PAMPA — The Red Cross will have a Standard First Aid class Saturday at 9 a.m. Standard First Aid consists of adult CPR as well as First Aid training. The cost is $30 and reservations can be made by calling the Red Cross at 669-7121.

PAMPA — The American Petroleum Institute is having its Annual Shrimp Boil and membership drive at The Pampa Country Club Saturday starting at 7:30 p.m. All the shrimp you can eat with potato salad, slaw and dessert. A longest drive contest will start at 6 p.m. and a dance will run from 8 p.m. until midnight. Each year the A.P.I. gives $12,000 to $16,000 in scholarships to local students. In keeping with its philosophy of promoting education, the A.P.I. has donated $2,000 to the Clarendon College project.

AUSTIN (AP) — Now that residents along the Guadalupe River have survived another summer of tubers and trash, they're trying to figure out how to tame the next tourist season.

New Brauntels area civic leaders loved $50 million or more in sales tax revenues that 500,000 tubers and visitors left in their wake, but hated the floating beer cans and other trash as well as occasional nudity and other offenses.

"I am adamant that we're going to clean this up," said Comal County Judge Carter Casteel.

DEATHS

- Dana Gwyn Adams, 34, former state employee.
- Lorena Helen Hahn, 98, Pampa resident since 1953.
- Henry Walter Morgan, 87, farmer.

Pottery pays the bills but BIG sculpture looms

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

Wrustler Little's future is lying wrapped in plastic in the clay room of the potter's studio north of Pampa.

There is a cabinet full of pots that are waiting to be fired.

"When we got the potter's wheel," Wrustler Little said, "I couldn't wait."

The kiln that will soon fire Little's pottery sits quietly, waiting for the studio at Fauncine Mack's artists compound to be finished. It's here that Little lives and exhibits his work along with several other Pampa artists.

Originally from Roscoe, where Littlehead- ing for Big Spring, Little has roots in Pampa.

"My mother and her family are from Pampa," he said, sitting at the counter in the Mack kitchen. "My Dad is from Roscoe. That's where I grew up."

The young artist graduated from Roscoe High School in 1993, then headed for San Angelo before going to school in Snyder. He was offered scholarships in art and drama at Western Texas College in Snyder.

"I took the art scholarship," he said. "I studied art there with the greatest pottery instructor you'll ever find."

The instructor, Ty Brunson, sells to Neiman Marcus.

"That's where I got the bug to play in the dirt," he said.

After school, he moved to Midland for about

Panhandle's future focus of talk

What's the future of the panhandle? Who and how many people are expected to call the area home? The answers are out there. Or at least the estimates are and the Pampa Economic Development Corporation wants residents to know what they are.

In order to answer some of those questions, tomorrow the PEDC is bringing in Dr. Steve Murdock, Chairman of the Rural Sociology Department at Texas A&M. Murdock, who was named one of the 50 most influential Texans by Texas Business Magazine, is a national known demographer.

Murdock's appearance is meant to kick off the PEDC's focus-group seminars. He will appear at a luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday, Oct. 7, at noon. The luncheon will cost $6.50. The PEDC asks that anyone interested RSVP as soon as possible by calling 669-3241.

He is expected to present information on trends that will affect the panhandle and the state. Among the items he is going to address are changes in growth areas, the aging population, and the increase in minority population and how these items will affect the panhandle over the next 20 years.

Lefors school drug testing goes 'very well'

By KATE B. DICKSON
Associate Publisher

No positive drug tests have turned up so far this school year under Lefors' new policy that requires all junior and senior high school students to have a negative urine test before they can participate in extracurricular activities.

The unanimous decision last spring of the board to require the tests falls in line with a U.S. Supreme Court action Monday that allows an Indiana school district to drug test students without probable cause.

The court's action in the case is not a decision and therefore sets no national precedent. But it left in place a ruling that remains binding law in three states — Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin. The opinion does not preclude the possibility that the highest court will someday spell out more definitively the bounds of permissible drug testing.

Lefors Superintendent Dr. Tom Alvis said today he had not yet read about the high court's decision, but when told said he isn't surprised.

