PAMPA — Editor's note:
Last week The Pampa News ran a story in which we published a heartfelt letter from Carla Cogdell who told about her relationship with her frail and aging horse, Missy. She wrote about the 32-year-old horse and her 20-year-relationship with the steed. Under the watchful eye of a veterinarian, the decision whether or not to euthanize Missy was being made day-by-day. We want to let our readers know that Missy now has been put to sleep. And we also want Cogdell to know that many of our readers contacted us to let us know how moved they were by the story of Cogdell and Missy.

HOUSTON (AP) —
Allegations in a $33 million lawsuit that three girls were improperly strip searched by Foley's department store security personnel have been dismissed by a jury.

Two of the girls were 13 and 14 when they were detained in a shoplifting investigation at the Foley's in West Oaks Mall on April 4, 1996. The suit was filed by the girls' families.

Guard Gloria Lopez was accused of taking each one separately into a small room and having their clothing removed for an inspection of their private areas.

Jurors in state District Judge Tony Lindsay's court deliberated for about four hours.

"Although our policy is not to comment on litigation, we are pleased this matter has been concluded and would only reiterate that Foley's will vigorously defend those lawsuits we believe to be without merit," said company spokeswoman Elise de Compiegne.

Two of the girls were ordered to do community service time for shoplifting two purses.

Pampa loses bid for youth school

Despite a valiant effort by community leaders and a bid package offering nearly $6 million in incentives, Pampa is not among the top contenders for a new 660-bed youth facility.

"Obviously we are very disappointed," said Lew Mollenkamp, executive director of Pampa Economic Development Commission. "We think we put in a tremendous effort. I am really proud of the resources we put together. It certainly was not for lack of doing everything we could."

Only two panhandle cities made the cut — Amarillo and Plainview. Others on the list include the City of Mart, Jefferson County, Fannin County, the City of Littlefield, Limestone County, Jefferson County, the City of Marshall and the City of Hamlin. Two other communities in South Texas will also be visited, as no locales in that region made the top 10 list.

The final selection for the facility that will generate a $20 million annual payroll will be made Nov. 20.

An announcement from the Texas Youth Commission, said each of the 43 proposals was graded on factors including ability to provide a trained and culturally diverse labor force, access to utilities and incentives, demonstration of community support, site's proximity to communities from which most TYC youth are committed, construction ease, communications services, location of medical facilities, availability of fire and police protection and location of site in relation to other facilities within the community.

Though it will be Monday before Mollenkamp will be able to speak to TYC officials about their decision-making process he speculated about what may have held Pampa back.

"Just from looking at the list, I think they focused hard on labor, housing supply and (professional) manpower" availability, he said Saturday. "But then again, we look pretty good with our proximity to Amarillo...but some of the smaller cities on the list are closer to large cities than we are."

Asked if Pampa could have a chance at future youth schools, Mollenkamp said, "The TYC has indicated long term there will be four more youth facilities but they are evasive when you try to pin them down about it. I think they have just been focusing hard on this one...I do believe there'll be more opportunities."

Meanwhile, Mollenkamp says Pampa has "plenty of other opportunities" for economic growth.

Because of the confidential nature of those dealings, he was not specific but said there are "companies looking at us...there are other significant projects we are working on."

Among those are additional opportunities in "the criminal justice field," he said, adding that the $50,000 consultant hired to draft Pampa's youth facility proposal is currently working on these.

Counties may have to keep inmates for state

Texas Department of Criminal Justice officials have warned county jails and county judges that they might be keeping prison-bound inmates longer because the state's lockups are about to reach capacity.

Gray County Sheriff Don Copeland said this is not new information.

"We've been hearing that for a few months," he said. "They say it'll happen around April."

"We're getting full, and we're looking at the option of leasing some space," Glen Castlebury, a spokesman for TDCJ, said last week. "We're still on track to run out of space by next April."

As of Thursday, there were 139,300 inmates in the state prison system, which can hold 142,600 prisoners, he said.

In a letter to county officials dated Oct. 7, Executive Director Wayne Scott said TDCJ "is pursuing other strategies for meeting the demands of a growing inmate population."

"One strategy the agency would like to implement involves contracting for available beds in county jails," Scott wrote.

He has asked county judges to consider holding prison-bound, or "paper-ready" inmates up to 15 days longer than the mandated 45-day time period that TDCJ has to accept prisoners.

TDCJ would reimburse counties at an agreed upon daily rate beginning on the 46th day.

Jury finds 12-year-old guilty of capital murder

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — A 12-year-old boy was convicted capital murder Friday for bludgeoning a man to death with a tire iron for his Social Security check.

Juvenile Judge Jim Bobo, who closed the trial to the public, sentenced the child to 30 years' confinement. He will serve in the Texas Youth Commission until age 17, when a judge will decide whether he will move into the state prison system.

He could have sentenced the boy to 40 years in prison.

The jury took several hours to reach the verdict in the case of Ruben Benavides Hernandez, 45, who was killed at his home in June.

Authorities canvassed the neighborhood after a brother found the body. Benavides Hernandez suffered facial wounds so severe that police on the scene first thought he'd been shot.

"The crime scene looked like something out of a violent horror movie," Odessa police spokesman Robert Hammerman said at the time. "The motive to the murder was simply robbery."

Early voting starts Monday for Texas amendment election

Early voting for the Tuesday, Nov. 4 Texas Constitutional Amendment Election will begin this Monday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the office of the County Clerk on the second floor of the Gray County Courthouse.

New changes in the law make it impossible for voters to vote without identification of some kind.

"If they do not have and bring their voter registration card, they must have their I.D.," County Clerk Wanda Carter said.

Fourteen amendments are on the upcoming election ballot including:

• No. 1 — The constitutional amendment to allow a person who holds the office of municipal court judge to hold at the same time more than one civil office for which the person receives compensation.

• No. 2 — The constitutional amendment to authorize the legislature to limit increases in the appraised value of residence homesteads for ad valorem taxation and to permit a school district to calculate the school property tax freeze applicable to the residence homestead of an elderly person or the surviving spouse of an elderly person in accordance with the law authorizing the transfer of the school property tax freeze to a different homestead regardless of whether that law was in effect at Columbia Medical Center is offering reduced rates for mammograms with a doctor's referral this month in recognition of the 12th annual National Breast Cancer Awareness Month campaign.

Today is also National Mammography Day and women around the country are encouraged to take time out and think about scheduling their next mammogram.

"Annual mammograms are still the best diagnostic tool to catch early breast cancer," said Jo Gholston, a radiology and mammography technician at Columbia Medical Center.

INMATES

But, if prison-bound inmates are kept in county jails longer, it could cause population problems in county lock-ups as well. The longer stay of inmates sentenced to prison or picked up for parole violations could fill up the county jail, said Copeland.
 Currently, the Gray County is running at half its full capacity of 78 inmates. If the inmate population increases, the county will have to shell out increased expenses for food and hire more jailers, said Copeland. The number of jailers must be increased when the capacity of a county lock-up rises above 48, he explained. But, due to future planning, that should not be a problem in Gray County.

"I've got the money to hire them if we need them," said Copeland. "But, I hope we don't need them."
 The county, earlier this year, also entered an agreement with the city to house the city's class C offenders. Other offenders arrested by the police department were already being housed by the county jail. The recent agreement, however, has not been a problem for the county.
 "It really hasn't affected us that much as far as room in the jail," said Copeland.
 But, with the possible lengthened stay of prison-bound inmates in the future, the county could also be looking for space to house inmates. If that situation occurs, Copeland said the county would place inmates in other county jails until space is available in Gray County.

cancers too small to be felt by a woman herself, or her health care provider. They can also show changes in the breast tissue that could be a sign of very early breast cancer. And when used along with monthly breast self-examinations, mammography has proven to be effective in saving lives, Gholston explained.
 "People think that it can't happen to them," she said.
 But breast cancer is the most frequently occurring cancer in American women. It has a higher cure rate if it is caught in its early stages and mammography can reveal a malignant tumor or cancer two years before symptoms appear, according to the American Cancer Society.
 An average woman's lifetime risk of developing breast cancer is one in nine and there is expected to be 182,000 cases of breast cancer this year.

 Although there is still no direct cause for the disease, genetics do play a role in it, Gholston said.
 "If your mother, grandmother, sister, daughter or aunt had it, you are at a greater risk," she said.
 Personal and family histories of breast, colon, ovarian or endometrial cancer can increase the risk.
 However, 85 to 90 percent of all breast cancers occur in women without a family history of the cancer. The disease also tends to strike older women more than the younger.
 Younger women's breasts generally consist of "glandular" tissue, whereas the older a woman gets, the more "fatty" the breast tissue becomes, replacing the glandular. And fatty tissue is more susceptible to the cancer, Gholston said.
 The recommendation of the American Cancer Society for mammography is for women between the ages of 35 and 40 have a base line exam and women age 40 or over should continue to have one annually.

