Boy undergoes heart surgery at Mayo Clinic

By KATE B. DICKSON Associate Publisher

Travis Elementary fourth-grader Justin Cottrell remained in critical condition today at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., where he is recovering from a double heart valve replacement operation, his aunt, Melinda Rodriguez said.

For another couple of days it's expected doctors will keep Justin heavily sedated so the youngster will sleep, be free of pain and not chance the possibility he will pull out any of the three tubes inserted into his chest, she said. He is on a ventilator to control his breathing.

If all goes well, Justin will probably be hospitalized for about another 10 days and could be back in school as early as two months from now, Rodriguez said. Full recuperation should take about six months.

Meanwhile, the boy's parents, Robert T. and Melissa Cottrell, are struggling to pay the high medical bills associated with the surgery and Justin's heart problems he has suffered since birth.

An account at National Bank of Commerce has been set up for the Justin Cottrell Fund and Rodriguez said the family has received some donations including $10 from a classmate of Justin's.

Kid's Club recently held a bake sale for Justin and raised $968. The group will cancel all games this coming Saturday in order to hold a fund raiser car wash on the NBC parking lot from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The need is to raise $40,000 to pay Mayo Clinic as part of the approximately $100,000 cost of the operation.

Tornado drill day in Pampa slated Sept. 29

Coordinator Ken Hall has been working with Pampa schools and Superintendent Dawson Orr to test the new emergency sirens. They want to check to make sure the sirens can be heard in the school buildings. The sirens are normally tested at noon on Saturdays, when school and many businesses are closed.

In order to check out the system Hall and Orr have set aside Sept. 29 to have a tornado drill in all Pampa schools. Hall is hoping to make that day an "All City Tornado Drill" also. He hopes employers will take the day to discuss with employees what procedures to follow and where everyone should go in case of tornado.

Thrill-seekers can find $1 hamburgers, barrel train rides and watch the Adobe Walls Indian Dancers just for starters as part of the Heritage Day festivities planned for Saturday at Lake McClellan.

Vendors are also encouraged to set up shop and take advantage of the day-long activities that will begin at 11 a.m. and end at dusk on Saturday, Sept. 12.

McClellan's annual Heritage Day event began three years ago to promote awareness of the lake, according to Lake McClellan concessionaire Anita McQueen.

Judge delays ruling in cheerleader suit Nine off squad for smoking

BROWNSBORO, Texas (AP) — A judge has delayed a ruling whether to reinstate nine high school cheerleaders kicked off the squad for smoking cigarettes.

State district Judge Carter W. Tarrance ordered the two sides into mediation after hearing testimony from Brownsboro school officials who said the cheerleaders had signed documents in which they agreed to remain "beyond moral reproach."

They were caught smoking at a summer cheerleading camp, officials said.

Tarrance also heard from a cheerleader who acknowledged she had been warned about such conduct as smoking but who said the punishment was too harsh.

"It appears to the court, the community of Brownsboro has been polarized by the issue," Tarrance said. He told the parties involved to "heal the community. Respect flows both ways from authority down.

The nine high school cheerleaders were kicked off the squad because of a provision in the school's cheerleading constitution by the group's faculty sponsor.

Plaintiffs attorney Mike Carroll argued that the document was "not legally binding" and hadn't been approved by Brownsboro school trustees.

Today, they are scheduled to go to Stratford for a performance

"The Black Spiritual is the essence of many forms of popular music," Navarrete told Pampa High School choir students, "jazz, gospel and blues."

She said the spiritual is a pure American art form and cultural development "The power of the music comes directly from the Black experience and tradition," she said.

Theologically, Navarrete said, the spiritual which is both social and political in nature, concerns how the divine mination and how they created their own religion from the remnants of both African and Christian beliefs. The central themes of spirituals are a desire for freedom, both freedom from bondage and freedom in bondage; a desire for justice, and a desire for an everlasting future.

"The spiritual grew out of a rebellion against slave masters," Navarrete said. "It reflects an African background, a life on Southern plantations and an unforgettable record of a people being dehumanized.

Normally insurance carriers won't insure the boy due to his preexisting condition. Cottrell now works for Waukesha Pearce and the family coverage will pick up about $60,000 of the cost.

This week's surgery marks the third heart surgery for the boy who was operated on when he was about 5 days old and again when he was 2, his aunt said. It's expected he'll have to have two more operations by the time he reaches his mid-20s.

But even with his health problems, Rodriguez said Justin has "kept up with his school work ... but he's limited as to what he can do in sports."

