

COURT BILL GETS SCORCHING IN GROUP'S REPORT

Coal Miners Called Out In New CIO Move

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 14 (AP)—John L. Lewis, through the CIO, struck today at another huge empire of steel, the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

"Strike!" he said to 9,500 coal miners, members of the United Mine Workers in 19 mines, most of them owned by Bethlehem, and the miners replied that work would cease completely by tomorrow.

The strike order, issued in Washington yesterday, struck also at mines of the Republic Steel corporation and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company—huge steel industries already pitted against the CIO, but it was at Bethlehem's door that the strike order laid its chief def.

Republic has four mines affected and Youngstown Sheet & Tube has two, but company spokesmen said those latter two already are closed. At the same time, the national labor relations board, under the Wagner act, called upon the Inland Steel company to answer charges that it refused to bargain with SWOC—the steel workers' organizing committee of CIO—and (2) promoted a "company union" of its own.

Crowds of miners from the Rosemead and Franklin pits of Bethlehem Steel poured into Johnstown last night.

Hundreds joined the picket lines at the Cambria works.

Pennsylvania's Governor George Earle, hopping about the state yesterday in an auto-gyro, pleaded that there be no disorder.

"The company could settle this thing by signing a contract," he said. "I consider them unreasonable in not doing so."

Gov. Earle ordered extra details of state police to the Johnstown area.

Today the troopers, their steel riot helmets on and their arms ready, were on duty. During the night they broke up one crowd that was stoning a street car on which rode several steel company workers.

Mayor Daniel J. Shields conferred more than an hour early today with Major Lynn Adams, superintendent of the state police. Afterward, in a statement to the people of Johnstown, he said: "A number of men not residents of our community have seen fit to call a cessation of our principal steel manufacturing plants.

"In my official capacity as mayor, I feel justified in warning you that trouble of a serious nature appears inevitable."

Mayor Shields' statement followed that of another head of a strike worried city, Mayor Daniel A. Knaggs of Monroe, Mich., where national guardsmen with mounted machine guns and vigilantes with businesslike firearms and knives protruding from their belts stood by while CIO members and sympathizers held a mass meeting yesterday.

Mayor Knaggs saw the guardsmen take down their tents and roll away in their trucks last night and made unsuccessful efforts to reach Governor Frank Murphy and have the troops remain. Today he said: "I have more than 500 special police officers available, and as many more members of the American Legion subject to call."

The Monroe mass meeting, which was expected to draw nearly 100,000 people, was attended by a much smaller number. The estimates ran as low as 8,000 and as high as 25,000.

The issue at Newton Steel, as at Youngstown, Warren, O., Niles, O., Chicago, Indiana Harbor, here in Johnstown and other affected areas is the same: A demand that the employer sign a contract with CIO governing wages, hours and working conditions.

Doors Closed On WPA Dist. Activity Here

Last Details Of Completing Office Operations Under Way

PROJECT WORK WILL GO UNINTERRUPTED

Staff Workers Join Other Offices, Enter Private Employment

District No. 18 WPA headquarters in Big Spring had become all but a thing of the past Monday as the staff separated and a few pieces of remaining furniture were moved.

R. H. McNew, district director here since the program opened in July 1935, closed the office one day in advance of the official closing date and prepared to leave for his new assignment as assistant district No. 1 director at Marshall.

He said that he and his family would leave Wednesday. In closing out the district office here, through which little less than one million dollars of work has been handled in two years, he expressed appreciation to sponsors and local people for a fine spirit of co-operation and patient appreciation for our work. "This attitude on the part of the public and sponsors made the functions of the district office devoid of perplexing problems which might have arisen, he said.

Projects To Continue
WPA projects will go on without interruption or impairment, McNew reminded. Big Spring and Howard county, along with Glasscock, Martin, Midland and Ector, will be served by the San Angelo district office.

Three large truck loads of records were moved from here last week with the bulk being dispatched Saturday to San Angelo.

Twenty members of the district staff here have either been assigned to WPA duty elsewhere, or have not yet accepted appointments tendered them, McNew disclosed.

Pauline Van Horn, secretary to McNew, will begin her duties with the operations division of the San Angelo WPA office on Wednesday. Jack Hale, supervisor of employment, will be assistant in the employment division at Amarillo. H. G. Foshier, director of finance and statistics here, left Monday for Fort Worth where he will be assistant supervisor of finance and statistics.

To Other Offices
Grady Henry and J. C. Watkins, engineer and time keeper, will hold similar positions with the San Angelo district. Frankie Mae Case has been assigned as stenographer to Lubbock, and J. T. Johnson, area engineer, will go to Lubbock in that capacity. Mrs. Margaret Knauz will remain in Big Spring in charge of the sewing room project as supervisor of materials.

Andy Pruitt, supervisor of operations, has accepted a position with the state highway department. Gladys Smith, assistant in the finance department, has been named secretary to the city school

ALL OBJECTIONS ARE INCLUDED IN ADVERSE REPORT

Administration Leaders Virtually Have Abandoned Proposal For Adding Five New Justices

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—The senate judiciary committee recommended rejection of the Roosevelt court bill in blistering language today, branding it "a needless, futile, and utterly dangerous abandonment of constitutional principle."

"It should be so emphatically rejected that its parallel will never again be presented to the free representatives of the free people of America," said the report, signed by seven democrats and three republicans.

The 10,000-word report echoed virtually all the objections raised to the measure in seven weeks of hearings.

It said the bill would not accomplish its purpose, would destroy the independence of the judiciary, and would make the government "one of men rather than one of law."

Leaders Give Up
"It contains the germ of a system of centralized administration of law that would enable an executive so minded to send his judges into every judicial district in the land to sit in judgment on controversies between the government and the citizen."

As the controversial measure finally reached the senate after more than four months of nationwide debate, administration senators said they virtually had abandoned its proposal for adding five new judges to the supreme court at once.

