DALLAS (AP) — A Texas Supreme Court task force has recommended that state juries no longer be required to render unanimous verdicts in criminal trials, The Dallas Morning News reported in today's editions.

The task force report, obtained by The News, also recommends that state jurors get their first juror pay increase since 1866, from $6 a day to $40 a day.

The task force also recommended that jurors be allowed to take notes during testimony and that judges get more control over how long jury trial take.

The recommendations are expected to be formally announced in late September.

Unidentified panel members told The News that they think the Supreme Court will implement their proposals by court order within the next year.

Police search for clues in shooting

Proctor case still unsolved

By LAURA HALEY
Staff Writer

Nine months after the fatal shooting of 18-year-old Richard Proctor, police are still searching for a motive and narrowing down the list of suspects.

"It hasn't been forgotten," said Det. Connie Lockridge, who has made it her mission to solve the case.

The police department is still receiving lead on the case, and the list of suspects has been narrowed down to five individuals, she said. Although no names could be released, Lockridge said the suspects are of varying ages and do not necessarily reside in Pampa.

Proctor was shot in the back of the head about 11:30 p.m. on Albert Street on Christmas Eve last year when a bullet entered through the back window of the Cadillac he was in. Two individuals in the car with Proctor, the driver and a backseat passenger, were unharmed.

Switzerland freezes Pakistani's accounts

Former Prime Minister target of investigation

BERN, Switzerland (AP) —

Four Geneva banks have been ordered to freeze the accounts of former Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto and her family as part of a corruption investigation, Swiss officials said today.

The Swiss Federal Office of Police Affairs said the provisional freeze was ordered at the request of the Pakistani government, which suspects Ms. Bhutto of having illegally enriched herself while in office.

Ms. Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party called the allegations a "sheer lie" in a statement issued today.

The freeze was part of an effort by Pakistan's government to block Bhutto family accounts in nine countries, including Britain and France, according to Pakistani officials who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Swiss police office said it had no information from the banks about how much money might be in the accounts.

Pakistani officials showed reporters in Islamabad bank documents showing Ms. Bhutto and her husband, Asif Ali Zardari, kept between $50 million and $80 million in the accounts.

Military cargo plane crashes; 9 Air Force personnel missing

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — A Namibian fishing vessel today found wreckage but no survivors at the site where U.S. and German military planes are believed to have collided and plummeted into the ocean.

The vessel picked up seats from the German plane and some papers written in German, said Capt. Joy Rautenbach of the Maritime Research and Rescue Coordination Center in Cape Town. The debris was found about 60 miles west of Cape Fria, Namibia.

There were no signs of the American C-141 cargo plane and the nine American servicemen that were aboard it when it set out Saturday, she said.

The two aircraft, carrying a total of 33 people, were reported missing around the same time off the coast of southern Africa.

Brig. Hap Potgieter, in charge of operations for the South African Air Force in Pretoria, said a nearly 24-hour delay in reporting the missing aircraft had hampered the rescue effort. He said he did not know why the delay occurred.

Potgieter said the two aircraft were traveling the same route but in different directions on Saturday.

The U.S. Air Force C-141 Starlifter cargo plane had just flown cargo from Ascension Island to Namibia and was returning to the British island.

The Soviet-made German air force plane was en route from Germany to Cape Town, South Africa. Presumed killed were 12 German marines, two of their spouses, and 10 crew members.

"We are presuming it went down in the Atlantic Ocean," Sgt. Ellen Schirmer said of the American plane. She is a spokeswoman for Air Mobility Command, headquartered at Scott Air Force Base in Illinois.

The names of the Americans, as released by McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey, are: Capt. Peter C. Vallejo, Capt. Gregory M. Cindrich, Capt. Jason S. Ramsey, Staff Sgt. Robert K. Evans, Staff Sgt. Scott N. Roberts, Staff Sgt. Stacy D. Bryant, junior Airman Gary Bucknam, Senior Airman Frankie L. Walker and Airman Justin R. Drager.

The men's hometowns were not made public. All are assigned to the 13th Airlift Squadron at McGuire, part of the 305th Air Mobility Wing.

Festival helps local group

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY
Staff Writer

It's got a new name but that doesn't mean Texans still won't find the best fine arts and crafts in the panhandle at this year's Top O' Texas Fine Arts and Crafts Festival.

Makers of fine arts and hand-crafted items are all invited to participate in the former Pampa Fine Arts Top O' Texas Arts and Crafts Festival, sponsored this year by the Celebration of Lights organization.

The participation of local citizens in this year's festival has a "domino effect" in terms of success for the Pampa Community.

The festival, for example, gives amateur artists and craftsmen the opportunity to display and sell their crafts.

Peggy Palmitier, one of the original artists that participated in the first show about 30 years ago, got involved to do just that.

"I wanted to afford to do my craft and the only way to afford to do it was to sell it," Palmitier said.

This year's festival will also provide the Celebration of Lights organization with a portion of funds to place Christmas light displays at Recreation Park, according to the organization's chairwoman, Susan Edwards.

Everyone displaying their art at the Top O' Texas Arts and Crafts festival is required to donate one item for drawings during each day. Proceeds of the ticket sales for the drawings will benefit Celebration of Lights.

PROCTOR

Both, said Lockridge, claim they do not know what happened and have told police that the gunfire came from an individual in a red, Chevrolet extended-cab truck.

It is not known whether the shot was intended to kill anyone in the Cadillac, said the detective. The gunfire may have been in an attempt to scare the three men, said Lockridge.

However, the two witnesses have not given any reasons as to why the shots would have been fired at them. Speculation exists as to the activities of the two men and Proctor on the night of the shooting, but Lockridge would not comment about it.

"The main focus is who killed Richard," she said. Even with the influx of information police have received about the shooting, there are still no solid leads. When police attempt to check out a lead, people "don't know" or have "forgotten" what they knew.

"That's why it's been such a difficult case to track down," said Lockridge. "It's the worst case of amnesia I've ever seen."

Despite the witness problems, which Lockridge attributes to fear, police detectives are continuing to work on the case with no apparent motives.

"Right now I have a dead 18-year-old kid and I don't know why he's dead," she said.

FESTIVAL

In addition to helping promote the Christmas display, the festival is also increasing tourism.

Gail Kinkaid, a regular participant from Austin, has been showing her work in the festival since the mid 1970s.

Another participant, Del Davis Bradley, began her stint with the festival while she lived in Pampa.

Now a Hobbs, NM resident, Bradley continues to come back and participate.

"I come because it's so good," said Bradley. "I have lots of people I do business with and so I keep coming back."

The festival, scheduled for Oct. 11-12, at M.K. Brown Auditorium, costs $40 per booth. The application deadline is Sept. 30. Anyone interested in participating may call Kathleen Chaney at 665-3552 for more information.

Fund-raising scandal: Ickes headed for more closed-door questioning into Gore's calls to donors, aides say

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators plan to call former White House official Harold Ickes back for more private questioning to explore what he knows about Vice President Al Gore's fund-raising calls to donors, congressional aides say.

The move means that President Clinton's one-time deputy chief of staff probably will not appear at open hearings until early October.

Ickes was first questioned before disclosures that Gore's fund-raising telephone calls involving money the Democratic Party treated as "hard money" donations to the 1996 Clinton-Gore re-election campaign.

The raising of such funds on federal property is illegal, and the Justice Department is investigating the calls.

