It's official: ARTrain coming to Pampa

More donations sought to cover further costs

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY
Staff Writer

The Artrain is now scheduled to arrive in Pampa the third week in February after two major contributions were made earlier this week toward the project.

A $5,000 contribution by the Nona Payne Foundation and a $2,000 contribution by the M.K. Brown Foundation helped secure the first $8,000 needed to get the train rolling into Pampa.

The Pampa Fine Arts Board decided months ago that the project would not be done without first raising $8,000 for the basic Artrain program fee by the first of November.

The board still must raise $8,000 more to pay for other costs involved with the train's arrival.

This will be the Artrain's first stop ever and only stop this year to the panhandle during the week of Feb. 19 - 23.

Artrain, the nation's only touring art museum in a train, is a non-profit organization which uses a train to bring visual art exhibitions directly to communities and audiences that are usually not reached by traditional museums.

Over 2.5 million people from over 500 communities in 38 states have visited the train which has stops off at communities around the county with populations as small as 300 and as large as 3 million.

The Michigan Council for the Arts began the Artrain in 1971 to bring art directly to the people. It consists of five cars - three gallery cars, a studio car and a caboose.

The tour begins with an audio-visual presentation that introduces the exhibition and it continues through the galleries and museum shop and ends in the studio where local artists demonstrate. The tour lasts approximately 45 minutes.

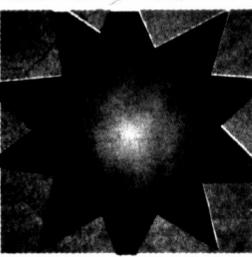

Although it does not collect art, the Artrain borrows art from museums, galleries and private collectors to create thematic exhibitions. These exhibitions are changed every two to three years.

The Pampa Fine Arts Board must also consider other costs in addition to the $8,000 program fee, including food and accommodations for the Artrain crew, power hook-ups, portal restrooms, telephone hook-ups, insurance, and opening reception

The ARTrain, sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Board, will make its first stop ever in the panhandle when it comes to Pampa Feb. 19-23.

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A parttime Bible and history professor insisted she provided well for her animals, but pictures of some of her 20 thoroughbreds and quarterhorses told a different story.

Sara Pasol, 45, who teaches at the University of Texas-Pan American, sought unsuccessfully Wednesday to regain custody of more than 50 animals that were confiscated from her 100-acre ranch following complaints of animal neglect.

After looking at photographs of underfed and neglected horses, with open wounds, Justice of the Peace Tony Torres ordered that Ms. Pasol's animals be auctioned off.

Cameron County sheriff's deputies went to Pasol's ranch last Friday off Farm Road 1847, just south of Los Fresnos, and herded away 20 horses, two burros, two goats, a sheep, some geese, cattle, chickens, a duck and more than 20 dogs.

Torres ordered Ms. Pasol to pay for the care of her animals until they can be auctioned away.

One of the pictures presented in court showed a horse lying inside a horse trailer. He had sores and ulcers in his mouth and suffered from inflammation of the hoof. A veterinarian testified that the animal had to be euthanized.

A county official said a dead puppy was lying inside one of the stalls at Ms. Pasol's barn.

Several other dogs were found in stalls that were overrun with manure, the official said.

One ticket correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said.

The ticket was worth an estimated $10 million.

The ticket was sold in Hurst.

The numbers drawn Wednesday night from a field of 50 were: 10-12-20-25-30-31

Saturday night's drawing will be worth an estimated $10 million.

Motor home up for auction

Seized after drugs found

WHEELER — A motor home seized in a drug stop near Shamrock will be auctioned off for the taxpayers benefit.

The 1989 Itasca motor home was seized in February after Department of Public Safety Trooper Chad Estes found drugs in it during a routine traffic stop, authorities said.

Judge M. Kent Sims of 31st District Court Monday ordered the motor home sold at public auction with the money going back into local law enforcement efforts.

District Attorney John Mann said today that the money would be split between the 31st District Attorneys office and the State of Texas.

"It will benefit not only Wheeler County, but all five counties in the 31st District," he said.

The 31st Judicial District includes Gray, Wheeler, Roberts, Hemphill and Lipscomb Counties.

When the motor home will be auctioned and where has not yet been determined, nor has the specific use of the money it will bring to public coffers.

"I will defer to the Narcotics Interdiction Program officers of the Department of Public Safety on that," Mann said. "As long as we get the drugs off the street, I'm happy."

Pampa detectives get new jumpsuits

Pampa detectives will be fashionably dressed this season at their next crime scene.

The Pampa Police Officers Association recently bought new jumpsuits for members of the Pampa Police Department's criminal investigation division. Connie Lockridge, Beverly Chase, Charlie Love and Sgt. Terry Young received the black jumpsuits with their names emblazoned on them. Young has since been named training officer for the department.

The officers will wear their jumpsuits to crime scenes to protect their clothing, according to Pampa Police Chief Charlie Morris.

"It will protect their street clothes if they have to crawl under a car or through a dusty attic," Morris said.

The Pampa Police Officers Association consists of members of the Pampa Police Department, the Gray County Sheriff's office, constables and other Gray County law enforcement officers.

Group seeks to buy mate for lonely giraffe

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — The longest neck in Abilene's city zoo also has a long face, and one civic organization wants to do something about it.

Bart, the sole giraffe in the zoo, has been inconsolable since his female counterpart died on Oct. 12.

Leadership Abilene is mounting a campaign to purchase another giraffe, not only to keep Bart company but to enliven what has long been one of the zoo's biggest attractions.

Group member Janet Ardoyno said the group plans to sell honorary "ownership" of the giraffe to help pay for it.

"We're selling the new giraffe at $5 an inch," Ardoyno said. "We want all the children in Abilene to become part-owners.

"Now, if you're hefty in the pocketbook, you can buy a spot on the giraffe for $100," she said. "And if you want to stick your neck out, you can purchase the giraffe's neck for $1,000."

The giraffe will cost the zoo $15,000, plus another $5,000 for transportation charges.

Open house to welcome new physicans to Pampa

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY
Staff Writer

Columbia Medical Center will welcome and introduce three of its newest doctors to the community this Friday afternoon at an informal open house.

The doctors, Olivia Morris, Chuong Pham and Nigel daSilva, came to Pampa from all around the country and have extensive training in their specialized areas.

Dr. Olivia Morris, an orthopedic surgeon, recently left Lansing, Mich. as an associate professor of orthopedic surgery and a team physician for Michigan State University.

Born in Boulder, Colo., Morris received her Bachelor of Science degree from Concord College in W. Va. and became a Doctor of Osteopathy at the Southeastern College of Osteopathic Medicine and Surgery in Florida.

She did her internship at Orlando General Hospital and her orthopedic surgery residency at Metropolitan Hospital in Michigan.

Her residency sub-specialty rotations include pediatrics orthopedics, hand and reconstructive surgery and total joint and revision surgery.

Morris' hobbies are mountaineering, skiing, running, backpacking, camping, water-skiing, climbing and swimming.

