WASHINGTON By George Durno

Fundy—
For the past two days Secretary of Interior Ickes and a Public Administration engineer have been taking a personal look at the idea which flows in Passamaquoddy Bay, northernmost in Maine, to determine whether they can be harnessed with profit.
The trip of Ickes to the Canadian border has a most interesting background. You may recall that on Aug. 4 the New York end of this column predicted "an official announcement in two or three weeks."
As a result of his inspection the chances are more than good that the Passamaquoddy power project will be developed as the federal government's fifth major step into the power business—although three governmental agencies have frowned on it as a private enterprise.

Democratic politics in Maine and President Roosevelt's personal interest in the idea will be responsible if Passamaquoddy Bay is put to work in the interests of low-cost power for New England.
Mr. Roosevelt has spent many vacations on the Bay of Fundy, a portion of which is in Canadian territory. Because of unusual topography the tide rises and lowers 60 feet. The Executive has long been fascinated with the idea of putting this tremendous pull and haul to work.

The same tidal condition prevails in adjoining Passamaquoddy Bay, off Eastport, Me. Politicians of the Rockbound State have harped on its development for years.

Dexter Cooper, a private engineer, conceived the idea of exploiting all this latent horsepower with the aid of PWA funds. Incorporating himself, Cooper asked PWA for a $47,000,000 loan. (See this column for October and November last.)

The Finance Division of PWA, the PWA Board of Review and the Federal Power Commission all looked into the proposition. Each reached the same conclusion. Power was available in tremendous quantity but the project was economically unsound at present because limited immediate market and cost of building transmission lines to reach more distant centers.
Cooper's proposal was turned down cold and PWA officials dismissed Passamaquoddy from their minds as a dead turkey.

Last week Governor Bramm of Maine made a special visit to Washington. He called at the White House. No stenographic report was made of his talk with the President but it's fair to assume the new low-cost methods of power transmission were given a thorough discussion.
PWA is out of money at the moment and will continue to be so until

Sweetwater Will Retain City Manager

New Charter Is Rejected In Heavy Vote In Tuesday Election

SWEETWATER—Sweetwater's city manager form of government, main issue of a city charter referendum that produced one of the most bitter campaigns on record here, was re-elected by a heavy majority vote Tuesday.
There were 1,980 ballots cast against election of a commission with authority to draft a new city charter, to 634 for the commission.
It was by far the largest vote ever cast here. The city's polling strength is estimated at 2,100, including exemptions and 80 per cent of the voters—1,894—cast ballots.
Sweetwater has operated under city-manager government since 1927, and has had only one manager Sam Bothwell.

The group which favored a new government document did not make public any charter provisions they would change, but it was understood from the beginning of the movement, several months ago, that the commission, if named, would sign the death warrant of Sweetwater's commission-manager government.

Speeches and rallies were conducted in the campaign last week, but a "battle of circulars" marked Monday and election day itself, with three "issues" appearing during a 14-hour interval.

City commissioners called the election on petition of about 400 persons, headed by A. C. Cook, Horace Wade, W. S. Candiff and Shirley McGlaun.

Submitted as prospective members of the proposed commission of 15 were the following: Walter Carter, Will H. Scott, C. A. Bishop, Leroy Johnson, S. M. Hall, T. H. Mayfield, Jr., A. C. Cook, Robert A. Sone, S. O. Cress, A. A. House, E. Q. Daniel, S. Henry, Horace Webb, J. H. Snell and Brack Mitchell.

Danger From Volcano Said To Be Passed

Stromboli Volcano In Eruption Tuesday; Damage Is Slight

ISLAND OF STROMBOLI, Italy (AP)—Authorities said Wednesday danger from Tuesday's eruption of Stromboli volcano was over, although it was still snorting defiantly, disgorging burning rock from the crater.
Island inhabitants said damage was limited to isolated vineyard fires. The lava did not reach farms.

The mountains of northern India and central Asia were uplifted about one million years ago.

State Park Site To Be Transformed Into Scenic Beauty

It is a phenomenon.

With such extraordinary object as a nucleus, it can be made a beautiful thing.
Thus Thompson Richardson, C.C.C. camp superintendent, looks upon Scenic Mountain as he begins a long series of improvements which will in all probability completely transform the plot of ground dedicated as a state park during the administration of Former Governor Pat M. Neff.

