Clear skies signal warmer temperatures

Clear skies brought cold weather to Pampa today although the forecast calls for warmer temperatures.

It was an unofficial 19 degrees at 10 a.m. today in Pampa under a brilliant blue Texas Panhandle sky. The overnight low was 13 degrees.

The sunshine, however, is supposed to warm the area with today's high set for 35 degrees. The high Christmas Day never reached above freezing.

Saturday's high is expected to be in the mid to upper 40s and is expected to reach into the 50s Sunday and Monday.

Highways in across the Texas Panhandle were reported to be clear although some secondary roads were icy due to melting and refreezing snow.

Wheeler reported clear skies and 23 degrees at 11 a.m. today, according to Andy Bradstreet. Nick Riley of White Deer said

Carson County also had sunshine and cold temperatures. "There's not much wind yet," he said.

Riley said it was 20 degrees in White Deer at 11 a.m. today. McLean reported very cold conditions with clear skies shortly before noon today.

"The sun is shining, the snow's melting," said Carey Richardson in McLean. "It's got the makings of a pretty nice day."

North winds today were expected to switch to the west overnight. The overnight low tonight should be about 20 with lows through Monday in the 20s.

Pampa school hosts new computer

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY
Staff Writer

Rich Irvine, owner of Computer Solutions, and another Pampa individual who wants to remain anonymous, recently donated and installed a new computer and software to match for the HOSTS program at Wilson Elementary this holiday season.

HOSTS, the Helping One Student To Succeed program, pairs up fourth and fifth grade students with volunteer mentors who meet with the students once a week for thirty minutes to help with mathematics.

The computer is a real asset to the program, said HOSTS teachers Teresa Dyson and Lynda Dyer. The software installed and purchased with the computer is providing math games and instructional programs for the students.

The kids were already begging to use the computer before Irvine could completely hook it up, Dyson said. Students will use the computer as a supplemental and "fun" element to the math work they complete weekly in the program, she added.

"It's our only computer in the classroom to help us," said Dyson.

The teachers didn't ask for the computer. It was a complete surprise to them, Dyer said.

Irvine has also offered to completely service the machine for no charge and he is going to sell future software to the HOSTS program for wholesale, the teachers said.

"I think it's neat that people like our 'anonymous' donor and Rich are looking out for the kids," Dyson said.

Mentors are still and always needed for the programs, there are never enough mentors for all the students, Dyer said.

Those who consider themselves mathematically challenged should still consider volunteering thirty minutes of their time every week. Since the inception of the program three years ago, Wilson student math scores have steadily increased.

Arab conspiracy theories abound regarding Princess Diana's death

By SALAH NASRAWI
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) -- An Arab world conspiracy theory about Princess Diana's death in a car crash, propounded in magazines, best-selling books and a court suit, paints her as the target of a British plot.

Now, a movie is in the works. Director Khairi Beshera says "The Last Supper," will be about Diana's life, not conspiracies surrounding her death. But the notion that she was killed because she was about to convert to Islam to wed Egyptian Dodi Fayed, who died with her, is too popular to ignore.

No evidence of a conspiracy has been presented. British officials have termed the idea absurd. But that has not stopped many in Egypt from imagining a plot by a British establishment aghast at thoughts of Diana converting to Islam, marrying Fayed and bearing a son named Mohammed who would be a half-brother to England's future king.

Diana, Fayed and the driver of their car died Aug. 31 in a Paris car crash. Investigators still are examining details of the accident, looking for a cause. The driver, Henri Paul, was legally drunk.

Four months after the princess's death, Cairo bookshops and newsstands remain piled high with magazines and books adorned with pictures of Diana and alluring titles about the "fake" car crash and supposed details of how she and Fayed really died.

A blurb on the back cover of "Assassination of a Princess" by Ahmed Atta says Diana joined a long list of celebrities killed for political reasons.

In the chapter "Who Killed Diana and Dodi," Atta, an Egyptian journalist, quotes unidentified sources as saying the British intelligence agency MI6 is to blame. To support his theory, Atta cites news reports that British agents spied on the princess in Paris.

Ilham Sharshar of the Al-Ahram daily, says Diana confided to her friend Gemima Goldsmith, who converted to Islam to wed Pakistani cricket legend Imran Khan, that she, too, was considering becoming Muslim.

Teresa Kathryn Ginn, 41, of Pampa died December 25, 1997. Services are pending with Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

Mrs. Ginn was born November 7, 1956 in Hobbs, N.M. She had been a resident of White Deer most of her life, moving to Pampa 15 years ago. She graduated from Pampa High School in 1977. She married Mac Ginn on November 9, 1982 in Amarillo.

Survivors included her husband Marc of the home, one daughter, Ashly Ginn of the home. Also by her parents Raymond and Jeri Blodgett of White Deer, one brother, Kevin Blodgett of White Deer and one sister, Lisa Petty of White Deer.

Herbert Brasher Sr.

Herbert Brasher Sr., 82, of Pampa died December 23, 1997. Services will be held at 10:00 a.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church.

Mr. Brasher was a longtime architect and engineer who designed schools and other buildings throughout West Texas.

His projects included Pampa's M.K. Brown auditorium and the First Baptist Church and several additions to the city's schools.

Mr. Brasher who in 1954 founded the firm that would become BGR Architects-Engineers designed at least 200 projects during a career that spanned five decades. His first projects became Lubbock landmarks including Lubbock's First Baptist Church and St. Paul's on the Plains Episcopal Church.

He concentrated however on schools. Among those he designed were Lubbock's Estacado High and Ed Irons and Wilson Jr Highs, Randall High and Valleyview Junior High in Amarillo; Georgetown, Levelland and Brownfield High Schools and several buildings on the campus of Wayland Baptist University, including Harrah Memorial Auditorium and the Van Howling Library.

Irons Junior High won the 1990 Best of Show award from the Texas Association of School Administrators, Texas Association of School Boards, and the Texas Society of Architects.

He also designed office buildings for numerous rural electric cooperatives as well as the Texas Department of Public Safety's regional headquarters in Lubbock and the Deaf Smith County Library in Hereford.

Brasher was a native of Monroe La., but grew up in Roswell, N.M. He graduated from Teas Tech in 1939 and was licensed to practice architecture in Texas New Mexico and California.

He was a member of the American Institute of Architects, Texas Society of Architects, National Society of Professional Engineers and the Council of Educational Facility Planners International.

He was a longtime member of the First Baptist Church, served on the board of the Red Sea Missionary Team, an international missionary organization and was also active in the Capernway Missionary Fellowship.

He married the former Marie Somers in 1941. His brother C.J. died in 1964.