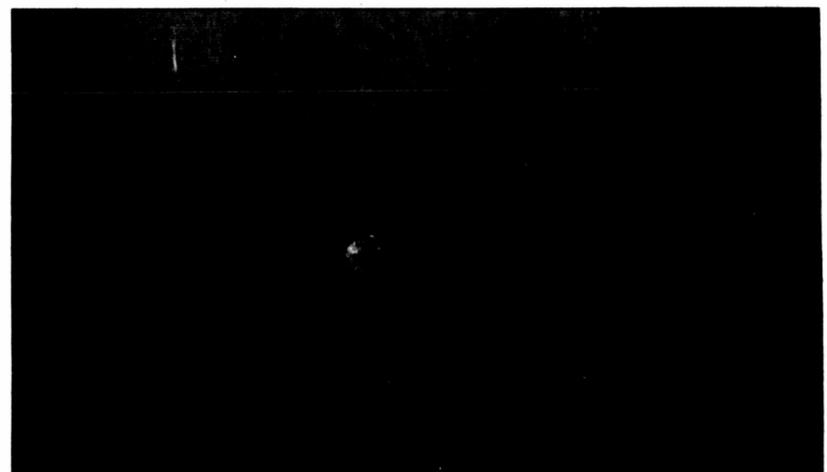

Dr. Chuong Pham is the newest addition to obstetrics and gynecology at Columbia.

With only an hour and a half of sleep under his belt, Pham still sat down for a few minutes and discussed his reasons for coming to Pampa.

As a native of Houston, Pham said he wanted to get away from big cities and set up his practice in a small town, like Pampa.

PHYSICIANS

"I was looking for a small town ... I was tired of big bustling towns and everyone here has been so friendly and great these last three months," Pham said.

Pham's work experience has taken him all over the country.

Most recently, he came from Jackson Memorial Hospital at the University of Miami, Florida. He did his internship and residency in Obstetrics and Gynecology and worked the last few years as a staff physician at both a rape treatment center and family planning clinic.

"I've always known I wanted to be a doctor since junior high school ... I've always like science," he said.

He decided to become an OBGYN because he says he enjoys taking care of young healthy patients.

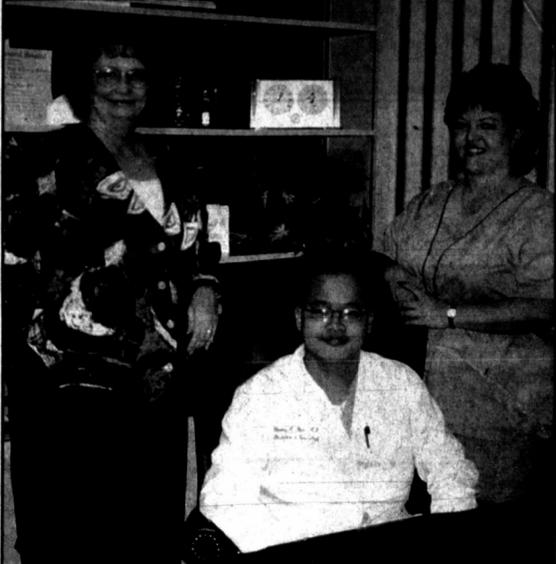

"And delivering newborns attracted me to it," he said.

Pham also said that in his opinion, the key to medicine is prevention.

"Prevention is a primary concern," Pham added. "Annual exams, and prevention by medicine is the key to being healthy."

Dr. Nigel daSilva arrived in Pampa in Sept. and has opened his family practice with one goal in mind - to help people.

"I like to practice medicine and I'm here to practice medicine,"

Dr. Chuong Pham, (center) and his staff Pam Wilcox and Carla Gifford, offer a new Obstetrics and Gynecology practice at Columbia Medical Center.

he said.

Most recently from the Long Beach, Calif. area, daSilva is originally from the British West Indies. His home was St. Vincent, an island in the "deepest part of the Caribbean."

"The sand there is angelic, pure white sand ... like salt," he explained of his paradise home that is also the residence of several stars, like Raquel Welch.

It makes sense that he loves the ocean and he says California was in that way, ideal for him.

However, he chose to come to Pampa so that he could set up a practice where he didn't have to deal with a lot of managed care and had a sense of continuity with his patients.

For daSilva, Pampa represented a "total spectrum of care," with the availability of the town's hospital, hospices, newborn care and numerous health care facilities.

Dr. daSilva's studies and teaching have taken him to many parts of North America.

He began his studies in Canada and went on to receive his Masters and PhD in Iowa before becoming a Doctor of Osteopathy at Midwestern University in Chicago.

He did his internship at Northwest General Hospital in Milwaukee and had private practices in Nevada and Arizona after teaching as an assistant professor of microbiology in Iowa earlier in his career.

His medical philosophy is straight forward and simple. "My aim is to serve people - that's all I want to do. I want to be useful and help people," daSilva said. "I can't think of anything so satisfying."

All three doctors will be on hand at an open house in their honor at the South Medical Building, 100 W. 30th Street from 1 to 3:30 on Fri., Nov. 7. The public is encouraged to attend.

Dr. Nigel daSilva (center) has opened his family practice along with his staff (from left) Carol Carroll, Irene Best and Wanda Christie.

Woman dies, dozens sick after church dinner

CHAPTICO, Md. (AP) — Charles Mattingly Jr. and his wife Mary Loretta had long enjoyed the annual fall dinner at Our Lady of the Wayside Church. Mrs. Mattingly, in fact, used to help organize it.

But after spending $28 Sunday for two meals that included turkey, stuffed ham, fried oysters and sweet potatoes, the 77-year-old Mattingly and his 76-year-old wife have suffered chills, diarrhea and headaches.

An elderly neighbor who also dined at the church has died of salmonella poisoning and officials are investigating whether two more deaths are related. Of 1,400 people who ate food at the church dinner, at least 143 have become sick.

"I don't know what this is going to do to the dinner," Mattingly said. "We always got very high praise for what a wonderful dinner we had."

An autopsy was pending on the woman who died. Her name was not released.

The death was caused by salmonella, said Tori Leonard, spokeswoman for the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. The source had not been determined, but she said meat, poultry and eggs got the bacteria.

The Rev. John Stack said he had not heard whether the woman died from eating the dinner.

"I am in shock just like anyone else," Stack said.

At least four bus loads of people from churches and retirement communities in Silver Spring and Baltimore attended. Chaptico is 65 miles south of Baltimore.

Some diners told health officials they brought friends and family from North Carolina and California with them.

Since Sunday, at least 17 people have been admitted to hospitals in southern Maryland suffering from diarrhea, stomach cramps, nausea and vomiting and fever. All were in stable condition Wednesday night. Hospital officials said at least 92 people, ranging in age from 2 to 81, had been treated and released.

State officials said salmonella is not usually fatal, though eight to 10 people have died of salmonella poisoning in Maryland in the past three years.

Health officials have contacted at least 200 people from the dinner. Ms. Leonard said there will be an investigation to determine what food is to blame, who handled it and how it was processed.

Drug cop tests positive

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A police officer who taught youngsters to say no to drugs resigned after failing a test for marijuana.

A man being questioned about a stolen car told police Oct. 27 that he had smoked marijuana with an off-duty officer, Christine Binion, Sheriff Jerry Keller said Wednesday. Binion, an officer for three years, tested positive for marijuana use, and on Wednesday she submitted her resignation.

As part of the Drug Abuse Resistance and Education program, Binion, 33, taught fifth-graders in four schools about the perils of drug abuse, Keller said. Police fielded calls from parents and planned to talk to the fifth-graders about Binion's conduct.

Commissioners balk at paying judges $450-a-month car allowance

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — County commissioners have tabled a request from Hidalgo County's four court-at-law judges for a $450-a-month car allowance.

The four are paid $107,333 a year, a raise of almost 20 percent from the $89,538 they got last year to try criminal misdemeanors and civil lawsuits. They're asking for an additional $5,400 a year, equal to the car allowance that state district court judges get.

District judges are sometimes assigned to work in other South Texas counties such as Starr, Jim Wells, Cameron, Willacy and Nueces when judges in those counties have a conflict of interest, 92nd state District Court Judge Ed Aparicio said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Testing vaccine is gallant, courageous

For most of human history, the choice to enter the field of medicine meant a decision to confront lifelong danger. The physician who would treat illness had little defense against contracting the malady himself. Few walks of life carried greater threat of early death or debilitation.