Drives, terraced around steep slopes by massive masonry, solid mortar wall of native rock around the ston cap of the mountain; a rustic club house with piazza; a swimming pool hewn out of rock and set against a background of rugged stone; an amphitheatre nestled between the hills; green terraces topping the northeast point—these are a few of the things Richardson visions for Scenic Mountain state park within a year's time.

Already his plans are taking form. Roads, once laid off in good faith, are being completely reworked, widened and made to follow a course like a road instead of a bridle path.

There is no criticism of people who built the former roads, but they made those roads with extremely limited funds and help. They had to follow the shortest route and only enough road surface for a single car could be afforded.

Now, with a world of labor and plenty of time, Richardson is directing C.C.C. workers to throw up a road bed, blast out obstructing boulders, construct enduring rock walls to hold in the road around slopes, and bend the drive in true curves. This not only makes the drive safer, but it adds untold beauty. And when the crushed rock topping is placed on the drive it will be a joy to ride upon it.
In at least two places there is a

Rogers Speaks For Allred On Tuesday Nite

Attacks Two Planks In Hunter's Platform; Large Crowd Present

Senator Woodville Rogers of San Antonio spoke at the courthouse lawn Tuesday night in the interest of the candidacy of James V. Allred, for governor of Texas. There were approximately 500 people present. Senator Rogers was introduced by L. S. Patterson, local chairman of the Allred-Ford-Governor club. Mr. Rogers immediately launched an attack upon two planks of Tom F. Hunter's platform for governor. He spoke of Attorney General Allred as "my friend and a man who is honest and eminently qualified because of a public service record which mirrors nothing but merit."

The senator, who has been in the field 10 days for Allred, explained his contribution in the campaign is unselfish, that neither he nor the other 150 Allred speakers are receiving money for their expenses, that the fact that more than 200 speeches were made by the Allred political corps in one day, Saturday, Aug. 11, means essentially that Allred is preeminently fitted for the governor's chair, and that Hunter should not be considered favorable governmental timber.

He struck out at Hunter's platform proposal to abolish the state ad valorem tax, to set up a governor's cabinet arbitrarily picked in lieu of the democratic birthright of the people to choose their officers, and his defense against an elastic "blended tax" which supplants an earlier "vicious and iniquitous sales tax." He accused Hunter of favoring a general sales tax based on the ability of the people to pay, and charged that Hunter had denied this in spite of documentary evidence to the contrary.

Sen. Rogers was interrupted several times by remarks from the crowd and once paused in his address.

Herald Extras To Give Complete Election Returns

The Daily Herald, as usual, will supply election returns Saturday through extra editions and loud-speaking equipment at its office at 210 East Third street.

All county, district and congressional race results will be broadcast over loud-speaking equipment furnished by Anderson Music company.
State returns from the Texas Election Bureau in Dallas by means of a private wire direct to The Herald business office will be given out through extra editions to be issued at intervals beginning at 9 o'clock, and continuing until midnight. No state returns on any race will be given out through broadcasting facilities or otherwise, but only the extra editions will carry this information.

The Herald management will distribute extra editions in the business district ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE. It is not known at this time how many extras will be issued, but a sufficient number will be printed to keep the public informed as to the governor's and other races.

The Texas Election Bureau forbids broadcasting or bulletin service, and the only means by which returns can be divulged will be through extra and regular editions of the member papers.

The public is cordially invited to hear returns from the county, state and district broadcast from in front of its office Saturday night. No returns will be given over the telephone, and The Herald requests the public not ask for election returns by telephone. All phones in the office Saturday night will be taxed to the limit in an effort to secure quick returns.

To combat a jackrabbit plague, commissioners of Collingsworth county, Texas, offered a 5-cent bounty on each pair of rabbit's ears for a 60-day period.

Shorter Hours For 200,000 Workers

Increase Of 11 Per Cent To Go Into Effect October 1

WASHINGTON (AP)—The NRA Wednesday announced presidential approval of the reduction of weekly work hours from forty to thirty-six without cut in weekly wages for 200,000 cotton garment industry workers, effective October 1st.

The NRA said the effect of the order was equivalent not only to an increase of about eleven per cent in hourly pay rate and a raise of about ten per cent above May 1st levels in piece rates, but also to permit reemployment of over 10,000 workers.

Direct cost to the consumer of changes, officials estimated, was under two per cent.

EFFORTS MADE TO AVERT GENERAL TEXTILE STRIKE

WASHINGTON (AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said Wednesday every effort would be made to avert a general strike in the textile industry.

Green told reporters the Federation would give the textile union its whole support if the strike developed, adding: "We will seek to settle the controversy without a resort to strike."

