and marketing the nation's largest for-profit health care company, an industry consultant said Thursday.

The Wall Street Journal said federal prosecutors in Florida have evidence Columbia/HCA was improperly reimbursed for advertising and marketing, gift shops and cafeterias.

David Rhodes in the U.S. Attorney's office in Tampa, Fla., wouldn't confirm the report.

"About where the investigation is going, what types of areas are being addressed and who's being dragged into a grand jury, we are never going to comment," Rhodes said. "Obviously, there are some people out there commenting."

Columbia/HCA spokesman Jeffrey Prescott refused to discuss specifics of the wide-ranging investigation that so far has resulted in the indictment of three company officials.

"We have brought in outside experts to perform an extensive internal review," Prescott said. "Our goal is to take steps and resolve any problems we find."

Dale E. Baker, a longtime health care consultant in Indianapolis, said the company's investigators will probably find some problems with the way Columbia/HCA has done business, even if they're minuscule, simply because the Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement system is so complex.

"One thing is sure. A hospital gift shop is always treated as a non-reimbursable cost center," said Baker.

Pampa Antique Car Show begins Saturday

By LAURA HALEY
Staff Writer

Pampa resident Norman Allen is proud of his 1968 Chevrolet Impala Supersport convertible.

He loves to show it off. Although he does admit, it needs a little work. "I could do more work," he said. "It ain't the best but it ain't the worst either."

Allen is one of many local, area and even out-of-state people expected to enter the Eighth Annual Antique Car Show in Pampa tomorrow.

"We should have a good turnout from a lot of different areas," said Ruth Carter with The Copper Kitchen.

The car show, hosted by Coronado Center merchants, will begin at 9 a.m. in the Coronado Center. In addition to cars, there will be antique tractors. The Kiwanis Club train will also be on hand for the children.

At least 40 vehicles are expected to be on display in the 14 different categories. Trophies will be awarded for the top three places in each of the categories. One trophy will be given for the People's Choice, which is the favorite of all vehicles in the car show.

Anyone can enter their vehicle in the car show at a fee of $10 each. The proceeds from the show are donated to the Meals on Wheels program. Last year, said Carter, the show raised $600 in donations to Meals on Wheels.

The categories for vehicles are: classic; street rod; sports; muscle; convertibles; antiques; coney; trucks, 1955 and older; trucks, 1976 and newer; model, 6- to 7-years-old; model, 8- to 11-years-old; and model, 12- to 16-years-old.

The car show has been very successful in the past and usually attracts a large crowd, of both spectators and participants. Many of whom, said Allen, put a lot of work into maintaining their vehicles.

"A lot of people have put a lot of work into them," he said, adding that many "start from scratch," completely rebuilding their vehicles.

As far as getting ready to show his own 1968 convertible, Allen said he will "get it out and clean it up."

UPS strike ends; Teamsters remain in turmoil over elections

By KEVIN GALVIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal official threw out Teamsters President Ron Carey's re-election victory today and ordered new balloting after an eight-month investigation into alleged fund-raising abuses by his campaign.

The ruling by Barbara Zack Quindel, a court-appointed election overseer, came just four days after Carey declared one of labor's biggest victories in more than a decade in a strike against United Parcel Service.

Quindel's decision forced a new election between Carey and his opponent, James P. Hoffa.

In an interview today, she said any hardship was outweighed by the importance of a fair election. "To avoid a rerun because of the disruption it brings could allow this union to lose what I think is a critical resource: the confidence and participation of the members," Quindel said.

Carey narrowly defeated Hoffa in December. Quindel had declined to certify the results while she probed allegations that Carey's campaign accepted contributions from the union treasury and employees in violation of federal law.

Quindel said she decided on a new election shortly after the UPS strike began Aug. 4 but delayed the announcement to avoid making it a factor in the labor-management dispute.

Because of a consent decree signed in 1938 to end corruption in the 1.4-million-member union, the election was underwritten with $22 million in public funds and monitored by Quindel.

The FBI has charged consultant Martin Davis with using his position as a consultant to both the union and Carey's campaign to skim money from the Teamsters' general treasury and funnel the cash to Carey's coffers.

Quindel's report said there was a "complex network of schemes" to funnel illegal donations to Carey's campaign, including a plan to swap Teamsters contributions to political candidates and organizations in exchange for donations to Carey.

Her decision was limited to violations of election rules involving $221,000 in contributions to a committee called Teamsters for a Corruption Free Union. The funds were used to pay for a last-minute direct mail.

LEFORS

The Lefors council, a committee of citizens, has been formed to investigate the disappearance of a computer and the theft of a safe. up nothing, cannot be conducted until the accounting records are restored.

Tom Grantham, a certified public accountant that attended the meeting, believes the missing funds are due to mismanagement rather than embezzlement.

"I don't see anything or any aspect of this thing in Lefors that looks like a fraud," he said.

Government urges halogen lamp owners to get bulb guards

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 (AP) - The government is urging owners of popular halogen lamps to get bulb guards. The Consumer Product Safety Commission reported Thursday.

Agency spokesman Ken Giles stressed that the lamps are not being recalled, and consumers can install the new safety feature themselves, at home.

Giles said the CPSC is also recommending that halogen bulbs be no more than 300 watts be used in the lamps and that consumers not leave them on when they are away from home or out of the room.

Makers of the lamps changed their design standards to include a bulb guard in February, but lamps made before then do not have the guard. So, manufacturers have agreed to make them available for free at retail stores where the lamps are sold.

The new wire guards, which look like little catchers mitts, can be picked up starting Aug. 25 at Ames, B.J.'s Wholesale Club, Hechingers/Home Quarters, Home Base, Home Depot, Ikea, Kmart, Lowes, Montgomery Ward, Office Depot, Target, and Walmart.

Consumers can also order them by calling a toll free number: 1-800-995-2220.

TEAMSTERS

Carey has appeared before the grand jury, and several Teamsters staff members have been called to New York to meet with federal prosecutors, according to sources familiar with the investigation.

Labor reformers pinned their hopes on Carey when he was first elected in 1991. He has thrown out the heads of 72 locals he said were corrupt, sold the union's corporate jets and ended the free lunches and other perks at headquarters.

He has failed to unite rank-and-file members, beating Hoffa by less than 4 percentage points in a mail-in ballot. About one-third of all Teamsters voted.

Scandal is nothing new at the Teamsters. Three international presidents, including Hoffa's father, James R. Hoffa, were sent to prison. The Justice Department has alleged that several were controlled by organized crime.

Carey himself has not been accused of wrongdoing.

The FBI arrested Davis in June, charging him with funneling illegal money to Carey's campaign through Massachusetts telemarketer Michael Ansara.

Federal agents also are investigating a $94,000 fee paid to Davis by a New York souvenir maker, who produced about $250,000 in hats and banners for Teamsters rallies last fall.

The criminal complaint filed against Davis was based on information provided by Ansara, who has agreed to plead guilty in the scheme.

Ansara had directed his wife to write about $95,000 in personal checks to Carey to hide the illegal donations, according to the complaint.

Hamilton resigned soon after the union received a subpoena requesting all documents related to the Democratic Party.

The Democratic National Committee received a similar subpoena for documents regarding the Teamsters.

In a memo that surfaced last month, Davis told Hamilton that the DNC had made unspecified "commitments" in exchange for more than $1 million in contributions to state and local party affiliates.

DNC officials deny there was any such arrangement.

Another organization implicated in the probe is Citizen Action, a liberal consumer group that received $475,000 in 1996 from the Teamsters to promote voter education and run a TV ad campaign aimed at influencing House races.

Ansara told the FBI that he received $75,000 from Citizen Action to pass along to Carey.

COLUMBIA

He said cafeterias can collect from the government as long as they don't charge for food served to non-patients. But hospital coffee shops can't get federal money back.

That may be where Columbia/HCA has a problem, he said.

"That's the only thing I can think of. I cannot believe Columbia/HCA would not offset non-patient charges," Baker said. "That would be stupid and those people are not stupid."

Even the most knowledgeable people in the industry have trouble with the advertising and marketing reimbursements allowed by the government.

The Health Care Financing Administration says hospitals and hospital companies should make sure people in the community know how to find them, so such things as yellow-page listings in phone books are reimbursable.

What about a billboard that touts a particular hospital?

"It can get a little gray there," Baker said. "What is just good public relations and what is advertising?"

