$5000 Taken As Thugs Shoot Up The Town

Five Taken As Hostages, Released; Several Are Wounded

OXFORD, Kansas (AP)—Four heavily armed bandits robbed the Oxford bank Tuesday of an estimated $5,000 and fled with five hostages after shooting up the town. Marion Carson, one of the hostages, and one bandit were wounded by a vigilante's shotgun fire as they entered the bandit's car, neither seriously.

Harold Littrell, 18, was shot in the abdomen as the fleeing bandits raked the street with machine gun fire.

The hostages were released soon after the robbery.

Strong Wind Drives Folks To Shelter

Sunday Sandstorm Reaches Velocity Of Fifty-Two Miles Per Hour

West Texas, as patriotically minded as a group of Californians, will refer to gale up to 35 miles per hour as a gentle "zephyr."

But Sunday one of these zephyrs had too much zeph and drove enduring citizens to shelter with a 52 mile velocity.

So strong did the wind become that it blew out a big plate glass window of the Twin Cafe in the Roman building on West Third street.

At Midland a sand storm saved a ball game for the Midland players and then continued unabated for several hours.

Accompanied by much sand in the beginning, the sudden storm came very near being pictured from an altitude of 5,000 feet.

Two men had just been flying over the city taking aerial photos. Just as the last picture was snapped, they noticed the freakish storm in the southeast.

Borum Talks Before Joint Club Meeting

Rotary Fellowship Committee, Shine Philips, Chairman, Sponsors Program

Rotary's fellowship program brought approximately 100 Kiwanians, Lions and Rotarians together for a joint meeting Tuesday in the Settles ballroom.

Rev. Winston Burum, Midland, presented as a man with a "past, present and future," in the address of the day, spoke on horses to the edification of the clubmen, and left his audience as he kept it in an uproar of mirth.

Johnny Lechaby and his orchestra furnished music for the occasion.

The program was a joint presentation of Kiwanis and Lions clubs with L. A. Eubanks of the former organization in charge.

Borum selected a text, not because his message fitted it, but came nearer fitting the message than any other he could find.

"It takes a lot of horse sense to do stable thinking," said Borum as he dramatically paused to note the uninspiring blankness masking every face.

He traced the origin of the three clubs, humorously connecting the "selfishness" of each club with its progenitor.

Back to his subject of "Lost Horses," he bemoaned the vanishing popularity of the horse with the advancement of the machine age.

He paused to pay his respects to the noble steed and skillfully traced the development of many modern articles to the horse.

Had it not been for the patient horse, said Borum, there would have been no horse pistols, horse radish, "horsepitals," western "horsepatality."

Shine Philips, chairman of the Rotary Fellowship committee, arranged the joint meeting of the clubs. James Davis, president of the Rotary club presided.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Newsome and family are vacationing in Dallas this week.

Where State Park Site Will Be Improved

Historic Scenic Mountain stretches impressively to the north in a view looking from the top of the city pressure reservoir atop a hill south of Edwards Heights.

It is this mountain which will be improved by C.C.C. workers in a project that will last for many months. The road leading up the already established drive around the mountain may be seen to the left. Just to the right is the road leading off the mountain.

Body Prepared For Journey To Indiana Home

Published Reports Of 'Purger' Are Denied By Federal Agents

CHICAGO (AP)—The body of John Dillinger, his career as a desperado ended by bullets, was ready for return to his native Indiana Tuesday in a ditty, dust-covered hearse.

Federal authorities, meanwhile, kept guarded as a secret, the name of the man, or men, whose pistols felled Dillinger Sunday night.

Published reports the "Purger" was Samuel A. Cowley, first assistant to Melvin H. Purvis, head of Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation here, were denied by Purvis.

Seeking Dillinger's hideout, 200 federal agents and city police, engaged in a house to house canvass of the Lakeview district on the city's north side.

Purvis refused to discuss reports that a woman dressed in red lured the desperado to the end. He said probably the person who gave the tip "never would be known."

"It's One Of Us," Says Man; Special Ranger Gets Dross

STEPHENVILLE (AP)—Ross Dennis was shot and probably fatally wounded at Lipan Monday night in an altercation with Tom Lindsey, special ranger.