So the doctor's profession required an unusual commitment to aiding others.

This tradition is exemplified in 1997 by, among others, the Chicago-based International Association of Physicians in AIDS Care, which is offering volunteers to test an AIDS vaccine. It was recently announced that a group of doctors and public-health advocates affiliated with the association would be willing to be injected with a vaccine consisting of a live, though weakened, strain of HIV. They would be the first humans to undergo such a test. Vaccines tested on humans so far have not involved even a weakened live HIV virus, because of the possibility it would cause AIDS or related disorders.

There is disagreement among researchers over whether the time has arrived to test a live vaccine on humans, and Food and Drug Administration permission for such an experiment hasn't been granted. But the AIDS physicians group possibly could undertake a test in Europe, if U.S. approval isn't forthcoming.

Whether or not now is the appropriate moment, at some point human tests will probably be required if an effective HIV vaccine is to be developed. A singular sense of courage and humanity will be called for from the volunteers.

It is the same spirit that Dr. Zabdiel Boylston showed in Boston in 1721, when he administered the first smallpox vaccinations on the American continent, to his son and more than 200 others — pressing on in the project even though his home was stoned by mobs who opposed the practice on religious grounds.

William Gerard, a Philadelphia doctor, showed similar bravery in the 1830s, putting himself at risk with his clinical tests that succeeded in differentiating between two dreaded diseases, typhus and typhoid fever.

The annals of honor include Edward Livingston Trudeau, the New York physician who founded, in 1885, the nation's first sanatorium for tuberculosis victims, at Saranac Lake, where he cared for victims of one of the era's most feared illnesses.

At the turn of the century, Walter Reed and several other doctors put themselves in harm's way by going to Cuba during an epidemic of yellow fever among American troops there. A few of the doctors volunteered to be infected by yellow fever germs in order to study the disease. (They survived — although two other members of the expedition did not). Reed and his associates helped demonstrate how to control yellow fever and typhoid fever.

It has always been the case that, for medicine to advance, medicine needs people of large character. The Association of Physicians in AIDS Care clearly has members with such spine and soul.

Thought for today

"Commerce is a king of spring, which, diverted from its natural channel, ceases to flow. There are but two things which invite foreigners — profit and convenience. If you render commerce less convenient, or less gainful, they will insensibly forsake you."

"... and how are you feeling, Profit Center #481629?"

I think I'll stay in Pampa

It's just too cool that I get to sit here and tell you all how much I miss writing my columns and how much I miss Laura.

I get to tell you how anxious I am to get another reporter in here so I'm not the only full-time reporter on staff!

I have the privilege to whine about the fact that I'm behind in almost every facet of my life including writing columns, getting pictures and outlines organized, and even writing stories — but hey, I'm having fun! (Except on the days when there are complaints and unsigned critical letters about the class of '57 thing running three times ... !)

Even then the days aren't all that bad.

I've been here almost six months now. I can't believe how time is flying. Before I know it, it'll be a year I've been a Texan and my New Mexican blood will finally begin to ooze out of me. Even my green chile cravings are minimizing.

So I'm only wondering one thing about Pampa these days, since I recently found out that it is proper etiquette to tip at Sonic. (Cause you know, it's not a sit-down restaurant exactly and my husband and I classify it as fast-food and so we had debated on the whole Sonic-tipping issue for sometime until a Sonic wait person clarified it all for me, which was worth a big tip right there)

What's on my mind is I'm wondering whether or not the streets downtown are two lanes, or four?

Sometimes I find that it's like four lanes or at least three.

Sometimes there's just an extra turning lane. Sometimes not. Sometimes I feel like I'm not supposed to be driving in the center of the lane; that

Miranda G. Bailey

Pampa News staff writer

I'm annoying other cars who want to pass me. Sometimes it's the other way around.

It's all very confusing to me. Especially since I have to admit, I, myself, am not the best driver in the world to begin with.

Yeah, that's not a good thing to admit, I know, but I'm an honest chick ... I try to be ... and I'll just tell you myself that my driving is at moments a little, let us say, sporadic.

Sometimes, I amaze even myself.

I'll just say that when I drive with my husband, he drives ... unless we're late and I'm feeling the need to get there before the sun sets, or unless I'm ready to defend my driving skills in a long drawn-out "who's driving now?" debate.

But actually, I've been known to take my time getting to places, too. That's the problem. My driving is almost unclassifiable. Just like my vocabulary, my writing, and my husband would say my problem-solving skills. You never know what's gonna happen.

Sometimes while I'm driving, I find the need to tell my love the story of my life that day ... and in that case, it can take us two hours to get from one part of town to the next.

But you know the worst part about Pampa is if you get in a car accident the whole world will know it the very next day in the newspaper! I know, because I have to type in the darn things some times. I feel so guilty. I mean, you don't really want to know when your neighbor hits a fence do you?

Oh yes, you do! I see how you are, picking up your newspapers reading the obituaries and the police reports! Okay, so I do it, too — how else would I know you do it? (I had never heard of the paper printing all the day's arrests and accidents in Albuquerque. If they were to list the car accidents for the day, the newspaper would be as long as "Gone With the Wind" every single day.)

Ah, the joys of a small town.

On the other hand, where else but Pampa would I get to have a private conference with Gov. George W. Bush, and stand one foot away from this beautiful man (a man I think I have a crush on now, don't tell anyone ...) who was so down to earth, being casual, eating Doritos, explaining what he has planned for the State of Texas ... not to mention the internal ramblings going on in my brain about the fact that I'm shaking hands and breathing the same air with a guy who's dad was President, who, himself, might one day be President. It's definitely the closest I've ever been to the White House in all my life.

And where did it happen? Right here in Pampa.

Two lanes or four lanes, I think I'll stay here a while.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Nov. 6, the 310th day of 1997. There are 55 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 6, 1860, former Illinois congressman Abraham Lincoln defeated three other candidates for the U.S. presidency.

On this date:

In 1854, the king of American march music, John Philip Sousa, was born in Washington, D.C.

In 1861, Jefferson Davis was elected to a six-year term as president of the Confederacy.

In 1888, Benjamin Harrison of Indiana won the presidential election, beating incumbent Grover Cleveland on electoral votes although Cleveland led in the popular vote.

In 1893, composer Peter Ilyich Tchaikovsky died in St. Petersburg, Russia, at age 53.

In 1900, President McKinley was re-elected, beating Democrat William Jennings Bryan.

In 1913, Mohandas K. Gandhi was arrested as he led a march of Indian miners in South Africa.

In 1928, in a first, presidential election results were flashed on an electronic sign outside the New York Times building; Herbert Hoover beat Alfred E. Smith.

In 1956, President Eisenhower was re-elected, beating Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson.

In 1976, Benjamin L. Hooks was chosen executive director of the NAACP, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, succeeding Roy Wilkins.

In 1977, 39 people were killed when an earthen dam burst, sending a wall of water through Toccoa Falls Bible College in Georgia.

Ten years ago: Education Secretary William Bennett, acting with President Reagan's approval, asked Douglas H. Ginsburg to withdraw as a Supreme Court nominee because of revelations that Ginsburg had used marijuana.

Five years ago: President-elect Bill Clinton asked Vernon Jordan and Warren Christopher to lead the White House transition team.

Law would exempt police

Since civil liberties are of no apparent interest to the Clinton administration, it was not surprising to hear the Secretary of Health and Human Services, Donna Shalala, tell Congress that proposed new federal regulations to protect medical records will exempt law enforcement from these tougher privacy standards.