These are among the major findings of the first "Shell Poll," a new quarterly opinion survey of Americans conducted for Shell Oil Company by Peter D. Hart Research Associates.

Shell is sponsoring the quarterly poll as a way to foster dialogue among Americans about substantive issues, values and lifestyles. The poll is an extension of the company's "Count on Shell" campaign to provide reliable and accurate information to consumers. Future surveys will explore other public policy issues, trends and topics raised by Shell customers and the general public.

Fifty-two percent f Americans say their local public schools are "excellent" or "good" with 26 percent rating local schools "only fair" and 15 percent saying "poor." A 1972 Gallup survey found nearly identical results.

Public school parents who presumably have the greatest knowledge regarding the performance of local schools, are even more enthusiastic in their support. Sixty-two percent of public school parents say their local schools are doing an excellent or good job while just 11 percent believe the schools are performing poorly.

Americans generally believe schools are doing a better job in most areas today than when they were in school themselves. Respondents more than the quality of the teachers or school in determining the qualwere asked about 11 specific areas — from social issues such as teach- ity of a student's education. Another 36 percent say teachers and paring drug awareness and sex education to academic issues such as ents are equally important.

working parents, teaching science and technology, teaching sex education and preparing students for work in a global economy) and at least as well in five others (teaching students a foreign language, teaching the arts, teaching practical skills for employment, teaching writing and communications skills and teaching life skills.)

However, when asked what concerns they have as children return to school this fall, parents of school-age children seem to be still reeling from the school shootings that shocked the country last school year. In fact, school violence is concern number one. A number of social issues seem to worry parents as much as, if not more than, academic concerns

The top two concerns parents cite as very serious are violence and school shootings (75 percent) and peer pressure about drinking, drugs and sex (65 percent.) A significant majority (59 percent) cite low academic standards, but less than half consider poor quality of teaching or lack of adequate equipment and supplies very serious.

Americans also realize schools already are overburdened and they say parents should be a bigger part of the education equation. Twothirds (66 percent) say we are asking schools to do too many things that would be better handled by parents.

Nearly half believe the involvement and attention of parents matters

People also feel that schools have become too focused on the narrow mission of preparing students for the next step -- either college or a job at the expense of educational fundamentals. They say that schools give most attention today to college preparation (38 percent) and voca-tional training (28 percent), but believe the top two goals should be teaching values such/as respect and honesty (37 percent) and teaching students how to reason and think well (36 percent).

Americans seem to want more from the public education system than turning out college students and workers," said Sixtus Oechsle, executive director, corporate identity, Shell Oil Company. "These results suggest that people think the schools have a responsibility to impart human values and respect for learning as an end unto itself --and most people agree they must get involved in the school system themselves if it is to be a success."

The poll uncovered an interesting difference between attitudes about local schools and the nation's education system as a whole. Just 25 percent rate schools nationally as good or excellent, but twice as many (52 percent) provide such a positive rating for their own local schools. Shell's pollster believes that the local assessment, in important respects, is the more meaningful one.

Americans feel pretty good about their own schools, but there's great concern when they are asked about the nation's schools as a whole," said Peter D. Hart. "One explanation is most people aren't education experts, with the public's perception of the national education system largely shaped by what they see on television or read in the newspapers. But when you ask them about the schools they see up close or send their kids to, most people are pleased with the schools' performance.

The Shell Poll was conducted by the Washington, D.C.-based survey research firm Peter D. Hart Research Associates. Telephone interviews were conducted during the summer by trained interviewers. The survey results are based upon interviews and a representative national sample of 1,123 randomly selected adults ages 18 and over. Question results for the entire general public sample have a margin of error of plus or minus three percent.

Fund-raiser to boost public's awareness of breast cancer

AMARILLO - BMW of North America, the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, Autoplex and the Don & Sybil Harrington Cancer Center have announced each will once again join forces in the Ultimate Drive for the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation

Last year more than 32,000 people participated in this nationwide program to raise $1 million in support of breast cancer efforts and to raise awareness of the importance of early detection in communities throughout the country. The Ultimate Drive is scheduled to come to Amarillo from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Sept. 17 at the Autoplex, 4600 Canyon Expressway.

The program operates on several levels. Area residents are invited to come out to the Autoplex and test drive one of the 16 different BMW models available. For every mile that is "test-driven," BMW will donate $1 to the Susan G. Komen Foundation. Each test drive is driven along a special 10-mile course that is marked throughout the city. In addition to the test drives, everyone is invited to join in the construction of the "Wall of Support" comprised of statements and sentiments to raise awareness in the battle against breast cancer.