Green said he believed the action of the administration in reducing hours in the cotton garment industry would have a "strong psychological effect on the cotton textile situation."

AAA Bolsters Farm Program

New Legislation To Have More Teeth; Revisions To Be Made

WASHINGTON (AP)—The AAA began work Wednesday to draft legislation to strengthen its farm program and perhaps to put more teeth in it.

Experts were busy writing new proposals and revising those that failed in congress.

Chief of the new measures would be to the feed storage bill aimed at clarifying, revising and extending powers to make loans on farm commodities stored under seal.

It also will seek to put Secretary Wallace's plan for "ever-normal" granaries into effect. Grains and cotton would be held on farms under government loans, but farmers would have to sell when the price reached "the fixed point."

The public is cordially invited to hear returns from the county, state and district broadcast from in front of its office Saturday night. No returns will be given over the telephone, and The Herald requests the public not ask for election returns by telephone. All phones in the office Saturday night will be taxed to the limit in an effort to secure quick returns.

George Mahon To Speak In City Thursday

Candidate For Congress In Final Appeal To Voters Thursday Evening

WASHINGTON (AP)—The NRA Wednesday announced presidential approval of the reduction of weekly work hours from forty to thirty-six without cut in weekly wages for 200,000 cotton garment industry workers, effective October 1st.

The NRA said the effect of the order was equivalent not only to an increase of about eleven per cent in hourly pay rate and a raise of about ten per cent above May 1st levels in piece rates, but also to permit reemployment of over 10,000 workers.

Direct cost to the consumer of changes, officials estimated, was under two per cent.

GEORGE MAHON

George Mahon, Colorado, who received a commanding plurality in his first Democratic primary in his race for congressman from the new 19th district, will make his final appeal to voters of Howard county Thursday evening at 8:30 from the courthouse lawn.

Now serving his fourth term as district attorney of the 32nd judicial district, Mahon carried 16 of the 25 counties in the district and led his nearest opponent in 19 counties.

Mahon formerly served as district attorney here when Howard was in the 32nd judicial district. He is a graduate of Hardin-Simmons University and took his law degree from Texas university.

His program includes tariff adjustments designed to expand foreign trade to provide markets for farm products, no more tax exempt securities, old age pension program, farm and home ownership program; fair deal to labor, federal curb on indecent literature, immediate payment of the bonus.

Mahon supporters are planning a rally here Thursday for the occasion.

Cattle Buying Resumed Here

Three Hundred Seventy-Five Purchased Tuesday; Quota Of 240

Three hundred and seventy-five head of cattle were purchased in Howard county Tuesday in the government's cattle buying program.

Tuesday was the first day's regular run since the matter of purchasing has been straightened out. All kinds are now being bought, while for several days, cattle were purchased only for the canning plant here.

County agent O. P. Griffin announced a quota of eighty head a day to be shipped out and one hundred head a day for the canning plant, making a total of two hundred forty per day.

Griffin said he did not know whether the quota could be reached every day or not. He expressed the opinion that all early offers would be worked out by the first part of next week and probably a few late offers.

Griffin said cattle buying here should be completed by the first of October.

Cattle was purchased in the Vincent territory Tuesday and around Luther Wednesday, Thursday the inspector and appraiser go to Comho, Friday to R-Bar, and Saturday work southwest out of Big Spring.

Fear was expressed Wednesday that the canning plant would be forced to shut-down again for a few days. Interruption in the cattle buying caused the supply of chilled meat to run low.

Hunting, Fishing, Trapping Licenses May Now Be Secured

New hunting, fishing and trapping licenses may now be secured at the county clerk office. The old licenses expire Aug. 31. They are good for only one year. Only one new license had been issued Wednesday morning.

4000 Men Go Back To Jobs; Trucks Resume

Vehicles Move About For First Time Since July 16th

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Over 4000 men returned to work Wednesday after termination of the truck strike, marked by death, violence and military rule.

For the first time since July 16th, commercial vehicles moved unrestricted and unguarded over streets that July 30th were stained with blood of sixty-eight persons, two of whom died.

5 Prisoners Escape Jail In Indiana

Alleged Slayer Of Policeman, Among Those Making Get-Away

NORLEYSVILLE, Indiana (AP)—Five prisoners, including Williams H. (Willie) Mason, alleged slayer of Sergeant Lester Jones, Indianapolis policeman, sawed their way out of the Hamilton county jail Wednesday. Apparently assisted from the outside, the men lowered themselves twelve feet to the ground with a heavy chain after sawing the second story window bars.

