AUSTIN (AP) —The Texas Youth Commission board heard testimony today on the proposed sites for its new juvenile corrections facility.

Mart, a community of about 2,000 people 19 miles east of Waco, leads the list. It's followed by Cotulla, Littlefield, Marshall, Mexia, Hamlin, Texas City, Falfurrias, Bonham, Plainview, Rockdale, Amarillo and Jefferson County sites, according to the agency.

"Whoever is picked for this somewhere down the line is going to wonder why they wanted this. "... It is a great responsibility," said board Chairman Leonard Lawrence.

The commission is expected to announce its decision today.

The sites were chosen from 43 proposals made by 40 communities.

The commission is planning to build a maximum-security 330-bed facility, which could be expanded to 660 beds if needed, that would open in 1999. When staffed for a juvenile population of 330, the estimated payroll would be $10 million.

Youths committed to TYC represent about 2 percent of the juveniles arrested each year in Texas. Some 4,500 juveniles are in TYC custody at 14 institutions and contract care programs statewide.

Steve Robinson, commission executive director, said that there is a possibility that the maximum-security facility would be co-ed because of an increase in the number of female offenders.

No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for a Lotto Texas jackpot estimated at $4 million, state lottery officials said.

The numbers drawn Wednesday night from a field of 50 were: 5-7-12-30-32-

Saturday night's drawing will be worth an estimated $8 million.

Jurors give Pampa man life sentence

AMARILLO (AP) — Jurors chose life in prison this morning over the death penalty for a Pampa man convicted earlier this week of capital murder in the 1995 beating death of a Borger man.

Tommy Dominquez, 44, was convicted of the slaying of George M. Hunter, whose body was struck repeatedly about the head and stabbed in the chest, according to a forensic pathologist's testimony.

Jurors on Tuesday took more than six hours to convict Dominquez. Wednesday, they heard damaging evidence about his past. "He's a dangerous man," Curry County, N.M., Deputy Jerry Wike told jurors.

Testimony revealed Dominquez spent three stints in New Mexico prisons on a variety of convictions. His former parole officer Ioe Masters, had ons on a variety of convictions. His former parole officer, Joe Masters, had a negative recollection of Dominquez.

"He was not cooperative," Masters said. "He found it difficult to obey the rules set forth by the court."

Joe Martinez, Dominquez' brother-in-law from Pampa, had trouble accepting the murder conviction.

"I've seen him as a family man," Martinez testified. "We did things together, and it was nice."

Pampa resident Markos Mendoza, 24, and Renee Seger, 34, of Borger,

Pampa resident Markos Mendoza, 24, and Renee Seger, 34, of Borger also are charged in the slaying. Ms. Seger agreed to testify against the other two in exchange for a 20-year prison sentence.

Ms. Seger testified at trial that after Dominquez gave Hunter some cocaine on Sept. 19, 1995, Hunter complained about the drug's quality. That's when Dominquez began beating the victim with brass knuckles and a metal statuette. She and Dominquez both stabbed Hunter and stole $900, she said.

Defense attorney Joe Marr Wilson questioned Ms. Seger's credibility in his closing arguments earlier this week.

Domestic violence alliance drawing agencies together

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY Staff Writer

The Crisis Coordinating Council (CCC) is considering a written "cooperative working agreement" that would give council members the opportunity to formally agree with the group's mission and provide a personal statement of their commitment.

CCC consists of representatives from several service agencies such as the Pampa Police Department, Gray County, Tralee Crisis Center, CASA of Gray County, the Texas Department of Health and other local entities striving for the well being of citizens in the community.

The group began meeting in February with the purpose of forming an alliance that will develop a multidisciplinary approach to addressing problems of domestic violence, sexual assault and other related crimes in Gray County.

Those at a meeting this week agreed with CCC facilitator, Linda Town, about the value of a written cooperative working agreement. Town asked that agency representatives bring the statements back in January for further discussion and evaluation.