Survivors include his wife, a daughter, Julie Duncan of Lubbock, two sons Herbert Jr. of Friedrichshafen, Germany and Philip of Falls Church, Virginia, and seven grandchildren.

The family will receive friends from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday at Resthaven Funeral Home.

Timing is everything — 'Seinfeld' to end on 'peak' this spring

By DAVID BAUDER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The master of his domain is calling it quits.

"Seinfeld," the most defining and popular comedy of the decade, will halt production this spring after its ninth season. NBC early today confirmed the decision made by Jerry Seinfeld, the comedy's star and creator.

The announcement blows a gaping hole in NBC's Thursday night lineup, by far the most popular in television.

Seinfeld's decision made for a blue Christmas at the network, even if the announcement wasn't entirely unexpected. Last spring, following a contract dispute between cast members and NBC, the comedian said he would decide around the end of the year whether to continue.

He made good on his promise. "I wanted to end the show on the same kind of peak we've been doing it on for years," Seinfeld said in today's New York Times. "I wanted the end to be from a point of strength. I wanted the end to be graceful."

And so it's an end to the show that made "not that there's anything wrong with that" and "yada yada yada" favorite phrases for viewers. Nothing was too trivial to inspire a half-hour's ribbing; one episode had the cast searching for their car after a day at the mall.

The "Seinfeld" finale next spring promises to be a television event along the magnitude of final episodes of the long-running TV hits "M-A-S-H" and "Cheers."

Seinfeld told the Times he decided late Tuesday to wrap up production with a special show. Episodes produced during the next few months will be geared toward that end.

Even as some critics decided the series already had begun to fade in its latest season,

The show won 10 Emmys as it shed a humorous light on the goings-on of four self-absorbed New Yorkers.

Its ensemble cast features Jerry, who plays himself as a stand-up comedian; his former girlfriend Elaine Benes; his high-school pal George Costanza; and his eccentric neighbor Kramer.

They stumble through life meeting such characters as the Soup Nazi, the bubble boy and a hateful mailman named Newman. Kramer never just walks through Jerry's doorway — he bursts into a skid that stops just short of the furniture. George is romantically challenged — the whole gang is, for that matter.

The showcase for the dysfunctional friends became a major profit-maker for the network and evolved into a signpost for the 1990s just as surely as "The Cosby Show" marked the 1980s and "All in the Family" the tumultuous '70s.

The "Seinfeld" finale next spring promises to be a television event along the magnitude of final episodes of the long-running TV hits "M-A-S-H" and "Cheers."

Seinfeld told the Times he decided late Tuesday to wrap up production with a special show. Episodes produced during the next few months will be geared toward that end.

Even as some critics decided the series already had begun to fade in its latest season,

"Seinfeld" was still taking creative chances. It recently told a story backward, from the last scene to the opener, helped along by repetitive phrases that eventually made sense.

With fans, the show's popularity hasn't faded. It is the No. 2-ranked show on the air, just behind the NBC drama "ER."

NBC didn't appear ready to ask Seinfeld to change his mind.

"To keep a show of this caliber at its peak is a great undertaking, and we respect Jerry's decision that at the end of this season, it's time to move on," NBC said in a statement.

The network, which also faces a difficult negotiation to keep "ER," almost lost "Seinfeld" after last season.

Seinfeld's supporting cast, Julia Louis-Dreyfus, Jason Alexander and Michael Richards, demanded a lucrative contract and a deal wasn't struck until the eve of NBC's announcement of a fall season. Seinfeld reportedly earns $1 million per episode and his three co-stars $600,000.

In recent months, Seinfeld reiterated that a decision on the show's fate was coming. The comedian relied on his timing.

"We've all seen a million athletes where you say, 'I wish they didn't do those last two years,'" Seinfeld told the Times. "For me, this is all about timing. My life is all about timing. As a comedian, my sense of timing is everything."

Vigil remembers JonBenet Ramsey

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — About 30 people held candles and sang a Christmas carol during a brief vigil in memory of JonBenet Ramsey.

"I know a lot of people in Boulder care," organizer Patricia Walsh told the group gathered Thursday night on snow-covered Pearl Street Mall. "They care about what's happening to our children. They care about what's happening to anybody."

The body of the 6-year-old beauty pageant winner was found in her family's Boulder home a year ago today. She had been beaten and strangled. The slaying remains unsolved, though authorities say her parents — who deny any involvement — are a focus of the investigation.

At JonBenet's grave in suburban Atlanta, a pair of cloth angels, arrangements of yellow, fuchsia and red carnations and scattered stuffed animals adorned the gravesite.

A heart-shaped photo of a preening JonBenet sat on one corner of the tombstone at St. James Episcopal Church Cemetery in Marietta.

Amid the flowers stood a framed poem titled "To the little angel JonBenet," but some of the words had been washed away by rain.

In Boulder, Krystal Spurr, 14, wept during the half-hour vigil.

"Whoever did this, you will be caught. You will be put to justice," she said.

Another vigil for JonBenet was scheduled for tonight outside the Ramseys' former home. The family has moved to Atlanta.

Volunteers reach out at Christmas

By RACHEL POLLACK
Corpus Christi Caller-Times

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas — A Christmas visit to an elderly person isn't just a nice thing to do; it might also save a life.

Rosemary Patterson remembers hearing about one visit that changed the lives of a depressed older couple.

"Last year, a caseworker was working with a couple in poor health," said Ms. Patterson, who works for the Texas Department of Human Services in Austin. "She told me they were contemplating suicide. They felt no one cared. They were very isolated."

Then, through an Austin program called Adopt a Community Care Client, the couple received a visitor on Christmas Day, Ms. Patterson said.

"Someone adopted that couple, took them food and talked to them. They decided somebody did care and decided not to commit suicide. The caseworker said, 'I never could have guessed it.'"

Reaching out to the elderly during the holidays can be crucial, said Dr. Cecil Childers, an adult and geriatric psychiatrist.

"Suicide rates go up nationally," he said. "It's a pretty rough time." The holidays are typically a time of reminiscing, which can cause depression for elderly patients who have lost family or are alone, Childers said. The presence of an acquaintance, or even a stranger, can help dilute the emotional intensity of the holidays.

Frank Villarreal, 70, is one of those who reaches out to those in nursing homes year-round — that's because he knows firsthand what it is like to be lonely and depressed in a nursing home. Villarreal, who could opt to spend Christmas with family, will spend his holiday visiting nursing homes and playing conjunto music with a group of fellow retirees, he said.

Villarreal spent three months at Alameda Oaks Nursing Center while recovering from a leg amputation a year after his wife's 1991 death.

"I lost my leg on the 2nd or 3rd of June. She died on the 7th," he said. "I felt like somebody took a line and split me down the middle."

