LAMPASAS, Texas (AP) — Authorities have destroyed dogs that attacked and killed two women in separate incidents. Aurora Gonzales, 64, a disabled Lubbock County woman taking care of two pit bulls, was attacked and mauled by the animals Thursday at her mobile home. Police killed the dogs. Also Thursday, Lampasas County deputies found the body of 17-year-old Cheryl Floyd, who had failed to return from a walk. The teenager was attacked by three dogs: a Great Dane and two Great Dane-Rottweiler mixes, said Gordon Morris, sheriff of the county in south-central Texas. The dogs, which belonged to a neighbor of the victim, were impounded and put to sleep.

ABILENE (AP) — Think of it as a long butterfly layover. The first wave of black-and-orange monarchs migrating to Mexico has stalled out in Texas because of unseasonably warm weather and unfavorable winds, researchers say. The butterflies that arrived in late September are stuck on a roughly southwest-to-northeast line from Fort Stockton in West Texas through Dallas, said Tom Harvey, a spokesman with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Police arrest 2 for Proctor murder

Two Pampa men in custody

By Laura Haley
Staff Writer

Two Pampa men — Jesus Santacruz and Ricardo Deleon — have been arrested and charged with the murder of 18-year-old Richard Lamont Proctor. District Attorney John Mann issued warrants late Friday afternoon for the arrests of Santacruz and Deleon. Issuance of the warrants and the resulting arrests stem from "tremendous amounts of leads that had been followed," according to a Pampa Police Department press release. Deleon was arrested around 6:45 p.m. Friday night by Gray County Sheriff's deputies. Santacruz was arrested by deputies later that night, around 11 p.m., while local police agencies were sending wanted posters with his likeness to area media. A $1 million bond was set for Deleon. He remains in Gray County Jail in lieu of posting bond. As of press time Saturday, a bond hearing had not yet been set for Santacruz, who was also still in custody. Local law enforcement agencies have been helping the Pampa Police Department in the investigation of Proctor's murder since the incident occurred on Christmas Eve last year. Proctor was shot in the back of the head about 11:30 p.m. on Albert Street. According to police, a bullet entered the back window of the Cadillac, where Proctor and two others were sitting. The others were not injured.

Water shut-offs on tap Monday

Westside residents to be affected

Water will be turned off Monday for residents living west of Coronado Nursing Center on Kentucky Street and on Price Road between Gwendolyn and 18th Street. Pampa's Water Department is having to turn off the main line in that area to temporarily fix a leak at the water treatment plant, said Joseph Palma, utilities superintendent. The water will be turned off at 8 a.m., allowing most to get ready for work. Palma is hoping to have the temporary fix in place and water running to residents by the end of the work day. Because of the inconvenience, the water department will be leaving vouchers for 10 free gallons of Culligan water for residents affected by the outage. "We thought that would be a good service," said Palma. About a 10-foot long section of the 18-inch water main is in need of repair. The leak in the concrete-steel cylinder line was caused by corrosion, he said. Once a temporary valve has been placed on the line, water will be turned on, allowing permanent repairs to the water line without discontinuing service to customers, said Palma. It will take approximately two to three days to permanently fix the leak, he said.

State judge places new law on hold

Traffic wrecks again public information

AUSTIN (AP) — Information about traffic wrecks in Texas is available to the public again after a state judge expanded an injunction against a new law that would block release of the information. The court's order applies to local law enforcement agencies as well as the Texas Department of Public Safety, Attorney General Dan Morales' office said Friday. State District Judge Paul Davis put the entire new law on hold late Wednesday after earlier blocking part of it from taking effect Sept. 1. A hearing on whether the law should remain on hold is scheduled for Oct. 24. Despite the temporary ruling against the law, lawmakers and newspaper officials say traffic wreck information remains elusive in some areas of the state. That's because all law enforcement agencies haven't been informed that the law is now isn't in effect, said Dolph Tillotson, editor and publisher of The Galveston County Daily News and co-chairman of See RULING, Page 2

New Yorker or native Pampan?

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY
Staff Writer

That voice. Her voice, full of that unmistakably eastern accent screams, "NEW YORK!" And yet Sophie Vance has been a resident of Pampa for the last 39 years. But, alas, Sophie is the best of New York City and Pampa rolled into one. Actually, she has a little Guam, Hawaii, Connecticut and Rhode Island in the mix as well. Mrs. Sophia Calogridis Vance has a wonderful story. Born in New York City, "Sophie" grew up in the "heart of Manhattan, right off Broadway," with her Turkish mother, her Greek father and five brothers and sisters. "I was the midget, the runt of the litter ... really and truly," Sophie confides. She went to high school in New York at Julia Richmond High School, and graduated in 1938 from the "all girls school" which produced other New York greats, such as Lauren Bacall. "But the principal was a man! His name was Mr. Lucy, car, you imagine?" she asks.

Sophie's mother, born in the former Constantinople, Turkey, and her father, born in Greece, raised the Calogridis family smack-dab in the middle of the city. One of the favorite "stage shows" she saw in New York as a girl was "Oklahoma with Milton Berle ... he was crazy!" she said. Sophie was an admitted "city slicker." Maybe that's why her parents cried — "I can't believe they cried," she said — when young Sophie decided to marry a Navy man from Oklahoma. "They thought I was making a mistake, ruining my life," Sophie sighed. But she married anyway, and traveled the world with her husband. They were stationed three years in Guam, three years in Hawaii and numerous other stints off the coast of California, in Connecticut and Rhode Island before her husband came to Pampa as a Navy recruiter. What did Sophie do while her husband was under water for months at a time? Well, she learned Hawaii Hula dancing, for one thing, and "loved it!" See SOPHIE, Page 2

Lawmakers receive raise

Clinton signs bill allowing 2.3 percent increase for Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress are set for a 2.3 percent raise in their basic pay next year following President Clinton's signing of a $12.8 billion spending bill. The bill signed Friday covers the Treasury Department and several other agencies. It never mentions giving lawmakers more money. But under a 1989 law, they get cost-of-living raises unless they take action to prevent them, as they have done in this spending bill from 1993 through 1996. They did not do that this year. "House Speaker Newt Gingrich got exactly what he wanted," said Gary Ruskin of the Congressional Accountability Project, a watchdog group affiliated with Ralph Nader. "He wanted to take advantage of the taxpayers to give himself and his overpaid colleagues a raise, and they're going to get it." Gingrich and Senate Republican leader Trent Lott had no immediate comment. Senate Democratic leader Tom Daschle "has indicated that he will give the cost-of-living increase to South Dakota charities," said spokeswoman Ranit Schmelzer. The raise will lift the basic pay of lawmakers from $133,600 to $136,672 early next year — unless they take action to stop it. The measure also includes $131 million for combatting violent crime and $195 million for a national media campaign against drugs. Clinton said in a statement. He did not make an issue of the congressional pay raise. In addition, the law bans imports of goods produced by indentured child labor, much of it coming from India and Pakistan. Human rights groups estimate millions of children are held in bondage there, producing a wide range of goods for export to the United States, including rugs, carpets, soccer balls and fireworks. The United States imports about $100 million worth of such products annually worldwide. As for the congressional pay raise, lawmakers passed a measure in 1989 granting themselves annual cost-of-living increases like other federal workers. But from 1993 to 1996, they attached a provision to the annual spending bill for the Treasury Department and other federal agencies that barred the increase. Congressional leaders stripped out that provision this year.

RULING

legislative committees for the Texas Daily Newspaper Association and Texas Press Association.

"The injunction applies to everyone," said Morales spokesman Ron Dusek.

The TDNA and the TPA filed the lawsuit that led to Davis' ruling.

The groups are considering a plan to expand the lawsuit to include all Texas law enforcement agencies in order to make clear that the law isn't in effect, attorney David Donaldson said.

Donaldson and Texas newspaper officials met Friday with representatives from Morales' office to discuss plans for keeping the law from taking effect until after the 1999 legislative session, the first time lawmakers could formally revise it.

Another meeting between Morales and newspaper attorneys is scheduled next week.

"I hope at that time we can be shaking hands over the way we are going to resolve this issue," Donaldson said.

Dusek said it would be improper to comment on the suggestion raised by the newspaper groups. "We have to do legal research to determine what we can do under the law," he said.

In part, the 1997 traffic wreck records law says anyone who wants information from a traffic accident report must know the name of at least one person involved, plus either the date or the location of the wreck.

Lawmakers who support that say it's an effort to keep attorneys and chiropractors from harassing people involved in traffic wrecks.

Another part of the law requires that information from Texans' motor vehicle records remain confidential unless an individual driver agrees to allow personal information to be made public. That information includes a person's date of birth, driver's license number and address.

State lawmakers approved that provision in response to a federal law making it a crime if states don't designate the records secret. Under the federal law, state workers who give out the information could be fined $2,500 each time they do so.