The government devotes six pages of its Provider Reimbursement Manual to defining that, listing examples of what's allowed and what isn't. But even that's not black and white.

For example, in two cases, an alcoholism treatment facility was allowed to collect repayment for radio and TV ads even though "it motivates an alcoholic to seek treatment at a particular provider's facility ..."

However, a third treatment facility could not be reimbursed because the ads "had the effect of promoting patient utilization of the provider's facilities."

Judge denies conservative group standing in parental case

AUSTIN (AP) — A conservative legal group that supports a state law barring minors from getting birth control pills and other prescription drugs without parental consent can't intervene in a lawsuit challenging the measure.

State District Judge Scott McCown ruled Thursday that the Liberty Legal Institute does not have enough standing to be a party in the lawsuit by Planned Parenthood.

The institute sued Planned Parenthood and the Texas Department of Health Tuesday on behalf of four families who support the law, seeking to present their views as a party in the lawsuit. It argued that Planned Parenthood's attempts to strike the law are an assault on parental rights.

"The lawsuit is not at all about what parental rights are and what minor rights are," McCown said in granting the ruling in favor of Planned Parenthood.

McCown added that the legal institute can make its views known by filing a brief at the end of the trial, which is scheduled to begin in Austin Monday.

The prescription-drug provision was one of hundreds attached to the state's 800-page budget signed into law by Gov. George W. Bush earlier this year. It will go into effect Sept. 1.

Planned Parenthood of Houston and Southeast Texas, Inc. said in its lawsuit against the Health Department that the provision violates teenagers' right to confidential medical treatment. They also claim the law illegally restricts use of federal money and violates the Texas Constitution because the state is not supposed to include laws in the budget.

"It is clear that there was not any reason for them to be part of this case," said Martha Dickie, attorney for Planned Parenthood. "They weren't able to show any specific injury."

Judy Reiner, senior vice president for Planned Parenthood in Houston, said the case affects low-income teenagers throughout Texas.

"This is about access to health care and reproductive health," Ms. Reiner said.

The legal institute had argued that it should be allowed to represent the interest of minors.

Daniel Castro, lead counsel representing the four families who wanted to intervene, said his side wasn't given enough time to prepare for the hearing. He said he wasn't surprised by McCown's decision because he believes the judge was predisposed to rule against his group.

Even so, Castro said, "We got a fair hearing."

The ruling chips away at parental rights, said Donna Harp, one of the parents who sought to intervene in the lawsuit.

Homeowners benchmark insurance rate to increase

AUSTIN (AP) — A key factor in determining how much Texas homeowners pay for insurance is going up by more than 14 percent next year.

Texas Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer on Thursday said he was reluctant to allow the statewide homeowners insurance benchmark rise, but added that the 14.2 percent increase is justified. It takes effect Feb. 1.

The statewide benchmark is an average of benchmarks set in 23 insurance rating territories across the state. Insurance companies can set their rates from 30 percent below to 30 percent above the benchmark in the areas they cover.

A rise in the homeowners statewide benchmark likely signals insurance rate increases.

health insurance is a step closer to reality.

Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer named a board to oversee the program Thursday.

Lawmakers ordered the Texas Department of Insurance to organize a Health Insurance Risk Pool to which Texans could turn if they can't otherwise get insurance because of pre-existing health conditions.

The pool must be open for business by Jan. 1, 1998.

"We ... hear almost daily from self-employed people and others who are desperately seeking individual health insurance because of their pre-existing medical conditions," Bomer said. "The new pool offers these individuals hope of enjoying the security of health insurance that most of us take for granted."

Chevron suit takes new twist

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston federal judge has removed himself from a multimillion-dollar lawsuit against the oil giant Chevron after weeks of criticism for alleged racist remarks in the trial of the lawsuit.

U.S. District Judge Kenneth Hoyt notified attorneys Thursday night that he would remove himself from the trial of the lawsuit, filed by residents of Houston's Kennedy Heights neighborhood.

The case now will have to be retried before a new judge.

Residents of the predominantly black neighborhood alleged that they have developed health problems because their homes were built on oil-contaminated land once owned by Gulf Oil Corp., later sold to Chevron.

The case has been on hold for three weeks while the 5th U.S.

Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans reviewed a Chevron request to recuse Hoyt because of several remarks that indicate he might have a racial bias.

On Tuesday, a three-judge 5th Circuit Court panel sharply criticized Hoyt, who is black, but decided Tuesday to allow him to remain on the case.

Hoyt's decision came after a hearing in which he set up a five-week schedule for finishing testimony in Adams vs. Chevron, an unidentified source told The Houston Chronicle.

The appeals court said while it found statements attributed to the judge were "totally unacceptable for a federal judge," it would be unprecedented to disqualify him now 10 weeks after the jury had been seated and after 58 witnesses and 31 trial days.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal on national parks fees:
Congress did the right thing last year when it approved the raising of fees at many of our national parks.

Park repairs and improvements were needed, so the options of paying for them basically came down to a question either of raising fees or of making the repairs and upgrades at the expense of all taxpayers. Hiking the fees was the logical move - the people who use the park facilities should pay for them.

And the higher fees are not prohibitive. The entrance fee for Yellowstone National Park, for example, climbed from $10 for a car with two or more people to $20. A family that makes the drive to enjoy what Yellowstone has to offer would easily be able to afford the additional amount to enjoy those facilities.

The congressional approval of fee hikes is supported by attendance this year. Even though the fees were doubled at many of our national parks, the number of visitors to parks, monuments and historic sites has grown this year.

For example, fees doubled at both Petrified Forest National Park in Arizona and at the Badlands National Park in South Dakota, but the attendance rose by 15 percent at Petrified Forest and 13 percent at Badlands.

That has not happened everywhere. Yellowstone, Grand Canyon and Yosemite National Parks have all experienced attendance decreases - particularly at Yosemite, which was closed because of flooding for two months early this year. But Park Service officials attribute much of the decrease to a smaller than average number of foreign tourists this year.

Our national parks are part of the glory that is America, and maintaining them is an expensive proposition. But it is worth it to the millions of visitors who enjoy the parks' beauty each year, and it was fair that they participate in maintaining them through modest fee raises.

The Dallas Morning News on open up North Korea:
The time has come for North Korea's secretive government to open up to the outside world.

The economic and social damage wrought by years of state planning has been exacerbated by three years of natural disasters - First hail. Then floods. Now drought.

The magnitude of the crisis forced Pyongyang to solicit international help. So Pyongyang allowed CNN to take a tightly controlled look at the devastating conditions that threaten millions with starvation.

The carefully escorted tour, broadcast Wednesday, provided a disturbing view of the crisis. Daily food intake for most people totals about 150 grams, or an estimated 12 spoons of food. Seven hundred fifty grams are minimal nutritional requirements for good health. Many of the hungry, the report said, supplement this meager meal by eating grass. Many of the emaciated children shown on the videotape appeared near death.