They were trying instead to work out a compromise whereby elderly justices could be augmented or replaced at the rate of one a year. Opponents, however, declared they would filibuster against any modified proposal.

Submission of the committee's report made it possible to call up the bill for debate at any time, but leaders gave no indication when they might do so. They were expected to wait at least until the senate passes the relief bill.

No Minority Report
The eight members of the judiciary committee who voted for the bill did not submit a minority report.

Senator Hatch (D-NM) signed the majority report, but said in a separate statement that the arguments were against the bill in its present form.

"It has been my thought," he said, "that there can be met by proper amendments to the bill that with sufficient safeguards, it can be made a constructive piece of legislation."

Never before has a Roosevelt bill come from committee with such a denunciation as the committee's report. It was prepared chiefly by three senators—McCarran of Utah, McCarran of Nevada, and O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

"Primary Reasons"
They recommended rejection of the bill for these "primary reasons":

"The bill does not accomplish any one of the objectives for which it was originally offered."

"It applies force to the judiciary and in its initial and ultimate effect would undermine the independence of the courts."

"It violates all precedents in the history of our government and would in itself be a dangerous precedent for the future."

"The theory of the bill is in direct violation of the spirit of the American constitution and its employment would permit alteration

FORMER RANCHMAN OF STANTON DEAD

LUBBOCK, June 14 (AP)—A. G. Odum, 58, widely known former Stanton ranchman and Lubbock paving department employee for the last year, died here Sunday of pneumonia. Funeral services were to be held here today. Odum moved from Stanton to Lubbock 12 years ago.

SHE'S FIRST

The nation's first columnist-commentator on the news of the world, Dorothy Thompson is ready a "first" in many respects. The wife of Sinclair Lewis, she is a recognized authority on European affairs, having turned the spotlight of truthful analysis on the governmental theories of that continent. Her standing in the realm of U. S. affairs is shown by the fact that she was the only woman called as a witness in committee hearings on the federal judiciary change.

The head of the Herald-Tribune Syndicate had this to say: "Dorothy Thompson's On the Record is not a woman's feature or a woman's column. She wouldn't know how to write one. But there is no thinking woman today who does not thrill to sharp analysis, sure authority and sheer good writing by a woman who stands up and delivers as well as any man in journalism. That's the niche Dorothy Thompson is going to occupy in America."

Miss Thompson's On the Record, beginning today, will appear three times weekly on the editorial page of The Herald. It's a feature you won't want to miss.

Only Finland Due To Remit On War Debt

Billion And Half From 13 Nations Comes Due Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—War debt installments totaling $1,500,000,000 fall due tomorrow from 13 European countries, but there is no sign that more than the merest fraction will be paid.

Only Finland, owing $183,143, has announced its intention of paying promptly as usual. All the other countries have been in default since 1933.

Recent expressions in France and Great Britain—the largest debtors—of hope that something might be done soon about a possible settlement of the war debt problem have not been followed as yet by any official action.

The United States has voiced its willingness to consider any refunding proposal.

Of tomorrow's total bill, $205,338,754 is the regular semi-annual installment and $1,314,281,109 represents payments in arrears.

The following table shows the total amounts due from the debtor nations on June 15:

Country	Due June 15
Belgium	$56,657,631
Czechoslovakia	14,632,588
Estonia	3,796,427
Finland	183,143
France	432,700,850
Great Britain	871,815,901
Hungary	416,433
Italy	81,978,163
Latvia	1,419,144
Lithuania	1,231,760
Poland	46,173,107
Rumania	7,390,000
Yugoslavia	1,873,000

Would Act On Truck Bill

House Wants To Exempt Merchant Vehicles From Statutes

AUSTIN, June 14 (AP)—The house quickly and overwhelmingly approved a resolution today requesting Governor James V. Allred to permit the legislature to pass a bill exempting merchant owned trucks from contract carrier restrictions.

During special sessions, the legislature can consider only matters submitted by the governor. Allred so far has limited the law-givers to anti-gambling legislation but had strongly indicated he would submit other subjects. The session may continue for 11 days longer if the legislators desire.

A bill removing contract carrier restrictions from trucks used by merchants to deliver their goods was passed at the regular session but Allred vetoed it. The house voted to override the veto but the senate refused to override by three votes.

The house shot the resolution to the senate, 99 to 11, notwithstanding statements of spokesmen for the minority that sponsors wanted a privileged status for merchants charging for delivery of their goods. Backers of the resolution charged that railroads and large common carrier truck lines were trying to "hog the highways."

EXPOSURE IN FLOOD IS CAUSE OF DEATH

COLORADO, June 14 (AP)—Exposure suffered on 20-hour duty daily as a telegraph employe during the Ohio river flood in Louisville, Ky., last winter, led to the death of Mauritz Alexander Olson, 30, of Louisville. He was en route with his wife and two sons to the Pacific coast, on a six-months vacation to seek to regain his health, when illness halted him here.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon with burial in a local cemetery. His family will go to relatives in Jeffersonville, Ind.

City's Hospital Bid To Be Completed Thursday Night

All Citizens Urged To Attend Rally At Settles

Call for all citizens of Big Spring to attend a rally to wind up the city's preliminary application for the projected West Texas hospital for the insane was issued today by Dr. M. H. Bennett, chairman of the chamber of commerce hospital committee. The meeting will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock, in the ballroom of the Settles hotel.

The city's brief in support of its bid for the $817,000 institution must be dispatched to the state board of control by Saturday of this week, C. of C. leaders reminded today, and Bennett and other committee members are stressing the fact that all details in connection with the brief must be closed out Thursday night.

"We urge a widespread turnout at the Thursday night meeting," said Bennett. "If Big Spring is to make any headway in its campaign to secure this state institution—which we regard as a valuable asset—there must be concerted action this week. The city is in good position with its application, with arrangements made to meet many of the state board of control requirements. There are other provisions that must be met, however, and we are calling on all interests of Big Spring to assist in the final details. We stand at an even chance to land this institution only if we present a united front. Other West Texas cities are campaigning vigorously, and we must meet their pace."

