HOUSTON (AP) — A former model partially paralyzed in an attack more than a decade ago has won a $22.3 million verdict from the city of Houston, whose police force she said failed to protect her.

Barbra Piotrowski accused Houston Police Department of discriminating against her almost 18 years ago by dismissing a threat on her life without giving her a warning.

Ms. Piotrowski, the onetime mistress of health-spa tycoon Richard Minns, says police ignored a September 1980 report from a Houston man that he had been offered $10,000 to kill her, chop up her body and dump the remains in the Gulf of Mexico.

Five weeks after the tip received, Piotrowski, a former model, was shot four times in the back as she left a Houston doughnut shop:

'Oprah Trial' brings out star gazers

Associated Press Writer

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - An estimated five-week beef defamation trial pitting Texas cattlemen against Oprah Winfrey is under way, yet most of Amarillo is worried about more pressing matters.

For instance, there's buzz that NBA star Charles Barkley might be coming to town. And actress Janine Turner. And singer Kenny Rogers.

Ms. Winfrey's civil trial is a big enough news by itself. The fact that she might attract other stars to the Texas Panhandle when she begins taping her show here Thursday is really dazzling folks.

Ms. Winfrey didn't say anything about her trial after eight women and four men were chosen to sit on the jury Tuesday. But she managed to drop a few names as she left the courthouse.

"We'll have Clint Black," she said. "Oh, and Patrick

Ms. Winfrey didn't say anything about her trial...but she managed to drop a few names... "We'll have Clint Black," she said. "Oh, and Patrick Swayze."

Add Houston Rockets forward Barkley, Turner, Rogers and possibly a few more stars with Texas ties, and Amarillo's celebrity fever is getting white hot.

Harpo Productions Inc. limited the hours a toll-free ticket hotline would be open today in an agreement with Southwestern Bell. A similar hotline last week paralyzed area phone service for a half hour.

The trial itself has almost gotten lost in all the star-

Opening statements were set for this afternoon as plaintiffs try to persuade jurors that the April 16, 1996, Oprah Winfrey Show" about mad cow disease cost them $12 million when cattle prices fell,

Defense attorneys say there are other explanations for the market plunge.

Three chosen jurors admitted past connections to the cattle industry, though all said they could consider the case fairly. None of the three women who said they were avid Oprah viewers made the cut.

Others from the original jury pool of 57 never had a

Grand jurors return murder indictments

Richard Procter was shot once in the head while sitting in his car Christmas Eve 1996 and at the time the only clue seemed to be a red pickup in the area.

Ten months later arrest warrants were issued for two Pampa men, Jesus Santacruz, 34, and Ricardo DeLeon, 31, who were both arrest-

Yesterday, a Gray County grand jury indicted both men for the murder and bond was set for one million dollars each. They have both been in the Gray County Jail since their arrest.

"My feeling is one of relief," said Gray County District Attorney John Mann. "There was a year's worth of work by many officers, from many departments, working together to get us this far." If convicted, each man can face 5-to-99 years or life in prison.

Mann said he believes he knows which one was the "triggerman" but said he couldn't comment on the evidence at this point. He says his office is still putting the case together and he doesn't yet know what sentence he will seek for the defendants.

Arraignment is set for Feb. 9 in the 223rd Judicial Court of Judge Sims. Sims said that depending of defense motions he hoped to start the case in two to three months.

Mann who is going to Wichita Falls to act as special prosecutor in another case said he will make sure he is here then if the defense does not waive arraignment.

Fire intentionally set, officials rule

A fire early Monday morning in a Pampa house has been ruled

Fire Marshal Gary Stevens said the fire at 744 Scott was intentionally set but the exact cause was still under investigation. The blaze was called into the fire department at 1:34 a.m. Monday morning. Three fire units and four firefighters originally responded but five more people had to be called in.

Stevens said damage to the interior was extensive. No one was living in the house at the time although it was furnished.

The owners of the house have apparently moved out of town, Stevens said, and may be living in Las Vegas, Nev. Officials had not located the owners as of press time today.