Courts in Oklahoma and South Carolina have ruled the federal law invalid in their states.

The Texas Department of Public Safety interpreted the ban on releasing information from motor vehicle records as another bar to releasing traffic wreck reports, saying the same information is included.

The department had offered news media a form to sign, allowing them to gain access to the information despite the new law. News outlets were reluctant to sign that waiver, now made moot by the broader injunction.

Donaldson said the newspaper groups are not considering a court fight against the federal law but have made their objections to it clear in the state lawsuit.

Meanwhile, Tillotson and lawmakers are stressing that withholding traffic wreck information is a problem for more than the news media.

Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria, said a person in his district has had difficulty getting information from a fatal wreck involving a family member.

SOPHIE

"I was really in demand in Pampa whenever they served cottage cheese with pineapple and thought it was Hawaiian," Sophie remarked.

She taught a group of Pampa women how to hula and for several years they danced at local events in town.

Sophie also became the mother of three children. "My children turned out real well, regardless of me," she mused.

The pride she has for her children gleams in her eyes. All three grew up in Pampa. Today her son, Ted, is an assistant engineer in the northwest, her daughter, Barbara, runs a "high class condominium" in Atlantic City and her youngest daughter, Sandra, is a Spanish and English professor at WTAMU in Canyon.

But all the while, Sophie remained what she really was all along ... an artist.

At one point, she took classes from "The Famous Art School" in West Connecticut. She has also taken courses and workshops through the years to help her establish her "oil painting and still life" preferences in art, as well as her ability to paint "reverse glass" paintings — works painted close to the light on canvases made of plexiglass.

"I've always painted," she said. "And I paint because I want to paint, not to sell it, but for my own pleasure and satisfaction."

Sophie remembers the depression when "FDR employed artists to give them jobs," and several were hired as nude models. So, she used to do charcoal drawings of nude figures on pieces of butcher paper, until her mother saw them hanging on her wall. That was the end of that.

"I'm getting old, you know it? No! I am!" she interrupted.

The almost 77-year-old Sophie volunteers and teaches oil painting with her good friend Nadine Arney every Wednesday to Pampa senior citizens. She has been doing so for 16 years. Nadine and Sophie are longtime members of the Pampa Art Club, and "dear, dear friends."

"I loved it! It was my thing. I'd demonstrate, and we worked hard, but we loved it," Sophie gushes about the volunteer work. "I'm so glad I did it — I enjoyed it and it kept me painting."

This year, some of Sophie's work will be exhibited in the White Deer Land Museum, after she rounds them up from friends and relatives.

"I don't keep anything I do, here. I give them away, sell them, whatever. But if they stay here, I end up painting on them until their nothing," she explained.

Although wary of computers — "I'm confused enough, why get more confused?" — Sophie seems to live for today.

The beautiful, lively and spirited Sophie Vance is enchanting to chat with about both today, and yesterday, in the brilliantly red kitchen of the same house she's lived in for almost 40 years.

"I can still go into a store and have the sales clerk ask me if I'm from around here, when I've lived in Pampa probably since before she was born! I think I talk like everybody else here," she says in that marvelous accent.

What a voice, what a woman.

Summit discusses creating riding trails throughout Lone Star state

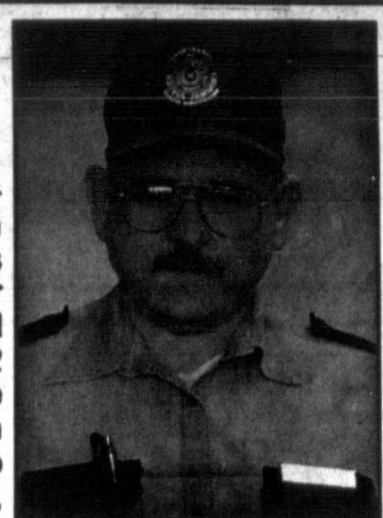

An equestrian summit is scheduled for Oct. 30, at the Texas Parks and Wildlife offices in Austin to discuss creating and maintaining horseback riding trails in the Lone Star state. The meeting will be from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Oct. 30, in the commission hearing room at the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road in Austin. "We don't have the format nailed down yet," said Kathryn Nichols, with the TPWD here. There will be presentations by managers of parks who have trails concerning what needs to be done to improve and expand an equestrian riding trail system in the state. It may mean more planning or more hitching posts or facilities or creating more trails, said Nichols, who is in the land conservation program. "The format is not fixed yet," said Mike Herring, director of the land conservation program for TPWD, "but we expect it will be a facilitated session with equestrians commenting on horse riding opportunities in state parks and wildlife management areas and with site managers sharing management concerns." The equestrian summit precedes a trail symposium which begins Thursday evening, Oct. 30, at the Holiday Inn South, 3401 south Interstate 35, and continues through Friday and Saturday. The Texas Bicycle Coalition is taking the lead on the trail symposium, Herring said, but all user groups are encouraged to participate. Herring said among the items to be discussed is the development of a statewide trail agenda. That, he said, would also give equestrians an opportunity to make recommendations for improvements in horseback riding trails. Nichols said she views the equestrian summit as a chance to hear from the horse riding community. She said she expects some brainstorming sessions in order to identify problems and solutions with regard to equestrian trails in the state. The discussions, Nichols said, will involve both state parks and wildlife management areas. She said the wildlife management areas are properties the state owns or leases for wildlife habitat. In the past, she said, there has been some question whether trails in wildlife areas would be consistent with the state's management of the properties or whether it would disrupt the wildlife in the area. "Some of us think there is a way that both can be done," she said. Most of the state's trails, she says, are small interpretive paths for foot traffic. TPWD commissioners allocated $400,000 this month for 18 recreational trails in Texas. In July, a citizen Trail Advisory Committee selected the projects which included off-road cycling opportunities and hiking and biking trails. "The bicycle riders are organized," said William B. Miller, a horse owner from Wills Point, Tex. "We are not. If we are going to be able to ride on land our tax money has paid for, now is the time to act." TPWD manages almost 900,000 acres.

Avon sponsors essay contest

Children ages 6 through 22 have a chance to win a $1,000 savings bond by entering a 100-word essay contest on encouraging adult females to take care of their health. The Avon Kids Care contest is part of a breast cancer awareness crusade sponsored by Avon. Contestants must be United States residents, full-time students and sponsored by an Avon Sales Representative. The contest began Oct. 1 and all entries must be received by Dec. 12. Essays will be evaluated for their creativity and thoughtfulness within four grade categories, from elementary school through college. A winner in each category will be chosen from Avon's four regions in the country. All 16 winners will receive a $1,000 savings bond. Avon will also award a $50,000 grant to a breast health program in each winner's region, for a total of $800,000. The grants will be awarded through a competitive application process administered by Avon and NABCO. To enter the contest, call 1-800-FOR-AVON for the name of the nearest Avon sales representative.

Jury fines ex-officer $1 in case

DALLAS (AP) — After he was accused of using excessive force during an arrest two years ago, Dallas police officer Joseph Monahan lost his wife, his job, his home and his career. A Dallas County jury convicted him of the charges on Friday, but apparently decided he'd been punished enough already. Monahan, 31, faced up to a year in jail and a $4,000 fine after being found guilty of official oppression, a Class A misdemeanor. But the jury assessed no jail time at all and set his fine at $1. Monahan, who pleaded innocent, had no comment after the verdict on charges he beat and sprayed pepper Mace on a handcuffed suspect. He was fired in October 1995 after two internal investigations determined he used excessive force during the Sept. 12, 1995, arrest of Francisco Javier Garcia. Officers who witnessed the incident told investigators that Monahan repeatedly beat Garcia with a nightstick after he had been subdued, police records show. Dallas police officers and Garland officers who helped with the arrest said they saw Monahan spray the suspect with pepper Mace after he was subdued, handcuffed and no longer a threat to escape.

Governor's tax filing released

HOUSTON (AP) — Gov. George W. Bush had $576,683 in income in 1996 and paid $172,940 in federal income taxes, according to just-released income tax filings. His income was up from $419,481 in 1995, when he paid $115,061 in income taxes. The governor's tax report was released Friday. The Internal Revenue Service earlier in the year granted him an extension for filing. He reported $410,831 in capital gains on his personal investments during 1996, an increase of $179,070 from the capital gains he reported earning on his investments in 1995. In 1994, the year before he took office, Bush reported losing $3,000 on his investments. His press secretary, Karen Hughes, said the source of last year's capital gains is kept secret from the governor and the public because most of his investments are in a blind trust managed by his accountant.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

What our children should know ...

Recently I visited River Road High School in Amarillo to help the Amarillo Alliance Against Drunk Driving kick off a campaign to keep kids from drinking and driving.

The focus of the campaign is an educational video featuring a young man named Brandon Silveria. As a teenager, Brandon was in an alcohol-related wreck and was permanently injured. He now travels around the country visiting high schools, talking to kids about the dangers of drinking and driving, and why they shouldn't do it.