A suggested donation of $5 will serve to further the fundraising efforts of the Don & Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and the Susan G. Komen Foundation. A package containing a commemorative key chain along with a support panel will be available at the Autoplex.

The wall, when completed will travel to over 200 different sites over the year. All participants in the program are also encouraged to commemorate their involvement in the Ultimate Drive by adding their signatures to the "signature" car that then becomes a moving symbol of the program's goals.

People wishing to participate in the Ultimate Drive are encouraged to call toll free 1-877-423-7483. For more information about the program, call Tracy Dougherty at the Don & Sybil Harrington Cancer Center at (806) 356-1913.

given Texans who invent

The days when people weren't afraid to take a chance on their own ideas aren't finished yet.

The pioneering spirit is alive and well in West Texas.

For people who think all the good ideas already have been discovered, we offer the examples being put forth by Odessans David Stice and Monty May.

Both men have inventions that they think are needed in today's society. And, quite by accident, both of their ideas spring from ground zero, so to speak.

Stice has developed, through the years, a device that he feels could provide security for any number of installations, including embassies and other government facilities that could be targets of terrorism.

The Odessan's invention is a superstrong aluminum pipe sunk six feet into the ground and encased in steel and concrete.

The ScopeLock, which will pop up from the surface of a road, parking lot or driveway in less than 15 seconds, is strong enough to split open any truck or other vehicle that tries to run over it, Stice claims. With a push of a button, the device then will retract into the pavement, allowing traffic to pass

You don't have to read "Men are from Mars, Women are from Venus" to pick up on the fact that men love to fix things.

As is the case with many rules — there are exceptions.

I'm sure there are some men who love to watch "Days of Our Lives," cook gourmet dinners nightly, and cry like a baby after a good episode of "Touched by an Angel.'

It was a great source of frustration for my mom, and an amusing display of parental fighting for me. Paybacks bite.

When I hear that old familiar phrase today, I cringe as I slowly turn to my husband and inappropriately snap back with "You're not going to make that!"

It's not that I don't think he can ... which may be central to our miscommunication, now that I think about it.

And even then, I probably wouldn't see it by New Year's Day,

Stice said he has spent 20 years of his life, and perhaps as much as a quarter of a million dollars, in the development of the device

It is beginning to pay some dividends as the inventor said a variation of ScopeLock, made of plastic for traffic diversion purposes, may be used at the Golden Gate Bridge in California to eliminate the need for placing and retrieving traffic cones. He also has sold several of the strong security devices to a man in the northeastern part of the country to protect his collection of sports cars

And then there's Monty May of Odessa.

He thinks he's found a financially viable way of delaying fruit trees from budding too early in the spring and being damaged by late freezes.

May designed a system to pump anhydrous ammonia to tree roots in order to lower the temperature of the ground. The system allows growers to fool their trees into blooming later and thus reducing the chance of blossoms being killed.

The idea is still in the research stage and probably will require a couple more years of testing before it can be marketed.

But May seized on an idea to alleviate a common problem. especially in West Texas, and created a potential solution.

Both Stice and May continue to show the enterpreneuring spirit that led to the rather rapid development of the United States as a leading technological nation.

The inventors hope their ideas will prove financially beneficial, another cornerstone of the individual indulgence in the system of free enterprise. In other words, they are testing the market and have enough confidence to invest their time, trouble and money.

Both seem to be sound ideas to common problems in today's world. And both dare to dream that their ideas will achieve popular, and therefore, economic acclaim.

We salute people like Stice and May, who aren't afraid to take a chance on their own notions and, in a sense, themselves.

As long as this nation has people like them, we feel confident that others around the world will look to the U.S. as the nation with the most vision as well as gumption.

Today is Thursday, Sept. 10, the after an American naval force 253rd day of 1998. There are 112 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On Sept. 10, 1813, Oliver H.

defeated the British in the Battle of Mass., received a patent for his Lake Erie in the War of 1812. On this date:

Perry sent the message, "We have president of the Jamestown colony and 25,000 soldiers who'd served collaborating with the Nazis.

This president can't be trusted

As the nation attempts to assimilate the news that its president is a confessed liar and certain perjurer, it is becoming clear that many Americans have a confused notion of what it is presidents do.

To judge by opinion polls, most Americans think the president presides over the national economy and determines recessions or booms. They also think he "runs the country," though it is hard to imagine what people mean by that. Do they suppose that no mail will be delivered, Social Security checks issued or taxes collected if the president falls ill or is removed from office? Do they imagine that the government in general "runs the country"?