Investigators want to question Ickes further about what Gore and Clinton knew of the Democratic Party's handling of money they raised in calls from the White House, said Senate aides who spoke on condition of anonymity.

In a deposition given June 26 and 27 and made available Sunday, Ickes said he asked Clinton "to make phone calls two, three, maybe four times at the most."

He said he was told such calls were legal by "one of the many, many, many lawyers that inhabit the White House Counsel's Office."

But Ickes said he did not know whether the vice president's staff considered the same legal questions before Gore made calls: "I did not deal in that regard with the vice president. He had his own counsel and his own political staff."

made whether to call Ickes as a witness at the current Senate hearings on fund-raising abuses.

But if the defiant and sometimes flippant answers Ickes gave in his deposition are any indication, he would not bolster the efforts of Senate Republicans to show that Clinton's campaign sold access to big donors.

Ickes told investigators he was not knowledgeable of the details of Democratic National Committee fund raising because "my focus ... was the bottom line, as they like to say in the finance business."

He insisted that social events for donors such as White House coffee klatches with Clinton and Gore or sleepovers in the Lincoln Bedroom were not fund-raisers.

"As far as I know, there was no direct connection between an amount of money that you gave and being invited to the White House," Ickes said. "Had I known of it, I would have not only disapproved of it, I would have told them to stop doing it."

Despite memos from his own files showing DNC projections for raising up to $400,000 at coffee klatches, Ickes said, "I did not pay that much attention ... to the dollar amounts put by each event. That was something professional fund-raisers estimated."

Ickes said he had to nudge Clinton to make the fund-raising calls after giving him a small list of donors. "I would bug him in a very low-keyed way as to whether he had made or was intending to make the phone calls."

The president disliked making such pitches and "he didn't volunteer to make calls," Ickes recalled.

Clinton has left open the possibility he made fund-raising calls but did not recall making any, the White House has said.

Asked whether he ever learned that the president made the calls, Ickes replied: "Yeah, when I was fortunate enough to find out that he had, in fact, made a phone call. Sometimes there was feedback. Sometimes there wouldn't be."

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., said Sunday he was disturbed by Ickes' comments.

"The president has denied these calls and apparently it was an ongoing operation," McCain, a co-sponsor of legislation to overhaul campaign fund raising, said on CNN's Late Edition.

McCain also said his bill, opposed by nearly all his Republican colleagues, could reach the Senate floor before Congress goes home this year. He said he had spoken with Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., about the possibility, and "I am very hopeful."

Lott, who has previously held that debate on campaign finance reform should await the end of hearings on fund-raising abuses, also appeared more open to earlier consideration of the legislation. He said on CBS' Face the Nation that he would like to see "if we can develop a process where it can be done in a reasonable and fair way."

But the bill's leading critic, Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., promised a filibuster if the measure reaches the floor.

Legislation contains high priority but no money for I-69 project

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Federal highway legislation lists an interstate highway to link the Rio Grande Valley with the proposed Interstate 69 "NAFTA Superhighway" as a high-priority project but would commit no money toward developing the project.

That brought no discouraging words from Valley officials who are looking for any progress toward incorporating the area into the nation's interstate highway system.

"The fact that we are listed in the legislation is a strong step," said Tina Martin of McAllen, a board member for the Texas Alliance for I-69.

The Valley designation in the legislation as the site of a possible I-69 extension is crucial, Ms. Martin told The McAllen Monitor newspaper for today's editions.

"We are one of the few that came out on top," she said.

I-69 currently stretches from the Canadian border at Port Huron, Mich., to Indianapolis.

In part, because of commerce brought by the North American Free Trade Agreement, federal legislators have recognized the need to extend it to Mexico, identifying U.S. 59, U.S. 281 and U.S. 77 as possible corridors for an I-69 extension.

However, the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act, the federal law that gave the recognition, is set to expire Sept. 30.

U.S. Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa., has proposed replacing the program with a $103 billion plan to replace ISTEA.

The new bill awaits closer congressional scrutiny, and companion Senate legislation has yet to be introduced. An obstacle could be the $103 billion price tag, some $17 billion more than allowed under terms of federal balanced-budget legislation.

Judicial task force recommends higher pay for jurors

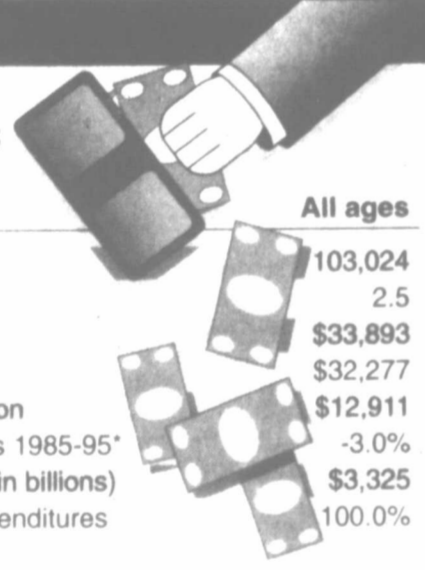

DALLAS (AP) — A Texas Supreme Court task force has recommended that state juries no longer be required to render unanimous decisions when serving punishment in criminal trials. The Dallas Morning News reported in today's editions.

The task force report, obtained by The News, also recommends that state jurors get their first juror pay increase since 1866, from $6 a day to $40 a day. The task force also recommended that jurors be allowed to take notes during testimony and that judges get more control over how long jury trial take.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Budget deals good business

There is one difference between a tax collector and a taxidermist. The taxidermist leaves the hide.

Congress spent a good part of last summer debating federal tax policies, and though we couldn't do as much as I would have liked, I am pleased to report that small businesses are going to have a little more hide left when next year's tax day rolls around. What follows is a rundown on provisions of the law as it affects small business:

Does the new law change the rule for small businesses mandating electronic filing of payroll taxes?

Yes, it does. The requirement for electronic filing has caused major headaches for small businesses. Many felt they were not given enough time to adapt to the new system. Not all banks are equipped for their customers to file electronically, and the banks that were equipped imposed surcharges for the service - in effect, increasing the tax rate. The new law delays penalties for failing to comply with the requirement through July 1, 1998. Congress plans to revisit this issue next year. At that time, I hope we either will extend the deadline once again, or change the rules to require electronic payment of federal employment taxes only if the amount of taxes to be deposited exceeds a specified minimum. I am co-sponsoring a bill that would set those minimums as follows: those paying a minimum of $30 million in 1996 would have to file electronically by January, 1998; $20 million in 1997 by January, 1999; $10 million in 1998 by January, 2000; $5 million in 1999 by 2001 and beyond.

How does the new law affect the corporate alternative minimum tax (AMT)?

Small businesses with average gross receipts of less than $5 million will be exempted from the corporate AMT. They qualify if they have average gross receipts of less than $5 million for the three year period beginning after Dec. 31, 1994 and ending Dec. 31, 1997. A corporation that met these requirements over the past three years will continue to be exempt from the AMT, so long as its average gross receipts do not exceed $7.5 million.

How does the new law address the home office deduction?

It clarifies the definition of a "principal place of business." This will expand the number of taxpayers eligible for this deduction. The office must be used by the taxpayer to conduct administrative or management activities of a business, and there may be no other fixed location where the taxpayer conducts substantial business activities.

Did Congress make any progress toward reducing the estate tax?

