Is city's fire contract with county over?

The city may end the fire contract it has with Gray County.

The Pampa City Commission will consider giving notice to Gray County to end a fire services contract that began in 1988.

The contract contained a provision that extended the contract on a month-by-month basis until a 30-day notice was given by either party.

Recently, the city asked the county to increase its contract contribution. The county currently pays $105,000 a year to the city for fire services to county areas.

The city pays $1.3 million annually to maintain the fire department.

Bob Eskridge, city manager, said no specific figure amount was requested of the county, but a report he gave to the county and the city commission recently showed that 18.4 percent of the fire calls made by the Pampa Fire Department were for calls in Gray County.

So if Gray County paid 18.4 percent of the city's fire budget, the proportional dollar amount comes to $226,861, he informed community officials.

At a previous County Court meeting, Mayor Bob Neslage recommended that the county pay a higher contribution toward the fire services contract in stages; he suggested the county pay a $50,000 increase for the first year.

At the last City Commission meeting, the commission rejected a counter offer from the county, who offered to pay $20,000 annually toward the contract.

In other items, the commission will consider appointments to seven advisory boards and will have final readings to approve the operation.

DA says longtime 'drug dealer' finally put away

A stream of Pampa and Gray County law enforcement officers are expected to testify this afternoon in the punishment phase of a Pampa man who pleaded guilty this morning to drug charges.

Glenn Jack Noack, 32, 912 Brunow, pleaded guilty this morning in 31st District Court to a charge of possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver.

Noack was arrested in late

March following a routine traffic stop.

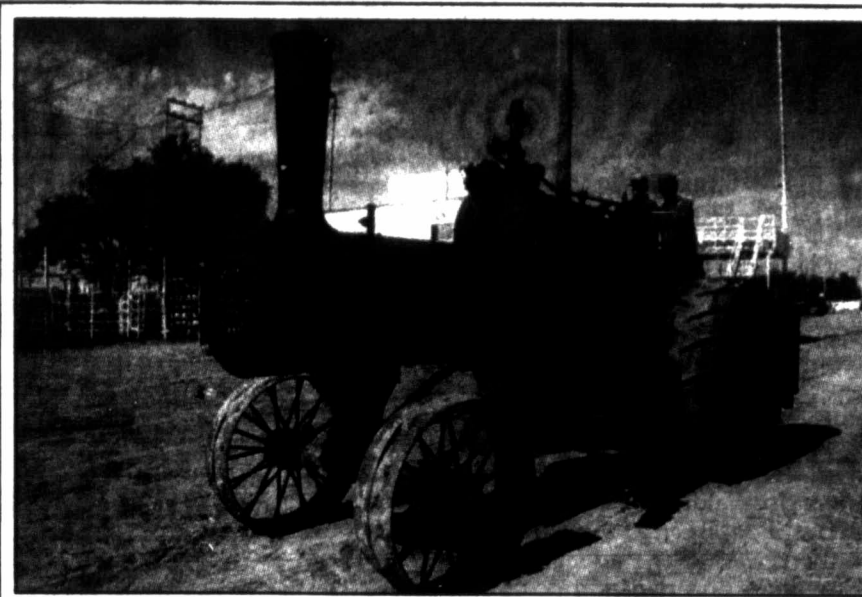

Pampa Police Officer Don Rowell pulled Noack over on March 26, for failure to signal a turn. He took Noack into custody for not wearing a seat belt and failure to change the address on his driver's license.

A search of Noack's Ford Bronco resulted in the discovery of 42 grams of methamphetamine worth over $5,000 on the street, officers said. Authorities said they also found $1,345 in cash. Officers seized both the cash and the vehicle.

Based on the contraband they found in the vehicle, officers obtained a search warrant for Noack's house. According to Pampa police detectives, officers seized drug paraphernalia, a computer, scanners and scales.

Juvy proposal: Reviewing its history, plans

(This is the first in a series of stories about a proposed juvenile rehabilitation facility in Pampa.)

How much do people know about the proposed juvenile alcohol and drug rehabilitation facility?

One of the complaints aired about the facility by some citizens, and government officials, is that they don't know much about the details of the project.

Most of the numbers have been reported, but since some of the numbers have changed, and since the process has stretched over several months, a review of the history, plans, and numbers may be in order.

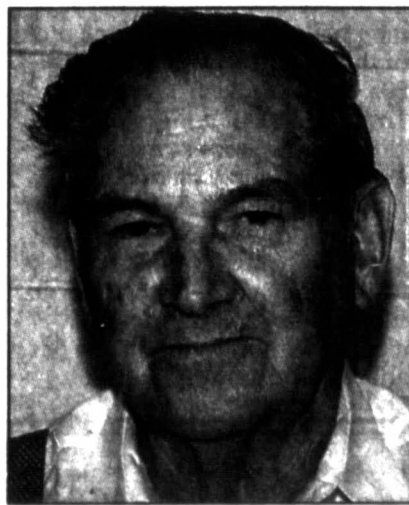

The idea of the facility started when County Judge Richard Peet discovered that a building being used by Columbia Medical

Florence Griffith Joyner, 38, found dead

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — Florence Griffith Joyner, the Olympic speed sensation who won three gold medals at the 1988 Seoul Games, was found dead Monday by her husband and coach, Al Joyner. She was 38.

Track champion Greg Foster said he was told by Griffith Joyner's sister-in-law, Olympic track-and-field medalist Jackie Joyner-Kersey, that Griffith Joyner apparently died of a heart problem.

At her height, "Flo Jo" was the fastest woman alive, with movie-star looks, a mane of black hair, audacious bodysuits that showed off her muscular figure and brightly colored 6-inch fingernails.

Ten years ago this week, she won three gold medals at the Seoul Olympics in the 100- and 200-meter dash and the 400-meter relay.

At her death, Griffith Joyner still held world records in the 100- and 200-meter dashes. She set the 100 mark of 10.49 seconds at the 1988 Olympic trials at Indianapolis, and since then no woman has ever broken 10.60. She clocked 21.34 in the 200 in the Olympic final.

She was voted The Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year for 1988 and won the Sullivan Award as the nation's top amateur athlete.

She attempted a comeback before the 1996 Olympics in Atlanta, but problems with her Achilles tendon forced her to abandon the attempt.

Drug Bust

"Officers did a good job on this one," District Attorney John Mann said. "All the different agencies there really handled this in a really professional way."

Mann said Noack is one of the top five drug dealers in Pampa. "We busted one of Pampa's largest and most long-standing drug dealers," Mann said the day after Noack's arrest. "He's been arrested in Pampa before and he's been arrested in Amarillo before, but we got enough on him last night to put him away."

Center, located on Hobart between NBC Bank and Allison Motors, was in fact county property.

The building was built by the county in the late 50's to house nurses.

At the time, the county owned the hospital, which was located where NBC Plaza now stands.