Rainey's Body Lies In State

Funeral Held Late Wednesday Afternoon, With President Attending

CARROLLTON, Illinois (AP)—"Borrowing-home folks" received the body of Henry T. Rainey, speaker of the house Wednesday, then awaited arrival of President Roosevelt and late in the afternoon funeral services.

The body of Rainey, who died unexpectedly in St. Louis Sunday, arrived Wednesday morning. It was borne into the Greene county courthouse to lie in state until funeral time.

Voting To Fall Short Of Record

At 11 a. m. Wednesday, the last day for voting absentee ballots in person, two hundred and sixty-seven votes had recorded.

It appeared that voting would fall approximately fifty short of the record 350 absentee ballots cast in the first primary.

Thursday will be the last day for absentee voting by mail.

BACK TO WOODWARD

Most comforting aspect of the democratic run-off primary, pointing to the voters' inherent good sense...

This race has been interesting and unusual. When it started Senator Woodward seemed a sure winner...

The attorney general in many respects is as important a public officer as the governor. He is the personal attorney to each department of the state government...

Another list came in signed "an honest, efficient and careful observer." But the department, doubting the writer's honesty, efficiency and carelessness, withheld his selection.

Some of the softball team managers have been creating a big fuss over not being admitted to the new league just organized. The new loop was organized with just six teams so that each club could play at least two games per week.

Officials of the Cowboy's Reunion to be staged here are asking for use of the lights on the softball diamond. The department favors having those in charge put up twenty-five dollars as a sort of reminder of their promises.

There were plenty who maintain that England has enough to do at home without worrying about what happens overseas. That's a natural viewpoint, common in all nations.

FITTING MEMORIAL It is highly fitting that the body of von Hindenburg should be buried on the battlefield of Tannenberg, where his armies routed the Russians in 1914 and saved East Prussia from invasion.

And thus he, like the battle, became a symbol—both inside of Germany, and elsewhere. What a man actually did can be less important than what everyone believes he did; and so it was with von Hindenburg.

As long as Germans write history, probably, he will be the man who beat back the Russians. Where else should he rest but on the field that brought him his greatest fame?

the civil law. Thus, a million Texans, when they go to the polls Saturday, will be, in effect, employing their personal counsel for two years. If Woodward is the choice, they will have employed a seasoned and tested civil lawyer of 25 years experience; a former assistant in the office he now seeks to head; a state senator for 10 years, chairman or member of most of the important committees; author of many bills, now a part of the organic law of the state, designed to promote and protect the public welfare.

William McCraw can not match these qualifications. He is a criminal lawyer purely and his contact with the departments of the state government has been restricted mainly to correspondence with the comptroller over the matter of fees as a criminal district attorney of Dallas county. His large vote in the first primary is attributable to spellbinding on the hustings and a certain political shrewdness learned in the catch-as-catch-can game of criminal law.

Although now indicated by the draft, Senator Woodward's victory is by no means assured. It depends on whether the electorate, which is awakening in the final stages, stays awake through Saturday.

A FATHER DOES BEST AS FORGIVING FRIEND

There is something tragically revealing about the plight of that Oklahoma gentleman whose son is being held in connection with the death of a University of Oklahoma co-ed.

"I was a stern, strict father," says this man. "I told my boys I expected them to stay out of trouble. I see my mistake now. If I should have told them to do everything possible to avoid trouble, but if they got in trouble to come first to me."

In this simple and pathetic statement we have a repetition of the cry that parents have been making for generation after generation—a cry born of the wisdom which heartbreak brings too late.

Over and over again, sorrowing human beings have had to learn by bitter experience that there can be no substitute for sympathetic and comradely understanding.

Youth needs wise advice and it needs intelligent discipline; but most of all it needs that taken-for-granted fellowship which is the final refuge when advice has been ignored and discipline has been flouted.

A man has a son, and he would give his very soul to bring the youngster safely past the myriad pitfalls that lie along youth's path. He tells the boy, as clearly as he can, what those pitfalls are, and how they can be avoided, and he lets the young man see how greatly father relies on son to get by them unharmed.

But, because youth is youth, every now and then some youngster comes to grief. And when he sees what he has done, and thinks of the blow that knowledge of it will bring to his father, he is appalled, and he says something like this: "I am in a jam, and if I tell my father he will be heart-broken; or he will be scornful because I haven't had the strength to do as he advised me to do. So I will say nothing, and I will try to get myself out of this fix before he finds out what has happened."