"Thursday night is the time for us to mobilize forces. The committee is confident there will be an enthusiastic meeting."

VICAR HOPES TO LECTURE IN U. S.

DARLINGTON, Eng., June 14 (AP)—The Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, who performed the Duke of Windsor's religious wedding ceremony in spite of the opposition of his bishops, announced today following his resignation that he hopes to lecture for two months in the United States.

He described his intended trip as a combined holiday and lecture tour. Presumably he will talk about why he performed the ceremony at Nonsuch. He hopes to leave for America shortly.

Mr. Jardine continued to insist his resignation as vicar of St. Paul's, Darlington has nothing to do with his performance of the wedding ceremony.

CO. OFFICIALS AND EVALUATORS CONFER

County commissioners court Monday conferred with J. M. Abbott of Pritchard and Abbott, holders of a contract as special valuation engineers for oil, utilities, and railroad properties in Howard county.

The conference was a prelude to the meeting of the commissioners court as a board of equalization here Friday and Saturday.

ONLY FOUR FINED UNDER TRAFFIC LAW

Big Spring drivers, warned that the city intended to "crack down" on traffic violators, drove more cautiously Sunday, a check on police records showed Monday.

Only four paid fines for driving rules infractions. Two were for speeding and two for alleged illegal parking.

Police Duty Pity the poor police.

Take it from Harold Shumate, traffic officer, if it's not one thing, it's something worse.

Monday a series of scratches across his arms and hands bore testimony to the lively time he experienced Sunday when he attempted and finally succeeded in removing half a dozen cars from a pit. He had received a call from a Big Spring resident, asking aid in disposing of the felons.

MAKES APPEAL TO KIDNAPERS

William H. Parsons (right, above) is shown as he talked to reporters about the kidnapping of his wife, Alice McDonnell Parsons, 35. He said he was "willing and anxious" to deal with Mrs. Parsons' abductors who have demanded $25,000 for release of the Long Island society woman. Today, Parsons issued a new appeal for a contact with the abductors. Below is Mme. Anna Kupryanova, Russian woman in the Parsons household who was the last to see Mrs. Parsons. She has been questioned by authorities.

Bilbao Target Of Air Attack

Besieged Residents Flee For Shelter As Planes Dive

BILBAO, Spain, June 14 (AP)—Low-flying insurgent war planes from the besieging armies that have pressed into Bilbao's edges raided the center of this Basque capital in mid-morning today, spitting machine gun fire.

The people of this "Pittsburgh of Spain," besieged almost since the start of the insurgent northern offensive early in April, fled for shelter as the planes dived and circled.

Defense anti-aircraft guns pumped shells into the sky.

Heavy bombing operations over this tightly hemmed in area (insurgents reported they already had taken some houses in Bilbao's actual outskirts) made evacuation of the wounded a grave problem.

The road northwest to Santander was under heavy attack from the air, with 23 persons reported killed in one sector. This was virtually the only land artery of escape for the Bilbao population.

On the whole, however, Bilbao was stoical in the face of the constant attacks from the sky.

Crouched in makeshift refuges, much of the civil population heard bullets spatter against walls and in streets—determined to hold out to the last.

Those attending the meeting from Big Spring included J. H. Greene, chamber of commerce manager, E. Reagan, W. T. Strange, Jr., J. L. LeBlanc, Joe Fisher and Joe Gaibrath.

JAMBOREE MEET
Eight scouts who will attend the National Jamboree in Washington, June 20 met at 2 p. m. today for instructions.

New Appeal Is Sent Out To Kidnapers

Any Progress In Parsons Abduction Case Is Kept Secret

STONY BROOK, N. Y., June 14 (AP)—The mystery of the disappearance of Mrs. Alice McDonnell Parsons, Long Island society matron and heiress, deepened today as law forces weighed murder and kidnap theories and the grieving husband, William H. Parsons, issued a second appeal to supposed abductors.

If federal, state, or local investigators had made any real progress since a $25,000 ransom note was found Wednesday night, they were keeping it secret.

Confusion was added to the case by several reports concerning the movements of Mrs. Parsons about the time of her disappearance from her home near here which police said conflicted with the story told by Mrs. Anna Kupryanova, Russian-Born woman who lived with the Parsons.

Howard McDonnell, brother of Mrs. Parsons, left his Los Angeles home by airplane last night, with the expressed hope of contacting kidnapers.

One of the conflicting reports authorities were investigating was the story of Mrs. Bernice Lamb, operator of a New York City dress shop, and her sister, Mrs. Lucy Norton of Hollywood, Calif., that they had seen a woman resembling Mrs. Parsons in their Manhattan shop on the day the heiress disappeared.

Paving Operations Started By City

The city's paving program, contemplated under the proposed 1937 38 municipal budget, actually began Monday morning.

A crew of six men, under the direction of E. J. McDaniel, city superintendent, started excavation operations for curbs and gutters on two blocks on Sixth street between Grove and Main streets.

McDaniel said the crew would be increased to 15 Tuesday and the project pushed steadily ahead.

The city has made provision, in the suggested budget, for completion of 20 blocks of paving during the fiscal year in addition to widening of Third street from city limit to city limit.

The Sixth street segment was the first to be signed by property owners.

BROTHER OF LOCAL WOMAN IS DROWNED

BROWNWOOD, June 14 (AP)—Leo Newby, 36, bottling works employe, and Herschel Mills, 30, plumber, drowned in Lake Brownwood last night when their boat sank several hundred feet from shore. Miss Nellie Marie Powell, 17, the only other person in the boat, was assisted part of the way to shore by Mills and swam to safety. Mills, it was thought by members of his party, tried to return to Newby's assistance.

Miss Powell summoned her brother, Billy Powell, who was ashore. He and fishermen camped nearby joined in the search for the bodies, which had not been recovered early today.