In truth, while presidents are not completelv irrelevant to the state of the economy, they are largely so. This president ran on a pledge that he would end the recession, which was convenient since the recession had already ended before he took office and long before any of his policies had had time to take effect.

Nevertheless, President Clinton has been dining out on the strength of the economy for five years now. Call it the "being there" award. The nation has given him credit he does not deserve and is simultaneously disregarding the one area in which presidents really do have latitude for action: foreign policy.

This week brings news from three fronts that not only confirm the execrable policies this administration has pursued around the globe but also point up the demoralizing effects of being led by a man whose work cannot be trusted.

When the president ordered the bombing of terrorist sites in Afghanistan and Sudan, most problem in a different context. Scott Ritter he is a danger.

Syndicated columnist Americans believed that his motives were honorable, but a significant minority thought the attacks were pure "Wag the Dog." Even many who thought the attacks were justified questioned the timing and style. George Bush s. emed to conduct large parts of Desert Storm from the golf course, yet President Clinton seized the opportunity to fly back to Washington and address the nation from the Oval Office.

Now, reports are surfacing that the administration may have relied on incomplete intelligence about the pharmaceutical plant that was bombed in Khartoum. Sudan claims that the factory was used for peaceful purposes inspect the wreckage. In normal times, Americans would turn to the administration motives or his reassurances?

It becomes clear, when considering the president's anti-terrorism policy, that the president's personal behavior and reputation for honesty matter a great deal.

I don't buy things to purposefully make the man mad.

I have a vested interest in making his "honey-do" list as short as possible. For me, time is money. And if it's going to take him tons of time to make something, I'd rather spend the money. It has nothing to do with me doubting his fixing powers.

I know he could fix me up some nice new kitchen cabinet doors — but in what time?

I hear the "I can make that" line so often these days that I'm beginning to wonder if it's a ploy — the "How mad can I make Miranda?" ploy.

But I can play games, too. I think I feel a crying spell coming on ...

resigned from the U.N. weapons inspection team rather than participate in what he regards as the U.S. administration's charade of arms control in Iraq. The Clinton administration says it simply doesn't want to act on Saddam's timetable. Ritter and other intelligent observers think the administration simply doesn't want to act. By privately signaling the inspectors to hold back while publicly proclaiming that we are keeping close tabs on Iraq, this administration is permitting Saddam to acquire every terror weapon the modern world can devise. This is not lying about sex; it is lying about the security of our country

And finally, the folly of the president's 1994 handling of North Korea is now on display. North Korea is one of the world's most sinister regimes, but its people are starving to death in large numbers. In 1994, North Korea's nuclear weapons program was alarming Japan and our other allies in Asia. President Clinton's response: Stand up to the North Koreans and force them to abandon their nuclear weapons program? No. President Clinton chose to give a huge aid package including a 10-year supply only and has invited the United Nations to of fuel oil and two nuclear power plants in exchange for a mere promise to refrain from developing nuclear weapons. His cravenness for clarification. But with this president, can was rewarded recently when North Korea our minds be completely at rest about his fired a new, longer-range ballistic missile into the Sea of Japan.

A president cannot conduct a firm foreign policy without the implicit threat of force, and he cannot credibly threaten force unless the American people trust his word. That is why Another recent event illustrates the honesty this president is not just an embarrassment;

Yeltsin proposed Foreign Minister Yevgeny Primakov as prime minister after his first choice, Viktor Chernomyrdin, asked not to be nominated for a third time. Leaders on all sides had warned of a political explosion if Yeltsin again chose Chernomyrdin.

Opposition and pro-government political lead-ers promptly welcomed Primakov's nomination, predicting the lower chamber of parliament, the Duna, would approve him. A confirmation vote could come as early as Friday.

"I think he will get the Duma's support. Common sense has prevailed in our state," said Communist leader Gennady Zyuganov, who spearheaded the opposition to Chernomyrdin. Primakov is "known in the country and in the interests of the nation."

"I cannot harm Russia. Russia has had enough upheavals this century. This is my choice," Chernomyrdin said.

Yeltsin and the Duma have been locked in a twoweek battle over the prime minister's post that stalled the formation of a new government after Chernomyrdin was rejected twice by lawmakers. If the Duma rejects Primakov — an unlikely sce-

Rocky stock market too risky for S. Security dollars

By ALICE ANN LOVE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Those who argued throughout Wall Street's boom that the stock market is too risky a place to consider investing Americans' Social Security money are now saying, "I told you so.'