It's a powerful message. Today in America, drunk driving is the leading killer of young people between the ages of 16 and 24. And last year in Texas, 43 percent of the traffic fatalities for kids under the age of 21 were related to alcohol.

Now, facts and figures are easy to talk about, but their impact is often hard to convey. You sometimes need a face to back these figures up — a story to go along with the statistics to show not only that what's being talked about really happened, but it's something that could happen to you.

The story of Brandon Silveria is that kind of story. It's a story every student should be told about, and one every student should hear. This is particularly true this time of year, when many schools are holding homecoming dances, and the risk of alcohol-related crashes seem to rise.

The video of Brandon's story will be sent to area high schools. The message is simple: Don't drink. And for sure, don't drink and drive. It's a deadly combination.

The future is commercial!

The town of Ocean City, Md., caught a lot of grief this spring when it adopted Coke as its official soft drink.

What happened is the town needed revenues, and it was either the Coke deal or higher taxes. In return for designating Coke as the soda that goes best with the city, the resort got a five-year package of funds and publicity worth more than $1 million.

This is not a sellout. This is cutting-edge financing, and it is just one small hint of a growing trend that will eventually convert America into a patchwork of corporate logos.

It's happening in California, where Los Angeles County's Department of Beaches and Harbors has adopted Ford as its official truck, Speedo as the official bathing suit for lifeguards, and Naya Canadian as its official bottled water.

It's happening in New Jersey, where South Orange has negotiated a deal with MasterCard to create an official plastic money.

It's happening in Georgia, where Atlanta has made Visa USA its official credit card. This is the metropolis, by the way, whose mayor once toyed with the idea of renaming city streets and parks after commercial sponsors, painting corporate logos on city garbage trucks and implanting ads in city sidewalks.

It's happening in New York, where Coca-Cola is the official soft drink of the state parks; where Pratt & Lambert was the official paint of Buffalo until Sherwin-Williams bought the company and closed the local plant; and where the city of New York — yes, the Big damn Apple — is actively considering proposals to designate official airlines, cars, credit cards, fast-food restaurants and soft drinks in return for corporate moolah.

In 1996, you may recall, the Taco Bell Corp. announced it had purchased the Liberty Bell and renamed it the Taco Liberty Bell. It was an April Fool's joke. Ha ha. In riposte, presidential spokesman Mike McCurry deadpanned that the Ford Motor Co. would be refurbishing the Lincoln Memorial and renaming it the Lincoln Mercury Memorial. That was also a joke. Ha ha.

Last year, the U.S. Park Service wanted to work a deal with some corporations to sponsor the national parks, but the Sierra Club sued to stop it. That was not a joke. Nor are Lockheed's plans to plaster the sides of the X-33, the craft that will replace the space shuttle, with the logos of its subcontractors.

Let's face it, America is slowly devolving into one humongous billboard. Public facilities and private property — all are being enveloped by the mushrooming monster of commercialism.

It showed up first on highways and ballpark fences. Then it spread to buses and subways, and then to airplane fuselages.

Now the monster is devouring everything — the electromagnetic spectrum, schools, sports arenas and stadiums, johns and urinals, and even, so help me, individual pieces of fruit. No joke, they are now advertising movies on stickers pasted to all kiwis, mangoes, etc. Pretty soon, you won't be able to eat a fig without being assaulted by Jim Carrey's mug.

I have some additional ideas:

—Too many buildings, overpasses and such are lying fallow. We need some Microsoft Turnpikes, Cruex Bridges, a Roach Motel Congress, a Disney Pentagon and a Poulan/Weed Eater White House.

—Why stop with sodas and credit cards? Every town should sanction official golf balls, official tomato sauces, official household cleaners, official toilet paper, you name it.

—Why can't the average person get in on this gold rush? We should rent space on our homes and cars for signs and posters. Like Mail Pouch barns. "This is a RALSTON PURINA residence." Or, "This is a KIMBERLY CLARK condo." Something along those lines.

—We could rent our bodies, too. Hang little Exxon signs from navel rings. Brand the Coppertone kid on butts of bikini wearers. Tattoo some swooshes on the foreheads of little babies.

Now there's an idea. Let Nike put the kid through college.

The truth sometimes hurts

Deanna Watson Columnist for Wichita Falls Times Record News

When it comes to discussions concerning their wives' appearance, husbands learn early on that the best policy is to simply lie.

It's the one area in a marriage where they have our permission to lie through their teeth. Just do it. When we ask, "Does this dress make me look big?" their answer should never be, "Compared to the dress you had on yesterday?" They know this.

When we complain that our rear ends are getting too big, the quick response should be, and with feeling, "You look fine, dear." It's routine. Sometimes it takes longer than we'd like, perhaps years and a few mishaps later — like, for instance, "But your rear end has always been proportionately larger than the rest of your body" — but eventually, the lesson is learned, and we're allowed to continue with false hope that the mirror is lying and our husbands are, in fact, giving us the honest-to-goodness truth.

Even my husband — the author of the "But your rear end has always been proportionately larger than the rest of your body" line — has figured out this process. After a few bumps in the road, we've reached an understanding that I will, from time to time, complain about the way I look, and he should never, under any circumstances, agree with me.

At least not to my face. Apparently, husbands don't always carry this mission statement around in their wallets, just in case the urge to tell the truth becomes too great, and they must refer to it for guidance. Apparently, no one told them that, even when their wives are out of earshot, they should never let the words slip from their mouths that, yes, despite what's been said, their wives are getting rather wide in the backside.

Seems someone in my house needs to go back to school. I say my husband missed that particular lesson; his response would be, "That wasn't on the syllabus."

Even though I have given him permission to lie on occasion, it was still painful to learn that he has been, all these years, telling me exactly what I wanted to hear. And it took a 3-year-old playing with an answering machine to uncover the truth. The flashing red light should have been a red flag signaling, "Danger Ahead. Brutal Honesty Around the Corner." I should have turned back. Thinking I had an unusually long message saved on the machine, I pushed "Play" and sat c'wn to listen. The truth had been saved when our daughter had pressed the "conversation" button while her daddy was talking on the phone to his best friend in Atlanta, whom we were preparing to visit for the weekend.

The two, I heard a few hours after the fact, were discussing the college football game we were flying home to see and were concerned that all of us would not be able to sit together. Here's the bulk of the conversation:

"We only have four seats together, right?" our best friend asked.

"Yep," came my husband's voice.

"But there's five of us going to the game."

"Yep."

"Do you think we can all fit?" the friend asked, obviously not convinced.

"Four seats together — we can all squeeze in."

"Are you sure? I mean, 'Craig' (I changed his name to protect his feelings) has a pretty big butt." (I know that some people find that last word offensive, and I considered changing it to a more acceptable one. I apologize, but that's the harsh truth.) "Yep," Sam replied. (Listening to the tape again, I hear hesitation in his voice, like he knows where this conversation is going but has no power to alter its course.)

"My wife's butt" — the friend pauses, "and your wife's butt." Their gentle laughter bubbles to the surface, followed by the friend saying, "Sam, we're the fit and trim ones here."

"Yeah, Wes, we're the skinny ones compared to those people."

Their conversation detoured to more benign topics, like flight numbers and rental cars. But, quite frankly, I was too stunned to listen further. When Sam came home that night, I was waiting by the machine, like a cat hiding in a bush waiting to pounce on an unsuspecting mouse.

"So," I said, when he walked into the room, "I have a big butt, huh?"

"What?"

"You and Wes said I have a big butt!"

"I didn't say that," he said, his mind shifting in reverse as he scrambled to remember just what he had said.

"No? Would you like me to push 'play' now?"

In some courts of law, a tape-recorded conversation is not admissible. But in the court of marital law, these two husbands are guilty, caught telling a little white truth.

Listening to that message was like looking at myself in a three-way mirror, something I haven't forced myself to do in quite some time. It was a rude awakening.

But I'm not ready to erase the brutal truth just yet. Because the second lesson a husband learns quite early is that when he messes up big time, redemption in the form of flowers or jewelry should follow.

I prefer sapphires myself. Nothing big or gaudy, oh no.

Maybe something about the size of my rear end.

Lead investigator pulled off Ramsey case

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The lead investigator in the JonBenet Ramsey slaying case was removed from the case today, and police bolstered the team trying to find the little girl's killer.

Cmdr. Mark Beckner will take over the 9-month-old investigation from Cmdr. John Eller, who had been running the entire detective bureau while also overseeing the Ramsey probe.

Beckner, who had been running the patrol division, will concentrate solely on the beating and strangulation of 6-year-old JonBenet, police Chief Tom Koby said.

Koby said the changes will "better enable us to finish the work we still have to do."

For days, there have been reports circulating that Koby was making changes in the investigation into the death of the little beauty queen, whose body was found in her family's on Dec. 26th.

