DALLAS (AP) — The state's mental health agency is denying mentally ill patients potential "breakthrough" drugs, angering some members of the medical community.

Thousands of schizophrenics could benefit from these anti-psychotic drugs, but they can't get them because of budget problems, Dr. Steven Shon, medical director of the state department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, told The Dallas Morning News Thursday.

"We have perhaps the most important advances ... in the history of these devastating illnesses, and we have a rationing process," said Dr. Joel Feiner of Mental Health Connections, a program of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas and Dallas County MHMR.

"It's inconceivable. It's cruel." Joe Lovelace, president of the Texas Alliance for the Mentally Ill, said he's concerned patients who could survive in the community with the new medications will be forced into hospitalization.

State officials already have moved $7.9 million this fiscal year from other programs to pay for prescriptions for new patients, MHMR Commissioner Don Gilbert said. That's not enough to meet the need, but the agency can't move any more over without depleting services for the other 130,000 people it serves.

Election tomorrow for PEDC tax

M.K. Brown Auditorium
poll open 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

By JEFF WEST
Staff Writer

Eleven deals, businesses either moved to Pampa or encouraged to stay, 225 new jobs, more than 63 jobs retained. Almost half of those deals were in just the last six months.

Those are the numbers the Pampa Economic Development Corporation want you to know.

Loans and guarantees totaling $3,933,681 since 1992. Those figures are also from the PEDC but, according to some Letters to the Editor of "The Pampa News", that money may be the reason some do not support continuing the half-cent sales tax and thus the PEDC's mandate past the July, 2002 deadline.

But in reality for getting new businesses into Pampa the effective deadline is much sooner according to Lew Mollenkamp, director of the PEDC.

"We are finding it more and more difficult to put together a package of the kind of incentives we need to bring even a medium size company to town let alone a larger one. Because we are unable to make long term commitments that are required to make a deal like that," he said.

Voting Saturday will decide the eventual fate of the PEDC. There are over 300 communities in Texas with an economic development corporation. Pampa's is the only one that put a kill date on its EDC when it was created. Several other area towns now have an economic development corporation without a mandated time limit. The tax and the economic development corporations could be repealed with an election.

"With Dumas, Borger, McLean and Canadian having it we would not be able to compete with those communities, said Susan Triplehorn, the PEDC's project coordinator.

Even guarantees that don't require the PEDC to spend it's money will be affected.

"If we guarantee a loan, while we don't spend that money, we still have to allocate that and can't spend that until that commitment is done and that compa-

Lefors buys gas leak repair device

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY
Staff Writer

Lefors City Superintendent Bruce Withers was granted a request by the city council Monday night for the purchase of a fusion machine to use in gas line repairs.

"As much as we've progressed with the gas leaks, I'd like to think you would purchase something like this," Withers told council members.

The town has been plagued with gas leaks for at least the last year and according to Withers the leaks have gone down to 14 percent in gas loss, compared to previous gas losses that were as high as 63 percent.

He said the leaks were being improved, "slowly but surely ... it's not going to happen overnight."

Withers said he was comfortable with asking the city for a fusion machine to aid in the gas repairs because, "gas sales are up - revenue is up and we can afford this. And as far as dollars go, we're doing what we anticipated."

He reminded the council that "gas is your real revenue maker," and that a fusion machine would help him to continue to evaluate and repair the lines.

"And the sooner we get the gas taken care of, the sooner we can work on other things," Withers said.

The council granted his request and agreed to do a lease/purchase on a fusion machine in six-month payments for a total of $3,250.

Mayor wants to see plan, costs on park land offer

Robertson estate seeks to make donation

Before the city commission decides whether to accept the gift of land for a park, Pampa's mayor wants the group to see a rough plan of how the property will be used and what maintenance costs will be.

Mayor Bob Neslage asked Reed Kirkpatrick, parks superintendent, at this week's commission meeting to work up that information regarding the half block of land south of Hobart Baptist Church.

"We just have more park per capita than most people can dream of," Neslage said. "Granted, much of it is along the creek...but we need to see how much maintenance cost will be involved."

Recently, the family of the late Jack and Lois Robertson, offered to donate the land at 1104 S. Faulkner, to the city for use as a park. The family also is interested in helping to establish a trust fund in order to help financially with the park's development, Kirkpatrick said.

The Robertson's children are: Jacquelin Robertson Anno, Dr. Joan Robertson Cross, David Robertson and Tammy Robertson Shimon.

Judy Elliott, chairman of the city's Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, told commissioners the land offered is well suited for soccer and softball fields — something she says there is a shortage of.

In the past, Elliott said land offers to the park system have not been usable like this offer which is a large, flat parcel.

Kirkpatrick told commissioners he isn't looking at immediate development of the land if the city accepts the offer, but says the chance to get the land provides "a wonderful opportunity" for the city.

Frozen grass and temperatures well below freezing earlier this week didn't keep this family from enjoying a game of one-on-one field hockey. Dale Willingham acted as referee while Casey Willingham, 10, and his 9-year-old sister CayLee faced off.

Genealogy group plans to start here

Are you interested in learning more about genealogy? If so, here's your chance. An organizational meeting for a genealogical society here is set for 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 31 at the White Deer Land Museum.

Sylvia Murray, director of the LDS Family History Center in Amarillo, will be guest speaker. Members of the Borger and Canadian genealogical organizations will be present to assist.

Murray is a professional genealogist who has taught genealogy at Amarillo College for 17 years. She has done extensive field work in genealogy, writes a genealogy column and does lecture seminars in a four-state area. She has assisted with the annual Amarillo Genealogy Workshop the last 10 years.

The organizational meeting is being sponsored by the Gray County Historical Commission. For additional information, contact Darlene Birkes at 665-2913 or Willie Mae Mangold, 669-7259.

2nd woman gets death date

A second condemned Texas woman now has an execution date. Erica Sheppard, 24, on Thursday was set for lethal injection April 20 after she requested that all appeals on her behalf be dropped.

"I think she's going to do it," said James Keegan, one of two attorneys appointed to be available to Ms. Sheppard. "I can't predict the future, but she wants to do it."

State District Judge Lon Harper then scheduled her execution, allowing her to join convicted pickax killer Karla Faye Tucker as women with death dates. The two are among seven women in Texas who have been sentenced to death.