The answer is yes, but in my view, we did not go far enough. I favor abolishing the estate tax altogether. However, the new law includes a $1.3 million estate tax exclusion for family-owned small businesses and family farms. The family must have owned or materially participated in the business or farm for at least five of the eight years preceding the death. In addition, each qualified heir (or member of the qualified family) is required to materially participate in the business for at least five years of any eight year period within 10 years following the death. For individuals, the estate tax exemption rises over the next 11 years from $600,000 to $1 million - too slow, but better than what we have now.

As far as I'm concerned, small businesses are still taxed at too high a rate, both in direct payments and indirectly through the imposition of pointless rules and ineffective but expensive regulatory requirements. I will continue to work on finding better ways for the government to deal with the economic engines that create two out of every three jobs in our country. America's small businesses.

Texas children to benefit

The Texas Child Support Enforcement System began online operations throughout the state during the week of Sept. 8. This new automated computer system will greatly enhance the Office of the Attorney General's child support enforcement activities.

Because conversion to the new computer system will take place over the Labor Day weekend, some September child support checks will be delayed. Payments processed between Thursday, Aug. 28, 1997 and Friday, Sept. 5, 1997 are scheduled for distribution no sooner than Sept. 10, 1997.

The OAG is making every effort to minimize the impact of this massive conversion project on critical child support services by:

- a notifying parents affected by the conversion;
- informing county, state and federal officials of relevant changes;
- advising the media concerning the computer system transition;
- notifying more than 60,000 employers; and
- alerting utility companies across the state.

In addition, we are expanding our toll-free automated system and our toll-free call center operations. (The number for parents to call is 1-800-252-8014.)

The benefits of this new computer system will far outweigh any temporary delays during the conversion process.

The computer system is designed to make locating noncustodial parents, establishing paternities, enforcing court-ordered child support and routine collection and distribution of support payments easier and more effective. The system provides automated tools for case workers and managers, and facilitates sharing information with other public and private agencies.

Dan Morales

Attorney General for the State of Texas

The current child support system simply stores and retrieves data. The new computer system produces letters automatically and inserts scheduled activities on case workers' calendars.

TXCSES provides case workers a detailed log of all activities performed on a case, and notifies them each morning of the tasks that need to be done for each case they are handling. The system provides staff with lists of potential legal actions that could be taken at each phase of the process. This feature allows staff to quickly verify which legal remedy is most appropriate in the case.

The current child support system has been organized by case. If an individual is involved in more than one case, new information about that individual had to be entered on the computer several times. TXCSES, however, is a member-based system. This means that new information received about a non-custodial parent, child, or other individual is entered into the system once. All cases associated with that individual are then cross-referenced and updated automatically by the system.

TXCSES has more than 100 automated interfaces (direct connections or computer tape transfers) with other state and federal agencies, as well as private entities such as credit bureaus. This is approximately twice the number of interfaces on the current system.

Interfaces are used for a variety of purposes: automated referrals of welfare clients from the Texas Department of Human Services, provision of updated information from the National Change of Address registration services offered through the U. S. Postal Service, and other functions.

Other interfaces provide for the automated interception of IRS refunds and unemployment compensation checks for non-custodial parents who owe back payments for child support. Interfaces with licensing agencies are used to identify delinquent non-custodial parents for the purpose of initiating the license suspension process for driver's licenses, professional and recreational licenses.

Child support staff is working around the clock to make the conversion to TXCSES as smooth as possible. This new system will be one of the greatest advancements ever in the collection of child support. By speeding up the processing of cases, it will benefit hundreds of thousands of Texas children.

De Klerk guided South Africa reform

In the minds of his fellow countrymen, and in the eyes of the world, there was nothing particularly momentous about F.W. de Klerk's ascent to South Africa's presidency. At the time of his election, in 1989, hardly anyone imagined there would be much difference in his policies and those of his Afrikaner predecessor P.W. Botha.

But as de Klerk retires from South African politics, he leaves behind an admirable legacy. He presided over his country's peaceful transition from three and a half centuries of white minority rule to multiracial democracy. De Klerk wept on his inauguration day, perhaps foreseeing the great challenge that lay before him. "White domination will have to disappear," he declared, shortly after taking over the government in Pretoria. "Otherwise there will never be peace in South Africa."

This was a revolutionary statement for the leader of the National Party, which had ruled South Africa for 40 years and instituted the country's odious system of racial apartheid. And it earned de Klerk the enmity of many white right-wing Afrikaners.

Meanwhile, much of South Africa's oppressed black population doubted de Klerk's sincerity. They were unconvinced, as was much of the world, that he would go so far as to dismantle apartheid and to willingly cede power to the country's black majority.

But that is precisely, and extraordinarily, what de Klerk did. Within a year of assuming South Africa's presidency, he lifted the ban on the African National Congress and other black political organizations, welcomed exiled South Africans to return home, removed restrictions on the news media, lifted the state of emergency in the black provinces and freed political prisoners.

The most prominent of these political prisoners, of course, was Nelson Mandela, who had been solitarily confined on South Africa's Robben Island for the better part of 27 years. Upon his release, de Klerk invited Mandela to join with him, along with representatives of South Africa's major political parties, to draft a new constitution that would ultimately result in black majority rule.

In the meantime, de Klerk set out to repeal South Africa's apartheid laws. First to go was the Separate Amenities Act, which permitted government officials to reserve public facilities for whites. Next were the Land Acts, which restricted black ownership to less than 14 percent of South Africa's land.

De Klerk then went after the Group Areas Act, which mandated residential segregation. And finally, he struck down the last pillar of the apartheid regime, the Populations Registration Act, which classified all South Africans by race at birth.

Of course, not all of South Africa's 5.4 million whites were sanguine with the rapid pace of change their country was undergoing. So de Klerk took a decidedly bold step. He scheduled a whites-only referendum (the last such vote, as it turns out) in which the country's ruling minority was asked a simple question:

"Do you support continuation of the reform process, which the state president began on Feb. 2, 1990, and which is aimed at a new constitution through negotiation?"

Had a majority of whites voted "no," then de Klerk's efforts to broker a peaceful transfer of power to South Africa's black majority would have failed. But an overwhelming majority of whites backed de Klerk, giving him the vote of confidence he needed to continue his efforts to end apartheid and transform South Africa into a true democracy.

In 1994, South Africa held its first multiracial election and Mandela, only four years removed from prison, was elected president. While the entire world celebrated Mandela's ascent to power, hardly anyone acknowledged his departing predecessor, who made it all possible.

But surely, F.W. de Klerk rates as one of the greatest world leaders of the past half-century. Indeed, had he chosen to resist change in South Africa, apartheid might still exist. The nation's black majority might still be disenfranchised. And Mandela might still be languishing on Robben Island.

But de Klerk chose, courageously, to be an instrument of change. And South Africa is a better nation because he did.

Economic forecast: Business economists see interest rate boost on the horizon ...

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although top economic forecasters are confident the economy will not exceed the Federal Reserve's speed limit, they expect to see an interest rate increase soon to ensure against an acceleration.

"The American economy is likely to grow at an average quarterly rate of 2.4 percent over the next four quarters," according to a summary of an August survey of 43 professional forecasters.

The results of the latest poll by the National Association for Business Economics were released at the organization's annual meeting in New Orleans today and made available here.

Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan told Congress earlier this summer that the economy's performance was "exceptional," with low unemployment and low inflation. He said the central bank expected growth to range between 3 percent and 3.25 percent this year and between 2 percent and 2.5 percent in 1998.

The NABE forecasters predicted the nation's output of goods and services will rise 3.4 percent this year, reflecting the sizzling 4.9 percent rate of the January-March quarter, and 2.3 percent next year.

The Clinton administration is predicting rises of 3.5 percent in 1997 and 2 percent in 1998, while the Congressional Budget Office sees 3.4 percent growth this year and 2.1 percent next year.

The business economists also predicted that inflation will remain tame, rising just 2.2 percent this year and 2.8 percent in 1998. The Consumer Price Index rose 3.2 percent last year.

"Despite this benign outlook for inflation, a solid majority of the forecasters (26 of 43 respondents) continue to believe the Federal Reserve System will tighten its policy to prevent economic activity from exceeding its speed limit," the summary said.

"The most likely time for such actions, panel members said, is between September 1997 and March 1998."

The Fed's next policy-setting meeting is Sept. 30. After nudging short-term rates up one-quarter percentage point in March because of the strong first-quarter growth, Fed officials left them steady at their May and July meetings amid signs the economy had begun to moderate.

Despite his rosy view of the economy, Greenspan warned Congress that the central bank stood ready to boost interest rates if inflationary warning lights appeared.

"A driver might tap the brakes to make sure not to be hit by a truck coming down the street, even if he thinks the chances of such an event are relatively low," he testified.

"Similarly, in conducting monetary policy the Federal Reserve needs constantly to look down the road to gauge the future risks to the economy and act accordingly."

The NABE survey found the forecasters believe any rate increase "will have little or no impact on the near-term outlook for the economy," the summary said. "Only two members expect a recession to begin in 1998, while 35 said the next slump would begin in 1999 or later (including three who said 'never')."

The survey consensus also sees continued low unemployment, averaging 5 percent this year and 5.1 percent next.

Still, a separate NABE survey of 214 members last month found "labor shortages are growing concerns."

Economists say that if the labor force shrinks too much, it could allow workers to demand higher wages, which likely would be passed along as price increases.

Internal Revenue Service auditing Joneses' taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nothing about Paula Jones, a housewife without a job, and her husband should normally draw IRS scrutiny, a close adviser to Jones says.

But the couple received a notice Friday that they would be audited for their 1995 tax return, a move described by adviser Susan Carpenter-McMillan as "very peculiar" coming days after Jones rejected a settlement proposal and her lawyers quit.

The notice arrived roughly a week after a Little Rock, Ark., judge granted a request from Jones' lawyers to leave the case. The lawyers, Gil Davis and Joseph Cammarata, said they had "fundamental differences of opinion" with Jones, who rejected a proposed settlement that involved giving her $700,000 and a statement of regret from President Clinton for any damage to her reputation.

While stopping short of calling the audit outright retaliation, Carpenter-McMillan said it seemed strange that federal auditors were suddenly so interested in the Joneses, who own little property and live off of Stephen Jones' $37,000 annual salary.

"I find the timing very peculiar. I would only ask the American public what they think about the timing. Most people in the public would find it a little odd," said Carpenter-McMillan, chairman of the Paula Jones Legal Fund since July, in an interview Sunday.

"They're a family with two little children. They have one car, they rent a little apartment. How many people renting and making under $40,000 a year get audited?"

White House spokesman Lanny Davis declined comment Sunday, but USA Today quoted Clinton's private attorney, Robert Bennett, as denying any White House involvement in the audit.

"The president and his representatives have not sicced the IRS on Mrs. Jones and her husband," Bennett told the newspaper. "If we were to do that it would make things worse."

Jones, a former Arkansas state employee, filed a lawsuit claiming that Clinton asked her for oral sex in a Little Rock hotel room during a May 1991 conference he attended as governor of Arkansas. Clinton has denied Jones' accusation, saying he does not remember meeting her.

Prince Charles: Calls for William to be next king upset his son

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles is angry over calls for him to step aside as heir to the throne in favor of Prince William, saying the statements have upset his son, The Mirror reported today.

Another paper, The Sun, reported that Buckingham Palace aides have banned a new set of postage stamps commemorating Princess Diana's life. It said mail chiefs hoped to rush the stamps out by the end of the month, but the queen's aides refused to give permission.

The Mirror quoted an unidentified aide to Charles as saying he is enraged by polls commissioned by the media after Diana's death that show many want William, 15, to become king when Queen Elizabeth II dies.

The most recent, a Gallup poll published Thursday in The Daily Telegraph, showed 51 percent of those questioned thought William should be the next king; 53 percent said the royal family's public standing had been damaged by Diana's death.

The margin of error for the poll of 1,004 interviews was 3 percentage points.

Rwandans bury tens of thousands of genocide victims

NYAMATA, Rwanda (AP) — Only the shuffling of feet and an occasional plaintive wail could be heard as Rwandans filed by the skulls and other bones of thousands of victims of one of the century's worst genocides.

Three years ago, more than a half-million Rwandans were slain in a massacre carefully engineered by the Hutu government then in power. On Sunday, survivors and relatives of the victims gathered at the site of some of the worst bloodletting: a Roman Catholic church.

Later, in a Mass attended by thousands of Rwandans, Nyamata Catholic Church became the largest permanent burial ground for the mainly Tutsi victims of the Hutu-led genocide.

Amarillo Opera to open 10th season with 'CARMEN'

AMARILLO — Amarillo Opera will transport audiences to romantic Spain with its lavish season opener guaranteed to stir the gypsy soul in everyone. The company will celebrate its tenth season when it stages Georges Bizet's opera CARMEN beginning at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 20 at the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium, according to Amarillo Opera area representative, Marian Stroup.

Mila Gibson, Amarillo Opera founder/director, auditioned over 80 mezzosopranos for the title role. "Carmen must not only have a commanding voice — she must radiate sensuality. When I heard Linda Munguia's rich, sultry voice and saw her undeniable stage appeal, I knew I had found our 'Carmen!'" says Gibson.

Munguia's experience includes her role as Carmen in a widely acclaimed recent touring production. Reviewers describe her performance as "impossible to ignore" and "R-Rated." The professional singer, whose career has taken her to New York, Budapest and Sri-Lanka, is a native Texan.

Munguia is one of three renowned stars who will make this production sizzle.

Professional tenor Chuck Wood will portray Don Jose, the army corporal who falls hopelessly in love with Carmen. The role of Escamillo, the toreador, will be brought to life by professional baritone Tod Taylor.

Amarillo Opera has staged CARMEN before, but never has the company produced it on such a large and lavish scale. Mila Gibson will serve as artistic director for the production. As music director, Amarillo Symphony Conductor Jim Setapen leads a full orchestra to recreate Bizet's resounding score. The production features special guest appearances by the Lone Star Ballet and the Amarillo Boy Choir. Gene Murray will serve as stage director, and Beth Nelson will head up a talented costume crew. Elaborate backdrops are by the same Italian scene design company who produced the memorable sets from LA TRAVIATA and DIE FLEDERMAUS.

Audiences will recognize many of their favorite area singers in supporting roles. Lela Harris of Pampa will be singing with the chorus of 50 which in turn will round out the large cast.

Set in Seville, Spain, Bizet's CARMEN is the most often performed work in the operatic repertoire. It features a riveting story line, a host of fascinating characters including bullfighters and gypsies, and some of the most powerful music ever written. Although Bizet was French, he captures all the flavor and rhythms of Spain in his instantly recognizable score.