The facility opened in 1960.

The county sold the hospital in 1982, and eventually a new hospital was built at Columbia Medical Center's present location.

But the Hobart street facility was not sold with the hospital, nor was that piece of property sold when the rest of the hospital site was sold to build the plaza.

The private hospital, and its various owners, have used the nurses facility to house nurses on a temporary basis until the present.

It was Chief Juvenile Probation Officer Albert Nichols who first mentioned that he thought the building was owned by the county; he brought the matter up because he said he thought it would make a good location for a juvenile drug rehab center.

Judge Richard Peet discovered that the ownership was so murky that neither the county nor the hospital had provided insurance on the building. The county has since provided the necessary insurance.

But the idea of a facility for juvenile drug users, who have been arrested, was first presented to the Juvenile Probation Board on April 2.

That board consists of the two district judges and the county judge.

The board asked Nichols to look into the cost of converting the building into a secure facility because there is not a self-contained, secure juvenile treatment facility in the panhandle.

On May 1, the Gray County Commission voted to allow Nichols to investigate further.

Later, Nichols heard from Warren Chisum's office about a state grant the facility might qualify for.

On July 1, the commission voted 3-2 to apply for the grant, which included a quarter matching provision.

Currently, the plans for the project call for a 30 bed facility; it now has 18 bedrooms.

Plans also call for two juveniles per room, and at least one of the bedrooms would have to be made handicapped accessible to meet state and federal guidelines.

(In the next installment — the pros and cons of having such a facility.)

School teachers in central Russia to get paid in vodka

MOSCOW (AP) — Teachers in central Russia will be receiving their monthly salaries in vodka because the government's coffers are empty, a news agency reported today.

The 8,000 educators in the Altai republic will get 15 bottles of vodka each while local leaders pressure the federal government to pay its debts, the ITAR-

Tass news agency said. The federal government had promised to pay $2.5 million to the teachers in August, but the money has not appeared, ITAR-Tass said.

About 75 percent of Altai's budget comes from the federal treasury, which is months behind in paying workers and pensioners nationwide. But it isn't clear if this offer is a step ahead or behind. Officials in Altai, about 1,850 miles east of Moscow, had previously tried to pay part of the teachers' six-month wage arrears with toilet paper and funeral accessories. The payments were refused, ITAR-Tass said.

Thorndale students accused of on-campus assault

THORNDALE, Texas (AP) — Four high school students accused of sexually assaulting a fellow student with a plastic bottle pleaded guilty Monday to hazing and were sentenced to one year probation.

Investigators claim the junior varsity football players used a plastic soda bottle to sexually assault a classmate last October, while on school property.

Complaints filed by the Milam County district attorney last week allege that physical force was used in the attacks, which included an attempted assault on a second student.

Charges weren't filed until last month.

The students could have faced confinement in a juvenile facility, probation and a fine.

The four, now all 15, apologized after their court appearance. In addition to probation, they must perform community service.

Celanese gives United Way helping hand with United Way Kickoff event

The Celanese Pampa Plant recently held its United Way Kickoff in the plant atrium. A 22-member committee of plant volunteers from a cross section of the plant worked for four weeks organizing the event to build momentum for the Celanese campaign. Committee members visited operators on every shift one week prior to the city campaign to avoid conflicting with an upcoming equipment turnaround and heavy work load. The result was a tremendous success and very entertaining.

Darryl Hughes, Celanese United Way chairman, began the event by welcoming the 200 attendees and introducing special guests Bob Neslage, mayor of Pampa and 1998 United Way drive person, and Katrina Bigham, United Way executive administrator. Neslage later spoke to the crowd about why the United Way is important to the community and the importance of the Celanese campaign effort. The Celanese goal is $45,000 which the company will match dollar for dollar. Last year's total was just over $106,000 including company matching funds. The campaign will last three weeks and just ended recently. Andrea Perez is the co-chairperson for this year's campaign.

The atrium was specially decorated around the sub theme of "In Concert with You." The idea was to promote harmony among plant employees to achieve a common goal. A backdrop at the front of the audience depicted a band with several players. The concert master of ceremonies was played by John Haesle (Human Resources).

Several entertainers performed various comedy routines. Berinda Turcotte (Maintenance Engineering) and Anna Lewis (Traffic), introduced as the Blues Sisters wore costumes and mimicked the famous Blues Brothers. Dave Brown (Plant Engineering) did an excellent routine of Jeff Foxworthy.

The finale included Riley and the Tops. A carefully choreographed song and dance routine to the Tune of "Nothing You Can Say Can Take Me Away From My Goal" played by lead singer

Riley Kothmann (plant manager) and the Tops. Amanda Soukup (controller), Andrea Perez (Environmental), Caroline Lau (process technical engineer), and Lisa Smith (production engineer). The combination of such special efforts by all committee members gave the campaign a tremendous start. Afterwards ice cream was served as refreshments. Door prizes were also given away.

Other committee members include Scot Houston, David Temer, Mark Bailey, Tara Garcia, Russ Stephens, Jeff Kirkpatrick, Ila Miller, Grace Yang, Brannon Stephens, Chris Johnson, Danny Whitley, Rich Smith and Ash Jani. Special recognition goes to Don Wommacac. for his artistic work on the stage and Gary Carter for audio support.

Pesticide waste collection day slated in Pampa

AUSTIN — The Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission is offering rural Texans the opportunity to dispose of banned or unwanted pesticides, properly rinsed plastic pesticide containers, used motor oil, oil filters and lead acid batteries free of charge. A collection will be held from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 2 in Pampa at the Clyde Carruth Pavilion.

The purpose of the cleanup campaign is to offer rural areas disposal and recycling opportunities for farm and ranch wastes and recyclables.

Empty plastic pesticide containers must be clean, triple-rinsed or high-pressure rinsed to be accepted. Tires will not be accepted.

Disposal costs for one 55-gallon drum of pesticide could cost a farmer $1,500 to $2,000 at a commercial facility. All agricultural chemicals will be accepted excluding pesticides or herbicides containing 2,4,5-T-Silvex; explosives; compressed gas cylinders; fertilizers or nutrient materials that are neither hazardous nor contain pesticide admixtures; or pesticide or wood preservatives containing Pentachlorophenol. Chemicals will not be accepted from chemical manufacturers.

Agricultural Waste Pesticide and Texas Country Cleanup Collections are co-sponsored by the TNCC's Clean Texas 2000, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and the Texas Department of Agriculture. The following local recyclers have donated their time and services for this collection: Interstate Battery of Amarillo, E&E Enterprises and USAg Recycling.

For more information about the collection program, contact your local county Extension agent.

Summer roundup: Numerous drought measures taken to aid ag industry

Whew! To the summer of 1998, I say, goodbye and good riddance!