PEDC

that anyone who might worry about the PEDC because of stories they have heard need to be sure that actual facts are stated. He says some of the complaints he's heard involve hear-say and not the actual facts. As an example he mentions someone had written questioning the "million dollars" the PEDC loaned to the Coronado Inn. He points out it was $100,000 and the Inn has not missed a payment.

He also worries that some people think the advertising campaign was financed with PEDC money. He says all the advertising came from private donations.

Some people oppose the half-cent sales tax stating that the money might better serve taxpayers in their pocket to buy food and clothing. Mollenkamp wondered about that.

"If that family would rather have $20 in their pocket than a job or a store in town then, that's fine," he said. "You may have a job now but how sure are you that you won't need another one tomorrow?"

Early voting ended with 292 votes being cast, deputy voter registrar Elaine Cooper says that voting is not usually very heavy but noted that she has had a lot of people come in and inquire about this election.

Both Reeves and Mollenkamp say they'll be happy to answer telephone questions about the PEDC or the election. They also said that some members of the PEDC board of directors will be at the M.K. Brown Auditorium outside the 100-foot barrier to answer any questions Saturday during the election which runs from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m.

Mother suing son over lottery winnings

By DEEPTI HAJELA
 Associated Press Writer

UNION, N.J. (AP) - A woman is suing her son over a $2.15 million lottery jackpot, claiming they had been buying tickets together for years and he reneged on a promise to share any winnings.

Phyllis Klingebiel of Rahway sued her son, Michael, in December, seeking half the money.

At a news conference Thursday at the office of her attorney, Gary Blaustein, Mrs. Klingebiel's eyes filled with tears and she could barely get the words out as she spoke about the situation.

"I feel terrible," she said. "I hope it doesn't go to court. I hope it gets resolved."

Blaustein said his client had a loving and close relationship with her son and was dismayed when she heard the case being discussed on talk radio.

"Right now, she is extremely upset about the way her son is being portrayed in the media and perceived by the public," he said. "She wants all of you to know that as a mother she is hurting deeply for her son. This is not the way she wanted it to be."

The lawsuit claims Mrs. Klingebiel and her son had an oral agreement about lottery tickets. Each month for 10 years, they would each contribute $20 toward the purchase of 40 tickets.

On Oct. 3, around 12:30 a.m., Michael, who lives in Manville, called and excitedly told his mother that they had just won the jackpot, the suit says.

On Oct. 3, around 12:30 a.m., Michael, who lives in Manville, called and excitedly told his mother that they had just won the jackpot, the suit says.

Michael and Jillanne Klingebiel went to Trenton that day to claim the prize, taking home their first of 20 annual checks for $77,220, after taxes.

When asked about the winnings, Michael Klingebiel advised his father that the winning ticket was not one that he and his mother had purchased together and therefore they would not share the prize money, the complaint said.

Michael Klingebiel's attorney, Henry Rzemieniewski, would not comment.

As for Mrs. Klingebiel, she no longer buys tickets for the drawings.

"I really don't have any interest in the lottery anymore," she said.

Two killed when car broadsided by police car involved in chase

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A 77-year-old woman and her 54-year-old son were killed when a San Antonio police car hit their vehicle broadside while responding to a call concerning an armed man who had fled on foot.

Officer Jeffrey Bates, 33, was driving his patrol car with emergency lights flashing Thursday night when the car struck one driven by Larry Feigenbaum, police said.

The mother, Sarah Feigenbaum, died at the scene. Larry Feigenbaum died later at University Hospital.

Bates was in stable condition early today at the same hospital.

Police Sgt. Ernest Celaya said the woman and her son left a nearby restaurant a short time before the accident.

Officers said they had not determined how fast the officer was driving and were not sure he was using a siren at the time. The speed limit at the accident scene was 30 mph, Celaya said.

Jose Martinez, who said he witnessed the accident, said the patrol car was traveling at a high rate of speed.

Police said that before the accident, another officer made a traffic stop and found drugs in a vehicle. The man in the vehicle, who was believed to be armed with a handgun, fled from the area, Celaya said.

Two other men in the vehicle were arrested on drug charges, he said.

Police said they believe Bates was responding to a report that the man had been sighted two blocks from the accident scene.

A similar fatal accident involving a police vehicle in 1996 prompted Police Chief Al Philippus to tighten conditions under which officers drive at unrestricted speeds on emergency calls.

Bates was not involved in a pursuit at the time of the accident, Celaya said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Texas Editorials

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers: Fort Worth Star-Telegram on hopeful signs from Washington: In the wake of the 1996 elections, which saw President Clinton returned to the White House and Republican majorities returned to both chambers of Congress, there were two hopeful signs for the way that official Washington, D.C., departs itself.

One was the general feeling that after the cantankerous 1994-95 period, which finally saw the federal government partially closed when congressional leaders and the White House couldn't agree, voters wanted divided government as a check on either party but also wanted the parties to work together to accomplish things.

That feeling lasted long enough to get a balanced-budget deal — a deal that may have been superfluous, since the budget seems to be balancing itself amid a strong economy, a lack of inflation and the results of budget legislation passed in 1990 and 1993.

Second was an effort by a few members of Congress — especially Reps. Ray LaHood, R-Ill., and Tom Sawyer, D-Ohio — to spark a rebirth of civility among those elected to make the nation's laws. There was a March retreat at Hershey, Pa., intended to bring members (and their families) together to get acquainted. Many were new to Congress. More than in the past, they tended not to have even a nodding relationship with people across the aisle, much less the sort of friendly respect for one another that enabled past lawmakers to work together even when they disagreed. The idea was to fashion a more civil atmosphere in a body that sometimes seems to gnaw at its own flesh.

It didn't work. The atmosphere remains frigid and suspicion-filled.

Now Congress enters a new year, expressing a high degree of partisan animosity. It is often an ugly partisanship, one detrimental to the nation's serious business. It is as though the ethos of the street gang has been transported into the halls of Congress.

Some observers say this is because a new breed of lawmaker has come to Washington — in many cases coming from outside the tradition of political give-and-take, more ideologically bent, less willing to compromise. Many, indeed, got to Congress by attacking not only their opponents but Congress itself.

Others say that the lack of issues that grab the public and are easily understood plays a part. Now that the budget-balancing is pretty much done, what is on the table? Mostly politics, and groping for political advantage leads to uncivil behavior.

We would add a third reason: money.

