PAMPA — The 1997-98 Preschool Story Hour will begin on Sept. 9 at the Lovett Memorial Library.

This program is for 3-, 4-, and 5-year-old children and involves reading stories, crafts and games at the library. The story hour will be held every Tuesday morning from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.

A schedule of the events will be handed out Sept. 9. Contact Shanla Brookshire at 669-5780 for any questions.

AUSTIN (AP) — No tickets matched the winning numbers in the Lotto Texas drawing Saturday night.

The winning numbers drawn were 14-15-17-25-30-43 for an estimated jackpot of $13 million.

There were 112 tickets matching five of six numbers for a prize of $1,949 each.

Matching four of six were 6,914 tickets for $114 each.

Next Lotto Texas game will be held Wednesday night for an estimated $20 million.

DALLAS (AP) — Tax control and supervision by state lottery officials of private contractors hired to run the games has left the appearance of impropriety, state auditors say.

The conclusions are part of a 63-page state auditor's report obtained by The Dallas Morning News. State Auditor Lawrence F. Alwin planned to release the report this week, the newspaper said in a story for Monday's editions.

Despite the perception of impropriety, the games were not compromised, however, Alwin said.

AMARILLO (AP) — Six companies, including the contractor that operates the Pantex nuclear weapons plant, are collaborating on a bid for a federal nuclear fuel manufacturing project.

The companies are bidding for a U.S. Department of Energy contract to make fuel for U.S. nuclear reactors out of plutonium oxide powder from dismantled nuclear weapons.

Being considered for the project are Pantex, the Savannah River Site in South Carolina, the Hanford site in Washington state and the Idaho National Environmental and Engineering Laboratory.

New law changes notification requirements for sex offenders

By LAURA HALEY
Staff Writer

A new law targeting sex offenders allows community residents more access to information about convicted persons living in their area.

In addition to requiring all persons convicted of a sex offense since Sept. 1, 1970 to register with local law enforcement agencies, the new law also requires law enforcement officials to furnish information about registered offenders to local schools and newspapers.

In the past, law enforcement agencies were required to notify public school officials about any registered sex offender that targeted victims under the age of 17. That requirement has been broadened to include private school officials as well, said Ron Dusek with the attorney general's office.

In addition, persons convicted of a sex offense after Sept. 1, 1995, could find their names in the local newspaper.

The new law also requires local newspapers to be notified when a sex offender convicted after the 1995 date registers. There are some exceptions, however, said Lt. Jim Scott with Gray County Sheriff's Office.

Juvenile offenders, he said, cannot be named. Offenders convicted of acts of incest also cannot be named.

Loss of C-5 contract could be good for Kelly AFB

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Local economic development promoters are looking for a bright side to reports that Kelly Air Force Base may be about to lose a multimillion-dollar Air Force maintenance contract to a Georgia base.

They told the San Antonio Express-News for a story in Monday's editions that the loss actually could improve Kelly's chances of winning a more lucrative deal later.

The Express-News reported Sunday that a $160 million-a-year contract for maintenance of the giant C-5 Galaxy cargo plane apparently will be awarded to the Warner Robins Air Logistics Center at Robins AFB.

The contract would have kept at least 1,200 civilian workers at Kelly, where privatization efforts are under way as the Air Force prepares to withdraw. The Air Force is set to leave Kelly by 2001.

Privatization supporters fought hard to win the contract. Now, they say losing the deal gives them a freer hand to vigorously pursue a contract for jet engine repair.

That's because federal guidelines forbid Kelly from accepting both the C-5 deal and the jet propulsion contract, which is valued by the Air Force at $660 million a year.

McAdoo breaks shooting records

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY
Staff Writer

"Hi, come on in," she sweetly said in a high pitched voice.

Could this small, sweet woman be her? Pampa's own record-breaking shooter?

Yep, it is.

And when Kresha McAdoo shot her guns off last week, it was she who shot down a women's national record at the National Rifle Association (NRA) competition in Raton, N.M.

Vice-president of the Pampa Rifle and Pistol Club, Kresha brought 17 awards home from the national competition in addition to breaking a national women's record and scoring first place in the "Smallbore Hunter's Pistol Championship Aggregate" competition.

According to Kresha, shooting is "a family thing."

She said that she's been shooting since she was a child. Her parents used to take her and her twin brothers out to shoot cans when they were kids. But the family hobby has turned out to be a much more serious sport.

Kresha's mom, Donna Nunamaker, holds the women's record for shooting chickens, while many of the awards Kresha received this year had to do with shooting pigs, rams, chickens and turkeys.

Not real ones!

Pretend ones — silhouette targets.

Despite new law, tracking sex offenders still a problem

By LAURA HALEY
Staff Writer

As of today, persons convicted of a sex offense as far back as 1970 will be required to register with local law enforcement agencies.

The new law also requires those who received deferred adjudication or other types of probation for sex crimes to register as well. Although a similar law has been in effect, this new piece of legislation will encompass a wider circle of offenders and make it a felony offense not to register, said Ron Dusek with the attorney general's office.

Anyone convicted of a sex crime that fails to register can spend anywhere from 180 days to 10 years in prison. Those who have been convicted in two or more sex offenses must report to a law enforcement agency every 90 days.

And, private schools, as well as public, must now be notified when an individual who has committed a sex crime to a victim under the age of 17 moves into the area.

Pampa Police Chief Charlie Morris welcomes the new law, commenting that any measure that helps protect victims is worthwhile.

Lt. Jim Scott with the Gray County Sheriff's Office also commented about the new law.

"It'll make it easier for us to register them," he said, adding, "if they come in and register."

The downfall of the new law, as in the past, is how to track those who don't register.

"Basically, there's no way to know until we stop them and pull a criminal history," said Lt. Scott.

So, for most law enforcement agencies, it's business as usual.

The State of Texas does not keep tabs on these individuals; and the registration process, although required, relies heavily on the convicted felon.

Investigation continues into Lefors city finances

By LAURA HALEY
Staff Writer

The 31st and 223rd District Attorney, John Mann, is continuing an investigation into the City of Lefors' financial statements this week.

A computer, computer disks and check stubs from four or five different bank accounts were taken from the city of Lefors during a raid led by the district attorney's office last Friday.

The search warrant, signed by 223rd District Judge Lee Waters, was served to Lefors city officials shortly before noon on Friday.

Mann, Bill McMinn, the D.A. investigator, Gray County Sheriff Don Copeland and Deputy Morris Burroughs confiscated the financial-related items.

Investigators plan on using the hard drive from the "crashed" computer to help shed some light on the financial problems, said Mann. This can be done by sending the hard drive to a specialist who can retrieve the files that were contained on the computer's hard drive, he said.

Bank statements have not been recovered, said Mann late Friday afternoon, because the city had already turned them over to a local accounting firm — Grantham, Cory & Heare.

The firm had been retained by the Lefors city council at a special meeting Thursday, Aug. 21 in an effort to get the bookkeeping back in order.

Tom Grantham, who was at the Lefors meeting representing his firm, said the city was last audited in September 1995.

Since then, he said, adequate bookkeeping records were not kept.

Intoxication charges result from recent law

By LAURA HALEY
Staff Writer

Ronald Dean Sanders, 45, of Pampa, will be the first in Gray County to face intoxication manslaughter and intoxicated assault charges under a law passed in 1994.

The charges, both felony offenses, are under different sections of the same law.

Sanders was arrested by State Trooper Guadalupe Deluna in connection with the death of 17-year-old Kami Michelle Minnick and injuries to her mother, Karen Wayne Minnick.