'We weren't born yesterday. Senior citizens know better than anyone that a market that goes up like a rocket can plummet like a rock," said George Kourpias, president of the National Council of Senior Citizens.

The group, which has 2,000 local chapters nationwide, is among those using the recent stock market slide to attack proposed legislation that would divert some of the Social Security taxes now deducted from Americans' wages into private accounts that workers could invest for themselves

Supporters of privatization say they still think remains firm. the nation's retirement system would benefit from putting some money in stocks, but now they're Sen. John Breaux, D-La., noting that since 1926, the anticipating a tougher battle.

"We've got to make the case better than we are, because I think we'll start losing support," said Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a key booster of private accounts, said the stock market downturn should make people's expectations more realistic.

tize Social Security.

Supporters say private investment would earn a better return for Social Security dollars - now held in low-yielding U.S. Treasury bonds - just as pension money is expected to run short for the huge wave of baby boomers nearing retirement.

However, Wall Street has been turned on its head this summer by economic troubles in Asia and elsewhere. The Dow Jones industrial average slid sharply, taking back most of the year's gains. Polls earlier this year indicated Americans overwhelmingly support the idea of personal Social Security accounts. But that support significantly declined when people are asked if they'd be willing to subject their own Social Security contributions to Wall Street's vagaries.

At a Senate Finance Committee hearing Wednesday, six senators — three Republicans, including Gramm and Domenici, and three Democrats — said their support for privatization

'You have to look at it in the long term," said stock market has never finished a 20-year stretch with negative returns. "You're not talking about investing for one year, or one month, or one day."

But recent market gyrations do raise concerns about people who would have to retire soon after sudden investment losses, said Edward M. Gramlich, a Federal Reserve board governor.

Gramlich, who served on a congressional advi-'We shouldn't get carried away with the idea sory panel that in 1997 recommended privatization as one option, said he now thinks people would need some choice about when to cash in their Social Security investments to buy a private

Killer put to death for Houston murder

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Moments after a needle carrying lethal chemicals was inserted just a few inches from a tattoo of the Grim Reaper on his right arm, condemned killer Delbert Boyd Teague Jr. became the 13th Texas inmate to be executed this year.

The ex-convict from the Houston area, described by prosecutors at his murder trial as a "one-man slaughterhouse," was put to death Wednesday evening for fatally shooting a man who had stumbled into a robbery and abduction at a Tarrant County park.

Teague was convicted of killing Kevin Allen, 21, on April 28, 1985. Allen was one of three men shot in the head with a .22-caliber pistol at Inspiration Point, a scenic turnout on Lake Worth near Fort Ŵorth.

As part of the same incident, a woman was abducted and driven hundreds of miles from Texas to Louisiana. She repeatedly was raped.

Teague, 35, had little reaction to the lethal drugs and was pronounced dead seven minutes after the procedure began.

House to release impeachment material

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thrust into the first presidential impeach-ment case since Watergate, the House is moving rapidly to release backed up." some of the "substantial and credible" information gathered by prosecutors against President Clinton.

Republican and Democratic leaders pledged today to be fair and nonpartisan in reviewing the 36 boxes of impeachment material delivered to Congress by Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr, who refused to give it to the White House first.

Sources familiar with the report said it lays out evidence of alleged obstruction of justice, perjury and abuse of power by Clinton in his effort to conceal his affair with Monica Lewinsky — in the Paula Jones sexual harassment lawsuit against the president and the subsequent criminal investigation. The sources, who spoke only if not identified, were not more specific.

Lawmakers today were working out arrangements to make at least 445 pages of the report public Friday. The information would be posted on the Internet.

"The president and his attorneys ought to be able to have a rebuttal so we can see it in a balanced way," said House Minority Whip David Bonior, D-Mich., speaking on NBC's "Today" show.

House Deputy Majority Leader Tom DeLay, R-Texas, called again today for Clinton's resignation, saying he wasn't moved by the president's fresh apologies. DeLay said Clinton should have an opportunity to tell his side, but he did not suggest that the president was entitled to see Starr's report before its release.

"We have to look at the report, see what Ken Starr has," DeLay said

Congressional panel

After the surprise delivery to Congress, Clinton's personal attorney, David Kendall, immediately insisted, "There is no basis for impeachment.

Starr spokesman Charles Bakaly told reporters the independent counsel had turned over "substantial and credible information that may constitute grounds for impeachment of the president of the United States."

When the Starr material arrived at the Capitol, Clinton was in Florida for two fund-raisers, assuring supporters that he is contrite and willing to do what it takes to weather the controversy.