A "Memorandum of Understanding" was also passed out to council members; the document further clarified the purpose of the council.

"The growing epidemic of domestic violence constitutes a national crisis – a crisis that is too complex for individual organizations, agencies or departments to approach alone. The collaboration of the Pampa Police Department and Tralee Crisis Center will enhance the ongoing process that requires each to be motivated toward the goal of continuous improvement of services for family violence services," the memorandum introduction read.

DID YOU KNOW?

Domestic Violence is one of the most common and least reported crimes in our state and country?

In other matters, members discussed the recent domestic violence seminar held at M.K. Brown. Representatives said they believed it was a success and indicated they looked forward to future seminars.

The bulk of the meeting, however, consisted of the planning and possible promotions for Sexual Assault Awareness Month, Child Abuse Prevention Month and Crime Victims Rights Week –

all occurring in April.

A potential elementary school poster contest in recognition of child abuse prevention month was acknowledged as a suitable way to gain attention. Other options, such as a rally downtown, were considered.

Decisions about the promotions are expected to be made at the Wednesday, Jan. 28 meeting in the Panhandle Services Building at 1:30 p.m.

Hospice nurse has 'big heart'

By Dee Dee Laramore For The News

When Juana Campos' instructor asked her to stay after class, her heart began to pound. She couldn't imagine what she had done to be singled out from a class of 30 prospective nurse aides for this student-teacher conference.

What the instructor said to Campos that night changed her life forever, she remembered.

"She said, 'You've got a big heart. We need you to come work for Hospice."'

The next day, Campos interviewed with Sherry McCavit, executive director of Hospice of the Panhandle and a day later, she began working as a nurse aide for the non-profit agency which cares for the terminally-ill before returning to the agency as a licensed vocational nurse (LVN).

"My goal was to become a nurse," Campos explained, "but when I first started taking classes, my instructors told me, You need all the hands-on experience you can get. I knew to do that I would have to be a nurse aide, so I got my CNA (certified nurse aide).

"It made a big difference," she said. "When the book said something, I knew exactly what they were talking about, because I'd been there."

The road to becoming a hospice nurse has been a long and arduous one for Campos, although she tends to discount the many difficulties she has encountered along the way.

At age 23, her interest in nursing began with the illness of her grandmother, who suffered from heart

"My grandmother was sick with a bad heart and I wanted to help her, but I didn't have the answers for it." Campos explained. "I always thought if there is somebody who needed to be loved, who needed help, I wanted to be there for them."

Campos set goals for herself Her first goal was to get her GED so she could enroll in college. After meeting that goal, she enrolled at Clarendon College and encountered the challenge of mastering the TASP test.

"That was a real challenge for someone who had never had algebra, who had problems with English," she remembered.

Filled with determination, Campos worked until she passed the test. The desire to be a nurse had

"I went to the counselor and told him what I wanted to do, and he said, 'that would be a great job for you,"' she said.

Campos did all this while raising five children - four boys and one girl, each two years apart in age. Three of her children are enrolled in the gifted and talented program, a fourth has received recognition from Duke University. Three are football players and all of them, including Campos herself, play soccer. They also worship regularly at Iglesia Nueva Vida.

A typical day for Campos starts at 6 a.m. when she awakens her children and gets them ready for school. She drives them to their three different schools by 7:30 a.m. and then goes to her grandmother's house to check on her.

"She feeds me breakfast," she said with a laugh. 'She makes sure I start my day right."

Though the day begins with an orderly schedule of visiting Hospice of the Panhandle patients, Campos knows that events rarely follow the sched-

She explained that on the day of the interview she was scheduled to spend most of the day in the office catching up on paperwork.

'I was to start out the day with possibly one visit and I ended up with seven visits," she said.

Still, Campos said the rewards of caring for hospice patients far outweighs the unpredictable nature of her profession.

"One of our patients was having a blue, sad day and I got to go over with balloons and candy and leave her with a big ol' smile on her face," she said. "Now that really makes my day."