Deluna has been leading the investigation of the automobile wreck at the intersection of Highway 60 and Farm Market Road 7391, which resulted in the death of the teen-age girl.

A blood sample, taken from Sanders shortly after the wreck, confirms he was legally intoxicated, said 31st and 223rd District Attorney John Mann.

In addition to being intoxicated, Trooper Deluna said the traffic investigation also indicates that Sanders ran the stop sign on the Farm Market Road at the intersection.

The two Minnicks were traveling back to their hometown of Canadian after a shopping excursion to Amarillo when Sanders truck pulled in front of them at the intersection. The car slid into the

Four killed, two wounded in Juarez bar and grill shooting Sunday

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — An entertainment strip near the Juarez Bull Ring has been the scene of another massacre.
Four people were killed and two others were wounded Sunday when three gunmen walked into Geronimo's Bar & Grill and opened fire, police said.
The restaurant is next door to another restaurant where six people were massacred four weeks previously.
The establishment had started to fill with people who had been watching the bullfights nearby when the gunmen entered at 8:20 p.m. and opened fire, police told the El Paso Times.

Police had no other details early Monday, such as the victims' identities or whether any of the victims were Americans, the Times reported early Monday.
Police said officers later found a white Ford Crown Victoria and a white Volkswagen witnesses had said were linked to the shootings.
The club is located next-door to the Max-Ern restaurant, scene of an Aug. 3 massacre. Four men armed with AK-47s stormed the club near the and killed six people and wounded three others. Authorities had attributed the earlier attack to professional hit men.
Two men are awaiting trial in that shooting. However, no arrests have been made in two other recent acts of violence in Juarez: the Aug. 23 slayings of four doctors and the abductions of seven men two weeks ago.

Officials suspect the crimes may be related to a struggle among drug-traffickers for power in the wake of the July 4 death of drug lord Amado Carrillo Fuentes, reputed chief of the Juarez drug cartel.
Only an hour before the shooting, about 8,000 people gathered at a rally near the Rio Grande to protest violence that has afflicted the city since Carrillo Fuentes died. Among those attending the rally was Juarez Mayor Ramon Galindo.

LEFORS

books," he said in a phone interview last week.

Grantham suggested in the interview that the missing funds could stem from reserve monies being used to cover the previous paid gas bills. Currently, the city of Lefors has $40,000 in unpaid gas bills from the months of October, November, December and January. The city council had approved payment of these bills and checks were written, said Mayor Ben Watson, but these checks never cleared the bank.

In addition, Lefors city officials failed to comply with Section 103.001 of the Local Government Code, which requires all municipalities to perform a yearly audit and have a financial statement based on the audit.

According to the Texas attorney general's local governments division, this requirement contains no enforcement provisions but relies on the city councils/commissions to comply with the state statute.

City council members claim the bookkeeping problem was not realized until earlier this year.

One Lefors City Council member, Beth Miller, has taken issue with The Pampa News, saying an audit was unrelated to the current financial problems. She also voiced her dissatisfaction at previous articles concerning the city's financial problems, but could not answer where the money had gone and why the state-required audits had not been completed.

"I don't know," said Miller Friday afternoon on the phone when asked why a 1996 audit was not conducted. "I wasn't on the council then."

She did add that the council would "need books to do an audit." Mann said he requested the search warrant to obtain the city's financial records after receiving several phone calls from concerned citizens. The citizens deserve to know what has happened to the city's financial standing, he said. And, that answer is best provided by an independent, outside auditor, said Mann.

"My choice is ... my preference is that this just ends with mistakes and sloppy bookkeeping," said Mann.

However, there were too many "red flags" he said, explaining his justification for last Friday's raid of Lefors City Hall.

The city officials, Mann said, have "cooperated fully" with the district attorney's office.

City officials had already taken some measures to alleviate the problem — a new computer system was bought and a new city secretary, Judy Williams, was recently hired to help straighten out the books, said Lefors Mayor Ben Watson last month.

SANDERS

night-hand side of the truck. The two occupants of the car were seriously injured and 17-year-old Kami Minnick was pronounced dead at Columbia Medical Center at 9:50 p.m., approximately 1 1/2 hours after the wreck occurred.

Karen Minnick was taken via Medivac to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, where she underwent surgery for injuries sustained to her pelvis and both legs.

Sanders remains in Gray County Jail and faces two to 20 years in prison and up to a $20,000 fine for the intoxicated manslaughter charge, which is a second degree felony. The intoxicated assault charge is a third degree felony.

NOTIFICATION

not be named to protect the identity of the victim. And, individuals who received deferred adjudication probation also cannot be named.

Despite these restrictions, the new law does allow for more community notification than in the past. That is something that pleases Pampa Police Chief Charlie Morris. Anything that helps prevent further victims, he said, is a step in the right direction.

LAW

crimes, in many cases, has no one to force them to register. There is no prison guard, no centralized computer system, no tracking devices to monitor when that person moves in or out of an area.

So, what happens when a sex offender does not register with local law enforcement agencies?

For the most part ... absolutely nothing, said Lt. Scott.

Those convicted of a sex crime in Gray County are required to register, helping to prevent future victims, said Morris. But, according to Lt. Scott with the sheriff's office, the only sex offenders registered are those on parole or probation due to convictions. They are forced to register, explained Lt. Scott, by their parole or probation officer.

The Department of Criminal Justice also notifies counties when a person released from the penitentiary is expected to move into that area. But, whether the individual actually resides in that county or moves on is often untraceable.

"How do we know somebody's moved?" asked Scott. "Once they're out, they're free to go anywhere they want to go."

And even those forced to register through a probation or parole officer can be hard to track once probation/parole is completed by the offender. They, too, have the ability to relocate anywhere they wish without approval.

Although the new law requires those convicted as far back as 1970 to register, if that person is no longer on parole or probation, then it is unlikely they will.

"As far as someone coming into town and saying 'I'm a sex offender, please register me' ... I don't think so," said Scott.

"Actually, there would be no way to track somebody that doesn't want to be tracked," he added.

And, most past offenders do not wish to be tracked. For those who have been released from serving prison time, parole or probation, the offense is often an embarrassment. And, the people registered is a matter of public record. This information must be furnished to any citizen wanting to know if a sex offender resides in their area.

Even though the new law may have difficulties getting those offenders not currently in the probation or parole system to registers, it is a valiant effort by lawmakers, said Police Chief Morris.

"There's no way we're going to legislate the perfect answer," he said. "We just want to protect our community as best as we can."

Publication ranks state in terms of spending, taxation, employment

AUSTIN — State Comptroller John Sharp has issued the 1997 version of Texas, Where We Stand, his annual ranking of state government spending, taxation, employment and other categories to show where Texas stands among the 50 states.

"Every day, my staff and I are asked where Texas stands compared to other states," Sharp said. "That's why we publish this handy summary of comparative facts and figures about the Lone Star State."

Writing in the latest issue of Fiscal Notes, his award-winning monthly publication, Sharp noted the Texas economy has continued to thrive since the release of the 1996 edition of Texas, Where We Stand.

"We've improved our ranking as compared to other states in a number of important areas, including unemployment, welfare dependency, and the percentage of the population living in poverty," Sharp said.

Texas' unemployment ranking has improved to fourth nationally, down from sixth place in the 1996 rankings, according to Sharp.

The state ranks fifth for the number of federal food stamp recipients, an improvement over its ranking of fourth a year ago — due, in large measure, to an improved economy and to the success of the Lone Star Card, which has replaced the older paper food stamp coupon system.

