PAMPA — The Josh McDowell seminar this Sunday, Feb. 22, at the M.K. Brown Auditorium will be from 6 to 9 p.m. The time was incorrectly stated in the article on Sunday as well as in the community calendar.

One ticket correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said.

The ticket was worth an estimated $4 million.

The ticket was sold in Seadrift.

The winning numbers drawn Wednesday were: 1-2-10-20-31-44

Saturday night's drawing will be worth an estimated $4 million.

BAYTOWN (AP) — A 52-year-old restaurant worker died Thursday morning when she was crushed by a commercial-size refrigerator that apparently fell on her.

Charlotte Gean Struthers, from nearby Jacinto City, had reported to work early at about 4:15 a.m. to prepare for a luncheon set for later in the day. She was alone in the Shoney's Restaurant when she was discovered.

Pork plant may locate in Pampa

By JEFF WEST
Staff Writer

Pampa could become the home of a $110 million pork processing plant that will employ 2,400 people if the city is chosen over four other sites under consideration.

In addition to Pampa, Seaboard Corporation is looking at Hereford, Dumas, Garden City, Kan., and Great Bend, Kan.

"It's important to note that this is a pork processing plant not hog farming," said Susan Triplehorn, project coordinator for the Pampa Economic Development Corporation.

Also, she said most of the plant's processed pork won't be eaten in the United States but will be shipped to Japan.

Company officials first visited Pampa in November of 1997 and told city leaders this area is not conducive to hog farming and they were not looking at this country to raise hogs, according to Triplehorn.

Lewis Meers, head of the board of directors for the PEDC, said the plant to be built is very similar to one that was opened by Seaboard in December, 1995 in Guymon Okla. He said the PEDC and Pampa

Auto, truck wrecks hurt 4

A pair of wrecks yesterday sent four people to Columbia Medical Center although none of their injuries are reported to be life threatening.

No charges had been filed by late morning today in either mishap.

About 9:30 Wednesday morning a truck owned by Haliburton Industries was being driven west on Highway 152 by Keith Clumsky out of Liberal.

According to Department of Public Safety reports, Clumsky, 24, disregarded a stop light at Price Road and struck a 1995 Mercury driven by Kenneth Farnsworth, 75, of Pampa.

The force of the impact spun the Mercury which ended up facing northwest. It also bent the front right wheel at a 90-degree angle.

Farnsworth and passengers

Donna Farnsworth, 72, and Jewell Adams, 92, were taken by Rural/Metro to Columbia Medical Center. The Farnsworths were treated and released but Adams was being held this morning for observation and is listed in stable condition.

At 4:05 p.m., a 1992 Dodge Dakota pickup driven by Cristino Pena, 19, of Pampa, slowed to a crawl in the rain to avoid a pothole at the construction at Highway 70 and Walnut Creek, the DPS said.

An Atlas Van Line tractor-trailer rig behind Pena tried to avoid the pickup but struck it in the rear sending it into a brick fence, knocking a hole in the fence. Pena was treated and released at Columbia Medical Center.

The driver of the moving van, Jose Martinez Rivera, 25, of Redding, Calif., wasn't injured.

Oprah producer says nothing false about cow show

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer

AMARILLO (AP) — A beef spokesman should have noted sooner during a taping of "The Oprah Winfrey Show" that the industry had banned a practice suspected of spreading mad cow disease, an executive producer testified today.

Diane Hudson testified that Gary Weber didn't mention a voluntary ban on including processed cattle in cattle feed until the taping for the segment on mad cow disease had run well past the allotted time. Weber is a spokesman for the National Cattlemen's Beef Association.

The remarks were cut for time constraints and editing flow, not content, she explained.

"What I'm saying is why did he wait 20 minutes into the conversation when (the voluntary ban) is germane to what's going on?" she said.

Plaintiffs' attorney Joe Coyne noted that vegetarian activist Howard Lyman's implication that minks were infected with a similar disease by eating processed cattle came later than Weber's comments, yet they made it into the show.

Ms. Hudson said Lyman's statements came at a natural wrapup point for editors.

"You're trying to simplify a process that's not simple," she said. "If Not rain nor mud could keep the buses full of Pampa ISD students away from the Artrain this morning.

City of Pampa officials were out first thing covering the freshly made batch of mud surrounding the train with truck loads of dry dirt.

"I'm so pleased with the city," said Pampa Artrain General Coordinator, Lorelee Cooley.

She commended the city for promptly and courteously making the train more accessible for the groups of Pampa and Spring Creek students scheduled to take the 40-minute tour through the train today.

The train is located in Pampa west of the Attebury Grain Elevator. Go east on Highway 60 and turn south on West Street. It's set up at the track with a large tent outside the train accompanying six area museum exhibits.

In addition, the Salvation Army has set up a

Deal allows licensed Texans to carry concealed guns in Arkansas; vice versa

AUSTIN (AP) — Public safety officials in Texas and Arkansas agreed to allow licensees from the two states to carry concealed handguns across state lines.

The reciprocity agreement with Arkansas is the first Texas has reached with another state to honor each other's concealed-carry licenses. Oklahoma last year agreed to honor Texas licenses, but Texas does not honor Oklahoma permits, the DPS said.

Col. Dudley Thomas, head of the Texas

Department of Public Safety, said the new agreement allows licensed Texans traveling to Arkansas the same, or similar, rights they have at home.

"We are working with several other states, especially our close neighbors, to establish more reciprocity agreements," Thomas said.

Thomas warned Texas licensees to carefully study the concealed-carry law in Arkansas before traveling into the state with a concealed handgun.

officials will look very closely to make sure that all EPA and Texas Natural Resources laws and guidelines are followed.

Several officials of the city and PEDC went to Guymon in November to check out the plant and its effect on the environment and the economy of the small Oklahoma town.

Mollenkamp, who was one of those who went, said there was no unpleasant smell. He believes that is due to the newest technology that recycles the gases and processes them at the plant.

Pampa Mayor Bob Neslage also went to Guymon and toured the plant there.

"We walked all the way around the plant and there was very little to no odor," he said.

Neslage said to make sure any vegetative odor doesn't affect Pampa, the sites being considered are taking the prevailing winds into Pampa into consideration.

Mollenkamp says plant construction should begin about a year after the site is chosen and completed about a year after that. Originally the plant will employ about a 1,000 people taking about one more year to reach full strength.

PEDC officials won't confirm which areas have been submitted to Seaboard for consideration but say the industrial park is not being considered nor any area close to Pampa.

The company issued a press release stating that at full capacity the plant can slaughter 16,500 hogs a day.

The plant will have its own sewage system which will be run by the city and Pampa may help bear part of the cost of building the system. Details on an economic package are still being worked out, according to Mollenkamp.

The PEDC sent Seaboard a list of the housing available in a 50-mile radius of Pampa as well as unemployment figures for the area. Mollenkamp says the company told him that they hope to have a short list by the end of March.

When asked about the lack of housing and low unemployment rate here, Mollenkamp said, "Isn't that a nice problem to have? We hope this plant could jump start housing construction for Pampa."

Tripplehorn said economic impact studies the PEDC has run indicates the processing plant would have a $3 billion impact for the area over the next 15 years.

Gary Weber felt that the ban was as important as you say it is now, he should have said it early."

A group of Texas cattlemen suing Ms. Winfrey, her production company and a vegetarian activist guest attribute a cattle market drop to the April 16, 1996, show, which they say cost them $12 million.

The defense began presenting testimony Wednesday, a day after U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson tossed out the part of the case filed under Texas' food defamation law. However, Ms. Robinson rejected a defense request to dismiss the case entirely.

The case had been the first using any of the 13 "veggie libel" state laws, and some experts had predicted it could become the Supreme Court test.

Jurors are now hearing the lawsuit as a common-law business disparagement case. To win, the cattlemen must prove Ms. Winfrey's show aired knowingly false and disparaging statements and did so either recklessly or on purpose.

Ms. Hudson said the mad cow segment didn't even address the beef industry as a whole, only the sectors that were allowing processed cattle to be included in cattle feed, a practice blamed for spreading the disease in Great Britain.

