ELGIN (AP) — A man twice convicted of drunken driving is jailed again after a car wreck that killed his 8-year-old son and injured his daughter.

Rosaleo Charlie Arevalo, 35, of Elgin, was jailed on an intoxication assault charge after the Sunday night accident that killed R.C. Arevalo. The 8-year-old boy died Monday.

County gets federal food dollars The selection was made by a national board that is By MIRANDA G. BAILEY chaired by the Federal Emergency Management Agency Staff Writer

Gray County was awarded $6,858 in federal funds under the Emergency Food and Shelter National Board Program to supplement emergency food and shelter programs in this area.

A local board made up of Karen Heare, Linda Duncan, Lt. Matthew Branscum, Bill Ragsdale, Ann Loter, Linda Town, Katrina Bigham, Ken Hall and Bea Wortham will determine how the funds awarded to Gray County are to be distributed among the emergency food and shelter programs run by local service organizations in the area.

This marks the 15th year that Congress has appropriated funds for those with non-disaster emergency needs under the program and this year approximately $100 million in federal funds has been made available to participating organizations.

(FEMA) and consists of representatives from The Salvation Army, Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. and United Way of America which will provide the administrative staff and function as fiscal agent. The board was charged to distribute funds appropriated to help expand the capacity of food and shelter programs in high-need areas around the country.

We all take pride in a program that efficiently distributes federal funds by relying on a continuing partnership between FEMA and dedicated volunteer organizations," said FEMA Director James Lee Witt.

The local board is also responsible for recommending agencies to receive these funds and any additional funds available under this phase of the program.

Under the terms of the grant from the national board, local governmental or private voluntary organizations chosen to receive funds must: be non-profit; have an accounting system and conduct an annual audit; practice nondiscrimination; have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and/or shelter programs, and if they are a private voluntary organization, they must have a voluntary board.

Qualifying organizations are urged to apply.

Gray County has distributed Emergency Food and Shelter previously with American Red Cross, The Salvation Army, Tralee Crisis Center, Pampa Meal on Wheels, Southside Senior Citizens Center and Good Samaritan Christian Services participating.

These agencies were responsible for providing 5,252 meals, 166 nights of lodging and 98 bills of utility assis-

Henry was unavailable for comment today as he is attending a meeting of the commission that will decide this week where a new youth school will be placed.

Before his retirement, Henry was active in criminal investigative work directed primarily at narcotics. He currently serves on the board of the Pampa Community Youth Service, Inc., which promotes community involvement for the betterment of youth.

"I see the love of the people who have given of their monetary wealth, no matter how great or how small, to help others. I see the grief some of our donors are experiencing and know how important it is to them to know that their loved one won't be forgotten during this special time of year. I see precious friendships celebrated through the donations. I see the hours and hours of volunteer and staff time spent to raise funds to care for our patients.

"And I see the faces of our patients and their families when difficult times are eased by the medications we can buy, the equipment we can furnish, and the services we can give through the support we receive from the Tree of Love.

For a $10 donation, a light is placed on the Tree of placed on the Trees of Love displayed in the Pamp and Borger post offices.

Contributors to the Tree of Love can be assured that they know where their money is going and how it will be spent, said McCavit. Funds are used to purchase medicines and medical equipment and to provide personal care and support for Hospice o the Panhandle patients and their families. Hospic of the Panhandle's service area includes Carson Gray, Hutchinson, Roberts and Wheeler counties of the Texas Panhandle.

In 1996, the organization spent almost $60,000 to care for needy patients, she said, adding that Hospice of the Panhandle never charges patients or families for any of its services.

A Tree Lighting Ceremony for the public is set for 6:30 p.m., Friday, Dec. 5, at the Pampa office, 800 N. Sumner, and will include a short program and musical entertainment.

To "Light Up a Life" on Hospice of the Panhandle's Tree of Love, send donations to Hospice of the Panhandle, PO Box 2795, Pampa, Texas, 79066. Each gift will be acknowledged to both the benefactor and to the honorees and/or their families.