The summer's drought, one of the worst in history, has put Texas agriculture through some very tough times. What follows is a roundup of the steps I have taken to try to help our farmers and ranchers:

—Successfully petitioned President Clinton requesting a speedy Emergency Declaration to get federal disaster assistance relief to Texas as quickly as possible.

This quick declaration enabled Texas farmers and ranchers to receive low-interest disaster loans and spurred the release of $32 million to Texas in emergency federal funds.

—Sponsored and passed the Emergency Farm Relief Act to give farmers the option of receiving their Agricultural Market Transition Act payments for fiscal year 1999 on Oct. 1, 1998, instead of the normal payments in January and September 1999. My bill makes more than $437 million available to farmers in Texas, as much as a year earlier than called for in the previous law, to help them cope with the cash shortage that they are now experiencing due to low prices.

This is, literally, a matter of survival for many hard-pressed families. It will allow farmers to use their payments as collateral for loans, or to buy seed for next year, or to pay their living expenses because the drought wiped out this year's crops.

—Pressed Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman to ease the rule for emergency haying and grazing on Conservation Reserve Program land. Haying on CRP acreage is providing relief to livestock producers as well as helping to minimize the fire-hazard conditions that accompany every drought. And this year, early spring rains produced a quality of forage that dried out quickly once the drought set in.

In addition, I have urged Secretary Glickman to release CRP acres for haying and grazing in non-emergency counties or states to provide additional relief — livestock feed — to those counties and states who have emergency declarations.

—Requested that the Texas Farm Service Agency offices have adequate personnel to handle the increased caseload. All the aid in the world is no help unless those who need it can get it in a timely fashion.

—Introduced tax legislation to help farmers and ranchers manage the risk of price and income fluctuations. My bill will permanently extend income averaging for farmers, create Farm and Ranch Risk Management Accounts to allow farmers to defer taxes on income saved during high profit years, and finally, it will cut the top capital gains tax rate from 20 percent to 15 percent.

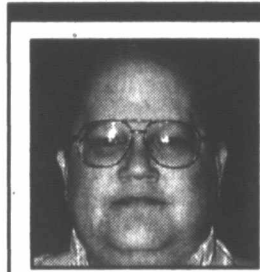

Despite all these measures intended to help, Texas agriculture still is threatened. This is a matter of concern to everyone in our state, regardless of where they live. One out of five jobs in Texas is related in some way to agriculture. Ultimately, 40,000 Texas jobs will be on the line because of projected losses from this year's weather.

Like the old saying goes, if you don't like the weather, wait around, it'll change. In Texas this summer, that's the bad news. The good news is that Americans have always responded to disaster with a helping hand. I'm working with other members of Congress to keep that tradition going.

Life is transitory

Life is very transitory. That's a point that was driven home to me over the weekend in several ways. I was on the way back to Pampa after visiting family in Amarillo when I ran into some rain. That led to one, and then two of the most beautiful rainbows I'd ever seen. It looked so breathtaking that I stopped at a couple of places along the road to try and capture it on film. It certainly made the drive into Pampa a lot more colorful and spectacular than normal.

A couple hours later, as I was safely nestled in my home, a police scanner sounded about a wreck on Hobart involving a pedestrian and a car. My thoughts became much darker, as I went to try to find out what happened. The details of the wreck were in Monday's paper for those who need to know. Suffice it to say, a man stepped in front of a car — a bad combination. The man was hurt, of course, but it's never easy to say how severe injuries are at the time. The police, fire department and ambulance were all doing a great job, as usual, to try and figure out and fix the situation.

Jeff West
Pampa News staff writer

Then I noticed a woman, I assumed she had been driving the car involved, was extremely upset, as we all would be. That is always hard to deal with, I admire emergency personnel who deal with people involved in tragedy all the time. What was different to me was in a little while, people, friends I assume, gathered around her in a circle of support. It could have been a prayer circle. I wasn't close enough to tell, and I wouldn't have interrupted to find out. I'd never seen that before. The woman still was upset enough she couldn't drive, but surely the circle must have helped her. I hope

Mr. Henry has a circle of friends to help him, too.

I don't really know why the two events of Saturday stuck in my mind, a strange juxtaposition of beauty and horror. Maybe it pointed out the fragile nature of joy and happiness. Maybe the importance of paying attention to your surroundings, both literally and figuratively. Maybe there's nothing there at all but a grasping to make sense of the senseless.

Maybe the sense came from my neighbor yesterday. He was out watering his grass and when he saw me, he commented on how beautiful the day was. I agreed and asked him if he'd seen the rainbows over the weekend.

"Yes I did," he said. "They make some beautiful memories."

Maybe that's the key. Make sure you keep enough beautiful memories to pull you through the sometimes unpleasant present. And make sure you give some of 'em to others for when they are running low on their own.

Be good to one another, and be good to yourselves.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
 Today is Tuesday, Sept. 22, the 265th day of 1998. There are 100 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
 On September 22, 1776, Nathan Hale was hanged as a spy by the British during the Revolutionary War.

On this date:
 In 1656, in Patuxent, Md., an all-female jury heard the case of a woman accused of murdering her child. The jury voted for acquittal.

In 1789, Congress authorized the office of Postmaster-General.

In 1792, the French Republic was proclaimed.

In 1862, President Lincoln issued the preliminary Emancipation Proclamation, declaring all slaves in rebel states should be free as of Jan. 1, 1863.

In 1927, Gene Tunney successfully defended his heavyweight boxing title against Jack Dempsey in the famous "long-count" fight in Chicago.

In 1949, the Soviet Union exploded its first atomic bomb.

In 1958, Sherman Adams, assistant to President Eisenhower, resigned amid charges of improperly using his influence to help an industrialist.

In 1964, the musical "Fiddler on the Roof" opened on Broadway, beginning a run of 3,242 performances.

In 1973, Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport was dedicated.

In 1975, Sara Jane Moore attempted to shoot President Ford outside a San Francisco hotel, but missed.

In 1980, the Persian Gulf conflict between Iran and Iraq erupted into full-scale war.

In 1989, songwriter Irving Berlin died in New York City at age 101.

Ten years ago: Vice President George Bush accepted the endorsement of the Boston Police Patrolmen's Association in the home state of Democrat Michael Dukakis. The government of Canada apologized for the World War II internment of Japanese-Canadians and promised compensation.

Five years ago: President Clinton previewed his health care reform package in an address to a nationally broadcast session of Congress. Forty-seven people were killed when an Amtrak passenger train derailed and crashed into Bayou Canot near Mobile, Ala. The space shuttle "Discovery" and its five astronauts landed at Kennedy Space Center, ending a 10-day mission.

One year ago: President Clinton, addressing the United Nations, told world leaders to "end all nuclear tests for all time" as he sent the long-delayed global test-ban treaty to the Senate. Sportscaster Marv Albert went on trial in Arlington, Va., on charges of sodomy and assault.