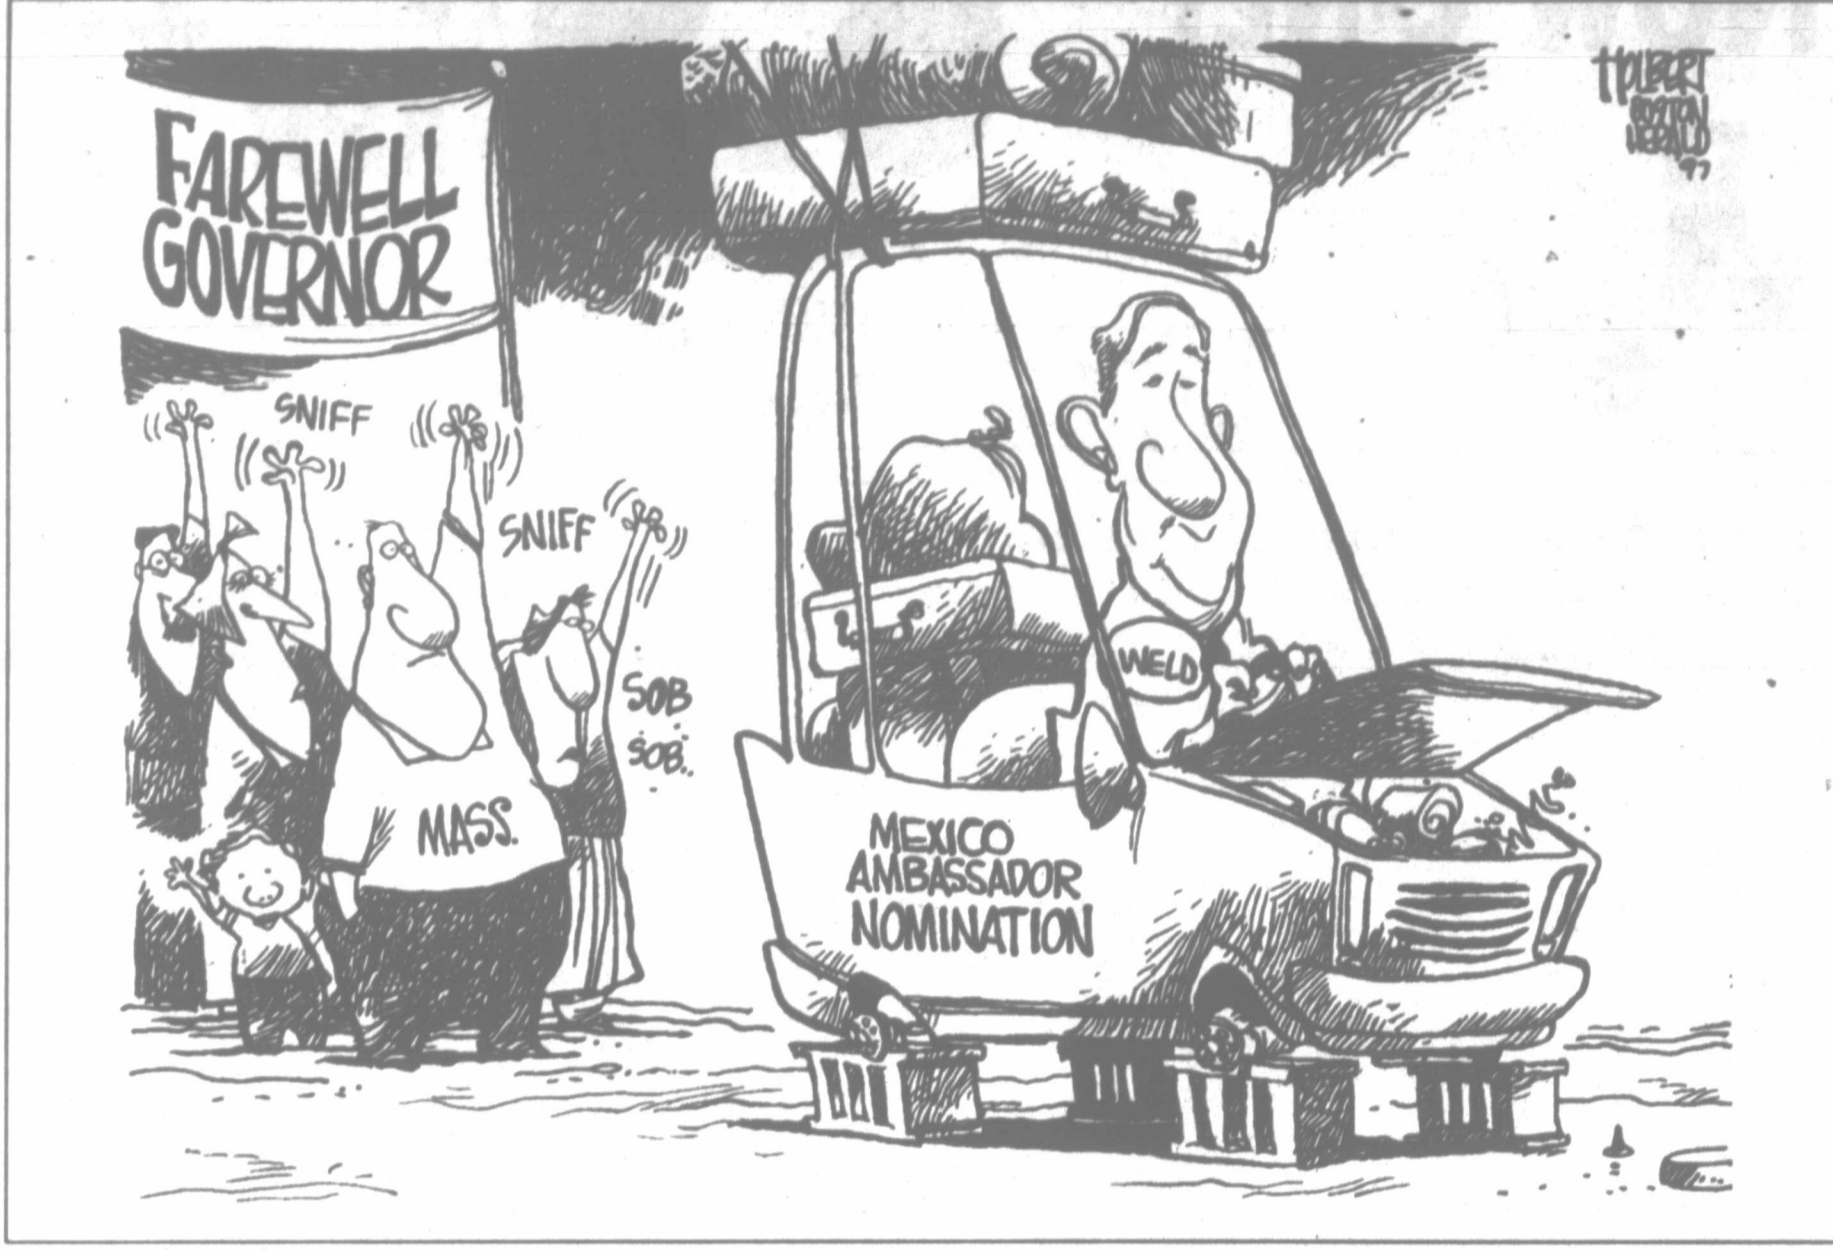

Drought nearly wiped out the country's food supply. According to CNN, 70 percent of North Korea's corn crop was lost. The same could happen to the rice crop. Irrigation is all but non-existent because reservoirs and lakes are drying up. An estimated 800,000 tons of food will be needed by the end of October to avert massive starvation.

Yes, the U.S. has contributed $52 million in food aid. But despite the magnitude of the crisis, the Clinton administration is right to be measured in its efforts. The administration is concerned that Pyongyang may be feeding its million-man army, not its people.

That concern was given even more credence by a congressional delegation that visited North Korea. Members of the bipartisan group complained that North Koreans were too secretive about how the emergency food aid was being distributed.

North Korea may be too proud to reveal the crisis' full scope. Whatever the reason, North Korea must satisfy concerns that aid is not being diverted to the army.

Only by allowing the international community more control over its aid distribution will the North receive enough assistance. This is not using food as a political weapon, as the North has claimed. It's responsible accountability. The Communist government must change its ways.

The real meaning of 'PC'

By now, we've all had our laughs at the expense of the gurus of political correctness, who spend their days goose-stepping through the English language, removing everything that might offend this or that "oppressed" group and replacing it with mindless gobbledygook. For example, in their bizarre nomenclature I'm a melanin impoverished, genetically oppressive, visually and horizontally challenged non-female. In plain English: I'm an overweight white guy with glasses.

While these absurd descriptions may be good for a laugh, the logic behind them is sinister, and incites campus clashes you won't find so funny.

The Young America's Foundation recently published its politically correct top 10 list from college campuses. While the list contains amusing examples of the left's defunct view of reality, it also describes some tragic and shocking events on our nation's college campuses. Many of the examples are too graphic and offensive to repeat.

At Dartmouth, administrators have been intimidated into believing Christmas carols must not include any mention of Christ. After years of performing at the annual Christmas tree lighting ceremony, the school's glee club was told to sing on their own time. Why? Because their musical program included songs like Silent Night and O Come all Ye Faithful. Upon questioning, administrators said they didn't think such songs created an atmosphere in which "persons of all faiths and non-religious persons would feel welcome." Apparently, only such inspirational songs like Jingle Bells and Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer are permissible at this center of higher learning.

Edwin Feulner
Edwin Feulner is president of The Heritage Foundation, a Washington-based public policy research institute.

At Swarthmore College, freshman English courses no longer focus on the classics of William Shakespeare, John Milton or Charles Dickens. Instead, students read Memories That Smell Like Gasoline. No, this isn't a book about a high school junior pumping gas for the summer. Instead this "classic," as administrators called it, is a sex book, richly illustrated with drawings depicting homosexual group sex and child molestation.