"What the courts have been saying on this issue is that participation in extracurricular activities is not a civil right ... and to drug test is not an invasion of the child's right," Alvis said.

Though he didn't have exact numbers, Alvis said "about half" of the junior and senior high school population has been tested and "all

Firefighter's injury suit goes to court

WHEELER — Jurors were being selected this morning in a lawsuit filed by two Shamrock volunteer firemen against an electric cooperative concerning a case that could rewrite Texas law.

Barry Sanders and Lynn Mills, both of Shamrock, are suing Greenbelt Electric Co-op in connection with injuries they suffered while fighting a grass fire that burned several sections of pasture near Kellerville in 1996.

In some other states, according to Pampa attorney John Mann, who is representing the two firemen, there is a legal precedent, known as the Firemen's Rule, that firefighters cannot recover damages for injuries suffered in the performance of their duties. The theory is that firefighters know the dangers involved in their jobs and, in taking such a job, waive any right to damages for injuries. However, that

The two Shamrock firefighters, Barry Sanders and Lynn Mills, suffered severe burns in December, 1996, when they were on Pakan Road in Wheeler County trying to prevent the spread of a grass fire being fanned by high winds.

Man guilty of assault

A Cuban native was free after pleading guilty in 223rd District Court today to misdemeanor assault charges.

Judge Lee Waters sentenced Luis Bartelemi Rojas, 43, of 1104 Neel Road, to 46 days in the Gray County jail. Rojas was credited with time served awaiting trial.

Rojas, a legal alien from Cuba, was arrested following an incident in 1997, after he was accused of taking two women to rural Gray County, hitting them and ripping the clothes on one of them.

Law enforcement officers said Rojas apparently offered two women, ages 18 and 17, a ride home from Julian's, a Pampa

The kids came in clean." The tests apply to everything from sports teams to the choir. "Our testing program is going very well," he said, adding there has been "nothing but support from parents ... we've had no complaints."

That's unlike the Indiana case in which teenagers and their parents filed suit against rural Rush County High School which adopted its drug testing program in 1996 even though there was little evidence of drug use among its students.

In Lefors, Alvis said the policy was adopted because "we had an indication there was quite a bit of drug (marijuana) use going on."

The announcement in the spring that testing would take place when school started was intentional in order to warn students and give them an opportunity to become drug free, Alvis said.

"We had known of some school districts that did not give advance notice and had to suspend people" from sports or other activities, he said. Student suspension from the activity is also part of Lefors' policy.

To make sure students stay clean, Alvis said there will be random testings done throughout the year. The names of those to be checked are computer selected.

Alvis did not have the name of the drug testing firm at hand during a telephone interview this morning but said it is the same company the district has used "for years" to test bus drivers. Company representatives come to the schools to conduct the tests.

"We'd like to be able to test every student," Alvis said, not just those participating in extracurricular activities. "But the courts haven't said you can test everyone."

In making its ruling in the Indiana case, a three-judge panel of the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said that "successful extracurricular activities requires healthy students."

FIREFIGHTER'S

rule has not been adopted by the State of Texas.

Mann said Monday he expects the case to go to the Texas Supreme Court.

"It's going to be a long appeals process," Mann said.

At least one Texas Supreme Court Justice is already on record as saying if the court were confronted with such a decision, he would vote for establishing the Firemen's Rule in the Lone Star State.

The two Shamrock firefighters suffered severe burns in December, 1996, when they were on Pakan Road in Wheeler County trying to prevent the spread of a grass fire being fanned by high winds.

Mann said electrical lines going from a Greenbelt Electric Co-op pole to a tank battery and oil well south of Kellerville were apparently rubbed in two. Sparks from the lines are being blamed for a grass fire on Conservation Reserve Program land on the Ted Simmons property. Dry winds, gusting to 50 miles an hour, swept the fire across several sections of grassland, destroying a hay barn, hay and all the winter grazing for three ranches and burning part of the winter grazing range for three others, including Mann.

nightspot; about 1:30 a.m. on July 18, 1997. One of the women accused him of taking them to Dansigner Crossing at the intersection of Gray County Roads E and 19.