Citizen-legislators who came to Washington to reform the system have often discovered what old-timers already knew: Being "in" makes it very easy to attract campaign contributions. And they have realized that staying "in" means power and committee assignments that attract even more contributions.

The competition for ever-greater amounts of money and the lure of re-election seduces members of Congress. When they spit at one another like angry cats, it's because a great deal of money is involved. That is another reason why real campaign finance reform is needed: Without it, there will be no other reforms, and Congress will continue to set a bad behavioral example.

The Dallas Morning News on new Mexican ambassador:

If Jeffrey Davidow is confirmed as the next U.S. ambassador to Mexico, he will encounter a nation still reeling from the pre-Christmas massacre of 45 Indian peasants in Chiapas. Because he is an experienced State Department hand who knows Latin America, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee should move quickly to approve Mr. Davidow's expected nomination, barring any negative revelations. Further delay would be foolish.

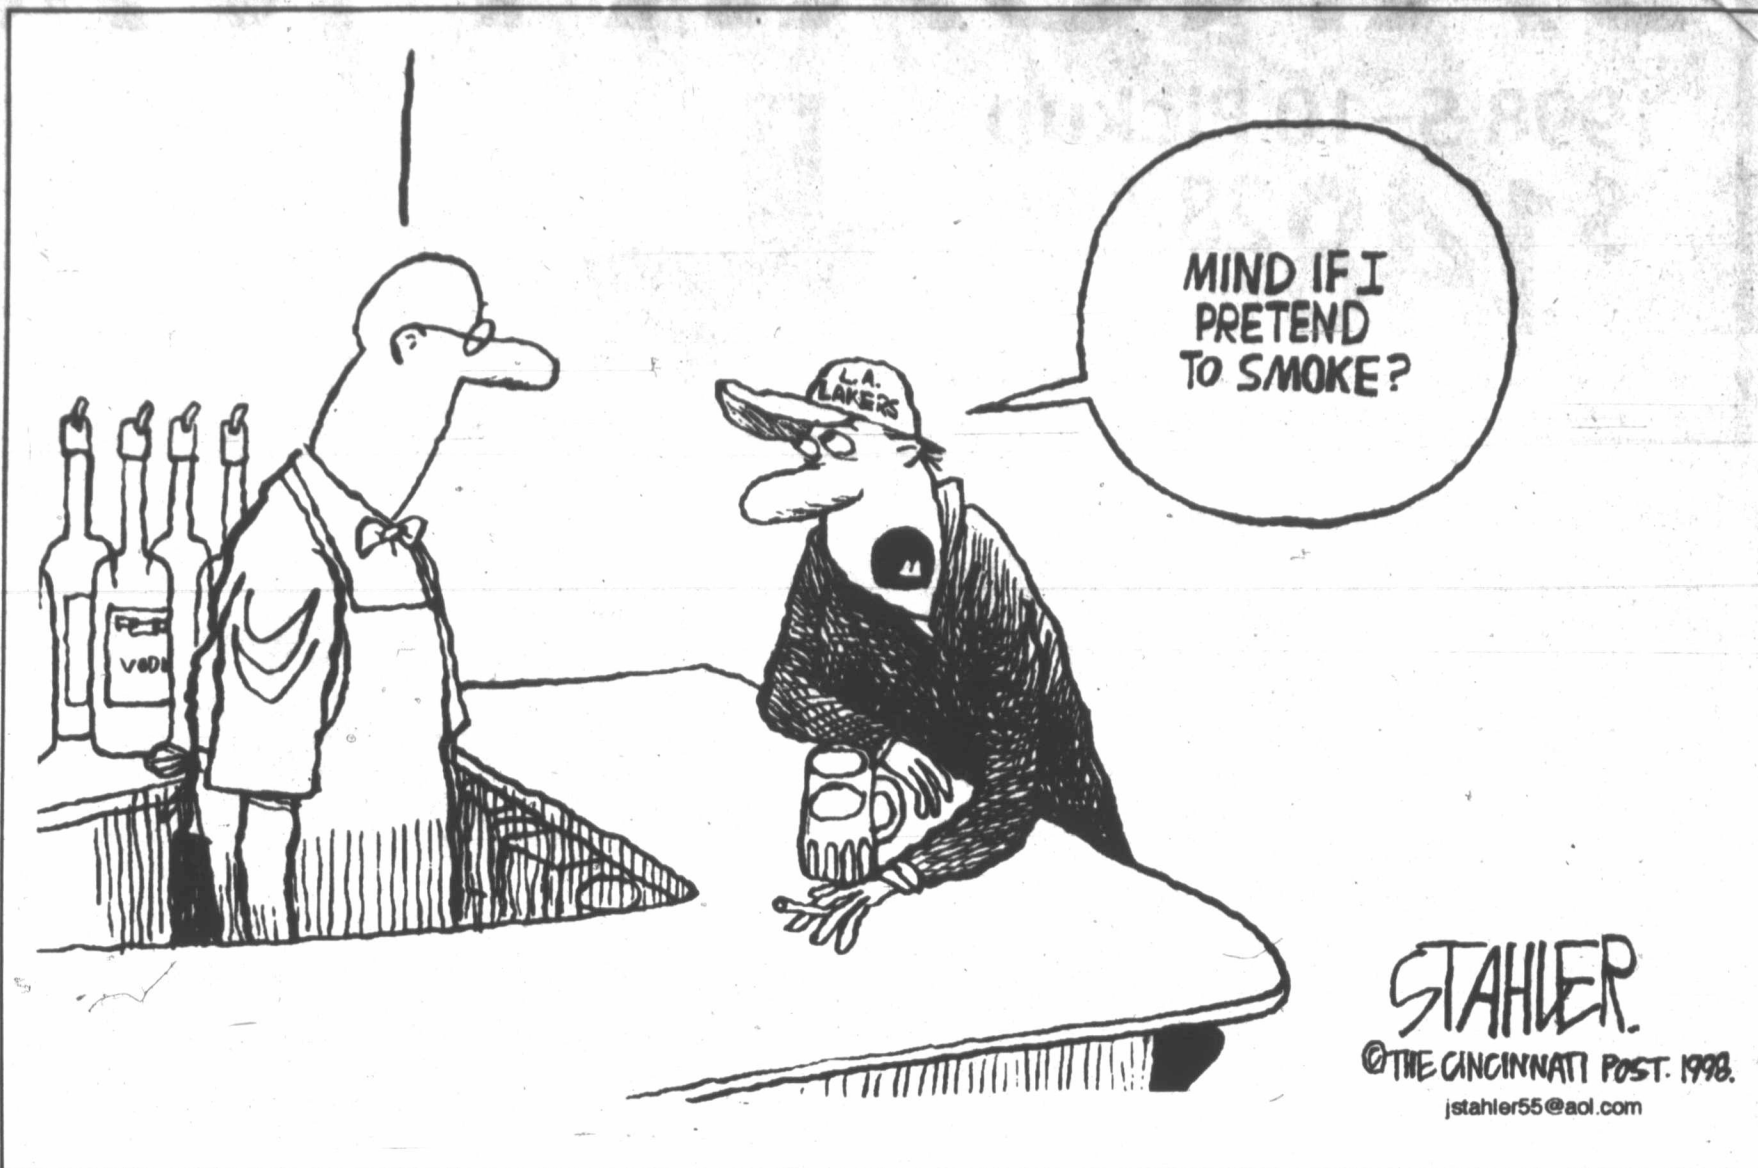

The new ambassador to Mexico will find that the killings in the village of Acteal have shaken that country to its core. Mexicans stand reminded that their social reality is profoundly mixed. Even as the ranks of the wealthy elite are expanding, and the fortunes of the middle class ebb and flow, Mexico remains home to many have-nots who are occasionally deprived not only of liberty and the pursuit of happiness, but life itself.

Fortunately, Mexican President Ernesto Zedillo acted decisively last week in dismissing Emilio Chuayffet, his hard-line interior minister. Though there has been no evidence that the Mexico City government played a direct role in the massacre, Mr. Chuayffet was expendable. He had come under intense criticism for taking a see-no-evil, hear-no-evil, speak-no-evil approach to the deadly impasse and for showing too little flexibility in other political situations.

Implicit in Mr. Zedillo's appointment of Francisco Labastida Ochoa to replace Mr. Chuayffet is the president's understanding that the federal government must do better in Chiapas. Mr. Labastida must better monitor the situation there, intervene to protect human life if necessary, and jump-start peace talks with the Zapatista rebels.

Mr. Zedillo's decision to switch Foreign Relations Secretary Jose Angel Gurria to head the Secretariat of Finance has received less attention. But Mr. Davidow should familiarize himself with some of Mr. Gurria's recent statements. After the Chiapas massacre, he angrily said that foreigners should not meddle in Mexico's internal affairs.

Given the history of U.S.-Mexico relations, that kind of sensitivity is understandable. The binational relationship is important, and the Mexican government deserves to be treated as a full partner in that relationship. Yet under no circumstances should U.S. representatives abroad stop articulating a basic principle of this country's worldview: Individual liberty and human rights go hand in glove with an open economy.

It's Salem all over again

On Jan. 1, California — America's bell-wether for social experiments became the first state in the union to ban smoking in bars. Together with earlier prohibitions against smoking in other public places, the new law makes it effectively impossible for the 25 percent of Californians who smoke to do so anywhere in the state save inside their own homes or in the great outdoors.