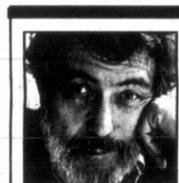

The reason, she said, is that law enforcement personnel need to search through these records without a warrant or the patient's permission in order to fight fraud. She notes that they can do much of this now, but the administration wants to codify these current police practices so they will be solidified in federal laws.

Under the Clinton-Shalala approach to shredding privacy, any intelligence agent can order a health-care provider — and anyone who pays for health care — to hand over confidential health records. All the agent has to say is that the records are "needed for a lawful purpose."

As Robert Pear, a knowledgeable reporter on health issues for the New York Times, notes: "Intelligence official" is broadly defined, as in the National Security Act, to include officials throughout the "intelligence community" — at the Central Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency, the armed forces, and the Departments of Justice, State and the Treasury.

Wendy Kaminer, a public policy fellow at Radcliffe College, says: "It's hard to imagine that people will talk openly and honestly to their doctors if they fear big brother is listening."

Robert Gellman, a Washington lawyer and privacy expert, tells me that under Shalala's proposal, "law enforcement will not have to get consent or meet a burden of proof standard or show what procedures apply to their searches. And there will be no restrictions on the redisclosure of the information they get. For law enforcement only, there will be virtually no standards, no warrants.

Nat Hentoff

"Not even a written request will be necessary," Gellman adds. "A cop can walk into a doctor's office and say, 'I want certain records. And if the police — while looking for fraud and abuse by the doctor — find something about you they don't like in the records, they can investigate you, the patient.'"

So much for Justice Louis Brandeis' conviction that the Framers valued privacy as "the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men."

On National Public Radio, Kaminer pointed out the indifference to the Fourth Amendment in the Shalala-Clinton design: "If FBI agents want to examine the financial records of your business, or your weekly shopping list, they must first obtain a warrant from a judge or a magistrate. They must first demonstrate that they have good reason to invade your privacy."

Although the Clinton administration does not expand law enforcement capacities to violate medical privacy it now PROTECTS the FBI and other police agencies from new regulations that apply to others in the field. Meanwhile, accelerating computerization of medical records is going to make them much more easily accessible to dragnet searches, at will, by law enforcement.

What gives me some hope that the Congress may resist the president is a Time/CNN poll which indicates that 87 percent of us vigorously disagree with Donna Shalala and want to be asked for permission every time our medical records leave our doctor's office. If enough Americans let their lawmakers know how strongly they feel about this, what is left of our privacy may be preserved.

It will be interesting to see where Al Gore stands on this issue. If he stays with the president, he will have more than the Buddhist temple to answer for as he eyes the presidency.

Some members of law enforcement put up what seem initially to be reasonable arguments for exempting the police from new standards of privacy enforcement. To secure physical evidence that may identify perpetrators, they say, there isn't time to get a judicial warrant or deal with rules protecting medical records. But why can't current swift technology be used to find a magistrate quickly and get the warrant in time? Magistrates have home telephone numbers and even fax machines.

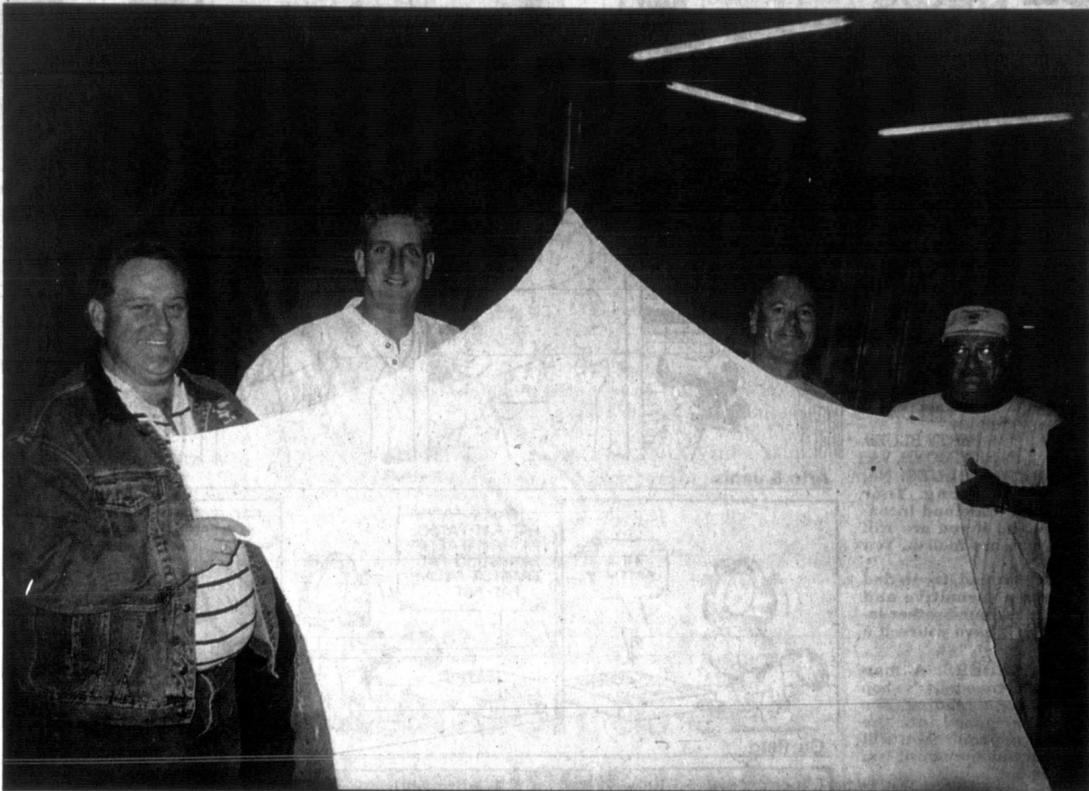

In any case, is the personal security of millions of Americans less vital than police efficiency in speculatively going after perpetrators?

And what will the effect be on the doctor-patient relationship if both know there is a third person taking and distributing notes on their intimate conversations that have been placed in the doctor's records? The president has eroded habeas corpus among other civil liberties. Is there no limit to his disdain for the Constitution?

TV's 'Murphy Brown' angers DEA chief with medical marijuana use on sitcom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another top government official is denouncing TV's Murphy Brown as a poor example for children. The drug enforcement chief is upset that CBS' fictional reporter turns to marijuana to relieve nausea caused by chemotherapy. It's hard to recall another fictional character taken so seriously by government executives. Only five years ago, then-Vice President Dan Quayle touched off a national debate when he accused the popular situation comedy of undermining families with Brown's decision to have a child out of wedlock. In a statement issued hours before Wednesday's episode, Drug Enforcement Administrator Thomas Constantine said CBS and the show's creators were "doing a great disservice" by "trivializing drug abuse." "As a law enforcement official with 38 years of experience and, even more importantly, a father and grandfather," Constantine said, "I am extremely troubled that at a time when teen-age drug abuse is doubling ... a television show of the caliber of Murphy Brown would portray marijuana as medicine. It is not medicine. ... More dangerously, the show sends the message to our children that marijuana must be OK because it's medicine." Wednesday's plot: Murphy Brown, played by actress Candice Bergen, smokes a marijuana cigarette to quell nausea induced by the chemotherapy used to treat her breast cancer. The marijuana is purchased by another character, her uptight anchorman Jim Dial, who resorts to this illegality out of concern over Brown's inability to get relief from legal drugs and therapies. CBS Vice President Chris Enders said the network stands behind the episode "which deals with the medicinal use of marijuana in a compelling, poignant and sometimes humorous manner."