Mobile breast cancer clinic scheduled in December

AMARILLO - The Women's Center of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and the Baptist/St. Anthony's Health System will conduct a Breast Cancer Screening Clinic Dec. 16 at Shephard's Crook Nursing Agency, Inc., 2225 Perryton Parkway,

Breast cancer affects one in eight women. The key to winning the battle against this disease is early detection by having an annual breast exam, mammogram and by performing a breast self-examination once a month. Participants will receive a mammogram and instruction in self-examination by a registered nurse during the screening. A minimum of 15 women need to register in order for the mobile mammography clinic to come to area towns. This clinic is available only to women who need financial assistance. Funding is available through the Texas Department of Health for Texas residents who qualify for assistance. All exams are done by appointment only. For more information, call (806) 359-4673 or 1-800-377-4673.

Voters displayed anti-tax attitude

The overwhelming message delivered by voters in the recent off-year election was that they are tired of high taxes, they are willing to vote for people who promise to reduce them and are not enthusiastic about proposals for more taxes.

Whether they are also ready for the logical corollary of that desire, less government - Americans traditionally want it both ways, with lower taxes and plenty of government available when they want them - will have to be sorted out in future elections.

At this election, however, the issue was taxes. In Virginia, where Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Gilmore won handily and carried with him all the statewide offices and a Republican legislative majority for the first time since Reconstruction, exit polls showed that high taxes were the No. 1 priority.

In New Jersey, Republican Gov. Christine Todd Whitman, who cut state income taxes three years ago, was neutralized on the tax issue when property taxes rose. She barely won a squeaker contest in which Libertarian Party candidate Murray Sabrin got five per-

The anti-tax sentiment also showed up in ballot propositions. Pittsburgh and surrounding counties voted down a sales tax increase for proposed sports stadiums by better than 3-to-2. In Minneapolis, voters approved a measure requiring a popular vote before a new sports stadium could be built using tax money. New York state voters rejected a $2.4 billion school construction bond

In Denver, voters rejected (58 to 42 percent) a proposed tax hike for light rail transit projects. In Cincinnati, voters rejected a tax earmarked for the zoo.

A few targeted tax measures succeeded. An island town in Ohio raised taxes to pay for a paramedic facility.

Aside from these few exceptions, voter sentiment was remarkably uniform. Taxes are too high and they want proposes - even shaky promises – to reduce them.

Political science professor Jack Pitney at Claremont McKenna College in California affirms that assessment and points out that the Virginia election carries a more specific lesson for Republicans: "Concentrate your fire on specific, hated taxes, like the vehicle tax in Virginia, rather than on the general subject of high taxes and you'll enhance your credibility.

Then, the eternal question lingers: Will the politicians remember what voters told them, rather than simply trot out the anti-tax rhetoric at election time?

Stop penalizing working moms

The recent trial of the British au pair convicted of killing the baby under her charge has been truly heart-wrenching – as it appears to have victims on both sides of the courtroom.

The case pitted 19-year-old Louise Woodward, the nanny, against Deborah and Sunil Eappen, the child's parents. However, for some people the guilty party was determined before the case even went to trial.

It was the child's mother. Across the nation, some very disturbed people have taken it upon themselves to write nasty letters to Deborah Eappen, telling her that it is her fault that her baby died because she was selfish and arrogant enough to have a job.

I don't want to make too much of these letters - anyone who would knowingly compound the pain of a grieving mother is a truly pathetic individual and not worthy of serious commentary. However, these extremists point to a deep problem in our society: We are still playing the blame game when it comes to child care.

And that has got to stop. Because although it Coontz, author of The Way We Really Are day-care workers. like a rarefied phenomenon – something that is important only to a handful of uppity middle-class women. "We say to individual women, You go out there blindfolded and get the best child care you can, and if you can't, we're going to blame you," " Coontz told the New York Times.

Right now, the best child care most families can get isn't very good. That's mostly because American child care is stuck in a vicious circle. time finding and keeping qualified workers may be fashionable to sling mud at working because the pay is so low - studies have cited mothers, the fact remains that they are the zoo keepers and supermarket checkers as jobs majority of mothers. more women will be able to stay home with their children – which is what they purportedly want to do. The problem with this argument is that the current tax system already favors traditional single-earner families over twoincome families.