Clinton 'outraged' over latest sexual claims against him

President Clinton is "outraged" by accusations he had a sexual relationship with a former White House intern and asserts "he's never had any improper relationship with this woman," the White House said today.

Clinton's attorney, Robert Bennett, also rejected the allegations. "The president and another in the denies it. I smell a rather nnett told reporters as he ary yed at the White House this meaning.

Asked about reports of tapes recorded conversations about the alleged affair and purported efforts to conceal it, Bennett said, "I know nothing about that. Before I comment on it, I want to investigate it."

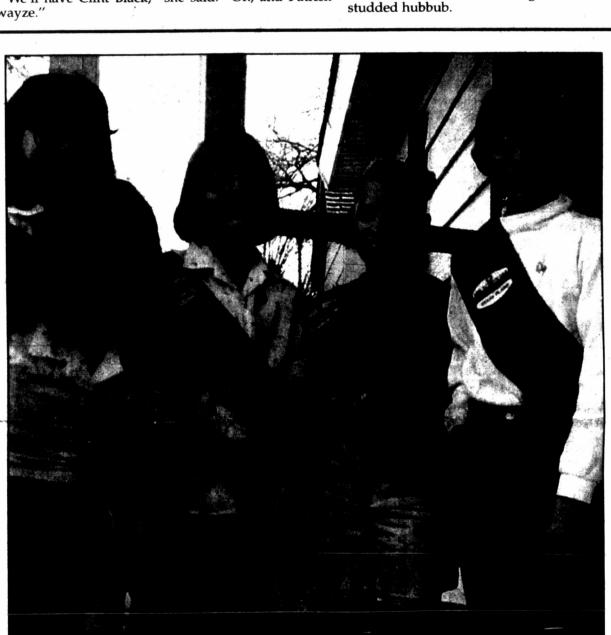

White House press secretary

Mike McCurry issued a statemen't after talking with Clinton about new allegations that prompted Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr to expand his 3 1/2-year investigation into new territory — whether Clinton tried to influence a former intern's testimony in the Paula Jones sexual harassment lawsuit.

The former intern, Monica S. Lewinsky, 24, has signed a declaration in the Jones lawsuit denying she ever had a sexual relationship with the president and stands by that assertion, her lawyer said.

McCurry said the White House would cooperate with Starr. A crush of reporters crowded

Judge: Parents have right to send teen to treatment facility

Associated Press Writer

Senior Citizens Center.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Cheers, whistles and a burst of courtroom applause welcomed a judge's ruling that the parents of a rebellious teen had the right to send him to a strict treatment program in telephoned from an airport. The state filed the case Jamaica.

Superior Court Judge Ken Kawaichi ruled against a prosecutor who alleged David Van Blarigan was kidnapped and falsely imprisoned. The presecutor had asked the judge to have David retu could speak for himself in court, but Ka raichi refused.

In deciding that Jim and Sue Van Blarigan exercised proper parental power, the judge said: "It is not that easy a line to draw as to what is appropriate and what is not."

Kawaichi said he had no evidence that David is being abused at Tranquility Bay, the highly supervised camp where he was sent last November after being taken away from his Oakland home in the middle of the night by two men hired by his par-

Family attorney Dan Koller said David was a "troubled youth," although he would not discuss what those troubles were in open court. Police were called by a neighbor whom David an adult, there would be national outrage.

as a civil, not a criminal, action.

The incident touched off a debate over the lengths to which parents can go to keep their youngsters out of trouble.

Terri Mesple, one of scores of program supporters who crowded into the small courtroom, said the decision recognizes the realities of trying to help problem children.

"If you have an out-of-control child, they're not going to agree that they're out of control and they're not going to agree to go to treatment," said Mesple, who hired an escort service to force her own daughter into a Utah treatment program. "Parents do what they have to do."

Some in the courtroom disagreed with Kawaichi. "Trampling on children's human rights merely because of their minor status is wrong and dangerous," said Jordan Riak, executive director of an Alamo-based group called Parents and Teachers Against Violence in Education. "If this was done to ly hear the case. Ten were dismissed because they admitted sympathy for the cattle industry, the region's economic engine.