Texas currently ranks sixth for the percent of people living in poverty, an improvement over last year's fourth place ranking.

"Job growth in Texas is outpacing the national average, and our economy is expected to continue to grow at a moderate but steady rate into the next century," Sharp said.

The Comptroller has published Texas, Where We Stand, every year since 1994 and requests a publication increase with each new edition.

"By compiling these rankings, we are able to offer state leaders, policymakers, and taxpayers a quick overview of how Texas compares to other states," Sharp said.

The Comptroller noted that some of the information in the latest Texas, Where We Stand is what one might expect to find for Texas.

"We outrank all other states in cattle, farms, crude oil, and natural gas production," Sharp said. "We export more products to Mexico than any other state, and we have more public school teachers — 240,000 — working in more public school districts — 1,044 — than many other nations."

Other state standings in the latest report reflect improvements in such important areas as per capita education spending and child support collections. Texas now ranks 25th in per capita education spending by state and local governments, up from 29th in 1992. Child support collections per capita have grown, with the most recent data showing Texas in 40th place, up from 48th in 1991.

"We still have a lot of room for improvement in both," Sharp said. "But it's gratifying to see that, as a state, we are at least moving in the right direction when it comes to schooling our children and providing them with more of the support they deserve."

Sharp said the information contained in Texas, Where We Stand is compiled from a variety of federal and state agencies, private sector groups and non-profit organizations.

"We collect reams of information during the course of our constitutional duties in the Comptroller's office," Sharp said. "And we're always exploring new ways to get that information into the hands of small businesses, local governments, and other taxpayers who can then put it to use creating jobs and building the future prosperity of Texas."

Sharp's Fiscal Notes is published monthly by the Comptroller's Research Division. It is available by writing: P.O. Box 13528, Austin TX 78711-3528 or by calling toll free 1-800-531-5441, ext. 3-4900.

Mexico's legislature: Ruling party seen as House minority, resents new role

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's ruling party, in the new and humiliating role of congressional minority, is trying to make the best of things by playing ball with the opposition.

After threatening to boycott the president's state of the union address today as long as the opposition planned to give a response, the party's congressional delegation said Sunday that it would allow the speech to go ahead — response and all.

For the first time in seven decades, the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party — or PRI — lost its majority in the lower house of Congress in July 6 elections.

The PRI still has the most deputies in Congress, but opposition parties united to form a bloc that has a slight majority in the lower house, which starts work today.

The opposition deputies gathered Saturday in the congressional chambers and declared a quorum, then proceeded to name a lawmaker of the leftist Democratic Revolution Party — an unabashed orator — as speaker of the house.

The speaker traditionally gives the official response to the president's state of the union address, but never before have the two officials been from opposing parties.

Suddenly, the PRI faced the prospect — commonplace in the United States but humiliating here — of a president forced to listen to his detractors.

PRI congressmen walked out of the session Saturday, and met on their own Sunday with no opposition members present. They threatened to boycott the state of the union address and even suggested they might set up their own parallel Congress elsewhere.

But they backed off on Sunday, recognizing the legitimacy of the speaker of the house and saying, the president's speech would go ahead as planned, with all lawmakers present.

PRI majority leaders in the Senate, who had earlier threatened to join the boycott, told the government news agency Notimex that they also would attend.

The PRI congressional leader, Arturo Nunez Jimenez, said the PRI believed the way the speaker of the house was named had "juridical insufficiencies," and said his party would protest today.

But he said he would present the complaint to the speaker of the house — the one opposition members elected on Saturday — implicitly recognizing the opposition speaker's legitimacy.

And while Nunez contested other key posts elected by opposition lawmakers on Saturday, his tone was more conciliatory than that of the previous day.

He said the PRI deputies had decided to "conform themselves" with the rest of the Congress "in the interests of the country."

"Without a doubt, this is a gesture that future generations will have to weigh and evaluate," Nunez's deputy, Ricardo Monreal, said in a speech to the PRI deputies.

President Ernesto Zedillo, a PRI member whose electoral reforms made the opposition triumph possible, had done his best to stay out of the fray. On Sunday, he urged members of the divided Congress to "undertake their best efforts to resolve the controversy."

Texans join the rest of the world mourning Princess Diana

DALLAS (AP) — Although Princess Diana never made an official visit to Texas, her death while pursued by paparazzi an ocean away has grieved British nationals and Texans alike as flowers and messages pile up outside the embassy here.

The British Consulate in Dallas is opening a condolence book this week for the princess, whose grace, compassion and beauty enthralled the world even after her 1996 divorce from Prince Charles.

"She represented royalty while she was part of royalty — and after," said Peter Ambler, chairman of the Dallas chapter of the British-American Commerce Association.

"We see that Diana added to it, with her approach to the common person and in her magnetism," he said Sunday. "That can do nothing but good for the royal family and the monarchy."

British subjects in Dallas said they had heard more than once that Diana visited Texas as a private citizen after her divorce became final. Among her nation's ties to the area is Mark Thatcher, son of former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who has owned a home in the Dallas suburb of Highland Park and has a Texas-born wife. The couple have since moved out of the country.

From horse theft to fire ants, 1,030 new laws taking effect Sept. 1

AUSTIN (AP) — The 1997 Texas Legislature may be gone, but its decisions are hardly forgotten.

John Bender, communications director of the Texas House, said a total of 1,030 new laws passed during the legislative session that ended June 2 took effect Monday.

The laws cover everything from saving water to destroying fire ants; from separating kids from tobacco to matching them with adoptive parents; from getting tougher on sex offenders to making it easier for low-income folks to get mortgages.

The legislation receiving the most attention during the 140-day lawmaking session got a jump on the rest of the new laws. That's the $1 billion reduction in local school property taxes. It was authorized in a constitutional amendment approved by voters on Aug. 9.

State audit shows lax control of Texas lottery contractors

DALLAS (AP) — Lax control and supervision by state lottery officials of private contractors hired to run the games has left the appearance of impropriety, state auditors say.

The conclusions are part of a 63-page state auditor's report obtained by The Dallas Morning News. State Auditor Lawrence F. Alwin planned to release the report this week, the newspaper said in a story for Monday's editions.

GTECH Holdings Corp., the state's primary lottery contractor, helped to foster the perception of impropriety by awarding lucrative contracts to close friends of lottery staff members, the report said.

The games were not compromised, however, Alwin said.

The report is based on a 16-month investigation of the Texas Lottery Commission by Alwin's staff, the newspaper reported.

LBJ, George Bush government schools looking to lock horns

AUSTIN (AP) — The state of Texas now has its second presidential school of government.

The George Bush School of Government and Public Service, scheduled to open Monday, will busy 19 students at the Texas A&M University campus in College Station.

"The Bush School will hopefully inculcate into its students the importance of public service," the former president told the Austin American-Statesman.

"This does not necessarily mean elected service. Public service must be kept very broad in scope, but it is my hope that all graduates of this program will have a greater sense of the need to get involved — the need to serve."

Nobody's looking for a fight for dominance between the Bush School and the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas at Austin.

"I hope that the common ground between the LBJ School and the Bush School will be excellence," Bush said. "It is not my desire to have this school created as a counterpart for the LBJ School."

Ditto from the LBJ School.

"I guess I see them as a partner in a fairly important enterprise: finding ways to improve the way government operates," said Edwin Dorn, the new dean at the LBJ School.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Texas Editorials

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers
Austin American-Statesman on Bosnian warlord hunt:
Nothing better illustrates the extent of the mess the United States stepped into in Bosnia than the decision last week to effectively split the Serb sector into areas controlled by a wanted war criminal and one controlled by his successor, who also hates Muslims.