Leo Newby, drowned last night at Brownwood, was a brother of Mrs. Neel Barnaby of Big Spring.

Mrs. Barnaby, accompanied by her husband, a Coudan employe, left early today for Brownwood when informed of the accident.

Dainty Centerpiece

By PEGGY ROBERTS

Pattern No. 603

A fitting centerpiece for your most cherished table, a piece worthy of the most conspicuous location, is this lovely pattern in crochet. It consists of a simple central part, finished by graceful combinations of delicate leaves and roses. Another good point about the pattern, in addition to its beauty, is that it is one of those pick-up pieces, too; for the leaves and flowers are made singly, and then joined to the center when all are completed. The completed centerpiece measures about 18 inches in diameter.

The pattern envelope contains complete, easy-to-understand illustrated directions, also what crochet hook and what material and how much you will need.

To obtain this pattern, send for No. 602 and enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to cover service and postage. Address Big Spring Herald, Needlework Department, 71 Fifth Ave., New York, N. Y.

READING AND WRITING

By John Selby

"A MIGHTY FORTRESS," by Le Grand Cannon, Jr.; (Farrar & Rinehart; $2.50).

It is quite true that since the book club known as "The Discoverers" was founded a year or more past, it has sponsored some seven good books, only one of which made a real hit—and that was by an established author who was about as much a "discovery" as Booth Tarkington would be. Yet the publisher who chooses these books is the same who found "February Hill" and several other first novels as good.

The eighth "discovery" is upon us today. Like the others, it is a good job. Prophecy is dangerous—but it seems reasonable to say that "A Mighty Fortress" will not make a big popular success any more than did its seven predecessors. And after reading a very brief summary of its story (which will not "ruin" the book for you, incidentally) you may see why this is probably true.

First, the author is Le Grand Cannon, Jr., rather remarkably described as "a young retired businessman and a Yale graduate." Second, his style is more precise than most, perfectly clear, and yet not in any sense dry. Third—the argument—

The book opens with the ones preceding the birth of Zeke Peete, early in the last century. A New Englander of the best type, Zeke still has a desire to control his fellowmen. He is apprenticed, as it were, to a traveling evangelist named Walling, a chap who has this power plentifully, and who has also great pride in his black mare.

But the ministry proves very disappointing, and Zeke's marriage is even worse. The boy becomes minister in a large Boston church, and entangles himself in the abolitionist quarrel. This provides excitement and it also costs him his position. But Mr. Cannon does not end on a minor note. Instead, he shows his reader how these wanderings and sufferings have formed a man. Zeke is still young, and he is more ready than ever to live a good life.

That's really all there is to it.

LEAVING TODAY

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Enson and daughter and son, Mrs. Brown and John Dodge of Atlanta, Ga., who have been guests in the H. F. Dodge home for the past week, returned to their home today. They will go by way of San Antonio, Houston and New Orleans. Mrs. F. W. Esher of Waterloo, Iowa, who has also been a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dodge, left today for a visit in Atlanta and Florida.

Marijann Forrest Honored With Party At Home Of Parents

STANTON, June 14 (Sp.)—In celebration of her third birthday, Marijann Forrest was complimented with a party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arlo Forrest, Friday afternoon.

After gifts were opened, guests played outdoors at the sandpile and swings and with the tricycle which was Marijann's birthday gift from her parents.

Later in the afternoon, Mrs. Forrest read stories to the children and pictures were made of the group. She was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. B. F. Smith.

The birthday cake, iced in pink and bearing pink candles, stood on the dining room table along with top balloons that were distributed as favors.

Local Negroes Getting Ready For A Big June 'Teenth Celebration

A three day celebration, climaxing on June 'teenth, will be held here this weekend by Big Spring negroes.

Opening on June 18, the celebration will have its biggest run of entertainment on June 19, date of an emancipation proclamation as it applied to Texas, when speaking, parades, a barbecue, baseball game and dance are scheduled.

The finale will be completed the following day.

Ballerina All Stars will come here for a baseball match with the Big Spring Brown Bombers on the East Third diamond on June 19th. Some of the San Angelo ballplayers will team with Ballinger for the match.

The dance is to start at 8 p. m. at the Cottonwood park, scene of the celebration, with Roy Moore and his eight piece band furnishing the music.

In charge of the program here are James Manning, Sonnie Downie and Robert Moore. John Body will have charge of the barbecue, Sam Leach the parade, Oliver Reed the program, and Rev. Harvey Foster the speaking.

June 'teenth celebrations are annual affairs with the Big Spring colored population and frequently draw large crowds of visiting negroes here.

COMPLETE LAYING OF BASE ON MARTIN CO. ROAD PROJECT

STANTON, June 14—Laying of caliche base on the "Ackerly loop," most important road project of recent date in Martin county, has been completed, County Judge G. E. Story announced.

Plan of having the state take over the "loop", now ready for paving, and complete the road by topping it was discussed at a meeting of county officials and Ackerly citizens with District Engineer G. B. Finley of Pecos late last week. Finley said he would push the project and would finish the work at as early a date as possible, Judge Story reported.

Though part of Ackerly lies in Dawson county, the "loop" which connects it with the Lubbock-Big Spring highway is entirely within Martin county.

Other road projects for the county are being considered but definite decisions concerning them have not been made.

OLDER MEN WANTED

That each cloud has a silver lining is a noble sentiment and an optimistic philosophy which makes for contentment. Sometimes this silvery aspect seems concealed, or it requires so much time to emerge that its existence becomes doubtful. Industrial workers above the age of forty-five have long speculated about this silver lining; but now an encouraging report emanates from Ohio.

"Older workers in industry are now staging a comeback," say officials of the Ohio state employment service. "Lack of maturing apprentices, as in normal years, is in part responsible for this reemployment. In the depression gap, with many shops closed, naturally this training of apprentices was not continued. This trend toward workers in the middle-age group is more noticeable now with the return to general business improvement."