At the nursing home, Villarreal suffered from a deep depression.

One day, an activities director brought a guitar to his room, and Villarreal, always a music lover and once a guitar player, was entranced. One of his daughters, visiting from Houston, bought him a guitar.

"In the nursing home, I picked it up and started playing," he said. "I started going room to room talking to people, and then I got on this mail run. They started calling me the mailman." Villarreal's volunteering was a turning point in his life.

"I didn't know what I was going to be able to do with one leg, if I'd be able to work, or drive again. I thought 'What's going to be out there for me?'"

Villarreal returned to his home and discovered that despite his disability he was both able to drive and live on his own, but he kept coming back to share his time and his warmth with Alameda Oaks residents. In 1995, he was selected Life Care Centers of America Central Division Volunteer of the Year.

Living on his own in his small house, and receiving home care, Villarreal could easily have become homebound. Toes were recently removed on his intact leg due to bad circulation, and Villarreal is not able to drive. But his fellow musicians drive him to and from performances.

Rachel Jimenez, a nursing assistant, comes daily to change Villarreal's bandages.

Villarreal does not grimace as she cuts through the gauze or applies ointment. He lifts himself carefully from bed to wheelchair and moves his wheelchair around his modest home, which contains only the barest essentials — including a small radio.

"I go to sleep with music and wake up with music," he said.

Rather than retreating due to illness, Villarreal continues to play with the group Gema.

Ms. Jimenez calls Villarreal "one of our favorite patients. He and his friends that play music in nursing homes just seem to cheer everyone up."

While nursing homes buzz with activity during the month of December, many patients are alone on Christmas Day, and visitors drop off sharply in January.

As many as 40 percent of patients at Alameda Oaks Nursing Center may be without family on Christmas Day, said activities director Sue Hoefling. Some are completely alone, and others, because families may have to travel long distances to see them, may only see relatives before or after the holidays.

"When most people come here, they have visitors in the first three to six months, but then it becomes more and more difficult for people to come," Ms. Hoefling said. "They get involved in their own lives. Sometimes they don't come because their own health starts to fail, or because it becomes too personal. They feel like that could be them but for the grace of God."

Frances Parker, an Alameda Oaks Nursing Center resident, is one of those patients whose family does not live in Corpus Christi, and is unlikely to see relatives on Christmas Day.

Ms. Parker, 86, leans forward in her wheelchair and strokes the arm of a visitor, her voice cheerful as she talks about her life.

"I've outlived 11 people in my family, my parents, my adopted parents, the family I married into and my son," she said. "But I've had a wonderful life."

Her eyes are sky blue, the pupils long slits that do not admit light. Ms. Parker cannot see.

"The tragedy of my eyes is that I could have an eye transplant, but someone would have to die." And Ms. Parker knows her age, 86, makes a transplant unlikely.

She loves talking about her memories, such as working in Lichtenstein's lingerie department store.

"Morris Jr. (Lichtenstein) said if I'd just get the facts down he'd publish a book with my stories," she said.

She thinks of the boy she fell in love with at 16, whose mother didn't think Parker was good enough for her son. She talks lovingly of a couple who visits her regularly on weekends.

Ms. Parker has "never met a stranger," Hoefling said. Her exuberance and warmth draw in even the standoffish.

When she talks of Christmas, Ms. Parker is hopeful. She remembers a Christmas when her daughter-in-law flew down to Corpus Christi and Ms. Parker returned to Missouri City to be with her family for the holiday.

"But I could see light then," she said. "I don't know whether I'll be alone on Christmas."

Kenaf — cousin of cotton and okra — may become new cash crop

HOUSTON (AP) — At a factory on the east side of Houston, a processing plant is up and running, part of an attempt to turn a cousin of cotton and okra into a cash crop.

Using equipment that borrows heavily from cotton gins, the Petroexx company is turning the weed-like stalks of kenaf into an absorbent used for soaking up oil spills and an additive to mix with the mud used in drilling oil and gas wells.

Only 25 pounds of the company's Kenaf 2000 brand absorbent will soak up a 42-gallon barrel of crude oil, it says, compared with 67 pounds of peat or 665 pounds of clay-based absorbent.

Target markets, in addition to offshore cleanup, are wellheads, compressor stations and refineries.

It's a typical chicken and egg situation: local farmers growing the crop need factories such as this — there are only three others in the United States — to justify planting kenaf.

But the processing companies need large plantings to assure a supply of raw materials.

The mud additive has been used in the United States and exported to Canada, Venezuela, Italy and Egypt, said Clifford Johnson, the company's vice president and chief financial officer.

It forms a seal in the bore hole to prevent seepage of drilling fluid, which must be kept circulating while the bit is turning.

The plant is designed to handle 40 tons per day, but isn't to that point yet, plant manager Richard Hensley said. The operation isn't yet profitable, but is close and should reach that goal next year, Johnson told the Houston Chronicle.

Now it is getting its kenaf raw material in 450-pound rectangular bales from International Paper, which is growing kenaf on 1,500 acres of an old farmstead in Arkansas, near Texarkana.

As of November, Petroexx was one of four active fiber separation plants in the United States, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which has promoted kenaf.

The USDA says three more are planned for 1998, and a 200-ton-per-day, $130 million newsprint mill is in the final stages of planning somewhere in the South.

290) Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the book of Zechariah, Chap. 24 and 11. In's Chap. 12 consolidated.

ZECHARIAH A YOUNG PROPHET
THE POLITICALLY-MINDED PRINCES OF JUDAH, ON SEEING PROPHETS, FROM THE HILLS, SPEAK OUT, IN THE STREETS OF JERUSALEM, AGAINST WORSHIPPING IDOLS, WASTE NO TIME IN HURRYING TO THE KING....

NOT TO MENTION THE LOSS OF THOUSANDS OF SHEKELS, WHICH WE OBTAIN BY THE SALE OF INCENSE FOR THE PEOPLE TO BURN AT THE TEMPLE, IN BAA'S HONOR!
...NOW, THE PRINCES CONFIDE WITH JOASH ABOUT ZECHARIAH...
MY COUSIN HAS ALREADY SPOKE TO ME - BUT I HAVE TOLD HIM WHY WE GET UP IDOLS IN THE TEMPLE!
BUT I FEAR HE WILL NOT STOP IN THIS THING!

YES! ZECHARIAH HIRED PROPHETS FROM THE HILLS TO COME INTO THE CITY AND PROPHECY AGAINST THEE!
HE INTENDS TO TURN THE PEOPLE AGAINST WORSHIPPING THE IDOLS OF OUR NEIGHBORS - AND IF THIS HAPPENS, WE WILL HAVE NO FRIENDS AND ALLIES IN TIME OF WAR!
HOW DARE HE DO SUCH A THING AGAINST HIS KING?! FOR THIS TREASON, HE MUST SURELY DIE!