The initial idea of the international intervention effort was to set the stage for recreating the pre-war multi-ethnic Bosnia. But the effect of the Dayton peace agreement was to reinforce the lines drawn in blood. Bosnia is now divided into a Bosnian Serb republic and a Muslim-Croat federation.

If NATO wants to go after the wanted warlords, taking the risk of inciting a violent reaction, that is probably an acceptable calculated risk. They need to be put on trial.

In any case, there is only faint hope that after NATO leaves there will be peace. But there will be none at all if haters are supported or encouraged by the peacekeepers.

Houston Chronicle on Brazoria jail beatings:

Exasperation and outrage. There can be little other reaction to the video "training" tapes of prisoners being pounded and kicked and set upon by dogs last September in the Brazoria County Detention Center.

But there is also a need for calm, toughness and thoroughness as various investigations into the incident go forward.

Missouri has recalled all of the 415 prisoners being housed in Brazoria County, and the national publicity generated by the incident may end up costing the county a good chunk of money. The prisoners were being housed there under a three-year, $6 million contract between the county and Capital Corrections Resources Inc., a private firm based in Groesbeck. It has been reported that the county will lose about $1.5 million in revenues from the canceling of the contract.

The facts must come out, and legal due process must be allowed to work.

But aside from the questions about how such an incident could be allowed to happen and why it was even videotaped, two things already are clear.

The Brazoria County Sheriff's Department will have some serious questions to answer about its approval of CCRI's hiring of two former Texas prison system officers who lost their jobs after pleading guilty in 1987 to federal misdemeanor brutality charges in the beating of a state inmate.

And the state will have to look at employing more resources in more tightly overseeing such privately run facilities, which have proliferated in recent years.

Splitting up the Ninth Circuit

Congress is rushing headlong toward a mid-September decision on an important bill involving the federal judiciary. All signs point to an agreement that will quite unnecessarily cost American taxpayers many millions of dollars and result in two Circuit Courts of Appeals dominated by liberal judges for the foreseeable future.

There are currently 11 Circuit Courts of Appeals hearing cases appealed from the federal district courts around the country. (There are also Courts of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit and the Federal Circuit, which need not concern us.) The problem is the Ninth Circuit, whose territory includes nine states (Alaska, Arizona, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon and Washington) plus Guam and the Northern Mariana Islands.

California alone has nearly two-thirds of the Ninth Circuit's population, as well (of course) as the lion's share of its judges and cases. The circuit is by far the largest in the country, and there is a case to be made for splitting it in two. But the Senate, brushing aside California Sen. Dianne Feinstein's proposal for an 18-month study commission, has endorsed a split that simply affronts common sense. The House will probably disagree early in September, but a conference will then be held, probably by mid-month, to reach a compromise. And there lies the danger.

Under the Senate bill, the Ninth Circuit would be reduced to just two states (California and

William Rusher
William Rusher is a Distinguished Fellow of the Claremont Institute for the Study of Statesmanship and Political Philosophy.

Nevada), and all the others, plus the Pacific islands, would be placed in a new 12th Circuit, which would carry about a third of the current Ninth's workload. The present headquarters of the Ninth Circuit is San Francisco, so no new courthouses would be needed. But with Arizona assigned to the 12th (though it is far to the south and hence would not be contiguous with any other state in the circuit), the bill calls for two new "co-equal" headquarters — and that means courthouses — for the new circuit: One in Phoenix and one in Seattle. That's where the taxpayers come in, bigtime.

A far more sensible division was proposed by the Hruska Commission in 1974. Under it, California's four federal judicial districts would be split: The central and southern remaining in the Ninth Circuit, along with Nevada and Arizona, and the northern and eastern districts going to new circuit, along with the rest of the current Ninth. No new courthouses would be needed, since the Ninth Circuit already has one in Pasadena and the new circuit could continue to use the one in San Francisco. Perhaps best of all, the two circuits would be roughly equal in size, sharing the workload almost equally. But sentiment seems to be running against splitting California in this way.

Politically, although the current proposal was adopted by the Senate Republican majority on practically a party-line vote, its effect would be to guarantee liberal control of both the Ninth and 12th Circuits as far ahead as the eye can see. Leaving Arizona in the Ninth, as the Hruska Commission would have done, would greatly mitigate this result — though, of course, coming liberal appointments by President Clinton make an increased liberal presence inevitable in the short term.

There are other alternatives. One would be to create a 12th Circuit consisting only of the northwestern states (Idaho, Montana, Oregon, and Washington) plus Alaska, Hawaii and the Pacific islands. That would at least make geographic sense, and a better political balance, though it would create a workload imbalance even worse than the Senate's bill.

But what's the hurry? Why this lemming-like rush to create a zany new circuit with only a third of the work-load, one state (Arizona) far away to the south, and "co-equal" headquarters and expensive courthouses in two cities that currently have neither?

Congress should take an aspirin and lie down.

Clinton's credibility challenged again

President Clinton can't seem to avoid hassles and haggling over his reported golf scores, at least the good ones, like 79. That's the score he announced and wound up defending against skeptics who doubted he'd played by all the rules.

Clinton said his playing companions in Martha's Vineyard on the day of the noted 79 would vouch for his scoring, and of course one of them did. Nobody in his foursome was going to argue with his numbers, or say he'd bent rules.

OK, so he does take mulligans, the golfers' term for a substitute shot when the first one goes awry. And it is reasonable to assume that his golfing companions concede him longer putts than he'd get if his address weren't the White House.

He's got company. There aren't many golfers who haven't hit an extra drive, or picked up a close but testy putt for par. And fewer presidents.

Harmless enough. These are not tournament scores. When Dwight D. Eisenhower was president, the caddies at his club were said to make bets among themselves on his matches. It is told that when one of Eisenhower's opponents conceded him a long putt, the caddy who stood to lose his bet against the president complained that it was too far from the hole to be given.

Too late. Presidential putts often are a given. Nobody argued about Eisenhower's golf scores, although Democrats tried to make an issue of the time he spent at the game, one accusing him

Walter R. Mears
AP Special correspondent

of governing on "green fairways of indifference."

Presidents usually have kept their numbers to themselves. Some even kept their games to themselves. John F. Kennedy probably was the best of golfing presidents, but played off camera. Just before his 1960 campaign, he slipped away to Cypress Point in California and almost made a hole in one. As the ball rolled toward the hole, his partner shouted for it to go in, and Kennedy urged it to stay out. It did. Kennedy said that if it hadn't, his political career would have been dented by word that another golfer was trying to get into the White House.

Gerald R. Ford was a solid player, although his best-remembered shots were the ones that hit spectators at tournaments. He played in one with George Bush and Clinton in Palm Springs in 1995, and both Republicans hit people in the galleries. Clinton didn't, but did spray an errant shot into somebody's back yard. His announced score that day was 93, which was not disputed despite assorted mulligans and pick-up putts.

Nor were there questions about the 86 he reported at Martha's Vineyard the day after his good round.

He might do better to play his game and keep the numbers to himself and his foursome. Ford usually did, and so did Bush after the high-speed golf he used to play.

But as any average golfer knows, it is hard to keep quiet about breaking 80. Even if wasn't quite by the book.

So he boasted playing 18 holes at seven over par, at the Farm Neck Golf Club in Martha's Vineyard, on Aug. 18. He'd hit three balls off the first tee, a drive followed by two mulligans, and wound up in a sand bunker anyhow.