Today's Birthdays: Actress Martha Scott is 84. Baseball manager Tommy Lasorda is 71. Actor Eugene Roche is 70. Musician King Sunny Ade is 52. Capt. Mark Phillips is 50. Rock singer David Coverdale (Deep Purple, Whitesnake) is 49. Actress Shari Belafonte is 44. Singer Debby Boone is 42.

A survival story worthy of Seton

Ernest Thompson Seton once wrote a book called "Lives of the Hunted."

The Clintons are now living it. Ken Starr has hit President Clinton with his best shot. He has badly wounded him and has him staggering. But the president is still standing. Limping, wobbling and near collapse, but still standing.

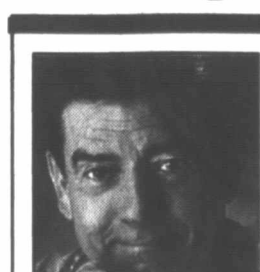

Now Starr is pressing, trying to put the political kill-shot on him. Starr has many more shots to fire. They include unloading on Hillary Clinton.

Tucked away in Starr's voluminous report to Congress is the warning, the threat and the reminder that he is continuing to investigate other phases of what he considers to be possible criminal acts by both Clintons.

Starr reported: "Evidence is being gathered on ... the Rose Law Firm's representation of Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan Association ... All phases of the investigation are now nearing completion."

This refers directly to, in Starr's words, "legal work done by the Rose Law Firm, including the First Lady" (a partner in the firm) on the Arkansas "Whitewater" real estate deal in the 1980s.

The public may long ago have tired of the whole Whitewater business, but Starr hasn't. He reportedly has believed for a long time that he has enough evidence to indict Mrs. Clinton in that complex case.

Dan Rather
Syndicated columnist

Unlike the president's situation, where the law is unclear about whether, and if so when, a president can be indicted, there's no legal reason Hillary Clinton can't be indicted while her husband is still in office.

Politically, it could be risky for Starr to do such a thing. But the possibility of his doing so worries the Clintons plenty. The threat is a major factor in their thinking now. It has to be. It is one of the generally unrecognized pressures on the president to resign.

While Congress ponders what to do, Starr just keeps coming. He is relentless. And, as the Clintons see it, merciless and pitiless in his partisan political zeal. Nothing short of driving them from office and destroying them both politically will satisfy him and those who back him — that's the view both Clintons have expressed privately to friends.

Starr naturally sees his role differently. He views truth and justice as his mission. The law, not politics, is his duty as he has described it. And about pursuing truth and justice, he has no apology, as he tells all who will listen.

For Starr, these are days of victory and vindication. The old Southern phrase "smiling like a deacon with four aces" comes to mind. The Clintons took him on, head-on, and he beat them.

But his defeat of them is not yet complete. So he aims now for the kill-shot. Some Republicans and many Democrats don't want him to take it. But the choice isn't theirs. Congress doesn't control Starr. No one does. That's the meaning of "independent counsel." The law says so.

When the smoke from all of this finally clears, that law may be changed. Politicians in both parties tell this reporter they now shudder at where the independent counsel law could lead in future investigations. But that's of little if any real help to the Clintons.

They've been hit. Crippling shot. And their pursuer still has them in his cross-hairs. They are the hunted, and the hunter is closing in, looking for the one, final shot that will put them away. Forever.

If the Clintons make it out of this bloody political corner they are now in (and into which, in many ways, they put themselves), it will be a survival story worthy of Ernest Seton.

Clinton testimony gains sympathy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers see impeachment proceedings against President Clinton as likely but are willing to hear a direct appeal to Congress by the president, an option the White House is actively considering.

Struggling to digest a historic but wrenching avalanche of testimony, the people who now hold Clinton's future in their hands say the president may have gained some sympathy with the airing of his grand jury testimony Monday in the Monica Lewinsky affair.

But while no one says the nationally televised spectacle severely damaged Clinton, neither do lawmakers suggest the president's troubles will go away. One Democratic senator says he is absorbing details under the assumption he will sit as juror in an impeachment trial.

"As a member of the U.S. Senate, I'm a potential juror in this case," said Sen. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J., for years one of Clinton's staunchest defenders on Capitol Hill. "Whatever affections I've held for Bill Clinton are entirely eclipsed by my sense of responsibility."

Torricelli said that if people conclude that the sexual detail about Clinton is being made public mainly to embarrass him, "there is very likely to be some sympathy."

In fact, Clinton's standing rose slightly in one public opinion poll taken after the videotape of his testimony was released, and fewer people thought he should be impeached.

A CNN-USA Today-Gallup poll taken Monday showed the president's approval rate rising to 66 percent, compared with 60 percent Sunday, and his disapproval rating down to 31 percent from 34 percent.

Those favoring impeachment and removal from office fell from 35 percent to 32 percent, and those who said he should not be impeached increased from 60 percent to 66 percent, roughly the same figures as recorded a week earlier.

But there was no significant difference in those who thought he should resign — 39 percent on Monday, compared with 40 percent Sunday. The poll of 631 adults nationwide had a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

An ABC News poll conducted after the videotape was shown

"There is a lot that points in the direction of the need for such an inquiry," said Rep. Charles found no significant change in overall feelings about Clinton and whether he should leave office.

But Republicans said Clinton continued to be evasive.

"I think most people who saw the tape would say the president dodged questions essential to determining if he committed perjury," said Rep. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C., a member of the House Judiciary Committee that will decide what course to take.

Canady, R-Fla., another committee member. "There's a picture here of evasion, and that's very troubling."

In an effort to slow the impeachment train on Capitol Hill, White House aides were contacting congressional Democrats, hoping to persuade them to speak out in favor of a presidential punishment short of impeachment, a senior Clinton advisor said.

A longtime Clinton confidant, also speaking on condition of anonymity, said several outside advisers were considering the idea of the president appearing before the House Judiciary Committee. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., on Sunday suggested Clinton testify, and the idea was embraced by several colleagues, including Republican Sen. John Ashcroft, a presidential aspirant and harsh Clinton critic, and Judiciary Committee members Barney Frank, D-Mass., and Graham.

However, the Clinton camp says an appearance by the president could occur only as part of a deal to punish the president, end Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr's inquiry and derail impeachment proceedings. The adviser conceded those conditions were not likely to be accepted by Republican congressional leaders.

Canady said he would favor allowing the president to testify voluntarily before the panel should an impeachment inquiry commence.

"It's important that the president does get a chance to present his case," Canady said. Both Canady and fellow committee member James Rogan, R-Calif., said it was premature to say whether they would support an impeachment inquiry.

But Canady said, "If the president lied under oath before the grand jury, that is an impeachable offense." And Rogan said he and many of his colleagues were frustrated by Clinton's "apparent inability to simply sit down, raise his hand, take the oath and answer questions directly."