Now facing the gravest challenge in a career of political crises, Clinton planned to meet today with Senate Democrats and his Cabinet. On Capitol Hill, after a dizzying series of meetings among House members, much remained unsettled on how lawmakers would proceed. Republicans balked at Democratic requests the White House be given a day or two to review the report.

Discussions also were under way on whether to quickly make public some 2,500 pages of backup material Starr gathered in his grand jury inquiry, said Rep. Gerald B. Solomon, R-N.Y., chairman of the House Rules Committee.

Starr cautioned in a letter to House leaders: "Many of the supporting materials contain information of a personal nature that I respectfully urge the House to treat as confidential."

The 445 pages include a 25-page introduction, a 280-page narrative and 140 pages detailing grounds for possible impeachment, Solomon said

Solomon told reporters he recommended to colleagues that a Judiciary Committee review of the material be completed this year, possibly before the November election. If need be, the House could recess when legislative business is completed for the year and return to vote on conducting a full impeachment inquiry next year, he said.

The new House seated in January would have to reconfirm any decision to move ahead.

Only one president - Andrew Johnson in 1868 - has been impeached by the House, and he was acquitted by a single vote in a trial in the Senate. In 1974, Richard Nixon stood on the brink of impeachment over the break-in at Democratic Party headquarters at the Watergate, but he resigned before any votes were taken by the full House.

In a speech in the Senate Wednesday, Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., accused Clinton of handling the current scandal as ineptly as Nixon did his

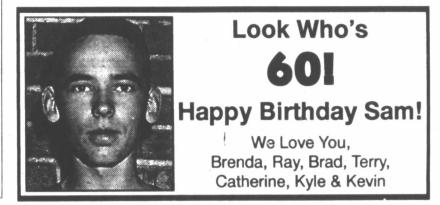

"We seem to be living history over again," said Byrd, who long served as his party's leader in the Senate. "Time seems to be turning backward in its flight. And many of the mistakes that President Nixon made are being made all over again."

Starr's grand jury has questioned numerous witnesses since January, when a former colleague of Ms. Lewinsky, Linda Tripp, precipitated Starr's inquiry by providing prosecutors with taped conversations in which the former White House intern alleged an 18-month affair with the president.

On Jan. 21, Clinton publicly denied having sex with Ms. Lewinsky or telling anyone to lie. In the intervening months, the White House battled Starr's office over his right to question Secret Service agents and White House lawyers.

Clinton confidants such as Vernon Jordan and Oval Office secretary Betty Currie were questioned as Starr looked into whether Clinton tried to buy Ms. Lewinsky's silence with job offers and gifts.

Clinton made a speech to the nation on Aug. 17 about Ms. Lewinsky in which he described his relationship with her as wrong and "inappropriate."

U.S. seeking to avert Kosovo catastrophe

WASHINGTON (AP) - An additional $20 million in U.S. aid is being sent to Kosovo, where U.S. officials say a humanitarian disaster looms with thousands of refugees fleeing persistent Serb shelling of ethnic Albanian villages. Even as President Clinton released the money from special emergency funds Wednesday, the State Department's top official on refugee issues expressed skepticism it would be effective without a pullback by forces directed by Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic.

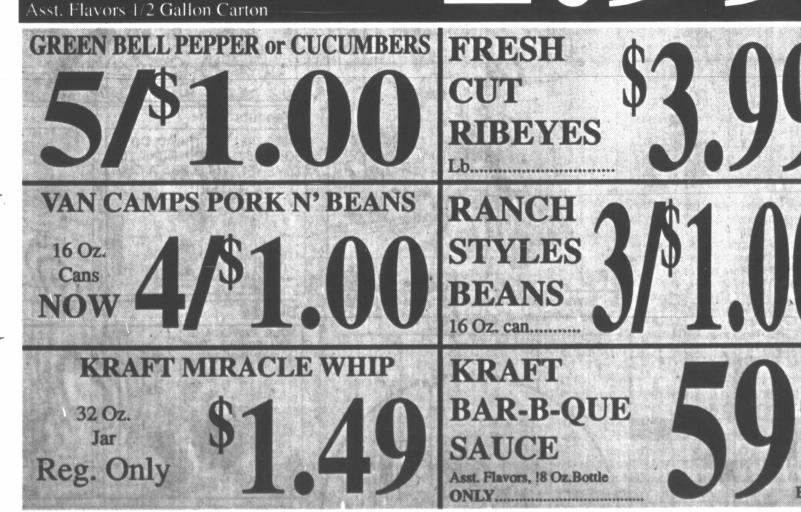

"No amount of aid is going to be ... able to avert this catastrophe unless the authorities pull back and allow access in a secure environment," Assistant Secretary of State Julia V. Taft told reporters.