Clinton said it was his third round under 80. He said he'd hit the extra tee shots for lack of warmup time on the driving range, and that his partners would attest to his score.

"Yeah, I witnessed it," said Vernon Jordan, a Washington lawyer who often golfs with Clinton. Just as another golfing friend affirmed the 39 Clinton reported for nine holes at the same course on an earlier vacation.

Leave it to skeptical, and bored, reporters, or to Republicans, to raise questions about how many times he actually hit the ball.

After Clinton said he had scored 83 during a 1996 campaign respite in Albuquerque, N.M., Gov. Gary Johnson said he doubted it. That led Bob Dole, the Republican presidential nominee, to raise it as a credibility matter in a campaign speech there.

"I don't know whether he shot an 83 or a 283 or a 483," Dole said. "You'll never really know."

Last Trident nuclear submarine being sent to sea

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the first Saturday in September, after being commissioned with full fanfare, the USS Louisiana steams from the submarine base at Kings Bay, Ga., and heads for the depths of the Atlantic Ocean.

It will be the last new ballistic missile-carrying submarine the Navy sends to sea.

The $1.5 billion boat — two football fields long — joins 17 others equipped with Trident nuclear missiles, the sea-based leg of America's nuclear triad.

A quarter-century after work began on a submarine-based nuclear missile the Soviet Union could not find and destroy, the commissioning ceremony for the USS Louisiana hangs a "closed" sign on the assembly line that built the 18 Trident subs.

"It was remarkably successful," said Lawrence Korb, an assistant secretary of defense in the Reagan administration and now a senior fellow at the Brookings Institution. "With Trident, you made yourself invulnerable. This was the crown jewel of American strategic technology."

The Trident weapons system proved a powerful deterrent to a nuclear first strike. Even if the Soviets could have wiped out the United States' land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles and shot down its B-52 bombers — the first two legs of the triad — they wouldn't have been able to find and destroy all of the submarines as well.

A single surviving sub contained plenty of firepower to retaliate — 192 nuclear warheads on 24 missiles.

"The missile submarines helped us win the Cold War," said retired Navy Capt. Jim Bush, associate director of the Center for Defense Information, another Washington think tank. "They were always available. They were the most reliable source of deterrence. They were undetectable."

To anti-war activists, however, the Trident meant something else.

"The Trident symbolized nuclear overkill," said Gordon Clark, executive director of Peace Action, formerly SANE Freeze. "The question was how many times over does one need to destroy the planet? Isn't it enough to destroy the planet once?"

Peter Green was there when construction began on the Trident system in the 1970s.

Now the Trident program manager for Electric Boat in Groton, Conn., Green got his start with the company almost 25 years ago helping to build the USS Ohio, the first Trident submarine.

Because there weren't enough skilled workers to go around, the company, along with the states of Connecticut and Rhode Island, developed courses to train potential employees. By the fourth submarine, the workers were trained, construction problems solved, assembly lines humming.

The workers built the shells in segments at a Quonset Point, R.I., facility and floated them by barge to Groton to be welded together. Electric Boat workers finished the submarines at the rate of one a year, beginning in 1980. At its heyday, as many as 8,000 employees helped build the Trident submarines.

The boats are known as Ohio-class submarines, named after the first sub armed with Trident missiles. Eight boats are stationed in the Pacific Ocean and the other 10, carrying newer Trident II missiles, in the Atlantic.

Seventeen are named for states. The other one, the USS Henry M. Jackson, honors a late senator from Washington who was a major booster of the Trident program.

Unlike later weapons systems such as the B-2 bomber, the MX missile and the Seawolf submarine, the Trident program attracted little opposition. There was no shortage of senators and representatives wanting to visit the plant and shake hands with the workers. Rosalynn Carter, President Carter's wife, and Vice President George Bush were among the dignitaries.

NATO gets tough with pro-Karadzic media, seizing transmitter

BANJA LUKA, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — NATO has seized a transmitter run by backers of war-crimes suspect Radovan Karadzic to punish them for broadcasting calls for violence against foreign organizations in Bosnia, officials said today.

Troops took control of the Udrigovo transmitter on Mount Majejica on Sunday, said Maj. Peter Clarke, a spokesman for the NATO-led Bosnian peace force.

Other NATO officials said the troops ordered everyone at the transmitter to clear the area. The troops refused to talk to representatives of pro-Karadzic television at the facility and said they would decide who would be allowed to use it — Karadzic's broadcasters or rivals supporting Bosnian Serb President Biljana Plavsic, his rival.

NATO got involved in the media war after Bosnian Serb radio and television incited supporters of Karadzic to attack peace force troops last week with stones in and around Brcko.

After the mob attacks Thursday and Friday, NATO served notice that it reserved the option of blowing up transmitters, removing broadcasting equipment and using force against broadcasters who call for violence against peacekeepers.

Yemeni court condemns two to death by public crucifixion

SAN'A, Yemen (AP) — A Yemeni appeals court has upheld a sentence of public crucifixion against two convicted murderers.

It is the second time in three months that Yemeni courts have condemned people to death by crucifixion, a rare form of penalty.

The appeals court confirmed the sentence against Jalal al-Radaai, 23, and Abdullah Ali al-Radaai, 30. They were found guilty Aug. 10 of kidnapping and killing Hussein Mahdi al-Hamed with an ax in Makala, a city 485 miles southeast of the capital San'a.

In June, a Makala court sentenced two other men to death by public crucifixion for kidnapping and murdering a family. A court official said the crucifixions have not yet taken place.

Most executions in Yemen are carried by hanging or firing squad. Courts re-introduced public crucifixion recently following a spate of unusually violent crimes.

Israel eases closures, Netanyahu says won't hand over land now

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel today eased its monthlong closure of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, apparently to improve the tense relations with the Palestinians ahead of next week's visit by Secretary of State Madeleine Albright.

Four thousand laborers and 2,000 merchants as well as 250 teachers and 200 employees of the Palestinian Authority will be allowed to enter Israel, the army said.

The Palestinians dismissed the step as insufficient, demanding that the closure be lifted completely.

The travel ban, which barred all Palestinians from entering Israel, was imposed after a July 30 suicide-bombing by Islamic militants in a Jerusalem market that killed 17 people, including the two assailants.

The attack and the closure prompted acrimonious exchanges between Israel and the Palestinians. Israel accused the Palestinians of appeasing instead of arresting Islamic militants.

The Palestinians said the assailants apparently had come from abroad and that the travel ban constituted collective punishment aimed at winning concessions at the negotiating table. Israel says the closure was imposed purely for security reasons.

Albright will come to the Middle East on Sept. 10 to meet with the Israeli and Palestinian leaders in hopes of trying to break the impasse and end months of crisis triggered, in part, by Jewish settlement expansion in the West Bank and Gaza.

Yeltsin says he won't seek another term

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin said in a surprise announcement today that he has no plans to run again for office when his current term expires in 2000.

The 66-year-old Yeltsin made the comment during an address at a Moscow school, where he was marking the start of the new school year. He gave no indication of what he intends to do after his term expires.

"My term ends in 2000, I will not run anymore," said Yeltsin in remarks broadcast on Russian television channels.

Looking happy and smiling, Yeltsin said younger, more energetic people would be needed to run the country in the future. He also praised the young advisers and officials in his administration.

"We have a very good team - a good, friendly and intelligent team," he said, in a possible indication that he hopes a successor will come from within the administration.

The presidential news service confirmed Yeltsin's remarks, but said it had no further details or comment.