CARMEN is being produced by Amarillo Opera in association with Amarillo College.

Tickets may be purchased through the Civic Center Box Office by calling (806) 378-3096. Tickets are included with a season membership in BRAVO!, the support organization for Amarillo Opera. To become a season member, call Amarillo Opera at (806) 372-SING (7464).

SBC wants FCC to crack down on slammers

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Frustrated by a problem that has reached even its own executive offices, SBC Communications Inc. planned to ask the Federal Communications Commission today to crack down on companies that "slam" residential long-distance phone users.

The San Antonio-based company, parent of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., will propose that the FCC levy fines of up to $10,000 on firms that trick customers into switching long-distance companies without their permission.

Customers learn they've been slammed only when their bill arrives and a different company is listed.

Southwestern Bell handles only local calls but fears it is associated with the problem because it is the billing and collections agent for many of the offending companies, said president and chief executive Cliff Eason.

There's also something to gain for Southwestern Bell, which could lose business to slammers once customers are able to choose a local phone service provider.

But Eason said the company is mainly concerned with protecting its reputation.

"They (customers) oftentimes think until they talk to us that we are guilty of having made this happen," Eason said. "That is bothersome as a businessman that we are being tarred with this brush erroneously."

Roughly 500,000 slamming disputes have arisen this year within Southwestern Bell's five-state service region — Texas, Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. That's a 30-percent jump from 1996, he said.

"It started out as a phenomena in residential (phone service). Now, we're seeing it in small businesses such as doctor's offices, dentists and insurance agencies," Eason said.

Even the SBC executive offices have been hit. A few months ago, phones in a conference room near the office of Chairman Ed Whitacre Jr. were switched to another long-distance carrier.

"We didn't agree to that," Eason said.

The FCC in July requested that telecommunications companies suggest specific rules to protect consumers and businesses from slamming. New FCC rules are expected by the end of this year.

Prisoners' Pen Pals Get Letters Filled With Fraud

DEAR ABBY: I work for the Department of Corrections in Arizona, and I have seen a practice started by many well-meaning ministers who encourage their congregations to write to prisoners. I understand their intentions are good, but they are unaware of how dangerous this could be to their parishioners.

One teen-age girl started writing to an inmate. He told her he was 23 and in on drug charges. A suspicious adult called our information center and was told that he was 48 and a child molester! He was also coming up for parole.

Another lady started writing a prisoner. He told her what she wanted to hear, so when he came up for early release she offered him a place to stay. (Convicts need a place to live for any type of early release.) He immediately started selling drugs from her house, stole several thousand dollars from her, and her house was even raided.

These men are cons. They have the time to devote much attention to the person they are writing to. They can and will tell people what they want to hear, and someone who is lonely and has a good heart can be deeply hurt.

Please, Abby, warn your readers not to engage in this practice. I'm signing my name — but please do not print it.

DEAR CONCERNED: Thank you for the graphic warning. I hope that those individuals who need it will heed your message.

I don't believe that anyone who has ever spent time in prison is beyond rehabilitation. However, those who are considering correspondence would be well advised to proceed with caution. Well-intentioned people tend to accept without skepticism information that seems to parallel their hopes and beliefs. Felons are often skilled manipulators who bring their skills to prison with them — and have many years to sharpen them.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing about the man who wrote to say that his wife verbally abused their child. You must tell him to stand up to that woman and insist that it stop, or he is taking the child and leaving her. If she were beating or sexually abusing the boy, that is what he would say. Verbal abuse is all the more dangerous because people let it happen.

The man said that he had received counseling to deal with his wife's verbal abuse. Well, that counseling has not worked if he is still afraid to stand up to her. Abuse happens because people are afraid to do what is necessary to put an end to it.

I would bet this man had angry parents, and that's why he has a deep fear of doing what it takes to stop his wife's abusive behavior.
MELINDA STENDEL, LICENSED CLINICAL SOCIAL WORKER, EVANSTON, ILL.

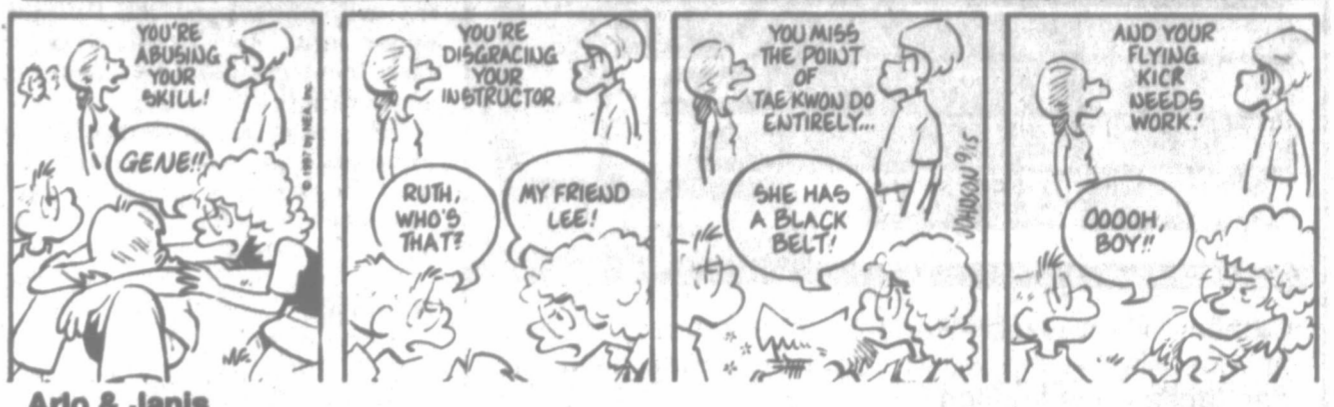

DEAR MS. STENDEL: And I'm willing to bet you're correct. However, there's no excuse for permitting the abuse to continue or to put off getting whatever help is necessary to end it.

PHS tennis team takes command of district

PAMPA — Outdoors or indoors, it doesn't seem to make any difference. The Pampa High tennis team is proving tough to beat.

Rain forced the Pampa-Herford District 1-4A match indoors Saturday. Pampa won, 17-1, to take sole possession of first in the district standings with a 2-0 mark.

"We had some solid performances despite the weather delays," said Pampa coach Larry Wheeler. "We really appreciated the Youth Center's hospitality in helping us deal with the rain situation."

Players of the week for Pampa are juniors Bryce Hudson, Valerie Lee and Kellen Waters. Hudson has a 2-8 singles record while Lee is 6-3 and Waters, 4-2.

Senior McKinley Quarles got her 100th career victory with her singles win, becoming only the seventh player in PHS history to achieve the feat. Quarles defeated Diana Detten, 4-6, 6-0, 7-2, to even her record at 5-5.

"We have a huge showdown for the district lead at Canyon this coming Saturday with the winner being in the driver's seat for district. A great week of practice is a must," said Wheeler.

BASEBALL

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP)

The pitching-poor Minnesota Twins are auditioning for next season's rotation, and rookie Dan Serafini is putting in a strong bid for one of those slots.

Serafini won his second start since being recalled from Class AAA Salt Lake City on Sept. 2, allowing seven hits over seven shutout innings Sunday as the Twins beat the Texas Rangers 11-1.