That feeding custom, outlawed last summer, was voluntarily banned in the United States shortly before the show was taped.

"The mad cow segment of the show focused on a feeding practice done in portions of the beef industry, as we understood it, not all of the beef industry," Ms. Hudson said.

The lawsuit complains that Ms. Winfrey and Lyman implied that U.S. beef consumers were at risk because mad cow disease was blamed for causing human deaths in Great Britain. Mad cow disease and its human counterpart never have been detected in the United States.

Newly installed defibrillator saves airline passenger

DALLAS (AP) — Flight attendants and an off-duty paramedic used a newly installed automated defibrillator to save the life of a North Carolina man who suffered a heart attack after boarding an American Airlines flight, officials say.

The device, which delivers an electric charge to restart the heart, was used on Robert Giggey, 52, after he collapsed following a dash to catch his flight from Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport to Mexico City Wednesday.

The airplane was still at the gate, but officials said that without the defibrillator aboard, Giggey could easily have died.

Airline officials said the devices have been used 39 times on passengers with chest pains, but it was believed to be the first time a person has been saved since the airline installed the devices last July.

"The people on the airplane were able to give him the same treatment we would have begun as soon as our ambulance got there," said Alvy Dodson, director of the airport's Department of Public Safety. "You can't overstate how important it was that they were able to start that treatment immediately."

Giggey, who owns a small manufacturing and fabric business near Raleigh, N.C., was in serious but stable condition Wednesday night at Baylor Medical Center at Irving, said his wife, Carmen Giggey.

"His spirits are up, and he's trying to get a game on TV," she said.

Don Grohman, 33, a Garland paramedic who was on the flight as part of a mission trip to Mexico, played a key role in saving the man, Dodson said.

Grohman, who received training in using the device in Garland, identified himself and immediately began helping.

The airplane was still at the gate, but officials said that without the defibrillator aboard, Giggey could easily have died.

"We are very pleased with the outcome," said Dr. Dave McKenas, American's corporate medical director. "This does appear to be the first case that a defibrillator has brought somebody back" on an airplane.

The airline became the first domestic airline to install the devices, which are about the size of a laptop computer. They were installed on 242 airplanes that make over-water flights, and there are plans to install them all of the airline's 640 planes by November.

Delta Air Lines and United Airlines have since announced that they will outfit their fleets with the devices, which are not required by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Dr. McKenas said American flight attendants have used the defibrillators 39 times to monitor passengers who complained of chest pains.

Mrs. Giggey said Wednesday night that her husband had no memory of boarding the plane or having the heart attack.

"For a few minutes, I was a widow. I think if we'd been anywhere else, I'd still be a widow," she said. "They (flight attendants and Grohman) acted so quickly, it was just amazing. I'll never fly another airline."

White House considers executive privilege claim for close Clinton aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of 10 White House lawyers arrived at a federal courthouse today for a possible showdown over executive privilege with prosecutors investigating whether President Clinton tried to cover up an affair with a former intern.

The lawyers were expected to argue in favor of limiting questioning of Clinton confidant Bruce Lindsey before a grand jury investigating the Monica Lewinsky case. Lindsey was surrounded by the phalanx of attorneys as he entered the courthouse.

"They're having discussions about the scope of questions," said a White House official who spoke on condition of anonymity. "One possible, ultimate outcome is invoking executive privilege. But there are steps before asserting it."

The legal team included White House counsel Charles F.C. Ruff and the president's personal lawyer, David Kendall. Lindsey's questioning Wednesday by the grand jury was interrupted by a closed hearing before Judge Norma Holloway Johnson, who is supervising the proceeding.

The presence of the large group of lawyers seemed to signal the White House was ready for a legal showdown on the issue with independent counsel Kenneth Starr.

Lindsey also was accompanied by deputy White House counsel Cheryl Mills and Neil Eggleston, a former White House lawyer.

Only Clinton can assert executive privilege and as of Wednesday night he had not asserted it, officials said.

Invoking the murky legal doctrine would heighten the standoff between Clinton and Starr. The independent counsel has pulled several White House aides before a grand jury investigating whether the president and Ms. Lewinsky had an affair and lied about it under oath.

Lindsey is the president's most trusted adviser, a loyal and intensely discreet Arkansas-born lawyer who has been a close Clinton friend since 1968.

White House officials said Wednesday night that a discussion of tactics ended with no resolution.

"I'm not going to talk about my testimony," Lindsey told reporters as he left the courthouse after more than five hours Wednesday.

Lindsey had not refused to answer any questions Wednesday on the basis of executive privilege, a White House official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said.

The privilege has been invoked periodically to shield presidents and those who work closely with them from having to tell tales to Congress, courts and grand juries.

Even the president's supporters note that the privilege is normally considered to apply to foreign policy, national security or diplomatic matters. Attorney-client privilege applies to communications between a lawyer and his client. However, an appeals court ruling in the Whitewater investigation said the privilege does not apply to government lawyers in the face of a grand jury subpoena. The Supreme Court refused to review the ruling.

Clinton's political advisers have cautioned against taking the executive privilege route; they fear that voters who so far have given Clinton the benefit of the doubt on the Lewinsky matter will consider the legal maneuver a form of stonewalling.

Lindsey's testimony came amid indications that last summer he may have urged a key potential witness, Linda Tripp, to contact Clinton's private lawyer.

Tripp brought the allegations of a presidential affair and cover-up to light in January after secretly taping her conversations with Ms. Lewinsky.

In one conversation with Lindsey, these individuals said, Clinton's confidant tried to persuade Tripp to go see Robert Bennett, the lawyer Clinton hired to represent him in the Paula Jones sexual harassment case.

Gray County Farm Service Agency and Natural Resources Conservation Service recently teamed up with local schools to launch a food drive to benefit Good Samaritan Christian Service and Tralee Crisis Center. Seen here handling the food — which totalled 3,000 pounds — are, left-right, Lee McDonald, Shonda Meadows, Vernon Baggerman and Cecelia Henley.

GCFSA, NRCS and local schools collect 3,000 pounds of food during food drive

Two local USDA offices — the Gray County Farm Service Agency and the Natural Resources Conservation Service — teamed up with local elementary schools in a food drive that ended earlier this month. Albertson's, Easy's Pop Shop and Homeland will sponsor a coke and cookie party for the following classes for having donated the most food per school: Mrs. Watson's pre-K class at Lamar Elementary — 159 pounds of food (school total: 931 pounds); Mrs. Wells third grade class at Travis Elementary — 100 pounds (school total: 683 pounds); Mrs. Kuhn's first grade class at Wilson Elementary — 117 pounds (school total: 646 pounds); Mrs. Slaybaugh's fourth grade class at Austin Elementary — 67 pounds (school total: 423 pounds); Mrs. Simpson's second grade class at St. Vincent de Paul Catholic School — 49 pounds (school total: 204 pounds).

According to Pat Presley, USDA employee, 3,000 pounds of food were brought in for the food drive. "We especially want to express our thanks to the schools and to Albertson's, Easy's Pop Shop and Homeland," Presley said.

The donated food was taken to the Good Samaritan Christian Services and Tralee Crisis Center for Women, according to Cecelia Henley.

Shonda Meadows, of SWCD, assisted Henley and Presley in weighing and delivering the donated food. Others assisting in the "weigh in" were Lee McDonald, USDA employee, Vernon Baggerman, local farmer, Cindy Brown, USDA employee, and Matt Street, USDA employee. Scales to weigh food for the contest were provided by Danny Nusser, Gray County Extension Agent.

Teacher pleads guilty to sexual assault of child charge

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) — A judge said a case in which an elementary school teacher admitted a sexual affair with a teen-ager bears "eerie parallels" to a woman's affair in Washington state with a student.

Susan Charmaine Franklin, 43, pleaded guilty Wednesday to a charge of sexual assault of a child, ending her trial. She was accused of having a sexual relationship with her son's best friend.

"I'm sorry. I'm sorry," Mrs. Franklin said to the teen, then turned back to District Judge Thomas Culver III, who had ordered the apology.