Police, cohorts differ over murder scenarios in doctor's slaying

TEMPLE, Texas (AP) — The shooting death of a Temple emergency room physician and the apparent suicide of another Temple man resulted from a relationship that had gone wrong, police said.

Temple Police Chief Ralph Evangelous declined to describe the nature of the friendship between Dr. Steven McDonald, 32, and Jayston Kuberski, a 22-year-old unemployed high school dropout.

"They were friends," Evangelous said during a Friday news conference. He said it would be "irrelevant" to elaborate on the relationship.

"We've documented they were friends since June 1995. There were clearly problems there. (The friendship) deteriorated, and there were signs Kuberski was becoming obsessive. He was a very troubled young man," Evangelous said.

Friends and colleagues of McDonald's at Scott & White Memorial Hospital in Temple, where McDonald worked, disputed police accounts of his relationship with Kuberski. They said McDonald knew him only casually and that they were never friends.

In a tape recording made just before he committed suicide, Kuberski admitted to gunning down McDonald during the early morning of Oct. 10., officials said.

Evangelous said Kuberski ambushed and killed McDonald at the doctor's home shortly before 4 a.m. as McDonald arrived from Scott & White Hospital, where he was chief emergency medicine resident.

Kuberski fled the scene and was found 14 hours later in his car, parked in a convenience store parking lot in nearby Belton. He was dead of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head, police said.

Evangelous said the doctor's journal describes many conflicts with Kuberski dating back more than a year and named Kuberski as a suspect in several alleged stalking incidents.

McDonald reported few such incidents to police and never identified Kuberski as a suspect, Evangelous said. Police also found six hours of tape recordings by Kuberski.

"In those tapes, he admitted to being the gunman. It was the rambling of a very disturbed man," Evangelous said.

McDonald's Scott & White colleagues said the murder culminated more than a year of harassment for the doctor, ranging from threatening telephone calls and e-mail to numerous burglaries at his home. They claim McDonald feared for his life, kept a loaded gun in his home and spent several nights with his boss' family.

Dr. Carl Gossett, Scott & White's director of emergency medicine, said McDonald feared that Kuberski, a man from his neighborhood, was planning to kill him. However, Gossett and others who knew McDonald disputed the police department's conclusion that the two men had developed a relationship.

"If Steve had a friend that he cared about, we would have known him," Gossett told the Waco Tribune-Herald.

McDonald said he was unaware of why Kuberski would stalk him, Gossett said.

"If they had anything other than a casual encounter, don't you think (McDonald) would have pointed to (Kuberski) as a suspect much earlier," said Dr. Cami Porter, an emergency medicine resident who worked with McDonald.

But the evidence shows otherwise, police said.

"The documents and statements we have received make it clear that Kuberski was a frequent guest in the home of Dr. McDonald," Evangelous said.

Police say neighbors report having seen Kuberski at McDonald's home several times, and a key to the doctor's house was found on Kuberski's key chain.

Copies of McDonald's document and transcripts of Kuberski's tapes have not been released by Temple police.

Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Cost of medicine much too high

More than once over the past couple of years, I've had people tell me they're often forced to choose between buying food or buying medicine because of the high price of drugs. That's a choice no one should have to make, and one which comes about, in part, because of the costly approval process required by the Food and Drug Administration.

Today in America, it takes 12 years and $350 million dollars to get the average new drug from the laboratory to the first patient who needs it. As a result of this red tape, two thirds of the new medicines approved by the FDA over the past five years were approved in another country first.

But more disturbing than the dollar cost of these delays are the human costs paid by those Americans who are seriously ill and need a new drug or device that could make their life better.

The House of Representatives took a step toward solving this problem recently by passing a reform bill that will shorten the FDA approval process and give patients quicker and easier access to life saving drugs and medical devices.

Among other things, this bill offers patients with serious or life-threatening diseases access to experimental drugs that may save their life if their doctor determines that the benefits will outweigh the risks. The reform bill also reauthorizes a law called The Prescription Drug User Fee Act, which will reduce by over a year the time it takes to approve new drugs and medicines. This bill was passed in the House with bipartisan support and now goes to the Senate for its approval.

While it's too early to say whether the Senate will pass the bill, it's isn't too early to say that people's complaints about the high cost of drugs are finally being heard, and the FDA bureaucracy which affects so many lives is finally being cut down to size.

Americans need lower taxes

The average American household saw a slight increase in its income last year, the Census Bureau recently reported. The news was cheered at the White House.

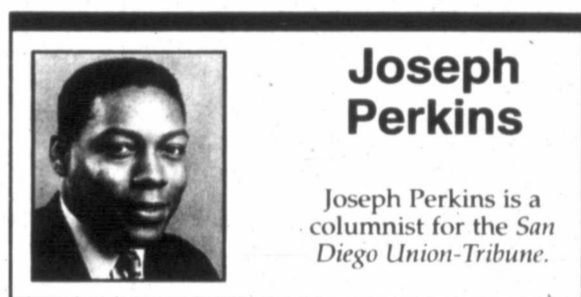

It's "more evidence," President Clinton chirped, "that our economic strategy is working. After years and years of stagnant family incomes, today's report proves that America's middle class, no longer forgotten, is rising fast." But things are not quite as rosy as the president suggests. For even with the modest 1.2 percent rise in household incomes last year, the average household is still not earning what it was seven years ago, the peak of the last economic cycle.

This might be understandable if the nation was mired in a recession. But as President Clinton so often reminds us, the economy has been growing for the past four years or so. Inflation is low. Interest rates are low. Unemployment is low.

Yet American families are not enjoying the fruits of this putative prosperity. Their paychecks were $1,000 smaller in 1996 than they were in 1989, when George Bush was still in the White House. In fact, the average American household earned $100 less in 1996 than in 1986, when Ronald Reagan was commander-in-chief.

And if it is not bad enough that working Americans have suffered a decrease in their incomes during the 1990s, the government has reduced their take-home pay by raising their taxes.

Indeed, Bush raised taxes by a whopping $263 billion in 1990 and Clinton followed with a staggering $275 billion tax hike in 1993. This double whammy explains why the average

Joseph Perkins

Joseph Perkins is a columnist for the San Diego Union-Tribune.

American family has lost economic ground during the 1990s.

The balanced budget deal that the White House and Congress agreed to two months ago does reduce taxes by $85 billion over five years. But these tax cuts will have only a negligible effect on household incomes.

The main reason is that these are not broad-based "income" tax cuts, but "targeted" tax cuts. There's a $500 per child tax credit, a capital-gains tax reduction, a higher education tax credit, a reduction in estate taxes and expanded Individual Retirement Accounts.

But half of families have no children. Three-quarters have no children in college. Most Americans claim no capital gains on their taxes, pay no estate taxes and exempt no income through IRAs. So the majority of Americans benefit little from the targeted tax cuts.

Moreover, the tax cuts are rather miserly. They add up to only $17 billion a year, which amounts to little more than 1 percent of the $1.6 trillion in revenues - mostly taxes - the federal government takes in each year. Or to put it another way, the tax cuts amount to less than $20 per household per year.

If President Clinton really wants to reverse the years and years of stagnant family incomes - which occurred mostly on his watch he should support an across-the-board income-tax cut. It should reduce the average family's tax burden by $1,000, which would restore average take home pay to 1989 levels.

Of course, the president thinks that he has already been generous enough with American families by agreeing to the $85 billion in targeted tax cuts. But that five-year tax reduction is not even one-fifth the size of the twin tax hikes of 1990 and 1993.

And if ever there was an opportune time to give working Americans a substantial tax cut, it is now. As President Clinton crows, the economy has sustained steady growth. Moreover, the deficit is expected to come in lower than projected this year. And the federal government is expected to be in the black sooner than the balanced budget agreement called for.

In fact, both the White House Office of Management and Budget and the Congressional Budget Office recently calculated that the balanced budget agreement underestimated revenues by $135 billion over the next five years.

If that budget surplus materializes, then first claim should go to those who provided the windfall - the working Americans who've been paying higher taxes during the 1990s, who continue to labor under the highest tax burden in American history.

It is hard to be cheerful about the economy when the average American household enjoys less income today than a decade ago. The federal government owes them an income-tax cut.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Oct. 19, the 292nd day of 1997. There are 73 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 19, 1987, the stock market crashed as the Dow Jones Industrial Average, amid frenzied selling, plunged 508 points - its biggest-ever one-day decline.

On this date:

In 1765, the Stamp Act Congress, meeting in New York, drew up a declaration of rights and liberties.

In 1781, British troops under Lord Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown, Va., as the American Revolution neared its end.

In 1812, French forces under Napoleon Bonaparte began their retreat from Moscow.

In 1864, Confederate Gen. Jubal A. Early attacked Union forces at Cedar Creek, Va.; the Union troops were able to rally and defeat the Confederates.

In 1944, the Navy announced that black women would be allowed into Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service.

In 1950, United Nations forces entered the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

In 1951, President Truman signed an act formally ending the state of war with Germany.