Records of the state employment service amply support the foregoing statement. Almost half of the placements of skilled workers in industry, during a recent sixty-day period, were men who ranged in age from forty-five to sixty-five; and in some cases they were older.

"Many men at forty-five or over that age," continues the report, "have just reached the point where their experience makes them really valuable and truly dependable. Our records show that these older workers recently placed are holding their own and keeping up with the pace. They comprise some of the best workers in the factories."

This developing demand for older men indicates gratifying progress toward over-coming unemployment. Workers in this age bracket have the responsibility of maintaining families. Ohio stands among the leading industrial states; and what is happening there in the field of employment is probably also occurring, more or less markedly, throughout the United States.—(Christian Science Monitor.)

NEW YORK—Big, square-jawed, red-headed Jim Tully, who came up from the hobo jungle camps in the freight yards and who got his education trekking with a circus, is Soviet Russia's idea of what American writers should be. . . . His book, "Shadows of Men," has passed the 1,555,000 mark and still going strong, which puts him ahead of "Gone With the Wind" and doubles the sales of any Jack London novel.

Tully is the writer who used to deal harshly with actors in his reviews of their efforts. But after he worked in a picture himself, he made public apology to all actors. "I never knew such hard work existed," he declared, "and I will never say another unkind word about actors."

However, this isn't to be taken that he tosses only posies in his essays, for, unsparring of himself, he never thinks to avoid unsavory puddles in the lives of others. For instance, he once told Barbara Stanwyck that his father was a drunken ditch-digger and a child deserter. That was when she gave him an interview and he urged her to speak frankly of herself and of her early life.

Tully has a fine article in the new Cinema Arts on interviewing people, and he says that from the producers down to the hungry extras he has talked to them all—except Mae West. "When I told her I wanted to interview her for Vanity Fair, she did not respond," Tully writes. "Her manager, Jim Timony, made many excuses. I wrote to Tex Guinan. She sent me a letter from Vancouver. It was full of intimate details about Miss West. But Texas was dead before the letter reached me. I did not write the article."

Here are some excerpts taken from thumb-nail descriptions of the stars: "Somewhat like Jack Dempsey in appearance and manner, Gable has the same kind heart and gentleness toward all those not so fortunate as himself. He has not forgotten that he used to travel by freight trains."

WALLY BEERY: "When I ask him for an interview, he says, 'Write your own ticket, you red-headed scoundrel.' Then he tells me what I want to know."

NORMA SHEARER: "Of all the numerous people I have interviewed I would call Norma Shearer the most charming. Her mind is alert. She is without affectation. Having suffered keenly through poverty as a girl, she looks upon her struggle with understanding humor."

To him, the Russian Sergi Seastrom is the greatest man ever to visit Hollywood.

If a newcomer bobs up in Hollywood, Tully will interview her. But nobody ever knows what he will say.

OUR PENDING REVOLUTION IN GOVERNMENT

In the midst of the oppressive Washington heat, the present congress is being urged to pass without delay a series of bills, which, if they go through, will change radically the entire structure of government in the United States. These bills are not isolated measures, but add up to a consistent picture. And the picture is of a tremendously centralized government, with a power and authority vested in the president, not far from equal to the power and authority vested in Mussolini or in Stalin.

Powers which include legislation, backed up by the police authority, are to be vested in commissions, and these commissions are to be responsible, not to congress, but to the executive. Legislation will be initiated, not in congress, but in an executive secretariat and a national planning board, the latter, again, to be attached, not to the legislative branch of government, but to the president. States' rights in all the most important fields of activity are to be done away with. The independence of the states is to become the independence of local societies, or of prefectures. We are to turn the country into a sort of colonial empire under a high commissioner, and local governments will function by the will and grace of the central executive. The executive will remain in one respect what it now is, but this condition of affairs will be definitely legalized. We shall be ruled in the final instance by an invisible government of an anonymous secretariat.

I am not exaggerating. Four bills which have been introduced in congress are aimed definitely at achieving these results. They are profoundly revolutionary. And what gives the whole program an atmosphere of awful finality is that we are apparently to make a revolution without even knowing it! We are not going to be asked to fight for principles of radical reorganization demanded by the necessities of our times. Our children are not going to be able to say: "There stood our fathers, and in full consciousness of their historic role took this step." Not at all! We are going to be cajoled into revolution, with the pretense that it is innocuous, and really not at all important. We are going to lope along like silly sheep, following the good shepherd to an unknown fold. Or are we? Or are we?