Mrs. Franklin was sentenced to eight years' deferred adjudication, a form of probation that could allow the conviction to be erased from her record if successfully completed. The fact that she was charged will remain on her record regardless.

The judge ordered that the apology be the woman's last contact with the teen, now 17 but 15 at the time the sexual affair started.

"Please turn around and apologize to him right now for the embarrassment and damage you've caused," the judge said.

After the apology, the judge told her: "You have behaved as a sexual predator in this case. I hope this young man can get on with his life regardless of the impact of your actions. I hope you will get the psychological counseling you may need."

The woman's husband, John, their two teen-age sons, the victim and his family were in the courtroom when she changed her plea to guilty.

The families have been neighbors for several years and the victim and Franklin's older son were close friends since about age 5.

Defense lawyer Don Schwartz said the woman decided to plead guilty and end what promised to be a painful experience for both families.

"It was a very unselfish move on her part to put an end to all of this," he said, adding that her husband and sons remain supportive of her.

Mrs. Franklin had been a teacher in the Houston Independent School District for five years and had been placed on administrative duty since her arrest last May. Before the arrest, she was a third grade teacher at Ashford Elementary School.

District spokesman Terry Abbott said the district's criminal history review committee will examine the case.

"Termination in a case like this, of course, is expected," he said.

Fort Bend County Assistant District Attorney Barbara Barrera told jurors that Mrs. Franklin had sex with the teen at least six times between December 1996 and March 1997.

Most of the encounters were when the victim spent the night with her son, the prosecutor said.

"Mrs. Franklin would come wake him up, take him to another room and have sex," Ms. Barrera said in opening arguments.

The sexual affair ended after the victim's mother awakened before dawn one morning and found him missing. She then saw him get out of Mrs. Franklin's vehicle at 5:40 a.m.

The victim admitted during his brief testimony that he had the sexual encounters.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Leaks contribute to D.C. scandals

Information from anonymous sources still can be an important source of information.

As accusations and counter-accusations about leaks and premature stories fill the air in Washington, a few observations: It is unfortunate in many ways that leaks — droplets of information slipped to reporters and others on condition they not be attributed — are a way of life in Washington, but like many phenomena there are benefits as well as costs.

Stories based on leaks deprive readers of potentially relevant information about who is putting out a given story and what personal or political agenda the leak is designed to forward. When official sources dry up, whether for legal or leaks can be the public's most important source of information, or an incentive for the official sources to open up.

Whatever the trade-offs, leaks in Washington aren't going to stop. Readers are advised to approach most stories with caution. It's worth remembering that when this administration has the documentary evidence to refute a charge, it is capable of assembling the information and making it available to the press quickly. When allegations that political influence played a role in allocating funeral plots at Arlington National Cemetery surfaced, the White House assembled the information to rebut that charge within hours. (The later revelation that a former ambassador seems to have embellished his war record wasn't yet at issue.)

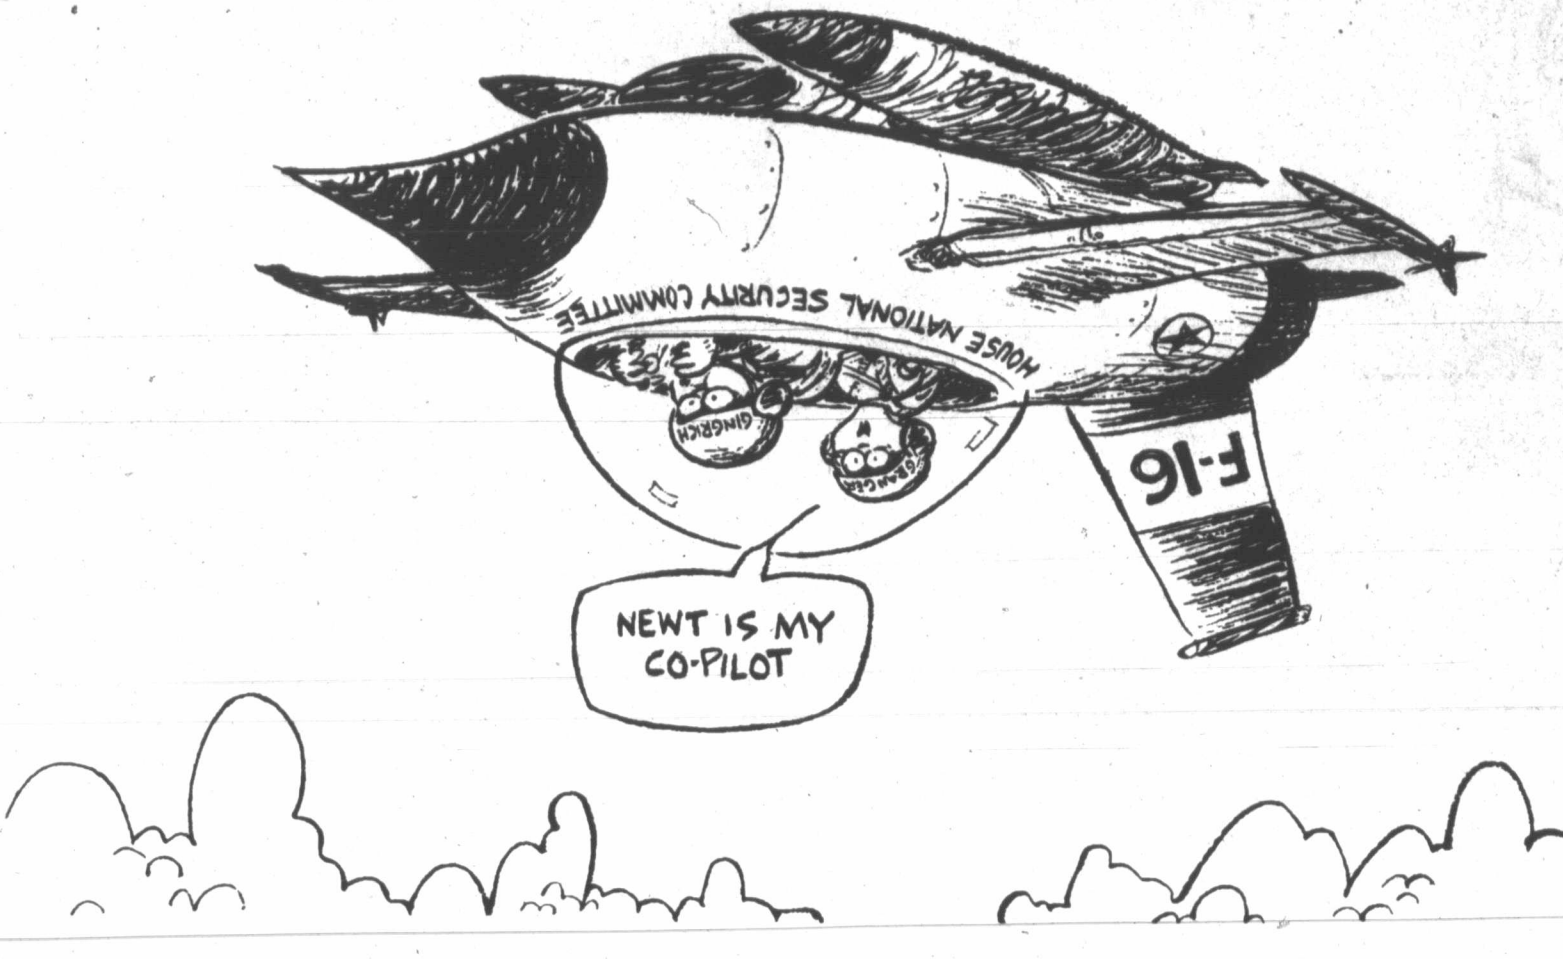

That said, the absence of a pile of exculpatory documents doesn't necessarily mean anybody in the White House is guilty of any or all of ethical breaches that have been bruited about. When the subject involves private meetings during which (presumably) no tape recorders were rolling, no documentary evidence may be available and different people can have different recollections about what occurred. And it could simply be shrewd but legitimate tactics to wait until actual charges are filed, or reports written and released, to respond.