In addition to putting Beckner in charge, Koby added three detectives to the case.

Three other detectives were added to the team.

It was not the first time there has been reorganization in the police department since JonBenet's killing.

Several investigators have been reassigned since the probe began. Detective Linda Arndt, the first detective at the murder scene, already has been removed. In addition, a sheriff's detective on loan to the district attorney's office since April has returned to his regular duties.

On Thursday, the lead prosecutor for Boulder County said he is confident the killer will be found.

"We believe in this case and believe the work in progress will allow us to get an ending, a solution," District Attorney Alex Hunter told county commissioners who were hearing his request for an extra $145,178 for the investigation.

Binge Drinkers' Good Times Aren't Shared By Their Spouses

DEAR ABBY: You recently reprinted the test for alcoholism. Some time back, when I found myself involved with a man I suspected had a drinking problem, I reviewed the test that I had seen in your column. Since the answers to only three questions were yes (you stated that a "yes" answer to four of them pointed to alcoholism), I felt comfortable marrying him.

However, in the past year, research has been done regarding binge drinking vs. full-blown alcoholism. The study found equal problems among both groups. I think your danger-signal list should be updated to reflect the following:

- Do you have family members with addictive behavior, i.e., gambling, drugs, drinking?
- If you have minor children, have they frequently seen you drunk?
- If you have adult children, do you get drunk with them?
- Are you able to drink more than most other people before getting drunk because you are "used to it"?
- When you reminisce about the "good times," are they almost exclusively drinking stories?
- Do you seek recreational activities that revolve around drinking?
- When you are in a group, are you ever the only one drinking?
- Do you frequently drink so much you are unable to perform sexually?
- Have you been told that you

Abigail Van Buren

become obnoxious when you've been drinking?
 - Do you drink and drive?

Abby, tell your readers to select as many "yes" answers as they can live with, then prepare to play second fiddle to the Almighty Beer Can during most of their leisure time.
BETRAYED

DEAR BETRAYED: Those are excellent additions to the test for alcoholism. Readers and spouses or loved ones of those who drink, if the test for alcoholism was not conclusive, consider the above questions. They may indicate a problem with alcohol in spite of the earlier passing grade.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 42 and I am 36. When we married five years ago, he was a widower with a young daughter. His first wife had died shortly after giving birth to their second child. The baby was premature and died a week later. We are raising his daughter, whom I love very much.

The problem is that he refuses to remove his old wedding band. He wears the ring from his first marriage on his right hand and the one I gave him on his left. I have asked him many times to please remove the ring. He says that his first wife will always be a part of his life. (They met in the eighth grade.)

Abby, I understand that, and I have always been sympathetic to his tragedy. However, I am hurt and insulted. I am his living wife, and it is abnormal for a man to wear two wedding bands. We are unable to resolve this.

Please give me your opinion.
LONGTIME READER,
NEW YORK STATE

DEAR LONGTIME READER: I agree, it is unusual. But there is no timetable for grief, and your husband has made it clear that he is unwilling to give up the "connection" to his first wife that is symbolized by their wedding band.

Look at it this way: You have the whole man, minus one not very important digit.

Shortage of oil pipes hurts drillers

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — A major drilling industry group has asked the federal government to ease restrictions on the importation of drillpipe, which has become scarce during the recent oil boom.

Gary Green, governmental affairs chairman for the International Association of Drilling Contractors, has formally requested that the U.S. Department of Commerce to lift prohibitive tariffs on foreign pipe.

"A few of the biggest drilling contractors are getting what they want," said Brian T. Petty, also of the IADC. "But the problem comes for the smaller guys. Those are the ones getting nailed, and it's having a big impact."

Domestic pipe production isn't keeping up with recent demand, and drillers say a federal tariff designed to protect U.S. steel companies makes foreign pipe too expensive.

The dispute is expected to incite a congressional fight between oil and steel forces, but IADC officials don't want to wait for Congress.

"In many cases, independent drilling contractors must wait 18 months for delivery of pipe," Green wrote to the Commerce Department. "Compounding the problem is the preponderance of old, worn-out drillpipe that's falling apart. This means a driller must fork over about $400,000 for a new string of pipe (for a 10,000-foot well)."

Green's request is being opposed by U.S. Steel and Maverick Tube Corp., two major domestic pipe makers.

Lack of competition and short supplies have pushed pipe prices from $6 to $40 per foot since 1993, the Odessa American reported.

James Race (right) presented Blake Crockett with an award for completing the 68th Annual Firemen Training School.

Crockett completes firefighter course

Blake S. Crockett volunteer fireman of the McLean Volunteer Fire Department of McLean, Texas attended the 68th Annual Texas Fireman's Training School. The school, attended by nearly 2,000 students representing about 750 cities from more than 25 states, was being held on the Texas A&M University campus in the later part of July.

Firemen chose their courses at the school from a list including: Fire Fighting, Fire Prevention, Fire Department Officer Training, Fire Department Pump Maintenance, Specialized Fire Protection, and Disaster Rescue Training.

Fireman Blake S. Crockett was sponsored by Gray/Roberts County Farm Bureau and Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies. They contributed toward the cost of the school.

Since volunteer firemen are interested in attending this school to help do a better job of fire fighting and fire prevention, 125 County Farm Bureaus and the Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies in the statewide program have sponsored 125 firemen at the school.

"The Farm Bureau Insurance Companies believe Volunteer Fire Departments have been very effective in reducing the amount of loss involved by fire in rural areas," said President Bob Stallman of Columbus. "It is our hope in sponsoring this program that the fireman will help the McLean Volunteer Department to better serve the residents of Gray/Roberts County."

People in the News

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Duran Duran is back, with an old familiar feeling.

The band's new album, "Medazzaland," includes remixes of its old songs by ska and punk bands. "Some songs no longer belong to you once they're released," lead singer Simon LeBon said. "I've never had a problem with what people do with our songs because it sounds really different from us. It's just their approach to the songs."

The British pop band, whose popularity peaked in the 1980s, is kicking off a 16-city U.S. tour to promote "Medazzaland." The newly reorganized band — including LeBon, keyboardist Nick Rhodes and guitarist Warren Cuccurullo — combines techno and electronic beats, giving the new album a disco-type sound.

The album goes on sale Tuesday. The tour begins in Boston on Monday and concludes Dec. 10 in Los Angeles.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — While Leo Kottke was busy stealing the show on stage, somebody was backstage making off with one of his guitars.

Kottke went backstage between encores Wednesday night at a nightclub to find his custom-made $2,000 guitar missing.

"That was a regular kidnapping, but there is no ransom note or anything," the guitar virtuoso said Thursday. "This was really cold."

Police have no suspects, but a doorman at a bar nearby saw a man running up the street carrying a guitar at about the time of the theft.

The mahogany-and-spruce six-string had a far greater sentimental than monetary value, Kottke said.

"I've made two records with it, and I've been playing it routinely for a couple of years," he said. "I haven't had it that long, but long enough to grow into it. You don't replace it — you just have to kind of retune your head for another guitar."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Chastity Bono says her life has been a breeze since she came out as a lesbian in 1995.

"What's hard is living your life a lie and continuing in fear that somebody's going to find out this thing you're ashamed of," she said. "That's all that being 'out' means — it's just not lying. It's talking freely, acting freely, like heterosexual people do."

Bono, daughter of Rep. Sonny Bono, R-Calif., and singer and actress Cher, is the entertainment media director for the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation. She was in Columbus on Thursday to celebrate Lesbian and Gay History Month and National Coming Out Day, which is Saturday.

She said this year has been historic in combating media stereotypes and raising awareness for gay rights. Things like TV's "Ellen" have made her job easier, she said.

GREENBRAE, Calif. (AP) — Dana Carvey is doing his impression of a recovering heart patient.

The "Wayne's World" star and former "Saturday Night Live" comic checked into Marin General Hospital on Sept. 25 for an angioplasty, a procedure to open a clogged heart artery.

Carvey, 42, returned home on Sept. 27. Angioplasty involves threading a tube into the heart arteries and briefly inflating a balloon that squeezes aside the blockage.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After angering some gay Christians by calling homosexuality a sin, the Rev. Billy Graham invited all San Franciscans to join in his crusade.

"Whatever your background, whatever your sexual orientation, we welcome you tonight," he told about 10,000 people Thursday at the first of two San Francisco revivals.

Graham, while promoting his first revival in San Francisco since 1958, responded to a question at a news conference last month by saying the Bible teaches that homosexuality is a sin.

But he quickly added: "There are other sins. Why do we jump on that sin as though it's the greatest sin?"

Meredith House tenant, Amos Meador, was recently honored by his family on his 94th birthday. Daughters Reba Meador (left) and Charlotte Gassaway, both of Bartlesville, Okla., were two of his children who traveled to be with their well-known preacher father on his special day.