"I'm trying to win a job," Serafini said. "I think I belong here. But I need to keep pitching the way I am now. My fastball is there, but the off-speed pitch is a little shaky. There are things I need to work on."

Serafini (2-0) didn't have his best stuff against Texas, but he didn't have to, not when his teammates provided him with a six-run first inning highlighted by Todd Walker's three-run homer.

"Sure it's nice to get a lead like that, but I made a lot of mistakes," said Serafini, who struck out three and walked three. "Sometimes you get too relaxed. So you've got to go out there and make your pitches no matter how many runs you've got."

Twins manager Tom Kelly felt Serafini pitched better in his first start this season, a 7-2 five-hit complete-game victory over Oakland on Sept. 8.

"I think he kept the ball down better the first time," Kelly said. "But today he got a nice lead and was able to hold it. A six-spot is a nice cushion to work with. He's got to keep the ball down, get his slider over and get his changeup over. If he does that, he'll have a shot."

Rangers starter Bobby Witt (11-11) retired only one batter, matching his shortest outing in a career spanning 336 starts. He allowed six runs and six hits.

Rookie David Ortiz hit his first career homer and Pat Meares matched a career-high with four hits for the Twins. Marty Cordova had Ortiz had three hits apiece in Minnesota's 21-hit attack.

The Twins had lost 16 of their previous 18 on the road.

Witt began the game by getting Chuck Knoblauch on a popup, but singles by Brent Brice, Cordova and Scott Stahoviak produced one run. Ortiz walked and Damian Miller delivered a two-run single for a 3-0 lead.

Walker followed with a three-run homer, his second of the season. Meares added a single, finishing Witt.

"I didn't throw the ball very well and their guy threw a good game," Witt said. "That's what happened in a nutshell."

Said Rangers manager Johnny Oates: "Walker got ahead of one and it's 6-0. Whatever intensity we had went out the window. There wasn't a lot of excitement out there."

The Rangers avoided being shut out when Domingo Cedeno hit a solo homer in the eighth.

Who's No. 1?
Who knows?

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

The people who call the shots for the major bowl games got slapped twice over the weekend. At the rate things are going, the rest of us could be reeling by the time the college football season grinds to a halt.

Again.

After watching marquee names like Notre Dame, Colorado, Miami and Texas lose Saturday and fall out of contention for the national championship, the boys in the blazers must have figured that was as bad as it was going to get. Wrong. Even worse news awaited them at the top of the rankings Sunday.

Still poised at No. 1 was Penn State, which has been there since the preseason poll, and gave no indication it was going anywhere by destroying Temple 52-10. Climbing into the No. 2 spot, meanwhile, was Washington, which clobbered San Diego State 36-3 and leapfrogged idle Florida in the process.

So what? Neither team yet belongs to the "Super Alliance" that held a news conference a few weeks ago to remind us for the millionth time why major college football doesn't need a playoff. The Super Alliance, you'll recall, replaced the Bowl Alliance, which used to call itself the Bowl Coalition.

What's in a name? In this case, a spotty past. What has remained constant, anyway, is that the fast-talking, fashion-challenged, deal-making crowd that promised to clean up after the messy split-championship seasons of 1990-91 is still making promises on which it may not be able to deliver.

This same bunch promised to do whatever was necessary to ensure a No. 1 vs. No. 2 matchup to end each and every season. They then proceeded to make offers to the glamour conferences, glamour independents and glamour bowls that they were certain couldn't be refused. But somebody — several somebodies, actually — refused.

It happened to be the people who run the Big Ten and Pac-10 conferences, as well as the Rose Bowl, that cozy little stadium in Pasadena where they stage their own little postseason tournament.

In the past, that hardly would have been a worry. Other than Washington's half-share of the 1990 title, no Pac-10 team had been part of the national championship picture for nearly three decades.

Longhorns try to deal with 63-point setback

By RICHARD ROSENBLATT
AP Football Writer

At Texas, it might take another 105 years before they forget about this loss.

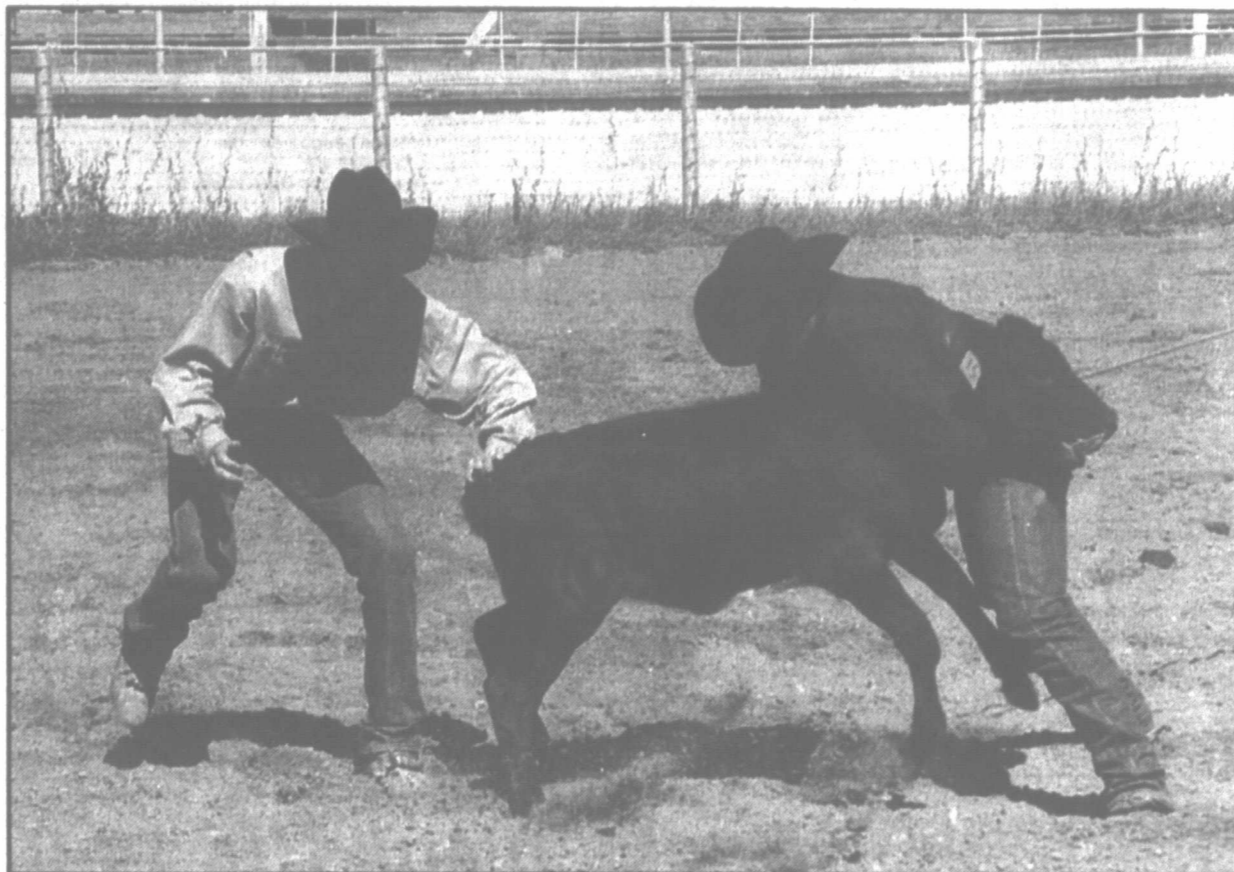

Notre Dame, Colorado, Miami and Southern California lost on Saturday, too, but no result was as jaw-dropping as this: UCLA 66, Texas 3.