If you think the PC movement is only concerned with the songs that are sung on campus and the books that are read in the classroom, think again. Across the country, college newspapers are being attacked solely because of their political orientation. More than 100 student-run and-written conservative newspapers have had editions burned or stolen from their racks or have been otherwise vandalized in the last four years because of their content.

When the Cornell Review, the conservative student newspaper at the upstate New York Ivy League school, published a satirical look at the Africana Department's course descriptions phrased in "Ebonics" (the "ghetto talk" exalted as language), left-wing students rioted. They blocked a campus intersection and burned editions of the student paper.

The students of the politically correct left were never reprimanded by university officials. In fact, far from denouncing this violation of free speech, the dean of students said the Cornell Review "performed a negative role on campus," and if an article offends people then it should not be tolerated. Can you imagine the national scandal if conservative students had similarly burned a left-wing publication, or made such blatantly anti-First-Amendment statements?

What's going on at American college campuses goes far beyond burning newspapers and boycotting Christmas. In a "PC" world, you only have the right to one opinion: theirs. If you don't agree, you are immediately labeled "insensitive" and become a fair target, even for physical attack. And the people who revel in this gender-neutral, multi-cultural, lock-step mindset do so in the name of tolerance!

Next time you hear someone make a joke about the verbal somersaults required by political correctness, set the record straight: The PCers don't just want you to talk their way. They mean to stop you from talking any other way.

Here's a vote for the budget deal

Count me among those who consider the budget deal as, on balance, a good thing.

I am under no illusions about the phyness of large parts of it. Most of the big spending cuts are "backloaded" to take place in future years when President Clinton and many of the present members of Congress have left town, and can be overturned by whomever is running the country then. The assumptions about the economy's future performance (and hence about tax revenues) are ludicrously optimistic; the first downturn will invalidate them, and with them the best hope of actually balancing the budget in 2002.

Worst of all, Clinton managed to shoehorn into the budget large new expenditures for education and various other pet projects of his, and to diminish (though by no means eliminate) the impact of last year's welfare reform bill.

But as Sheridan Whiteside said in The Man Who Came to Dinner when he belched loudly at the dinner table and the woman next to him looked horrified, "What did you expect, madam - chimes?"

We have a Democratic president, and the country will keep on paying the price for that fact until and unless he is replaced by a Republican. Not a single dime can be spent or cut, not a single tax can be raised or lowered, without his consent - unless Congress overrides his veto, which is usually out of the question.

Faced with this disagreeable fact, many conservatives simply abandon rationality. They talk about "forcing" Clinton to do this or that, when they have no such power. Congress can, to be sure, shut down the government again unless the president agrees to its terms, and I have actually heard some usually sensible conservatives advocating that course. But the last time they tried that it was a public relations disaster, and it would be again.

Instead, the Republican congressional leaders labored long and hard, and finally won agreement on some extremely important measures. There will be spending cuts totaling $263 billion, albeit mostly in the "out years." Beginning much sooner, there will be some major tax cuts, totaling $152 billion over five years. Among these will be a lower capital gains tax and a $500 per child tax credit for families with school-age children - the latter targeted directly at the middle class by the Republicans, even though the Democrats managed to extend it downward. Finally, the Republicans imposed at least the concept of the desirability of balancing the budget, which will henceforth be a truism in congressional debates.

Not a single one of these things - not the spending cuts, not the tax cuts, not a balanced budget, not even last year's welfare reform - would have been accomplished if the Democrats had controlled Congress: They had 40 years, and blew them all. These are Republican goals, and only their wide popularity dragged President Clinton and most congressional Democrats, kicking and screaming, to the point of supporting them.

Not surprisingly, public approval of Congress has promptly risen to the highest levels in many years, and it is widely conceded that the Republicans have probably nailed down continued control of both Houses in the 1998 elections. True, Clinton's approval rating is also sky-high, but that is because he signed on to the above-mentioned Republican objectives. And remember that the GOP will never face Bill Clinton in another election; his popularity is simply irrelevant, save to the extent that he can transfer it to Al Gore.

Sure, the budget deal leaves much to be desired. And the Republicans must continue to hold the Democrats' feet to the fire, calling for more cuts in both spending and taxes next year, and the year after that. But pending the election of a Republican president, this is a major step forward.

Meat recall now massive, results in shut down

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Nebraska plant that produced possibly hazardous hamburger patties has been closed and is recalling an estimated 25 million pounds of the product, a huge leap in the possible scope of the contamination.

E. coli bacteria contamination originated outside the plant, at became 1.2 million pounds. The initial Hudson recall began after health officials in Colorado traced the illnesses of more than a dozen people to hamburger patties they ate in early June.

The USDA has evidence that the contamination occurred not in the plant but at one or more the slaughterhouse, but the massive recall is needed because of problems with meat handling, record keeping and safety testing at the operation, Agriculture Department officials said Friday.

The Columbus, Neb., plant will not open until the company has adopted "far more stringent safety standards that we have specifically laid out for them based on what we have found in our investigation," Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman said.

The announcement means the recall is growing about 20-fold from last Friday. Hudson Foods said in a statement that it ordered the recall "out of an abundance of caution and to restore the public confidence."

Glickman said fewer than 20 people are known to have gotten sick from the tainted meat.

"We continue to monitor the situation very closely, but all the evidence at this point indicates that we have contained the outbreak," he said.

Recalls were announced last week, first with 20,000 pounds of meat, then another 20,000, and on Friday it of the slaughterhouses that supply it, said Tom Billy, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service.

Officials are looking at the seven slaughterhouses that were known to have supplied the plant on June 5, he said.

They are "now satisfied no indication of contamination occurred in the plant itself," Billy said.

Glickman said the main reason the recall is being expanded was that USDA officials on Thursday morning discovered problems in the plant's procedures. Specifically, he said, investigators discovered the plant had a practice of using leftover raw meat from one day in the next day's production.

Gospel, exercise feeds soul

By DARA AKIKO TOM
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leg lifts to "Amazing Grace," deep knee bends to "Precious Lord," shoulder rolls to "When the Saints Go Marching In," and a cool-down stretch to "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot."

Probably not the first body motions you think of when singing these hymns. That is until you sweat it out in Ange and Chris Buckingham's Sunday morning gospel aerobics class.

Think of it as burning a few calories and getting a little spiritual energy at the same time.

"I prefer gospel aerobics because the thump, thump, thump of the disco beat can only take you so far. And Sunday mornings are for gospel, right?" says participant Steven Soyland, during his warm-up stretch.

Ange Buckingham, a physical fitness trainer and singer, leads the class every Sunday at 10:15 a.m. in Hollywood, with husband Chris on drums and four gospel singers shaking tambourines.

There's no pulpit. No cross. No Bible. The only preaching going on here is about getting in shape.

"We consider it a workout that gets right into your soul, right into your spirit, uplifts you and makes you feel good about working out because that's a difficult thing," Mrs. Buckingham says.

As the singers belt out "Aaaa-men. AAAAA-men. Amen, amen," Buckingham, to the same tune, gives directions in between the choruses: "Feet are flat now. (Aaaa-men. AAAAA-men. Amen, amen.) Push it over now. (Aaaa-men. AAAAA-men. Amen, amen.)"

Danielle Kwatinetz is an Ange Buckingham convert. Not to the religion, says Kwatinetz, who is Jewish, but to the fresh twist on aerobics.

"She's an energy maniac!" Kwatinetz says of her instructor. "She really gets people motivated."

The live singers also are a plus. "They're shooting their energy and you're giving them yours. There's an interaction. But mostly, it's just fun," Kwatinetz says.

The idea for gospel aerobics came from a friend, Mrs. Buckingham says, and pitching the idea to the owners of the Crunch gym on Sunset Boulevard wasn't too difficult.

The owner did have one concern, though — where to get gospel singers on a Sunday morning.

"I winked at him and said, 'I got connections,'" Mrs. Buckingham recounts.

The workout is designed for all levels, with low-impact moves combined with higher-energy leg lifts, jogging and crunches. At least two dozen people show up regularly, though it has been double that on occasion.

Mrs. Buckingham has three basic routines, but isn't always sure which one to use until she hears the singers — and then the spirit moves her.

The class has received only sparse criticism from orthodox worshipers who grimace at using the word of the Lord for such frivolity.