'Hunted like animals' - Hollywood calls for rein on paparazzi

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Photographers have stalked the rich and famous for decades, using everything from bushes to helicopters to hide for the elusive and lucrative shot. It is a practice critics say has gone too far.

After the crash that killed Princess Diana and her new beau, Hollywood's stars warned that the pictures-at-all-costs trade will endanger more lives.

"Many of us in public life have had the chilling experience of being chased and hunted down like animals simply for a photograph," Arnold Schwarzenegger said. "As long as that lawless, wild west atmosphere exists and publications dangle huge bounties for such photos, these kinds of tragedies will happen."

Diana's car was traveling at least 60 mph with several photographers in pursuit when it crashed, authorities said. Besides the princess, the crash killed boyfriend Dodi Fayed and a chauffeur.

Witnesses said the photographers had swarmed around the car on motorcycles moments before the crash, and France Info radio said at least some of them took pictures before help arrived. National Enquirer Editor Steve Coz said photographs of the accident were offered to the Enquirer for $250,000 and that some are being peddled for $1 million. Coz urged the world press not to buy them.

The tragedy sparked scathing criticism of the paparazzi's tactics from the public and it refocused Hollywood's mounting fury over the issue. Actor Tom Cruise and publicists called for new laws to control the trade.

"I think we need laws for what (constitutes) harassing an individual," Cruise told CNN.

News organizations, meanwhile, distanced themselves from the practices of the paparazzi. Some worried that the tragedy will stain the entire industry.

Vincent J. Alabiso, vice president and executive photo editor of The Associated Press, said it would be premature to comment on the Diana accident until the extent of the paparazzi's involvement is determined.

"As a rule, however, the AP does not condone any behavior that risks a subject's life and does not accept a photo or a story obtained that way," Alabiso said.

"There absolutely is a blurring in the minds of the public between us, tabloids, Internet news, all the media. One person's sins will certainly give everybody in general a bad reputation," said George Langford, public editor of the Chicago Tribune.

He said his paper wouldn't chase someone for a picture.

"We have definite rules against doing anything like that. That would definitely cross the line," Langford said. "It's not the type of journalism we practice. It's not even journalism."

Added Michel duCille, photography editor of The Washington Post: "The huge difference is that we try to tell stories and present the news as it is rather than make it sensationalistic."

For decades, American personalities — from Jackie Kennedy and Elizabeth Taylor to Alec Baldwin and Brad Pitt — have been hunted for their images. The pictures sell for huge sums of money.

Paparazzi are an inevitable part of show business, said Tony Curtis, whose wedding was so inundated with paparazzi helicopters that guests couldn't hear the ceremony. "There really is very little that one can do to avoid it unless you want to live an isolated life."

U.S. Customs inspector nabs man accused of robbing $22 million

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — There was no fancy manhunt, just luck and the hunch of a U.S. Customs inspector that nabbed the man suspected of stealing $22 million, the biggest heist in the nation's history.

Philip Johnson, an armored car driver accused of stealing from his employer last March in Jacksonville, Fla., was arrested Saturday in Brownsville, near the U.S.-Mexico border. His arraignment on a federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution was scheduled for later this week.

The money from the armored car was not recovered and authorities said they don't know where it might be.

It was Johnson's answers to routine questions at a border crossing that spurred the interest of an unidentified senior Customs inspector.

"He didn't look at her cross-eyed or anything strange in that regard; she just wanted to check this guy out further," customs spokeswoman Judy Turner said Sunday. "He acted pretty ordinarily."

Police had been searching for Johnson, 33, since the March 29 heist of a Loomis, Fargo & Co. armored car. Authorities had tracked him from Jacksonville to Asheville, N.C., where the Loomis van was found.

The FBI then received reports that Johnson had been sighted in Houston and the Brownsville area. Even though authorities were on the right trail, Johnson remained elusive — until Saturday morning.

Johnson was one of 25 passengers subjected to a routine inspection of a commercial bus headed from Matamoros, Mexico, to Houston.

Wife Suspects Man's Appetite For Sex Is Really An Addiction

DEAR ABBY: In the past three or four months, I have heard that a new addiction is about to be exposed in our society: sexual addiction. Just a few months ago on ABC's television news magazine "20/20," they devoted an entire segment to this subject.

I have been suspicious of my husband for years, but because of his ongoing difficulties with marijuana, alcohol, nitrous oxide, cocaine, and prescription diet and pain medications, I thought maybe the interest in sexually explicit magazines, movies, etc., just went with the territory. After the last go-around with chemical problems, he threw out all the pornography. I was relieved; then I recently discovered more hidden magazines. They are not the kind one picks up at the corner convenience store.

From what I've been able to ascertain, my sexual appetite is normal, but his seems insatiable. When we've been on vacation, relaxing and paying undivided attention to one another (no kids or interruptions), we can make love three or four times a day. And if I don't want to do it again a fifth time, according to him I have a problem! Often when he comes up to me to kiss me, he will grab me, which I have always indicated I don't like. He has always had poor sleep patterns, getting up and down several times during the night, and nearly every time he comes back to bed he tries to initiate sex. When I object and tell him I don't like to be awakened, he often berates and belittles me, sometimes calling me names and saying I'm frigid.

I think if he's getting his information from pornography, not only is it not what I'd call a scientific source, it's a perverted representation of what the majority of the population would call normal. Is this a common problem? I don't feel I am respected, cherished and showered with attention. I am usually tired. You can sign me...

FEELING USED IN GREAT FALLS, MONT.

DEAR FEELING USED: You must love your husband very much to have remained with him through all the tribulations you describe. Sex addiction is nothing new. I have known about it since the early 1980s, when I first learned of the existence of a 12-step fellowship of sex addicts called Sexaholics Anonymous (SA).

Operating in conjunction with SA are the S-ANON International Family Groups — 12-step fellowships of people who have been affected by the sexual addiction of a family member or friend. A program such as this could provide comfort and direction for you.

S-ANON members are wives, husbands, children, parents, siblings, friends and even co-workers of sex addicts. Banding together in a program based on the principles of Alcoholics Anonymous, they work to resolve their common problems and to help others recover from the effects of another's sexual addiction.

There are no dues or fees for S-ANON membership. Anyone who is bothered by the sexual behavior of someone in the family is eligible to join. I urge you to attend some meetings.

Those who wish further information about S-ANON International Family Groups should write S-ANON I.F.G., P.O. Box 111242, Nashville, Tenn. 37222-1242, and include a check or money order (no cash, please) in the amount of $1 to cover postage and handling.

To receive a collection of Abby's most memorable — and most frequently requested — poems and essays, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's "Keepers," P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

GOLF

CANYON — West Texas A&M University Director of Intercollegiate Athletics Ed Harris announced today the hiring of Charlie Schaefer, current WTAMU assistant men's basketball coach, as the University's new head men's and women's golf coach. He will maintain the dual coaching roles with the buff basketball program.

"I am very excited about the opportunity to develop the golf program at West Texas A&M University and work with the golfers that are on the team in 1997-98," Schaefer said.

Schaefer, who has been at WTAMU since the 1995-96 season, has a history of playing golf in the Texas Panhandle. He has played golf since the age of 15 playing for the Canadian High School Wildcat golf team. Schaefer has also participated in several Texas and Oklahoma Panhandle amateur tournaments. Further, he has been instrumental in the basketball program raising $30,000 in the past two years at the Cager Club golf Classic.

"Charlie brings a great deal of organizational skills and recruiting ability over from the basketball program and I feel that will be evident in the ability to attract the talented golfers needed to make this program successful," Harris said.

