

HOBBIES OF BIG SPRING FOLK

Carmack's Knack In Woodworking Has Developed A Real Enterprise

Fancy thing about hobbies — they grow.

Started innocently as leisure time occupations, they often times become profitable enterprises, and even full time vocations.

It worked that way with H. G. Carmack, brakeman for the T. & P. railway company.

Nothing was farther from his mind than September evening 11 years ago when he awoke down from a freight here, hungry, broke and faced with the necessity of adding to meagre savings left with his wife and children in California.

Built Own Home Then it was a problem of a house. Carmack decided to build.

As a youth he had served three years as a carpenter's apprentice and had a pretty fair knowledge of the trade; so he built a little two-room house by himself on N. W. 8th street.

He did the work by hand, without the aid of complete tools. He got a circular saw, then a chisel and another tool here and there until his collection grew.

So did the list of Carmack household furniture, shelves, binet, and what-nots.

By this time Carmack had saved enough to build a small rent house in front, and with the revenue from it, he moved his original home and added to it.

Piece by piece he added to equipment. A new jig-saw, a six inch jointer, and eight-inch circular saw, metal abrasive saw, band grinder, a buffer adjustable to any conceivable position with grinder and sanding attachments, wood lathe, drill press, shaper, saws for joint work, and an assortment of the best quality hand tools available.

Out of this he got ideas for other mechanisms. He evolved an enlarger which projects any picture or newspaper on a surface in the size he wishes to trace.

So complete is his shop that there is hardly a piece of woodwork which he cannot duplicate or reproduce. In repair work, he usually turns a new piece on the lathe rather than fool with the old one.

Works Painstakingly No hit-or-miss amateur is Carmack. He possesses more precision instruments than a machinist. He works painstakingly not only for stability but for fine finish even down to the most obscure edge.

Although he admits that "I never got very far in school," Carmack is up to the minute in his hobby, maintaining a complete library with current trade publications filed neatly away.

changing for a better effect.

Nothing is too difficult for him to attempt. With his shaper, whirling at 16,000 rpm, he patiently turns out moldings to any design.

Naturally, with his complete shop, he gets much work in his spare time. What he does with the money is, of course, strictly his own business.

Members of the senate-house tax investigating committee said it was one reason the administration desires the new bill enacted at this session.

Man's Overdraft Is Involved In Bank Slaying MUSKOGEE, Okla., July 30 (AP)—County Attorney A. Camp Bonds said today that J. C. Fast, Jr., 33, admitted a Colorado vacation in which he had overdrawn his bank account between $200 and $300 led to the fatal shooting of L. W. McLean, banker and civic leader. Bonds reported Fast said he shot McLean when the banker refused to make good the checks Fast, automobile dealer and member of a prominent Muskogee family, had written while in the west. Bonds said Fast had confessed the shooting and a formal charge would be placed against him today. McLean, 49, was shot yesterday as he sat at his desk in the Commercial National bank. A fellow officer of the bank and a customer 'acked Fast as he started to leave and pinned him to the floor. Fast admitted he had been drinking. The Fast and McLean families are neighbors.

QUEEN Friday - Saturday TOM KEENE In "OLD LOUISIANA" PLUS: "JUNGLE JIM" Serial Sabotage (Continued From Page 1) Two miles away, resort residents—who had been sitting on their lawns a moment before talking about the mildness of the night—rushed down to the water's edge gashed at the horror before them. Boats put out from the beaches. Flaming craft near the liner hurried towards her. With the fire licking up the deck, the passengers, joined by the crew, huddled towards the bow. Screams could be heard ashore above the roar of the flames. Passengers begged for help as those in the smaller boats were driven back by the fierce heat. Forced To Jump Luther Boozie of Baltimore, fishing nearby, said he and five companions were the first boat on the scene. "We yelled to the people to jump," he said, "but they seemed too hysterical to pay any attention. They were scrambling around the railing and screaming." A few seconds later and it was jump or face the flames. Many nervously pulled themselves to the top rail and let go. Others got up the railing and clung there until the heat forced them to drop. As the passengers jumped, the small boats piled about, picking them up.

Japs Renew (Continued From Page 1) The Japanese seemed to be preparing to meet such an offensive on a major scale. Troops, tanks and armored cars were pouring into the western hills, just a few miles from the city, in large numbers. A new raid was said to have been built in the vicinity of the old summer palace of the Manchus, and several hundred Japanese troops were reported to have landed there today. (The Japanese cabinet decided on a series of "second steps" in the undeclared war. After a secret meeting the proposals were placed before the Japanese cabinet. Reports reported the capture of Taku one of Tientsin's two ports. (At Tokyo, Japanese officers said "Japan must attack" if the central Chinese army moves into the so-called demilitarized zone.)

TIENSIN ATTACK TIENSIN, July 30 (AP)—Japanese artillery and airplanes pounded Chinese sections of battered Tientsin with shells and bombs tonight in a renewal of the attack which devastated a large area of the Chinese city yesterday. The assault followed what Japanese said was a Chinese counter-attack. Chinese and Japanese forces fought with machine guns and rifles along the fringe of the Japanese concession during the afternoon. Then Japanese big guns returned to destruction of "anti-Japanese" positions in the city. (Dispatches from Tientsin to Shanghai said more buildings and homes of thousands of refugees were set afire. The messages described the Chinese area as desolate, with fires raging unchecked and corpses and debris littering the streets.)