To determine whether Clinton committed perjury in his answers to questions about sex with Ms. Lewinsky, Republican lawmakers said the Judiciary Committee likely would have to interview other witnesses and fully examine the rest of Starr's evidence, including the more than 3,000 pages of transcripts, tables and documents the House released Monday.

The committee could meet as early as this week to discuss further document disclosures and determine what to do with the president's videotaped Jan. 17 deposition in the Paula Jones sexual harassment case, in which Clinton denied an affair with Ms. Lewinsky.

"I would have a very strong inclination in favor of releasing that video," Canady said.

Church Conversion Can't Save Husband From Troubled Past

DEAR ABBY: I met my husband in church where he had recently been "saved." While we were dating, I found out he had come from a non-religious, alcoholic home, but he told me how much he wanted to be a better husband and father than his father had been. The first few years I actually believed him when he said I had spiritual problems and was not submissive enough. I eventually realized it was his way of justifying emotional abuse toward me.

Abigail Van Buren
 SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

Over the years, he has become more and more distrustful and critical. Everything is black and white to him. Despite the fact that he says "no church I know of is worth going to," I have continued to raise the children in church. I refuse to allow them to become isolated and insist they participate in activities that interest them. I make sure they are around families who are good relationship models. I secretly went to counseling for a while. I have a lot of prayer support.

Why am I writing? Because I've known a number of women over the years who have found themselves in similar or even worse situations. They married a man from an alcoholic or abusive background who had a "religious experience." In every case, including mine, the man swept her off her feet and was in a big rush to marry.

No matter how much in love a woman is, if a man comes from a troubled background, she should be very careful. Some men truly change, but many slip back into patterns that are familiar to them, and then the wife and family become the targets of his anger and pain.

What I would have seen during a long engagement was that my husband swings between being the greatest guy in the world to being angry, depressed and controlling. It's not true that only women from troubled families will be attracted to such men.

Abby, please don't try to contact me, as I save "rocking the boat" for important issues, like those affecting the children. I just want to help others avoid what I have experienced. If I had known at the beginning what I know now, I'd have had a greater chance to get my husband into counseling, and we might have a better marriage than we have now.

FRUSTRATED, BUT COPING

DEAR FRUSTRATED: I agree with some — but not all — of the points you have made. The myth of "Prince Charming" is difficult to dispel because girls take it with them from early childhood into young womanhood. Long engagements and premarital counseling make sense, if both parties are willing to take off the rose-colored glasses and take a good look at each other. (Who was it who said that the marriage contract should be invalid, because both parties enter into it while they're insane?)

You have a keen insight into your husband and the core issues that trouble your marriage, and for that, I congratulate you. Obviously the counseling you sought was of value, and you are in this for the long haul.

Of course, women who are dating men from troubled backgrounds should look closely at what they might be taking on, but so should men who are dating women from dysfunctional families. Counseling is very helpful to people who sincerely want to change and are willing to work on their issues.

I hope one day your husband recognizes that with some effort on his part, you both could have a happier marriage.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 23, 1998
 BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Financial pressure intensifies. You will come up with good ideas once you start brainstorming with a boss or an important associate. Let your imagination wander. You might not have all the answers. Be smart, and don't negate any suggestions just yet. Tonight: Meet a good friend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

You could be unusually stilted or difficult without realizing it. Question what you want from others. Are your expectations reasonable? Consider the big picture when talking to a child or a potential new amour. Let your compassion come through. Tonight: Accept an invitation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Dig into work; doing so can help lift low-level depression. Follow through on what is needed here. Opportunities strike, if you are open to a partner. At times someone is a stick in the mud. Build stronger foundations, and know what you want. Tonight: Clear your desk.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Aim for what you want.

Don't expect your crusade to be an easy one, but don't give up. Recognize how important the support of a partner is to you. A verbal exchange opens up another door. A loved one is testy. Is he asking for more attention? Tonight: A midweek date!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Handle personal and domestic matters now. Be sensitive to others. Work could annoy you more than you anticipated. Count on a co-worker, who willingly pitches in. Understand that someone's feedback is well intended, even if you think it is frivolous. Tonight: Dragging a bit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Your creative imagination encourages others to use their ingenuity. Communications are difficult between you and a friend, mainly because you might have a problem seeing the big picture. Consider options more openly, and everyone will be happier. Tonight: You flirt!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

Pressure from a partner makes you uncomfortable. Consider what you expect from others, especially financially. Your best bet is to count on yourself and only you. An intimate, open talk with a family member allows new beginnings. Tonight: Dream about what could be.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

Be sensitive to a partner who is having a rough time. Evaluate what you consider vital, then follow through. Talks about what you want are important. Follow your intuition when dealing with others. In the long run, this approach will work. Tonight: It is your call!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Pull back, and carefully think through a decision. Aim for what you want at work. Be cautious about how much money you invest. Your ability to know a good deal clearly affects a choice. Rally against fatigue; take a break and walk or stretch. Tonight: A night off.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Friendship plays into an important decision. Discuss goals and desires. A loved one or child might be out of kilter. Don't take his comments personally. Let your sunny side emerge. You can inspire others to great heights. Tonight: Where the gang is.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Take the lead at work. Someone is pulling your leg. Handle a domestic matter later. You might be overtired. New beginnings are possible once you share a great idea. Your imagination holds great seeds of wisdom for a special relationship. Tonight: A must appearance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

Take an overview, and make plans accordingly. Accept the possibility of travel, even if it turns your schedule upside down. An important call might not come through the way you want. Use your creativity to open up a special friendship. Tonight: Rent a movie.

VOLLEYBALL

PAMPA — Pampa opens the District 3-4A volleyball season tonight, hosting Amarillo Caprock in McNeely Fieldhouse. The junior varsity match starts at 6, followed by varsity.

FOOTBALL

WHEELER — After sustaining its first loss of the season, Wheeler will try and bounce back against Spearman on Friday night. Wheeler is ranked No. 5 in Class A while Spearman is No. 7 in Class 2A. Spearman is favored by 17 points by the Harris Ratings.

The contest kicks off at 7:30 at Spearman.

Wheeler had 18 first downs compare to Wellington's 8, but the Skyrockets relied on a big-play offense to win the game, 21-16.

One of Wellington's touchdowns came on an 89-yard jaunt by Larry Vales. Another one was a 70-yard run by Nakia Nash.

Wheeler's two touchdowns came from Brooks Brown (17-yard run) and Casey Childress (3-yard run). Aaron Dunnam kicked two PATs.

Both Wheeler and Wellington have 2-1 records.

GOLF

PAMPA — The annual Pampa Harvester Boys Basketball 4-Man Golf Scramble will be held Oct. 10, starting at 9 a.m. at Hidden Hills.

Cost is $160 per team, which includes cart, green fee and lunch. There is a minimum 40 handicap per team with only one player with 10 or less. Each player's tee ball must be used twice.