THE PRINCES LEAVE THE KING IMMEDIATELY! THEY HAVE OBTAINED EXACTLY WHAT THEY CAME FOR - NO NEED TO TALKY, FOR WHO KNOWS, THE KING COULD CHANGE HIS MIND!
AT THIS SAME TIME, ZECHARIAH, IN DEEP MEDITATION, FEELS THE SPIRIT OF THE LORD UPON HIM - NOW, HE KNOWS WHAT HE MUST DO!

Congregation rebuilds after arson

ENID, Okla. (AP) — Some 18 months after their church was destroyed by arson, members of the First Missionary Baptist Church worshipped in a new sanctuary just before Christmas.

"This is the house of the Lord that the Lord has built," said the Rev. Alfred Baldwin Jr., head pastor. "We couldn't have done this by ourselves. The Lord has blessed us with this new home."

The June 1996 fire was originally linked to several black church burnings in the South but later was blamed on a man judged mentally unable to face the charges.

The church was rebuilt with donations of more than $400,000 and $300,000 in insurance money.

"This is not a new church," said Deacon Gaylord Willis. "This is a new house of worship. We're the church. We were not touched by that fire."

Former church treasurer sentenced

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — The former treasurer of a Roman Catholic church has been sentenced to up to 10 years in prison and 1,000 hours of community service after admitting that he stole more than $300,000 in parish securities.

The federal indictment said David L. Miller, 50, made an unauthorized sale of $189,000 in parish securities on the New York Stock Exchange, then spent $152,577 on his home a few days later.

Miller, a former treasurer of St. Joseph's Cathedral in Wheeling, pleaded guilty in Ohio County Circuit Court to two counts of forgery and 23 counts of uttering, which is the act of passing a forged check.

Church steeples harbor cell phone antennas

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Cellular telephone companies are tapping into financial needs of churches, schools and towns in establishing higher ground for cell phone antennas.

At Our Lady of Consolation Roman Catholic Church in Pawtucket, AT&T Wireless Services, for example, pays the church for placing a 9-foot antenna on a bell tower that overlooks the city.

"Now we can spend our money on our ministry," the Rev. Normand Courtemanche told The Providence Journal-Bulletin. He would not say how much the parish is paid but said the monthly fee covers maintenance of the church building.

As new companies enter the market and technology requires more antennas, the structures are going up atop steeples, water towers, smoke stacks, school roofs and municipal radio towers.

Pastor arrested for trespassing on church

SILER CITY, N.C. (AP) — The former pastor of a Siler City church has been arrested for trespassing on church property.

The Rev. Mazie Ferguson, 53, was arrested during services at First Baptist Church. Ferguson, of Greensboro, was charged with second-degree trespassing for violating a preliminary injunction against entering church grounds.

Ferguson was senior pastor of the church until October, when the congregation narrowly voted to dismiss her. Detractors said her leadership style was dictatorial. Supporters said she was fighting a church leadership loathe to relinquish its power.

Ferguson became senior pastor in February 1996 when there were only eight female senior pastors among the 1,700 predominantly black churches in the General Baptist Convention of North Carolina.

After her dismissal, church locks were changed, and trustees obtained the preliminary injunction barring her from the church.

Gay, lesbian clergy challenging policies on homosexuality

By MARTHA IRVINE
Associated Press Writer

Leaders in many faiths are struggling with this question: What does it mean to be gay or lesbian and a person of faith?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — He hardly looks the part of a renegade, this clean-cut pastor who hums to himself as he walks through the sanctuary of his tiny church with his black lab Murphy trotting at his side.

But there is something about the Rev. Jeff Johnson that many church leaders would rather you didn't know — something that led them to reject Johnson and the 55 members at San Francisco's First United Lutheran Church.

Johnson is openly gay. He also refuses to take a vow of celibacy. And that is unacceptable in the eyes of the leaders of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America — and the majority of faiths in this country and many others.

"As far as they're concerned, I no longer exist," says Johnson, one of a growing number of pastors who are challenging their churches' stances on homosexuality.

Minister's musings...

As the hustle and bustle of the Christmas preparations come to an end there is time to sit and reflect upon what did all this mean. The world seems to stop for a moment in this time of Christmas to reflect and maybe to listen to the faint echoes of some far of sound which seems to be familiar and yet seems new at the same time. This sound is the echoes of the definitive Word of salvation spoken by God in the Christmas event. In that far off time and place there was a moment in human history when God spoke a word of hope to a broken world and the Word resounds through the centuries and echoes in the ears of faith.

That Word was made flesh and dwelt among us as Jesus Christ. This Word of God's love was made flesh so that humanity might once again be given the opportunity to understand their relationship to their God and each other. What was heard was hope and what was enfleshed was a new beginning. What we hear enfleshed in our day and time comes from people who can hear this faint echo of God's Word in the midst of a noisy existence that surrounds us. The noise we hear around us does not overpower the Word but those who choose to direct their attention to the noise find themselves lost and confused.

We as humans enflesh what we hear. From the time that we are infants the world speaks to us and we take what we hear and make it tangible in our own flesh. A child that hears words of love and kindness will make those words flesh in their everyday living. A person who hears words of discouragement, shame, hate, or ridicule will make those words flesh as well. We are formed by what we hear and that becomes evident when we see how our society lives out its values. These values are often far from Christian and eventually deafen the Christian message to those who have not heard anything other than the word of the world. The world cannot hear the Word because maybe it has forgotten how to listen. Men and women throughout the centuries have listened to the Word and echo it in the way they live. The Word to God too can be enfleshed if we listen to it. Christians carry the title of their Savior and thus are charged with the responsibility to enflesh what the master speaks. We are sent into the world of noise to call attention to an event that occurred in the silence to the night two thousand years ago. The silence was broken when the Word of God was spoken in a resounding yes to the people who waited in hope for the Messiah to come. That Word continues to resound in us and our world. It is curious that even though the world is filled with its own noise there continue to be moments in time when the world does listen to the Word spoken by God. In preparations for Christmas, even though there is much noise to the whole event, the world becomes conscious of something that sounds and feels familiar. The World periodically listens to those that are hurting and those who are lonely. The world can hear the "cry of the poor" and in some way reaches out to them. People are mindful of the hungry and the homeless and for a brief moment reach out to brothers and sisters in a gesture of love and concern. Where did we learn this? Why does this become important to us?