Ordinarily, California is a pretty laidback place. All sorts of behavior that might stir controversy elsewhere is genially allowed, or even welcomed, here. Last year the voters legalized the sale and possession of marijuana "for medicinal purposes" under a standard so broad that any pothead who can persuade a friend to recommend it to cure a headache can buy a joint and light up. And not long ago it took a last-ditch stand by the business interests of San Francisco to keep its board of supervisors from putting up signs at the entrances to the city welcoming gays and lesbians.

But on the subject of tobacco, Californians have hearts of stone. Just before Jan. 1, placards hailing the bar ban went up all over the place proclaiming grimly, "It's about health. It's about time."

The snowballing national hysteria over smoking has at last enabled me to understand what I had previously never been able to fathom: the psychopathology of the famous trials in colonial Salem, Mass., which resulted in 19 people (mostly women) being hanged as witches. The citizens of Salem knew that Satan was formidably powerful, and that individuals sometimes voluntarily threw in their lot with him. What could be more exciting than to identify these people? What could be more exhilarating than to extinguish them? Yet the high-minded rectitude of the whole effort was unassailable.

William Rusher

Rusher is a member of the Claremont Institute.

Similarly with the battle against smoking. It began as a quite reasonable warning to smokers that they were running a risk to their own health. But soon it escalated: Smokers were accused, on the thinnest of evidence, of killing nonsmokers through "passive smoking."

Cigarette manufacturers were demonized as murderers. The tobacco industry was forced to agree to pay more than $300 billion to state governments (and their lawyers) in return for exemption from individual liability lawsuits.

Small wonder that Britain's respected Economist magazine has begun to feel uneasy about this avalanche of high-minded hatred. In a long and thoughtful essay (by a nonsmoker) in its Dec. 20 issue, it warns that "the attack on tobacco has crossed the admittedly fuzzy line that distinguishes moral enthusiasm from illiberal vindictiveness, and at such a time good fun should yield to good thinking."

Patently the Economist reviews the arguments: the risk to the smoker (well-known, and a matter of choice, like drinking or motorcycling); to others, through "passive smoking" ("evidence of medical harm from the stray wisp of smoke in a workplace or restaurant remains vanishingly thin" — and easily solved by segregating the smokers); to society, which must pay for their medical care (but they actually save society money, by dying earlier); the addictiveness of nicotine (perhaps, but "There are today as many people who have quit smoking as there are people who smoke"); and finally, protection of the young (justifiable up to a point, but "since 1992 teenage smoking has risen in America even as the overall rate has fallen, a fact that anti-smoking hysteria may partly explain.")

Soberly the Economist concludes, "Because they are nursing their dudgeon and savoring their victories rather than thinking with care, antismokers believe themselves to be upholding liberal social principles when, in fact, they are traducing them."

But such thoughtful protests wouldn't have stopped the virtuous citizens of Salem from extirpating the evil right under their noses, and it won't stop the anti-smokers either. Doing good is just too much fun.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Jan. 16, the 16th day of 1998. There are 349 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On Jan. 16, 1920, Prohibition began as the 18th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution took effect. It was later repealed by the 21st Amendment.

On this date:

In 1547, Ivan the Terrible was crowned Czar of Russia.