Schaefer was graduated from Texas Tech in 1993 with a bachelor's degree in exercise and sport sciences. He later earned a master's degree in physical education from Pittsburg State university (Kan.) in 1995. Schaefer has coached basketball at Labette Community (1994-1995) and University of Texas - Pan America (1992-1994) under Mark Adams, a former WTAMU head basketball coach and current Amarillo Rattlers hockey general manager.

TENNIS

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Ashe Stadium. Venus Williams. Monica Seles. Andre Agassi. Michael Chang. U.S. tennis is looking good in the U.S. Open.

Today, sixth-seeded Lindsay Davenport and No. 12 Mary Joe Fernandez get a chance to join the final eight in the women's field, while Pete Sampras, going after his third consecutive and fifth career U.S. Open title, will be in action with a men's quarterfinal berth awaiting the winner. Playing in only her third Grand Slam tournament, Williams has a lot of hype to live up to. She is doing just that.

Complete with red, white and blue beads adorning her braids, Williams has unveiled a game that could make her the first black American to win a Grand Slam tournament since the man for whom the new stadium is named captured Wimbledon in 1975.

At 6-foot-1, Williams hits all of her shots with power, and her wide wingspan enables her to reach balls that would sail past smaller players.

She also has a huge dose of confidence.

"I just kind of feel that I can make any shot anywhere on the court," Williams said Sunday. "That's just the way I feel."

Her 6-2, 6-3 victory over South Africa's Joannette Kruger puts Williams into the quarterfinals, where she next will face Sandrine Testud, like Williams a surprise in the year's final Grand Slam tournament. Testud advanced Sunday with a 6-3, 4-6, 7-6 (7-1) win over Slovakia's Karina Habsudova.

Seles, a two-time champion who is attempting to return to the final for the third consecutive year, moved a step closer with her hard-fought 1-6, 6-2, 6-2 fourth-round victory over ninth-seeded Mary Pierce. Seles, seeded second behind Martina Hingis, will next take on No. 11 Irina Spirlea, a 7-6 (7-4), 6-4 winner over No. 5 Amanda Coetzer.

Cowboys coast by Steelers in NFL opener

PITTSBURGH (AP) — When they were doing so much wrong, it was easy to forget what the Dallas Cowboys could do right.

They set an unparalleled standard of excellence on the field by winning three Super Bowls in four seasons, then set about destroying it off the field with drug arrests, handgun violations and horrific lapses in judgment.

If a player wasn't being arrested, the coach was. They trashed their training-camp dormitory — and their image.

What a team. And what a mistake to think the Cowboys had become divided, not united, by controversy.

The Cowboys took out the frustrations of a tumultuous offseason, beating the Pittsburgh Steelers 37-7 Sunday in a performance that reminded that, amid all the turmoil, much talent remains.

Troy Aikman threw four touchdown passes — a third as many as last season — and Michael Irvin scored twice as the Cowboys roughed up the Steelers in their opener for the second time in four years. They also won big in Pittsburgh in 1994, by 26-9.

For once, Cowboys owner Jerry Jones wasn't talking about a suspension, a court case or banning his players from a bar, but football. Winning football.

"This certainly exceeded our expectations. We certainly didn't expect this," Jones said.

The Steelers could say the same thing. They looked equally dazed and confused during the worst loss of Bill Cowher's six seasons as coach, failing to cross the Cowboys' 40 until they trailed 37-

0. It was hardly what they expected following the first 5-0 preseason in their history.

"Certainly, in my worst nightmare, I didn't imagine a day like today," offensive coordinator Chan Gailey said.

Irvin, suspended for last year's opener and a magnet for all of the Cowboys' off-field problems, picked on each of the Steelers' new cornerbacks, rookie Chad Scott and Donnell Woolford, for TD catches among his seven receptions for 153 yards.

The Steelers have replaced more than half of their starting defense, including key starters Rod Woodson, Chad Brown and Willie Williams, and they looked it by giving up 380 yards and failing to sack Aikman even once.

"It's been quite a while since I had this much fun. I think you can start not loving what you do, and that's what happened." said Irvin, who considered retiring after pleading no contest to a cocaine charge.

Aikman, admittedly embarrassed by the Cowboys' numerous mental breakdowns last season as they were held to one touchdown or less in seven games, looked Super Bowl-ready. He was 19 of 30 for 295 yards and no interceptions in his most proficient game since he threw for four touchdowns against the Bills in the January 1993 Super Bowl against the Bills.

Steelers quarterback Kordell Stewart, making his first NFL start on the same day that Aikman made his 126th, was sacked only three times, but often looked like he didn't know what had hit him.

Stewart played much like Aikman did in his first start in 1989 — a 28-0 loss to the Saints — by going 13-of-28 for 104 yards, one touchdown and one interception.

Simply, Slash crashed. He often overthrew his receivers and, despite Switzer's pre-game worries that Stewart could alter a game with his running, carried only once for four yards.

And, even though Cowboys cornerback Deion Sanders missed the entire preseason while playing baseball, Stewart rarely tested him. It was a decision as baffling as running up the middle with rookie George Jones, not All-Pro running back Jerome Bettis, while trailing 14-0.

"Kordell Stewart was introduced to the NFL today," Cowher said.

Amarillo's Bischof grabs Top O' Texas lead

PAMPA — Amarillo's James Bischof grabbed a one-shot lead Sunday after two rounds in the Hart Warren Top O' Texas Tournament at the Pampa Country Club course.

Bischof was in a four-way tie for fifth after Saturday's opening round, but his three-under par 68 on Sunday shot him into the lead with a two-round total of 138. Bischof won the tournament in 1992.

First-round leader Phil Everson of Pampa dropped to sole possession of third at 140. Borger's Les Phillips is in second at 139.

Bischof had three birdies and only one bogey in yesterday's round. Bischof had consecutive birdies on No. 3 and 4 and his only bogey came on No. 7. He closed out the round with a birdie on No. 18.

Everson, who finished with a Sunday round of 72, ran into trouble on No. 13 when his second shot rolled under a pine tree about 40 feet from the green. He had to hit the shot left-handed and was able to salvage a bogey. Everson bounced back with a 30-foot putt on No. 14.

The final 36 holes will be played today.

Patriots win in a rout without former coach

By The Associated Press

Drew Bledsoe, thrilled that Bill Parcells no longer huffs and gruffs his way around the New England locker room, led the relaxed Patriots to a rout of San Diego.

The New York Jets, thrilled that Bill Parcells is around to teach them how to win, blew away the Seattle Seahawks by an even bigger margin.

Go figure. Of 10 coaches who made their debuts with new NFL teams on Sunday, among the most intriguing were Parcells with the Jets, who finished 1-15 last year, and Pete Carroll with the Patriots, who went to the Super Bowl with Parcells.

Carroll "comes in, he's got a big smile on his face," Bledsoe said after throwing four TD passes in the first half of a 41-7 victory over the Chargers. "He makes you feel excited about taking the field. He makes you feel you can have some fun."

The Patriots outgained San Diego 323-47 in the first half, taking a 31-7 lead as Bledsoe completed scoring passes to four receivers. He finished 26-for-39 for 340 yards against the Chargers, who had Kevin Gilbride making his coaching debut.

"Nobody made a concerted effort not to think about Bill, but this is our team and he isn't our coach," running back Curtis Martin said. Three thousand miles away in Seattle, Parcells sent a message to his new team that he expects them to play like winners, and that he intends to coach them like winners.