And then, all too often, fumbling and panic-stricken youth stumbles and brings the world, at last, down about his ears, and spoils things beyond fixing.

Being a parent brings a person many grave responsibilities. But none is greater than this: "To keep, always, above the disciplinary and the advisor, a friend whose forgiveness and understanding are beyond measure."

For youth will make mistakes in spite of all we do. When that happens, the parent's real job begins.

ANIMAL AND MAN

The way some people can worry about the suffering of animals and be quite unmoved by the suffering of humans is a strange social phenomenon.

In Red Bank, N. J., there was a jobless housepainter who was despondent. For two days neither he nor his wife had had anything to eat. Furthermore, his wife was sick.

Now it happened that three homeless kittens, equally starved, attached themselves to his house at that time. Their hungry yowling was more than he could stand, so he put them in a sack and took them to the town hall, asking that they be disposed of. But the town couldn't do it unless he paid a $3 fee, which he lacked; so he took them far out into the woods and turned them loose.

Phillips Leads In Ringer Tournament

Mrs. G. I. Phillips leads in the Municipal Ringer golf tournament with a single score of 37. Her score by holes: 444-535-534-37.

Mrs. Gentry and Mrs. Tatum are neck and neck for the prize to the player who lowered her score the most. Mrs. Gentry has lowered her while Mrs. Tatum has lowered her first round score 19 strokes.

Fourteen Entrants Fourteen ladies have entered to date. The tourney will continue through September. All players have been showing keen interest, with most of the rounds being played in the early morning and late afternoon to avoid the midday heat.

Other Golfers May Play—Prizes Other golfers have signified their intentions of entering for the remainder of the tournament. Prizes will be given for the low Ringer score, for the lowest single round, and to the player lowering her score the most strokes from the initial round.

Luckily, the judge before whom he was arraigned was a man of sense. He immediately dismissed the case and referred the man to the county relief officer. But what do you think of the mentality which caused the man's arrest?

No nation lives by itself these days. Welfare of citizens who know nothing whatever about events in other countries may be profoundly affected by things that happen a long way off far beyond international boundaries.

For instance: English exporters of cotton yarn decided the other day to suspend deliveries to Germany until German firms find some way of paying for yarns already shipped. As a result, English mills closed and 50,000 Lancashire workers were thrown out of jobs.

Among these workers, no doubt, were plenty who maintain that England has enough to do at home without worrying about what happens overseas. That's a natural viewpoint, common in all nations.

Because of an involved and complex chain of events leading to a severe economic depression beyond the Rhine, these 50,000 English workers have lost their jobs.

It is highly fitting that the body of von Hindenburg should be buried on the battlefield of Tannenberg, where his armies routed the Russians in 1914 and saved East Prussia from invasion.

This battle became a symbol to all Germany. It was the most decisive triumph of German arms in the war. And while military experts insist that it was chiefly the work of von Hoffman, who was then an unused staff colonel, the German people gave the credit to von Hindenburg.

And thus he, like the battle, became a symbol—both inside of Germany, and elsewhere. What a man actually did can be less important than what everyone believes he did; and so it was with von Hindenburg.

Yesterday and Today

WHO would want to go back to the standards of even a generation ago? We have traveled far since then. Inventions and scientific discoveries have furnished the principal vehicles: New conveniences, improved merchandise, better foods, added health-conserving means.

But the thing which has hastened us on to the knowledge and acceptance of their benefits is advertising. It has brought new things quickly to all of us and sped us toward a different, better mode of living.

Modern advertising sells us, not only things, but ideas. The advertising of soaps has sold us the health advantages of more frequent bathing. The advertising of modern bathroom equipment has made bathing a singular pleasure.

The advertising of improved razors and beard softeners has made whisking off whiskers a simple daily ditty instead of a weekly major operation.

Tooth-paste, tooth-brush and mouth-wash manufacturers and retailers are saving us untold aches and years of marred smiles, by advertising the importance of oral hygiene.

As a result of the advertising of food manufacturers and purveyors, we have escaped from the drowsy dulness caused by heavy breakfasts and are full of forenoon vim and clear-headedness.

The clothes we wear, furniture we use, fuel we burn, car we drive, telephone we've installed—all these would not so quickly have come home to us, were it not for the silent but irresistible force of advertising.

Records 15th Straight Victory By Defeating Red Sox

BOSTON—Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe, Detroit's 22-year-old hurler Tuesday recorded his 15th straight victory by pitching the Tigers to an 8-4 win over the Red Sox.