Prize money will be based on the number of entries. First place is $240, second $170, third $120 and fourth $90 in merchandise.

Hole in one prizes include a motor vehicle and more.

To sign up, call Hidden Hills Golf Course at 669-5866.

The scramble is sponsored by Fatheree Insurance and Quality Sales.

WRESTLING

PAMPA — The Pampa Takedown Club is getting ready to kick off the 1998-99 wrestling season. The club will host a parent's meeting on Sept. 24, starting at 7 p.m. at 320 S. Ballard.

The meeting will be an opportunity for the parents and youngsters to find out more about amateur wrestling in Texas.

The club had an outstanding season last year, thanks to the support of individuals and business organizations. The club is looking for the community's help once again.

If you have an old wrestling singlet, wrestling shoes or head gear, the club would appreciate any donation.

Persons interested in helping out the wrestlers, please contact Jennifer Harrison at 669-7157 or Brandi Urquhart at 665-8321.

OBITUARY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Florence Griffith Joyner's flowing black hair, skintight outfits and glittering 6-inch fingernails brought a model-like presence to track and field, where she left still-unequaled marks as the fastest and most fashionable woman sprinter in history.

Griffith Joyner, 38, died at her Mission Viejo home early Monday. A family friend attributed the death to a heart-related problem.

An autopsy did not immediately determine the cause of death, a sheriff's spokesman said today.

"It could take a few days or a few weeks," said Lt. Hector Rivera of the Orange County Sheriff's Department.

C-C girls win again

DUMAS — The Pampa girls' cross country team won its second meet of the season, scoring 18 points to dominate the Dumas Cow Patty Classic last weekend.

The Lady Harvesters had opened the season two weeks ago by winning the Liberal, Kan. Invitational.

At the Dumas meet, Pampa's closest competition came from Borger, which was far back in second with 79 points.

Pampa finished 1-2-3 individually with Jenny Fatheree taking first (13:05.60), Beth Lee second (13:26.55) and Samantha Hurst third (13:29.90). Also placing in the top 10 for Pampa were Amanda White fifth (13:46.19); Rebecca Fatheree seventh (14:05.00) and Marci Hansen tenth (14:13.17).

Pampa scored 69 points to place second behind Borger's 46 in the boys' division. Kelby McClellan placed second (17:08.87) and Gonzalo Salazar fourth (17:37.47) for Pampa. J.D. Parker was tenth (18:00.05).

Tigers outlast Owls, 45-40

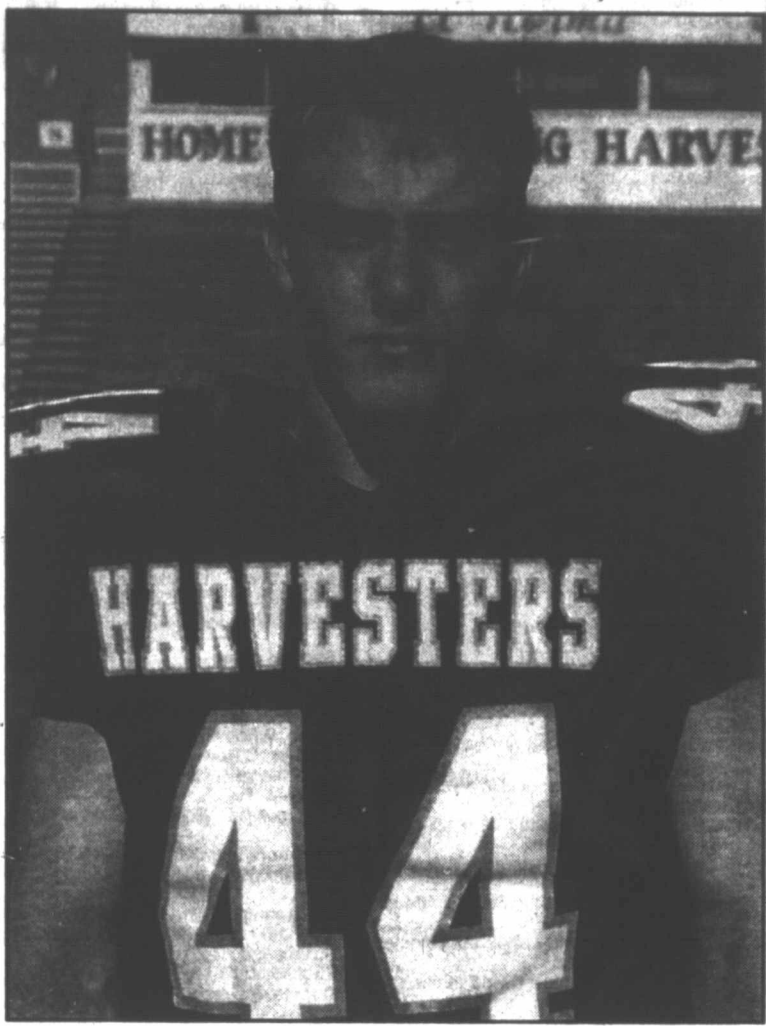

McLEAN — McLean outlasted Silverton, 45-40, in a six-man contest last weekend. Both teams are now 2-1 for the season.

Ike Hanes sparked McLean's offense by scoring five touchdowns and rushing for 168 yards in 22 carries. Aaron Rice added two touchdowns for the Tigers. Rice caught a 20-yard scoring pass from Chris Hauck and also ran back a kickoff 75 yards for a TD. Rice had a conversion kick and Hanes passed to Bryan Fuller for another conversion.

McLean had to rally in the second half after trailing 34-26 at intermission.

Jeremy Holt scored four touchdowns for Silverton.

Big-play defender

Senior linebacker Brent Phelps had 13 tackles, a quarterback hurry and a pass breakup in Pampa's 12-9 win over Plainview last weekend.

Tech gaining confidence

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — After a heart-stopping, last-second victory against Fresno State, the Texas Tech Red Raiders say they're focused on achieving their first 4-0 start since 1976.

Fortune seemed to smile on Tech in their 34-28 victory on Saturday — the Raiders won only by virtue of a fumble recovery in the end zone.

But Tech (3-0) also got another dynamite performance from Ricky Williams. The star running back ran for 244 yards, two touchdowns and reclaimed his spot as the nation's leading rusher.

He also took Big 12 Player of the Week honors and has a decisive lead over Missouri's Devin West and Texas' Ricky Williams in the race for the league rushing title.

Williams said the upcoming Iowa State game will be another chance for the team to shake criticism that they haven't played any tough games. Tech's other victories came against North Texas and Texas-El Paso.

"We've played some pretty good teams, teams we were supposed to beat," Williams said. "Iowa State will be another good chance to see where we really stand."

Iowa State will probably try to use its size to shut down Tech's running game, Williams said.

"They have a lot of big guys," he said. "They're going to try to close holes and contain the run but I think if our passing game is good we can take off some of the pressure."