Amarillo cattle feeder Paul Engler sued after watching vegetarian activist Howard Lyman's appearance on "The Oprah Winfrey Show." Lyman criticized the U.S. practice of feeding processed livestock to cattle, a custom believed to have spread mad cow disease in Europe.

Ms. Winfrey responded that she was "stopped cold" from ever eating another hamburger after hearing about the cattle-to-cattle feeding, which was banned in this country last year.

Mad cow disease, or bovine spongiform encephalopathy, is a brain-destroying disease that has afflicted cattle in Britain since the late 1980s. In 1996, British scientists announced that humans might have contracted a similar brain disease by eating infected beef.

Plaintiffs are suing under a 1995 Texas law holding liable anyone who makes false and disparaging statements about perishable food products. A dozen other states have similar statutes.

"I can say that the president was quite firm about me making that statement," McCurry said.

After reading his statement, he referred reporters to Clinton's Whitewater attorney, David Kendall, for further information.

The presidential spokesman tried to portray a White House going about its work in a normal fashion despite the sensational charges. He said that the president's outrage over the charges quickly faded as he turned to discussions with national security Attorney William H. Ginsburg of Los Angeles said his client, Ms. Lewinsky, has not been formally interviewed by prosecutors but that he has met in Washington with Starr's investigators. Ginsburg said the Justice Department had approved a formal expansion of the Whitewater investigation. "I know that Janet Reno has definitely signed off," he said. The Washington Post and The Los Angeles Times, which first reported the development along with ABC News, said today that the three-judge federal appeals court panel that oversees Starr's probe also approved the expanded probe. Clinton repeatedly has denied Jones' allegations that he sexually harassed her while Arkansas governor and last weekend was questioned by Ms.

Jones' attorneys for six hours. The latest development marks a departure for Starr's investigation, which has focused on the Clintons' failed Whitewater land venture and other Arkansas business dealings. It also has examined whether since coming to Washington the first family or aides have done anything to impede that Ginsburg declined to discuss the specifies of what he talked about with Starr's investigators, but confirmed he had met with them in Washington.

He said Ms. Lewinsky was scheduled to be questioned later this week by Jones' attorneys in the sex-

"At this time, she stands by her declaration," the lawyer said.

The Times and ABC News reported that Starr was: investigating whether Clinton asked his friend and trusted adviser, Vernon Jordan, a Washington attorney, to discuss with Ms. Lewinsky her testimony.

The two reported that Starr's office had received a fip from a former associate of Ms. Lewinsky, Linda Tripp, that prompted the investigation.

NBC News, which said investigators are working with 20 hours of tape-recorded conversations in the case, said it reached Jordan overnight at a New York hotel and that he declined comment.

The Washington Post and ABC reported that: Tripp provided Starr with audiotapes that she's recorded of conversations she had with Ms. Lewinsky in which the former intern recounted. details of a 1 1/2-year affair she said she had with. Both newspapers and ABC said that, according to sources, Ms. Lewinsky said in one of the taped conversations that Clinton and Jordan had asked her to: deny to Ms. Jones' lawyers that she had had a relationship with the president.

Last summer, Tripp told Newsweek that another: former worker, Kathleen E. Willey, told her that: Clinton had made sexual advances toward Ms. Willey in the White House. At the time, Bennett denied "that anything improper was ever said or done in connection with Ms. Willey."

After working as an intern at the White House, Ms. Lewinsky worked in the public affairs department at the Pentagon along with Tripp. She left the job, but it had nothing to do with the sexual harassment case, Ginsburg said.

Condemned woman seeking to block execution

AUSTIN (AP) - Today or Thursday, Karla Faye Tucker will ask the State Board of Pardons and Paroles for clemency to keep her from becoming the first woman executed in Texas since the Civil War.

Her lawyers said she would take that step as they made another on Tuesday – asking the Court of Criminal Appeals to halt her Feb. 3 execution. Acknowledging her guilt but pleading for mercy, Ms. Tucker's lawyers said she is a new woman who deserves to have her death sentence commuted.

"She is guilty of the crime," said lawyer George Secrest of Houston.