The 18-year-old told officers Rojas hit her and ripped her clothes after she made him stop and "I got a call from the Shamrock dispatcher," Mann said, "telling me that my ranch was on fire."

County maintenance crews using a road grader made their way to Mann's house to rescue his wife from the approaching flames. Wheeler County deputies cut barbed wire fences to release cattle from the blazing pastures.

Fire departments from the surrounding area, including McLean, Shamrock and Pampa, converged on the blaze trying to contain it.

By the time the fire was stopped, it had blackened several sections of grassland and reached more than five miles from where it started. The National Weather Service in Amarillo reported that the blaze was showing on weather satellite photos.

Mills, who was riding on the back of the fire truck when the blaze jumped Pakan Road, suffered severe burns to his hands, arms and face. He was rushed to the burn center in Lubbock.

Sanders, who was driving the truck, was treated at the Wheeler hospital for burns he suffered.

The plaintiffs in the case claim that the electrical co-op did not properly maintain the power lines and therefore are responsible for the range fire.

The electric co-op is expected to base their defense on the Firemen's Rule, not on whether they were responsible for the blaze.

Grand jury indicts Lefors man for DWI

A 29-year-old Lefors man was free on bond today after being indicted by a Gray County grand jury for driving while intoxicated charges.

Floyd Gene Morris of 310 Second in Lefors was free on $3,000 bond today after a grand jury in 223rd District Court of Judge Lee Waters indicted after she got out of the 1977 Chevrolet Malibu sedan. She said her attacker also got out of the four-door sedan and grabbed her. She said she escaped his grasp, ran back to the car and tried to drive away, but hit a pole and wrecked the car.

Rojas testified today that he only grabbed the girl and held her to keep her from running away after she wrecked his car.

him on charges of driving while intoxicated - subsequent offense.

The indictment stems from Morris' March 6 arrest in Gray County. Court records indicate Morris was convicted of driving while intoxicated in 1992 in Donley County and in 1994 in Gray County.

Records set in border-crossing arrests, marijuana seizures, say Arizona officials

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Border Patrol agents had been on an apparent record pace for months but now it's official. The Tucson sector ended the fiscal year with record numbers in border-crossing arrests and marijuana seizures.

Increased publicity about troubles crossing in Texas and California has diverted some immigrant traffic into southern Arizona, Border Patrol officials said.

Agents from the sector that covers all of Arizona's border but the southwest corner arrested 387,395 illegal immigrants, 42 percent more than last year and the highest yearly total on record, spokesman Rob Daniels said Monday.

Daniels said agents also seized 185,504 pounds of marijuana and 1,815 pounds of cocaine in the year that ended on Sept. 30. In the previous year, agents found 160,003 pounds of marijuana and just 191 pounds of cocaine.

Other factors, Daniels said, are an increase in the number of agents to 1,031, and use of such high-tech aids as monitoring cameras.

FPC to observe National Screening Day for Depression

BORGER — Frank Phillips College will host a Depression Screening in conjunction with the National Screening Day for Depression from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. and from 4-6 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 8 in the Gallery of the Fine Arts Building on campus. Dr. Jerry Stecker, Ph.D., licensed marriage and family therapist, will be conducting the screening.

Dr. Stecker will be using a short but highly effective tool for measuring an individual's level of depression. It is called the "Zung Self-Rating Depression Scale." This tool is self-scored and confidential, but Stecker will be available for further interpretation of one's score or to answer any questions individuals may have. The test consists of 20 questions that can easily be completed in 10 minutes. This service is free of charge and coffee will be provided along with pamphlets and other materials to take home.

In addition to the screening, Stecker will be teaching two courses offered in FPC's Mid-Semester program as part of an overall Wellness Program that PPC is beginning. The courses are Emotional Health in the Workplace (Anxiety) and Emotional Health in the Workplace (Depression) and include an applications in the home setting.