"PEACE WITH GOD"

"Being therefore justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have had our access by faith into this grace wherein we stand; and we rejoice in hope of the glory of God." (Rom. 5:1-2.)

Peace with God, most assuredly, is the realization in one's heart that he is right with God. Through faith in Jesus Christ we are justified. Realizing this justification, we have peace with God.

Paul does not say "by faith only", nor does he mean that a person is justified at the point of faith or at the instant he believes in Jesus Christ, the Son of God. If this were true, the devil would be justified because he knows and believes that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God (Jas. 2:19; Mk. 1:23-24).

People who cling to the erroneous idea that one is justified (saved) at the point of faith without doing anything else, should read further in Paul's letter to the Romans. They would observe that the Roman Christians were "made free from sin" when they "became obedient from the heart to that form of teaching" delivered to them (Rom. 6:17-18.)

Jesus Christ is the author of eternal salvation to those who obey Him (Heb. 5:9.) One's faith is made perfect through works of obedience (Jas. 2:22-24.) The works of faith which justify are the works of God. In fact, faith itself, is a work of God that man is to do (Jn. 6:29.) Simply, God gives us the facts concerning Jesus the Christ in His Word. These are recorded in order that we might believe the facts and be saved as a result of our faith (Jn. 20:30-31.) When we believe the facts and obey the commands of the gospel, we have "peace with God" and the hope of eternal life.

"Peace with God" is realized when God is pleased with us. The gospel of Christ, God's power to save the soul (Rom. 1:16), reveals all the necessary things in order to salvation. The faith which results from a knowledge of the gospel must realize completeness in works (Jas. 2:24.) Let us not be deceived into thinking we are justified apart from a completed faith.

House gives final OK to Wright Amendment changes

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has given final approval to legislation that eases federal flight restrictions at Dallas Love Field by permitting some direct flights beyond Texas and its four neighboring states.

Nonstop commercial travel to Alabama, Kansas and Mississippi would be allowed under a compromise painstakingly hammered out by House and Senate negotiators.

That compromise was included in a $42 billion transportation spending bill adopted overwhelmingly Thursday by the House. The Senate passed it later on a voice vote and sent the legislation to President Clinton.

The nagging Texas airport feud delayed completion of the transportation bill for weeks, as Sen. Richard Shelby, R-Ala., squared off against several Texas lawmakers.

One of those, Rep. Kay Granger, reiterated her objections Thursday to tinkering with the 18-year-old flight restrictions known as the Wright Amendment.

"The changes to the Wright Amendment contained in this bill are bad policy because they will injure Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, risk the hard-earned taxpayer dollars that have developed this airport and trample on the desires of our local communities," the Fort Worth Republican said during House debate.

Named after former House Speaker Jim Wright, the measure was drafted in 1979 to make sure then new DFW airport wouldn't suffer from competition with Love Field, which is more convenient to downtown Dallas.

Love Field is home to low-fare Southwest Airlines — making the Wright Amendment an enticing target for out-of-state lawmakers eager to secure cheaper air fares for their constituents.

Supporters of the Wright Amendment warn of possible public safety and noise problems over Dallas neighborhoods once the restrictions are watered down. They also contend changes are unfair to the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth as well as DFW's bondholders.

Shelby and allies deny any increased public safety risks. They argue the need to protect DFW, now the dominant regional airport, has long passed.

Critics also say the restrictions allow American Airlines a near-monopoly at DFW, resulting in far higher fares into Dallas. Shelby ultimately wants to repeal the Wright Amendment.

But he ran into heavy opposition from American Airlines, Mrs. Granger, Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, and others, resulting in a stalemate that for weeks prevented completion of the transportation bill.

The compromise ultimately reached would allow new direct travel to Alabama, Kansas and Mississippi. It also exempts from the Wright Amendment planes with 56 seats or fewer — paving the way for start-up Legend Airlines to pursue its plan to begin operations out of Love Field next year.

Firm to market morning-after pill

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A company plans to market a "morning-after pill" next year, and anti-abortion activists are unhappy.

"We are disappointed and certainly couldn't condone what is just another method for taking a child's life," Judith Koehler, senior legislative counsel for Americans United for Life, said Thursday.

Gynetics Inc. of Somerville announced the decision Wednesday, making it the first U.S. company to take action since the Food and Drug Administration approved using contraceptive pills for emergency birth control.

In February, the FDA said six brands of birth control pills are safe and effective as morning-after pills, the first federal acknowledgment of the emergency birth control method that European women have been prescribed for years.

The decision allowed companies that manufacture birth control pills to specially package them for women to have on hand in case of an emergency, just as they are routinely prescribed overseas. Until now, contraceptive manufacturers have refused to sell the form of emergency birth control here, citing litigation and political fears.

In a statement, company officials said they saw the FDA decision as a "major vote of support for the Gynetics project." They did not return several calls seeking further comment Thursday.

The pills prevent a fertilized egg from implanting in the uterine wall so it can grow into an embryo. If an embryo is already implanted and growing, they will have no effect — unlike with the controversial abortion pill RU486. Abortion opponents still consider the emergency birth control to be the taking of life since the pills do their work after the egg is fertilized.

The FDA said the regimen is effective 75 percent of the time.

For every 100 women who have unprotected sex during the second or third week of their menstrual cycle, eight would normally become pregnant — but only two would if the women took the emergency birth control, explained Dr. James Trussell, director of the Office of Population Research at Princeton University.

His research convinced the FDA that emergency birth control could prevent up to 2.3 million unplanned pregnancies a year, 1 million of which now end in abortion.

The emergency contraceptive's side effects are nausea and vomiting, sometimes severe. Over 4 million women have taken emergency contraception in Britain alone, and studies there have shown no serious side effects.

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Nick Price and three-time defending champion Ernie Els were all square after their first 18 holes in Saturday's semifinals of the World Match Play Championship, while Vijay Singh was 6-up on American Brad Faxon after the first 18.

Els and Price, who both finished with 5-under 67s, were even after the first nine with 3-under rounds of 32. Price went 1-up with a 25-foot birdie putt on the 11th, Els squared it with his own birdie on the 12th, and Price jumped on top by a hole again at the 14th with a 3-foot birdie putt conceded by Els.

The lead was short-lived as Els squared again on the par-5 17th with a birdie putt from 10 feet.

FOOTBALL

MIAMI (AP) — Wide receiver Brett Perriman had arthroscopic surgery on his right knee Friday on his 32nd birthday and won't be available to his new team, the Miami Dolphins, for at least two to three weeks.

Dolphins spokesman Seth Levit said Friday that Perriman is a Dolphin now and the team expects him to play for the team as soon as he recovers. The Dolphins reported that Perriman's surgery by Dr. John Uribe to remove loose particles of cartilage from his left knee after an injury sustained while he was with the Kansas City Chiefs in September.

Perriman was signed to a one-year deal Wednesday and Dolphins coach Jimmy Johnson, who earlier mentioned the possibility of voiding the contract, said Friday that Perriman is expected to play for the team this year.

Drew Rosenhaus, Perriman's agent, said Thursday night that Perriman's place on the roster is not in jeopardy.

"It's all done," Rosenhaus said. "He's officially on the team."

Perriman had reconstructive surgery on the torn posterior cruciate ligament in his knee in 1995, and this year he suffered what was thought to be a sprained knee on Sept. 28 against Seattle. Rosenhaus said the knee has been irritating Perriman since.

Even as they were announcing his signing Wednesday, the Dolphins had concerns about Perriman's knee. Perriman's contract is worth $1 million annually, including incentives, so the Dolphins would be paying Perriman at least $470,000 for the rest of the season.

Perriman would have been inactive for Sunday's game against the Jets anyway, and he can still spend his recovery time learning the offensive playbook.

BASEBALL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Outfielder Danny Tartabull, who signed with the Phillies for $2.2 million this spring but played just three games, has declared free agency.

Tartabull suffered a broken left foot when he was hit by a foul ball opening day. In late September, he underwent an MRI, which showed that he still had a broken bone.

Tartabull turned down a minor-league assignment.

Phillies pitchers Scott Ruffcorn and Billy Brewer also rejected outright assignments and opted for free agency.

Marlins take 2-1 NL playoff lead on Braves

MIAMI (AP) — Even before the game began, the Florida Marlins were behind. They'd lost yet another pitcher and their leading RBI guy was still sidelined.

The Marlins needed a break and eventually they got it from the most unlikely source.

Charles Johnson, hitless with the bases loaded this year and hitless against John Smoltz in his entire career, delivered a game-breaking double in the sixth inning that beat the Atlanta Braves 5-2 Friday night, giving Florida a 2-1 lead in the NL championship series.

"Those days back in June when you're playing, you play for days like this," Johnson said. "Especially when you win a game like this."