As University of Southern California law professor Edward McCaffery points out, the system of joint filing creates a situation where the secondary earner's income (usually the wife's) is taxed on top of the primary earner's

"(The wife's) first dollar of salary is taxed in the bracket where her husband's salary has left her," writes McCaffery in Taxing Women (University of Chicago Press). In other words, the "marriage penalty" that conservatives so On one hand, day-care centers have a difficult often lament is actually a second-earner penalty.

McCaffery also notes that working wives frequently get no real advantage when it comes to Social Security or health benefits – since a stayat-home wife will receive Social Security credit from her husband's income and she will be covered by his company's insurance.

But despite all of these disincentives, mothers continue to enter the paid work force. And this is why we need to cut the Ozzie-and-Harriet fantasies of yesteryear. The American family has changed radically in the past 30 years. It's time for American public policy to Which is why we need to start viewing day catch up.

Comfort news in a time of crisis

Not being a financial reporter, the best I can offer in this frightening period of undulating stock markets is meat loaf and mashed potatoes, metaphorically speaking, of course. Searching for comfort news in a time of crisis is one of the multifarious tasks a columnist must perform, and I take the duty very seriously. When the market went south, I immediately began investigating the apocalypse, to see if it is imminent. The main thing I discovered, which should come as very soothing news, is that it's not happening yet. Pinning it down, moreover, is a dicey business. The Jehovah's Witnesses first predicted the Cataclysm would occur in 1874. When that year came and went pretty much in normal fashion, the date was revised to 1914. Then it was changed to 1925. Then to 1975 -

Just last month, according to Harvard professor Stephen Jay Gould, we survived the date prophesied for the end of the world by Anglican Archbishop James Ussher in 1650. The next scheduled day of ruination that I can find, this one divined by a Dallas-based congregation/mail-order her case by identifying a Clinton quirk. ministry/movement/parody called the Church of the SubGenius, is July 5, 1998. While researching whether the end is near, I tripped across many miscellaneous items that should lift your spirits.

It might gladden you to know, for example, that the unsleeping guardians of all that is righteous remain on top of the sex crisis. For example, Brigham Young University, which is owned by the Mormon Church, recently yanked four sculptures from an Auguste Rodin exhibit. Rodin was, of course, from France, which we all know is where sex got its start and where that tart Brigitte Bardot lives. One of the pieces pulled was The Kiss, in which after which the church suspended all predictwo naked and licentious pieces of stone embrace.

> While this is comforting news indeed, I would be remiss if I failed to alert you to the fact that a major sex crisis is just around the corner. The sexual harassment case brought by Paula Jones against President Clinton is approaching trial. Ms. Jones intends to prove Clinton is crooked, Paula says, and she is not referring to Whitewater loans or campaign finance abuses. We have to decide soon on an acceptable euphemism to describe the alleged presidential abnormality without conjuring up images that could damage the tender psyches of the pure and virtuous.

As I rummaged for comfort news to help us through the stock crisis, I also discovered that Tupperware has been redesigned and is still alive and burping. Last year, 14 million Tupperware parties produced $1.4 billion in sales. The relief that I felt upon learning this makes me think I had been subconsciously concerned about the once homely but now handsome and always handy containers, and my guess is you were, too.

I also found out that men lose brain cells faster than women, which is comforting because I realize I am getting ever dumber than my wife and it is nice to know it's a natural thing.

I also learned that climate scientists believe you will stay drier if you run, rather than walk,

Oh, and one more thing on the apocalypse

The more secular-minded will be pleased to hear that it is not due for about 10,000 trillion, trillion, trillion, trillion, trillion, trillion, trillion, trillion years. At this time, according to astrophysicists Fred Adams and Greg Laughlin of the University of Michigan, who used the latest computer models to make this determination, nothing will be left in the universe except scattered subatomic particles. Actually, the stars will burn out and the heavens will go dark long before that - in about 100 trillion years but this still gives humankind the time to find some alternative living arrangements. OK? So, the heck with Wall Street.

Invest, as the analysts say, for the long term.

General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., Toyota Motor Sales USA Inc. and Nissan North American Inc. all say they have retrofit cutoff switches in the works. At least some switches will be available through their dealers early next year. Many other automakers say they are studying the idea.