"What do you say to friends and family who see this score?" Texas coach John Mackovic asked.

Entering the game, the Longhorns were ranked 11th and had high hopes of a national title run. The Bruins were 0-2, with close calls against Washington State and Tennessee.

When it was over, Cade McNown set a school record with five touchdown passes — all in the first half — and Skip Hicks scored three times as UCLA handed Texas its worst loss in 93 years and second worst in 105 seasons of Longhorns football.

Clint McCloy (left) of McLean participates in the ribbon roping at the Tri-State High School Rodeo last weekend at the Top O' Texas Arena. McCloy's teammate, Monty Eakin, won all-around cowboy honors. All-around cowgirl honors went to Randus London of Freedom, Okla.

Instructor offers tips on using shotgun

DALLAS — Shortly after sunrise two weeks ago, thousands of Texas dove hunters were frustrated by their inability to hit mourning doves that dipped and darted across the sky near their chosen stands.

Wing-shooting can be as maddening as golf. Few hunters wrap their shotguns around a tree or throw them into a lake, but more than one "faultry" firearm was surely given away before the smoke cleared on opening day.

Leon Measures has news for depressed dove hunters. It's not the gun's fault. Measures owns a real estate agency in Livingston, but he would rather teach people how to shoot a shotgun properly.

He's been doing just that for 30 years and has taught more than 1,000 students at various outdoors shows over the past three weekends. Measures is a certified instructor with the National Rifle Association, Texas Parks & Wildlife, the National Sporting Clays Association and the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Don't expect Measures to sell you a box of silver bullets that cure all shooting woes. He deals in common sense, copper projectiles and the philosophy that there's nothing new in shotgunning skills.

"The caveman used the same technique we're using to hit a moving target," Measures says. "The only thing different was the tool. Instead of a shotgun, the caveman threw a rock. He had to figure out where to throw that rock to intercept a moving bird."

Unlike the shotgunner firing at birds, the rock thrower can see where his rock missed the target. Measures applies the same principle to an inexpensive air rifle that shoots BBs at speeds slow enough for the shooter to watch their flight.

Thus the BB-gun marksman meshes the skills of gun handling with the advantage of seeing where his shots strike. The BB guns that Measures uses are not exactly the same air rifles you buy from a retail store.

Daisy, the best-known name in bargain air rifles, makes the guns to Measures' specification. They shoot slower (less than 400 feet per second), making the flight of the BB easier to see.

The most important difference between Measures' BB guns and those you buy in the store is that the instructional guns have no sights.

"My shooting method is called 'Shoot Where You Look,'" Measures says. "Teach a kid to use the sights on an air rifle, and he concentrates on the sights. In shooting a shotgun, you cannot look at the gun and the target at the same time."

"Since the bird is moving, you'd better be looking at the bird. Remove the sights from an air rifle, and it's easier to point the gun properly without being concerned about sights. You look at the target and you shoot where you look."

In his demonstrations, Measures tosses BBs into air, mounts his air rifle and shoots the BBs. He sometimes uses aspirin for targets. Hit dead center, the aspirin tablet is converted to a small but fine mist of powder.

Measures generally hits more than 50 percent of the BBs he shoots. He has taught 12-year-olds who have never handled a gun to duplicate the BB trick within three weeks of picking up an air rifle.

The beauty of this system is the cost of ammunition. Ten thousand BBs cost about $10.

Measures has put his system on an 80-minute videotape that comes with its own air rifle.

It's Taylor vs. Irvin

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Taylor versus Irvin.

It has become one of the more entertaining matchups in the NFL.

And Philadelphia cornerback Bobby Taylor will be trying to frustrate Dallas wide receiver Michael Irvin once again tonight on Monday Night Football.

Irvin, a 6-foot-2, 210-pounder, and Taylor, a 6-foot-3, 217-pounder, have been going at it every since Taylor came out of Notre Dame and developed into one of the league's best covers.

Irvin, of course, is one of the best receivers in the NFL and has three Super Bowl rings to show for it.

Taylor, in his third-season, has become a defender most receivers like to avoid. That is, except Irvin.

"I like going against that kid," Irvin said. "I really like going against him one-on-one. But how often do I get him one-on-one? They double me a lot. It doesn't happen very often. There's not a cornerback in the NFL I don't mind facing if it's one-on-one coverage."

Irvin missed the first Philadelphia game last year as he served a drug suspension. But in the second game he burned young Taylor on seven catches for 89 yards.

In 1995, Irvin got the best of Taylor with eight catches for 115 yards and a touchdown, but Taylor bounced back by holding Irvin to three catches for 40 yards in the rematch.

Taylor said he likes the Irvin challenge.

"He's a very physical receiver and I kind of think of myself as a physical player, too," Taylor said. "It makes for a good matchup."

Taylor has studied a lot of film on Irvin and decided his rival is "tough to cover because he can catch the short one on you and break it, or he can go deep. Most guys can do one or the other. He can do both."

Irvin, who had the best training camp of his career, has caught 11 passes for 171 yards and two touchdowns as the Cowboys started the season 1-1. He was held to only four catches last week by Phoenix Cardinals cornerback Aeneas Williams.

"I was close to a big game," Irvin said. "I caught a touchdown pass and the officials ruled I was out of bounds."

On Sunday, Texas (1-1), along with the Fighting Irish and Trojans, found themselves out of the Top 25. And the Bruins were in at No. 24, along with No. 19 Washington State, which beat USC 28-21.

Some Texas players didn't even want to leave the locker room. "My family is out there waiting," Texas center Ryan Fiebigler said. "I know it sounds horrible, but I don't want to look them in the eye."

Stay tuned. While teams try to rebound from unexpected losses, this weekend could be even wackier, starting at the top with No. 4 Tennessee at No. 3 Florida, and No. 7 Nebraska at No. 2 Washington.

There's a top-notch undercard, too, with No. 5 Florida State at No. 16 Clemson, and No. 12 Auburn at No. 10 LSU.

Purdue 28, Notre Dame 17
At West Lafayette, Ind., Purdue (1-1) dominated the Irish (1-1) as Billy Dicken threw for 352 yards and Edwin Watson ran for two TDs in a 28-17 upset that ended with thousands of Boilermakers fans streaming onto the field.

"I told the team after the game how we react to this is what's going to be important," new Irish coach

Bob Davie said. Notre Dame's next three games are against No. 17 Michigan State, No. 8 Michigan and No. 21 Stanford.

No. 1 Penn State 52, Temple 10
At State College, Pa., Temple (1-2) took a 7-0 lead 43 seconds into the game before the Nittany Lions (2-0) scored the next 35 points.

No. 2 Washington 36, San Diego State 3

Backup Dan Kendra had two TD

passes in the second half and third-stringer Chris Weinke added a TD pass in the fourth quarter.

No. 6 North Carolina 28, No. 21 Stanford 17
At Chapel Hill, N.C., Oscar Davenport (12-for-14, 116 yards) came to the rescue, replacing an ineffective Chris Keldorf and leading Carolina on two long TD marches. His 15-yard scoring pass to Octavus Barnes put the Tar Heels ahead 21-17 in the fourth quarter.