None of the U.S. aid will go to Yugoslav or Serb government agencies, Taft said. It adds to $11 million previously released to U.N. and private agencies providing food and shelter for some of the estimated 265,000 ethnic Albanians who have fled their homes in Kosovo.

The announcement came as Serb forces shelled five villages in southwestern Kosovo, sending thousands of families into a mass exodus along dirt roads, carrying belongings in tractors and wagons. The action was part of Milosevic's violent crackdown the separatist Kosovo Liberation Army.

Divorced Dad Is Glad He Chose Family Over Fortune

Peimpei

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Heartbroken in Oregon," the man who is in the middle of a divorce and whose wife now wants to move their daughter out of state, really hit home. In the beginning, our divorce was far from friendly. However, we finally got over our anger and got back to the business of raising our two beautiful children. We now have a 50-50 custody arrangement, and our son and daughter are happy and well-adjusted.

Last year I was offered the job of a lifetime. It meant more money, more prestige and tremendous potential for advancement. It also meant moving thousands of miles away from my family.

My career has always been important to me and this offer was quite a prize. My ex-wife and I discussed the situation at length. We explored all possible options, but focused always on our main objective - the best interests of the children. Ultimately, we decided that it would be best for me to turn down the job and remain in California. My ex-wife couldn't afford to relocate, and she and I agreed that the children still need both of us around on a full-time basis. Obviously, this was a huge sacrifice on my part, but one I gladly made.

Your response to "Heartbroken" was appropriate when you advised him to consider moving closer to Florida to be near his daughter. I take exception, however, to your remark that the little girl "belongs with her mother." I grew up in a family with an absentee father, so I

CANYON - West Texas A&M welcomes Southwestern State University at 6 p.m. Saturday in Kimbrough Memorial Stadium.

The Buffaloes will be trying to rebound from a 38-30 loss to Central Arkansas last weekend.

DeWayne Miles scored two touchdowns and rushed for 122 yards for WT in the losing effort. Quarterback Gary Thomas completed 12 of 25 pass attempts for 139 yards, but he was sacked four times and threw one interception. Thomas also ran for a touchdown.

Central Arkansas quarterback Kevin Nawracaj threw two touchdown passes.

WT is now 1-1 on the year while Central Arkansas is 1-

BASKETBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — In the opinion of fellow North Carolina alum Jerry Stackhouse, Michael Jordan won't be coming back to the NBA unless the lockout lasts into the winter.

"I think he's gone. I base it on what people have been saying and what he's been feel-Stackhouse ing," said Wednesday night prior to a charity basketball game at Madison Square Garden featuring 19 locked-out NBA players.

"He's kind of fed up with Chicago's management telling him that management builds teams," Stackhouse said. "That plays a factor, and all that stuff builds up. He's keeping it in the back of his mind until one day he says there's going to be some get-back. And this may be the prime time for him to give a little get-back.

The other women's semifinal will pair 1997 winner and top seed Martina Hingis against reigning Wimbledon champion Jana Novotna.

The men's quarterfinals were scheduled to be completed today. No. 10 Carlos Moya faced Magnus Larsson in a day match, while two unseeded players, Sweden's Thomas Johansson hard-serving and Mark Philippoussis of Australia, meet tonight.

Sampras gained a measure of revenge against Kucera, who beat the world's top player in the quarterfinals at this year's Australian Open.

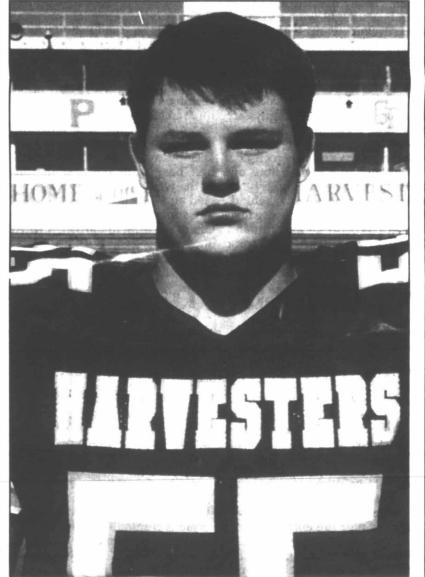

"I always remember my losses," Sampras said. "He picked me apart down in Australia. I was probably a little bit more on my toes tonight than I was in Australia.