In 1977, the body of West German industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer, who had been kidnapped by left-wing extremists, was found in the trunk of a car in Mulhouse, France.

In 1977, the supersonic Concorde made its first landing in New York City.

Ten years ago: U.S. warships destroyed two Iranian oil platforms in the Persian Gulf in retaliation for an Iranian missile attack on a U.S.-flagged tanker off Kuwait.

Five years ago: President Bush, Democrat Bill Clinton and independent Ross Perot met in their third and final campaign debate, in East Lansing, Mich.

Morales faces tough choices

Dolph Tillotson
Reporter for The Daily News

Texas Attorney Gen. Dan Morales faces several key decisions as his office handles the issue of public access to motor vehicle accident records in Texas.

So far, the attorney general has inclined toward opposing newspapers and other groups trying to regain access to the records. We hope a review of the legal and ethical issues will lead him to rule solidly on the side of openness.

The issue rises out of SB 1069 passed in the 1997 session of the Texas Legislature. The bill purports to be one that protects privacy rights. However, it fails adequately to protect rights to privacy while cutting off traditional access to records of traffic accidents.

For the first time ever, newspapers in Texas elected to file suit to prevent enforcement of a state law, which the newspapers see as being contrary to the spirit of previously passed public records laws as well as the Texas and U.S. constitutions.

Most recently, officials at the Texas Department of Public Safety announced they interpret SB 1069 so broadly that DPS officials have begun to withhold information on accidents. They offered newspapers an opportunity to sign an agreement that would result in release of some information, but most newspapers refused.

There were good reasons for that refusal. The agreement requires acknowledgment that records formerly viewed as being open to the public now are closed. The agreement seems to treat newspapers and other media as being in a different class from all other citizens, and most editors see that as being contrary to the state's public records law.

Finally, the DPS agreement form requires newspapers to refrain from publishing on the Internet any information acquired.

Many newspapers, including The Daily News, now have Internet editions. Restricting publication there clearly is a prior restraint on publication and just as clearly is a violation of free press guarantees in the First Amendment.

As this debate goes on, the people of Texas now are missing stories about accidents in their region. In Galveston County, for instance, DPS denied The Daily News information about an accident involving a fatality and which also involved the mayor of Galveston and his wife. Reporters got the story anyway, but SB 1069 made it more difficult, and the story lacked some needed details.

So, why is Dan Morales so pivotal in this debate? He faces choices in three areas.

First, newspapers have filed an open records request on several accidents investigated by DPS. It is the newspapers' contention that these documents are public records and that SB 1069 is being interpreted too broadly. Morales' office will rule on that request.

Second, newspapers already have won a temporary injunction prohibiting enforcement of one section of SB 1069. They will ask Morales' office voluntarily to broaden that injunction that provides temporary but immediate relief.

Finally, there will be a hearing Oct. 24 for a full airing of the issues involving SB 1069. There is nothing to prevent working out a suitable compromise on the measure before Oct. 24, which no doubt would win approval of the judge.

As Morales deals with these issues, the attorney general has an opportunity to establish himself as an ally of openness in government. In situations where the legal issues are a close call, the people's right to know must always be a compelling consideration.

Texas and the United States have a tradition of honoring the principles of openness and free press. Today, unfortunately, those principles are under assault in Texas, and the attorney general is in a position to blunt that assault or help it along.

The public interest requires rulings on the side of openness.

Letters to the editor

To the editor:
I am an inmate on the TDCJ-ID Jordan Unit in Pampa, Texas. I was involved in an accident on Sept. 30, 1997, in which approximately 30 inmates were injured. The accident occurred when a tractor pulling three trailers with inmates overturned.

The inmate who was driving the tractor is being blamed for the accident, but it was not his fault. The inmate was ordered by a TDCJ field boss to drive down a steep incline. The day preceding the accident the brakes gave way on the same tractor, and it rolled down a hill missing a "line" of working inmates by about 20 feet.

I am willing to be interviewed about this and numerous other safety violations in the field force at the Jordan Unit.

Bryan W. Ferguson

To the editor:
The family or families that complained about prison inmates being around their school children are to be applauded and commended.

How else can we ensure the safety of our "little people?"

This is not an issue about compassion, paranoia or forgiveness for or toward prison inmates.

These parents are fulfilling their love and commitment to their children.

How in God's name can they be criticized for doing their duty as parents?

Perhaps if all parents took the safety of our children as serious as these parents our daily newscasts and print media would not be reporting that another child has disappeared, been raped or molested or abducted.

Some of us it seems put "free" inmate labor for playgrounds and hike and bike trails and tearing down of old walls before the safety of our young children.

Shame on us!

I applaud parents that show their love for their children. How in the world can they be criticized? God bless you and help you take care of your children!

To the editor:
On Oct. 10, I witnessed what I could only describe as a marvelous show of respect on the part of you, the citizens of Pampa.

As my father's funeral procession left the cemetery, proceeded up Hobart to 23rd, over to Duncan and up to Fairview Cemetery, everyone who met the procession (with the exception of one pick-up truck with three young men on Hobart) pulled over and stopped. A UPS driver stopped, got out of his truck and placed his hand over his heart. Six teenagers walking back to the high school from lunch stopped and stood still as the procession passed.

Living in Houston, you never see this kind of respect — on or off the freeways.

I could not let this opportunity pass without praising and thanking you for the courtesy shown. It makes me proud to be a Pampa native.

Patricia Sims Gotcher

To the editor:
Yesterday afternoon I returned from the 50th anniversary celebration of the class of 1947. The reunion was wonderful, and I saw many old and dear friends, the sight and interaction with whom warmed my heart. The people of Pampa are some of the kindest, gentlest, dearest I have ever known.

When I got away from the reunion, however, I felt sickened by the decaying and abandoned structures, the litter, weeds and eyesores. I stayed at the "Official landmark of the people of the City of Pampa," the Grand Coronado Inn, where I was checked in by a person who stood and smoked the entire time at the registration desk and again while I was checking out. The entire lobby area reeked of smoke. This "landmark" is a disgrace, and its designation should be revoked and the sign removed. It should be purchased again by the City, torn down and rebuilt into a structure worthy of its citizens.

In the event this should occur, I would suggest your planning commission consider an all-weather building design. Many hotels have covered swimming pools and hot tubs where they can be used even during a "blue norther" and where living plants give a tropical garden atmosphere. This would allow the area to be used for wedding receptions, etc. which could attract business the entire year. A new design taking into consideration the high possibility of tornadoes would be a real asset.

Pampa is capable of having so many assets that are not being utilized. Rarely do I see any events in Pampa listed in "Texas Highways" magazine and little is in AAA literature. The area is capable of growing beautiful lilacs, peonies, irises, pumpkins, bulbs, etc. The rodeo does not attract me, but an iris festival, a lilac festival or something similar would. I have flown to Holland, Mich., and Amsterdam for tulip festivals, to Keene, N.H., for the pumpkin festival, and hope to visit the fall foliage festivals in New England this year.

In Holland, Mich., the downtown area has picnic areas with cement tables and chairs, pear trees and blooming bulbs everywhere. All shopping centers, fast food restaurants, churches, parks and schools are planted with tulips. There is a designated "Tulip Drive" with signs pointing the way. This drive encompasses many streets along which all lots are lined with about a foot-wide border of blooming tulips and the effect is breathtaking. I can visualize downtown Pampa with planters filled with blooming bulbs or peonies and lining the way toward the high school and surrounding streets. Athens has its blackeyed pea festival, Clute its mosquito festival and Luling its watermelon thump to attract tourists, surely Pampa could find an asset worthy of celebration.

As I left Pampa yesterday, I purposely drove by the intersection where Ripley joins Highway 60 to see the first view an arriving visitor would get, and it is an appalling picture. I know you want to attract new industry, residents and visitors, and the old expression, "You never get a second chance to make a first impression" certainly applies. Look at all the entrances to Pampa and ask yourself if you would find it appealing.

The people of Pampa are very special. Unfortunately, in its current condition, with residents fleeing to Amarillo for competent medical attention, shopping, dining, etc., few will ever be drawn to Pampa to know them.

If ever the decision is made to rescue Pampa from its imminent death, I will be happy to contribute in any way I can to help it succeed. I care deeply.

Change tax structure to sustain high-tech future

AUSTIN (AP) — The state should reboot its taxing structure if it wants to maintain its growing position in the high-tech computer and telecommunications markets, according to a new study.

In recent years, more and more telecom companies and makers of computers, computer components and software have made Texas their home. The state has been chosen in part because of its location in the center of the country with access to major transportation ports.

But according to a study led by Angelou Economic Advisors Inc., the state continues to regard — and tax — the companies as one large, high-tech group.

"You can't lump all these industries into one category," said Angelos Angelou, head of the Austin-based consulting firm. "Each one needs to be considered separately when it comes to creating a tax system."

The issue of state taxation continues to be of considerable interest not only to high-tech companies. That's because a committee of legislators again is looking at ways to restructure the state's tax system.