The switches will cost between $150 and $200,

Some automakers like the flexibility of a switch, arguing customers could chose whether to turn the bag off for each trip, depending on who is riding in front. Others are concerned the cutoff switch might inadvertently be turned off when an adult passenger needs it in a crash.

Other companies also would be allowed to sell generic cutoff switches.

Weekend at the box office: 'The Jackal' debuts at top of charts

By IOHN HORN AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Bruce Willis and Richard Gere's assassination drama The Jackal opened in first place at the box office over the weekend, while Bill's Murray's latest comedy struggled in its debut.

The bug movie Starship Troopers, last weekend's top film, also had a tough weekend, falling to second place as its ticket sales plunged 55 percent in its second week. The adultery story One Night Stand stumbled out of the gate, too, making its debut at

Despite the availability of The Little Mermaid on video, Disney's animated tale did well in re-release, finishing in third place. It was followed by Bean and Murray's comedy, The Man Who Knew Too Little.

Playing only in New York, the animated movie Anastasia performed very well. The Wings of the Dove was also popular in limited release.

Thornberry votes for bill to curb power of the IRS

WASHINGTON - U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry voted for legislation which will curb the power of the Internal Revenue Service and give taxpayers more rights when dealing with the agency. The bill passed the House of Representatives by a vote of 426-4. "Since I took office in 1995," Thornberry stated, "it seems that not a week has gone by without someone contacting me with a complaint or concern about the IRS. Many of these concerns have to do with the service – or lack thereof – which the IRS provides American taxpayers. But I've also heard a lot of concerns about the inordinate amount of power the IRS wields, and the agency's ability to turn a person's life upside down.

"The bill ... is meant to address some of these concerns and help make sure the IRS is there to serve us, instead of the other way

The legislation is HR 2292, also known as The IRS Restructuring and Reform Act. The first comprehensive reform of the Internal Revenue Service since 1952, the bill is based on the recommendations of a bipartisan commission and built upon three basic prin-

-American Taxpayers Shouldn't be Treated Worse than Common Criminals. Under civil tax law, a taxpayer is liable until he or she can prove the IRS is wrong. HR 2292 reverses this by shifting the burden of proof to the IRS. In other words, the taxpayer is innocent until proven guilty - an integral feature of our criminal justice system, but a feature lacking from our current tax

-The Basic Rights of American Taxpayers Need to be Strengthened. This bill establishes 28 new rights for taxpayers, including letting people recover attorney's fees if the IRS audits them and is wrong and making it easier for taxpayers to recover legal fees and costs incurred in disputes with the IRS.

-The IRS Needs to Focus on Providing Better Service. HR 2292 prohibits IRS employees from being evaluated solely on their enforcement results. It also shifts control of the IRS from the Treasury Department to an independent oversight board comprised of private citizens.

Host's Christmas Cheer Is Not Spread Out To All

DEAR ABBY: Every year, I throw a Christmas party for 25 or 30 people. What is the polite response when I'm asked by a prior attendee, whom I do not wish to invite, if I am throwing a party again this year?

This happened three times last year, and I don't know how to handle the question. I could never respond with a blunt, "Yes, but you're not invited." Nor would I be comfortable with the lie of "No." So I usually stammer some vague nonanswer about not even having my Christmas cards out yet.

My honest response would be, "I am - but regrettably, I just can't invite everyone I would like to. Let's plan to get together after the holidays.'

I don't want to cause the hurt feelings that being excluded would create, especially when it is someone whose company I enjoy. At the same time, though, I am blessed with a large circle of friends and acquaintances, and can invite only so many people.

How would you or your readers respond to a question like this that probably shouldn't have been asked in the first place? Or am I just being overly sensitive?

POLITE HOST, SEATTLE

DEAR POLITE: You are not being overly sensitive - you are simply a host who has trouble saying no. Your honest response is the best way to explain the situation.

COLUMNIST  DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a letter from a woman who is involved with an HIV-positive man. I tested positive seven years ago and am still as healthy as ever. To others in her situation I would say: Go ahead and live your lives. It would be sad to break off a promising relationship for fear of an illness that may never happen. However, at the same time, be wise and make a plan for what you'll do if he does get sick. This same advice applies to any mature couple.