St. Matthew's combines tradition and drama to spread word at annual picnic

PAMPA — St. Matthew's Episcopal Church is combining traditional worship with a brand new application at the annual church picnic this Sunday.

The picnic, which begins at 10:30 a.m. at the Arrington Ranch, will combine Christ's method of preaching through the parables and storytelling used by the Medieval Church with the dramatic skills of the Covenant Players.

The Covenant Players will be presenting worship through drama, chosen specifically for the congregation.

The presentation of ancient truths with a modern touch will give people an opportunity to see themselves and to examine their faith in today's world.

Headquartered in Oxnard, Calif., and directed by founder and playwright Charles M. Tanner, this international repertory theater has, since its inception in 1963, performed over one million times in 84 countries around the world, in 21 languages. With 131 touring units, they have stirred and challenged people to take a closer look at themselves and the practice of their faith.

Zion Lutheran provides refreshments at Labor Day outing

PAMPA — Zion Lutheran Church and Aid Association for Lutherans will once again have lemonade and cookies at Chautauqua.

Proceeds will go to the community effort for emergency sirens. Traditionally, church members have sponsored this booth to raise money for various community needs. Aid Association for Lutherans matches our fund-raising effort dollar for dollar up to $700.

Therefore, for every every glass of lemonade and package of cookies you purchase, twice that amount will be raised for emergency sirens.

Come by our booth at Chautauqua and enjoy lemonade and homemade cookies.

Minister's musings ...

As human beings we all must deal with suffering at some juncture or another in our lives.

It may be you personally or it could be a parent or grandparent, other members of your family or it could be a personal close friend. It does and will effect us all at some point in our lives.

What separates the person of faith from those who do not belong to any faith community or church is a belief system that reminds us, no matter how tragic, or how painful the situation may be, is the sure knowledge that we are never alone!

Recently, personally having experienced some long protracted periods of pain, I discovered a number of facts about myself.

First, I learned that I by myself could not handle the experience alone.

Secondly, I did not suffer alone. Millions of innocent human beings around the globe were suffering far greater pain than I. Some were starving to death, others were uprooted from their homes and countries because of war and famine. Some had been wounded without any chance of being treated with medications of, any kind to help ease their pain and suffering.

By Rev. Darrell W. Evans

First Christian Church

And then thirdly, God is as close to us as the very air we breathe.

The final self discovery reminded me that our Lord Jesus Christ spent some horrible and agonizing hours on a huge rugged cross in order that He might not only take on our suffering and pain, but so that we might have a chance at eternal life.

He was humiliated in the most inhuman manner, killed, buried and sealed in a crude grave on the side of a hill. In the most awe-some and inspiring manner, in the presence of angels, he was freed from the grave so that we might experience life in the fullness of joy!

It is difficult to keep your mind on your personal pain and suffering when you prayerfully consider these things. When you feel pain and suffering remember how it must have felt when the cross was dropped into a deep hole in the ground with nails tearing at his flesh ... his hands and his feet and then a spear thrust into his side.

Somehow when we experience these thoughts in our minds and souls and remember Christ our Lord as he cried out loud: "Father take this cup [of suffering] from me!", our own suffering and pain may begin to diminish as we focus upon something other than ourselves.

May your pain and suffering be eased in the name and presence of Jesus Christ our Lord!

Lutheran assembly heals Reformation wounds around Communion table

By DAVID BRIGGS
AP Religion Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — In 1529, Martin Luther drew the words "This is my body" in chalk on a table at Philip of Hesse's castle in Marburg, Germany.

And with that message — which allowed no compromise in the theological belief that the body and blood of Christ are real in the bread and wine of Communion — Luther set himself apart from the Reformed tradition of his day.

Some 470 years later, the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America finished its biennial Churchwide Assembly by declaring all baptized Christians are welcome to receive Communion in its churches.

In a remarkable week, culminating a remarkable summer of church love, the Lutherans attempted to heal many of the divisions created by the Reformation, the great 16th-century divide that would split Christianity into hundreds of pieces.

They succeeded with the Reformed Churches, deciding — unlike Luther — that unity was more important than agreement on the real presence of Christ in the sacrament.

More than 80 percent of the representatives of the 5.2 million-member church approved a sweeping plan to share clergy and Holy Communion with the Presbyterian Church (USA), United Church of Christ and Reformed Church in America, which have a combined membership of 4.6 million.

They would run into a bump in the ecumenical road with the Episcopalians, falling six votes short of a similar plan for closer ties with the 2.5 million-member denomination.

The reason? The Lutherans feared that becoming part of the historic episcopate, where bishops are considered to be part of an unbroken line of succession dating back 2000 years to the Apostle Peter, would elevate prelates over ordinary church members.

A day later, church delegates would vote 995 to 15 to develop a new plan by 1999 to share ministry with the Episcopal Church.

The Lutherans then turned their attention to the issue at the heart of the Reformation, and declared the battle was over in the centuries-long division among Lutherans and Catholics on the issue of justification by faith alone.

That issue turns on whether humans can earn salvation, or whether it is something that is solely a gift from God. In the heat of the Reformation, Lutherans emphasized God's role, while Catholics emphasized the human responsibility to accept God's gift.

The Lutherans voted 958 to 25 to approve a statement declaring that past condemnations no longer apply.

When you get past all the stereotypes that produced the scathing rhetoric in the 16th century, the document said, Lutherans and Catholics believe substantially the same thing: "We confess together that all persons depend completely on the saving grace of God for their salvation."

Finally, when it came to putting their principles into practice, the Lutherans approved guidelines on sacramental practices that recognize the validity of baptisms performed in other churches and advise against "rebaptism" when other Christians become Lutherans.

And while other denominations still place restrictions on ELCA members receiving Communion in their churches, the nation's largest Lutheran church adopted a policy of "eucharistic hospitality."

"All baptized Christians are welcomed to Communion when they are visiting in the congregations of this church," the assembly declared.

The Rev. Paul Nelson, director of worship for the ELCA, said the church "will become as welcoming as we know how to be on a unilateral basis."

Even though tears were shed when the Episcopal unity plan was narrowly rejected, many looking back at this assembly recognized something historic had happened.

From Marburg to Philadelphia, Lutherans had taken significant steps to heal divisions that had been unresolved for more than 450 years.

On an individual basis, someone like the Rev. Franklin Fry of Summit, N.J., a self-described "hard-core" confessional Lutheran, would stand back in amazement at the idea of reaching consensus with Roman Catholics on justification by faith.

"It's only something in which I can rejoice," he said. "I think the Spirit has breathed on us so as to take my breath away."

In the larger view, Brother Jeffrey Gros, an ecumenical official with the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said Luther himself would have paused in wonder at the Lutheran-Catholic agreement.

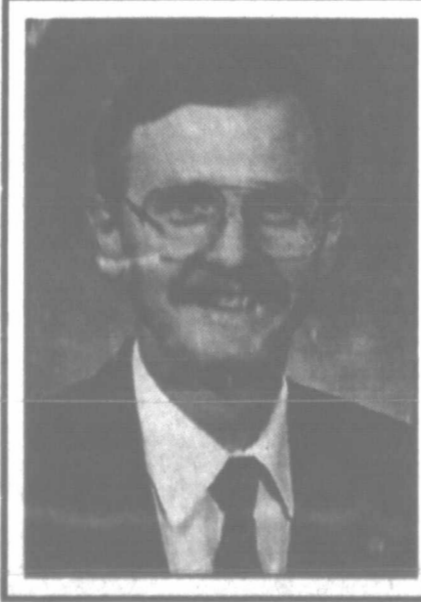

"We have in essence the realization of his Reformation," Gros said. "He wanted to reform the church. He didn't want to create a church."

Survivor Of Ovarian Cancer Speaks Out On 'Silent Killer'

DEAR ABBY. Because your column reaches millions of women every day, I am writing to you about a deadly disease that gets little attention, and as a one-year survivor, I have found women know little about it. It is the disease that killed comedienne Gilda Radner, Cassandra Harris (actor Pierce Brosnan's wife), actresses Carolyn Jones, Joan Hackett, Sandy Dennis, Jessica Tandy, singer/songwriter Laura Nyro, and the mother of Olympic skater Oksana Baiul (at age 36) — ovarian cancer.