Also, she enjoys meeting families with different cultures, spiritual backgrounds and beliefs.

"There was one large, large family with lots of grandkids and great grandkids. (The patient) was the one everyone looked up to and it was big decision for them to go into hospice," she said.

"In time they learned to trust us and depend on us. I saw a knitting of hearts. When they were deciding to go with hospice, they were afraid that he would die right now. He was having lots of problems with pain and appetite. We controlled the pain and symptoms. We did a lot of teaching about what was happening. We told them what the disease caused and didn't cause. I think we helped them learn how to talk to each other and to talk to their grandfather about dying," she added.

"I wouldn't trade being a hospice nurse in the whole wide world," Campos said with enthusiasm: "I'd never change to be a curative nurse, because for me hospice is it. Hospice is the ultimate."

What if someone could look into a crystal ball and see Campos 10 years from now? "I'd still be that same hospice nurse. Hopefully, I'll have my bachelor's degree. That's my goal now. But I sure see myself in hospice," she replied.

Former politician files lawsuit from prison imprisoned former congressman has filed a federal lawsuit alleging prison officials discriminated against him by denying him furloughs, maximum time in a halfway house and necessary dental care.

The lawsuit was filed in El Paso late Wednesday by former U.S. Rep. Albert Bustamante, who is confined to the Federal Prison Camp in El Paso while serving the final months of a 42-month sentence for taking an illegal gratuity and racketeering.

In the civil rights lawsuit, the 62year-old former congressman alleges Warden Joe Aguirre broke his own published policy of allowing all prisoners with 36-month sentences or longer to serve the final six months in a halfway want to add another alleged Clinton administration misdeed: selling plots in military cemeteries.

Sparked by a summertime article in a trade publication and an upcoming expose in a news maga-zine, critics of President Clinton are now charging that he gave plots at the hallowed Arlington National Cemetery to undeserving political donors.

The White House and the Army moved quickly Wednesday to stanch this latest accusation, which follows months of allegations and investigations into fund-raising abuses during the 1996 presidential election.

The Army issued statements and fact sheets saying that exceptions to the rules about who is buried at Arlington were made strictly on merits, not because of generous donations to the Clinton-Gore re-election campaign.

The president and this administration consider Arlington National Cemetery and other national and veterans cemeteries across the country to be hallowed ground," White House special counsel Lanny Davis said. "It would be outrageous for anyone to grant or influence the granting of exceptions under the rules for burial at national cemeteries because of political or fund-raising considerations."

Davis said a report to be published in the Dec. 8 issue of Insight magazine, a publication of The Washington Times, was "based on anonymous sources and innuendo, not the facts.

But as faxed copies of the report circulated to reporters and radio talk show hosts, calls of outrage from citizens and lawmakers began to pour in

An article in the most recent edition of Insight suggests that some who received waivers for burial at the national cemeteries, including Arlington, got them because they made large donations to the Clinton re-election campaign and the Democratic

The article quotes anonymous sources and says Clinton "may have 'sold" burial plots to a handful of Democratic donors. The magazine said some names of those granted exceptions also appear on lists of major donors to the Clinton-Gore campaign and the Democratic National Committee. The article does not appear to establish a link between the donations and decisions on burial rights at military

The Army said that for privacy reasons it would not release the names of those granted waivers.

With word of the latest story, members of the House Veterans Affairs Committee also were demanding responses from Army Secretary Togo

The Army oversees burial at Arlington, which lies across the Potomac River from Washington, while the VA oversees burial at other military cemeteries nationwide. Burial sites are difficult to obtain and usually require not only military service but an honorable discharge and military decorations.

West did not respond to calls Wednesday seeking comment. But Maj. Gen. John G. Meyer Jr., chief of Army public affairs, issued a statement saying that all exceptions were granted based on "careful and individual consideration," not politi-

Suspected serial killer executed for 1982 West Texas abduction-slaying

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) -More than 15 years ago, Selena Elms fled terrified into the West Texas desert as an oilfield worker a few feet away fatally stabbed her mother and younger sister after abducting them.