Leading just 7-0 in a game the Jets eventually won 41-3, Parcells went against his assistants' advice and attempted a 55-yard field goal instead of punting. Rookie John Hall made the field goal with room to spare.

"Sure, it's a calculated risk,"

Parcells said. "But when you're trying to win the game, it means you've got to gamble a little bit."

Neil O'Donnell, a bust with the Jets a year ago when the only club they could beat was Arizona, passed for a career-high five touchdowns as New York rolled over Seattle, which suffered its worst home loss ever.

O'Donnell was 18-for-25 for 270 yards with no interceptions. Adrian Murrell rushed for 131 yards on 24 carries.

"I couldn't hope for anything better than that," Parcells said. "I realize this is a long season and this is just one step, but I'm very happy. I think we beat a pretty good football team that didn't play as well as they can play."

In other games, it was Cincinnati 24, Arizona 21; Detroit 28, Atlanta 17; Dallas 37, Pittsburgh 7; Miami 16, Indianapolis 10; Minnesota 34, Buffalo 13; St. Louis 38, New Orleans 24; New York Giants 31, Philadelphia 17; Tennessee 24, Oakland 21 in overtime; Jacksonville 28, Baltimore 27; Denver 19, Kansas 3; Tampa Bay 13, San Francisco 6; and Washington 24, Carolina 10.

Rams 38, Saints 24

Lawrence Phillips ran for a career-best 125 yards and three touchdowns, and host St. Louis forced five turnovers to spoil Mike Ditka's return and make Dick Vermeil's a success. Phillips, who scored four touchdowns in his rookie season last year, scored on runs of 1, 25 and 65 yards.

Ditka, 57, returned after a four-year absence in the broadcast booth, and Vermeil, 60, coached for the first time in 14 years.

Lions 28, Falcons 17

Detroit scored two defensive touchdowns in Bobby Ross' first game as coach of the Lions, who got only 33 yards rushing from Barry Sanders.

Stephen Boyd returned a fumble for a touchdown and set up a go-ahead score with an interception, spoiling Dan Reeves' debut with Atlanta.

to sideline him for the season.

Oilers 24, Raiders 21

Eddie George rushed for 216 yards, second-highest opening-day total in NFL history behind O.J. Simpson's 250 in 1973, and Steve McNair led a vintage overtime drive capped by a 33-yard field goal by Al Del Greco.

Only 30,171 fans showed up at the 62,000-seat Liberty Bowl in Memphis, and many of them wore Raiders black and silver and cheered for Oakland.

The Raiders, under new coach Joe Bugel, got good performances from Jeff George and Tim Brown. Jeff George was 21-for-37 for 298 yards and three touchdowns, all of them to Brown, who caught eight passes for 158 yards.

Jaguars 28, Ravens 27

A gimpy Rob Johnson, playing in place of injured Mark Brunell, threw a 28-yard touchdown pass to Jimmy Smith with 5:47 left, lifting Jacksonville at Baltimore.

Making his first NFL start, Johnson overcame a badly sprained left ankle, completing 20 of 24 passes for 294 yards and two touchdowns.

Johnson outplayed Pro Bowl quarterback Vinny Testaverde, who threw three touchdown passes for Baltimore, but also had three interceptions.

Bengals 24, Cardinals 21

Cincinnati scored three fourth-quarter touchdowns, including a 6-yard pass from Jeff Blake to Carl Pickens with 38 seconds left against stunned Arizona.

Ki-Jana Carter's 1-yard run made it 21-16 with 2:14 left. But the visiting Cardinals couldn't run out the clock although the Bengals were out of timeouts.

Larry Centers fumbled at Cincinnati's 37 with 1:10 left, setting up the final drive. Blake completed three consecutive sideline passes to stop the clock and get the Bengals close.

Giants 31, Eagles 17

Tiki Barber, one of five rookies starting for New York, rushed for 88 yards and a touchdown in Jim Fassel's debut as Giants coach.

The Giants defense sacked Philadelphia quarterbacks nine times, and safety Sam Garnes returned a fourth-quarter interception 95 yards after visiting Philadelphia cut a 24-3 deficit to 24-17. New York recorded 30 sacks last year.

Dolphins 16, Colts 10

Olando Mare kicked his first three NFL field goals and safety Shawn Wooden came up with three turnovers for host Miami against Indianapolis.

Dan Marino, playing in his 200th game in his 15th season, completed just 10 of 26 passes for 105 yards. Linebacker Elijah Alexander returned Marino's only interception 43 yards for Indianapolis' only touchdown.

Wooden recovered a fumble and had two interceptions against Jim Harbaugh, who completed 14 of 29 passes for 109 yards.

Vikings 34, Bills 13

Minnesota's Robert Smith gained a career-high 169 yards on 16 carries and broke loose on a 78-yard touchdown run early in the fourth quarter at Buffalo.

Vikings linebacker Jeff Brady sealed the victory when he returned a fumbled snap 30 yards for a touchdown.

Brad Johnson threw two touchdown passes to Kris Carter, who had eight catches for 119 yards.

Broncos 19, Chiefs 3

Terrell Davis ran for 101 yards and the game's only touchdown, a 10-yard burst early in the final period, and Jason Elam kicked four field goals for host Denver.

John Elway, shrugging off the ruptured biceps tendon he suffered on Aug. 4 and a hand injury just before the half, completed 17 of 28 passes for 246 yards as the Broncos opened the season gaining 378 yards.

Astros drop series against White Sox

CHICAGO (AP)—Craig Biggio had the feeling he could make it. He should know. As one of the National League's best base stealers, he has the go-ahead from Houston manager Larry Dierker to run when he wants.

He'd already stolen three bases Sunday against the Chicago White Sox. His attempt at No. 4, though, was a bit risky — the Astros trailed by two runs with two outs in the ninth and had the tying runs on base.

"I think he felt he got a good jump and they'd also have a guy at second," said White Sox catcher Jorge Fabregas, who threw Biggio out to end the game and give Chicago a 3-1 victory.

Runs were scarce for the Astros as they dropped the three-game interleague series. They scored only seven.

That's why they came out running Sunday, stealing five bases in five attempts before Biggio was stopped.

"We've not been able to see them much," Chicago winner James Baldwin (11-13) said. "They caught us off-guard a couple of times. You don't want to make the third out at third base, especially when you're down two runs."

"Since you got caught, it's a stupid play," Biggio said.
"I thought I'd make it. You don't want to make the first or third out at third base, especially to end the game."
Biggio was at second and Bill Spiers at first with two outs against Chicago reliever Matt Karchner. With Derek Bell, who'd earlier driven in Houston's only run, at the plate, Biggio — with 35 steals — took off.

"He (Biggio) was timing him (Karchner). But I thought he would let Derek go ahead and bat," Fabregas said. "In the American League they let the guy hit."

Jerry Lewis' telethon for muscular dystrophy begins 32nd year; 30-year-old man honored

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Chris Rosa remembers watching Jerry Lewis' annual telethon each year, entranced by the performers and the efforts to help those with muscular dystrophy. Then he found out he had the degenerative disease.
 The 30-year-old man from Flushing, N.Y., is being honored this year for helping educate the public about disabilities. The 21 1/2-hour Muscular Dystrophy Association telethon began its 32nd year Sunday night.

 "To me, it's a definitive piece of Americana," Rosa said. "We watched religiously, pledged every year, not realizing that we would reap the benefits one day."

Organizers — with help from hundreds of entertainers, sports figures and other celebrities — hope to top last year's pledges of $49.1 million.
 "I would like to hit that magic 50," said Ed McMahon, who has been the host of the telethon for 30 years.