Certainly it didn't look too promising for the Marlins earlier. Kevin Brown, scheduled to start Game 4 tonight, was not at Pro Player Stadium. He was at home with a viral infection that bumped him back to Game 5 at best.

Brown's illness came a day after Alex Fernandez, supposed to start Game 6, was diagnosed with a torn rotator cuff that threatens to end his career. Plus, outfielder Moises Alou, who drove in 115 runs in the regular season and four more in Game 1, was forced to miss his second straight start because of a sore left wrist.

And yet, the Marlins found a way to come back for what Gary Sheffield called their biggest win of the year.

"Yes, I think so," said Sheffield, who homered. "With everything that's going on, Alex being out, Kevin being sick, down to the Braves, the best team in the world."

Not that manager Jim Leyland wants to keep overcoming adversity.

"We have to keep making some adjustments we didn't want to make," he said.

But Johnson made a sudden switch that delighted the Marlins and a baseball record crowd of 53,857 at Pro Player Stadium. His hit also made moot Leyland's protest of an earlier play.

Tonight in Game 4, Al Leiter will pitch in place of Brown against Braves' 20-game winner Denny Neagle.

Having already scored once in the sixth when Darren Daulton's low liner froze right fielder Andrew Jones and sailed over him for an RBI double, Johnson stepped up with two outs, the bases loaded and the score 2-all. And the odds all against him.

No player in the majors batted more often this season with the bases loaded (13) without getting a hit.

In addition, Johnson was 0-for-12 lifetime with eight strikeouts against Smoltz — including his two previous at-bats in the game — when he stepped to the plate.

"I knew it was something bad," Johnson said of Smoltz. "He's one of the best pitchers in the game. He showed it today. He got me my first two at-bats."

"I came back into the locker room and Jim Eisenreich told me, 'C.J., just relax and don't let our emotions take over.'"

Johnson, whose rare error in Game 2 sent the Braves toward a 7-1 win, hung in against Smoltz, whose 10 postseason wins tie him with Whitey Ford and Dave Stewart for the most in history.

"What a time for him to get his first career hit off me," Smoltz said.

Edgar Renteria touched off the four-run sixth with a one-out double and Sheffield walked. Daulton doubled with two outs, Devon White was intentionally walked and Johnson came up.

Johnson fouled off a 2-2 pitch, then hit a liner that barely escaped left fielder Ryan Klesko's dive and landed on the cinder warning track and one-hopped off the wall.

The Marlins spilled out of the dugout to greet the runners that scored. Leading the cheers was Fernandez.

Livan Hernandez, scheduled to pitch Game 6 in place of Hernandez, worked 1 2-3 scoreless innings for the win and Robb Nen got his second save of the series.

Harvesters slip by Canyon

CANYON — Pampa came from behind in the second half to defeat Canyon, 20-16, Friday night in a District 1-4A clash in Kimbrough Stadium.

Trailing 16-13 with 11:15 to go, Pampa fullback Erich Greer scored on a 17-yard run. That turned out to be the deciding touchdown as Pampa's defense took charge the rest of the way.

The winning tally was set up when an opportunistic Kris Davis fell on a Pampa kickoff on the Canyon 17. Josh Blackmon's kick bounced near the sideline, then took a wild spin across the field, catching the Canyon special teams players off-guard. Hustling all the way, Davis was able to make the recovery.

On the first play from scrimmage, Greer went up the middle for the score.

Pampa is now 3-3 overall and 2-1 in district play. Canyon is 1-5 and 0-2.

Canyon got on the board first when quarterback Kyle Clark connected with Mike Davis on a 7-yard TD pass with 7:46 to go in the opening quarter. The Eagles used six plays to score after a Pampa punt.

Canyon padded its lead to 10-0 on a 48-yard field goal by Charlie Russell with 10:35 remaining in the second quarter.

Pampa's first score came at the end of a 12-play, 80-yard drive when quarterback Justin Roark threw to wide receiver J. D. Woelfle from 17 yards out with 4:58 to go in the first half. Woelfle caught the pass a couple of steps in front of the Canyon goalline, then spun around a defender to get into the end zone.

With the score 10-7 at halftime, the Harvesters appeared to be headed for the first touchdown of the second half. Roark connected with Josh Franklin on a 12-yard pass that gave Pampa a first down on the Canyon 23. However, Pampa fumbled on the next play and Canyon's Eddie Medellin scooped up the loose ball in the Harvester backfield. Medellin took off on a 64-yard TD run and Canyon jumped to a 16-7 lead with 2:57 left in the third quarter.

Pampa was not to be denied on its next possession and marched 80 yards in 8 plays to score on Roark's one-yard keeper.

The big play in the drive was Roark's 56-yard pass to Bryan Waldrip that gave Pampa a first down on the Canyon 19.

Davis pulled off his heroics on the ensuing kickoff and Pampa was able to win its second straight district outing.

Greer was Pampa's leading rusher with 141 yards. Roark, starting his second game at quarterback, completed 9 of 17 pass attempts for 196 yards.

Pampa 20, Canyon 16
 C - Mike Davis 7 pass from Kyle Clark (Charlie Russell kick)
 C - Russell 48 FG
 P - J.D. Woelfle 17 pass from Justin Roark (Josh Blackmon kick)

 P - Roark 1 run (kick failed)
 P - Erich Greer 17 run (Blackmon kick)

Woodson may miss at least three games

IRVING, Texas (AP) — In yet another blow for the Dallas Cowboys' defense, Pro Bowl strong safety Darren Woodson could miss up to three weeks after hyperextending his right knee in practice.

Woodson, a six-year pro, hurt the knee on Thursday, and the Cowboys listed him as doubtful for Monday night's game against the Washington Redskins.

An MRI showed no ligament or cartilage damage in the knee.

Bucks improve to 6-0

Craig Urbanczyk led the running attack for the White Deer Friday night rushing for two touchdowns as the Bucks defeated Memphis at Memphis 35-0 to remain at a perfect 6-0 for the season.

The ground attack was complemented by a strong passing attack, evident in the first quarter as White Deer quarterback Jeremy Crook connected with Jay Easley who in turn found the endzone to give the Bucks a 6-0 lead after a two-point conversion attempt failed.

In the second quarter Urbanczyk showed his stuff, breaking through the defense for a huge 92-yard scoring sprint to the endzone. A two-point conversion pass from Crook to Nick Knocke completed the touchdown drive for White Deer.

Later on in the second quarter Crook found another receiver headed for the endzone, this time Andy Phillips, who was hit with the pass for a 23-yard scoring strike. With the point-after by Urbanczyk the Bucks went into halftime with a solid 21-point cushion over the Cyclones.

In the third quarter Memphis was able to hold White Deer scoreless, but were unable to score any much-needed points of their own to even out the score.

In the fourth quarter the Bucks returned to their scoring ways, opened up by a 74-yard jaunt to the endzone by Urbanczyk immediately followed by a two-point Knocke run. Near the end of the game Keith Larkin added the final touchdown of the game for White Deer, streaking 8 yards up the field to the endzone for the score.

White Deer remains unscored upon in six straight games this season, and with the victory over Memphis moves to a perfect 1-0 in district action, while the Cyclones continue to have trouble falling to 2-4 overall and a 0-1 start in district action.

Stars shut out Blackhawks

DALLAS (AP) — Ed Belfour tried to convince everyone who would listen that his first game against his former Chicago teammates would be no big deal.

The Dallas Stars goalie finally told the truth after blanking the Blackhawks 7-0 on Friday night.

"It's a great feeling to play them and get the shutout," Belfour said. "I was trying to keep my emotions under control. I have a lot of great memories about my time with them, but I'm here now. It's just part of the game."

Belfour was the Blackhawks'

goalie from 1989 until he was traded to San Jose last season. Belfour, who signed a three-year, $10 million deal as a free agent in the offseason, was seldom tested by the punchless Blackhawks.

He got plenty of help from his defense, needing only 14 saves for his 32nd career shutout and first for the Stars.

"This meant a lot to Eddie," Stars coach Ken Hitchcock said. "Deep down he wants to prove to people he's a good goalie. There were certainly some feelings there."

Errors topple No. 1 La Marque

By CHARLES RICHARDS
 Associated Press Writer

Two-time defending Class 4A champion La Marque couldn't overcome five second-half turnovers.

Longtime rival and neighbor Texas City capitalized on the mistakes Friday night, beating its nemesis, 28-12, before 13,000 at Stingaree Stadium.

"To get the opportunity to beat a program like La Marque is especially rewarding," exulted Texas City coach Rusty Dowling, who got his first victory in eight tries against the Cougars.

Texas City, ranked No. 9 in 4A, led 14-12 at the half and intercepted La Marque quarterback Roderick Johnson three times in the second half.

La Marque also was flagged for a personal foul on a Texas City punt, undoing Patrick Gilbert's 29-yard return to the Texas City 16 and allowing the Stings to retain possession.