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

The deadliest of all gynecological cancers, an estimated 26,000 cases are diagnosed in the United States each year, and 13,000 die from it annually. It is also called the "silent killer" because the symptoms are vague, often ignored or minimized by both patient and physician, and thus usually not diagnosed until it is in an advanced stage. However, there are symptoms and risk factors to know about, and early detection gives the best chance for survival.

Ovarian cancer usually strikes women between the ages of 40 and 70, although I know many women in their 30s who have it. It is more prevalent in women who have had no pregnancies, have taken fertility drugs, had an early menopause, eaten a high-fat diet or frequently used talcum powder in the genital area. It is also more common in those with a history of breast cancer or ovarian problems, or a family history of ovarian, breast or colon cancer. There are three women in my Ovarian Cancer Support Group at

SHARE in New York City who had breast cancer and complained of ovarian cancer symptoms and were not diagnosed until an advanced state.

Symptoms that may indicate ovarian cancer are: abdominal bloating, swelling or pain, urinary frequency or urgency, constipation, gastrointestinal discomfort such as gas, nausea or indigestion, menstrual abnormalities, back and leg pain and fatigue — symptoms that women and their physicians often downplay or attribute to other causes. Many complain of a feeling of "fullness."

Since these are symptoms that women may experience from time to time, they are often told by their doctors that it's "nothing." These symptoms may be due to other causes, but if they are present for more than a few weeks, insist that your doctor rule out this dread disease by performing a pelvic examination, a pelvic sonogram, a CA-125 blood test, which is a marker for ovarian cancer, and if necessary, a CAT scan. Being persistent can save your life!

Abby, if you will print my letter, and if your readers will clip this column to share with their mothers, daughters, sisters, friends and co-workers, you could save many lives. Please help me give this "silent killer" a voice.

MARSHA NEWMAN, LONG ISLAND CITY, N.Y.
DEAR MARSHA: I'm sure many women will be grateful to you for speaking out about this killer. It is important that all women know the warning signs of cancer and notify their doctors if any unusual symptoms persist for more than a week or two. That precaution can be a lifesaver.

DEAR ABBY: Your column about pets being left in hot cars reminded me of a steamy day last summer.

My car was low on gas, so I pulled into a self-serve station that had no other customers at the time. As I filled my tank with gas, an attendant came over to admonish me for not having lowered the car's windows for my dog's comfort. I tried to explain that the air conditioner had been left on, and that for the few minutes it would take to fill the tank with gas, the dog would be much more comfortable with the windows up.

Unconvinced, the attendant said, "A dog can die with the windows up, you know."

Agreeing with the message, if not the circumstances, I smiled, nodded and drove off in my still-cool car. But I was a bit bemused that the attendant showed absolutely no concern for my two children who were also in the car with my dog.

CHICAGO (AP) — Frank Thomas hit a two-run homer Thursday to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 6-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays for their third straight win.

Thomas, the AL's leading hitter at .347, connected in the first off Pat Hentgen (13-8) for his 29th homer. Thomas' one-out drive scored Dave Martinez and was his 60th career first-inning homer and 10th this season.

Thomas has 38 RBIs in 40 games since the All-Star break.

Martinez added a two-run double and Ozzie Guillen had a two-run single for Chicago, which has won five of six.

Doug Drabek (10-8) gave up one run and four hits in five innings for his fourth win in five starts.

Keith Foulke gave up two runs in the ninth before Matt Karchner got one out for his eighth save in nine chances.

GOLF

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tiger Woods bogeyed the final hole and defending champion Phil Mickelson birdied it to share the lead at 3-under-par 67 Thursday after the opening round of the NEC World Series of Golf.

Just a shot off the lead was a star-studded group of six that included: U.S. Open champion Ernie Els, Davis Love III, fresh from winning the PGA Championship, Greg Norman, Nick Price, Mark O'Meara and John Cook.

Trailed by a record gallery that crowded several deep around the ropes to watch his every move, Woods didn't disappoint in his first professional appearance at soggy Firestone Country Club.

The course was pounded by heavy rains just before the first group teed off and again as the leaders played the back nine. Long hitters had a big advantage off the tee on the 7,149-yard course — which several players said was actually a couple hundred yards longer.

Woods dodged trouble at the signature 16th, the 625-yard hole dubbed "The Monster." He pushed his iron approach far to the right of the green, but flopped a sand wedge to 4 feet and then rolled in his par putt while the crowd roared its approval.

At the 392-yard, par-4 17th, his 7-iron second shot ended up 4 feet from the hole. He tapped in to expand his lead to two strokes.

The runaway winner of the Masters in April had that cut in half when he pulled his drive deep in the left rough near a drainage grate on the par-4 finishing hole. His 8-iron cut shot caught a tree and dropped short of the green. He chipped to 18 feet, but missed his par putt.

Mickelson got off to a rocky start with a bogey, but righted himself to take the lead with birdies at 10 and 11. Bogeys at 12 and 13 cost him the outright lead, but he rolled in a birdie putt on the par-4 18th to grab a share of the lead.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL '97:
Big 12 Conference looks for better second season

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Texas has a new tailback, a new defense and the confidence that only a Big 12 championship can bring.

The Longhorns think the mix can help them rejoin the top teams in the country, put them back into the Big 12 title game and carry them to an elusive bowl victory.

Ricky Williams, last year's star fullback, is the new tailback. He makes the same move Earl Campbell did in 1977, they year he won the Heisman Trophy.

Williams would like the Heisman, but he'd rather see Texas win a national title.

"Sure, winning the Heisman Trophy would be great," said Williams, who ran for 1,272 yards last year. "But helping a team play for a national championship would be incredible."

National titles have been a long way off for Texas. The last time the Longhorns were among the most prominent teams was in 1983, when Fred Akers led them to an 11-0 record before a 10-9 loss to Georgia in the Cotton Bowl crushed their title hopes.

In the 13 years since, Texas has had only two seasons with more than eight wins. It's also had four losing campaigns, a non-winning season (5-5-1 in 1993) and a 6-14-2 mark against Top 10 teams.

The Longhorns, who stunned Nebraska 37-27 to win the Big 12 title, enter the season ranked No. 12.

James Brown, the hero of the Nebraska game, returns to quarterback a team that lost five times in 1996, including 38-15 to Penn State in the Fiesta Bowl.

The Longhorns have a favorable schedule, opening at home against Rutgers and UCLA before road games against Rice, Oklahoma State, Oklahoma and Missouri. The first real test should come at home against Colorado on Oct. 25.

By then, a new secondary should be battle-tested and a receiving corps should have emerged. Texas has a new 4-3 defensive alignment.

"Both Rutgers and UCLA throw the ball a bunch," said new defensive coordinator Bobby Jack Wright. "We might have been strong favorites in those games with the secondary we had last year, but this year we are virtually untested back there."

Gone are NFL draft picks Bryant Westbrook and Taje Allen at the corners, and Chris Carter and Tre Thomas at the safeties. Fighting for cornerback positions are senior Quinton Wallace and junior Tony Holmes, along with three freshmen.

Texas coach John Mackovic feels his defense should improve off its poor showing last season — 86th (of 111 teams) against the run and 65th in total defense.

"In the past, we may have been satisfied to hold people to short gains, but this year we expect to throw people for losses," said Mackovic, who begins his sixth year at Texas with a mark of 37-21-2.

Overall, the Big 12 was a bust in its first season, although two teams cashed in by playing in alliance bowl games — Nebraska in the Orange and Texas in the Fiesta.

Colorado could be the team to beat in the Northern Division.

"We've got a good team and I'm excited about it," said Buffaloes coach Rick Neuheisel. "Everybody would like to be at a university where you expect to win and you hope you can be in the hunt for a national championship. I'm not going to shy away from that."

Now, if Neuheisel can only beat Nebraska.

said. "Coach Mason coached out of fear."

Kansas State will have Jonathan Beasley, Michael Bishop and Adam Helm fighting for the quarterback job, while Missouri and Iowa State will be trying to improve their programs.

Troy Davis is gone at Iowa State, but his brother, Darren, hopes he can fill the void. Missouri coach Larry Smith believes quarterback Corby Jones can spring some surprises for the Tigers.

In the Southern Division, the Longhorns are heavy favorites to return to the title game, set for Dec. 6 in San Antonio, Texas.

Texas A&M was big disappointment last season. The Aggies lost to Brigham Young in the Pigskin Classic and never returned to form, finishing 6-6 as quarterback Brannon Stewart failed to live up to his promise.

Coach R.C. Slocum shook up his staff and got a quarterback coach for Stewart.