Rev. John Valdez
St. Vincent de Paul Church

Yes, the world may be noisy and often times self-centered, but it still can hear the echo of God's Word that moves us to enflesh the Gospel. As we look forward to a new year, perhaps we can be mindful of those men and women who enflesh what they hear all year long. God speaks to us and through us in a way that can still be heard. It is still a word of hope and promise that can be heard if we listen. Maybe what Christmas has taught us is that we can still hear and that God still speaks to a world that still longs to hear of hope and love. We can enflesh hope and love if we listen intently enough. No one will be able to hear unless someone speaks it with their life. No one will stop to listen unless we speak the Word we hear and become what we speak. Amen.

Sorrowful In-Laws Are Silent Victims Of Divorce

DEAR ABBY: I just hung up after calling our former son-in-law to wish him happiness and good luck on his wedding day tomorrow. Oh, how it hurts! We love him, and have loved him, since he came into our family almost 30 years ago. Our daughter has never wanted us to hate him. She doesn't. They had a friendly divorce (sometimes the hardest kind to understand), so we were not betraying her by calling him.

Abigail Van Buren
 SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

Abby, I just wanted to write to you to put in a good word for loving in-laws. I know that children are the victims of divorce, and that they must learn to accept the decisions of their parents. But on the other hand, we, as parents, must accept the decisions of our children, and silently mourn the loss of someone we love and years of family memories. We, too, are victims. Thank you for listening.

changed, and the wisdom to distinguish the one from the other.

DEAR ABBY: I give private music lessons in my home. Most of my students are children who come with their parents and other siblings. Increasingly, I am finding these people's manners to be appalling. The children are allowed to explore every part of my home while their parents sit and do nothing. I end up having to interrupt the lessons while I find "Junior," usually in some private part of my home. I've even had parents disappear into my kitchen, and I can hear them in my cupboards and refrigerator!

Even though I don't have the most expensive furniture, I do not want shoes on my couch or open drinks on my table. Not even my yard, flowers, wind chimes or bird-bath is safe from these invaders. Having a private lesson — music, art or whatever — should be considered a privilege and an honor. It is certainly preferable to a noisy music store or art studio. Maybe if a few people read this, they will wake up and realize that their actions do matter.

MUSIC TEACHER, WASHINGTON STATE

DEAR MUSIC TEACHER: When you are conducting lessons, your home is your office. It is up to you to set boundaries. The parts of your home you wish to keep private should be closed off. Post signs reminding visitors to refrain from touching, not entering, etc. Provide a seating area with reading material and/or toys for the siblings — and stick to your guns.

DEAR ABBY: One more gripe from a senior citizen. Mine concerns having a mammogram.

As I stand there with my bare breasts hanging down to my waist, my silver hair glistening in the bright light, the X-ray technician asks me, "Are you pregnant?"

D.M.K. IN LARGO, FLA.

DEAR D.M.K.: If you take into account the fact that a 64-year-old woman recently gave birth to a child through the miracle of hormone therapy and in vitro fertilization, I think that's not an unfair question.

Horoscope

Sunday, Dec. 28, 1997

In the year ahead, favorable conditions could be in store for you in two of the most important segments of your life. One deals with friendships, the other pertains to commercial interests.

times could be ahead for you where your social life is concerned. You could get involved with new friends and a fun group.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Doors are beginning to open for rewards that are rightfully yours. You may have been overlooked in the past, but you won't be ignored in this cycle.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Greater success in your endeavors is possible at this time, provided you add the new twist of knowledge you've acquired from recent experiences.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is a favorable period to develop channels for a second source of earnings. Small beginnings will have good potential for growth.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Alliances into which you enter today should work out well for all participants. It is important that everyone continues to maintain harmony of purpose.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The breaks that could give your career a boost might begin popping up as of today. Several opportunities may be liberated simultaneously.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be rather fortunate today with risks that have been calculated carefully. However, this is not a green light for impulsive gambles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Where endings and beginnings are concerned, this could be your lucky day. An old matter might be terminated successfully and replaced by something new.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is a good day to promote a new endeavor, provided you truly believe in what you have to offer. Success is indicated if these conditions are met.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Constructive financial trends are working in your favor now and you can reap returns from something old, as well as from something new.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Positive changes could strengthen your attitude at this time. You might head up a project in which you once were content to be numbered in the ranks.

Cincinnati Reds signed outfielder Melvin Nieves to a one-year contract. They named Wilma Mann director of scouting administration and Dr. Timothy Kremcheck medical director. They also renewed the contracts of Greg Lynn, trainer, and Mark Mann, assistant trainer.

The San Francisco Giants signed RHP Steve Reed to a one-year contract with a one-year option.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees must pay $4,431,180 or nearly 40 percent of the money in the first year of baseball's luxury tax, according to documents sent to teams Tuesday by the owners' Player Relations Committee.

Four others will have to pay the commissioner's office by Jan. 31: Baltimore ($4,030,228), Cleveland ($2,065,496), Atlanta ($1,299,957) and Florida ($139,607). The tax, the center of the fight between players and owners during collective bargaining, was designed to prevent high-revenue teams from even higher payroll escalation.

Texas freshman has shot to be one of Longhorns' best

By BILL NICHOLS
The Dallas Morning News

AUSTIN — University of Texas basketball fans should not be shocked that freshman Luke Axtell leads the team in three-point accuracy. He has been shooting from long distances since he was a kid.

The first time Axtell went deer hunting, he felled a doe from 70 yards. He became such an avid hunter that he would wake early to stalk squirrels before school.

Axtell uses eight guns for recreation, including his favorite, a .44-caliber Magnum. In basketball, the weapon that makes his day is a three-pointer from the top of the key.

And in both pursuits, he finds a certain symmetry.

"You've got to hit your mark," Axtell said.

Axtell's quick trigger quickly made its mark at UT. The 6-foot-9 guard from Austin Westlake, who debuted with talented freshmen Chris Mihm and Bernard Smith, shot his way into the starting lineup after the first game.

Axtell's combination of size, shooting touch and mobility presents a variety of problems for opposing defenses. He can shoot off the dribble, tussle under the basket or drive to rebound his own miss.

In just nine college games, Axtell is shooting 51 percent from the field (51 of 100) and 45.6 percent on three-pointers (26 of 57). He is the Longhorns' second-leading scorer, behind junior Kris Clack, with an average of 13.7 points.

"I don't know if there is a freshman in the country who is better than Axtell," Florida coach Billy Donovan said after Axtell scored 10 points in the Longhorns' 85-82 victory over the Gators on Dec. 9. "I find it tough to believe that there are 10 better players than him in the country. To me, he's a pro in time."