Lindsey said he fired after Dennis, 31, pressed a shotgun against his side and made a threat "it's going to be one of us." Lindsey was recently commissioned a special ranger and sent to Lipan, Mood county, because of an outbreak of petty crime.

Investigators informed Lindsey Monday they had received information that Dennis had purchased shotgun shells and was "going to run the new Texas ranger out of town."

Glenn Golden and Raymond Fischer flew to Lubbock Sunday, where they visited relatives and friends. On the way back, they flew into the sand storm over Lamesa, forcing them down about two miles north of there, where they remained until the storm had abated.

ing evidence which they said indicated Socialist, Communist and Nazi, were merged into a common front for a huge campaign of terror against the Fascist government.

A government spokesman explained most of the arrests "preventative" midnight search of suspects' homes for explosives, and incriminating documents.

Government circles suggested the new "terroristic front" had a common source of money and explosives in Germany.

Construction Progresses At Fast Pace

Mess Hall Nears Completion, Other Foundations Are Laid

Vanguard of C.C.C. workers poured into Big Spring Tuesday.

Ninety-five young men from Midland, Scurry, Dawson and Tom Green counties were concentrated here for examinations by Dr. Thomas B. Hoover, himself a reserve officer in the army.

Whether the boys would be permanently stationed here or would be dispatched to some other camp was not known.

However, Captain Tom B. Martin, in charge of construction work for the camp site on Scenic Mountain, announced that he was ready for the boys. He said that the mess hall was near completion and that kitchen equipment would be moved in Tuesday afternoon and that mess requirements could be met soon.

Foundations for barracks and headquarters have already been laid and those structures will go up rapidly now as Martin pushes construction activities in an effort to complete his work within thirty days.

Thompson R. Richardson, superintendent of park construction, is in Big Spring ready to begin work of improving the park as soon as men are available. He will have an engineer to assist him.

Captain H. J. Hubbard and Lieutenant T. C. Horn will command the camp proper.

D. E. Colp, chairman of the state park board, wired the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday that he planned "to arrive at your park Wednesday morning with four members of the parks board on an inspection trip."

Tuesday Captain J. D. Bender, who supervises activities over a wide district of this section, inspected work here and investigated rumors of alleged discrimination against ex-service men in construction of the camp. He indicated he had found little or no foundation for such rumors.

Twenty local boys were to be examined here Wednesday for C.C.C. service. It is probable that they will be sent to a project at Coleman.

Eubanks is wanted here to stand trial on three indictments for forgery. All three counts allege falsification of large amounts involved. Indictments were returned against him by the last 70th district court grand jury.

He is likewise under indictment in Breckinridge for forgery. Eubanks made bond in Breckinridge on his forgery charge only in last Merrick waiting to bring him here.

WASHINGTON BY IRA BENNETT

Straw—What will be the political aftermath of the Pacific Coast strikes? Opponents predict that FDR will suffer from public reaction against encouragement of extreme labor demands. New Dealers think he will gain.

Upton Sinclair is running strong as candidate for governor of California on a platform with Socialist trimmings. He draws crowds and the crowds applaud noisily.

Many industrialists come here damning Gen. Hugh Johnson as responsible for labor troubles. Others boldly accuse FDR of leaning too much to radical labor's side. Fair-minded men are heard to find but occasionally one rises to suggest that readjustment of labor-employer relations is a modern necessity which FDR is solving in a fair way. They don't hold him responsible for the radical "unatic fringe" of labor unionism.

Politicians generally agree that political consequences of the situation depend upon the cleanup at San Francisco. If the federal labor board gets by with a settlement it's conceded that FDR's opponents will have little straw for their partisan breaks.

Usurpation—On the same day that the American Bar association committee criticized New Deal agencies for usurping judicial functions, NRA issued a statement confirming the truth of the charge. It announced creation of the Industrial Appeals Board "to hear all complaints relative to the operation of NRA or of the codes, particularly complaints of small businesses." The new board also would "function within the administration but independent of all save the administrator."

Dynamite Theft Charged

BOISE, Idaho (UP)—When federal forest rangers lay in a supply of dynamite they want the fun of making it go boom themselves. One James Q. Maxfield allegedly lifted seven cases from a forest station at Idaho City. He's now in a $750 bail.