Stanford's Chad Hutchinson was 16-for-34 for 191 yards, with one TD passing and another running. He also threw two interceptions.

No. 7 Nebraska 38, Central Florida 24

At Lincoln, Neb., the Cornhuskers overcame Daunte Culpepper (24 of 35 for 318 yards, with one TD passing, another running) to get past the Golden Knights (0-3), who led 17-14 at the half. Scott Frost scored an insurance TD for Nebraska on a 5-yard run with 3:08 left.

Hogs outplayed at Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — SMU's Donte Womack had runs of 53, 25, 19, 15, 14, 12, 11, 8, 8, 7, 7 and 5 yards against Arkansas and each of those dozen plays is significant for the same reason.

Each was longer than anything Arkansas produced on the ground. Chrys Chukwuma had a 4-yard run. Nathan Norman and Rod Stinson made 3 each, once.

Womack netted 212 on 38 tries. Arkansas' running backs combined for 13 yards on 16 attempts. Subtract Clint Stoerner's 35 yards in losses and the net is minus 22 — the worst in school history.

Even the 1958 team that set the record against TCU was in the plus column, albeit only by 36 inches.

Those type rushing numbers are fatal and SMU was going away, 31-9. It was the Mustangs' third straight victory over an Arkansas team that has been favored every time.

Bucks blank HP, 14-0

WHITE DEER — The White Deer Bucks are starting off much like they did a year ago.

The Bucks are now 2-0 after downing Highland Park, 14-0, in a non-district football game Friday night. The Bucks were also 2-0 after the first two weeks of the 1996 season.

White Deer's Craig Urbanczyk scored on a 3-yard run in the second quarter and the Bucks led 7-0 lead at half-time. The Bucks added an insurance TD in the fourth quarter on a 1-yard run by Jeremy Crook. Conversion kicks were added by Urbanczyk and Bruno Paravidini.

Urbanczyk, a 165-pound junior, led White Deer's rushing attack with 79 yards on 17 carries. J.J. White added 75 yards on 20 carries.

White Deer's totaled 197 yards in offense while Highland Park had 125. White Deer had 13 first downs to Highland Park's 7.

Brandon Neece was Highland Park's top rusher with 93 yards on 16 carries.

The Bucks' defense forced four Highland Park turnovers. Nick Knocke came up with two interceptions. White Deer had two turnovers.

White Deer was penalized four times for 35 yards. HP was flagged seven times for 70 yards.

Highland Park falls to 1-1 on the season.

The Bucks visit Shamrock this Friday night. Last season, the Bucks shut out Shamrock, 28-0. Can the Bucks make it 3-0 once again?

Nation briefs

Hurricane Linda takes parting shot
NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A weakening Hurricane Linda veered away from Southern California early today after churning up heavy surf that swept five men watching the waves into the sea.
 Boaters were able to pull the men out of the water Sunday night, Harbor Patrol Sgt. Paul Falk said. They were face-down about 300 yards offshore.
 One victim remained hospitalized today in serious condition. Three others were treated and released, and the fifth did not require treatment.
 The storm, the most powerful on record in the northeastern Pacific, moved further out to sea and was losing steam. Early today, it was about 760 miles southwest of San Diego, moving west-northwest at 13 mph.

Old-fashioned county refuses to install stop light
MONTICELLO, Fla. (AP) — Once, there was talk of putting in a stop light in Jefferson County. Too many accidents outside a Winn-Dixie store was the problem. But county officials have never felt the need for a light, so they instead shut down a parking lot exit.
 "There are people here who take pride in the fact that we have no traffic lights," said Lazaro Aleman, editor of the twice-weekly Monticello News, where he and the other reporters still found out their stories on typewriters. "It's a symbol of our identity. They think that if you put a traffic light in, there goes the whole county."
 The motto on the courthouse may sum it up for the 13,700 county residents: "Suum Cuique" — "To Each His Own."

Officials in Tennessee say marriages aren't legal
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Authorities are blaming a mess over marriages on a mail-order ministry.
 An opinion from the Tennessee attorney general said that marriages performed by ministers of the Universal Life Church of Modesto, Calif., aren't legal in Tennessee.
 The church's mail-order ministry allegedly allows anyone, without a background check, to receive a certificate to be a minister. Authorities say dogs, death-row inmates and the dead have been awarded certificates.
 State Rep. Tim Burchett of Knoxville has asked for another opinion to clarify the legal position of anyone in Tennessee married by the ministers.

Elementary school sees eleven sets of twins
JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — No, teachers here aren't seeing double.
 Eleven sets of twins have enrolled at Dixon Elementary School this year, spread across several grades.
 To make it easier for teachers, Vice Principal James Lanier has had the pairs separated into different classes. Lanier has a little background in the subject, being half of an identical pair himself.
 Twins Jamie and Janna Coleman in the second-grade said it really isn't that hard to tell them apart.
 "I have a bigger tooth, and I'm a minute older," Jamie said.

Emmy Awards: 'ER' spends big night in intensive care ...

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — ER was dead on arrival.
 The nation's most popular television series was shut out Sunday at the 49th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards, losing top awards to Law & Order and NYPD Blue.
Law & Order, the police-and-prosecutor show with scripts that parallel cases in the national headlines, was named best drama series after six straight winless nominations in the category.
Frasier was honored as best comedy series, the only show ever to win the award in its first four years. It also ties Cheers, All in the Family and The Dick Van Dyke Show for most comedy series Emmys.
 "On my way up here I heard somebody say, 'Oh God! Not them again!' Believe me, we know how lucky we are," said David Angel, a Frasier producer.
ER likely suffered from vote-splitting. In the dramatic actress race, Sherry Stringfield (Dr. Susan Lewis) and Julianna Margulies (Nurse Carol Hathaway) competed against each other, but Gillian Anderson from The X-Files won. And three ER directors were up for best dramatic directing, but the award went to NYPD Blue.
 For the third time, Dennis Franz was named best dramatic actor for his role as snarly Detective Andy Sipowicz on NYPD Blue. The drama's four Emmys (the others were dramatic writing and supporting actress) were the most for any show Sunday night.
 "This is way too much. It's impossible to be up here without my pal, my buddy, my backbone Jimmy Smits," Franz said of his co-star.
 John Lithgow, the space alien posing as a college professor on 3rd Rock from the Sun, won for best comedy actor. Helen Hunt, half of the neurotic yuppie couple on Mad About You, won for best comedy actress.
 Television academy voters chose Hunt, whose character ended the season by having a baby, over Ellen DeGeneres, whose character came out as a lesbian last season after months of hinting.
 "I was so blown away by Ellen DeGeneres' work in that episode," Hunt said. "I just want to say I'm proud to be on the same list."
 "Ellen" won for outstanding writing for a comedy series for the coming-out episode. The actress dedicated the award to gay and lesbian teen-agers, telling them: "There's nothing wrong with you. Don't ever let anybody make you feel ashamed of who you are."
 Altogether, when craft prizes awarded in a ceremony last week are included, 3rd Rock from the Sun and Miss Evers' Boys tied for the most Emmy wins with five each.
 This season, Law & Order poked fun at Hollywood producers and show business ethics. In the three-part installment, the show's New York investigators traveled to Southern California to probe a murder by a frustrated film director. The episodes ridiculed everything from Academy Award electioneering to guards protecting studio gates.