"This is not a quest to undermine a jury's verdict. We're not 🍇 asking for a new trial. This is a quest to save her life because she's a changed individual. If, in fact, rehabilitation and mercy play no part in the criminal justice system, tell us loud and clear.'

The 38-year-old woman was convicted of killing Jerry Lynn Dean, 27, of Houston. Deborah Thornton, 32, also was killed in that attack.

Misconceptions surround PEDC

The sales tax election that the voters approved by a 61% majority is good news for economic development. The continuation of the Economic Development Corporation is also good news for Pampa and a message to the other communities in the Panhandle that Pampa is in for the long haul and will continue to be a player in economic development activities:

I would like to thank the many people who devoted much time and effort to see to it that the Development Corporation continues in Pampa. Mr. Jack Reeve chaired the committee of many citizens, financed entirely by donations from individuals. This committee is to be congratulated for the outstanding job that was done.

Now that the vote is over with, I would like to reassure all of the citizens of Pampa that the Economic Development Corporation will continue to make the most of the resources that have been given us. There was a lot of misinformation on various issues raised during the campaign. The Economic Development Corporation has an open door policy to the citizens of Pampa. Our accounting records are open at all times. The Economic Development Corporation has an audit every year, and it furnishes monthly financial statements to those who request them. Additionally, the board meetings are open to the public. Problem is seldom does anyone show up that does not have business with the Economic Development Corporation. I encourage any citizen of Pampa to come to the board meetings each month.

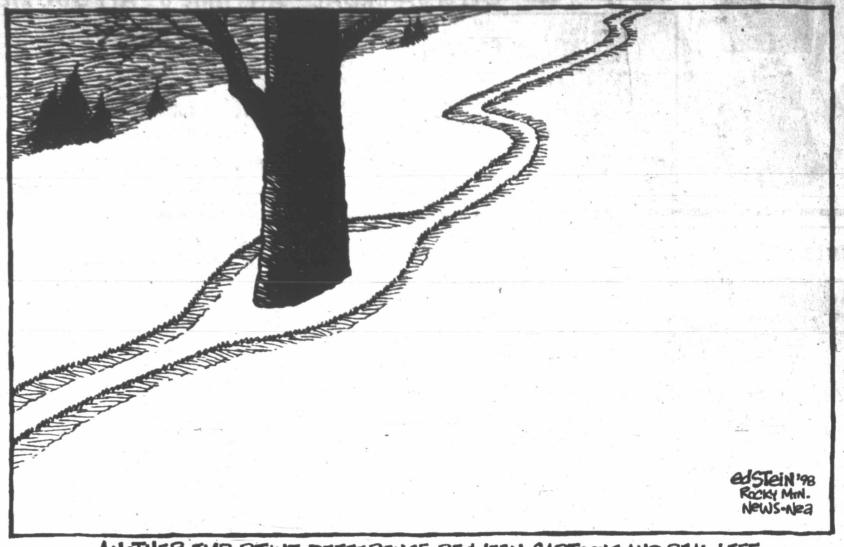

A letter to the editor against the sales tax made untrue statements with respect to the Coronado Inn. The facts are: 1) The Economic Development Corporation made a loan guarantee of $100,000 to the owners of the Coronado Inn for payment of various taxes; 2) The Economic Development Corporation has a real estate tax lien in its favor in the amount of $59,000; 3) To date, the owners of the Coronado Inn have made payments to the bank, which has reduced the note balance down to approximately $69,000; 4) The exposure to the Economic Development Corporation at this point is $10,000; 5) Approximately 40 jobs were maintained and the hotel remained in business during one of the busiest times in the summer months.

Questions have been raised about the U.S. Bus Company. It is still in business with an excellent backlog of bus units to manufacture. The bus company is currently getting financing from a third-party bank and is getting stronger each day. This company is important to Pampa due to the size and nature of its business. We have analyzed the economic impact to Pampa over the next 15 years. That impact will benefit Pampa to the tune of $75,000,000 and will primarily benefit the private sector.

I could continue on for many pages. However, I would encourage you to contact the staff of the Economic Development Corporation or any board member, if you still have any questions.