In 1883, the U.S. Civil Service Commission was established.

In 1919, Nebraska, Wyoming and Missouri became the 36th, 37th and 38th states to ratify Prohibition, which went into effect a year later.

In 1944, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower took command of the Allied invasion force in London.

In 1964, the musical "Hello, Dolly!" starring Carol Channing, opened on Broadway, beginning a run of 2,844 performances.

In 1967, Alan S. Boyd was sworn in as the first secretary of transportation.

In 1978, NASA named 35 candidates to fly on the space shuttle, including Sally K. Ride, who became America's first woman in space, and Guion S. Bluford Jr., who became America's first black astronaut in space.

GOP divided over abortion

In mid-term reprise of a party-wracking dispute, Republicans are going at it again on abortion. This time it is purists against political pragmatists, over a punitive proposal to deny party campaign funds to GOP candidates who aren't committed to banning some late-term abortions.

The arena is the Republican National Committee, where a resolution to punish party nominees who won't make the commitment against the so-called partial-birth abortions is due for debate today, at least in committee, possibly by the full 165-member committee.

It probably will be rejected; the GOP chairman opposes it, despite his anti-abortion position. So do two leading House opponents of the abortion procedure at issue in the proposed ban, calling it a tactical error that would be counterproductive in their effort to get it banned by law.

Abortion has become a divisive fixture at Republican National Conventions, with a debate every fourth year on a platform declaration that the party favors a constitutional amendment to overturn the Supreme Court decision that legalized the procedure 25 years ago. The plank stands.

Tim Lambert, a Republican national committeeman from Lubbock, Texas, proposed the resolution to withhold campaign funds from candidates who aren't committed to the partial-birth abortion ban.

He's got backing on the Christian right. But party leaders are opposed, fearful of a no-win stance that could divide their support and perhaps widen the gender gap Democratic advantage of prior elections.

Rep. Henry Hyde, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and an advocate of the vetoed legislation to ban partial-birth abortion said that denying GOP funds "to candidates who don't agree with us would be a serious tactical error, and very unhelpful to our cause."

The latest election evidence came in Tuesday's special balloting for a California House seat, but it can be argued either way. Republican state Assemblyman Tom Bordonaro, who opposes abortion ran ahead of fellow Republican state Assemblyman Brooks Firestone, who supports abortion rights, but far behind Democrat Lois Capps, widow of the late Rep. Walter Capps, who also supports abortion rights. Bordonaro and Mrs. Capps will meet in a March 10 run-off.

The power of the issue, and of the outside advertising it draws, was a factor in New Jersey when Republican Gov. Christie Whitman barely won re-election last November.

The party help she got would have been denied by the disputed resolution.

She had vetoed a partial-birth abortion plan because it did not provide an exception for cases involving the health of the mother, and was overridden by the GOP-controlled state legislature after her re-election.

A federal judge put the ban on hold pending a trial later this year.

President Clinton has twice vetoed partial-birth abortion bans, saying he wouldn't sign one without exceptions for the life or health of the mother. His vetoes withstood Republican override attempts, but there will be more.

Hyde said that the denial of campaign funds would work against future attempts. He said refusing party support to candidates who need to be persuaded would "kill our chances of getting an override." He spoke for himself and Rep. Charles Canady of Florida, leading sponsor of the partial-birth abortion ban.

"In politics, you win by addition, and we need every Republican vote we can muster," Hyde wrote in a letter to the RNC chairman, Jim Nicholson. "If we lose our majority, it will be the death knell of pro-life legislation for as long as the Democrats are in power."

He said there ought to be another way to condemn partial-birth abortion without reading dissenters out of the party.

Nicholson, an abortion foe, quoted Ronald Reagan's reminder that people who are supporters 80 percent of the time are allies, not foes for their opposition on the other 20 percent.

It all reflects the classic split between the dominant, conservative wing of the party and the dwindled roster of moderates, whose organization is broadcasting TV ads against the resolution twice an hour in Palm Springs, Calif., near the Indian Wells site of the Republicans' winter meeting.

Whatever happens, the dispute stirs a troublesome topic at a time when Republicans want to add, not divide support.

"Trying to dictate to party officials is a very bad policy for any party," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. "And if people want to make policy, run for Congress. Don't run for national committee."

The Democrats are delighted to look on, sparing comment. "I think we will leave divisive political fights in the Republican Party to the Republicans to sort out," said White House Press Secretary Mike McCurry.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 17, a city election will be held to vote FOR the extension of the 1/2 cent sales tax to be used for promotion and development of new and expanded business enterprises in Pampa. This is the funding source for our Pampa Economic Development Corporation. It is urgent that this issue be passed at this time so the PEDC can continue to operate aggressively and competitively to bring jobs to Pampa in Accordance with its charter. Competitive incentives extending 5 to 10 years into the future are required to attract and retain companies, and with 353 other communities (in Texas alone) using tax supported economic development funds to attract new businesses, competition is real and tough. Pampa's future and a future for our children depends on a vote FOR Pampa in this election. To get out the vote and to help answer any questions that arise, Jack Reeve is working with a committee of about 100 people. If you have not already been contacted by the Vote FOR Pampa Committee and need some facts or information to urge others to vote, please contact Jack at 665-8338 or through the Chamber Office. Early voting started January 2 and continues through January 13. Please vote FOR Pampa January 17 and urge your family, your friends, business associates, church members and all others to do so likewise.

Minister's musings...

"The will of God will never lead you where the grace of God cannot keep you." — a truth proven by experience. But what is the will of God, the supreme rule of duty, for my life? Concerning the more personal details (where to go, what to say), I must strive to walk by faith and not by sight (something easier said than done.) However, the Bible speaks in I Thessalonians 4-3, "For this is the will of God, even your sanctification, that ye should abstain from fornication..." To be sanctified is to be holy, pure, consecrated, and this is commanded for all Christians throughout the Word of God.

It is our calling that we must answer. Verse seven continues, "For God hath not called us unto uncleanness, but unto holiness." To be sanctified involves more than a forgiveness of sins, it comes only after a commitment of entire consecration — a dying to selfish attitudes and ways. It places a great responsibility on a Christian life to know that "whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." I Corinthians 10-31.