Lawmakers, who made slight changes to lower local taxes on Texans' homes, could consider changes when they convene in January 1999. They say they want to make sure the state's tax system is fair to everyone and promotes growth in the state's various economic sectors.

According to Angelou's report, job growth in the state's high-tech industries has grown faster in recent years than that state's overall economy.

"The technology sector is the driver of the Texas economy," he said. "Ways have to be found if high-tech is going to continue to push the state forward."

Aside from suggesting that lawmakers treat — and possibly tax — the various industries in the high-tech market differently, research and development in the report also suggests offering Texas for technology and export tax incentives to companies doing businesses.

Attitude Means Everything When Trying To Make Peace

DEAR ABBY: I have practiced law for 40 years as a trial lawyer and counselor, and have served as a mediator for more than 1,000 cases in the last seven years. In my role as a peacemaker and advocate of conflict avoidance, I have reached certain conclusions that might help your readers:

1. Learn to disagree without being disagreeable. It's all right to be assertive, but not aggressive, abusive or abrasive.
2. When someone says something with which you disagree, try not to be judgmental.
3. Maintain eye contact when greeting people, and shake their hands. (Touching is important.)
4. Be kind and courteous to everyone.
5. Remember that civility is a sign of strength, not weakness.
6. Speak softly. (People tune out loud, angry voices.)
7. Saving face is important. Give your opponent the opportunity to withdraw.
8. Your attitude is more important than your aptitude.
9. Mutual respect is the key to avoiding conflict.
10. Give the other person a chance to be heard without interrupting.
11. The shortest distance between two people is a smile.

PETER S. CHANTILIS, ATTORNEY-MEDIATOR, DALLAS

DEAR PETER: Your suggestions are excellent. (My favorite is No. 11.)

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

rites are Nos. 7 and 11.)

DEAR ABBY: In my 32 years of living, I have spent every Christmas with my family. I am now in a serious relationship. My boyfriend and I recently decided to go skiing this Christmas during our short vacation time.

I called my mother to advise her that we wouldn't be spending Christmas Day with her and my large family, but I would love to come home for Christmas Eve.

My mother hung up on me and we haven't spoken since! She told me I was being unfair and selfish and that I should know how important the holidays are to her. I love my family, but I am an adult and should be able to make my own decisions without feeling guilty.

DEAR ABBY: Isn't it time she let go? What happens one day when I have a family of my own? Is there a right or wrong?

FEELING GUILTY IN LOS ANGELES

DEAR FEELING GUILTY: Your mother is wrong. Don't feel guilty. You are offering a fair compromise by attending the family gathering on Christmas Eve. And yes, you will want to establish holiday traditions of your own in the future. Why not begin now?

DEAR ABBY: You published a letter last winter that keeps popping up in my mind. It was signed "His Wife." The writer was complaining that her good-looking, well-educated, clean, "good daddy," wonderful husband wanted to help around the house — but what he did wasn't up to her standards.

Please ask her to send him to me. I'll trade him for my good-looking, well-educated, clean, sometimes "good daddy," who is also a mean, bad-tempered, abusive, name-calling, complaining and usually absent husband. I promise he will never get in her way or do things wrong, because he'll never lift a finger to do anything in the house.

I will love and appreciate her husband, the dingy clothes he washes, the undercooked/overcooked meals he prepares, and most of all, his presence.

EAGER TO SWITCH IN OHIO

DEAR EAGER: I'm willing to wager that when "His Wife" sees your letter, she'll hang on to the husband she has. Yours sounds like a doozy.

Sport utility vehicle insurance may rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Some big insurers plan to raise rates for sport utility vehicles and pickup truck owners after research showed the vehicles inflict unusually costly harm to cars and their occupants in collisions, The New York Times reported today.

Farmers Insurance Group, a unit of B.A.T. Industries and the nation's third-largest insurer, and Progressive Corp. already have begun changing the way they calculate their rates, the newspaper said. Executives at Allstate, Nationwide, Geico and USAA said they were reviewing the issue, while industry leader State Farm was "actively hostile" to adjusting liability rates by model, the Times reported.

The overhaul could mean a liability rate increase of up to 20 percent for drivers of sport utility vehicles and pickups over the next several years and a cut of up to 10 percent for car drivers, the newspaper said.

That could mean an extra $50 to $700 a year in liability insurance payments for the first group, depending on current rates, and a saving of $25 to $350 for the second.

The biggest sport utility vehicles, like the Ford Expedition and the Chevrolet Suburban, weigh 5,200 to 6,000 pounds, while the average sedan weighs about 2,900 to 3,300 pounds.

Two crash tests already conducted in Europe by independent researchers found that sport utility vehicles, because of their height and weight, caused substantial damage to cars' passenger areas.

"It's pretty obvious the size and weight of these vehicles and the way they're built is contributing to the loss experience," said Jonathan Adkisson, an actuary at Farmers Insurance Group. "When an accident occurs, the heavier vehicles are more likely to inflict damage and injuries, and these result in larger claims, so it seems appropriate to charge the drivers of those vehicles higher premiums."

Woman shot after police standoff

DENISON, Texas (AP) — A 29-year-old woman was in critical but stable condition Thursday from gunshot wounds after a car chase ended in a brief standoff with police and sheriff's deputies, police said.

Denise Howe of Denison was being treated Thursday at Texoma Medical Center, said Sgt. David Hawley, spokesman for the Grayson County Sheriff's Department.

Hospital spokeswoman Deana White refused to provide information on her condition Thursday night.

Police and deputies pursued the car for about eight miles to an auto repair shop on U.S. 69, about three miles east of Denison, where she pulled into a service bay.

After 10 minutes of ignoring police and deputies demands to step from the car, she emerged holding a 9mm handgun, Hawley said. Told to drop the gun, she raised it and was shot down shortly after 5 p.m., he said.

No officers were injured.

"CHURCH MEMBERSHIP"

Is church membership necessary in order to be saved, or does one have to be a member of some church in order to enter heaven? The apostle Peter states: "if any man speaketh, speaking as it were oracles of God." (1 Pet. 4:11.) The apostle Paul says: "And whatsoever ye do, in word or in deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through Him." (Col. 3:17.) Therefore, the answer to our question must be found in the Bible, the Word of God.

The Bible teaches that there is only one church and that that church is the body of Christ "and He put all things in subjection under His feet, and gave Him to be head over all things to the church, which is His body, the fullness of Him that filleth all in all." (Eph. 1:22-23.) "There is one body, --" (Eph. 4:4.) The one church of the New Testament speaks of, then, is the body of Christ and He has only one body, one church (Col. 1:18).

Prior to the second chapter of Acts, we read of the church only in prophecy (Isa. 2:2-4.) Jesus predicted the building of His church (Matt. 16:18.) He had not built it at that time but promised that He would build it. We know He was not speaking of erecting some material building of brick or stone, but rather of building together a group of people. Peter records: "ye also, as living stones, are built up a spiritual house, to be a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God through Jesus Christ." (1 Pet. 2:5.) The one church, then, is made up of individuals who have, by faith, rendered obedience to the gospel of Christ (Rom. 6:17-18.) The first ones to render such obedience were those three thousand people on the first Pentecost after the resurrection of Christ (Acts 2.)

The truth of the matter is that one cannot be a member of the one true church without being saved. And one cannot be saved without obeying the gospel of Jesus Christ (2 Thess. 1:9.) The same act that washes away one's sins admits one into the one body, the church of Christ (Acts 22:16; 1 Cor. 12:13; Gal. 3:27.) It is conclusive, then, that a person cannot be saved without being a member of the church of Jesus Christ. Churches of human origin do not enter in because they are not ordained of God (Matt. 15:13.)

HUNTING

CANYON — Results of a recent quail survey by Texas Parks and Wildlife indicated an increase in quail abundance in the Texas Panhandle for the first time since 1993. Wildlife biologists are attributing the population increase to the influence of favorable weather conditions on quail habitat.

The upcoming quail hunting season opens on Nov. 1, 1997 and closes on Feb. 22, 1998. Legal shooting hours are from one half hour before sunrise to one half hour after sunset. The daily bag limit is 15 quail, with a possession of limit of 45 quail.

The roadside cruise quail surveys, conducted in 34 counties within the TP&W Panhandle Regulatory District, revealed an average of 18.7 quail per survey, an increase of approximately 10 quail per survey, compared to 1996 survey results. Although the forecast is "fair-to-good" for the upcoming hunting season, wildlife biologists do not expect 1997 to be a bumper year for quail populations. The recent estimate indicates that populations remain below the long term average of 25 quail per survey.

The recent surge in quail abundance, following the poor quail crops observed in 1995 and 1996, is not without explanation. Quail populations tend to fluctuate, rather than remain at stable levels, due to the tremendous influence of precipitation on quail habitat.

Drought-like conditions, such as those observed from 1994 through mid-1996, can lead to poor quality of vegetative cover and decreased abundance of quail food items such as green plant shoots, seeds and insects.