LaMarque's last and perhaps most costly error occurred when Gilbert fumbled a 50-yard punt, giving Texas City possession at the Cougar 25. Adrian Daniels' 18-yard touchdown run came just three plays later, ending the scoring.

Elsewhere around the state Friday night, most of the upper-echelon teams improved to perfect 6-0 records:

— in 5A, No. 1-ranked Tyler John Tyler kicked a field goal as time expired to beat Marshall 24-21. Second-ranked Austin Westlake overpowered Austin High, 72-0.

— in 4A, second-ranked Denison beat Wichita Falls Hirschi 49-6 while third-ranked Sweetwater defeated Andrews 21-3.

— in 3A, top-ranked Sealy rolled on, beating Stafford, 39-3, while second-ranked Commerce beat Whitesboro 56-0 and third-ranked Crockett beat Fairfield, 35-6.

— in 2A, No. 1 Elysian Fields was untested, beating Hughes Springs 56-7 while second-ranked Alto crushed Beckville 43-0 and third-ranked Italy knocked off Hubbard 47-7.

— in 1A, top-ranked Wink shut out Fort Hancock 56-0, second-ranked Runge stopped Ben Bolt 26-8 and third-ranked Springlake-Earth got by Farwell 26-6.

Westlake racked up a whopping 453 offensive yards while notching its 100th victory this decade. The win over Austin High was its 22nd in a row and its 61st straight in the regular season.

Junior tailback Brett Robin rushed for 140 yards and four touchdowns for Westlake in only two quarters. Westlake scored on its first possession, then tackled Austin High in the end zone on the ensuing kickoff to pad its lead to 9-0 and go right back on offense. Not a good start for the Maroons of Austin High.

Breckenridge, ranked fourth in Class 3A, relied on the heroics of defensive end Jeff Willis to beat Abilene Wylie, 32-26.

Breckenridge blew a 21-6 fourth-quarter lead because they couldn't hang on to the rain-soaked football. Buckaroos punter Brian Atwell mishandled three snaps, which led to two of the Abilene Wylie touchdowns.

Wylie had the ball and a 26-24 lead in the final minute, but Willis sacked Bobcats quarterback Grant Gregg, who fumbled. Breckenridge's Robert Taylor scooped up the ball and ran 12 yards with the game-winning touchdown with 38 seconds to play.

Duval knocking at door again in search of first PGA victory

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — On the PGA Tour, David Duval would probably qualify as the best player never to win a tournament.

He has finished 11th and 10th in earnings during his two full years on tour, and this year he ranks 32nd with well over $600,000. He also has seven runner-up finishes, so he's been close to breaking through.

On Friday in the Michelob Championship, Duval put himself in position for a run at that first victory, shooting a 5-under-par 66 that gave him sole possession of second place, one behind Duffy Waldorf's 10-under 132.

Duval had six birdies without having to sink a putt longer than 8 feet and said the round was very similar to his 67 in the opening round.

"I just basically made birdies when I hit it real close. All of my birdies have been either two-putts or when I hit an iron real close," said Duval, the only player separating Waldorf and the logjam beginning with the six players tied for third. In all, 21 players are within five of the lead.

In only his third year on the tour, Duval said his failure to break through and win has been a popular topic, but it's not a concern for him.

"I know I can play this game well and I know I can win golf tournaments," he said. "Have I done it yet? No. Will I? Absolutely."

Waldorf scorched the 6,797-yard River Course at the Kingsmill Golf Club for a 63 Thursday, but managed only three birdies and one bogey Friday.

"Yesterday you could be more aggressive and go at the pin. Today, with some of the pins, you couldn't be so sure," said Waldorf, whose 30 putts in the second round were seven more than he needed in the opening round.

"I made almost every putt yesterday. Today, I missed quite a few," he said, adding that a three-putt from 25 feet on the ninth hole spooked him.

Fred Funk led the way at 134 after changing his grip and shooting a bogey-free 65, which tied Lee Janzen for the best round of the day.

Funk, the former golf coach at the University of Maryland, said the change was the latest in his four-year battle over which grip works best.

"I haven't figured out why one works one day and one works better than the other," he said. "I can switch at any moment. I'm a chameleon."

Also at 134 were Steve Lowery, whose 66 was built on eight birdies and three bogeys, Brett Quigley, Scott Gump, Kirk Triplett and Brad Bryant.

Rockets beat Magic

HOUSTON (AP) — Hakeem Olajuwon scored 20 points to lead the Houston Rockets to a 98-92 victory Friday night over Orlando in Chuck Daly's debut as coach of the Magic.

Clyde Drexler added 15 points and Charles Barkley 11. Barkley also led all rebounders with nine.

The Rockets, who swept the Magic in the 1995 NBA finals, trailed 25-20 at the end of the first quarter. But Olajuwon took over in the final four minutes of the second quarter, scoring nine points in that span, to give Houston a 52-39 halftime lead.

Houston never trailed in the second half, leading by as many as 24 points in front of the crowd of 16,285 at the Summit.

Penny Hardaway led the Magic with 18 points, 12 the first half. Derek Harper added 15 points.

Gardens Galore

Snapshots From Some Of This Summer's Area Gardens

MTV gal-pal tones down act, eases into primetime

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's definitely Jenny McCarthy on NBC's new sitcom "Jenny." The blond hair, blue eyes, etc., etc. Take a closer look. Isn't something missing?

That tongue is firmly back in her mouth after waging at countless contestants on the MTV dating game "Singled Out," which McCarthy co-hosted for nearly four seasons.

Also missing are the burping and wheezing that adorned "The Jenny McCarthy Show," her MTV sketch comedy series last spring.

Ditto for the armpit sniffing, nose picking and breaking of wind. All gone, she says. End of story. Sayonara. Ciao.

Introducing a gentler Jenny.

The 24-year-old former Playboy Playmate of the Year has toned down her act to carve a new niche for herself in the family rooms of America.

She says viewers can see "the other 70 percent of me" in "Jenny," airing at 8:30 p.m. EDT Sundays. And with a rating of TV-PG, how bad could that be?

"It's the normal side, the human side, the girl that actually does get embarrassed sometimes and who likes talking to Mom every day on the phone," McCarthy said. "That's the whole side that's real, that piece I haven't let people see yet because I was too busy creating another image."

The weeks surrounding her network premiere were full of anxiety and joy.

"The past couple of weeks I haven't been the easiest person to live with," McCarthy said. "I've been so terrified. ... You don't know what will happen, especially when you read different reviews and you know what our work hasn't been in the past.

"But as we got rolling and as I surprised myself in seeing what I can do, I said, 'Hey, maybe this is going to work for Jenny.'"

Some believe it will only work because the character Jenny plays is Jenny, who thankfully hasn't completely forsaken the wide-eyed outrageousness that helped propel her into a prime-time network series.

McCarthy plays Jenny McMillan, a grocery store clerk in Utica, N.Y., who finds out she inherited a house in California from the father she never knew. Jenny goes to Los Angeles with her best buddy

NBC has committed to 22 episodes of "Jenny," nearly double the typical order for a new sitcom. While the debut episode ranked a dismal fourth in its time slot, "Jenny" is showing strength among the valued 18-to-49 crowd.

Maggie (Heather Paige Kent) to settle affairs and decides to stay rather than sell the home.

The new pad comes with two dense guys named Max and Cooper (Rafer Weigel and Dale Godboldo), a pair of struggling videographers who rent the guest house. Jenny discovers her dad was a 1970s B-movie actor named Guy Hathaway (very believably played by George Hamilton). He makes appearances from beyond the grave throughout the season.

The show took some hits from critics in its first two weeks, though McCarthy tries to take it in stride.

"I'm so used to it. Oh God, yeah," she said. "It's just like a mean girl from another clique saying 'I'm a loser, you know? It's a part of life you just get used to ... For a girl who used to work at a Post grocery store, it's not so bad. They can say what they want."

NBC has committed to 22 episodes of "Jenny," nearly double the typical order for a new sitcom. While the debut episode ranked a dismal fourth in its time slot, "Jenny" is showing strength among the valued 18-to-49 crowd.

"It's been so crazy that the only time I find time to say my prayers is in the bathroom because it's actually the only moment that I have time alone," McCarthy said.

Life probably won't get any easier for a while. Next month, Regan Books will release "Jen-X, Jenny McCarthy's Open Book," a collection of vignettes from her life that she said helped her survive the rigors of show business.

A book, magazine covers, TV ads (for Candie's shoes and soon for Coors beer), a slew of Internet sites and a TV show — almost too much media exposure, isn't it?

"Sometimes I think I'm going to explode and sometimes I cry in my room when I'm watching TV," McCarthy said. "There's so much pressure you don't know how to release it and you've just got to cry. ... Is it too much exposure? Is it not enough? There's never a sure thing. I'm not trying to stick to any rules since I've come out here and I think that's why I got as far as I did."