Rev. Ron Noble
Pampa Chapel of the Apostolic Faith

Whether we work or play, whether we read our bible or go to church, those belonging to Christ must do all to bring glory to God instead of reproach. Many Christians are very 'spiritual' when it concerns 'religious' duties or days, but sometimes very secular or carnal in other areas of life. The Lord Jesus Christ calls us to be holy even as he is holy (I Peter 1:16) In all that we do, in every place we go, in all that we say. If we can't invite Christ to be part of every area of our life, that part ought to be omitted. Unfortunately, this write falls short all too often, nevertheless, I must endeavor to abstain (stay away from what-er would cause a blemish upon the cause of Christ) from fornication (spiritual as well as physical, adultery and idolatry with the world).

To be forgiven of past sins of course is essential, but is there no provision for victory over future temptations? Are we saved from sin just to have nothing to keep us free? Are we to be entangled again with the yoke of bondage? For be the Grace of God, through faith, we are saved, but we are kept also by the power of God from returning to that place from which we have been delivered. "What shall we say then: Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound. God forbid..." Romans 6:1,2.

Why is holiness so important? Holiness is not an option, but a requirement for a peculiar people; to gain admission into the Divine presence. Hebrews 12-14, "Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord."

Do you want to see Jesus Christ? Then look unto him with eyes of faith and live the life of holiness, and someday your faith will be turned into reality.

Kairos group visited inmates at Jordan Unit

By JERRY GUTHRIE
Jordan Unit reporter

Kairos volunteers graced the Rufe Jordan Unit for a three day weekend of teaching God's love.

Kairos, an interdenominational Christian ministry, started 23 years ago in Winter Park, Fla. The main objective of the non-profit ministry is to prepare inmates for a life in an ongoing Christian community.

To define the term "KAIROS" you must research two Greek words for time, but to know Kairos is to embrace Gods word and spread his love and joy.

John 13:34-35, says it best. "It's not the words but the action of loving your brother, and working towards the goal of acting in relation to God's will."

Kairos volunteers are all action. In preparation for this three day event over 71 men and women donated their time and love to the Jordan Unit's select group of 30 inmates.

Group Rector Jimmy Yowell explained that Kairos has given him the opportunity to sow seeds and be obedient to God. He emphasized, Kairos encourages inmates to join share prayer groups to establish a foundation for living. Assistant Rector Ronnie Dyson, spoke of the program and its similarities to the Walk To Emmaus. He added that he isn't involved to change inmates but to love them and to follow God's leadership.

Today, the Kairos program reaches into 30 Texas prisons. By the millennium these volunteers will be inside all 112 Texas facilities.

During interviews with two Kairos participants (inmates), three common questions were asked: Why did you sign up? What did you expect? What did you learn?

Inmate Richard Hancock said he signed up because "I had seen previous Kairos members shine and wanted what they had." He stressed that he was wanting to obtain spirituality and learn the basics of God's love. He said that, "No matter where you are, the Whit House or the Jordan Unit, that Jesus will be able to touch your heart." Inmate Hancock said that he was starting a prayer share group that very afternoon. He wanted to say that no matter how tough or hardheaded you are, to please give Kairos a chance. It will change your outlook on life and man.

Inmate Oran Ashinhurst, didn't sign up. His name was on the interview list and a friend insisted that he go through the motions. Today, Inmate Ashinhurst realizes that God wanted him to attend. His expectations were a mixed bag of feelings. He didn't realize the scope and magnitude of the program. He stated that before he became involved with Kairos, he was a Christian-being, and now he is Christian-doing. Inmate Ashinhurst's final statement was, "Words can't describe the Kairos experience. You must live it, walk it and be enveloped by God's love."

Jordan Unit Chaplain Schelwitz, spoke of the virtue of Kairos and of the change that it can make in the inmates. Kairos volunteers are needed and those interested in making Kairos part of their lives, please contact Chaplain Schelwitz, or your local church.

Wellington suffers rash of church fires

AMARILLO (AP) — The southeast Texas Panhandle town of Wellington has had three church-related fires since Christmas.

The latest gutted the First Christian Church, but Collingsworth County Sheriff Dale Tarver wouldn't say whether he believed it was linked to two earlier fires at the Church of Christ parsonage.

"All leads are being followed up," Tarver said.

State and federal investigators helped local deputies comb the rubble for clues, and authorities are meeting with community church leaders to discuss preventative measures in case the fires aren't coincidental.

"It's a real small congregation, but we've stuck together real well," said Fire Marshal Steve Hartman, a member of the church. "We'll be back."

Wellington, a town of 2,600, is 80 miles southeast of Amarillo.

Second Son Has Sights Set On Big Brother's Big Bedroom

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old boy with an older brother who attends an out-of-town college. Since he entered college over a year ago, I have tried to convince my parents to let me switch bedrooms with him. Except for summer vacations, my brother rarely comes home, so his huge room is vacant most of the year. Although I am able to make use of his room in his absence, it is not truly mine, and I think it's unfair that I have been relegated to the smaller bedroom.

 SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

My parents don't want my brother to feel dispossessed. They want him to know that he is always welcome here and that his things will be exactly the way he left them. I don't want him to feel dispossessed either, but couldn't he feel just as welcome in a smaller bedroom?

Abby, why does the younger brother always get the shaft? Please help me.

FRUSTRATED IN NEW YORK

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Ask your brother how he feels about his bedroom. Now that he is a college man and has been away from home for a year, he will probably agree to trade his large bedroom for your smaller one. If you can persuade him to tell your parents that he would be comfortable in your bedroom, you'll have it made.

DEAR ABBY: Before we were married, my husband, "Tony," had card parties for his buddies every Tuesday night. The parties lasted until at least midnight, but it didn't matter then because I could go home and get my sleep.

Now that we are newlyweds, this presents a problem for me. I start work early every morning (his hours are later) and I'm exhausted for the remainder of the week.

I've spoken to Tony about this and he's promised to end these parties earlier, but it never seems to happen. I've suggested rotating the parties to the other players' homes, which he did a few times. But now, because we've argued about it so often, he stubbornly refuses to do that. He claims, "This is the way it's always been." What can I do?

I'VE DEALT MY HAND

DEAR DEALT: Marriage is compromise. Try to accommodate Tony on this issue, bearing in mind it is only one night a week. Buy earplugs and a sleep mask, turn on some soft music in your room and go to bed. You can learn to sleep with a little noise, knowing that your husband is home where he belongs and proud that he has such an understanding wife.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing because I think you will be pleased that there's a non-native speaker of English who reads your column every day to develop her reading skills.