SPITE MARRIAGE

by Katharine Richard Taylor

Chapter 15 THE DINNER

Marsha moved to stand by him because the hearth, he slipped an arm around her.

"Dear," Bob said, "I've seen how you have felt all day. I want you to know and to remember that there's nothing you need fear, because you see, no need of mine is so great as having you unafraid, content, as happy as I can make you. Do you understand?"

A hand on her shoulder, he turned her to him.

"Yes," she answered.

"I love you very much," he said next. "You don't at all sense what that means now, you will some day. It means that I don't want to take from you, but I want to give to you. Do I make myself at all clear?"

"Yes," she answered again.

"You are not afraid of my taking your hand now?" he questioned. "You were this morning at about ten minutes past eleven when you thought, 'I'm alone with him and I'm married to him!' You were a plumbly frightened child—and it would kill me to hurt you in any way."

She moved closer to him; he felt her hands clinging to his. And looking down, he saw her lean forward to kiss the shoulder of his coat.

He held her closer; "Thank you," he said, "and I shall hope that with time you'd aim a little higher."

She raised her face to his; "You don't need to pretend gaiety, lightness," she said. "What I want is to have you happy. I have never wanted anything so much."

She had never spoken so much of truth, she knew. She must, deficient though she was, make him happy. He must never be hurt by her; his fineness must never be lessened by her. His arms tightened.

"Are you certain?" he whispered, after a sharp intake of breath.

"Yes!"

He bent his face to hers.

Later, they drank to the future, after Ella had appeared, with a discreetly prefacing cough to announce dinner.

The wind howled around the cottages as they ate their first dinner together; a very gay meal that was punctuated by odd, shrunken silences when he stared at her, tried to smile and could not.

"Where are we, Bob?" she asked once.

"Paradise," he answered.

"Oh, I know that—!" (She was going to be able to do it easily after all, she decided) "but the name that others call it?"

"Easthampton, dear."

"Really? It had been so odd not to know that."

knowing where I stood in any way."

"You're going to learn. No thank you, Ella. Oh, Ella, I will, I didn't see what was on your tray."

He took a generous serving of the candied sweet potatoes which he liked usually. Ella knew, but he hardly ate anything. She blinked.

She remembered him so clearly as a boy, and his bravery after his father died in that "rum, quick way," hit in one of the old "light tuggies" on the railroad tracks. And how he had helped his mother by his bravery.

None finer, and young Mrs. Powers, Ella knew, was worthy of him. A beautiful, beautiful young lady with eyes that looked as if they must cry, while turned on him. And "gentlespoken and seeming rather shy-like."

"She asked me to tell you," said Ella later and in the pantry, "and she enjoyed the dinner."

The cook waited by the table. "Well, go on—" she ordered.

"I never saw two more in love," said Ella. "She liked my serving. She said, 'It was a delightful dinner, Ella, and so beautifully served.' And he stood, as the smoke, his hand on her arm. She wore the dress he liked best. I heard him thank her—and she says to him, at that, she says, 'I always want to do what you want me to,' she says, and she choked again."

"It seemed like they'd both been a bit lonely to me, serving them. I never saw two more in love, the needless of each other."

By the end of a week, Marsha realized that marriage was more serious than she had dreamed it, or anything could be. It eyed her and it filled her with discomfort. "Do be less tragic about this, Bob!" she begged once. "The solemnity is dreadful! I find it getting on my nerves!"

"Anything you order or want, my dearest," he answered; but he could not change. He was stronger even than his strong restraints.

And Marsha found herself frightened, never by him, but by the way she mattered to him. Her enduring of his love was equivalent to the facing of a mid-day sun by one who has long been confined in a prison where light is every gray and muted.

If only, she thought, again and again, he would not see her as a perfect blend of all that was most beautiful in spirit and flesh. Life would have been simpler if he said, as would Geoffrey, "You're Satan's little sister, Marsha; don't think I don't know that! But I have the bad taste to love you! And, that's that!" Instead, Bob, being Bob, said, "I can't believe it even yet, your having stooped to marry."

The words disconcerted her, but not so greatly as the adoration that was in his eyes.

She knew herself, she was certain. She was no good. But up to this point she had not lied. She had not had to, with her aunt, Miss Gertrude, who from almost the first had classified her pieces, in a Grand Central Station train-announcing tone, as "A moral irresponsible."