Much of Stecker's professional practice over the past 25 years and especially his doctoral studies have been focused directly on understanding depression and anxiety. His experience teaches him that depression and anxiety are often "flip sides" of the same coin, and he employs a wide variety of teaching techniques designed for adult learning styles to enable each participant to become actively involved in understanding the emotional health issues of Anxiety and Depression as these directly affect the world of the workplace.

Dear Friend:

My name is Pat Lee. I am running for Gray County Clerk.

I would like to tell you about my qualifications and myself. I am married to James Lee, and we have been residents of Pampa for 33 years. James is originally from McLean. He has been employed by Southwestern Public Service for 33 years. We have two sons and two lovely granddaughters.

I am currently employed as a legal secretary. Previous to my employment as a legal secretary, I was employed by the City of Pampa. During my employment there I served as Department Head, Municipal Court Clerk and Municipal Court Judge. I also served on the Texas Municipal Court Association's Board of Directors and on the Board of Directors of the Pampa Municipal Credit Union. I was elected to the Texas Municipal Courts Association by Municipal Court Judges and Clerks statewide.

I know the importance of working with the public, preparing and maintaining accurate records, preparing budgets and forwarding records to other offices. I have had experience with supervising employees, preparation of Wills, review of court records, probate, and real estate are other areas in which I have experience. I work well with others and respect their opinions and needs.

If elected to the position of Gray County Clerk I believe that I have the experience, maturity and capability to continue to give the citizens of Gray County the service you deserve, expect and have received from Wanda Carter.

I am asking you to vote for me in the General Election in November. If you have questions or comments, you may write to me at P. O. Box 1432 Pampa, Tx 79065. I will make every effort to answer all letters.

Very truly yours,
 Pat

It's just how karma works

Well, since everyone has spent months complaining about the heat let me be the first to complain about the cold.

I know it hasn't been really cold yet but it has been wet and cold and that's almost as bad. The way karma is supposed to work (as far as I know) means we're due for an ice storm that will last for weeks based upon as much complaining as there was about the heat and lack of rain.

There's a world of difference between small business and big government. The women in our front office are trying hard to find a discrepancy of 25 cents in their books. Everything has to balance or nobody goes home (none of them go home, I'm out here soon as I can). I find this particularly amazing because I recently read that the U.S. military can't find approximately $1.6 billion in military weapons systems including a howitzer and a missile battery. Of course $1.6 billion is not really a lot of money when it comes to the government I guess.

Among the things I don't understand, (and yes I realize that covers a great deal), is the rush into the holiday seasons. Starting with Halloween. I can understand why merchants want to start the Christmas buying season as soon as possible. I can even understand why grocers want to get all the turkey ads in they can, after all there's only about a six-week window to get rid of all of those birds (and then there's only turkey baloney the rest of the year). But why are we starting to see Halloween candy? Halloween's not even a not even a real holiday. It's just an excuse to dress up in costumes and go for a sugar buzz. Since the government is into making stupid laws to protect everyone from everything, whether we need protecting or not, how about a law to protect us from premature advertising?

I can think of two ways such laws would be helpful. If applied to holiday ads there would be a ban on using Santa Claus, or stockings, or Christmas trees in ads until two weeks before the day. No Pilgrims, turkeys, or that big cone-shaped thing with all the food pouring out until mid-November. Of course, Halloween might be a little tougher because if they banned ads with witches, black cats, or ghosts and goblins it would affect a lot of the current TV season and quite a few movies. So it would have to be specific — no witches advertising candy or riding a broom while hawking beer for instance.

The other way such a law could be useful is if it applied to elections. No political announcements or ads until a few weeks before the election. They do that in England. Six weeks from start to finish. Well it's just a thought.

Be good to one another and be good to yourselves.

Opinion

The Genome Project not a solution

The private sector offers a better way to attack genetic research and with more motivation than provided by government.

Supporters of federal programs generally use the "market failure" argument to bolster their calls for more government spending. If the market fails to provide a vital good or service, they argue, then the feds must fill the void.

When there is no void to fill, when private firms already are doing what a federal program addresses, it makes little sense to use tax dollars to fund the government effort. But, too often, the federal program crumbles along with few politicians mustering the courage to take up something with local constituents.