I've learned many good expressions from the letters and your responses. Your column is also perfect for broadening my understanding of the American people. It's full of ordinary people, unlike the weird types we see on television talk shows.

I subscribe to my paper just for your column, and I read the section it is in before I read anything else.

Abby, I'm grateful that my tutor, Martha, who is also an enthusiastic reader, recommended I read your column to improve my English.

HIDEKO IN LA CRESCENTA, CALIF.

DEAR HIDEKO: Thank you for your flattering letter. I have heard from other people in various parts of the world who sharpen their English skills by reading my column, but it's always nice to hear from another one.

POWERLIFTING

PAMPA — The Pampa Powerlifting Classic will be held in the MPAC building, starting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. Over 200 athletes are expected to compete in the three lifts: squat, bench press and deadlift. Two state qualifiers from last year, Aaron Hayden of Pampa and Pete Venzor of Dumas will be among the top competitors.

VOLLEYBALL

PAMPA — A meeting to discuss plans for a church volleyball league will be held at 7 p.m. Jan. 19 at Calvary Baptist Church. The league will have men's, women's and mixed divisions, both competitive and non-competitive.

For more information, call 669-7690 and leave a message.

BASEBALL

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Texas Rangers left-hander Eric Gunderson has agreed to a $450,000, one-year contract, a raise of $290,000.

Gunderson, 31, was 2-1 with a 3.26 ERA in 60 appearances in 1997, the team said Thursday. He ranked second on the team in appearances while setting career highs for games, innings (49 2-3) and strikeouts (31).

In addition to his base salary, Gunderson can earn $60,000 in performance bonuses.

Four Rangers remain eligible for salary arbitration: pitchers Darren Oliver, Aaron Sele and Bobby Witt, and infielder Lee Stevens.

AUSTIN (AP) — A private group headed by major-league strikeout king Nolan Ryan and his son Reid are trying to acquire the rights to a Texas League baseball franchise that would be moved to Central Texas.

The Ryans would not say Thursday whether they are negotiating with any particular team in the eight-team league, but the Class AA franchises in Jackson, Miss., and Wichita, Kan., have had attendance problems, and their leases in those cities expire in the next two years.

Jackson is affiliated with the Houston Astros and Wichita with the Kansas City Royals.

The Ryans say any purchase of a minor-league team would be contingent upon relocating the team in Central Texas and playing in a publicly financed stadium.

BASKETBALL

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Matt Baniak matched his season high with 20 points and had seven rebounds as Saint Louis, without injured leading scorer Larry Hughes, beat cold-shooting Houston 67-47.

Ryan Luechtefeld added 13 points and Virgel Cobbin 10 for Saint Louis (11-5, 3-1 Conference-USA), which didn't have much firepower without Hughes, who is second in the nation in freshman scoring with a 20.4-point average. The Billikens didn't need much Thursday night to beat Houston (7-8, 0-3), which has lost eight in a row after starting the season with seven victories.

Chad Hendrick had 15 points and Galen Robinson 10 points and seven rebounds for Houston, which shot 36.7 percent. Kenny Younger made only one of 10 shots for the Cougars.

Shamahn McBride, who leads Houston with a 13-point average, got only three points and had seven turnovers.

It's off to San Diego in one cheesy caravan

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Loaded with cheeseheads and driving vehicles that looked like large slabs of Swiss on wheels, some Green Bay Packers fans Thursday embarked on a 2,800-mile journey to the Super Bowl.

"I think it's pretty goofy," said traveler Dave Scherer, 37, of Milwaukee. "It's just fun, Wisconsin people having fun."

About 20 people decked out in green and gold, along with about 5,000 of the foam hats shaped like wedges of cheese, left the snow and cold of Milwaukee on the "Cheesehead Caravan" to San Diego for the game Jan. 25.

"Can you think of a better way to go down there?" said Craig Clements, 21, of Mukwonago. "I'm told this is supposed to be the time of my life, so how could I pass it up?"

After a sendoff of soda and bratwursts, the caravan was escorted by police cars from Foamation Inc., the company that markets the cheeseheads and other novelty items. The caravan included a truck, a recreational vehicle, and a Humvee and van both painted to look like cheese.

"This runs on a Swiss and gouda mixture," Becker said of the van. The Humvee, he said, "runs on a straight limburger."

As the journey began, one man whipped Frisbee-like discs of cheese-foam out the window of the Humvee, which was decorated with green-and-gold flashing lights. Items like cheeseheads would be sold at reduced price, and other items like yellow Title Towels would be given away during the trip, which included stops in eight cities.

Tom Simons, a police detective, was wearing an old motorcycle helmet in Green Bay's colors with a revolving green-and-gold light on top. Despite his appearance, he almost sounded philosophical in describing his motivation.

"It's the love of the Green Bay Packers and the love of fellow man, to show that we are family," he said. "It's a brotherhood."

Ralph Bruno, 37, who founded Foamation in 1987, said he created the hat to make something positive out of the label "cheesehead" that had been thrown on Wisconsin fans.

It actually debuted at a Milwaukee Brewers game. Bruno said he used a cushion from his mother's couch, an electric turkey knife, spray glue and a wood burner to form the Swiss-cheese holes. The rest is history. "The word cheesehead has been around for a long time, but it hadn't been represented in a three-dimensional way," Bruno said. "I've been known to do unusual things."

The journey includes stops in St. Louis, Memphis, Dallas, Roswell, N.M., Phoenix and Las Vegas. But one stop the caravan won't be making is in Denver, home of the Packers' Super Bowl opponent, the Broncos. Chris Becker, a spokesman for Foamation, says the weather this time of year makes a route through Denver dangerous.

Are Denver fans going to think the Packers fans are chicken? "If we're chickens, then they're the chicken feed," Becker said.

Three Pampa area athletes are Six-Man All-Staters

PAMPA — Three Pampa area football players have been named to the 1997 Texas Six-Man Coaches Association All-State Team.

Lineman Jammy Murray of Miami and linebacker Toby Burgin of Groom were first-team selections on defense. Miami's Marshall Flowers was named to the second-team offense at running back. All three players are seniors.

The All-State Team was selected by six-man coaches across the state.