Cowboys crush NY Giants, 31-7

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Even with Troy Aikman out with a broken collarbone and Emmitt Smith hobbled by a groin injury, there's still another facet that makes the Dallas Cowboys a threat — Primetime.

And Deion Sanders didn't let the Cowboys down Monday night against the New York Giants.

Sanders scored on a 59-yard punt return and a 71-yard interception return, set up another TD with a 55-yard pass reception and had 226 yards on offense, defense and special teams in leading the Cowboys to a 31-7 win over the Giants.

"He played phenomenal," Cowboys linebacker Randall Godfrey said. "We lose our leader, Troy Aikman. Emmitt is out the second half. Who else, man? Next man step up and that was Deion. He stepped up and took control. That's what it takes."

The win left the Cowboys (2-1) as the only team in the NFC East with a winning record. It also raised serious questions about the Giants, the defending division champions (1-2) who have now played very poorly in losing their last two games.

"If you can go home tonight and sleep and be happy with yourself after everyone in the world watched you get your butt kicked, you've got trouble," Giants defensive end Michael Strahan said.

The Cowboys, who slipped to 6-10 last season after five straight division titles, killed New York with the big play in a game played before a record crowd at Giants Stadium, 78,039.

Besides Sanders, Jason Garrett, filling in for Aikman, might have made the biggest, combining with Billy Davis on an 80-yard scoring pass play late in the second quarter to snap a 7-7 tie. The touchdown came just three plays after Danny Kanell threw a 36-yard touchdown pass to Amani Toomer.

Richie Cunningham's 40-yard field goal stretched the lead to 17-7 just before halftime, and then Deion took center stage again after intermission.

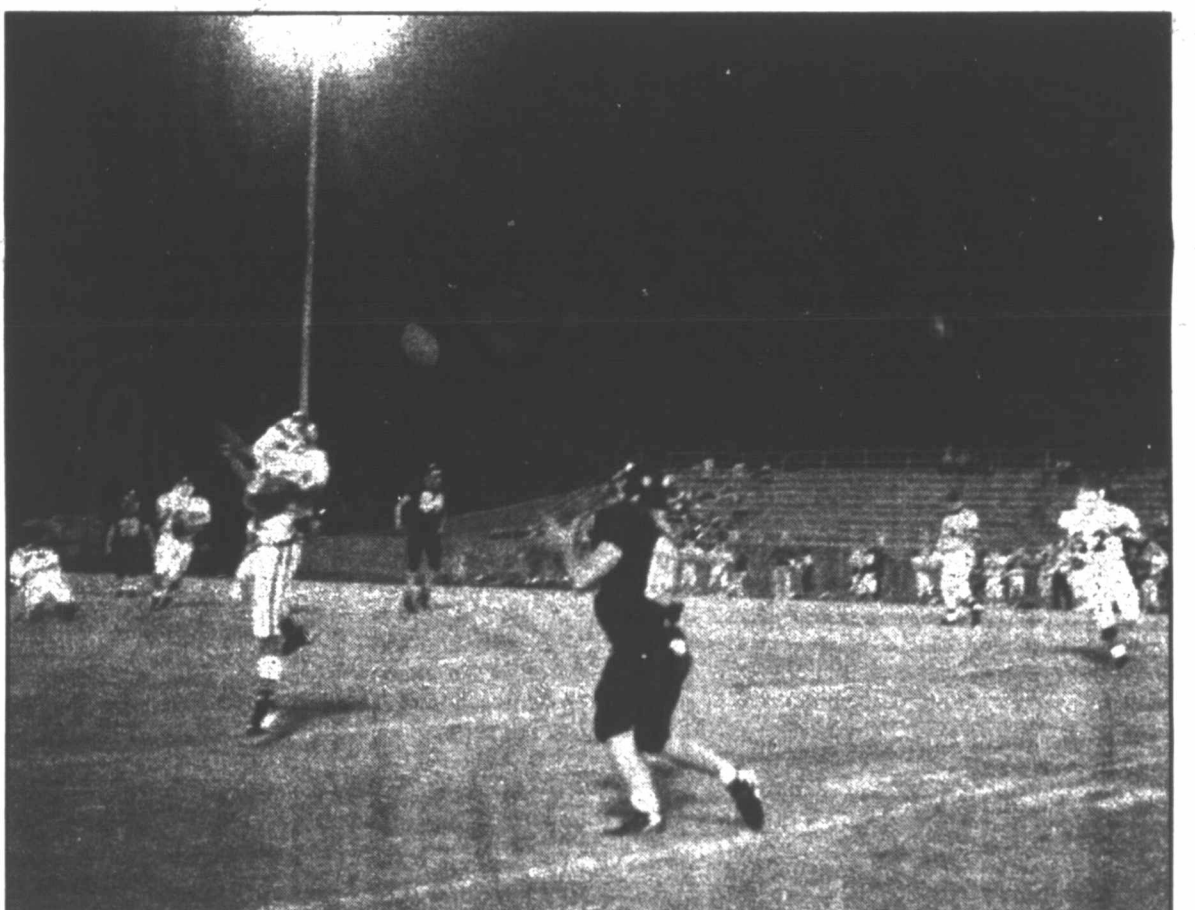

His 55-yard reception set up Sherman Williams' 18-yard third-quarter touchdown run, and Sanders iced the game by recording his eighth career interception return for a touchdown, one shy of Ken Houston's NFL record.

"He had a super game," said Smith, who was limited to 21 yards on seven carries after suffering a groin pull in the second quarter. "He played a superb game. Anything less would be uncivilized. It was a nice game. He made plays. He made things happen. It was just doing what Deion always does."

Sanders did everything Monday night despite having to sit out much of the second quarter because of dehydration. He left after his punt return, a play on which he faked left and outran the Giants around the right side.

"I was feeling funny before the game," Sanders said. "My feet weren't with me. I felt tired after the first two series."

Pampa Raiders open Tiger League season with win over Dumas

PAMPA — The fifth and sixth grade Pampa Raiders kicked off the football season Saturday in Dumas. Pampa this year joined the Dumas Pee Wee league. The Pampa Raiders are sponsored by Ford Body Shop.

The Raiders got off to a good start by intercepting a Dumas Green pass. Sharrod Young intercepted the pass at the 39 yard line and ran it back for a touchdown. Mark Williams ran in the 2-point conversion. Pampa led 8-0. The Raiders defense shut down the Dumas Green. The Raiders gained good yardage but self-destructed on penalties. At the end of the first half, the Raiders led 8-0.

The second half of play started with a Mark Williams' fumble-recovery at the 44-yard line. Three plays later Kyle Cambern ran 20 yards for the Raiders second touchdown. The two-point conversion failed. The Raiders led 14-0. The Raiders defense again stood firm and stopped Dumas.