.S. energy independence shelved

With plenty of gas to fill it up, and prices at the pump going down, the once-urgent quest for U.S. energy independence isn't getting so much as an afterthought.

Oil imports are up, well past 50 percent of total consumption - a level once set by Congress as America's peril point.

And nearly 20 points higher than 25 years ago, when the Arab oil embargo threw the American economy into turmoil, sent prices soaring and made lines at the gas station a national headache.

was good business. Raising inventories in government reserves, to provide insurance against interruptions in foreign oil supplies, was part of the policy push prompted by the energy crises of 1973 and the late 1970s. The other was to curb the appetite for imports by promoting conservation and energy efficiency. The market hasn't done that; indeed, the increased flow of petroleum for gasoline has done the opposite.

imported oil has been increasing instead. The 55 mph national speed limit was imposed as a conservation step after the 1973 Arab oil embargo. It was repealed late in 1995.

At the time of the Nixon-era energy crisis, imports accounted for about 35 percent of U.S. But as imports and consumption both went consumption. By 1977, imports were past 40 percent, prices soared, fueling inflation, and Jimmy Carter had his energy crisis; he said it would take the moral equivalent of war to deal With prices down by about 5 percent, that with it.

Not that conservation efforts didn't register. Steps including automobile mileage requirements, an increasing use of natural gas, new technologies and other measures that began with the oil crunches have changed the mix.

According to the Energy Department, the United States is now 30 percent more energy efficient than 25 years ago.

Still, when the crises eased, business went back to usual. In 1990, Congress did vote to By the numbers, according to the API, petro- declare that 50 percent dependence on imported oil would be the peril point for U.S. nation-disruption in Middle Eastern supplies. More than half of U.S. oil imports are from Venezuela, Mexico and Canada; some 20 percent come from the Middle East.

And with times good, supplies ample and prices down about 8 percent over the past year, energy conservation policy is a footnote, if that, on the political agenda now. That's not without risk.

Disruptions in world oil markets and energy price shocks have been factors in the last three economic recessions.

Now the energy markets are helping boost the economy. "U.S. crude oil and petroleum prices generally began 1998 as they had ended 1997, in a continuing decline brought on by world production growth outstripping demand," the Energy Department said in its latest market report.

It's a mark of better times that the strategic petroleum reserve created in 1975 to cushion market disruptions hasn't had oil added since 1994. Since then, oil from the emergency reserve has been sold twice to reduce budget deficits, and once, on President Clinton's order, in a 1996 attempt to stem a sharp increase in gasoline prices.

There could be a different kind of pressure for conservation and reduced consumption the international agreement to combat global warming. It would take both to meet the U.S. pledge to reduce fuel emissions to 7 percent below 1990 levels by 2012, should that deal be ratified. Republican opponents say it would

Victim's Of Domestic Violence Have The Law On Their Side

DEAR ABBY: You printed a letter from a woman who signed her-self "Living a Nightmare," who had been a victim of domestic violence dating back to her honeymoon. You provided her with some solid advice; however, some information was missing from your reply that would benefit all women involved in violent relationships.

Victims of domestic violence need to be made aware that their abusive spouses are breaking the law. Domestic violence is a crime, and it should be reported to the proper authorities. "Living a Nightmare's" husband has already broken her nose, her wrist, her shoulder, and caused a miscarriage by kicking her when she was four months pregnant. In her case, calling the police is long overdue.

In addition to ordering the booklet you recommended, women should know that help is a phone call away. Confidential assistance is available 24 hours a day through domestic violence hotlines throughout the country. I suggest getting started by calling 1-800-799-SAFE, a nationwide toll-free hotline that can provide immediate help and connect women with the resources nearest them.

Those in violent relationships also need to understand that an entire generation of children are at risk, because domestic violence is a learned behavior that's passed along to the next generation. Research shows that in homes where a father is physically abusing his

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — In 1988, as the New England Patriots walked off the field after losing a game against Denver, a few members of the Broncos' defense thanked Doug Flutie.

Flutie had no impact on the game, which the Broncos won 21-10. The 5-foot-9 quarterback played only briefly and threw one incomplete pass after sit-ting on the bench behind Tony Eason and Steve Grogan.