It is instructive and amusing to see politicians in trouble, scrambling to get their stories straight and their allies lined up. It should remind us that political leaders are as human as the rest of us: poor candidates for sainthood and hardly likely to be able to run our lives better than we can — or better than they can run their own lives.

Something resembling truth will eventually emerge from the current flurry, and if it has legal implications serious enough to override the apparent contentment of most Americans with the economy, so be it. In the meantime, you might ponder whether you want any of these characters to have any more power over your life than they already do.

Nonsexual case against Clinton

Toward the end of his first term, William Jefferson Clinton declared: "One of my highest goals as president of the United States has been to protect the Constitution."

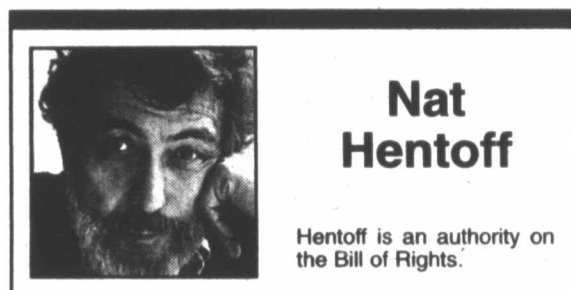

Yet throughout his years in office, Clinton has amassed more violations against the Constitution than any president of this century — and before. This failure to protect the Constitution ought to preoccupy the populace. But because the press has ignored it, the citizenry is also unaware of what is happening to the fundamental charter of our liberties and rights.

Clinton's record of being in contempt of the Constitution is far more dangerous to the future of the nation than charges that he has had sexual relations of one kind or another with a White House intern.

A partial list of the president's raids on the Constitution include his approval of a law that radically limits the oldest basic right in the English-speaking world: habeas corpus. It is the right to petition a federal court to review the actual fairness of a trial or a sentence in state court. Because of Clinton, the right to petition for a writ of habeas corpus has been limited to one year.

Since 1973, nearly 70 men on death row have been released after six, eight or 10 years — through habeas corpus — when their innocence has finally been proven. Their release has come through DNA testing, the work of investigators, and new, committed lawyers.

Because of Clinton's weakening of the right that Thomas Jefferson urged to be in the Constitution in its strongest form, some of the prisoners to be executed from now on will be innocent.

Clinton's contempt for the First Amendment was shown when he pushed his Justice Department to urgently defend, before the Supreme Court, the Communications Decency Act, which would have prohibited anything on the Internet that is not suitable for children. The Supreme Court disagreed with him 9 to 0.

A basic rule in our system of law is that you can't be punished without seeing the evidence against you. Nonetheless, Clinton had no problem supporting a law allowing the deportation of aliens suspected of "terrorism" who are not allowed — nor are their lawyers — to see the evidence against them. One expects this practice from a lawless regime, not from our country.

He has advocated warrantless police searches of public housing apartments, and he has insisted, so far unsuccessfully, on roving government wire taps so that a warrant for a wiretap on one particular phone would be extended to every other phone the person under suspicion used. If the person under suspicion were a visitor in your home, you would be part of a law enforcement record.

Robyn Blumner, the civil liberties expert of the St. Petersburg Times in Florida, notes: "One would be hardpressed to find a fundamental constitutional right that Clinton has not attacked legislatively or in the courts." For instance, "he signed into law legislation that stripped the courts of jurisdiction to hear claims of rights violations by the government against immigrants and prisoners — both marginal populations with virtually no political power."

It would be hard to find a president who has damaged the Constitution in so many different ways. That includes John Adams' 1798 Alien and Sedition Acts (which jailed reporters, editors and other citizens simply for criticizing the president or Congress); Abraham Lincoln's suspension of habeas corpus during the Civil War; Woodrow Wilson's nearly abolishing First Amendment Rights during World War I; and Dwight Eisenhower's silence about — and therefore complicity in — the attacks on free speech, free association and due process during the long night of McCarthyism.

Thomas Jefferson used to say that the only way constitutional democracy can survive as intended will be for Americans to be sufficiently informed to insist that their rights and liberties be protected. The press, except for a very few journalists, has failed to inform Americans of Clinton's record of limiting our rights and liberties.

He will probably survive the sex scandal at the White House, and he will survive his violation of the primary oath of his office — to protect the Constitution. Failing to report that violation is the worst failure of the American press in modern times.

Today is Thursday, Feb. 19, the 50th day of 1998. There are 315 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Feb. 19, 1945, during World War II, some 30,000 U.S. Marines landed on Iwo Jima, where they began a month-long battle to seize control of the island from Japanese forces.

On this date:

In 1473, the astronomer Copernicus was born in Torun, Poland.

In 1803, Congress voted to accept Ohio's borders and constitution. However, Congress did not get around to formally ratifying Ohio statehood until 1953.

In 1807, former Vice President Aaron Burr was arrested in Alabama. He was subsequently tried for treason and acquitted.

In 1846, the Texas state government was formally installed in Austin.

In 1878, Thomas Edison received a patent for his phonograph.

In 1881, Kansas became the first

In 1942, President Roosevelt signed an executive order giving the military the authority to relocate and intern Japanese-Americans.

In 1942, about 150 Japanese warplanes attacked the Australian city of Darwin.

In 1959, an agreement was signed by Britain, Turkey and Greece granting Cyprus its independence.

In 1963, the Soviet Union informed President Kennedy it would withdraw "several thousand" of an estimated 17,000 Soviet troops in Cuba.

In 1986, the U.S. Senate approved a treaty outlawing genocide, 37 years after the pact had first been submitted for ratification.

Ten years ago: A group calling itself the "Organization of the Oppressed on Earth" claimed responsibility for the kidnapping in Lebanon of U.S. Marine Lt. Col. William R. Higgins. Higgins was later slain by his captors.

Berry's World

Living on the edge

It appears to be a right-wing thing

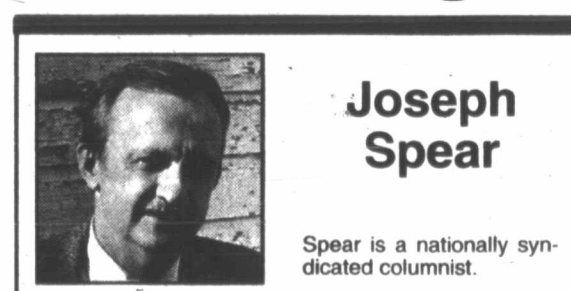

Clinton's predicament is not, in Hillary's unfortunate phrase, the product of a "vast right-wing conspiracy." It is, in the apt locution of conservative savant William Kristol, more the work of an "attack machine."

The triggerword "conspiracy" implies savvy and smarts, and the gaggle of wackos and wowers who are dedicated to the deposal of the president at any cost doesn't deserve that much respect. They don't conspire. They just load and fire.

The existence of a large contingent of fervid Clinton haters is well documented. They accuse him of satyriasis, theft, drug dealing and collusion in 56 murders. Normal people view this crowd, deservedly so, as a collection of screwballs.

But what of those who launched the investigation of the Whitewater land deal, which has devolved into the sex scandal that now threatens to besmirch the Clinton legacy for all time? Is it not ungenerous to ascribe political motive to them?

Well, let's see. In 1994, Whitewater was being probed by a veteran Republican prosecutor named Robert Fiske. But the two senators from North Carolina, Jesse Helms and Lauch Faircloth, did not regard him as sufficiently ardent. So they lunched with a Helms crony named David Sentelle, the judge who heads the panel that appoints independent counsels, and — coincidentally, of course Fiske was fired and

Joseph Spear

Spear is a nationally syndicated columnist.

Kenneth Starr was hired.

Why Starr? He had been a Supreme Court clerk, had been an administrator in the Ronald Reagan Justice Department, had been a Reagan solicitor general, had been a federal appeals judge, had been a private attorney. But he had never investigated anyone, had never sent anyone to jail. Is it possible Starr was chosen for his political expertise? Perish the thought.