Overall, the Big 12 was a bust in its first season, although two teams cashed in by playing in alliance bowl games — Nebraska in the Orange and Texas in the Fiesta.

"We aren't the only team that has problems with the Huskers," Neuheisel said. "They have a string of 29 years of nine wins or more per year. That rivals Joe DiMaggio's hitting record. We keep getting closer every year."

John Hessler will be the Buffs' new quarterback, replacing Koy Detmer.

Nebraska will try to overcome the disappointment of losing to the Longhorns.

"I think we might have lost a little mystique to some of the other teams around the nation," guard Aaron Taylor said of the Huskers, shut out by Arizona State 19-0 early last season then undefeated before falling to the Longhorns. "I think we're a team that's going to be better than we were last year."

Returning All-America defensive end Grant Wistrom said the loss to Texas has served as a "motivating tool." "There's no ill feeling toward Texas," he said. "Our defense just played poorly."

Kansas will have a new leader in new coach Terry Allen, who says the Jayhawks "have more questions than answers. We only return five starters on offense."

Defensive back Tony Blevins said he likes the change from Glen Mason to Allen.

"Coach Allen is a more positive, player-type coach," Blevins

"I had to send out a signal that the season wasn't acceptable to our fans," Slocum said. "You can see we lost three games by a total of 10 points, but I saw things we did that's just not us. I wasn't pleased."

Oklahoma, which opens the season Saturday against Northwestern in the Pigskin Classic, hopes to become a winner again.

"I expect to compete for the division title," said coach John Blake, whose first year ended at 3-8. "We have a year behind us and we have more talent and we have a chance to win it."

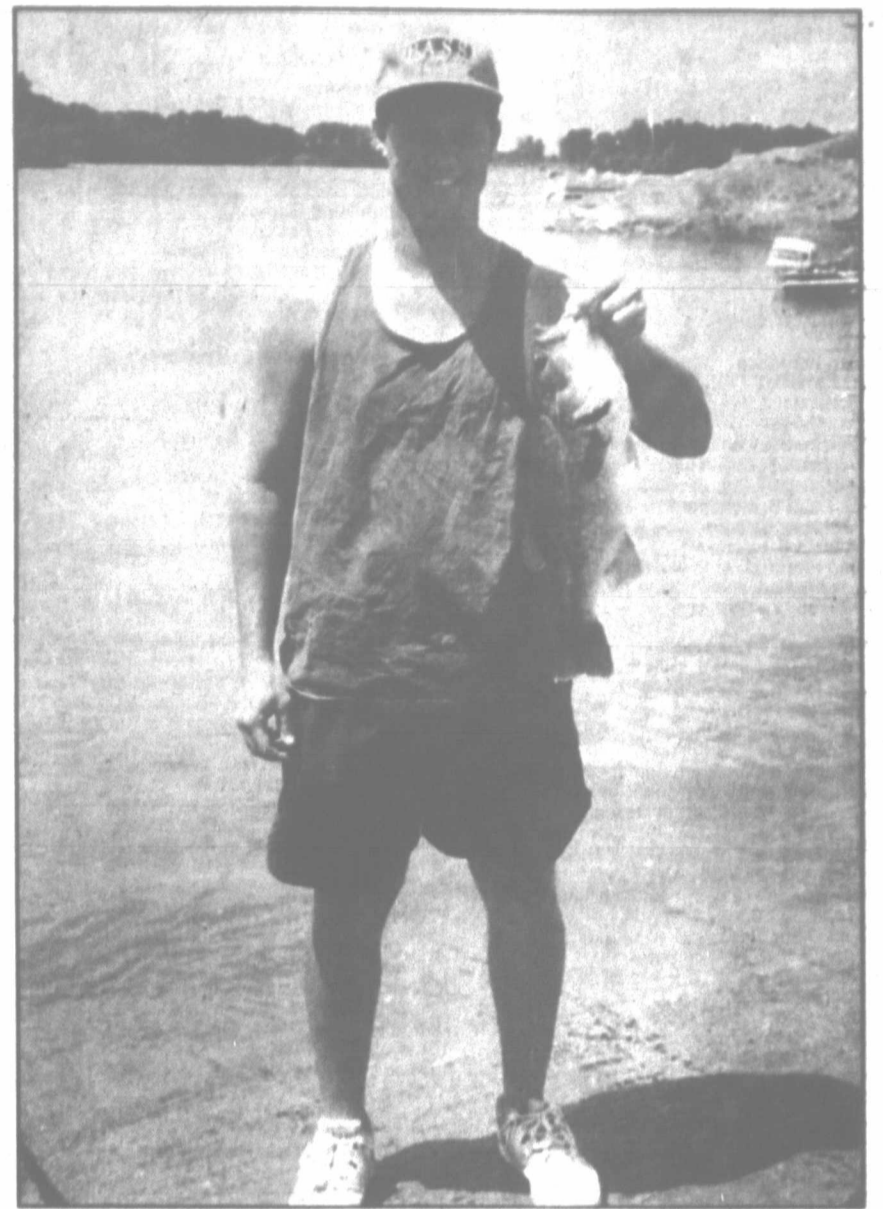

Texas Tech lost Byron Hanspard to the NFL, and coach Spike Dykes is trying to find another running back because top prospect Clint Robertson tore his knee on the last scrimmage of the spring.

Dykes said "with a quarterback like Zebbie Lethridge we've got a chance to put up good numbers."

Dykes said the Texas win over Nebraska was inspirational.

"I think it woke a lot of us up," he said. "It's sort of like when Superman's cape doesn't open up all the way, ol' Batman has a chance."

Baylor, under new coach Dave Roberts, and Oklahoma State also hope to be more competitive in the Southern Division.

Alderson, Crook win
road runner tourney

PAMPA — Ronny Alderson and Bill Crook of Pampa won the Top of Texas Bassmasters of Pampa road runner tournament earlier this month in Oklahoma.

The tournament was held at Lake Foss, Dead Indian and Spring Creek.

Alderson and Crook had a team weight of 23.60 pounds of fish.

Alderson also won the Big Bass Award with a bass weighing five pounds.

Other winners were Mike and Anna Young of Lefors with a team weight of 10.92, second; Roger Watson, Amarillo, and Gary Carter, Pampa, 9.91 third; Roy Alderson and Mary Alderson, Lefors, 6.55, fourth; Steve Stauffacher and Maxine Stauffacher, Lefors, 3.68, fifth; Chris McMinn, Pampa, and Jimmy Corley, Pampa, 3.25, sixth; Floyd Lott, Pampa and Matt Schiffman, Pampa, 2.12, seventh; Ken Hathcoat, Pampa and Danny Hathcoat, Pampa, 1.56, eighth.

Sixteen members weighed in 61.59 pounds of bass.

Tournament sponsor was Glo-Valve of Elk City, Okla. The next tournament will be at Lake Crowder, Okla. on Sept. 6-7.

RIO RANCHO (AP) — Jim Hayden got a little spooked by what was on the other end of his fishing line last weekend — a 2-pound, 22-inch striped bass that didn't look quite right.

Hayden, 50, caught what he calls an "alien fish" at Elephant Butte Lake.

"I said 'Whoa.' I didn't want to stick my hand down there," Hayden said. "When people first see it, they think it came from Chernobyl."

The striped's body is normal but its forehead appears caved in and its eyes bug out like headlights. It has a floppy bottom lip with a protruding tongue.

Paul Cassidy, northwest area fisheries manager for the state Game and Fish Department, said the fish was probably a genetic mutation. He said state officials are confident there's nothing wrong at the lake.

"It goes back to basic genetics. I've seen two-headed fish, you name it. They never live because they can't feed. But I've never seen one quite like this. I'm surprised it was able to live so long," Cassidy said.

Cassidy said the fish probably survived by eating dead matter. Game and Fish officials removed scales to test the fish's age, but Cassidy estimated it at about 3 years old.

Killer B's heating up

HOUSTON (AP) — The Killer B's are heating up just in time for the Houston Astros.

Jeff Bagwell and Craig Biggio each homered and drove in two runs Thursday night as the Astros beat the Colorado Rockies 10-4. Sean Berry added a two-run double and Derek Bell had his fourth straight multiple-hit game.

"When we get everybody contributing, we can score runs like this," Biggio said. "This is the kind of offense you can have when everybody contributes. Unfortunately, it doesn't happen every night but it's a good win for us. We needed to break out like this."