"I remember the defensive people from Denver saying they were thankful that I was not playing just because of the headaches that I caused," Flutie said. "Hopefully, I can cause some headaches.

Flutie was released by the Patriots the next season and jumped to the Canadian Football League, where he has dominated for eight seasons. On Tuesday, the former Heisman Trophy winner from Boston College returned to the NFL when he signed a twoyear contract worth $550,000 with the Buffalo Bills.

TENNIS

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Before a strangely silent crowd that refused to take sides in the keenly anticipated family battle, Serena Williams couldn't quite manage to strike a blow for little sisters.

The 16-year-old took a 3-1 lead against 17-year-old sister venus in the first-set tiebreak and then led 4-3 on serve before hitting one of her eight double faults of the day.

She never recovered, and Venus raced to a 7-6 (7-4), 6-1 victory in 1 hour, 27 minutes in a second-round Australian Open match.

Then 15-year-old Mirjana Lucic, another in the teen-age wave of the future in women's tennis, also failed to advance against a more experienced opponent - No. 4 seed Iva Majoli, the French Open champion. In a slugfest with her Croatian compatriot, Lucic frequently overhit, losing 7-5, 6-4.

HOUSTON (AP) — So far, Alan Weddell hasn't been accused of deserting his roots, but he fully expects it.

Weddell, a member of the University of Texas' 1970 championship team before becoming a highly successful high school coach and leading La Marque to three straight Class 4A titles, was named linebackers coach at Texas' archrival Texas A&M on Tuesday.

Now he's waiting for the fall-

"I'm sure I'll get some calls," Weddell laughed. "But my daddy was an Aggie so I guess I wasn't a pure-bred Longhorn anyway. The hardest part will be learning to do that thumbs up sign instead of hook 'em horns.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles offensive coordinator Jon Gruden had a follow-up interview with the Oakland Raiders about their coaching vacancy, his fourth meeting with team officials in two years.

Gruden, who also met with Raiders officials Jan. 8, interviewed twice with the Raiders last year - when Oakland owner Al Davis decided to promote Joe Bugel to the job. Bugel was fired this month after going 4-12.

Justice Harvey Hudson declares for Court of Criminal Appeals

HOUSTON - Harvey Hudson, a justice of the Fourteenth Court Appeals, has filed as a candidate for the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 2. Hudson, who was one of six Republicans elected to the Fourteenth Court of Appeals in 1994, is now seeking a position on the state's highest criminal court.

Before being elected to the Fourteenth Court of Appeals, Hudson was the chief of the Appellate Division in the Harris County District Attorney's brated cases - including the Office. During his 15 years Harvey Hudson, a Justice of as an assistant district attorney, Hudson represented Appeals, has filed as a the State of Texas in some of canidate foe the Texas Court of Harris County's most cele- Criminal Appeals, Place two. well-known case of the "cheerleader mom" who became the subject of two network television movies after she relied upon solicitation of murder to enhance her daughter's chances of winning a high school cheerleader competition. Hudson is acknowledged as the prosecuting attorney in over 240 published opinions issued by Texas appellate courts - with over 70 of these decisions being delivered by the state's highest court. In 1987, Hudson campaigned with other prosecutors for a constitutional amendment that gave the state, for the first time, a limited right of appeal when judges suppress critical evidence, dismiss an indictment or grant a new trial. He also testified in 1989 before the Senate Jurisprudence Committee in support of a constitutional amendment that now permits jurors to be told of the effect of parole laws before they assess punishment in criminal cases. Early in his career at the district attorney's office, Hudson served in both the Trial Bureau and the Consumer Fraud Division of the Special Crimes Bureau. Hudson was also a certified peace officer while working in the Consumer Fraud Division. This enabled him to more easily direct and assist undercover investigations being conducted by investigators of the district attorney's office. Hudson, who is now 48, says he first aspired to sit on the Court of Criminal Appeals when he began arguing cases before the court in the early 80s. Believing the practice of soliciting money from lawyers subverts the idea of an impartial judiciary, Hudson is accepting no campaign contributions from lawyers or law firms. He is married and has three children in high school.