So, let us sum up the situation in unambiguous language: A right-wing independent counsel is appointed by a right-wing judge after a meeting with two right-wing senators. The right-wing prosecutor continues his private practice, in which he has represented the Republican Party, Big Tobacco and a right-wing foundation. He takes time out to speak at a law school founded by a self-anointed holy man and right-wing crackpot.

Moving on: There resides in the land a rich right-wing publisher who bankrolls many right-wing foundations and publications that specialize in Clinton bashing. The right-wing publisher underwrites a school at Pepperdine University which the right-wing prosecutor Starr announces he will administer.

The right-wing prosecutor coerces the testimony of two documented liars but needs the help of a woman who refuses to cooperate, so he throws her in jail for a year and a half. By 1998, the right-wing prosecutor has spent $34 million and three-and-a-half years in the fruitless pursuit of Clinton's scalp, and he is getting desperate. Then a sex thing falls in his lap. Our right-wing prosecutor — son of a Church of Christ minister, former Bible salesman, pious ideologue who stops on his morning jog to sing hymns aloud — is in his element at last.

The way it comes about is this: A shrewish holdover from the Bush administration tape records a former White House intern talking about an affair with the president. The shrew tells a right-wing book agent, who arranges for a right-wing publisher, the telltale goes to the right-wing publisher, who wires her up to secretly record the intern. Newsweek magazine hears about the investigation and its nascent story is outed by a right-wing cyber gossip.

From this circumstantial evidence, I, too, have concluded that Clinton's plight is, by and large, a right-wing thing.

Things Are Lookin' Up At L.H.S. Lefors ISD Gets Bond Issue to Technology Grants

Lefors Superintendent Mr. Tom Alvis said that Lefors ISD has invested in a $108,608 grant for improvements on the technology system. There will be 32 computers distributed throughout the elementary and high school, with 2 computers and 1 printer in each classroom. All 32 computers also have a 5 year warranty and are upgradeable.

The computers will have access to the Internet that is hooked up to a T-1 line from the Region 16 Education Service Center in Amarillo. Students at Lefors will be required to have a document signed by both student and parent, indicating they will not access website not suitable for students.

Mr. Rick Pierce and Mr. Scott Carothers will be the trainers for the teachers on how to use the Internet.

Lefors is not the only school in this region that has invested in the grant, 46 other schools have combined to get a grant for over 6 million dollars.

Alvis quoted "It will be very nice and we are excited".

Lefors Choir Gives Sweetheart Banquet For Citizens

by: Katisha Kidd

Lefors choir members had a sweetheart banquet for fellow citizen on Saturday February 7, at 7:00 p.m. The choir worked very hard and decorated the school cafeteria with hearts and cupid, with a nice romantic setting.

The couples were escorted to their candle lit tables, and waited on by the choir members. Their meals consisted of salad, steak, or chicken, baked potato, greenbean casserole and hot rolls.

While the couples enjoyed their romantic dinners the choir members serenaded them. They were then served red velvet cake for dessert. It was a wonderful evening, and we hope to see everyone again next year.

Thank you for supporting your local choir, all profits go to a Colorado fund for contest in the spring.

The bond issue that was passed Jan. 31, will be used to help the school. The bonds are worth a total of $650,000.

The bond will be used to update the school in several areas where improvements are needed. A new heating and cooling system will be installed in the high school building along with new lighting that will cost less to operate. New lighting will also be put in the auditorium so that the school will be able to host district One-Act-Play. New lights will also be put in the new gymnasium.

These improvements will help the school run more efficiently and be cost effective.

Lefors Drops Volleyball For the 1998-1999 School Year

Lefors School Board met on Monday, Feb. 9 to discuss the issue of keeping Volleyball or doing away with it. After several students pushed the issue for more time for Basketball.

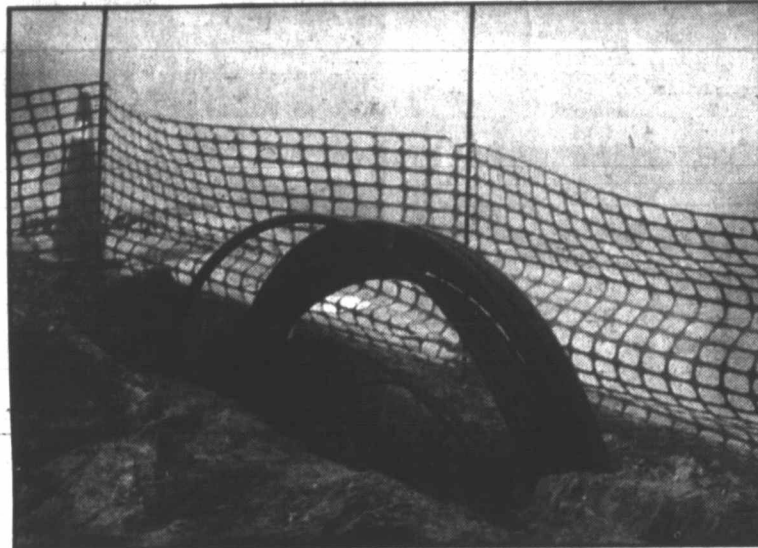

Some of Lefors students passed around a questionnaire, and it was decided that there was not enough interest to keep the Volleyball alive. The students believe if they have more time to work on one sport that they can be alot better at it. They wanted more time to concentrate on one sport.

Now that Volleyball was dropped there will be a new sport added to the girls athletic program cross-country. Some of the girls are really looking forward to the new sport.

Next year will be the test to see if dropping volleyball will help the basketball season.

On Tuesday February second, the Lady Pirates played Samnorwood at the Samnorwood gym. Although the ladies fought hard to win, they weren't able to gain the victory against the best team in the district. The final score was Lefors 36 Samnorwood 79. Trammel of Samnorwood scored 20 points and Summers of Lefors scored 9 points.

The following Friday, February sixth, the Lady Pirates played McLean at the Lefors gym. The Ladies fought hard to win against the McLean Tigers but their attempts were shut out. The final score was Lefors 43, McLean 65. Bockmon of Lefors had 15 points and Cline of McLean had 20 points.

The three Senior players, Nikki Bockmon, Angie Davenport, and Misty McMullen, received a dozen red roses from their parents before the game to commemorate their last competition in the home gym.

District play ended for the Pirates on Tuesday, February tenth at the Miami gym. The game was an important one because Miami had a chance to go to the playoffs against McLean. The Lady Pirates pulled off a smashing victory against the Warriorettes. The Pirates were in foul trouble in the last half with Nikki Bockmon fouling out, Melody Seely, Candid Ray, and Misty McMullen receiving four fouls by the fourth quarter. The Miami girls were also in foul trouble with Holly Barton fouling out, Natalie Glenn having four fouls and Erin Locke having three fouls. High scorers of the game were Seely of Lefors 12 points and Black of Miami with 9 points. The final score was Lefors 30, Miami 23.

Valentine's sweethearts

(Community Camera photos)

To celebrate Valentines Day, Furr's Family Dining held its 10th annual "Golden Anniversary Sweetheart's" event by honoring couples married for 50 years or more. Door prizes were donated by Bealls, Dunlaps, Shuler's Photography, Cinema 4 Theater, The Main Attraction, Albertson's and Furr's. Mark Gilbert, food and beverage manager at Furr's, congratulates: (left-right, top-bottom) Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Bertram — married Jan. 2, 1932; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wheeley — married Sept. 5, 1942; Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Gray — married July 12, 1931; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Turner — married Dec. 22, 1940.

Promise Keepers Christian ministry to lay off salaried staff, rely on volunteers

DENVER (AP) — Promise Keepers, the Christian ministry that rallied thousands of men in Washington last year and millions this decade, is laying off all 345 paid employees worldwide and will rely on volunteers.

The staff members, whose salaries will end March 31, will return if donations allow, the group said Wednesday.

The Denver-based ministry has attracted more than 2.7 million men to its events across the country since its founding in 1990.

At the "Stand in the Gap" rally in Washington on Oct. 4, founder Bill McCartney said the group no longer would charge admission — which had ranged as high as $60 — to its events.

The admission fees had provided 72 percent of the group's income and the change has hurt the organization's finances.