BASKETBALL

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Yolanda Griffith scored 26 points as the Long Beach Sting Rays won their ABL debut 98-91 over the San Jose Lasers on Friday night.

Olympic gold medalist Venus Lacy added 19 points before fouling out.

The 2-year-old league's lone expansion team took an 18-point first-quarter lead.

Long Beach used runs of 9-1, 6-1 and 8-1 in building a 33-15 lead. Griffith had eight points in the quarter.

The Lasers (1-1) answered with a 12-5 spurt with 4:55 to play in the half to close the gap to 52-37.

Borger rallies past Pampa in District 1-4A showdown

PAMPA — For three quarters, Pampa had Borger on the ropes. But Borger delivered the knockout punch with two fourth-quarter touchdowns for a 30-20 win Friday night at Harvester Stadium.

Pampa was ahead 20-17, when Borger started its comeback.

With 10:39 left in the fourth quarter, quarterback Victor Escobar connected with James Nix on a 62-yard touchdown pass.

On the ensuing kickoff, Borger's Devin Brown intercepted Justin Roark's pass and scrambled 37 yards for the touchdown to make the score 30-20.

It was Pampa which had to make a comeback after Borger had taken a 10-0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

With the Harvesters on their own 25, Roark connected with J.D. Woelfle on 27-yard pass and a first down on the Borger 48. Five plays later and aided by a Borger 15-yard penalty, Pampa got on the scoreboard with a 43-yard field goal by Josh Blackmon.

On Borger's next possession, the Bulldogs were forced to punt from deep in their own territory. Pampa's Ronnie Proby broke through the line and blocked Colton Wilkinson's punt and teammate Shawn Harris recovered the loose ball in the Bulldog end zone. One of the key plays for the Pampa defense came when lineman Aaron Hayden tackled running back Kevin Massey for a two-yard loss on the Borger 12.

Blackmon's PAT knotted the score at 10-all with 4:49 to go in the first half.

Pampa appeared to have solved Borger's slippery offense, especially in the second quarter.

Hayden and linebacker Jared White led a Harvester defense that threw Escobar and the Borger backs for losses or no gain time after time.

The early part of the third quarter belonged to Pampa before Borger started taking command.

The Harvesters took the opening kickoff and used the big play, a 57-yard TD pass from Roark to Gabe Wilbon to get the lead on Borger, 17-10, with 9:33 remaining in the third quarter.

Pampa's defense rose up to stall Borger on its next possession as safety Jarred Bowles picked off an Escobar pass on the Harvester 45.

Six plays later, Pampa went up 20-10 on another 43-yard Blackmon field goal. With 4:49 to go in the third quarter, that would be Pampa's final tally.

Massey scored on a 15-yard run with 45 seconds remaining in the third quarter and Borger pulled within three, 20-17.

Massey led Borger's ground game with 149 yards on 16 carries.

Both quarterbacks, Roark and Escobar, had over 100 yards in passing. Roark completed 7 of 19 pass attempts for 124 yards. Escobar made good on 7 of 13 pass attempts for 120 yards.

Bryan Waldrip was Pampa's leading receiver with two catches for 16 yards.

Pampa is now 3-4 on the season and 2-2 in district play. Borger is 5-1 overall and 3-0 in district.

Miami's Flowers blooms in 58-8 win over Higgins

MIAMI — Marshall Flowers reached the end zone four times rushing and one time passing as he led the Miami Warriors to a District 1-1A victory over Higgins 58-8 Friday night.

Higgins scored all of their eight points in the first quarter when James Thompson was found in the endzone by Garrett Barton for a 15-yard scoring strike that evened Higgins up with Miami 8-8 at the time.

Miami proceeded to dominate the rest of the contest, utilizing a solid defense that allowed only 177 yards and only 6 Higgins first downs.

Offensively the Warriors had little trouble scoring runs, beginning with a 6-yard rushing touchdown by Bradley Hale. Flowers tossed a 10-yarder to Blake Hurst for a 10-yard touchdown in the first quarter as Miami began to pull away from Higgins.

throughout the second quarter, as Flowers slashed his way into the endzone twice for the Warriors, first on a 27-yard TD and the other a 4 yard rush into the endzone leading Miami en route to a 38-8 halftime lead.

Three more Warrior touchdowns followed in the second half of the game, including another pair of Flowers touch-downs. Flowers was able to break free of the defense from 26 yards out for the first touchdown and sprinted from 13 yards out for the second scoring strike. Jammy Murray concluded with the final touchdown of the game, a 1-yard shove into the endzone in the fourth quarter.

Miami remains unbeaten with the victory, moving to 6-0 overall and 2-0 in district action. Higgins, who lost to Follet the week prior drops down to 2-4 overall and 0-2 in District 1-1A.

Another Cowboy crisis

IRVING, Texas (AP) — In going from rags (1-15 in 1989) to riches (three Super Bowl victories in the last five years), Dallas Cowboys have faced plenty of critical moments and usually found a way to succeed.

Just six weeks into this season, the Cowboys are once again trying to scramble out of trouble. Dallas is 3-3, not playing well and possibly headed toward its most forgettable season of the 1990s.

Cowboys veterans recognize that they're once again facing a make-or-break situation heading into today's game against Jacksonville (5-1).

"Every season has a point during the year that's difficult and you have to come out fighting," quarterback Troy Aikman said. "We can either quit or we can fight and do what we can to salvage this season."

Tight end Eric Bjornson has only been around since 1995, but he's still seen his share of crises — enough, at least, to understand the team is facing another one right now.

"We've started questioning how good we are after having not done well for the last few games," Bjornson said. "We've definitely got the ability. It's just a matter of getting it done."

Judging by Dallas' schedule, that won't be easy.

After hosting the Jaguars, the Cowboys travel to Philadelphia and San Francisco. Then Dallas returns home to play Arizona and Washington (both of whom have already beaten the Cowboys this season), followed by a trip to Green Bay.

Jets face Pats in key AFC game

By The Associated Press

When the New York Jets played the New England Patriots at Foxboro earlier this year, it was hyped as a grudge match between Bill Parcells and the team he led to the Super Bowl last season.

When the teams meet Sunday at the Meadowlands, it will just be an important game in the AFC East.

"The last time, it was personal," said Patriots pass-rusher Chris Slade, demoted to part-time status by Parcells late last season. "This time, it's business. I think that's the way our guys will approach it."

The Patriots beat the Jets 27-24 in overtime Sept. 14 in Parcells' return to Foxboro, where he coached four seasons before leaving to take over the Jets.

"That game is over with and we're not going to gripe about it," Jets receiver Keyshawn Johnson said. "This is a new New England team and a new Jets team. Everyone has grown. It's totally different now."

The Patriots lead the AFC East with a 5-1 record. The Jets are in third place at 4-3, and badly need a victory to establish themselves as playoff contenders.

For the Jets to win, they must do a better job of containing New England's Curtis Martin, the AFC's No. 3 rusher. Martin, who usually has big games against the Jets, gained a career-high 199 yards in their first meeting this year.

"We just got to get some hits on him," Jets safety Victor Green said. "If we get him first instead of him getting us and running over us, it can give us an advantage."

In other games Sunday, it's Arizona at Philadelphia, Carolina at New Orleans, Jacksonville at Dallas, San Francisco at Atlanta, Seattle at St. Louis, Washington at Tennessee, Detroit at the New York Giants, Miami at Baltimore, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, and Denver at Oakland.

Buffalo visits Indianapolis on Monday night.

On Thursday night, Kansas City routed San Diego 31-3. Chicago, Green Bay, Minnesota and Tampa Bay are off this week.

Denver (6-0), the NFL's only unbeaten team, will try to improve to 7-0 for the first time in franchise history.

Broncos coach Mike Shanahan, who was fired by the Raiders midway through the 1989 season, is 4-0 against his old team since coming to Denver in 1995. But the last three games have been decided by a total of nine points, including Denver's 22-21 win at Oakland last season.

"This team is by no means overconfident," Shanahan said. "They feel good about what they've done, but they know how competitive and how tough it is to win. Everyone's complimenting the heck out of us. As long as you don't swallow it, you're all right."

The San Francisco-Atlanta game will pit the top team in the NFC West against the division's last-place team.

The 49ers (5-1) have won five in a row, while the Falcons (1-5) are coming off their first win of the season.

Without injured All-Pro Jerry Rice, the 49ers are spreading the ball around to more receivers. And the running backs have taken a more prominent role in the West Coast offense, rushing for 375 yards in the past two games.

"We're trying to find an identity," first-year coach Steve Mariucci said. "Are we a passing team or are we a rushing team? I'd like to think we're a balanced team that can do what it takes to win. It's nice to know we can do either."

Stewart has two-stroke lead in Disney Classic

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Payne Stewart didn't look like he had just shot a 5-under-par 67 or sound like he was still leading the Disney Classic.

Shoulders slumped, he walked off the last green after making birdie from 15 feet and looked back over the Lake Buena Vista course, trying to figure out why more of them didn't fall.