Sampras presented too many problems for Kucera. The top seed had 13 aces and had 48 winners, compared to 27 winners for Williams needed three sets to Andre Agassi a day earlier.

HOUSTON (AP) — Phil Garner doesn't need any more convincing. He believes the Houston Astros are the best in the National League. Jeff Bagwell homered for the second straight game and Craig Biggio went 4-for-5 with his 20th homer, leading to a 6-2 victory over Garner's Milwaukee Brewers on Wednesday night, moving the Astros past Atlanta for the best record in the NL.

"I've been saying they are the best for a while. San Diego is banged up a little?" Garner said. "San Diego's pitching top to bottom may be a little better, but not that much. Atlanta is having some problems right now. These guys are the ones. They've pounded us every time.'

Garner was an infielder on the Astros' 1986 division champions, but the current Astros are better.

"This is the best club they've ever had overall," Garner said. "We had a good club in 1986, but we couldn't beat you like these guys. We had some good pitching, but they have power, pitching, and Billy Wagner is just a super closer. There's no chink in their armor."

The Astros lead the season series 8-2 and this time, it was Bagwell and Biggio who led the way, a pleasant turnabout for Astros manager Larry Dierker.

"I've been saying that Jeff and Craig aren't having their best seasons, and here they come getting their numbers back," Dierker said. "Now, all of a sudden, Bagwell has 100 RBIs and Biggio is scoring two or three runs every night."

The Astros took a onegame lead over Atlanta for the best record in the the league, which gives a team home-field advantage for the NL playoffs.

Home run ball No. 62 finally comes to rest—in Hall of Fame

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) ---Mark McGwire kept his word, and it lit up the face of 9-year-old Danny Rys.

Wednesday as he stood at the exhibit — "The March on Maris" entrance to the Hall of Fame awaiting the arrival of the baseball that McGwire hit for his 62nd home run of the season.

gathered near the entrance to the Hall broke into a chorus of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" just the black Big Stick Rawlings bat before the ball arrived. Around Sammy Sosa of the Chicago Cubs 3:35 p.m., a state police sport utility vehicle rolled down Main Street with the precious cargo.

"All right! 62! 62! 62!" they shouted in unison as a big red St. Louis Cardinals duffel bag full of baseball goodies was carried inside.

The ball, which was autographed by McGwire and dated hit No. 61, which broke Babe be coming home with this. '9-8-98," was significant.

"It's probably one of the most important artifacts in the history of the game," Hall of Fame president Don Marr said.

And it was only part of the haul. Accompanying it were McGwire's brown, flamed-treated Rawlings bat, with his signature just above the label; his hat, uniform, size 13 cleats and batting gloves; the uniform his batboy son Matt was wearing; and the official scorecard of the game kept by Jack Buck, who noted the home run with a jubilant "62!"

"This is like Christmas," said Marr, who put on a pair of white gloves to hold the bat aloft for cameras to record the historic moment. "We knew Mark McGwire was going to be generous, but we didn't know it would be so spontaneous, in the heat of the celebration.

"It means a lot," Marr said. Ruth's record of 60 set in 1927. "The artifacts are terribly important in assisting us in telling the mental day for the Hall of Fame," story.'

— to be unveiled to the public at 11 a.m. today, which would have been Maris' 64th birthday. The display will remain in the front The more than 200 people who lobby for at least one year, exhibits curator Ted Spencer said.

Also part of the bonanza was was using when he hit his 57th home run of the season. That drive broke Hack Wilson's Cubs record, which had stood since McGwire and Sosa came along.

Marr said. "This speaks volumes "I'm excited!" Danny said ' They all will be part of a new about baseball players. They're our greatest supporters. Both players could not have been more generous. Fortunately, the ball was retrieved and given to Mark.

This is a particularly monu-

We found that refreshing." A photo of the Babe giving his farewell address at Yankee Stadium just before his death a half-century ago hung on a wall to the left of Marr, making the moment that much more poignant.

'Mark McGwire has said these artifacts belong here," said Marr, 1930 as the NL record until who slept with them Tuesday night just to make sure. "He's a The two bats were placed on a man of his word. record crowd a day after he set baseball's home run record, but Bret Boone homered twice as the Cincinnati Reds beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3 Wednesday night.

McGwire, drained from a sleepless night after his record-setting 62nd homer at Busch Stadium, decided to get a couple of at-bats to reward a crowd of 51,969, the biggest midweek crowd in stadium history except for season openers.

Pete Harnisch (12-6) tipped his cap to McGwire during a first- for an examination and is expectinning ovation that lasted for more ed to be out for about five days.