"We've known it's been coming," said Stephen Ruppe, director of public affairs. "We made some adjustments in July. We knew January and February are difficult months of the year for donations. Did we anticipate we couldn't pay the staff after March? No."

But he said the group's operations will continue as before. Promise Keepers is to announce this week the dates and locations for this year's 19 conferences.

Promise Keepers urges men to take more responsibility as husbands and fathers. Besides stadium events, it runs year-round "outreaches" to men through churches and has some 20,000 volunteers. The organization has eight regional offices and bureaus in Australia, New Zealand and Canada.

Promise Keepers' revenue grew from $4 million in 1993 to $87 million in 1996. Last year, its budget was $70 million.

McCartney, the group's chief executive since 1996, is not on the payroll and is paid only when he speaks at Promise Keepers events.

Handy Solution For Hanging Solves Placard Problem In Car

DEAR ABBY: I have a handicapped placard. I have noticed that a lot of people have a hard time getting the card to hook over the rearview mirror (and also removing it). I, too, was struggling and came up with the following idea:

I asked my husband for a three-quarter-inch metal washer. He tied a string on the washer, and then tied the string to the mirror — letting the washer hang down about two inches. I bought a small, sticky-backed magnet at the hardware store, which I attached to the back of my handicapped sign. All I have to do is touch the magnet to the metal ring, and the sign is visible and easy to hang or remove.

I hope this idea will help all those who have struggled trying to hang their handicapped placards. Just touch the magnet to the metal and be on your way!

JUNE PETERSON, REDWOOD CITY, CALIF.

DEAR JUNE: How kind of you to share your inspiration. I'm sure that many readers will find your idea helpful. Thank you for sharing it.

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

My dad says I should buy a piggy bank, but I got one last Christmas and that didn't work. How can I save my money?

MIKE CHARLES, ROSEMEAD, CALIF.

DEAR MIKE: To save money, you have to stop spending it. The only way your piggy bank will work is if you put money in it and don't take money out of it. Each time someone gives you money, immediately put half of it in your piggy bank, and before you know it, you will have saved enough to buy something special.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Living a Nightmare" could have been written by me almost eight years ago. I didn't think I could ever escape, but I did.

When I could stand it no longer, I had my husband put in jail for his abuse. Shortly thereafter, I was notified by his parents that he was being released on bail. They were having a party and wanted me to come. I knew what that meant, so I quickly packed my bags and left.

I went to the nearest shelter for abused women, where arrangements were made for me to transfer to another shelter — in another state. In order to survive, I had to change my name and get a new Social Security number. It was hard, but living is important to me.

I am now happily married and live an abuse-free life. I wish "Living a Nightmare" all the luck in the world and my prayers are with her. Abby, for obvious reasons, please do not print my name. Sign me ...

THE GIRL WHO GOT AWAY

DEAR GIRL: Congratulations on ending the abuse and redefining your life. I'm printing your letter as a beacon of hope to other victims of abuse, to let them know that although it may be difficult, a happy outcome is possible.

FOOTBALL

PAMPA — Defensive-line man Aaron Hayden and punter-kicker Josh Blackmon of the Pampa Harvesters signed letters-on-intent Tuesday at the PHS athletic office to play football at Southwestern Oklahoma State University in Weatherford.

Hayden, a 5-10 1/2 258-pound nose tackle, was a first-team, all-district pick each of the past two years, totaling 151 tackles.

Hayden was named to the Powered Top 50 players in the Top of Texas Area by Top of Texas Football last August.

Blackmon, at 6-0, 170-pounds, was an all-district performer the past two years, kicking 13 field goals and averaging 38 yards per punt over that span.

Josh's parents are Harold and Vicki Blackmon.

Aaron's parents are Jim and Susan Sinyard.

Three Harvester players have now signed letters-on-intent this year. Defensive line-man-running back Ronnie Proby signed earlier with West Texas A&M University.

BASKETBALL

DALLAS (AP) — Dennis Scott's disappointing stint in Dallas ended Wednesday night, when the Mavericks traded him to the Phoenix Suns for Cedric Ceballos.

The Mavericks announced the trade after the Suns' 110-103 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers on Wednesday night. Ceballos didn't play in the game.

Dallas sent Derek Harper and Ed O'Bannon to the Orlando Magic last Sept. 24 for Scott, a 6-foot-8 small forward in his eighth NBA season, with hopes he would provide some outside scoring punch.

But that never materialized. Scott has averaged only 39-percent shooting and 13.6 points in 52 games this season.

Mavericks coach and general manager Don Nelson said his trade for Scott wasn't a mistake.

"We traded him for Derek Harper and there was a lot of difference in age," Nelson said. "That was a consideration."

AUSTIN (AP) — If there was any strife between Texas coach Tom Penders and 7-foot freshman center Chris Mihm, it appears over now.

Mihm had 25 points, 15 rebounds and five blocked shots while providing dominating inside play as hot-shooting Texas rolled to an 87-74 victory over Texas A&M Wednesday night.

"He's my candidate for freshman of the year in the Big 12," Penders said. "With him being 7-feet tall, the impact he can have on a game is incredible. He's becoming a total player. He'll be a go-to guy for the next four years."

Mihm has averaged 20 points and 14 rebounds in three straight games since questioning Penders about why he played only 25 seconds in the final 13:25 of an 81-74 loss to Oklahoma on Feb. 8.

TENNIS

HANOVER, Germany (AP) — Showing no signs of the knee injury that threatened to end her career, Steffi Graf made a successful singles comeback Wednesday.

"I'm not happy with everything today, but I clearly have the feeling I can make it," said Graf, whose injuries forced her to delay her comeback five times and led to speculation she would never return.

Graf, who held the world's top ranking a record 374 weeks, had tested the knee in a doubles victory Monday, her first match since a June 3 loss to Amanda Coetzer of South Africa at the French Open.

In her first singles match in 8 1/2 months, Graf defeated German compatriot Andrea Glass 6-4, 6-2 in the second round of the $450,000 Faber Grand Prix.

NAGANO, Japan (AP) — Chris Witty did her job. Now it's up to Michelle, Tara and a burly group of bobsledders to give the United States a shot at its best Winter Olympics ever.

On a day when "The Herminator" flew and Tomba fell, Witty pushed the U.S. medal total to 11 in the Nagano Games today by taking the silver in the 1,000-meter speedskating.

With Michelle Kwan and Tara Lipinski 1-2 going into the women's figure skating final and the U.S. bobsled team a possible medal contender, the United States could surpass its previous best of 13 medals won four years ago in Lillehammer.

Witty, who won a bronze earlier in the games, became the only American double medalist despite falling a fraction of a second short to Marianne Timmer of the Netherlands. With only the 5,000-meter women's event left, this looks to be the first time since 1984 that U.S. speedskaters will fail to win gold in the Olympics.

"I felt I was just struggling a little bit," Witty said. "I'm a little sad, but pretty excited. Silver isn't too bad."

Hermann Maier, meanwhile, will bring two gold medals and memories of one horrific crash back from the Nagano Games. So far, Alberto Tomba has only gotten the crash part down.

With fans chanting "Her-mann, Her-mann," the Austrian daredevil raced twice down an icy slope to win the men's giant slalom. It was the second straight gold for "The Herminator" since he flew upside down off the downhill course last week in his Olympic debut.

Maier went all out, even though he didn't need to on his second run. It paid off, though he nearly lost control several times as he lengthened a nearly half-second lead after the first run to win with a time of 2 minutes, 38.51 seconds.

"I skied to the limit on a wonderful, fast track," Maier said. "I am not a hero. I am happy. Two together is unbelievable in my first Olympics."

Tomba, the swashbuckling Italian skiing hero, looked the way Maier did in his first race, crashing in the snow. After waiting 13 days to race, he lasted only 18 seconds before hooking a ski on a gate and skidding into a bright green safety net.

The two-time Olympic giant slalom champion will now have to wait until Saturday's slalom to try to medal in his fourth straight Olympics.

Tomba's fans were hardly fazed cheering their hero even as he glided cautiously to the bottom of the hill.

"He already has five Olympic medals," one said.