Jordan Unit great for the community

The City of Pampa has benefited from the Jordan Unit's donated labor on many community projects this calendar year. Approximately three-fourths of a mile of Hike-N-Bike Trail was overlaid with some 283 cubic yards of concrete, requiring 1,600 hours of inmate labor.

Work is currently in progress on the Doctor von Brunow Park just south of Boatmans Bank on Cuyler Street. With the help of Jordan Unit labor, an old fire wall was removed and the bricks cleaned and salvaged. This project will be a tremendous improvement to our downtown area, and I encourage citizens to periodically drive by and monitor the progress of this soon to be beautiful park. Some 400 hours of donated labor have been utilized in Inmate labor involving some 336 man hours have been used by the city in improvements to Butterfly Garden Park on the corner of Garland and Duncan Street. This project included the removal of a sidewalk and landscape work.

It would be too voluminous in this correspondence to identify all the man hours and projects on-going at the landfill, golf course, police firing range in addition to tornado and alley clean-up which has all been donated by the Jordan Unit. On an annual basis, this saves the city and taxpavers many thousands of dollars in enhancements and routine maintenance.

By the end of November 1997, approximately 1,302 man hours have been donated to park improvements this year. In 1996, approximately 51,000 man hours were donated to the city which equates to approximately $241,000 in donated labor when calculated at minimum wage.

Average annual payroll at the Jordan Unit is $10,000,000 for 384 employees. Currently 261 of these employees reside in Pampa and Gray County with the remaining living in Wheeler, Canadian, Miami, Groom and White Deer; 1998 will be the sixth year of operation for the Jordan Unit. They have proven to be great community partners and a valued asset to Pampa/Gray County and our surrounding Panhandle communities. We can all thank those prior community leaders who were interested in developing Pampa's economy for bringing the TDCJ to Gray County.

Affirmative action's inevitable end

In 1964, Congress became a bitter battleground during a debate on a civil rights bill that was so fundamentally clear that no one, including racists, could distort its meaning anywhere in the country. Opposing it were some of the same forces that had tried to block civil rights activists in the South and elsewhere. Supporting the bill were the American Civil Liberties Union and various black and white civil rights organizations.

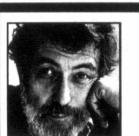

Hubert Humphrey, the voluble and sometimes courageous senator from Minnesota, was a prime advocate of the bill. And on the floor of the Senate, answering doubts and objections, he pledged that if it became law, this measure would give no preference to anyone because of skin color or for any reason.

As passed, this was and is the text of the Civil Rights Act of 1964: "No person in the United crimination under any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance."

Thirty-three years later, the same groups that applauded the Civil Rights Act of 1964 are now vigorously opposing California's Proposition 209 which says: "The state shall not discriminate against, or grant preferential treatment to, any individual or group on the basis of race, sex, color, ethnicity or national origin in the operation of public employment, public education or public contracting.

But affirmative action is nearing the end of its life. Now the Supreme Court of the United States has refused to review the Ninth Circuit decision, thereby leaving Proposition 209 as the anti-affirmative action law in California.

The Supreme Court has not decided whether equivalents of Proposition 209 will be the law of the land, but the court has steadily displayed a rising degree if hostility to race-based preferences in public contracting, in the firing of teachers in Michigan for the sake of diversity, and in redrawing election districts. That's a remarkably crude misunderstanding of the fact that a good many civil libertarians and anti-racists are convinced that affirmative action is unconstitutional. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas - the most liberal member of the Court in its history emphasized that affirmative action was against the equalprotection-of-the-laws clause Constitution.