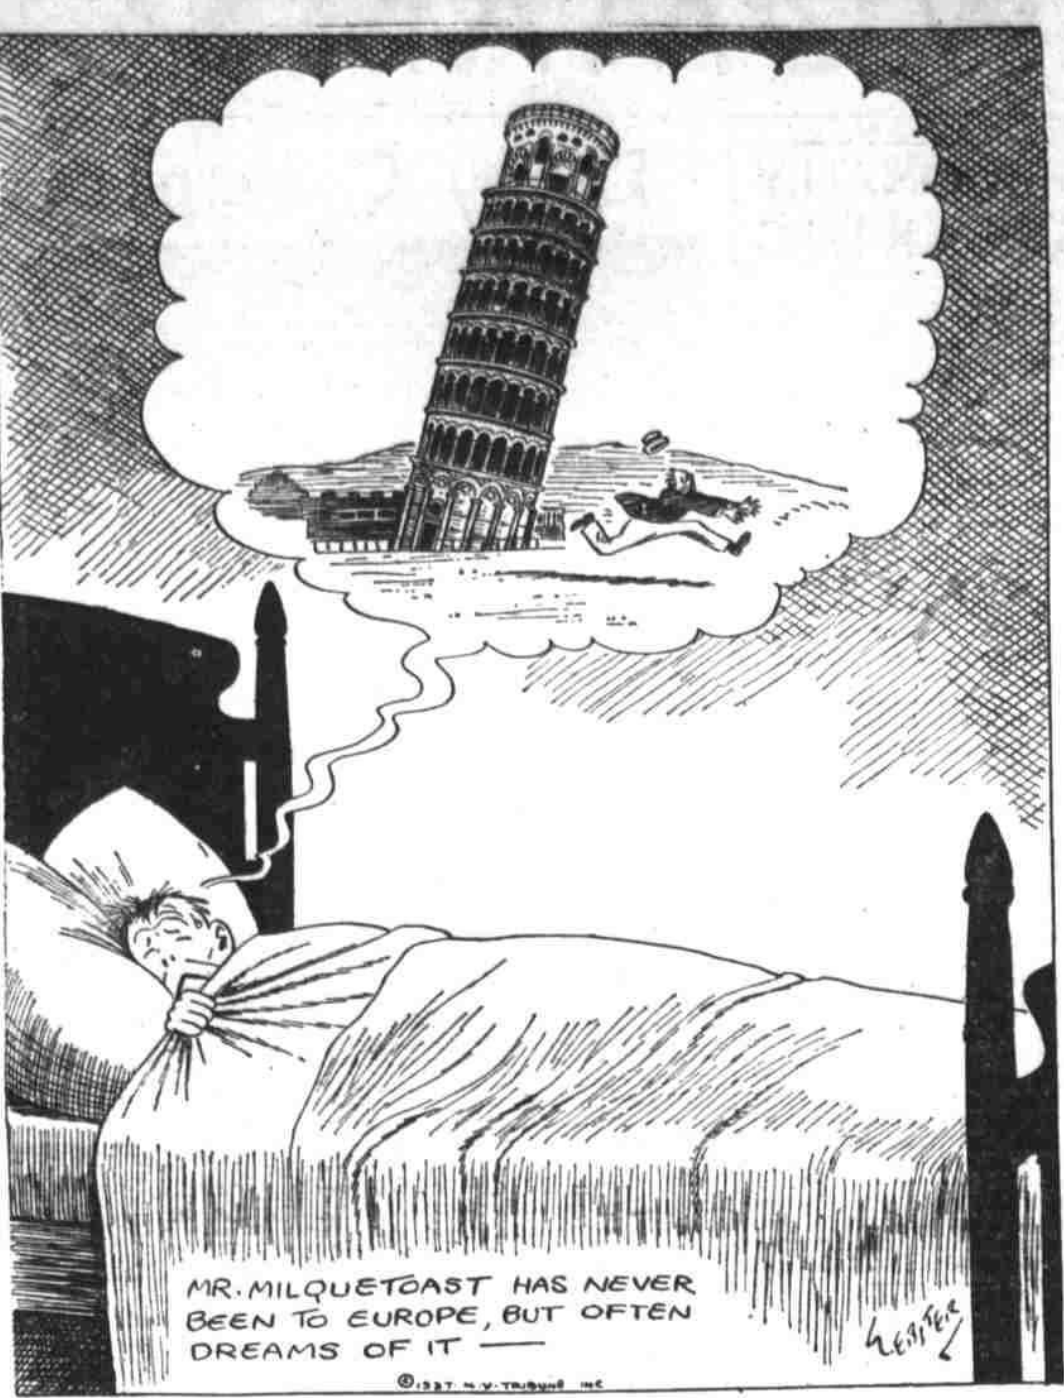

Four bills have been introduced. And congress is asked to rush them through, at a time of year when it is most difficult to arrange hearings on the large parts of the country the public interest is at the lowest ebb, when senators and representatives are sweating and tired. Thus, in the hope of some vacation before the summer heat boils our representatives at their desks, are we asked quickly to make that rendezvous with destiny which the president promised us last June. We are to keep that date, without deliberation, without adequate hearings, without public debate.

It is possible that the people of the United States want to change the system of government under which the nation has been living for a hundred and fifty years. It is possible that they may come to think that the times demand such changes. They have the right so to will and to act. But it is impossible to believe that the people of the United States actually have the remotest idea of the true significance of the proposals which are being made under the general motif of "extending the frontiers of social progress." It is possible that the people of the United States want to make a revolution. But if we want one, then in heaven's name, let us make one in full consciousness of what we are doing. If we wish to turn the congress of the United States into a mere sounding board and rubber stamp, vesting its traditional powers in commissions all held in the hands of the president, let us decide to do so after giving thought. Two revolutions in this country have been made—by the people and in struggle. Shall the third be not made, but merely tolerated?

The bill for the reorganization of the executive department is presented as a measure for insuring us a competent, disinterested civil service, something which public-minded citizens have demanded for years. The bill, however, contains many things that have nothing to do with the civil service per se. It creates, first, an anonymous secretariat of six men "with a passion for anonymity," of powers mysterious, to fill a need unclarified. These men are to be a kind of privy council of intimate advisers, responsible to no one except the president. The bill further creates a national planning board, which by its very nature will become the chief instrument of projecting legislation, and this board is also responsible, not to the legislative branch of government, but to the president.

The wages and hours bill is presented as a measure of social justice. It creates a labor standards board, to be appointed by the president, of five men at salaries of $10,000 a year each, and these five men are to hold the power of life and death over American industry, both interstate and intrastate. Congress will do no more than fix a general objective. It will be up to these five men to decide the hours rates of minimum pay and labor

CHAPTER XXII
 Carol had never felt so miserable in her life. It was bad enough to have a cold. She came of good healthy stock, as she would have said, and she had lived a strength-bringing out-of-door life. When she felt a little less than topnotch, it astonished and angered her. But now, this severe cold was only a small fraction of her discomfort. She sat propped up in bed in her stateroom, writing a letter. More accurately it might be said she was trying to write a letter. Crumpled wads of paper, with a few lines written on them only to be discarded, were all around her. She found it impossible to concentrate. Thoughts of Duke came between her and what she was trying to write. All reason for their association was ended, now that she had won enough to redeem Brookdale. What—what could she do. There was a tap on the door.