The victory, his 10th of the season, brings him within one game of equalling the all-time American league record of consecutive wins now held jointly by Walter Johnson, "Smoky" Joe Wood and Lefty Grove.

The onrushing league leaders finished their series with the Sox with a three-one advantage having won three in a row after dropping the opener. Tuesday's win stretched their lead to 5 1-2 games over the second-place Yankees who lost to the Browns.

INDIANS 12; ATHLETICS 11
PHILADELPHIA—Walks contributed by three Athletics' pitchers in the ninth inning helped to give the Cleveland Indians a 12 to 11 victory Tuesday. Benton loaded the bases and forced in the first of 9 runs made in the inning. Up to the 9th, the Athletics led 11 to 2.

BROWNS 8; YANKEES 6
NEW YORK—The Browns salvaged the final game of the series of four Tuesday as they pounded Russell Van Atta and Danny MacFayden for enough runs to overcome the effects of Lou Gehrig's 38th and 39th homers of the season. The score was 8-6.

It was the only St. Louis victory of the season in the Yankee stadium and the fourth in 18 games against the Yanks. The defeat, coupled with Detroit's victory over Boston, put the Yankees 5 1-2

Fox's Future Stirs American Leaguers

It's been freely talked about in major league baseball circles for some time but the circumstantial evidence is accumulating to indicate that James Emory Fox, the baby-faced better, is playing his last year in the uniform of the Philadelphia Athletics.

The apparent rift between Fox and Connie Mack dates from last spring, when the home run king bitterly rejected an $11,000 salary proposition for 1934 and finally signed, at a compromise figure, after holding out for several weeks. It is understood Fox is drawing around $18,000 for this year, barely half of Babe Ruth's stipend and at least $5,000 less than the amount paid to Lou Gehrig, who is Jimmy's main rival now for the home run leadership.

Mack has not only denied he is considering trading or selling Fox to the highest bidder but, instead, there has been no basis for talk of disagreements now. It is no secret, however, that Jimmy himself is dissatisfied with his present job and yearns to clout his way into the spotlight elsewhere. Except for the rivalry furnished by Bob Johnson, his team-mate, in the home run race earlier in the season, Fox has been playing pretty much of a lone hand with a second division outfit.

If the A's wind up another year "in the red", as appears possible, Fox is the one baseball chattel left which Mack can barter for a sum running into six figures. In fact Fox, even at current prices, should be worth more to a club than any of the other stars Mack has sold in the last two years. Jimmy is still a comparative youngster, with at least 10 more years of first class performance in his system. He is famed chiefly for his hitting but he is an effective fielder and has one of the greatest arms in baseball.

There's No Fleety Of Takers

There's little doubt the Boston Red Sox, Chicago White Sox or Detroit Tigers would bid high for Fox if Mack puts him on the market next winter. The talk has mostly been that he would be sold to the Red Sox, if at all, but this is just so much speculation so far, based on the obvious embarrassment caused to both parties by Lefty Grove's sale to the Boston.

"I only hope half the people who say we are going to get Fox are correct," smiled Bucky Harris, the Red Sox manager, when discussing the subject recently. "We could use him—and how—but I haven't the slightest idea whether a deal is possible or even being considered."

Just for instance, would Harris rather have Fox than Lou Gehrig?

"Either one would be pretty useful in that batting order," said Bucky, "but I believe I would rather have Fox for our Boston grounds, Fenway park, where the left-field barrier is 312 feet as compared with 334 for the right-field fence. Thus, the right-hand hitter has a slight advantage and I would like Fox on that basis, although I do not see much to choose in general between them. Fox is a much better fielder than a lot of people think, and he's the next thing to Gehrig in durability.

League Well Supplied With First Sackers

As a whole the American league is fairly well equipped with first basemen but there are no clubs who would not be willing to try to make room for Master Fox, if available. Jimmy can do a fair-to-middlin' job at third base, for that matter, as he did in the all-star game this summer.

Detroit has big Hank Greenberg, who can neither hit nor play the bag with Fox. Hal Trosky of Cleveland and Zeke Bonura of Chicago are newcomers with a great deal of promise. Jack Burns of the Browns is one of the league's smoothest workmen and a fine hitter. The Senators have Joe Kuhel, at present on the shelf but an able young first sacker. Meanwhile the Red Sox have been struggling along with Eddie Morgan, who is, like Fox, a right-handed thrower but not equipped otherwise, to offset this somewhat technical disadvantage.