After several changes of possession, Dumas again fumbled on a hard hit by Cam Seger. Williams again recovered for his second fumble recovery. With five minutes to go in the game Williams broke for a 60-yard touchdown run. The two-point conversion failed. The Raiders led 20-0.

Raider rushers were Williams (125 yards), 1 touchdown; Cambern (82 yards), 1 touchdown; Seger (65 yards); Young (33 yards), 1 touchdown. Total Raider yards: 317. Leading the defense were Williams, Cambern, Seger, Chris Veal, Micheal Pergason, Shaun Carry, Dusty Lenderman, Chad Malone and Jerrod Moler.

The Raiders will play the Dumas Sunset at 2 p.m. this coming Saturday.

Streak over, Ripken goes back to work

TORONTO (AP) — It was a short furlough for Cal Ripken.

A day after ending his astonishing streak of 2,632 consecutive games, Ripken was back in the starting lineup for Baltimore on Monday against Toronto, the same team he faced when the streak started on May 30, 1982.

The SkyDome crowd rose to its feet when Ripken trotted to third base in the bottom of the first inning, and he responded to the ovation with a wave of his cap.

Then in his first at-bat, he singled off Roger Clemens in the second inning. It was Ripken's 2,874th hit, moving him ahead of Babe Ruth into sole possession of 34th spot on the career list.

With time to contemplate his decision, Ripken was sure he made the right move in ending the streak Sunday night.

"No regrets, no second thoughts," he said Monday during a pregame news conference. "I felt great about how it went. It was a great celebration instead of a sad event."

He admitted feeling strange about watching a game from the dugout, and sounded relieved to be returning to the field.

"I still consider myself an everyday player," he said. "I have a lot of baseball left in me."

Ripken closed his record run by removing himself from the starting lineup in the Orioles' final home game of the season against the New York Yankees.

The move came more than three years after he broke 2,130-game streak of Yankees iron man Lou Gehrig — a record that had stood for 56 years.

Baltimore manager Ray Miller said he and Ripken had spoken a couple of times over the past month about the idea of taking days off.

"I told him this a couple weeks ago ... that 10 or 12 games off, or maybe 15 games, you would be 10 percent better," Miller recounted Monday. "I just think that common sense tells me you would be fresher."

But Miller said he planned to start Ripken for the rest of this season, and he marveled at what his third baseman had accomplished.

"The streak is mind-boggling," Miller said. "He's 501 games past an insurmountable number. No one will ever make 2,131."

Ripken isn't so sure. "If I did it someone else can do it. I don't see myself as superhuman," he said in Baltimore after watching an Orioles' game from the dugout for the first time since May 29, 1982.

There's no telling how long Ripken could have gone. Gehrig's streak ended when he could no longer cope with a rare muscular disorder that later became known as Lou Gehrig's disease.

Ripken was completely healthy. He just got tired of the controversy surrounding the streak — more than one columnist called him selfish — and decided that spring training in 1999 might be more fun if he didn't have to talk about playing another full season.

U.S.-Iranian contact proves inconclusive on renewed relations

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — They didn't shake hands or sit next to one another, but a small meeting attended by Secretary of State Madeleine Albright and Iran's deputy foreign minister was the highest level contact between the two nations since the 1979 hostage crisis.

The diplomatic thaw is a slow one though. Iran's top foreign affairs official skipped the Monday session on Afghanistan's troubles at the last minute. And Iranian President Mohammad Khatami had just delivered a speech to the U.N. General Assembly, sending a mixed message on how far Iran would reach out to the West.

The moderate cleric said his country wanted good relations with the outside world, but he suggested Iran would not accept domination by the United States.

"The fantasy of a unipolar world ruled by a single superpower is but an illusion," said Khatami in the first address to the forum by an Iranian leader in 12 years.

Khatami, elected in May 1997, may have been playing to his audience back home, including hard-line religious fundamentalists who control much of the government and who still see the United States as the "great Satan."

Encouraged by Khatami's leadership, Albright extended an olive branch to Iran in June, suggesting the United States was ready to resume a bilateral dialogue — something Tehran's leaders have so far rejected.

Monday's U.N.-sponsored meeting on the civil war in Afghanistan and tensions with neighboring Iran also was to give Albright a chance for a face-to-face meeting with Iranian Foreign Minister Kamal Kharazi. But, with no warning, he didn't show up at the eight-nation forum.

State Department spokesman James P. Rubin said Albright didn't feel snubbed because the emergency meeting wasn't about the U.S.-Iran relationship.

"In our minds, it was not a U.S.-Iran meeting," Rubin said. He acknowledged, however, that had Kharazi attended, there might have been a chance for Albright to talk with him. That did not occur with the deputy foreign minister, Mohammad Javad Zarif, who sat between officials from China and Pakistan while the secretary of state was between Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan.

The seating around a square table was in alphabetical order. Other nations were Russia and Tajikistan.

Rubin said the U.S. motivation for the meeting was "in getting the neighbors to work together on Afghanistan and not as part of the efforts we've made — quite clearly — about our willingness to have a dialogue."

The State Department is anxiously awaiting a speech Kharazi is scheduled to deliver next Monday to the Asia Society in

New York — the same place where Albright spoke in June when she suggested renewing diplomatic dialogue.

"We are ready to explore further ways to build mutual confidence and avoid misunderstanding," Albright said at the time, calling for Iran to halt its support of terrorism and support international security instead. "The Islamic Republic should consider parallel steps."

In the past year, the United States and Iran have promoted cultural and academic exchanges, steps aimed at repairing the dramatic diplomatic rift that began in 1979 when Iranian students held 52 Americans hostage at the U.S. Embassy for 444 days.

But Iranian hard-liners haven't been happy. And in the United States, several members of Congress last week urged the Clinton administration to refrain from any goodwill gestures toward Khatami or his government. A majority in the House signed a statement urging continued toughness towards Iran.

The meeting on Afghanistan was convened by U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan to discuss the civil war and the potential for a war between Afghanistan and Iran.

The eight countries called for a cease-fire among warring factions, including the Taliban religious militia that now controls 90 percent of Afghanistan.

The so-called six-plus-two group also urged formation of a broad-based government and said Lakhdar Brahimi, the chief U.N. negotiator for Afghanistan, should visit the region to reduce tensions, which he may do next month.

Not included in the talks were diplomats from the Taliban or the nearly overrun government of Burhanuddin Rabbani, which is still recognized as the official representative of Afghanistan at the United Nations.

Rubin said the United States called on other countries to stop supplying arms to Afghanistan, and help in an effort to stamp out the drug trade, which Washington believes is helping finance the Taliban militia.

The Taliban overran the opposition stronghold Mazar-e-Sharif in Afghanistan on Aug. 8 and killed several Iranian diplomats. Tehran has massed 200,000 troops at the Afghan border and has conducted intimidating military exercises.