Enders called it part of the show's "rich history of blending comedy with controversial political and social issues and doing it responsibly." The episode got a more restrictive rating than usual — TV-14, which means parents are strongly urged to exercise greater care in monitoring the program and are cautioned against letting children under the age of 14 watch unattended, Enders noted. Constantine said that smoked marijuana has "more harmful chemicals than cigarettes and damages the immune system." The DEA chief added that medical experts, the American Medical Association, the American Glaucoma Society and the American Cancer Society have rejected marijuana as medicine. It active ingredient, THC, is available by prescription, and work is under way on other nausea treatments, he said. "I'm sorry if we've upset Mr. Constantine. Obviously he hasn't seen the show," said Marc Flanagan, executive producer of Murphy Brown. "We had no political agenda. We are not advocating the medical use of marijuana." Physicians and cancer specialists told the show's writers that some patients do relieve nausea with marijuana when other drugs don't work, Flanagan said, so they wrote marijuana into the script only after showing Brown unsuccessfully trying all other known treatments. "Marijuana was secondary to the story about Jim Dial and Murphy Brown. He comes to her aid; he risks something," Flanagan said. "People will go to any lengths to come to the aid of loved ones. That's what the story is about." Flanagan said he hoped that if Constantine watched the episode he would see "our intention was to reflect what's happening, not to advocate a course of action." He added, "I think we are doing a public service by ... increasing awareness of breast cancer."

Being photographed with Omar Sharif, getting his autograph, was a thrill WACO (AP) — For Mildred Breed of Waco, getting her picture taken with Omar Sharif and getting his autograph was almost as exciting as helping win a world bridge championship for her U.S. women's team in Tunisia. Several dozen members of the Bridge Studio of Waco listened in awe Wednesday as Ms. Breed, 50, shared anecdotes about her championship win last week at the World Bridge Championship in Tunisia. Ms. Breed, her playing partner, Toni Sokolow of Austin, and the rest of their six-member USA I team defeated a team from China on Friday to win the Venice Cup, the top prize in the women's team competition. She and her teammates competed against teams from 17 other countries and the USA II team during the two-week competition, sponsored by the World Bridge Federation, in Hammamet, Tunisia, in North Africa. Ms. Breed met Sharif, star of Dr. Zhivago and other films, at the championship's closing ceremonies, the Waco Tribune-Herald reported.

Torrential rain, high winds rake Galveston

GALVESTON (AP) — A two-story hotel under construction was blown down by high winds during a heavy thunderstorm that also produced torrential rainfall and flash flooding, officials say. Galveston got a half-foot of rain in four hours early Wednesday, and winds gusted to nearly 50 mph. The rain combined with a high tide to cause severe flooding, mire rush-hour traffic and leave a main thoroughfare littered with the vehicles of people who tried to drive in deep water but couldn't make it. Officials were trying to determine what caused the two-story Executive Inn to collapse. Officials said the structure had been completely framed and equipped with metal hurricane straps, which are designed to reinforce a building's frame and hold it together even in extremely high winds.

Convicted separatists speak of revolution upon arrival at prison

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Two convicted separatists say the United States is headed for revolution over the very issues that pushed them into an armed standoff with hundreds of police officers. Republic of Texas leader Richard McLaren and associate Robert "White Eagle" Otto made the comments Wednesday after being flown from Alpine to Huntsville to start serving prison terms. McLaren was sentenced to 99 years and fined $10,000 and Otto was sentenced to 50 years and fined $10,000 Tuesday for conspiring with three other Republic of Texas members to kidnap two of their neighbors in remote Jeff Davis County in far West Texas. McLaren said he and his group have attempted to bring about change through peaceful means, but if those efforts fail, armed insurrection could erupt independently in West Texas, Michigan, Ohio or Florida. "We're going to save a lot of lives in the long run. There are a lot of people with guns out there," McLaren told the Huntsville Item.

Ex-teacher's suit alleges he was fired for giving videotape to TV station

HOUSTON (AP) — A former special education teacher is suing Houston school administrators, alleging they fired him after a videotape he shot — including a student urinating in the hallway — was aired on national television. Michael Madison filed the lawsuit Tuesday in federal court. Madison alleges school administrators began a campaign of retaliation against him after a videotape he shot of the chaotic atmosphere at Attucks Middle School was aired on a local news broadcast, and later on CNN. Aired during the summer of 1993, the tape showed a student urinating on a row of lockers, as well as students fighting and racing down the hallways. Madison also reported students having sex on campus and boys climbing through the ceiling of the boys' restroom and into the girl's restroom.

Death row inmate to get new trial because of missed deadline

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who has spent 15 years on death row will get a new trial because the state attorney general's office missed by one day the deadline to appeal a federal judge's ruling. The missed deadline angered prosecutors and the victim's aunt. Last summer, the late U.S. District Judge Norman Black overturned the capital murder conviction of Danny Dean Thomas, now 41, who was convicted in 1982 for the abduction and shooting death of Sylvia Elaine Harrison, a 19-year-old secretary.

Wife's Game Plan For In-Law Requires Husband On Her Side

DEAR ABBY: After reading her letter about her mother-in-law, I have heartfelt sympathy for "Charlotte in North Carolina." However, I think that your advice that she should start looking for another man for her mother-in-law was unrealistic. The chances of her finding a man who would put up with a witch like her mother-in-law are pretty slim. I have the same mother-in-law problem, so here's my advice to Charlotte:

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

Your mother-in-law will never accept you, understand you or listen to you, so don't hold your breath waiting for her to see the light. If she's anything like mine, she uses guilt like a master manipulator. She'll turn on the tears or spout outright lies to get her way.

Tearing your family apart for her own selfish needs is heartless. However, as much as you want to blame your mother-in-law, your husband is the one to blame. Only he can put "Mommie Dearest" in her place.

At first, my husband thought I was too sensitive to his mother's indirect insults. However, once he took notice of them, he began to understand my feelings.

Charlotte, discuss your mother-in-law's comments with your husband while they're still fresh. Point out situations where she's interfering with family time. Always remember that she's his mother and the children's grandmother, and she deserves respect even when you don't get hers in return. You can learn to play the game. Granted, you'll never get rid of the old battle-ax, but it helps if your husband is on your side to counter her attacks. Perhaps one day she'll get the hint and get a life of her own.

KEEPING THE PEACE,
TERRE HAUTE, IND.

DEAR KEEPING THE PEACE: I am printing your letter in its entirety with the hope that it will provide a blueprint for "Charlotte" to follow. I can think of few relationships as emotionally charged as those between daughters-in-law and mothers-in-law.

P.S. I'm one of the lucky ones. I love my mother-in-law! Rose Phillips, take a bow.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend took me to a party where I felt really out of place. A woman he knew was there, and my boyfriend sat and talked to her for hours. I sat by myself. Fortunately, my brother-in-law was also a guest, so when he saw I had been deserted, he more or less entertained me. When food was served, I looked up and saw my boyfriend leading this woman to a porch where they could sit and talk some more, while I again sat by myself.

Later that night, I told him he was rude and inconsiderate. Was I wrong?

PARTY BLUES
IN RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR PARTY BLUES: No, you were not wrong. Your boyfriend was rude and inconsiderate — and if you are still with him, you are foolish. You can do better.

Next time around, try to find a boyfriend as sensitive and considerate as your brother-in-law, and you'll have yourself a winner.

DEAR READERS: A man went into a fortune-teller's shop and waited for a reading. The fortune-teller gazed into the crystal ball and said, "You will be poor and unhappy until you are 45 years old."

"Then what will happen?" asked the man.

The fortune-teller replied, "Then you'll get used to it." Thank you, Anonymous Reader, for sending this to me. I think it's a hoot.