"Who's there?" she cried, a slight trace of annoyance in her voice. "It's I—Duke," came the answer. "Just a minute," she cried, crumpling the last sheet of paper on which she had been writing. She was wrapped up in one of the ugliest flannel robes ever sold over any counter. She tore it off and unbuttoned of the cold, jumped out of bed and in her bare feet went to the tiny closet. "What's the delay?" called Duke. "I've got to get into something," she answered, as she swung herself into an exquisite negligee of powder blue satin and rose chiffon, and knotted the sash. She glanced in the mirror. Her hair, which was drawn back from her face in a tight, unbecoming knot, she loosened and fluffed into soft ripples. "Come on; make it snappy," said Duke. "Calm yourself," she called back. A hurried pat-pat of powder, a quick stroke of lipstick and she jumped back into bed. Just as she a different tone. "And now, beautiful, I come here to play doctor. First thing, you take off that chiffon business and put on a good thick robe. What are you doing—looking for a sure route to the pneumonia ward?" "I haven't anything but this," lied Carol, between coughs. "You must have," insisted Duke. "Rosetta would see to that. I'll see." He pulled open the closet door and began rummaging among the dresses. "I'll call Rosetta—she must have something," he said. "Oh, all right then," Carol said. She reached under the bed covers and pulled out the flannel robe. "Here is the fright which Rosetta bought in Louisville." "Holding out on me, are you? You're open swell patient. Scramble right back into it." Then as she hesitated, he added: "What's holding you back? I know you're pretty." She seemed to be strangling in another coughing fit, but she shook her head with determination. Duke took matters, and also the robe, into his own hands. "No nonsense," he said, sternly, shoving her arms through the sleeves. "Now, get any goose grease or anything like that?" "I'm all right," she protested. "You will be when I'm through with you," he said grimly. "What's this smart piece of luggage—a medicine case? Did Madison slip you this?" "Yes, but I've never opened it. I don't take medicine. I hate it." Duke opened the case and looked among the gold-stoppered bottles until he found what he wanted. "Open the chest, patient," he said, coming toward her with a jar of salve in his hand. "But it smells like a turpentine swamp," she protested. "With that cold of yours you can't tell whether it's a polecat or a jar of roses," he said. "I'll wait until Rosetta comes—she'll do it." "Rosetta nothing! I don't trust you. You can bully her. But not me." With a resigned sigh, Carol opened the cover, revealing about an inch of her throat. "I said you couldn't be trusted," Duke said impatiently as he pulled the robe down. "Now then—" as he slapped a big lump of the salve on her chest and began rubbing it in. Carol suddenly began to laugh. "And to see a change of mood," said Duke, not interrupting by one stroke the vigorous moving of his hands. "But let me in the joke." "I just thought of something funny," she said. "But it's not worth telling. You mightn't think it amusing." She had laughed because it was the only thing which could keep her from crying. She was thinking that she would never see her father again. It kept Duke beside her, yet somehow tender, hands on her. But that was not the only reason she had laughed. Despite the deep emotion she was feeling, she could see the humorous side of it. Could anything be further from the romantic, more lacking in glamour than this scene? And she was happier than she had ever been in her life! Hartley had made love to her in a beautiful old English garden with all the stock props of romance—moon shining, roses scenting the air, nightingales singing—and she had thought she loved him. And now in a cramped, stuffy stateroom on a gloomy day, with a cold in her head and Duke's hand smeared with evil-smelling grease—she knew she was really in love for the first time. Duke was so intent on what he was doing that he did not know her big, luminous eyes, full of love, never left his face. He gave her chest a last vigorous clap. "So far, so good," he said. "Now then, roll over." "With you moving, she said: "Kiffie and Fritzie will be married soon, won't they?" "That's the plan." "Will you be sorry?" "Wh' a question. They're both the salt of the earth—and they love each other. Kiffie grouses a lot about horses and Fritzie may seem to rule him with a high hand. But Kiffie would give Fritzie the moon if she wanted it. And she loves him—and not just for what he can give her, either." "You haven't answered my question," insisted Carol. She repeated slowly: "Are you sorry?" "Sorry? Why should I be?" he asked in amazement. "Are you in love with Fritzie?" Carol shot at him and held her breath for the answer. "It was a ringing laugh. "With Fritzie? Where did you ever get that idea? Kiffie gets jealous spells I know, but he's easily wheedled out of them. He really knows Fritzie and I have never been anything but good friends, but he is so in love with her he can't understand how any other man isn't." Duke was scooping out another big lump of salve. "On the level, Duke—you're not in love with her?" persisted Carol. "On the level? Now roll over, as you were told to do." Carol still did not move. She looked deep into his eyes before she spoke. "I love you, Duke," she said.

What is this new display of tenderness on Duke's part? Is Carol wise in believing that he does return her love? Tomorrow's installment holds a new surprise for them both! Don't miss it! (To Be Continued)

Robbin Coons—Her cuteness on parents and teachers and helpless playmates. And now for the blanket answer:
 For future reference on this matter, the Coons non-intervention policy will apply. Under its terms, if parents insist on bringing their cute bundles to Hollywood, Coons will not try to stop them. But neither will he aid nor abet in any manner the delivery of those bundles to the studio gates. He couldn't if he would, and he wouldn't if he could.