Speaking, for example, of college admissions, Douglas wrote that "decisions should be made on the basis of individual attributes, rather than according a preference solely on the basis of

But Douglas insisted on outreach on finding people who had succeeded in overcoming barriers, whether of racism, or of poverty in the Appalachians. And on that basis, disadvantaged Americans of all races, male and female, should have their backgrounds taken into account for college admissions and in other

Ward Connerly, the "father" of Proposition 209, has said again and again that there ought to be outreach to all who need more active attention and support to enable them to move toward equality. And that approach is entirely constitutional. But the ACLU and black and white civil rights groups keep trying, almost desperately, to hold on to affirmative action. But it's slipping into obsolescence. Houston recently kept affirmative action, but the wind is blowing the other way.

Take this tax thing, for example. He wants to spend a few of our dollars - some measly sum between $20 million and $60 million, depending on whose figures you believe - to ask us what we think of taxes. Specifically, he wants to require the Internal Revenue Service to include a detailed survey in our tax return packages. The poll would pose questions like this one:

"Please rate the fairness of the current federal income tax system." Or this: "Do you think the amount you pay to the federal government in taxes is fair or unfair?"

Or this: "Which of the following statements comes closest to your own view of the IRS? (A) the IRS has a difficult job to do and generally does it very well; (B) the IRS could be more understanding and less suspicious of taxpayers, but it does an OK job; (C) the IRS needs to be completely overhauled to make it more responsible and less powerful; (D) the IRS should be abolished completely - it can't be Newt. I've already polled myself and can give you an immediate response. I HATE PAYING TAXES.

You can save the stamps for my survey form,

One thoughtful gentleman quoted for me the words of 18th century English statesman and author Edmund Burke: "To tax and to please, no more than to love and be wise, is not given to man." Another of my pensive respondents said, "You know, taxes are like vegetables. I hate broccoli and cabbage and kohlrabi and all that stuff, but I have to eat them to keep my infrastructure intact, so to speak.

Another of the people I surveyed there's one in every crowd, isn't there, Newt? - pointed out that the biggest reason the IRS screws up so much, and one of the main reasons the taxpayers feel abused, is because the tax system is so damn complicated. And who is responsible for that, Newtie?

Said this person: "Congress talks about tax simplification but never does it. Indeed, as a way of rewarding their friends and contributors with tax breaks, they do the precise opposite. Look at the 1997 Tax Relief Act. It's loaded with deductions, credits, exemptions, phaseouts, preferences and restrictions.

Finally, Newt, I should warn you that many citizens suspect you are playing polities with this issue. The more astute respondents I interviewed are very aware that Republican pollsters have been trying for years to convince party leaders to make an issue out of alleged IRS abuse

I included in my poll, for example, the following query:

"How would you describe the fragrance of politicians who, in search of surefire election winners, mount a crusade against the IRS? Would you say they recall the odor of (A) rotten eggs; (B) landfills; (C) pigeon droppings; (D) bull flops.

The flops won big, Newt. Very big.

Wait, there's more. I polled 22 of my friends and 14 randomly selected people on the street and guess what? THEY HATE PAYING TAXES, TOO.

That's three dozen more stamps you can

Before we go any further, I should warn your Speakership that an awful lot of people fear you could overplay your hand here. Many of my respondents said they, too, believe the Internal Revenue Service is run by a secret order of sadists and that they probably recruit auditors who devoted their formative years to torturing little animals and pulling wings off

But several respondents warned that the Republicans are playing with fire here, Newt. With all the militias and with the general antigovernment discord now abroad in the land, you and your pals could stir up a widespread revolt, and then where would we be? There was approximately $80,000 worth of damage to the center extending from the lobby to the pool, encompassing the aerobics room, the weight room, the dressing moms and the racquetball courts.

Munter's Moisture Control dried the facility after which the aerobics room and the racquetball courts were re-finished. The downstairs walls were stripped and repainted and a new tile floor was put down in the hall and the dressing rooms. All damaged equipment in the weight room was replaced and additional weight stations were added including incline, decline and standard bench presses, a leg press and a seated calf machine.