One example is the Human Genome Project, a 15-year effort by the U.S. Department of Energy and the National Institutes of Health to map the human genome — all 80,000 genes that make up human DNA. Understanding DNA and identifying "DNA variations between individuals can lead to revolutionary new ways to diagnose, treat and someday prevent the thousands of disorders that affect us," according to the project's official website.

This is a worthy goal. But it's also one that will soon be reached, though in a more limited version, by private firms, with federal efforts lagging years behind them, and costing billions in tax dollars compared to hundreds of millions of dollars in private investments.

The $3 billion federal Human Genome Project was started in 1990. After eight years, it only has mapped about 4 percent of the genome. By contrast, one California-based company, Incyte Pharmaceuticals Inc., recently announced it will complete the mapping of most human DNA in about a year. The firm also is developing a database of genetic variations that could lead to the development of drugs tailored to an individual's genetic makeup. Other companies and non-profit consortiums also are charting the genome and pursuing related research at break-neck speed.

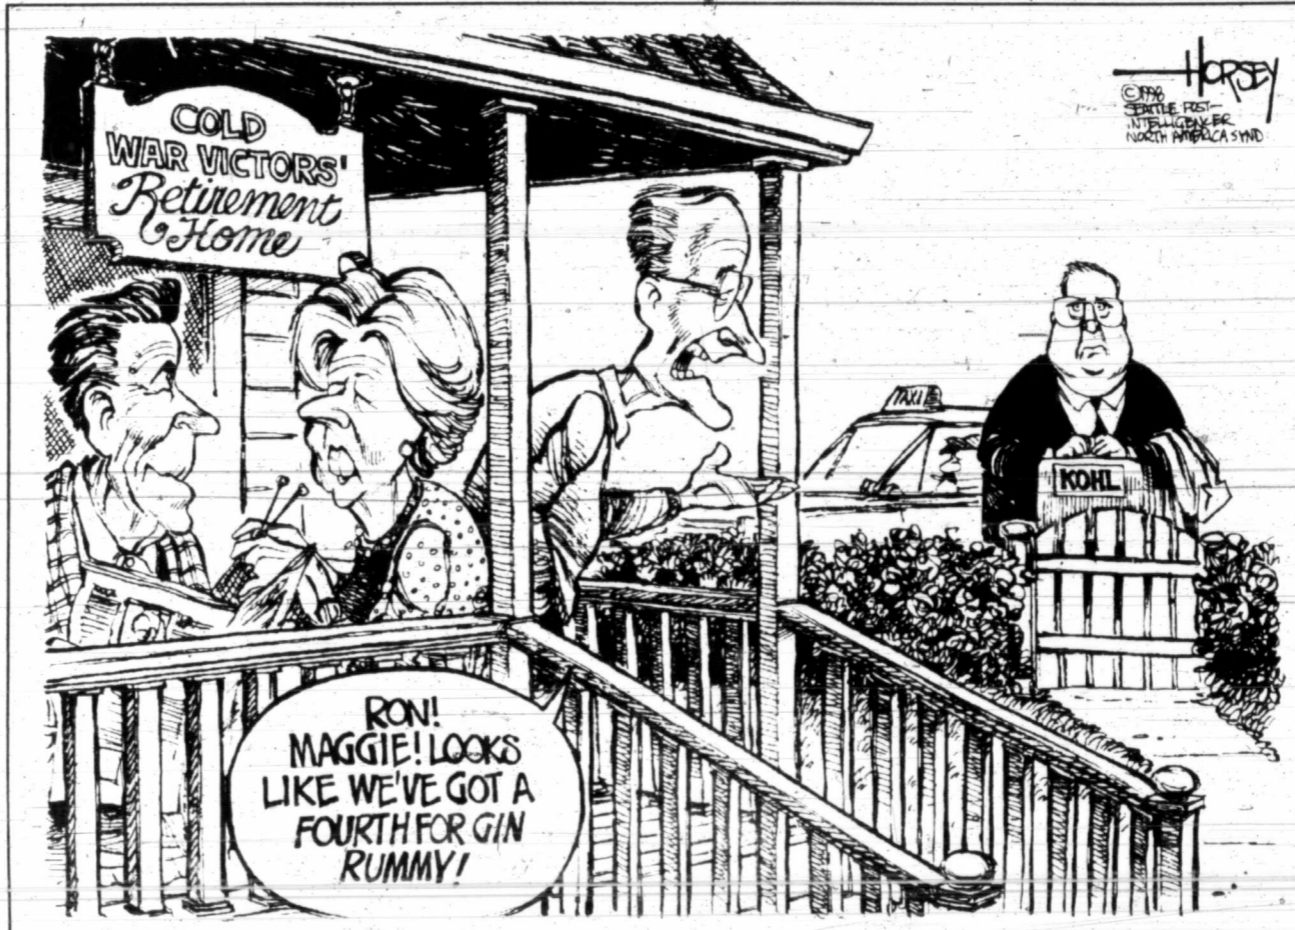

Yet the taxpayer-funded genome project is unlikely to meet the budget as anytime soon.

The project's defenders offer various reasons federal DNA mapping efforts still are necessary. The crux of their argument: The feds are developing a complete biological map, whereas private mapping efforts are proceeding in a more limited, piecemeal fashion. Private companies, after all, only are interested in the parts of the DNA mapping process that will allow them to turn a profit.

This argument misses the mark. Yes, most corporate progress will be accomplished in a piecemeal fashion. But that's how the private sector operates; only governments use a master plan. It is true that private firms will rarely undertake research that is unprofitable, but profitability often is the key test of how important research may really be. If complete genome mapping, of the type the government says it's doing, is vital enough, then companies and non-profit groups surely will find a way to do it.

Some critics also argue that research with important public health implications should not be sullied by the profit motive. Yet, long before the Human Genome Project's 2005 deadline arrives, for-profit companies will be using genome data to market new treatments. Real-world applications of life-saving drugs are unmistakably in the public's interest, even if they are the result of profit-seeking research.