Axtell, the 7-0 Mihm and Smith helped make UT's recruiting class last season one of the nation's best. Although all are getting significant playing time, Axtell has made the biggest impact.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Syracuse and Michigan took different routes to the championship game of the Puerto Rico Holiday Classic.

No. 19 Syracuse had a tough test in the semifinals, edging No. 25 Texas Christian 82-78 behind Todd Burgan's 23 points.

Burgan scored 17 points in the final 13 minutes, including two free throws that gave Syracuse its first lead of the game at 69-67.

Burgan also finished with nine rebounds, four steals and four assists.

"Todd picked it up when we were looking for a prayer," Orangemen coach Jim Boeheim said. "He broke down their defense and took it on like a senior should."

Michigan coasted to a 93-49 victory over American University of Puerto Rico, which upset No. 12 Arkansas the previous day.

The Wolverines (9-3) will meet Syracuse (12-0) for the tournament title tonight. TCU (10-2) meets American-Puerto Rico (6-7) in the third-place game.

"I watched Michigan in their first two games here and I don't even want to go near them," Boeheim said. "They're looking like the team that beat No. 1 Duke, not like the team that lost to those other guys."

No. 19 Syracuse 82, No. 25 TCU 78

Syracuse trailed by nine points early in the second half before Burgan rallied the Orangemen.

Marius Janulis scored 18 points for Syracuse, while Ryan Blackwell had 16 points and 13 rebounds.

Lee Nailon led TCU with 28 points and 13 rebounds, and Malcolm Johnson scored 22 points for the Horned Frogs. Michigan 93, American-Puerto Rico 49

Maceo Baston, Jerod Ward and Louis Bullock scored 16 points apiece as Michigan routed American-Puerto Rico.

The Wolverines jumped to a 14-2 lead and were ahead 27-4 with 9:44 left in the first half.

American was coming off the huge upset over Arkansas, but the Pirates were defenseless against Michigan's inside power game. Orlando Santiago led American with 16 points.

Murray St. 94, No. 12 Arkansas 83

One day after its stunning loss to Division II American-Puerto Rico, Arkansas was beaten again.

DeTeri Mayes scored 42 points to lead the Racers (10-1) over the Razorbacks (8-2). Mayes made 13 of 18 shots, including 5-of-7 from 3-point range. He also sank 11 of 13 free throws and grabbed 10 rebounds.

Nick Davis led Arkansas with 28 points and 15 rebounds. Iowa St. 62, Saint Louis 57

Marcus Fizer scored 11 of his 17 points in the second half as Iowa State won the consolation bracket game.

Paul Shirley's three-point play with 39 seconds left clinched it for the Cyclones (6-5), who bounced back from a 39-point loss to TCU on Wednesday. Shirley finished with 15 points.

Saint Louis (8-3), which lost its third straight, got 16 points from Ryan Luechtefeld.

TCU linemen makes plays that get noticed at Blue-Gray

By EDDIE PELLIS
AP Sports Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — For linemen, all-star games are more about technique, assignments and effort than game-breaking plays.

But Texas Christian defensive end Chance McCarty got noticed for the big things at the Blue-Gray Classic. He had two sacks and a safety and constantly put pressure on the quarterback in the Gray's 31-24 victory Thursday.

"This pretty much tops everything I've ever accomplished," McCarty said. "When you're from a small school that went 1-10, people don't expect to see that much talent from you. I think I played pretty good. This is something I'll remember the rest of my life."

He's hoping NFL scouts will feel the same. About 50 of them were present for the Christmas Day all-star game.

Alabama players took a major role in the Gray's win. Running backs Dennis Riddle, Ed Scissum and Curtis Alexander all scored touchdowns to put a bittersweet end to a 4-7 season.

"This was our main goal all week," Riddle said. "It gave us a chance to show there was some talent on our team. And I personally wanted to show that the Dennis Riddle everyone knew is still there."

Riddle led the Gray in rushing with 66 yards, including an 18-yard touchdown late in the third quarter. Alexander had 11 yards rushing and a 46-yard touchdown catch, and Scissum ran for 18 yards and a 5-yard score.

"At this point, it's more of a pride thing," Scissum said. "Of course you'd rather go to a bowl game. But everyone has a down year. This was our reward for sticking with it."

Other top performances came from Stephen F. Austin receiver Mikhael Ricks, the Gray's most valuable player, and Texas quarterback James Brown.

Ricks finished with six receptions for 106 yards, including a diving 43-yard touchdown reception on Brown's desperation pass at the end of the first half.

It seemed a fitting highlight coming from a Division I-AA All-America who set the I-AA record with a 28.9-yard average per catch this season at the Texas school.

"When you come from I-AA, a lot of people don't think you can compete at this level," Ricks said. "But this was a big deal for me. It was an opportunity I wanted to take advantage of."

Brown completed eight of 13 passes for 150 yards and the two long touchdowns. It offered a nice close to a season in which Texas, like Alabama, wound up as one of the biggest disappointments in college football.

"I was just happy to get another chance," Brown said.

"When you're playing in an all-star game, all it means is your team didn't make a bowl. It doesn't make you any better or worse than anybody else."

McCarty proved that point frequently, sacking Blue quarterback Cory Sauter for a safety, forcing an intentional grounding penalty and providing a strong pass rush to set up a sack by Oklahoma's Martin Chase on a fourth-and-1 in the third quarter.

It was a dominating performance by the soft-spoken 6-foot-3, 250-pound senior, who made the All-Western Athletic Conference first team, but failed to gain much notice outside of Texas.

"Bragging and boasting isn't my style," McCarty said. "But deep down, believe me, I feel real good."

Navy's Chris McCoy was the star player for the Blue. A quarterback who shifted to tailback for this game, McCoy finished with 75 yards rushing on six carries, including a 40-yard gain in the second quarter.

"The guys have been really helpful with me, helping me learn how to be a running back," said McCoy, who broke 15 school records in his career at Navy. "I knew I had instinctive running ability, but they helped me with my steps and stuff."

Barry Sanders wins top offensive player honors

By BARRY WILNER
AP Football Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The best season for one of the greatest running backs in NFL history earned Barry Sanders The Associated Press Offensive Player of the Year award today.

Sanders rushed for 2,053 yards, second only to Eric Dickerson's 2,105 in 1984, and 11 touchdowns. He added 33 receptions for 305 yards and three scores as he led the Detroit Lions to an NFC wild-card playoff berth.

"I am just really lucky that I am the one carrying the ball," said Sanders, who also won the award in 1994, when he ran for 1,883 yards, his previous career high. "I also am so fortunate to stay healthy and do the things that I do. Timing, preparation and talent all has to come together to make this happen."

"But this was a team effort. That is reflected in the statistics. We all pull for each other and that shows every Sunday."