BASKETBALL

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — David Robinson and Tim Duncan, while still learning to play together, are already getting rave reviews.

Robinson and Duncan combined for 41 points and 26 rebounds and dominated Vancouver's big men en route to an 87-79 victory over the Grizzlies on Wednesday night.

San Antonio is off to a 3-1 start behind the 7-foot-1 Robinson, the first pick in the 1987 draft, and rookie sensation Duncan, a 7-footer, who was the league's first pick last spring.

Vancouver, which beat the Spurs in three of four meetings last season with Robinson injured, fell to 1-3.

FOOTBALL

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Lubbock's Youth Football League has issued one-year suspensions to the coaches in a flag football game that ended in a brawl.

The two previously undefeated teams of 9-year-olds have been banned from post-season because of the Sunday incident involving the Vikings and the Raiders.

A skirmish between two players at the beginning of the third quarter led to two coaches engaging in fistfights. Parents then rushed onto the field, witnesses said.

"Some of the coaches out on the field were trying to disengage them. Some were not," league president Roy DuBose said. "Some parents were trying to get their kids. Some parents were trying to protect turf or whatever you want to call it."

Shouting continued into the parking lot after the game was canceled. Police were called to the scene, but there were no reports of arrests.

"It just really bothers me ... that they're going to penalize 40-something 9-year-olds because of the actions of some coaches and some parents," parent Paul Ryan said. "Isn't this whole thing supposed to be for kids, not adults living their childhood over?"

HORSE RACING

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Singpiel, the favorite for the Breeders' Cup Turf Saturday, fractured a cannon bone in his right front leg during a workout today at Hollywood Park.

"He obviously has a fracture," said Anthony Stroud, the racing manager for Sheikh Mohammed al Maktoum of Dubai, owner of the 5-year-old horse. "I hope he can be saved."

X-rays were being taken.

"Obviously, we're very, very disappointed," Stroud said of the injury to the horse who has won the Dubai World Cup, the Japan Cup, the Coronation Cup and the Juddmonte International in England.

Singpiel was second to Pilsudski in the 1996 Breeders' Cup Turf at Woodbine.

Stroud said the horse broke down about 10 yards from the finish of a half-mile workout and that exercise rider Kevin Bradshaw dismounted and led him back to the barn.

"The jockey noticed he was very, very lame and it got progressively worse," Stroud said.

BASEBALL

MIAMI (AP) — The World Series champion Florida Marlins are being sold to a group led by team president Don Smiley. The Associated Press has learned.

Owner H. Wayne Huizenga wants to sell 100 percent of the team, but would retain a minority interest if it helps Smiley complete the deal, a source close to the negotiations said today.

"He's going to do what he said he was going to do," said the source, who asked not to be identified.

Huizenga was expected to announce the details of the sale today at a 2 p.m. EST news conference at Pro Player Stadium.

Wheeler goes for second straight title

WHEELER — For the second year in a row, Wheeler is going for its second outright District 1-1A title.

Wheeler, 4-0 in district, 6-3 overall, must get past Booker in the final regular-season game Friday night to capture the title and the district's No. 1 seed.

Last weekend, Wheeler moved closer to a playoff spot, handing Gruver its first district loss, 14-13.

Backs Bryan Judd and Jeremy Davis led the Wheeler offense against Gruver. Judd rushed for 110 yards on 25 carries while Davis had 107 yards and a touchdown. Aaron Dunnam also scored a touchdown and had a pass interception from his defensive position.

Dunnam leads the team in scoring with 11 touchdowns. Judd has 9 TDs and Davis 8.

Wheeler coach Jim Verden breathed a sigh of relief after the close call against Gruver.

"We feel very fortunate to have won that one. They missed an extra point attempt near the end that would have tied the game," Verden said.

Booker could give Wheeler a tough time. The Kiowas are 3-1 in district and 7-2 for the season.

They have almost have the same team that finished second behind Wheeler a year ago.

Booker put itself in line for a playoff shot by routing Shamrock, 40-8, last week.

Booker's only district loss was to Gruver, 19-16.

"Booker is playing real well right now. They had a couple of bad breaks against Gruver, throwing a couple of interceptions that really hurt them," Verden said.

The positive points format will come into play in the Wheeler-Booker showdown. Booker must not only win the game, but must win by at least two points to knock Wheeler out of the playoffs.

A Mustang reunion

Final plans for the Ex-Mustang reunion are underway.

All Ex-Mustangs, coaches and managers will be guests of the Wheeler Independent School District at the game Friday night.

Name tags will be given out at the west gate for all former players, coaches and managers as they register. They will be recognized at halftime of the Wheeler-Booker game, which kicks off at 7:30.

Special recognition will be given to the 1936 team and the 1977, 1979 and 1987 state championship teams. The state winners will be celebrating their 20th, 18th and 10th reunions, respectively.

"It is hoped there will be plenty of ex-Mustangs to form the victory line from the fieldhouse to the south end of the field where the 1997 Mustangs will enter," said Sally Ledbetter, one of the reunion organizers.

A Mustang reception will be held at the high school Saturday, starting at 1 p.m.

"A special invitation goes out to all the hometown ex-Mustangs, for their presence will assure the reunion of being a success," Ledbetter added.

Ledbetter urged residents to come to the reunion and relieve 80 years of Wheeler Mustang football.

Bucks entertain Clarendon to end '97 regular season

WHITE DEER — One of those two playoff spots is still a little up in the air for White Deer, which is among three District 2-2A teams in contention going into the final week of the regular season. Even a win against cellar-dwelling Clarendon Friday night won't ensure the Bucks of a playoff spot.

"If we win and Wellington beats Quanah there would be three-way tie, which means a coin flip. The only thing we can do now is help ourselves," said White Deer coach Ralph Samaniego.

Quanah holds down the top spot in the 2-2A standings with a 4-0 mark. White Deer and Wellington are tied for second at 3-1.

If Quanah beats Wellington Friday night, the Bucks will be the district's No. 2 seed with a victory over Clarendon, which is 0-4 in district.

"One of the reasons for our success is that our players haven't looked past anybody. We've played them one game at a time and we're hoping that continues."

White Deer's offense is averaging 303 yards per game and is paced by running back Craig Urbanzyk, who has scored 19 touchdowns and rushed for 1,576 yards. Quarterback Jeremy Crook has thrown for 644 yards and nine touchdowns.

Samaniego's Bucks enter the regular-season finale with an injury-free roster.

"Our coaching staff thought at the beginning that the key to our season was staying healthy," Samaniego said. "If we had a possible weakness, it was lack of depth at several positions. We've had the normal bumps and bruises, but nothing major."

Harvesters hope to go out with victory against 4-1 Raiders

PAMPA — This season the tables have turned between Pampa and Randall.

A year ago, Randall was out of the playoff picture going into the final week of the season. Pampa beat Randall, 28-0, to advance into post-season play.

This season, Pampa is out and Randall is in.

Last weekend, Caprock spoiled Pampa's shot at the playoffs with a 34-27 win over the Harvesters. In his 11 years as PHS head coach, it was the first time Dennis Cavalier had ever tasted defeat at the hands of Caprock.

Randall clinched one of the three playoff spots with a 21-14 win over Borger last weekend.

Although Pampa will be staying home this year, the Harvesters can do some damage to Randall's confidence when the two teams kick off at 7:30 Friday night in Harvester Stadium.

However, Randall, at 4-1 in district and 7-2, is expected to be a tough customer.

The Raiders, averaging 342 yards per game, are led by quarterback Brian Evans and running back Jesse Hunnicutt. Evans has tossed eight touchdown passes and 766 yards. Hunnicutt has rushed for seven touchdowns and 839 yards.