Can Clinton run the economy?

Suppose somebody said evidence of Clinton's good job performance is the fact that the sun rose every morning and rivers flowed to the ocean during his administration. I would hope that every American, even those with the dimmest of wit, would respond by collapsing in uncontrollable laughter.

Why? No person possesses that kind of power. You say: "So what, Williams? We know that. What's your point?" The point is that an economy is far more complex and mind-boggling than the behavior of the sun and rivers will ever be. If a person can't control the sun and river, he can forget about controlling the economy.

Think about it. There are 260 million Americans. Among ourselves, we make trillions upon trillions of transactions. In order to run the economy in a way that makes for a healthy, growing economy, Clinton has to know a lot about us.

For starters, he would have to know our wants and what we're prepared to offer in exchange for having those wants satisfied, not to mention having to know our skills and abilities.

Take Williams for example. During Clinton's presidency, I landed a fun job teaching a course at Grove City College (which is, by the way, an excellent, civilized college). I'd like someone to tell me precisely how Clinton created that job for me.

Walter Williams

Syndicated columnist

First of all, did he know that I wanted the job? How was it possible for him to come upon that information? Did he know I had the skills sought by Grove City College? Did he call Grove City's president, Dr. John Moore, and tell him to create a job for Williams? Did he send Moore money to pay my salary and transportation costs?

You say, "Williams, that's silly, there's no way Clinton could have that kind of information about you or anybody else!" I agree 100 percent, but if it's impossible for Clinton to have the information and the job-creation tools that account for my prosperity, not to mention information about 260 million other Americans, how can he possibly lay claim to and take credit for my prosperity or anybody else's?

As far as the economy is concerned, presidents and Congress have little power to do good, but immense power to do evil. To the extent it can be said that a president and a congress are doing good for the economy, that "good" is they are not doing evil.