I'd like to offer a list of suggestions that might be valuable to anyone who tests HIV-positive:

1. Make sure you have good health insurance. Get medical exams several times a year from a doctor who has experience with HIV. This is important so that potential infections can be nipped in the bud.

OGLESBY, III. (AP) — Russ Meyer, who pitched in three World Series in the 1950s, died of congestive heart failure at the age of 74.

Meyer, who died Sunday, was 94-73 from 1946 to 1959 with the Chicago Cubs, Philadelphia Brooklyn Dodgers, Cincinnati Reds, Boston Red Sox and Kansas City Athletics. He spent 12 years in the New York Yankees' organization, serving as bench coach in 1992.

OWINGS MILLS, Md. (AP) - Baltimore Ravens running back Bam Morris was charged with choking a woman at a birthday party.

The assault charge could be used to bolster Texas prosecutors' attempts to revoke Morris' probation for a 1996 drug conviction.

Morris was at a party given by the family of Ravens tackle Orlando Brown at a Baltimore County banquet hall when the altercation took place Sunday night, according to a police report.

HOUSTON (AP) — Aaron Brown, a starting defensive end on the Super Bowl-winning 1970 Kansas City Chiefs team, died when he was struck by a car while walking on a northeast Houston street.

Brown, who would have been 54 on Sunday, was struck from behind as he walked along Farm-to-Market Road 1960 at 6:25 p.m. Saturday. Brown played for the Chiefs from 1966-72 and finished his career with Green Bay in 1973-

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ron Dickerson, who gave himself five years to right Temple's foundering program, resigned after his fifth season left him 8-47 as coach of the Owls. Temple was 3-8 this season.

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — It was ugly the second time around, too.

The embarrassed Green Bay Packers watched film on Monday of their shocking 41-38 loss to previously winless Indianapolis and found scores of things they need to fix before the Dallas Cowboys' visit on much-awaited Sunday.

The offensive game film included an astonishing 10 vards-per-play average, but also two turnovers by Brett Favre that the Colts turned into touchdowns.

The special teams clips showed a team-record 211 kickoff return yards by new returner Roell Preston, but also a bad decision to field a punt inside his 10.

But the real horror flick was the defensive game film, starring, well, just about everybody - Bernardo Harris, Doug Evans, Seth Joyner.

"You watch the film, you're just embarrassed that people are going to see it and they're going to think it's the real you," safety Eugene Robinson said. "You would think we never played a down of football in our lives."

"Let's say it was no joy," defensive lineman Gerald Williams said. "We got the opportunity to see that if we were at all possibly feeling invincible, we're far from that."

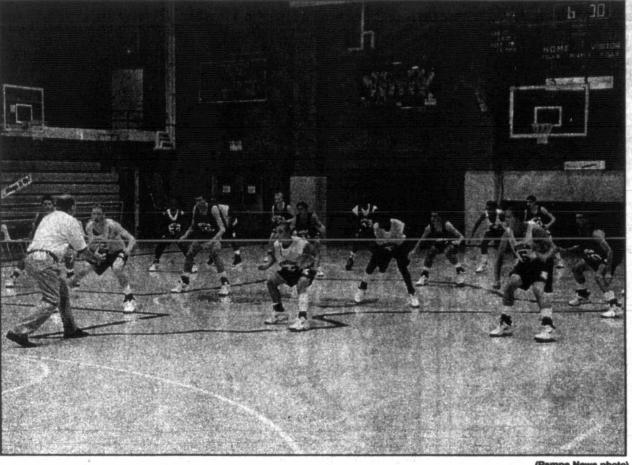

"It was almost as if we took turns messing up plays," defensive tackle Bob Kuberski

The Packers allowed the NFL's second-worst offense to amass 467 yards, their biggest yield since 1987, and wasted an outstanding day by Favre & Co., including 103 rushing yards and 92 reception yards by Dorsey Levens, who scored three times, and a 74-yard reception by Derrick Mayes.

"Defensively, we didn't play well at all," Robinson said. "From missed tackles, to poor technique, poor alignment, everything that could possibly go wrong went wrong collectively.

"And as a result, we stunk. As well as our offense played, we gave them no help at all. None, whatever. Zilch, zero, nothing," Robinson added.