Now she had to lie; to pretend to be all she felt she was not and never could be; she must pose as a gentle-loving woman who was not given to free features; who con-

It Must Have Been Good Advice!

Almost anyone will find it difficult to talk things over with the apt attention Dorothy found in giving his pointers. It may account, too, for the fact that Dorothy proceeded into the Wimbledon center court to trim America's Helen Jacobs and give England its first double at Wimbledon in 23 years. Perry passed in his reading of congratulatory cables, on his own single triumph over Australia's Jack Crawford, to give Miss Round a last-minute "fight talk."

And yet it was not "woeful, dreary." The simple days were so satisfying, so lovely, that they, too, hurt.

People did have family jokes. "They really do!" she reflected wondrously. There had begun, fragile jokes that would have amused no one else, wrought from such sketchy material as Bob's whistling of "Oh, Man River" as he always did, while he splashed in the tub.

She had, with a few days of heart-

ing this, hurried the performance; the next morning scrubbing, he had whistled something of Brahms, calling loudly and triumphantly, above the running water. "That's set you!"

And it almost did, for she didn't whistle very well. It went on, with Bob scowling as he tried to remember melodies that would "stump" her.

He said one morning across the table; "You follow everything I whistle amusingly."

She thought, and again the prayer without her seeing it thus, "I hope I'll never falter, following you!"

"Do you play the piano?" he asked then.

"A little," she answered. "And holding out on me, weren't you? Nice thing to do, and me, I'm crazy about music!"

"I didn't know whether you'd like my playing," she explained; "Aunt Gertrude never did and I feared you might feel you must be polite and pretend to like it, you see?"

"I don't feel that your aunt's meter registers correctly," he said with a frown.

Marsha considered that long; her heart beat swiftly, thickly. "What is it, dear?" he asked.

"Yes, darling?"

"You know I sometimes do lie, don't you?"

"What's your latest lie?" he asked.

She looked cautiously toward the swinging door that led to the pantry.

"I told Ella that she looked charming in caps," she answered in a whisper. Bob roared.

Nippon—Naval insiders are intensely interested in Tokyo's contentions. Japanese navy men are thrashing about trying to plan a program to present to other naval powers.

Washington naval experts crack down on the "global tonnage" idea. They say it offers no basis whatsoever for an equitable limitation agreement.

Miller Nichols In Appeal To Voters In Sheriff's Contest Miller Nichols, long time resident of Howard county and candidate for sheriff, Tuesday made an appeal to voters to support his candidacy for that office in the Democratic primary of July 28.

Pointing out that he had at all times striven to be a law abiding citizen and that for six years he served as a peace officer in the county, Nichols stated his qualifications for the post.

Nichols was commended for his efforts to enforce laws while he served as a peace officer.

He pledged his best to "make a real sheriff" and to deal impartially with all alike.

Ablenians Praise Mexico City As Tourist Center

AHLENE—Go to Mexico and be safe from our hijacker, kidnaper, burglar, gypper and drunk driver. If they bother you you'll be shot, advised an Ahlene newspaperman, Bernard Hanks, who, with Mrs. Hanks and their daughter, Patty, returned yesterday from a vacation south of the Rio Grande.

Mrs. Hanks: "It's the finest of summer vacations. Mexico City has a million and a quarter persons all of whom obey the laws. We saw no ambulances or police cars, heard no sirens. The city has never had a bank failure and an automobile hasn't been stolen in five years.

"There is a reason why Mexico is the most orderly nation on this continent. You don't see many soldiers. The military polices the country and every order emanates from the presidential palace. Everything is federalized. Justice is swift with quick death the punishment for crimes. The criminal hasn't a chance. Even the auto driver, before he receives a license, must be tested, photographed and fingerprinted and if he kills some one he gets a two year penitentiary sentence or life imprisonment.

"Mexico City's climate is the most delightful in the world. All the most modern hotels, the best of the tropics. It is an ancient city, older than any settlement in the United States and there are many interesting things to see. The scenery is beautiful beyond words. Your American dollar is worth 3.80 Mexican dollars, you won't be overcharged and every one you meet, high and low, will go out of his way to show you every courtesy. Mexico is being drilled to entertain the American tourist, of whom, one day week before last, there were several thousands registered. The census was accurate, because you can't slip in and out. They know all about you the minute you cross the border.