Stefan Eberharter of Austria finished second in 2:39.36 and Michael Von Gruenigen of Switzerland won the bronze in 2:39.69.

— SKIING: Hilde Gerg, whose bronze in the women's combined two days earlier was her first Olympic medal, may have been the most surprised of all in winning the slalom on a steep, treacherously slick hill that had humbled some of the top medal contenders.

Gerg was lifted in the air by teammate Katja Seizinger, arguably the world's best women skier, after a brilliant second run that gave her victory over Italy's Deborah Compagnoni by a slim six-hundredths of a second. Zali Steggall won Australia's first skiing medal by finishing third. Seizinger did not compete in the race.

Kristina Koznick of Burnsville, Minn., failed in her bid to become the first American to medal in the women's slalom since 1972. She was a distant ninth after the first of the day's two runs, then straddled the gate and was disqualified just before the finish of the second.

— SHORT TRACK: America's best hope for a medal in the women's 500-meter race never made it past her first-round heat. Amy Peterson, a bronze medalist in Lillehammer, finished a half-second out of first place in her heat.

Pampa gymnasts win TOT title

PAMPA — Gymnastics of Pampa members won the team title at their own Top O' Texas Invitational on Feb. 14. Teams from Amarillo, Lubbock and Pampa competed in the Level 4-8 meet held at the Gymnastics of Pampa gymnasium.

Leading Team Pampa to first place was Erin Coffey, first-year Level 8 gymnast. Coffey has an excellent competition and also won the Level 8 All-Around title. Her All-Around score of 34.55 was a personal best this season. She took the gold on balance beam - 8.95; floor exercise, 8.9; vault, 8.4, and was second on the uneven bars, 8.3.

Teammate Abby Cavalier, also a first-year Level 8, won the silver medal in the All-Around with her personal best score of the season. Cavalier won the gold on the uneven bars, 8.5, second on floor exercise, 8.75; second on balance beam, 8.45, and third on vault, 7.7. Her All-Around score was 33.4.

Erin and Abby will travel to Plano for the North State semi-finals Feb. 21. The top gymnasts at North State will qualify to compete at the Level 8 Championships in Fort Worth in April.

Competing in Level 6 competition at the Top O' Texas Invitational were Alyssa Bromwell and Jaclyn Spearman. Bromwell had an outstanding day and won the gold medal in the 11-12 year-olds. In only her third competition as a Level 6, Bromwell had an excellent 34.3 All-Around. She took the gold on the uneven bars, 8.7 and balance beam, 8.7, and second on floor exercise, 8.5, and vault, 8.4.

Spearman tied for the gold in the 10-year-old All-Around. She had the highest individual score, a 9.3 on the floor exercise, of the day, which earned her the gold medal. She also won first on vault, 8.7; first on balance beam, 7.7 and third on bars, 7.4. Spearman's winning All-Around score was a 33.1.

In the Level 5 competition, Amy Youree came out on top in the All-Around. Her winning score was a 31.9. She also won the gold medal on the floor exercise with an excellent score of 9.2. She was second on the bars, 7.9; beam, 7.7 and vault 7.1.

Also in Level 5, Ashlee Ferguson finished second in the All-Around with a 29.6. She won the gold on bars, 8.0 and beam, 7.9, and was second on the floor exercise, 8.6.

Participating for Pampa in the Level 4 division were Amy Freeman, Lacie Long, Cortnee White, Kendall Stokes, Becky Diggs, Brittany Warminski and Allison Ware.

Amy Freeman received red ribbons for balance beam, 8.1 and floor exercise 8.5. She also received a yellow ribbon for All-Around, 30.3.

Lacie Long received a red ribbon for beam, 8.4, whites for floor, 7.9, and bars, 7.6, and a yellow for All-Around, 30.1.

Cortnee White earned a red ribbon for floor, 8.2; whites for bars, 7.6, and beam, 7.7.

First-time competitor Kendall Stokes earned a red ribbon on bars, 8.2; white on floor, 7.5, and yellow on beam, 7.2.

Becky Diggs received a red ribbon on bars, 8.0, and floor, 8.0. She also earned a yellow ribbon on beam, 7.2.

Brittany Warminski received red ribbons for beam, 8.6, and floor, 8.2. She also received a yellow on bars, 7.4.

Allison Ware earned white ribbons on floor, 7.8, and beam, 7.7.

The Level 4, 5 and 6's of Team Pampa will be competing in a meet at Clinton, Okla. on Feb. 28.

PHS tennis team to compete at Plainview

PAMPA — The Pampa High School varsity tennis team will compete in its second tournament of the year Friday and Saturday at Plainview.

Pampa placed fifth in last weekend at the Wichita Falls Tournament.

Juniors Mandy Wells and Valerie Lee each won three of their four singles matches in placing third and eighth, respectively. Sophomores Emily Curtis and Emily Waters placed fourth in girls' doubles while junior Kellen Waters and senior McKinley Quarles won two of their four girls' doubles matches.

Senior Dustin Laycock and junior Bryce Hudson placed sixth in boys' doubles with sophomore Matt Rains and freshman Michael Cornelison teaming up to finish seventh. Senior Jason Vickery and junior Russell DuBose each won two of their four boys' singles matches.

Players of the week are Wells and Cornelison.

Team point totals from the Wichita Falls Tournament are as follows: 1. Midland Lee 90; 2. Ardmore, Okla. 84; 3. Borger 72; 4. Wichita Falls High 69; 5. Pampa 67; 6. Vernon 52; 7. Burkburnett 45; 8. Weatherford 28.

"We shook off some rust and had some bad luck, but we are hopeful for improvement in the next few weeks," said Pampa head coach Larry Wheeler.

Last fall, Pampa won its first ever District Team championship.

Red Raiders fall in OT

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Brett Robisch scored 33 points, including two free throws with 3.5 seconds left in overtime Wednesday night that lifted Oklahoma State to an 83-81 victory over Texas Tech.

Adrian Peterson added 23 points and Desmond Mason chipped in 14 for the Cowboys (19-4, 9-4 Big 12), who remained three games behind league-leader Kansas.

Cory Carr, who led the Raiders (12-11, 6-7) with 33 points, hit his fourth 3-pointer of the game as time ran out in regulation to send the game into overtime at 74-74.

He then scored Tech's first 7 points in overtime to put the Raiders up 81-78 with 1:41 left.

But Robisch converted a three-point play with 1:22 remaining and iced the game with his clutch free throws. Carr sent Robisch to the free-throw line with his fifth foul as they battled for a rebound.

Tech had one last chance to win it, but Stan Bonewitz's 3-pointer at the buzzer was blocked by Doug Gottlieb.

The Raiders scored the first 14 points of the second half to take a 46-39 lead five minutes in. But the Cowboys regained the lead at 70-66 with 1:42 left before Carr took over.

Robisch dominated the early going and led OSU to a 39-32 half-time lead.

Tech stayed close thanks to Stanley Bonewitz, who finished with 18 points, including four 3-pointers.

Pampa's Rayford Young added 10 points for Tech.

It's busy day of pro football signings

By The Associated Press

The pace was dizzying. A glut of new contracts were signed or offered Wednesday in the NFL as several teams sought to make the most of the free agent market.

Among those making moves were the San Diego Chargers, who filled a critical need by signing left tackle John Jackson from Pittsburgh and also revealed they are trying to get back Natrone Means from Jacksonville.

Among those getting the biggest bounties were cornerbacks Jeff Burris of Buffalo and Doug Evans of Green Bay, who joined new teams and the ranks of the highest-paid defensive backs in the league.

Among others lured to new teams were Atlanta defensive tackle Dan Owens, who signed with Detroit; and Chicago offensive tackle Jon Clark, who signed with Arizona.

Two current Cardinals — defensive lineman Brent Burnstein and fullback Cedric Smith — were among five players who simply came to new terms with their own teams. The others were Pro Bowl linebacker Jessie Armstead of the New York Giants; defensive end Jeff Lageman of Jacksonville; and nose tackle Joel Steed of Pittsburgh.