Sanders romped in balloting by a nationwide panel of 48 sports writers and broadcasters, getting 37 1/2 votes. Terrell Davis of Denver, who led the AFC in rushing with 1,750 yards and scored 15 TDs, was second with 7 1/2 and Green Bay quarterback Brett Favre, with three, came in third.

Davis was the 1996 winner and Favre won the year before.

After getting off to a miserable start, gaining just 53 yards in the first two weeks, Sanders took off. He gained at least 100 yards in every game after that, an NFL record. In the finale, which Detroit needed to win to make the playoffs, Sanders rushed for 184 yards and the winning touchdown against the Jets.

As always, Sanders placed the focus on his teammates.

"This offensive line has so much character. They wanted this so bad," he said of joining Dickerson and O.J. Simpson as 2,000-yard runners. "You could see it not only on the field, but also in the preparation every week. We started out a little slow. We stuck with it and stayed after it."

"Everyone is so unselfish that they give it up for the team, and that is why I am here. Everyone had a hand in this."

Certainly, Sanders benefits from having such quality receivers as Herman Moore and Johnnie Morton on hand. But his offensive line has no stars — only center Kevin Glover made the Pro Bowl — and every defense concentrates on stopping Sanders first.

In 1997, once he got going, nobody could hold him down.

"I am just really lucky that I am the one carrying the ball"

Jazz down Rockets in NBA's closest rivalry

By GREG BEACHAM
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — It was another close game in one of the NBA's closest rivalries.

Utah's 107-103 victory over Houston on Thursday tied the all-time series between the teams at 71 victories apiece.

"It seems like every time we play these guys, it comes down to the last shot," said Utah coach Jerry Sloan, who got his 500th win with the Jazz. "These teams have a lot in common."

John Stockton led Utah with a season-high 24 points, including six in the final 1:48. Jeff Hornacek hit all four of his 3-point attempts and finished with 20 points and nine assists for the Jazz, who won a six-game series against the Rockets in last year's Western Conference finals.

"It was a heck of a game," Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "Just a quality basketball game."

Kevin Willis led the Rockets with 25 points, including 5-of-6 shooting from the field in the fourth quarter. Mario Elie and Clyde Drexler added 15 points apiece for Houston, but Charles Barkley was held to 11 points on 3-of-10 shooting.

"It's a great rivalry," said Karl Malone, who had 20 points and 10 rebounds, but failed to lead

Utah in scoring for just the second time this year. "We respect each other, and we play hard against each other."

One of the key plays was a block by Utah's Greg Ostertag with 2:29 left.

With Houston trailing by three points, 6-foot-1 Brent Price appeared to be racing toward a breakaway layup that would have brought Utah within one. But Ostertag, a 7-2 center, chased down Price and blocked his shot from behind.

Malone, who has been critical of Ostertag's work ethic, wrapped his teammate in a bear hug after Stockton hit a layup on the other end and Houston took a timeout.

"That was a great block," Utah's Bryon Russell said. "(Ostertag) hustled down the court, and that started something right there. I think that was the key, the turning point."

Utah won its eighth straight home game, while Houston dropped its fourth straight on the road and third in a row overall.

Willis' tip-in cut Utah's lead to 105-103 with 10 seconds left, but Russell was fouled with eight seconds remaining and made both free throws to seal the win.

"I knew those were big shots, and I want the guys to be comfortable with me taking them," said Russell, who has struggled this season.

No. 21 Washington 51, No. 25 Michigan St. 23

By GORDON SAKAMOTO
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — No. 25 Michigan State got the message in a big way at the Aloha Bowl. The Washington Huskies deserve a much better ranking than 21st.

With the Huskies at their healthiest since the start of fall practice, they easily dismantled the Spartans 51-23 on Christmas Day.

Rashaan Shehee, who missed the last three regular-season games with a sprained knee, rushed 29 times for a bowl-record 193 yards, and the defense returned a pair of interceptions for touchdowns. What was expected to be a close contest — Washington was favored by five points — became a rout.

Tony Parrish picked off Todd Schultz's pass and returned it 56 yards for a TD, and Lester Towns grabbed another errant pass by Schultz and went 66 yards for another score.

Brock Huard, bothered by injuries during the season, also sparkled, completing 18 of 30 passes for 179 yards and two TDs by Fred Coleman.

And for good measure, the Huskies turned to trickery for their seventh touchdown. From a punt formation on fourth-and-11, upback Mike Reed took the snap and raced 64 yards into the end zone.

Michigan State coach Nick Saban was the first to admit Washington's dominance.

"We play against some great backs in the Big Ten, but not with quite the athletic ability and speed of Shehee," Saban said.

Shehee scored two touchdowns, including a 33-yard run on his second carry of the game. His 193 yards broke the Aloha Bowl record of 179 by Michigan State's Blake Ezor in 1989.

But Shehee preferred to pass around the kudos.

"The offensive line takes care of me," one of the game's MVPs. "We were playing hard. We were having fun. That's how you win games."

"We knew coming in, playing a Big Ten team, the emphasis would be up front," Huard said. "We came out and established right away that the offensive and defensive lines would be ours."

Michigan State got its points on TD passes of 12 and 28 yards from Schultz to Gary Scott, a 43-yard field goal by Paul Edinger and a 21-yard hookup between Bill Burke and Lavelle Richardson with two seconds left in the game.

Stubblefield wins top defensive player award

By DENNIS GEORGATOS
AP Sports Writer

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Dana Stubblefield's season went from a humble start to a special finish.

The San Francisco 49ers defensive tackle stormed back from an early-season demotion to become a dynamic force on the league's top-ranked defense. His rugged play in the middle marked him as a staunch run defender, a top pass rusher and earned him The Associated Press Defensive Player of the Year award, which was released Thursday.

"It's a tremendous honor," said Stubblefield, a unanimous choice for the AP All-Pro team, announced earlier this week.

"I think it's a reward for all the hard work that I've put in. This is just something telling me that for you to spend the offseason putting in the effort to have a season like you did this year, this is what it's going to take. You've set the standard for what you have to do."

After managing just one sack and 39 tackles in 1996, Stubblefield was unstoppable this season. He had 15 sacks — second in the NFL to John Randle of Minnesota — and he anchored a defensive line that was among the league's toughest to run against.

The turnaround was so dramatic it even took the 49ers by surprise. After the team signed pass-rush specialist Kevin Greene prior to this season, the 49ers planned to take Stubblefield out on passing downs and replace him with Greene. But an injury to Greene in the season-opener and later to Bryant Young and Roy Barker, along with Stubblefield's exceptional play, quashed the plan before it really got started.