Hunnicutt rushed for 189 yards and two touchdowns against Borger.

"My goal, and I hope it's the team's goal, is go out and play with distinction," said Pampa head coach Dennis Cavalier. "We want to play like everything's on the line, compete well and end the season on a positive note."

Despite last weekend's disappointing loss, Pampa led Caprock in total yards, 325-297. Tailback Erich Greer and quarterback Justin Roark had some impressive numbers for the Harvesters.

Greer rushed for 177 yards and scored a touchdown while Roark threw for 103 yards and a touchdown. He also ran for two scores.

Flanker Bryan Waldrip caught five passes for 45 yards, including a 13-yard TD catch.

Linebacker Jared White continues to lead the Harvesters in tackles with 93, followed by end Shawn Harris with 62.

Log might replace tags

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Parks and Wildlife commissioners want to explore replacing the old system of tagging deer and turkeys with a license harvest log.

Hunters wouldn't be given free rein to kill animals without tagging them, but they would not have to tear a tag off their license and keep it with the animal until it was processed.

"If we can enforce the laws and it's not a resource issue, then that's a good reason to pursue the issue and discuss it," said Commission Chairman Lee Bass.

Parks and Wildlife staff members were told to seek public comment on the proposal as an alternative to current tagging requirements.

The discussion grew out of the department's attempts to find a way to give hunters in most of the state some relief from one-buck per county rules. More than half of Texas counties have a one-buck rule, which is intended to prevent over-hunting in that county alone.

Texas regulations allow up to three bucks in some counties, but the way the license is printed, once a hunter uses the lone one-buck tag on his license, he cannot hunt in any other one-buck county. That isn't the intent of one-buck regulations, said Jerry Cooke, director of big game, nor is it necessary to protect wildlife populations.

Brewers switch to National League's Central Division

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers culminated the 10-month realignment debate by becoming the first major league baseball team to switch leagues this century.

The Brewers will move from the AL to the NL next season, a shift approved Wednesday by baseball's ruling executive council. Milwaukee, which had been in the AL Central, will play in a six-team NL Central. It leaves the NL with 16 teams and the AL with 14.

"I think it's a wonderful thing for baseball," said home-run king Hank Aaron, who started his career with the Milwaukee Braves in 1954 and ended it with the Brewers in 1976. "It's a great day for Milwaukee."

There was no announcement after the 45-minute conference call among nine executive council members. Three council members, who spoke on the condition they not be identified, confirmed the decision was made. One said the vote was unanimous.

The official announcement was scheduled for 5 p.m. EDT today at a news conference in Milwaukee.

Owners gave the council permission to make the final decision when they approved a one-team realignment in a telephone vote Oct. 15. While Kansas City was given first choice to switch, the Royals preferred to stay in the AL.

Milwaukee, the team owned by acting commissioner Bud Selig, had said it would move to the NL in the event Kansas City declined.

While Milwaukee has been an American League town since the Seattle Pilots moved there prior to the 1970 season and became the Brewers, its first experience in major league baseball was as an NL city. The Braves moved from Boston and played in Milwaukee from 1953 to 1965 before moving to Atlanta.

"Milwaukee's first identification was with the National League," said Aaron, who played with the Braves for 21 seasons before joining the Brewers. "Nothing against the AL. They won a championship there (1982). But we won a World Series (1957)."

Selig, reached at his home in Milwaukee, refused to even confirm the council call took place.

The expansion Tampa Bay Devil Rays will join the AL East and the Detroit Tigers will shift to the AL Central. The NL Central will become baseball's largest division with six teams.

"You got five other teams to contend with, as opposed to four or three," Houston Astros president Tal Smith said. "But I don't think it's that big a deal."

A baseball team shifting leagues would have been inconceivable until just a few years ago. While the NL formed in 1876, the AL began as a challenger in 1900.

They signed an agreement in January 1903 not to raid each other's players, but the two were staunch competitors for decades — not even willing to share office space in the same building until 1984.

Most financial distinctions between the leagues disappeared with the owners' revenue-sharing agreement in March 1996. Last season, the teams began interleague play.

While the switch is unprecedented for baseball, it has happened in other sports.

In the AFL-NFL merger, Baltimore, Cleveland and Pittsburgh agreed to join the AFL teams and form the AFC for the 1970 season. When the ABA folded, the NBA accepted Denver, Indiana, New Jersey and San Antonio for the 1976-77 season. The NHL absorbed Edmonton, Hartford, Quebec and Winnipeg from the World Hockey Association for the 1979-80 season.

Royals CEO David Glass was one of the proponents of radical realignment, in which all teams would have been reorganized geographically. But Glass, who has been in charge of the team since the death of founding owner Ewing Kauffman, decided recently not to attempt to buy the club, making it more difficult for him to approve a switch to the NL.

"I'll have to withhold comment until there is an official announcement, until I learn more about it," Royals general manager Herk Robinson said. "But I will say baseball needs to make the right decision. When that happens, we'll all accept it and move on."

Rare treat: Four of top five teams go helmet-to-helmet

By RICHARD ROSENBLATT
AP Football Writer

Every so often there's a Saturday to remember in college football, when just a few games determine the course of the season.

On Saturday, for the first time in 26 years and just the fourth time since 1936, when the AP poll began, four of the top five teams are matched against each other on the same day — No. 4 Michigan at No. 2 Penn State and No. 3 Florida State at No. 5 North Carolina.

What's more, all four have perfect records.

At State College, Pa., there are implications for the Big Ten title, the Rose Bowl and the national championship when the Nittany Lions (7-0, 4-0) and Wolverines (8-0, 5-0) play before a Beaver Stadium crowd of 97,000 (ABC, 3:30 p.m. EST).

At Chapel Hill, N.C., the stakes might be even higher when the Tar Heels (8-0, 5-0) play the Seminoles (8-0, 6-0) at 60,000-seat Kenan Memorial Stadium (7:30 p.m. EST, ESPN). If the winner finishes with a perfect record, an Orange Bowl berth awaits, and so might No. 1 Nebraska (8-0) in what could be the national title showdown.

Both favorites — Penn State and Florida State — have major concerns going in: Too many mistakes for Joe Paterno's guys, a missing defense for Bobby Bowden's troops.

"We're going to find out how good a football team we are, whether we can play better than we have been, whether we can play smarter," Paterno said, referring to numerous penalties and poor pass protection in a 30-27 win over Northwestern last week.

The Lions, led by Curtis Enis' 830 yards and 12 touchdowns, have won their last three games by a total of eight points after outscoring their first four opponents 184-54.

With cornerback Charles Woodson leading the nation's top defense (202.5 yards, 7.5 points per game), the Lions have little room for error.

The Seminoles may be 7-0-1 against the Tar Heels, but Bowden can't figure out how his top-notch defense — dropping from No. 1 to No. 4 overall — allowed N.C. State to roll up 448 yards and five touchdowns in FSU's 48-35 win last week.

"Scares me to death," Bowden said. "Right when you think you have a lock on things, you lose it. I can't explain it. I don't know what it means."

Coach Mack Brown knows firsthand how well the Seminoles' defense can play. Last season, Florida State beat North Carolina 13-0.

While the Tar Heels have the nation's second-ranked defense (206 yards per game), the offense has a few weapons, too. Oscar Davenport is 111 of 173 for 1,330 yards and six TDs, while Jonathan Linton has 708 yards and seven TDs.

COLLEGE PICKS

Florida State counters with Thad Busby (171 of 286 for 2,543 yards and 18 TDs), freshman Travis Minor (61 carries, 357 yards and eight TDs) and leading receiver E.G. Green (38 catches, 825 yards and eight TDs).