Where I live—in further amplification of policy aforesaid—there's a 3-year-old boy. To quote from one of the letters, he's "as cute as I've ever lived, has it all over Shirley," etc. His dances and sings with devastating effect upon his parents. There are certain neighbors, it is true, who label these accomplishments as "stomping" and "yelling," but his parents ignore such scurrilousness.
 Now the chances are that I could blackjack some unwary producer into screen-testing this youngster. But if I ever do, then's the time to write me about getting your kid into pictures. Because then I'll be happily nuts.
Actors' Union Recognized
 The above, neatly clearing away most of the accumulated correspondence, leaves me free to look around and see what's been going on. It seems, among other things, there's been a strike.
 But confers assure me I missed nothing, that not once did Mae West swirl-awing the picket line nor Dietrich waving her limbs to pacing before studio gates. The big news was the recognition, at long last, of the Screen Actors' Guild by the producers—the most momentous group achievement in the story of Hollywood actors.
 Recognition of the Guild means the ultimate eclipse of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, except perhaps as a social order and a coordinating agency for technical research. It may mean even the dropping of the annual ballshoo labeled "the academy awards." The Guild makes its own performance awards, month by month.
 First practical effect of the Screen Guild's closed shop came on a movie "short" set. . . . Sylvan Simon, the test director, was to play himself in the picture. . . . But he was reminded that doing so would shut out a regular actor. . . . He hired one for the part. . . . The crafts' strike—at this writing—is still in progress. It looks so friendly, so lacking in color and colossal, stupendous, terrific attributes that it can hardly pass as a typical Hollywood production. So friendly, in fact, you almost forget that in the earlier heat of battle a man's life was lost.

France Faces Money Crisis

Discount Rate Raised To Check Withdrawals Of Gold

PARIS, June 14 (AP)—Paul Bastid, French minister of commerce, warned Great Britain and the United States today that France might be forced to abandon the tripartite monetary agreement unless they meet France in lowering tariff barriers.

His speech was made at the opening session of the International Exchange Congress and followed the raising of the Bank of France's discount rate to six per cent.

At the same time, Premier Leon Blum called a special session of his cabinet to find a way out of the financial tangle.

Pleading for "simultaneous collective efforts" to revive world exchanges, Bastid said France had the "impression" her action in lowering tariffs and easing the import quota system last fall had been strictly unilateral.

"The result has been a campaign in France for the return to protection and abandonment of liberal measures," Bastid said.

The Bank of France raised the discount rate two per cent to check withdrawals of gold and France's socialist cabinet drafted means to block what some newspapers called a "financial crisis."

The discount and other rates were raised two per cent, for the first time since January 28. The action came simultaneously with official declarations that critics of Premier Leon Blum's regime were turning franc into gold or foreign currency because of the government's need to find 20 billion francs (about $900,000,000) before the end of the year for budget requirements.

Raising of the discount rate is the usual means of making it too expensive to send gold or other capital abroad.

EXTRA! CHIEF OF POLICE GETS A THREAT NOTE

Chief of Police J. T. Thornton Monday "beggled" the press to "suppress a news story" because he wanted to turn G-man. Pointing to an extortion note, he chuckled as he recalled that this is "my first case of this sort."

The note, brought in by Fire Marshal E. B. Bethell, was penned crudely on the back of a sales ticket. It read: "To you—I want 25c right now and if you don't give to me, well you know what will happen to you. I put it behind the sidewalk (signboard). I not kidding."

Thornton declined to say to whom the note was handed, but said he "definitely had a suspect in mind."

SIR JAMES BARRIE IS REPORTED ILL

LONDON, June 14 (AP)—Sir James Barrie, famous playwright and teller of Scottish stories, was announced today as gravely ill in a London nursing home.

The 77-year-old creator of Peter Pan was disclosed to have been in ill health for some time and last Friday was ordered taken to the nursing home.

20-BUSHEL YIELD

Baskin McDaniel, who has 200 acres in wheat on a farm 14 miles southwest of Garden City, said Monday that first returns from his harvesting operations had shown an average yield from 18 to 20 bushels an acre. It is one of the heaviest average yields reported in this area.

Pat H. Buchanan, private secretary to J. J. Pendergast, mechanical superintendent of the T. & P. railroad, is visiting relatives and friends here this week. Mrs. Buchanan accompanied him here from their home in Dallas.

INFANT MORTALITY RATE IS HIGHER

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—The census bureau reported today the 1936 infant mortality rate was 56.9 per 1,000 live births, compared with 55.7 in 1935, and 60.1 in 1934. Connecticut's rate of 42.1 was the lowest in the country. New Mexico was high, with 114.7, but this figure showed a substantial decline under the state's 129.3 rate in 1935.

YOUNG SCOUTS TO MEET THIS EVENING

Den chiefs of cub pack No. 4 are to meet at the home of Burke Summers this evening to discuss plans for an achievement council slated for June 18.

Consideration also will be given to plans for a two day camp for the cuba, pre-scout organization. Projects previously outlined will be talked.

Chief aim of cubs in local dens, according to George Miller, in charge of the work here during the summer, is to have the best pack in the council. Grand Falls, Midland and Sweetwater have packs.

Those to take part in the meeting are Alton Lavelle, Leon Pearce, James Skalky, Glenn Bayes, R. H. Miller, and George Miller.

ONE Jacket helps ... but TWO Jackets guarantee FRESH cigarettes

What this extra jacket does for you

NOVEMBER, 1936... Double-Mellow OLD GOLDS were first to use a Cellophane wrapper as an added protection for cigarettes.

A good idea. So good that all other cigarettes adopted Cellophane, too. A good idea—but not good enough.

OCTOBER, 1935... Double-Mellow OLD GOLDS introduced the EXTRA jacket. Double Cellophane. Double wrapping. Insuring the American cigarette smoker truly FRESH cigarettes anywhere he buys them.

TODAY... THE OLD GOLD weather-tight, climate-proof package is no longer a theory. That the EXTRA jacket actually does deliver FRESHNESS to the smoker has been proved day in and day out over a period of nearly two years. And proved in every kind of climate: hot, cold, dry or damp.

So the OLD GOLD smoker enjoys not only the luxury of the choicest prize crop tobaccos and the celebrated OLD GOLD double-mellow blend.

He enjoys these fine qualities at their best. Double-Mellow OLD GOLDS are always FRESH. Always wholesome. Never irritating. Never weather-worn and climate-worn.