Chapter 16
THE FAINTED BOX

At one that night Bob heard the careful closing of that door of Marsha's room which led to the hall. He wondered where she was going and he honed the long, upper hall was warm enough to make her misadventure safe.

People who were reduced took colds, he realized, and colds for the run-down, developed to worse ailments.

He paced his room as he tried to recall how high the fire in the library had been when he left it. He could not remember and the failure to remember worried him absurdly. She might be going to the library to get a certain book. She would stand by the shelves, hunting it. She would shiver and it would begin, that cold.

He considered following her, and dismissed the idea. She would not like it. She would most probably see his following her as a violent sort of intrusion. No doubt it would be that, as things were between them: a violent sort of intrusion.

He began to undress. On the morrow he would tell Bartholomew to see that the library fire was left the last thing at night, burn-high. Then if she would wander around in this manner (he felt a sharp irritation) she would be as safe as might be, under the circumstances.

Hobs in bed were a substitute for sleep; the next thing, as a restorative, to sleep, if sleep were not com. He'd have to tell her so and imperatively.

She was doing nothing to help herself to grow strong. And she was far from well. It seemed as if she didn't care what happened to her. "They are the damndest!" he muttered half aloud and violently, thinking of women.

He looked at his watch before he lay down. It was, he saw, twenty minutes before two. What the devil was she doing? Probably killing herself, taking the first step toward killing herself any way!

He lay, with the night-light on stretched on his bed, staring at the ceiling, still frowning. Half past two, he saw when he next looked at his watch. Well, he would give her twenty more minutes and then he would follow her whether she liked it or not.

He turned on his side, miserably conscious of the discomfort of the bed he had known in months, and propped on an elbow he looked on the face of his watch, listening keenly. Ten minutes more and he would get up, find her and tell her frankly what he thought of her criminal negligence of her care of herself.

It had been years since he had suffered any such sweep of overwhelming irritation, anger. He did

1-MINUTE SAFETY TALKS

By Don Herold

Let's look and see what kind of accidents not to have

Guide Book to Accident Avoidance

I like mathematics better than guesses. That's one thing I like about insurance companies. They get figures. You can tell the insurance people that you are 39 years old next Tuesday, and they'll tell you, bingo, just how long an average man of 39 may expect to live to a day. Simply because they have gathered millions of figures.

The first step in licking any problem is to get the figures. I can sit in an easy chair with a book of figures on automobile accidents which was compiled by The Travelers Insurance Company, and I can prevent most future automobile accidents right there in my chair.

I see that 35,600 were killed and injured last year by stepping out from behind parked cars and getting their selves hit.

Well, the way to avoid a repetition of that next year is for anybody to step out from behind a parked car until he known, and things she had wished to hide from others eyes. Even he had never seen that which was in the painted box.

He saw the color drain from Marsha's face; he saw her swing her eyes, darkened by fright, were fixed on his eyes, and they did not waver.

He moved toward her, still smiling, and closed his hands around her wrists. "I am going to know what you were doing," he said; "I asked you and you are going to answer me. Do you understand?"

She moistened her lips before answering; she whispered a breathless, "Yes."

"What were you doing?"

"I was trying to get the box open," she gasped, "I thought," she added childishly, "I had locked the door."

He laughed abruptly, harshly; loosed his hold on her wrists, and he turned to close the door. A moment and he was again by her; and looking down on her; he glanced at the box. "A pity," he murmured, "to scratch it. It is rather an attractive old piece."

"I couldn't find the key," she admitted with a break of voice.

"No, quite naturally not. She sent it to me."

"If citizens of Big Spring can supply the needed 500 acres of land for improvements specified in government plans, the work here will be continued over a period of twelve months or longer, but if not, the program planned at scenic mountain will be completed within six months," Richardson said.

He gave an outline of projects to be built at the state park, which included construction of lookout towers, four or five miles of scenic driveways, trails, bridal paths and foot paths, stairway on north side of mountain, camp ground improvements, an open air auditorium, swimming pool, wading pool, and various other projects that are necessary for a park.

University Scores Highest Enrollment For Summer Terms

AUSTIN—A survey of summer enrollment at the University of Texas, just made by the university registrar's office, indicates that a total of 4,673 individuals were enrolled during the two summer terms, an increase of 66 per cent over the 1933 registration and of 11 per cent over the 1932 enrollment. This is the largest summer student body the university has ever had. Furthermore, this number, 4,673, does not include the 106 students enrolled in the social service institute, conducted during the first term jointly by the University and the Texas relief commission.