"I think it was kind of a slap in the face, saying, 'You're out of there. We're not going to chance it with you,'" Stubblefield said. "They tried it a little bit in the Tampa Bay game, but then Greene broke his toe and they had to keep me in there."

Bulls cool Heat, 90-80

By MIKE NADEL
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Miami has supplanted New York as the Chicago Bulls' main Eastern Conference rival.

The Heat haven't figured out how to beat the Bulls, either.

"By now, we should know what adjustments we should make to play against this team," Miami center Alonzo Mourning said, "but we haven't."

The Bulls improved to 38-8 against the Heat by winning 90-80 Thursday night, getting 24 points and 11 rebounds from Michael Jordan and solid performances from Toni Kukoc, Dennis Rodman and Scott Burrell.

"With the Knicks going through adjustments without (injured Patrick Ewing), this is certainly the team to be reckoned with in the East," Jordan said. "From an ego standpoint, they don't feel they can come in here and beat us and that's better for us."

Miami coach Pat Riley agreed that his team hasn't been mentally strong against the Bulls, who have won the last two NBA titles and five this decade. Chicago defeated the Heat in the 1997 conference finals and swept Miami out of the first round in '96.

"Until we can find a way to beat them ... they've got our number," he said. "It's 73-73 and we turn it over four of the next five times and take a couple of bad shots — and we're down nine. That's what it comes down to against this team all the time. At the end of the game, you've got to be mentally strong."

At crunch time, Jordan said, "our defensive intensity picks up. We hustle. We make all the big plays, get to the loose balls. We want it, especially when we know it's in our grasp."

"The mental toughness of this team is very high," he said. "Certainly, at that crucial time in a close game, it gives us an edge. They have to somehow overcome that negative thought process."

In the only other NBA game on Christmas Day, Utah beat Houston 107-103.

Chicago takes a six-game winning streak into Saturday's meeting with Atlanta. The Hawks have a one-game lead in the East.

The Bulls have turned their season around after an 8-7 start despite playing without All-Star Scottie Pippen, who is recovering from foot surgery and has said he never wants to play for Chicago again.

"Before the season, I said I wouldn't be surprised if Scottie didn't play the first 30 games and we were 15-15," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said. "And here we are after the 27th game and we're 18-9. I have to say that I'm pleased."

Tell Denver that home field is the key in the playoffs

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

Last year, the Denver Broncos cruised through the regular season, clinched home-field advantage with a month left, then finally got to play a meaningful game in the second round of the playoffs.

The opponent was Jacksonville, a second-year expansion team that made the playoffs only because one of the best kickers in NFL history, Morten Andersen, missed a 30-yard field goal attempt.

The Jaguars won 30-27.

This year, Denver struggled down the stretch and has to play in the wild-card game, again at home and again against Jacksonville.

Assume that the Broncos, who are 7 1/2-point favorites, won't take anything for granted this time.

"Personally, I felt like I was trying too hard," Denver linebacker Bill Romanowski says of last year's game. "Maybe we all were. If everyone just relaxes and takes care of their responsibilities and tries not to do too much, good things will happen. That's when we get hurt, when we try to do too much."

As they were last year, the Broncos were unbeaten at home. The Jaguars were 4-4 on the road.

But most important is the chestnut "forewarned is forearmed." The Broncos are forewarned. BRONCOS, 31-26

Detroit (plus 2 1/2) at Tampa Bay

These two split during the regular season.

But Tampa's win in Pontiac was the second game of the season, when Bobby Ross had yet to figure out how to use Barry Sanders. He ran 10 times for 20 yards in that game, then erupted for 215 in the Lions' 27-9 win at Tampa, including 80- and 82-yard touchdown runs.

Still, the key to this game may be Scott Mitchell, Detroit's hot-and-cold quarterback.

If he's on, there's more room for Sanders. If not, Sanders can get 115-120 yards but ... BUCS, 23-20

Minnesota (plus 4) at New York Giants

Dennis Green had taken teams to the playoffs five of his six seasons in Minnesota, but he's 0-4 in playoff games, including a 17-10 loss to the Giants after the 1993 season.

"Most of these players haven't been through that streak," Green says. "It's irrelevant to them."

What's relevant is that Randall Cunningham, who threw four TD passes in the win that broke a five-game Minnesota losing streak, also threw three interceptions in that game. That doesn't work well against a team that had 27 interceptions in the regular season.

What's also relevant is that dome teams rarely do well on the road in the playoffs. GIANTS, 17-10

Miami (plus 4 1/2) at New England

The Pats won both regular-season games, including Monday night's, which is why they're playing at Foxboro. Moreover, Curtis Martin, who missed the last three games with a shoulder injury, is expected to be back.

Could this be a trap?

Nine times in NFL history, team's have played back-to-back games: the final game of the regular season and the first game of the playoffs. The loser in the first game is 6-3 in the second.

Then there's Jimmy Johnson, 7-1 in postseason games.

But these aren't Jimmy's Cowboys. PATRIOTS, 16-13

PRICED RIGHT
Because any real estate broker's goal is to sell his or her client's home at a price which the seller can feel comfortable, no broker wants to run the risk of either over- or underpricing the home on the basis of less-than-solid information. To avoid either pricing mistake, brokers will take pains to shop the competition. This means learning about the asking and selling prices of similar homes (called comparables), and finding out how long each took to sell. Aside from locating comparables of similar age, style, size, condition, and location, brokers will want to learn all they can about the terms under which the homes were sold - before they draw any conclusions about asking price.

Hal West, left, branch manager of the Pampa Division of Control Equipment, and Richard Allred, executive vice president, discuss the new facility the company built in Pampa with the help of the PEDC.

PEDC grows Pampa business

By Jeff West
Staff Writer

How does the Pampa Economic Development Corporation affect business growth in Pampa? For Control Equipment the answer is simple.

"They influenced us to make a more permanent investment in Pampa," said Richard Allred, executive vice president of Control Equipment.

The company, whose head office is in Odessa, had its original Pampa home damaged by the tornado. They moved to a rented building on Alcock but hadn't decided on what to do on a permanent basis. The PEDC helped them get land on Price Road. The company built a new facility, with room to expand.

Control Equipment is involved in oil field sales of valve controls and automation equipment. The company has been in existence since 1950 and opened a branch in Pampa in 1977. Some of their customers have been with them since they came here. The local facility handles all of their business for the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandle. Besides the sales the company handles the installation and repair of the oilfield equipment. Currently, there are only three full time employees but branch manager Hal West noted that at times there have been seven full time and several part time employees. Allred looks for that kind of growth again.

"You see the facility we built here is fairly large for three people. We built it in anticipation of more business and more personnel," Allred said.