"I felt that I let a lot of good opportunities go to waste," said Stewart, whose 13-under 131 gave him a two-stroke lead over Len Mattiace and Andrew Magee going into today's third round.

He wasn't the only one who felt that way.

Lake Buena Vista is the easiest of the three courses used for the Disney Classic. The average score at the 6,829-yard, par-72 over the past 13 years is 69.7, and the last two winners — Tiger Woods and Brad Bryant — shot 63 there.

After starting with an 8-under 64 in the first round at the more difficult Palm course, Stewart warned that a score of "60-nothing" at Lake Buena Vista would not be automatic.

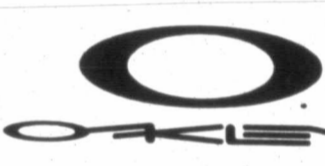

And he was right.

"You can get in trouble at Lake Buena Vista," said Mattiace, who made seven birdies inside 10 feet in his round of 66.

Nazareth pulls off big upset

By CHARLES RICHARDS
 Associated Press Writer

Cameron McLain was running, says Nazareth head coach Rick Price, "like a man possessed."

McLain rushed for 172 yards on 21 carries as the Swifts ended the regular-season winning streak of Springlake-Earth, Class 1A's third-ranked team, at 16 games, 20-7, Friday night.

Standing in the shadow of your own goalposts against the Springlake-Earth defense is not recommended. But Nazareth made it work, putting together scoring drives of 95, 99 and 93 yards.

Elsewhere on Friday night, all the No. 1-ranked teams in Texas high school football continued to roll.

— in 5A, top-ranked Tyler John Tyler beat Nacogdoches 24-6, while No. 2 Austin Westlake stunned Austin Crockett 42-0 and No. 3 Longview stopped Tyler Lee 42-25.

— in 4A, Denison celebrated its first week atop the rankings by racing past Burkburnett 66-0.

Senator to serve time on weekends

AUSTIN (AP)—State Sen. Drew Nixon will serve his six-month jail term one weekend at a time under a judge's order signed Thursday. Nixon, sentenced for soliciting a prostitute and illegally carrying a weapon, will report to jail by 6 p.m. Fridays and stay until 6 a.m. Mondays under the order signed by Travis County Court-at-Law Judge David Puryear. This weekend is his first.

"This is not unusual in misdemeanor cases in Travis County. The sheriff of Travis County testified during the trial that this was an option available if a jail sentence was assessed," said Dain Whitworth, Nixon's lawyer.

The Republican senator from Carthage, in East Texas, was arrested in February during an Austin Police Department sting targeting men soliciting prostitutes. The woman with whom he agreed to have sex was an undercover police officer.

Nixon pleaded guilty to two misdemeanor crimes: agreeing to pay for sex and illegally carrying a gun. A loaded gun was found under the seat of Nixon's car when he was arrested.

No reference can be found to another sitting lawmaker being jailed while holding office, according to legislative librarians. Others have been charged while in office, but most resigned or did not return to office before being sentenced.

Man arrested for stealing fire truck

CANYON LAKE, Texas (AP) — A 19-year-old man was arrested after he burglarized the Canyon Lake Volunteer Fire Department, stole a fire truck and wrecked it while speeding through the small town, police said.

Michael Brandon Elbel was taken into custody about 12:45 a.m. Thursday at the accident scene.

Comal County sheriff's deputies said they watched as the fire truck traveled at a high rate of speed, then ran a stop sign and rolled over.

An investigation revealed someone had burglarized the fire station and had driven the fire truck through the station's garage door.

Elbel was charged Thursday with theft over $200,000 and burglary of a building.

LIFESTYLE

Back in the saddle again

Light morning haze still hangs over the cottonwoods along McClellan Creek as the horsemen ride out from the Darsey Ranch headquarters.

They circle the pasture to the north, pushing the cattle before them as the red disk breaks the eastern horizon. By the time the warm morning light hits the riders and herd, they are already in the meadow west of the house, headed for the pens where they would separate the calves from their mothers.

Les Darsey moved here when he was 11 years old. He's spent most of his life here, running a cow-calf operation along the banks of McClellan Creek north of Alanreed.

"I did take a few years off in my early years and hunt some greener pastures, but I found out that these are just green here as any place," he says.

He went to school at McLean and Lefors. His son, Mike, grew up on the ranch.

When Les was a youngster, they had a man working for them that had come off the Matador Ranch. Clarence Sparks had worked at the Matadors' Turtle Ho'e Camp and had story after story to fire the imagination of a young teenager.

"I heard those wild tales so I ran away from home and went to the Matadors," Darsey says.

At 14, he was the hoodlum for the wagon on the Matador Ranch, at least for a few days.

"Of course, they caught me pretty quick," Darsey says.

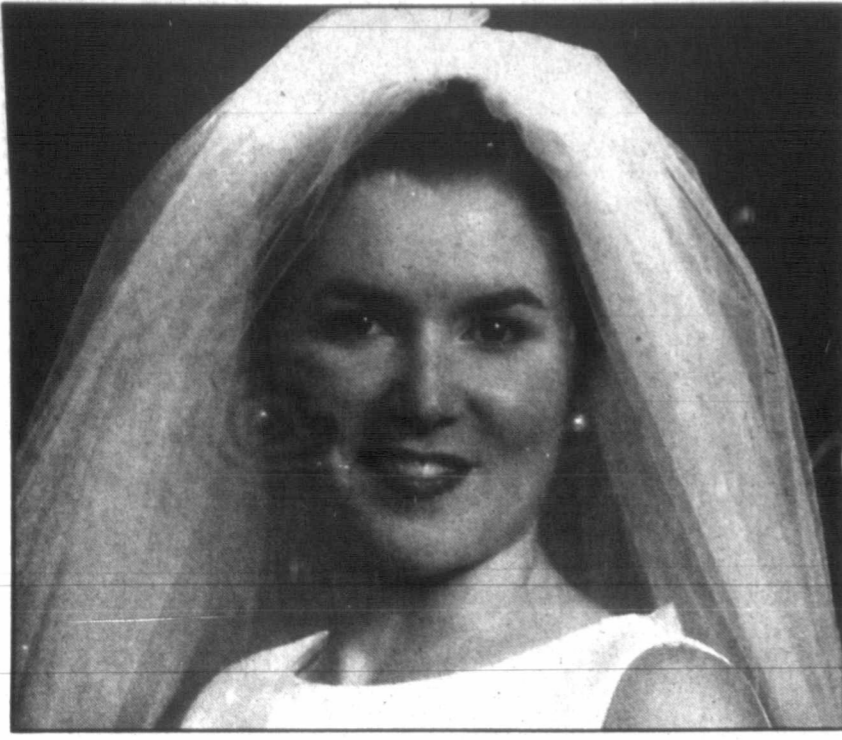

After high school, he went to work on the historic JA Ranch near Clarendon.

That was in 1946. After Darsey left the JA, they wrote saying that if he wanted to come back and take the rough string, they'd pay him $125 a month.

"I was bragging to another old boy that used to work down there and told him I had a good mind to go back and try the rough string for $125," Darsey says. "He said, 'Heck, Les, you were already riding the rough string.'"

Today, his horses are more refined, but the job's the same. They're still working horses. Les still gathers cattle. But this time, it's his cattle and he's working them with his son — on the family ranch.

Retired cop finds second career as TV consultant

By KAREN MATTHEWS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Anyone who was a cop for 34 years is sure to have a story to tell, but not everyone gets to share that wealth of experience with the producers of one of the year's most widely praised TV shows.

Tom Doyle is in that enviable position as a consultant to "Brooklyn South," the latest offering from the "NYPD Blue" team of Steven Bochco and David Milch (airing Monday at 10 p.m. EDT on CBS), and he feels blessed indeed.

"I get up every day and I think of how kind Mr. Bochco and Mr. Milch have been to me," the self-effacing former officer said. "I'm really just a retired policeman, but they have been so nice to me!"

"Nice" was probably not a word that popped into the mind of anyone watching the premiere of "Brooklyn South" and the bloody opening scene that has propelled the show's action ever since.

A murder suspect goes on a rampage that leaves a police officer and a retired detective dead and another cop paralyzed. The suspect, wounded himself, dies after being dragged to the station house and beaten.

The carnage was so extreme that several reporters called the real NYPD the next day to ask if such a thing had ever happened.

It did — 20 years ago. "Larry Bromm did get shot," said Doyle, who was not present at the shootout on Dec. 20, 1977, but remembers it because Bromm is a friend. "Larry got paralyzed, Jimmy Stewart got shot in the left arm, and I believe a detective who was retired was shot dead."

The real shooting happened on Brooklyn's Flatbush Avenue, just like the TV version.

"It was an auto accident, a couple cars involved," Doyle said. "Larry Bromm was in the radio car. He was doing the accident report."

The suspect, William Ross Wakefield, emerged from the subway and apparently thought the police were there for him.