In addition to the improvements, a new pool heater was installed in August. In the past, severe weather affected the pool temperature, making it drop significantly. This new, state-of-the-art heater will allow the BCAC to maintain a water temperature range of between 84-86 degrees. "I encourage everyone to come out and see the new improvements we have made. Just ask any of the front desk staff for a tour. Right now is also a great time to take advantage of one of our cooperate or family membership promotions," said John Green.

Southwestern Bell is required to obtain ETC status in order to receive Federal Universal Service Funds ("FUSFs") beginning January 1, 1998. 47 U.S.C. §214(e) requires the PUC, either upon its own motion or upon request, to designate common carriers as ETCs for service areas. SYNDICATED

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have just observed the second anniversary of the death of our firstborn child, and I have finally gathered the courage to write this

My child, the passenger, was killed instantly in a horrible car accident. The driver died a few hours later. Both of these teenagers had been drinking. The driver had a fake ID, and apparently had purchased alcohol for both of them. The autopsy report on my child came back as legally intoxicated.

My husband and I did everything we could to warn our child about the dangers of alcohol and other drugs. Our words fell on deaf ears, despite all our pleas and warnings.

Even after two years, it's still difficult to allow our surviving teenager the freedom to go out at night. That wreck is always in the back of our minds. Though this child is dependable and responsible, we live in fear of the deadly driving of another drunken teen who thinks the only way to have fun is to illegally purchase alcohol and other drugs.

Since the world is still reeling from the shock of the senseless death of the Princess of Wales, perhaps it's a good time for those who admired her to stop and think before getting behind the wheel of a car after they've been drinking.

I realize the problems of driving while intoxicated are not limited to

When the children have friends over, however, they don't want to do their chores. Is it OK to make them? And if so, should they be able to ask their guests to help?

UNSURE MOM, MARINE ON SAINT CROIX, MINN.

DEAR MOM: Every family has its own approach to children and chores. It's up to you to determine what works best for you, and then enforce it. If the children are responsible about performing their duties, an occasional night off when special friends visit could be a simple way of rewarding them. If you require that they do their chores even when they have company, their friends should not be expected to assist them, unless they volunteer to do so.

NEW YORK (AP) — New Orleans Saints coach Mike Ditka will not be disciplined for a sideline bet he made with defensive coordinator Zaven Yaralian.

Ditka was questioned by NFL headquarters last week after he and Yaralian were shown on television exchanging money on the sideline in the closing minutes of the Saints' 13-10 victory at Oakland Nov. 9. Ditka also wrote a letter of apology to NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue.

Ditka and Yaralian had a bet on whether the Saints could defend a pass route.

"The matter is closed," league spokesman Greg Aiello said today. "His explanation was accepted."

Lockney went 12-1 a year ago and reached the regional semifinals, losing to Stamford, 17-7.

Kansas survives, Williams gets No. 250

By The Associated Press

Even the All-Americas at Kansas aren't protected from the coach's wrath.

Raef LaFrentz was one of the Jayhawks on the listening end as Roy Williams ripped his lethargic team Wednesday night during No. 2 Kansas' 75-62 home win over Western Kentucky in the Preseason NIT.

"We were stinking it up out there," said Williams, who got his 250th coaching victory.

Kansas led by 22 points at halftime, but when the Hilltoppers closed within seven points in the fourth quarter, Williams pulled LaFrentz and some other starters off the floor for a heated talk.

LaFrentz and Paul Pierce, both named AP preseason All-Americas, got the message from home games. Williams.

Western Kentucky's 13-0 run made it 45-38 with 4:01 left in the third quarter and hushed the sellout crowd before Pierce scored just the second Kansas field goal in the second half. He followed that with a pair of free throws and triggered a 10-4 run that seemed to restore all the momentum to the Jayhawks.

But then the Hilltoppers closed "I told them I wouldn't call a to 55-48 on a 3-pointer by Joe