Aggies seek fans for new arena

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The "Holler House on the Brazos" has been reduced to a whisper in its final season.

Forty-four-year-old G. Rollie White Coliseum near the Brazos River, once a raucous visit for Texas A&M basketball opponents, will give way to sparkling Reed Arena next season and it's too bad the team may not be as updated.

The long-awaited opening could be too late for coach Tony Barone, who was promised the new facility when he took over the probation-riddled Aggie basketball program in 1991.

The arena faced many delays and the Aggies have had only one winning record in Barone's six full seasons. After a promising start this season, they've lost five in a row, dropping to 6-8 following Wednesday's 83-65 loss to No. 3 Kansas.

Now, Barone's job security is a question for the few fans who still come to the games.

"Sure it's an issue. You're always on the hot seat in coaching," Barone said. "But it will never be a team issue. They're not supposed to be worried if I have a job. They play basketball and go to school. That's that."

With G. Rollie White filled to the brim, Aggies used to taunt visiting teams. Now there aren't enough to worry opponents and even visiting coaches are trying to muster support for Aggie basketball.

"I think the fans enjoyed seeing an aggressive A&M team," Kansas coach Roy Williams said. "We were perhaps more gifted. I hope the fans will support Tony and his team."

Barone rebuilt Creighton University's basketball program into a winner and he expected to return the Aggies to the glory days they experienced under Shelby Metcalf, who became the winningest coach in Southwest Conference history in 27 seasons before he was fired during the 1989-90 season.

A new multipurpose facility was a cornerstone of Barone's plan to take on the Aggie challenge. The arena wasn't approved until 1994 and the roof caved in 14 months ago during construction, causing further delay.

Barone came to Texas full of ideas that he hoped would help. Now, he just concentrates on basketball.

"My approach is simple, work hard and long. I can do that," Barone said. "There will be no deviation in our enthusiastic attitude. I'm not blaming anybody. I have no criticism for anybody. We haven't won as many games as we need to win. The bottom line is 'w's.'"

That's been the problem since the Aggies got off to a 4-0 start this season. Since then, they are 2-8, losing games by blowing leads or going on long shooting slumps like an 0-for-15 stretch against Kansas that took them out of the game.

The Aggies blew 13-point leads against Colorado State and Washington and they were up on Arizona State by 17 and still lost.

Starting guard

Former Pampa high star Rayford Young will be in the starting lineup when Texas Tech travels to Austin to meet Texas at 12 noon Saturday. The Big 12 Conference game will be televised on ABC. In the Red Raiders' last outing, Young scored 11 points and was the assist leader with six in a 90-78 loss to Baylor on Tuesday night. Young is a sophomore guard.

Getting unwanted attention

AUSTIN — Get Gabe Muoneke in a social setting and prepare to be charmed. He's witty and intelligent, armed with a wide smile and a refreshing consequences-be-damned honesty that is disarming in a Charles Barkley sort of way.

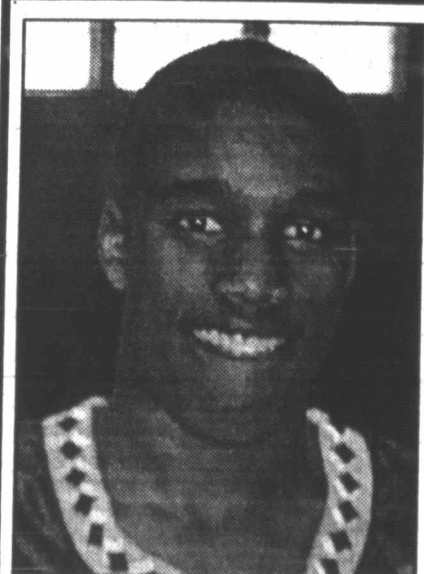

But get him on a basketball court, and look out. That, in fact, is the problem. Muoneke believes. The University of Texas' intense power forward also attracts attention in a Barkley sort of way, and claims the guys with the whistles are looking out for him more than is warranted.

"There are referees out there telling me before the game that they're looking for me," Muoneke said. "I'm in there fighting just like everybody else is fighting, and they pick me out specifically. People say I've built up my own reputation, but it's just not right."

"I'm no evil guy," Muoneke picked up his team-high third technical foul of the season Monday night in the Longhorns' 91-75 loss at Oklahoma.

Lietzke stays with time-tested swing

BERMUDA DUNES, Calif. (AP) — Most golfers are compulsive tinkers, forever experimenting with their stance, their grip, their backswing.

Bruce Lietzke is different. He found a groove more than two decades ago, and he's stuck with it.

"I haven't changed the way the way I hit the ball for 22, 23 years. I still have exactly the same swing," said Lietzke, whose time-tested swing has carried him to two consecutive rounds of 65 and the lead in the Bob Hope Chrysler Classic.

"We didn't use video back then (to study a golfer's swing), but I'm sure my swing hasn't changed one bit. I know some people say there's no such thing as muscle memory, but I'm sure there is.

"I found out a long time ago that I can take 11 or 12 weeks off (from the PGA Tour) and come back and play good golf."

Lietzke, whose 14-under total gave him a 1-shot lead Thursday over Andrew Magee and a 2-stroke edge over David Duval and Stewart Cink, seemed to bear out his theory with his first two rounds in the Hope.

He played just nine tournaments last year and only one after June, and said he hadn't spent any time tuning up his game since then.

Yet the 46-year-old Lietzke, who won the Hope Classic in 1981, played extremely well for the first two days of the 90-hole tournament.

Playing his second round at Indian Wells, considered the least difficult of the four courses used for the Hope, Lietzke trimmed five shots off par in a stretch of five holes.

Streak ends

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The longest homecourt winning streak in women's basketball history is over.

Southern Nazarene, ranked No. 2 among NAIA teams, lost 77-75 to 10th-ranked Wayland Baptist on Thursday night to end a 122-game home winning streak.

The streak was the third-longest ever. The College of Southern Idaho men's team had a 137-game home streak and Kentucky's men won 129 in a row at home.

"This team isn't about streaks. It's about winning," SNU coach Craig Wiginton said. "Sure I'm disappointed, but the streak didn't mean more to this team than the game. We now have a conference loss at home, and that's big in this league."

Southern Nazarene, four-time defending NAIA champions, had not lost at Broadhurst Gymnasium since losing to Northwestern Oklahoma on Jan. 23, 1989.