With Pittsburgh's loss to San Diego, the Astros moved four games ahead of the second place Pirates in the NL Central.

Bagwell, who entered the game hitting .125 (3-for-24) for the homestand, homered in the first inning and had an RBI double a four-run second.

"I felt good in the box yesterday," Bagwell said. "That carried over today. I'm glad I didn't stick my foot in my mouth and got a couple of hits after saving I felt good yesterday. I just want to do my part."

Berry, who doubled in the second, is still returning to top form following shoulder surgery.

"This was nice, especially for me, not playing much recently," Berry said. "We needed a lift after playing a couple of days against the Braves. We just kept scoring runs."

"No lead is safe against those guys. You've always got Ellis Burks or Larry Walker coming to the plate."

Chris Holt, 84, allowed five hits in six innings and benefited from the Astros' 15-run attack. Holt helped himself with two hits and an RBI.

The Astros needed Colorado starter Roger Knies (8-9) and reliever Duane Holmes for six runs and nine hits in the first two innings.

Bagwell hit a solo homer to center in the first and Chuckie Carr extended his hitting streak to 11 games with an RBI single.

Holt singled to start the second and Bell singled with one out. Bagwell followed with a run-scoring double and Berry's double to right scored Bell and Bagwell.

Holmes came on and walked Thomas Howard before Carr drove in his second run.

"It was good to get our confidence going again after getting shut out by the Braves," Astros manager Larry Dierker said.

The Astros got three more runs off Curtis Leskanic in the fourth on Holt's single and Biggio's two-run homer, his 18th.

End Regular Season

Progress continues on Pampa High School soccer fields

PAMPA — Progress on the new Pampa High School soccer fields is picking up steam.

PHS boys' soccer coach Warren Cottle reported Thursday that $11,800 in cash and pledges from business organizations and individuals have been collected for the construction of the two regulation-size fields next to Travis Elementary.

"It's been a community effort all the way," Cottle says. "Not a dime has been spent by the school district on these fields. A lot of incredible things can happen when the community gets involved," he said.

IRI International, B&B

Solvent and G.W. James Company have contributed to the dirt work on the field while Celanese employees Peter Berzanski and Mark Clark took care of the engineering and drawings of the field.

Among the companies which have made recent pledges are Celanese $5,000, Phillips Petroleum $1,500; Columbia Medical Center $1,000; Voltex $500; Cabot $500 and Texaco $200.

"All we need now is some irrigation supplies and fencing and we'll be done," Cottle said. "A lot of this project has to do with the parents of the players and supporters. They've done most of the groundwork and made the contacts to get things going."

Cottle hopes to have the fields finished in time for the upcoming soccer season. Future plans included a field house, bleachers and lighting. The soccer complex consists of 12 acres of land.

In past years, the PHS boys' and girls' teams have been using the fields at the high school complex for its matches. However, the fields are not regulation-size.

Individuals interested in making donations for the new fields can contact Cottle at 665-3333 (home) or 669-4804 (school).

Scott still winning ballgames

Steve Scott, who coached the Pampa Harvesters to the district championship in 1979, is still winning baseball games. Only the age group is younger this time around.

Scott, who now lives in Littleton, Colo., recently coached the Blake Street All-Stars, a team of 8-year-olds and under, to a third-place tie in the Roberto Clemente World Series held in Wheat Ridge, Colo. His son, Cody, is a member of the team.

It was the highest a Colorado team had ever finished in the tournament.

Blake Street advanced into the final round, which consisted of eight teams from across the United States. Scott's crew won two of four games, eliminating teams from New Mexico and Illinois. Their losses were to defending champion Puerto Rico and the eventual champion Dallas Texans.

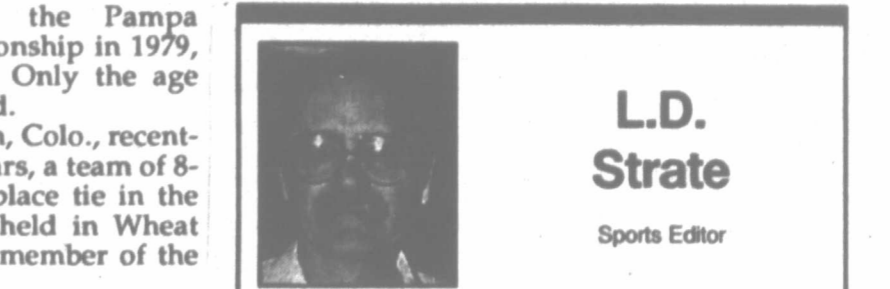

Scott is a PHS graduate. His mother, Jean Scott, still lives in Pampa.

After guiding the Harvesters to the district title back in '79, Scott was named baseball coach of the year by the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame. He coached baseball four years in Pampa and was also an assistant football coach.

Scott, who is now employed by Texaco in Denver, returns to Pampa frequently to compete in golf tournaments and visit old friends.

The Harris Rating System is no more. John Harris, who published the popular Texas high school football rankings and predictions each fall, died July 17 in Brownwood.

Harris will be missed. He was incredibly accurate, not only at predicting the winning team, but also on the point spread.

"John received extreme joy from his business. He loved not only rating Texas High School football, but all of the players, fans and coaches which it allowed him to meet over the years," Linda Harris said.

Pampa's Devin Lemons is one of 33 newcomers on the Texas Tech football team this fall. After a sterling career for the Harvesters, the 6-3, 202-pound Lemons is one of the top incoming freshmen.

Lemons is currently competing for a position at defensive end against Robert Richardson and Taurus Rucker.

The Red Raiders travel to the University of Tennessee for their first game on Aug. 30 at 6:30 p.m. The game will be televised on ESPN.

STILLWATER, Okla. — Lori Walling, daughter of Jerry and Andrea Walling of Pampa, has been accepted to Oklahoma State University as an athletic trainer for the OSU Cowboy Football Team. She will be pursuing a degree in athletic training and dietetics. Walling's past experience includes serving as an athletic trainer for Coach Stewart Smith at Pampa High School.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. — Navy Airman Lisa V. McCoy, daughter of Daniel and Dianna McCoy of Pampa, recently reported for duty with the aircraft carrier pre-commissioning unit Harry S. Truman, based at Newport News.

McCoy's new assignment is an example of how Navy and Marine Corps men and women are assigned to ships, squadrons and shore commands around the world. Whether serving in the Persian Gulf near Iraq or in the Adriatic Sea near Bosnia, people like McCoy are making a difference as they work to improve their knowledge and skill as part of the most highly technical naval force in history.

McCoy joined the Navy in February 1997.

Ruby Ridge standoff not forgotten; county prosecutor files charges

BONNERS FERRY, Idaho (AP) — Five years after the deadly standoff at Ruby Ridge, a county prosecutor has charged an FBI sharpshooter with manslaughter and a friend of white separatist Randy Weaver with first-degree murder.

The decision by Boundary County prosecutor Denise Woodbury brought immediate criticism from FBI Director Louis Freeh. A two-year federal investigation ended last week with no charges against the FBI agent, Lon Horiuchi, or several high-ranking FBI officials.

Freeh said he was deeply disappointed.

"Agent Horiuchi's job on the FBI's hostage rescue team involved making split-second decisions," he said. "The FBI is doing everything within its power to ensure he is defended to the full extent and that his rights as a federal law enforcement officer are fully protected."

Woodbury filed the charges on Thursday, exactly five years after the 11-day standoff at the remote mountain cabin began with the deaths of Deputy U.S. Marshal William Degan, Weaver's 14-year-old son, Samuel, and the Weaver family dog, Striker.

Horiuchi, who killed Weaver's 42-year-old wife, Vicki, was charged with involuntary manslaughter, which carries a penalty of up to 10 years in prison.

Charged in Degan's death was Kevin Harris, a friend of the Weavers who was cleared of murder and other charges in a 1993 federal trial. Conviction could mean a death sentence for Harris.

It was a stunning development in a case that prompted a nationwide debate on the use of force by federal agencies. Ruby Ridge, where the Weaver family lived, has become synonymous with high-profile clashes — the Branch Davidian siege near Waco, Texas, the Freeman standoff, the Oklahoma City bombing, the standoff by Texas separatist Richard McLaren earlier this year.

Woodbury was undaunted by the results of the federal trial and the recent federal probe. She said the county had more time to investigate and has turned up evidence not used at the trial.