The Ahlene party made the trip by train, but Mexico's national highway will be fully opened by January 1, 1935, making motor travel comparatively safe and pleasant.

For many courtesies received, said Mr. Hanks, the Ahlenians are indebted to Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Turman, former Texans. He is a foreign exchange dealer of Mexico City, she the former Miss Zillah Mae Ford of Big Spring.

Glasscock Test Tops Anhydrite

Steve Currie, Frank Gilpin and Gahlenmaster Petroleum Corporation's No. 1 J. L. Calverly, southwestern Glasscock county wildcat, had drilled Saturday afternoon to 1354 feet in anhydrite, topped at 1325. It set 10-inch casing at 995 feet in redrock, shutting off a hole full of water from 885, and struck one baller of water hourly at 1075. As drilling progressed to 1354 the water diminished to a quarter baller an hour, not enough to drill with.

No. 1 Calverly in the northwest corner of section 24, block 36, township 4 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey. Thirteen miles southeast of it, Moore Bros. of San Angelo on Wednesday spudded their No. 1 Gulf-Oliver Daniel (J. J. Hubbard), 690 feet out of the southeast corner of section 16, block 34, township 5 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Shell No. 2 Coffee, in the southeast quarter of section 15, block 23, township 3 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, showed oil from 2118-23 and from 2158-64 feet filling 450 feet with fluid, but approximately one-half of it was water. Orders were awarded at 2165 feet. Tribal No. 5-B Edwards, in the southwest quarter of section 16, block 33, prepared to plug back from 2455 feet and shoot. Two weeks ago it struck water at 2452 after showing oil and water from 2265-87 feet.

Continental No. 3 Phillips, in the northwest quarter of section 24, block 33, had drilled to 1218 feet in anhydrite and shale. Lucas & Pickens No. 1 Lee, in the northwest quarter of section 20, block 33, was straightening with a total depth 2082 feet in lime. Luce & Pickens No. 1 Bass Turner, 990 feet from the top, in section 19, block 23, had drilled to 880 feet in redbeds.

Hearst Cattle Have Been Sold

MIDLAND—The cattle feeding project conducted by the Babcocks ranch, William Randolph Hearst project, at Brownfield has been completed, said Homer W. Rowe, in charge, upon his return Friday to Midland.

The $100 yearlings were sold and shipped to various markets, where they finished out well. Buyers were particularly satisfied at the way they dressed out and at the quality of the meat. The calves were shipped to Brownfield in December, 1933, fed out and were marketed over a two-months period beginning May 20.

Local products were fed—milk, maize, kafir and ear corn, all of which was ground. Cotton seed meal was added.

A quarter million dollars was paid Terry farmers for feed, which brought twice the price paid for it when a similar project was conducted there last year.

Ray Cantrell returned Sunday evening from Mexico City, where he has been vacationing the past two weeks. He made the trip via El Paso, going by train from that city to Mexico City.

The condition of Mrs. Ruth Alhart who is confined to a local hospital, was pronounced satisfactory Tuesday.

Mrs. Maud Connell Ely of El Paso is visiting Mrs. J. R. Young and Mrs. Verd Van Glesen.

Mrs. G. I. Phillips had a fine round in qualifying for the Country Club golf contest. Only one player out of the forty-two qualifiers made a lower score than Mrs. Phillips. Shirley Robbins made the round in 71, far for men, and Mrs. Phillips 75 was even par for women.

The Condor No. 1 soft ball team will play the Midland Southern Ice club here on the City Park diamond Wednesday at 8:30. The Banker-Flew game scheduled for that time will be played at 9:30.

The department understands that league moguls will soon be taking applications for a new league umpire. Not that the moguls are howling for Shires' scalp, but we are told that umpiring interferes with Shires' other work. Just who the league can secure that will be impartial, knows the rules, and is big enough to make his decisions stick, is a matter of conjecture.

Despite the continued popularity of soft ball with both players and fans, doubt still lingers in the minds of many as to the permanency of the game. Most of the individuals, young and old, who play it, swear by soft ball as a