The Market Forecaster
By George Kleinman

Wheat (Bull)

Outlook: The price weakness the past four to five weeks was not all that unexpected. There was no help from the outside markets. Exports business has only been routine. Actually, this basically looks like a correction in a major bull market. The weakest of the three wheat futures markets has been Chicago. It rallied about 60¢/bushel from the harvest lows to the summer highs. It has now retraced about two-thirds of this rally and is into major support. The strongest of the three, Minneapolis, rallied 70 cents and has only come back half way. While the winter wheat harvest was a pleasant surprise (particularly after the April freeze), the spring wheat harvest was ket is now at or close to a major low.

Strategy: Hedgers: Our call option strategy has proven its merits again. If you still own stored wheat, you have had to endure a wrenching correction over the past weeks. If you paid 20 cents for calls, this is the extent of your exposure. You still maintain upside potential and have had the use of your cash. If you are in a speculative mood, consider doubling up. Traders: Hold Minneapolis December futures bought in the 352 to 356 range. Our stop is at 380, it has not been hit at presstime, and we hope it won't be. However, if it is, rebuy on the first close over 390. Com (Bull) Outlook: Last week, we had both the bull and the bear in the box. The ify as the type of break we were looking for. Actually, the market, while weaker over the past four to six weeks, has given up ground very reluctantly. After a rally of about 50 cents from early July to late August, the market has only come back about half way. As in wheat, I now look for demand to prevail. Reports are China is exporting corn at a loss and much below their domestic prices. This will not continue forever, and once China turns from a corn exporter to an importer, prices could surge. The bear now leaves the box, and the bull takes over.

Soybeans (Bull)

Outlook: By the time you read this, the harvest of soybeans could be about half over. It is also possible, the season's lows have already been registered. If they haven't by the time you read this, then I think we are close. Yield reports vary, but the market has already discounted a large 2.7 billion bushel crop. What I believe the market has not factored in is the potential for the coming record large demand. Remember, the South Americans, our main competitors, are sold out. Two of the world's largest soybean exporters are now importing beans from the U.S. The domestic crush remains huge, as growing livestock populations consume protein meal. Simply put, I see very limited downside, and potentially dramatic upside for the soybean market over the coming four to six months.

Food safety news shakes cattle futures

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A fluctuating cattle futures market that dipped to an 11-week low this week and then rebounded with gains is not unexpected, market analysts say.

Washington hearings on food safety and three E. coli contamination scares linked to ground beef in recent weeks have led to some uncertainty in the market, said Chuck Lambert, chief economist with the National Cattlemen's Beef Association.

"The futures tends to be the market that has the most immediate reaction to both negative and positive news so that's probably contributed some," he said.

More than the E. coli incidents, the weakened market is due to a plentiful cattle supply, said Jeff Stolle, vice president of marketing for the Nebraska Cattlemen's Association.

"It would be, in my estimation, dead wrong to blame it all on E. coli," Stolle said. "Most of the reaction in the futures market is that we anticipate a rather large supply of fed cattle between now and the end of the year."

Cattle producers are becoming frustrated with the market because they had hoped to make more money than they are on cattle they purchased earlier this year, Stolle said.

On Tuesday, December cattle fell 0.45 cent to 66.225 cents a pound. November feeder cattle fell as much as 1.125 cents to 76.6 cents a pound on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The market rebounded Wednesday, with December cattle gaining 0.17 cent to 66.4 cents a pound. November feeder cattle were up 0.15 cent to 76.75 cents a pound early in the day and later leveled off at 76.6.

The cash market has remained relatively constant in recent weeks. In Nebraska, slaughtered cattle were selling for $105 per 100 pounds two weeks ago and last week. This week the market softened to $104 per 100 pounds, Stolle said.

"A dollar change in three weeks is very little change whatsoever," he said.

In Kansas and Texas, the price paid for live cattle also has remained constant the past three weeks, dropping only $1, Stolle said.

Considering all the variables this time of year, it is difficult to sort out what is causing the highs and lows, Lambert said.

"At this stage it's probably difficult to pin it on any one issue," he said.

The news for the beef industry has been nothing but bad since late August when the Hudson Foods Inc. plant in Columbus, Neb., shut down after recalling 25 million pounds of ground beef suspected of being tainted with the E. coli bacteria. A U.S. Agriculture Department investigation is under way and a federal grand jury in Omaha is investigating whether there was an attempt to cover up the extent of the possible contamination.

Last week, South Korean officials said they would not accept 18 tons of beef imported from IBP Inc. of Dakota City, Neb., after samples showed the presence of E. coli.

And on Friday, BeefAmerica recalled 443,656 pounds of ground beef from its Norfolk plant after meat tainted with E. coli found in a Virginia grocery store was traced to the company.

a disappointment overall. I feel the supply picture is in now and in the market. The demand picture is the future and looks bright. The outside markets should soon lend support. Bottom line, I believe the wheat mar-bear was there since the odds at the time favored harvest selling pressure. Even though the harvest is not yet half over, markets anticipate. The recent price correction, a bit over 20¢/bushel from the top, does qual-

It's trial by peers in teen court

ORLANDO, Fla. — Would she steal a shirt again, if she knew she wouldn't get caught? Zaria Garcia hesitated.

Then, with a smirk, the 14-year-old answered: "I don't think so." In a courtroom full of teen-age prosecutors and defense attorneys, the six teen-age jurors weren't convinced.

So they sentenced Ms. Garcia to 36 hours of community service, a tour of a city jail and a 500-word essay on temptation — the maximum sentence possible.

Why? "She didn't care about what she did," juror Taylor Cloys-Ward, 15, said. "There was no remorse."

Welcome to teen court, where juveniles in trouble with the law are prosecuted, defended, judged and sentenced by peers.

In Florida, a state with one of the nation's worst juvenile crime rates, this idea has caught on. Sarasota County started the state's first teen court almost 10 years ago. Now, 37 counties throughout the state have them. This year, an estimated 10,000 to 15,000 cases will pass through Florida's teen courts, lifting some of the burden from overwhelmed courts elsewhere.

Throughout the country, teen courts are evolving as an alternative to regular juvenile justice courts. Conceived in the late 1970s in Odessa, Texas, now almost every state has one, said Katie Self, president of the Florida Association of Teen Courts Inc.

Teen court is one of the few successes in the nationwide effort to keep first-time offenders from committing more crimes.

In Orange County, those teens who go through teen court reflect recidivism rates of only 5 percent. Statewide, the rate ranges from 8 percent to 16 percent. By comparison, the recidivism rate for rehabilitation programs dealing with more serious juvenile offenders exceeds 50 percent.

The real judges offer some perspective of that success. "It's a more relaxed atmosphere because it isn't court and doesn't have the onerous potential consequences," said Judge Jose R. Rodriguez.

The judge, who presided over Miss Garcia's hearing, was one of the few people in the Orange County courtroom with a driver's license. He called the juvenile jurors savvy, and able to say if a kid's remorseful or he's pulling the wool over their eyes.

The courtroom mixes volunteers and juveniles now serving sentences. Before stepping into court, they receive training from real attorneys on procedure and practicalities — for example, how to present themselves before a judge. "We teach them how to make their client not look entirely like a goober," said Robert Paul LeBlanc, an attorney who serves as an adviser. "You don't want someone who is going before a sentencing hearing to roll their eyes and say, 'Yeah.'"

Having already pleaded guilty, students who come to teen court receive a sentence. If they don't complete their sentences, they bounce into the regular juvenile court system. If they do, they can get charges removed from their records.

During their sentencing hearing, the teen-agers have the opportunity to express remorse and to apologize.

"There's a little bit of public humiliation there," said attorney Norberto Katz, also serving on the advisory board.

Miss Garcia, who was caught stealing a $9.99 shirt, had trouble with the remorse part. After admitting that she had stolen before, but had not been caught, she stumbled on the question of future temptation.

During closing arguments, prosecutor Angela Bustamante, 13, hammered on that. "This is not the first time she has done something like this," Miss Bustamante said.

Defense attorney Jose Cabrera, 17, tried to convince the jury that Miss Garcia had learned her lesson. "Members of the jury, Miss Garcia made a mistake. She doesn't want to do it again," said Cabrera. Just four months earlier, Cabrera himself had appeared as a defendant, charged with driving without a license and violating Orlando's curfew.

While the jury deliberated for 10 minutes, the judge lectured Miss Garcia on what punishment she would face if tried as an adult: $500 fine, six months' probation, and up to six months in prison.

The judge called Miss Garcia and her mother, Gloria Vasquez, to stand in front of his bench when jurors read the sentence. Afterward, Rodriguez instructed Miss Garcia to face her mother and apologize. Shrugging her shoulders, she looked at her mother and said, "I'm sorry."

They then embraced. "Sooner or later, you get caught," the judge said. "I would ask that next time you do this, you think of your mother."