According to a news account at the time, Bromm and two other officers were wounded in the ensuing gun battle and a retired detective was killed. Wakefield, wanted for nine bank robberies and three murders, also died.

Bromm remains paralyzed from the waist down; he told a reporter he was "just in the wrong place at the wrong time."

Add a sniper and a hue-and-cry over a suspect's death in custody, and you have, more or less, "Brooklyn South."

"The incident was based on an actual incident, and of course, being television, they elaborated," Doyle said. "It was a true story though."

At 63, Doyle has twinkling eyes and a stiff crew cut. He still lives in Brooklyn, home of his childhood and working life. He arrived early for an interview at a police hangout near the department's Manhattan headquarters.

He joined the NYPD in 1961 and left in 1995. "I was bored with retirement," he said. "It really stinks."

Happily, he was friends with Bill Clark, a retired Queens detective who has worked with Bochco on "NYPD Blue."

Clark called one day "and said that they were going to maybe start a new show up, and would I like to come out to California and see what was happening?"

Two years later, the show is on the air and winning good reviews for its gritty portrait of neighborhoods tourists seldom see.

In a recent installment, Hasidic Jews attacked a black man they wrongly believed had mugged a man and his 12-year-old granddaughter, and delicate negotiations were required to stave off Bosnian-style ethnic meltdown.

The premise was familiar to anyone who has been following the news out of Brooklyn.

"Nothing is going to be unusual about the show," Doyle promised, "because it's going to be a patrol show, which encompasses everything — from homicide to a lost child, the mother giving birth, old people dying." A main character on "Brooklyn South" is named Doyle — Officer Jimmy Doyle — but Tom Doyle dismissed the suggestion that the show is based on his own career.

"I'm shy about it," he admitted. "A long time ago, a nun said, 'Remember this, Doyle: SPS. Self-praise stinks.'"

His role as a consultant has him advising both the writers and actors, "whatever I can do to make the cops on the show as believable as possible, look as professional as possible."

He recently spoke with actress Klea Scott, who plays Officer Nona Valentine, about how to handle a crowd gathered around a stabbing victim. He told her to use her baton to push people back, to ask if anyone had seen the stabbing and then to ask again in Spanish.

Doyle has flown to Los Angeles several times and also helped when the crew was in Brooklyn shooting exteriors. As with "NYPD Blue," "Brooklyn South's" interiors are shot in Los Angeles, where the 74th Precinct stationhouse has been meticulously recreated down to sanding the floor tiles to make them look worn.

"I thought I saw everything," said Doyle, shaking his head over the sheer artistry of it all. "I find I know nothing."

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

Wheat (Bull)

Outlook: The wheat market has not been as exciting as corn or soybeans lately. Then again the funds were not as "short" wheat and therefore didn't have as much to cover. Wheat is now the poor boy of the grain complex. It seems the spreaders (those who buy one market and sell another) feel the wheat is the one to sell, versus purchases elsewhere. This will actually add bullish fuel to a future rally. Right now, however, beneficial rains are falling on key winter wheat producing areas, and the market is focused on supply (which does not appear to be a problem at present.) When export business picks up, as I believe it will, and the market keys back on demand, the futures will once again have a "four" in front. Bullish corn is not bearish wheat despite what the spreaders may now think. In fact, I believe downside price risk at current levels appears quite limited.

Strategy: Hedgers: Replace all cash wheat previously sold, or toe sold, with at the money call options. With options your risk is limited to the cost of the option plus fees. At present this is less than 12 cents for December and under 20 cents for March. Your upside remains open and free.

Traders: Hold Minneapolis December futures bought in the 352 to 356 range. Keep the stop at 380.

Corn (Bull)

Outlook: There remains concern about the actual size of the U.S. crop. At press time, we do not yet have the crop report data; however, based on yield reports, I would not be surprised if the numbers come in at less than the average estimates (about 9.4 billion bushels.) If this happens it would be bullish. Corn futures have had a dramatic rally since our last report, and I believe this is more than worry about the crop size. I have harped for weeks about China, but I do not think we can overemphasize this factor. Readers know I became bullish corn in the fall of '95 when corn was in the mid $2 range, specifically because we correctly determined at that time China would turn from Asia's largest exporter into a corn importer. Corn eventually reached the mid $5 level by the summer of '96. Well, I see the same phenomena developing again, and if China once again becomes an importer, as I predict they will soon, corn is way underpriced.

Strategy: Hedgers: We remain 60 percent hedged at an average price of about $2.67 using at the money puts. Forty percent of our crop is not priced. You should be selling these puts as you harvest your corn. You also should be selling your cash corn at harvest, with the simultaneous purchase of March at the money calls to maintain ownership. The calls will limit your downside risk, while maintaining you upside potential.

Traders: Last week, we suggested buying at 255. The market bottomed at 255 1/2, so if you followed the strategy to the letter you are not in. Look to now buy December on breaks below 270. Risk to 254 with an eventual objective above 310.

Soybeans (Bull)

Outlook: Soybeans have also rallied dramatically since our last report. This is not typical in the middle of harvest, and indicates just how bullish this market really is. The news wires are calling this "short covering by the funds," but I think it is more. Do not forget this year that Brazil, the second largest exporter of soybeans in the world, is now an importer. They are importing from the U.S., as we are the world's only suppliers. Brazil must be really short, since they recently (and quietly) lifted their longstanding ban on the importation of genetically modified soybeans. After the crop report, this market may take a rest, but I maintain it has a lot of upside left in it!

Strategy: Hedgers: We are 50 percent sold in new crop November futures at an average price of about $7.02. These hedges should be or have been lifted as your crop was harvested. Take the profits and add them to your ultimate selling price. Sell your cash and maintain ownership with the purchase of March call options.

Traders: We remain long November futures at below $6.26, and this now looks like the low. Raise your risk point to break even. Leave the upside profit open at this time.

Cattle feeders look to future at convention

Because the cattle industry is changing and cattle feeders are trying to visualize their future in a changing consumer marketplace is why the Texas Cattle Feeders Association (TCFA) chose "Visualizing the Future" as the theme of its 1997 Annual Convention, Nov. 16-18 at the Hyatt Regency in Austin, according to TCFA officials. The Opening General Session on Monday, Nov. 16, will feature TCFA President James Herring, who will talk about the past year and his vision for the future of cattle feeding. Gov. George W. Bush has been invited to update cattle feeders on the future of agri-business in Texas, according to Burt Rutherford, spokesman for the TCFA. Following Bush, cattle feeders will get a glimpse of how technology will affect their future from Dr. Dale Webb, associate director of the Mid-Continent Technology Transfer Center, Rutherford said. "Gary Hoover, founder of the company that became the basis of Barnes and Noble booksellers, will share his vision of retail trends and what it will take to be an entrepreneur of the future." Capt. Al Haynes, who piloted an ill-fated United Airlines flight that crash landed in a Midwest cornfield, will also tell his story to cattle feeders. On Tuesday, Nov. 17, cattle feeders will hear an update on the National Cattlemen's Beef Association's BrandLike Initiative from John Huston, executive vice president of the NCBA Center for Consumer Marketing, and Jan Lyons, past chairman of the Cattlemen's Beef Board. Jim Pattillo, president and CEO of XL Foods in Calgary, Alberta, will talk about how technology will change beef processing. For more information on the convention, contact TCFA at 5501 West 1-40, Amarillo, TX 79106 or call (806) 358-3681.

Angus business chalks up growth

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The Angus business chalked up solid growth during its 1997 fiscal year ending Sept. 30. Registrations were up 8.6 percent, transfers (sales of registered cattle) grew by 11.4 percent, and the Certified Angus Beef Program reported product sales growth of 27.4 percent for the period. "Despite the continued liquidation of beef cows in this country, the American Angus Association had its best year in some 17 years, continuing the growth that began in the 1980s," said Richard L. "Dick" Spader, executive vice president of the association in St. Joseph, Mo. For the year, registrations of Angus cattle totaled 239,476, up from 220,586 a year ago and the largest number since 1980. Transfers, which represent sales of cattle to new owners, were 142,956 an increase of 11.4 percent from last year, also a 17-year high. Prices for registered Angus sold at auction were higher in 1997 than the year earlier. The average price for 24,441 Angus bulls was $2,198, an increase of $244 from the 1996 average. Females averaged $1,787 on 19,746 head, an increase of $111.

Freedom of information awards made

ATLANTA (AP) — The Record of Hackensack, N.J., won the top award in the freedom of information competition of the Associated Press Managing Editors association Friday, for exposing the failure of local police to report crimes such as rape, sexual assault and armed robbery.

The 27th annual award was presented at the APME conference by Bruce Giles, executive editor of The Tuscaloosa (Ala.) News, and APME FOI chairman.

Five citations also were awarded for extraordinary effort toward a better-informed citizenry. They were presented to:

— The Advocate, Baton Rouge, La., for a successful fight to make applications for public jobs in Louisiana open to public inspection.