When enrollment figures are reduced to the number of registrations, instead of the number of individuals, the total is even larger, for there were 4,901 registrants for

Revival Grows In Interest

The revival on Goliad between Second and Third streets is rapidly increasing in interest and the crowds are growing in numbers at each service. All are becoming deeply interested in the messages delivered by the Evangelist Rev. A. R. Hodges of Detroit, Michigan. He is an early day citizen of Big Spring, and has the spiritual welfare of the town at heart. The evangelist is delivering special sermons on the Book of Revelations at each morning service from 10 to 11 o'clock. Following subjects for each evening service this week: Wednesday, "God's Eagles Saints"; Thursday, "Spiritual Sorcery"; Friday, "The Sunburnt Saints".

A special invitation is extended to the pastors of the city and their people to attend these services. The general public is invited to attend this revival.

The law that a corporation can not purchase state school land in vacant unsurveyed tracts, as may individuals, was invoked by Attorney General James V. Allred to recover in District Judge J. D. Moore's court at Austin, 103 acres of land in the Tom Ball oil field of Harris county.

The suit recovered to the state land valued at half a million dollars.

The tract is surrounded by producing wells, and Attorney General Allred in making the recovery, announced he will insist upon immediate development, to prevent drainage of the state property by the oil wells.

One of the law questions in the case was that an individual with a preference right to purchase land, having made an agreement with a corporation not entitled to purchase it, had forfeited the right of preference to buy the land.

One of the lasting benefits of the government's live stock policy, more important than increasing the value of the remaining animals, has been declared the chance for the grazing country to come back from the condition of over-grazing that has destroyed its cover and subjected it to progressive erosion and denudation.

Projects Engr. E. A. Baugh of the Texas relief commission believes that much of the vast federal drought relief work program should be devoted to finding, storing and conserving water for the drought area. He has suggested that building dams would provide the same quantity of labor as building roads. His idea embraces as well the drilling and operation of hundreds of water wells, available to resupply the shallow lakes that dry up in drought times and to keep streams fresh with living water.

Right now, in over 100 counties, people are forced to haul water in barrels for domestic consumption, often having to take it from sources without protection as to purity of the water," Mr. Baugh told the relief commission.

Hardy Morgan of Lamesa spent Wednesday morning in the city.

By GORDON K. SHEARER

AUSTIN, (UP)—A little news ahead of the news is that there will be a scrap in the coming special session of the Texas legislature over a relief investigation.

Sides already are squaring off for the fight. There will be little opposition to a relief investigation. An immediate investigation would prolong the special session and may delay issuance of more relief bonds. The latter is what opponents of an immediate investigation fear. They propose instead that an interim committee be named to study the situation and report to the regular session of the legislature in January, meantime going ahead promptly with funds to meet the winter needs.

Rep. George Hester, Georgetown, instructor in government at Southern western University, is prepared for another battle against a sales tax if one is attempted at the session. He has gathered data, down to date ready to confute what he says are extravagant and incorrect claims made for the sales tax. He was started by the newspaper career on the Houston Press.

Robert Myers, newspaper man who went to the aid of a photographer slugged in the turbulent session of Huey Long's legislature, is the son of Joe Myers, former Texas labor commissioner. Both he and his brother are boxers so the slugger likely got a pretty healthy shock in return. Myers started his newspaper career on the Houston Press.

Elaborate precautions are being taken to prevent a mistake in replacing portraits of governors in the dome of the state capitol, recently repaired. Of course, there was little prospect that Governor Dan Moody's picture would be placed on the hook over the inscription plate for Governor Jas. E. Ferguson, and no danger whatever that "Ma" Ferguson's picture would be mixed up with any of the men-governors. But there was considerable danger that the picture of George T. Wood might get over the name plate of P. H. Bell, or Pendleton Murrah over J. W. Throckmorton.

The precaution taken was to place a card in the frame of each canvas before removal from the wall. The card gave both the name of the governor and the position number for rehanging.

Fred S. Rogers, new member of the state board of pardons, is getting plenty of kidding these days as a result of his appointment to the place. A close friend of Rogers recently told him he would like to have that place. There was no thought of a vacancy then, Rogers, kidding, told the friend he would be a good man for it—he was getting old enough for such a berth.

Then came a vacancy, and Rogers was appointed, much to his own surprise.

The friends now inquire daily how Rogers is holding up as he