The Chargers reportedly signed Jackson away from Pittsburgh with a six-year contract worth $26 million, offered Means a three-year contract and extended a three-year contract offer to Chicago quarterback Erik Kramer.

"We're really happy to have a day like this at the Chargers," San Diego general manager Bobby Beathard said.

Jackson, 33, spent 10 years in Pittsburgh and was a two-time Pro Bowl player. Means, who has been a starting running back for Jacksonville the past two seasons, spent three years in San Diego, but was released in a dispute involving his agent.

"The bad blood that led to my release was between the team and my agent, not Beathard and me," Means said.

Cornerbacks Burris and Evans struck deals that put them in the average annual salary neighborhood with Dallas' Deion Sanders, who earns $5 million, and Atlanta's Ray Buchanan, who earns about the same.

Evans signed a five-year, $22.5 million contract with Carolina, with a signing bonus of $7.5 million. Burris reportedly agreed to a $20 million, five-year contract with the Colts. His signing bonus is $5 million.

Armstead, who had four years left on his contract following his first Pro Bowl season, was awarded a new five-year deal. Terms were not released, but the contract is believed to be worth about $15 million, which would make him one of the NFL's highest-paid linebackers and among the top three wage earners on the Giants.

"It's a one-of-a-kind thing," said Drew Rosenhaus, Armstead's agent. "I can't recall another team tearing up a contract with four years left on it to reward a player for a Pro Bowl year. But he just outperformed his old contract."

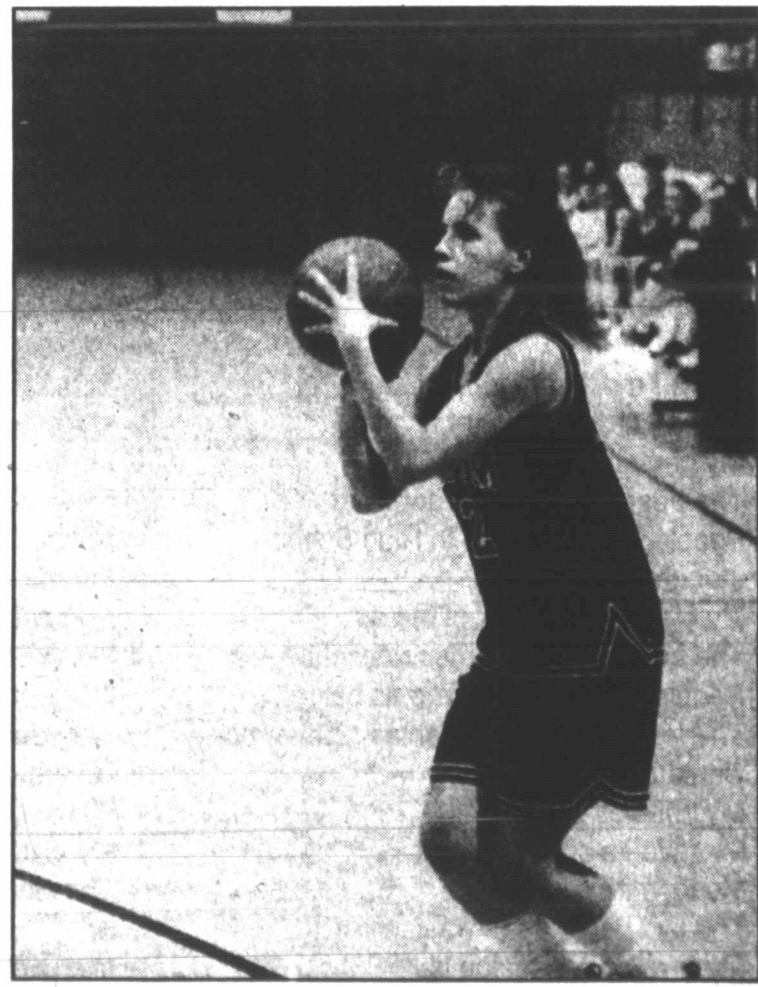

The Steelers, who have made a habit of losing players to free agency, re-signed Steed to a four-year, $17 million deal, fulfilling their top priority in free agency.

Lageman was one of eight Jaguars to become unrestricted free agents last week. Of those, tight end Rich Griffith has re-signed with the team, while fullback Ty Hallock has signed with the Chicago Bears.

Terms of Owens' contract with Detroit were not disclosed. His signing comes a week after the Lions signed free agent linebacker Allen Aldridge of Denver and re-signed wide receiver Johnnie Morton and offensive tackle Ray Roberts.

Smith and Burnstein each signed one-year contracts with Arizona, terms of which weren't disclosed.

Harry Caray is dead at 77

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP)—Nobody sang "Take Me Out to the Ballgame" with the same unbridled enthusiasm. When he bellowed "Holy Cow," there was no mistaking his raspy voice. Harry Caray personified baseball to countless fans.

A failed ballplayer who was a huge success in the broadcast booth, he projected his zest for the game — and for life — across the airwaves for more than a half-century.

Caray, who was believed to be 77, died Wednesday of cardiac arrest.

His death was mourned by many, including baseball people, First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton and fans across the country.

Caray, who always considered himself just one of the guys in the bleachers, would say, "You can't beat fun at the old ballpark." And he seemed to live that line.

manager helped Caray get a job at WCLS in Joliet, Ill. By 1946, Caray was back in St. Louis and the "Voice of the Cardinals" for KMOX.

After 25 years behind the mike in St. Louis, Caray was fired in 1969 after a dispute with the Busch family. He spent the next season broadcasting Oakland Athletics games, then signed on with the White Sox in 1971 and quickly built a following.

After Jerry Reinsdorf and Eddie Einhorn bought the White Sox, Caray jumped to the Cubs in 1982 and onto cable superstation WGN-TV.

With his thick, oversized glasses and colorful style, Caray became familiar to a nationwide audience.

During his 15 years with the hapless Cubs, he was fond of spelling names backward and mentioning fans, including his favorite bartenders, who were visiting the ballpark.

"Happy Birthday to So-and-So. ... Happy Anniversary to So-and-So. That's always been my way of acknowledging the fans," he wrote in his 1989 autobiography, "Holy Cow."

Another favorite Caray exclamation was "It might be, it could be, it is — a home run!" and he'd shout "Cubs win! Cubs win! Cubs win!" after each Chicago victory. He said he developed his trademark phrases during a semipro baseball tourney at Battle Creek, Mich.

Caray died four days after having a heart attack during a Valentine's Day dinner with his wife at a nightclub restaurant near their winter home.

Eisenhower Medical Center spokesman said funeral arrangements were pending. Family spokesman Bill Willis said he believed there would be two services, one in Rancho Mirage and another in Chicago.

Fond of beer, Caray was known as the "Mayor of Rush Street," a popular nightclub district, and his downtown restaurant has remained popular since its 1987 opening.

In later years as Caray's health began to fail, his broadcasts were full of scrambled names and other mistakes. He often complained that criticism of his broadcasting skills began only after he

"It's really been a heck of a run for Harry — just an amazing human being. He squeezed every drop out of about four lifetimes. He really lived life to the fullest," Cubs general manager Ed Lynch said.

Hall of Famer Stan Musial said: "We're going to miss old Harry. He was always the life of the party, the life of baseball."

Mrs. Clinton said Caray helped her celebrate her 50th birthday.

"Harry was one of a kind and nobody could sing 'Take Me Out to the Ballgame' like he could. And I hope he's doing a seventh-inning rendition in heaven," Mrs. Clinton said.

David MacAskill, a bartender at Harry Caray's restaurant in Chicago, said, "He wasn't a big shot and he made you feel at home. He was a big part of baseball. Part of the Cubs' spirit died today."

An orphan from a rough St. Louis neighborhood, Caray dreamed of playing major league baseball. But as a teenager, he attended a tryout with the Cardinals and was rejected.

So he decided that he should break into the game as a broadcaster. Caray bravely wrote a letter to KMOX, claiming he could do a better job calling Cardinals games than the station's announcer were doing. Impressed by his determination, the station

"We're going to miss old Harry. He was always the life of the party, the life of baseball."