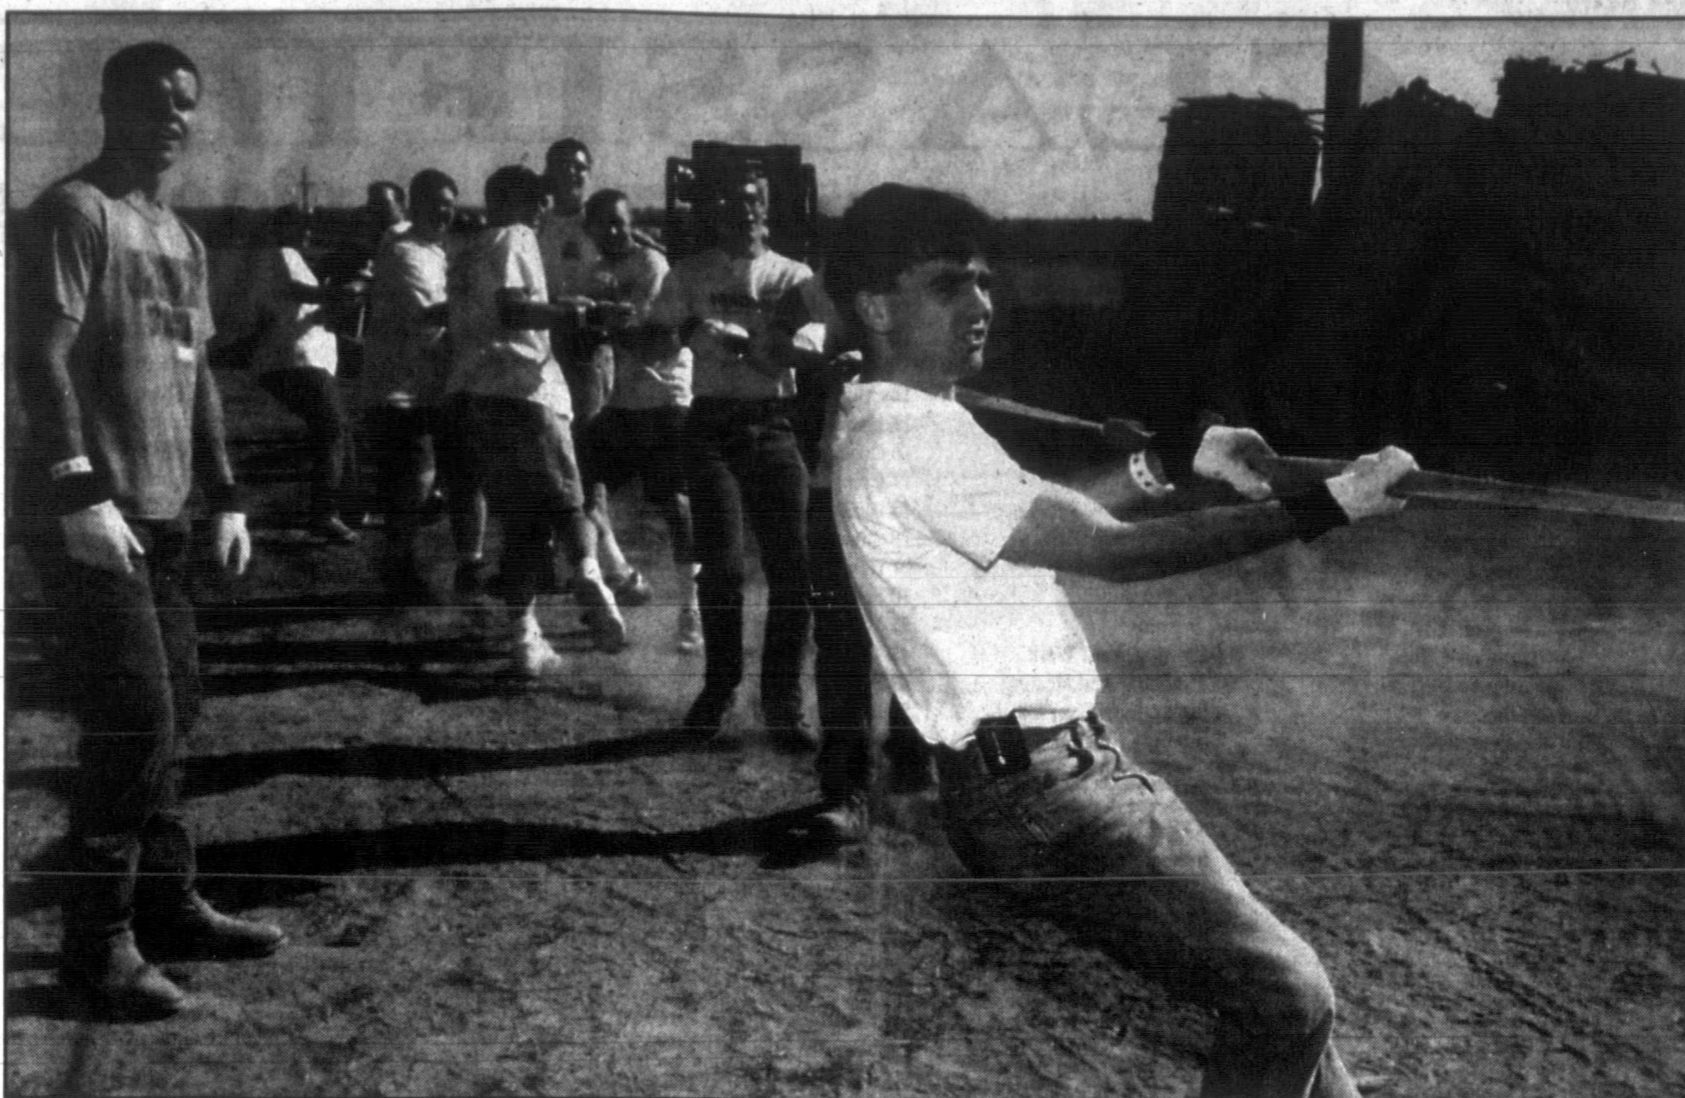

— New York Daily News, for persistent efforts to improve access to New York's Family Courts, death penalty case proceedings and agencies dealing with city corruption cases.

— The Palm Beach Post, West Palm Beach, Fla., for successfully challenging the practice of county commissioners settling lawsuits in private.

— News-Herald, Port Clinton, Ohio, for getting an Ohio State Supreme Court ruling reversed that could have denied newspapers access to a special appellate procedure used to challenge court orders.

— Waterbury (Conn.) Republican-American, for a successful five-year court battle to open teacher and administrator grievance hearings to the public.

Entries in the FOI contest covered the period from July 1996 through June 1997. Judges were members of the APME executive committee and the FOI committee chairman.

Skellytown's Andrew White, a senior computer information system major, leads his group of workers from West Texas A&M University in helping build the homecoming bonfire.

Odds and ends...

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Police got the last laugh in their hunt for a man who escaped from their custody while handcuffed, then mailed the cuffs back.

Fred W. Nolan Jr. was spotted walking along a street Thursday night and was arrested without incident, police spokesman Dick Cottam said.

Nolan, 27, who has 28 convictions mostly for burglary, theft and possession of stolen property, was held without bail on five outstanding felony warrants for burglary and other counts, Cottam said.

Nolan was arrested Oct. 6 and was sitting alone in an interview room at the station when he escaped, probably by covering the cuffs with his jacket and walking out, police said.

Two days later, police received a mailed package containing the handcuffs. There was no return address.

"A guy that has as many arrests and convictions as he has is not a funny figure," Cottam said.

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Memo to politicians: Don't mess with Halloween.

When Mayor Walter Ehrnfelt decided to move Beggars' Night up one day to Oct. 30, he was trying to prevent trick or treaters from having to battle traffic expected for a high school football game scheduled for Oct. 31.

Then the phones started ringing at City Hall in this Cleveland suburb.

"It was unbelievable," he said. "I had probably 125 calls."

The mayor reversed his decision this week. Sanctioned trick or treating in Strongsville will be on Halloween.

Ehrnfelt said some complaints came from parents who preferred Friday night trick or treating because children would be able to eat more candy and stay up later without having to get up for school the next morning.

LAPEER, Mich. (AP) — The carpeting is filthy, the glass doors are thick with grime. And this is the Lapeer County Public Health Building, of all places.

"Our county building that we call 'Health' is a disgrace," Board of Health member Judy Stewart told county commissioners last week. "Mothers who bring their children there for immunization are afraid to let them crawl on the floor while they wait."

Conditions are abominable, said Public Health Director John

Niederhauser. "We've had complaints from mothers who say they will never step foot in this building again."

The county's maintenance director, Joe Stock, said the carpeting was professionally shampooed last year and has been cleaned three times since.

"The problem is the carpet is old and it gets a lot of use," he said. "Yes, it's appalling, but we're doing our best."

Stock also said the windows are washed once a day, but added, "I'm not saying we don't miss a day."