"It's step up or shut up time," Tar Heels linebacker Kivuusama Mays said.

The Michigan-Penn State game marks the first time since 1973 that two Big Ten teams with perfect records are playing so late in the season. On Nov. 24, 1973, a 10-0 Michigan and 9-0 Ohio State played to a 10-10 tie.

The Florida State-North Carolina game marks the first time ACC teams have met while ranked in the top 5.

The other weekends when four of the top five teams were matched up during the regular season were:

Nov. 27, 1971: No. 1 Nebraska beat No. 2 Oklahoma 35-31; No. 3 Alabama beat No. 5 Auburn 31-7.

Oct. 9, 1943: No. 1 Notre Dame beat No. 2 Michigan 35-12; No. 4 Duke beat No. 5 Navy 14-13.

Oct. 31, 1936: No. 3 Northwestern beat No. 1 Minnesota 6-0; No. 2 Pittsburgh tied No. 5 Fordham 0-0.

Last year, No. 4 Nebraska beat No. 5 Colorado 17-12 on Nov. 29, and the next day No. 2 Florida State beat No. 1 Florida 24-21.

Switzer's future

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Barry Switzer won a vote of confidence from Dallas owner Jerry Jones, but even that probably won't end the NFL's longest-running soap opera.

"We're always under the microscope," said veteran Bill Bates. "We're pretty much used to it."

"We need a good distraction," said guard Nate Newton. "Distractions get us going. We thrive on them."

Jones shot down the latest report concerning Switzer, who according to The Washington Post likely will be replaced by director of scouting Larry Lacey next week.

"It shows you how bad sources can be," Jones said Wednesday while the Cowboys, 4-5 and off to their worst start since 1990, tried to prepare for Sunday's game against Arizona in Texas Stadium.

Sign-up deadline approaching for CRP program

The sign-up deadline for the 16th Conservation Reserve Program is Nov. 14, 1997. "I just want to remind everyone that they still have two weeks left to sign up for the CRP," Lee McDonald, district conservationist for the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service in Pampa, said.

"So far," McDonald continued, "over 3,900 producers across the state signed up for the program as of Oct. 23, 1997. These 3,900 producers are offering around 476,749 acres of environmentally-sensitive land into the 16th CRP. About 13.4 million acres may be enrolled nationwide. I want to stress that this CRP is very focused on the environmental benefits and is highly competitive."

"CRP is designed to improve our country's natural resource base. Over the years, CRP has been refined to address all the elements of the environment, and not just soil erosion. It is now a program to protect environmentally-sensitive land and focuses on all elements of the environment — soil, water, air, plants and animals. The anticipated environmental benefits resulting from the improvements to be made in a potential CRP contract are important considerations for anyone submitting an offer," McDonald added.

McDonald explained that after NRCS receives an offer for a CRP contract, they collect data for a list of environmental benefits in an Environmental Benefits Index. This index awards points for every benefit to the environment on the land being offered. The points are then totaled and offers for CRP contracts are ranked in comparison to all other offers. Offers for a CRP contract with the most environmental benefit points then proceed to the next phase which ranks CRP offers according to the least cost to the taxpayer.

Potential applicants for the 16th CRP sign-up should consider the following EBI factors when submitting their offer:

—Closeness of the offered land to permanent water such as a lake, pond, river, stream or wetland. A maximum of 10-points are awarded if the land offered is less than 1/4 mile from the permanent water. If permanent water is not present, a potential CRP contract may earn 10-points by planning to develop a permanent water source, such as a pond.

—The amount of acreage offered which would provide wildlife habitat cover. This factor includes plant diversity, specifically those species of grasses, trees and shrubs which have the greatest benefit to wildlife. An applicant could earn up to 50-points for planting their vegetative cover with wildlife in mind.

—If wetland acres will be hydrologically restored, natural vegetation is planned for the wetland and appropriate vegetation is planned for the surrounding acreage, an applicant could earn up to 10-points for environmental benefits for this factor.

—Enduring conservation practices have a maximum of 25-points. A potential CRP contract could earn 10-points for planting five or more species of grasses or shrubs. Twenty-five points will be awarded if a new wetland ecosystem is restored, the offer is on a site listed on the National Register of Historic Places, or is a Traditional Cultural Property. Five points will be awarded if cultural resources are present on the offered land.

For more information on how to maximize points for environmental benefits, contact your local NRCS Office, Soil and Water Conservation District Office or Farm Service Agency Office.

Inspirational small town native to speak at Knife and Fork Club meeting

Top O' Texas Knife and Fork Club will feature Dr. Max L. Brown, veteran professional speaker, at the club's next meeting at 7 p.m. Nov. 18 at the Pampa Country Club. Brown will speak on "Halfway Between Sodom and Gomorrah."

Dr. Brown grew up in Ranger, Texas, a community with a population of 350. According to Brown, his formative years taught him the value of small town life. He was first recommended to the Associated Clubs as an inspirational speaker by Dr. Don Newbury, president of Howard Payne University at Brownwood.

Dr. Brown says the basic beauty of family and community is that God created them both, and, as the saying goes, "God don't make no junk." Every individual is an original, never to be duplicated.

Tickets to the meeting are available to club members for

Unabomber trying mental-defect defense

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Unabomber defendant Theodore Kaczynski should be barred from using a mental-defect defense because he refused to be tested by government psychiatrists, prosecutors say.

The prosecutors on Wednesday told U.S. District Judge Garland Burrell Jr. that Kaczynski's refusal to submit to court-ordered testing should close the door on a possible mental-defect defense.

They also asked Burrell to prevent Kaczynski, in the event he continues to resist court-ordered examination, from bringing in mental-defect evidence during a possible penalty phase of the trial.

Texas Farm Bureau leaders to meet to review resolutions

WACO — Thirty-nine Texas Farm Bureau farm leaders from across the state will gather Nov. 10-12 at TFB headquarters in Waco to review proposed resolutions from county Farm Bureaus. The leaders will then edit and consolidate the many resolutions into a policy development packet. These proposed resolutions will be voted upon Nov. 29-Dec. 3 at the TFB State Convention in Arlington. State resolutions approved there will become official policy of the TFB for 1998.

The resolutions to be considered include deregulation of utility rates, underground ownership of water, equity of school property taxes, fast-track trade negotiation, standard emissions testing, a new water law approved by the Texas Legislature and the implementation of alternative taxes that could replace property taxes. According to Glen Jones, director of FB Research, Education and Policy Development, the proposed resolutions cover the entire spectrum of issues affecting farmers, ranchers and rural Texans.

Adopted resolutions that deal with national issues, such as global warming and income tax,

Barney sues San Diego Chick

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Barney may love you and he may love me, but he doesn't love The Famous San Diego Chicken.

The purple dinosaur's owners have filed a copyright and trademark infringement lawsuit against The Chicken for ridiculing and assaulting a Barneylike character during performances at baseball and basketball games across the country.

Texas-based Lyons Partnership said the red and yellow chicken mascot, Ted Giannoulas, was first notified in 1994 that using the Barneylike costume in his act constituted infringement of Lyons' trademarks and copyrights and violated state and federal law.

"Specifically, Giannoulas would punch, flip, stand on and otherwise assault the putative Barney," the lawsuit alleges. "Despite such notice, Lyons received subsequent reports of Barney appearing with The Famous Chicken at games of the Detroit Pistons, Chicago Cubs, Seattle Mariners and others."

become policy recommendations to the American Farm Bureau convention on Jan. 12-15 in Charlotte, N.C. Based upon membership in each state, delegates will vote on those recommendations for the national policy for 1998.