An example of not doing evil, which explains part of today's prosperity, is Clinton's failure to get Congress to go along with his early efforts to nationalize our health-care system — an agenda that would have put one-seventh of our economy under government control. Another example is the Clinton administration's failure to get Congress to enact a BTU tax — a measure that would have raised the cost of production and made us as non-competitive as Europe. In other words, it's the failure of the Clinton administration to get Congress to enact much of his big government agenda that accounts for our prosperity.

Clinton says he's responsible for balancing the budget, which contributes to our prosperity. That's a lie, aided and abetted by the public's constitutional ignorance. The United States Constitution grants only Congress authority to tax and spend. The president can propose or veto tax and spending measures, but he cannot tax or spend one dime that Congress does not first appropriate.

The bottom line is we Americans put too much faith in politicians, and too little faith in ourselves, to do what's necessary for growth and prosperity.

President's foreign policy nightmare

What puzzles me is why so many people think Bill Clinton, scandals aside, has been a good president. Actually, if you wanted to elect a covert enemy of the United States and task him with weakening our country, you couldn't do much better than Clinton. Let's look at his record.

Under Clinton, the United States has had record trade deficits, which translate into lost jobs. Government figures, which don't even count people as unemployed who have given up, are misleading because they reflect neither low wages nor part-time employment.

Clinton's trade policies are also having a devastating effect on American farmers whose plight is now further aggravated by the collapse of the Southeast Asian bubble. And trade policies are about the extent of a president's effect on an economy.

The U.S. economy grew because during the Clinton years the Federal Reserve has been pumping money into the economy. Unfortunately, central banks create new money in the form of debt at interest. So you see federal, state, corporate and personal debt at staggering levels. That will inevitably create a recession if not a depression.

The balanced budget is a phony, and at any rate we wouldn't even have a phony balanced budget if there weren't a Republican majority in Congress. But even with a phony budget (it's balanced because of the use of Social Security trust funds, money which will eventually have to be replaced), federal spending is at an all-time high. When you count federal, state and local taxes, Americans have to pay about 48 cents out of every dollar they earn. And they get little for it.

Charley Reese

Syndicated columnist

Clinton has kept open the immigration floodgates and has fielded the worst immigration service in the last 40 years. It has been shown to be both inefficient and corrupt.

Clinton has gutted the American military, which is now undermanned, under-equipped and demoralized. Both the Air Force and the Navy are losing pilots. Training and maintenance are way off schedule.

At the same time, he has expanded the military obligations. For the first time in American history, U.S. troops are in 100 foreign countries, in most places running errands for the United Nations. Clinton, who has abused the use of executive orders more than any president in history, has issued one on the use of troops by the United Nations but refuses to let the American people know what it says.

Clinton has expanded NATO when NATO should have been abolished. He has American troops bogged down for an indeterminate time in the Balkans, while the basic conflicts in the Balkans remain unresolved.

In fact, Clinton's foreign policy has been disastrous. He has destroyed the coalition created by George Bush in the Persian Gulf. He has blown a once-in-a-lifetime chance for peace between the Israelis and Palestinians. His neglect of Southwest Asia has resulted into two countries, India and Pakistan, developing nuclear weapons. His bungling of the Korea problem has the Japanese very antsy. He has kowtowed to the Chinese, ignoring their human rights abuses while bemoaning human rights abuses in small countries — Israel excepted, of course.

After six years, survey the world, folks. There isn't any good news anywhere. The world is on the edge of economic collapse and political chaos, and America will not be immune. The problem is that Clinton hasn't governed. All he has done is fund raise, huddle with his lawyers and party with his Hollywood pals and gals. I suppose Hillary has tried to govern in his absence, but she's incompetent.

Finally, no president has been a greater enemy of the Bill of Rights than Clinton. Like everything else, Clinton has shown contempt for the Constitution.

POTTERY

two years. Then he came to Amarillo to work with his cousin.

"She wanted to do painted furniture," he laughed. "We had this big scheme to make all this money."

Painted furniture is a popular item, and the two were going to get into business together.

"The idea is to get junky furniture and paint it," Little said.

People like McKinzie Childs in Upstate New York have found it a rewarding market, both as an artistic outlet and commercial business. Prices for painted furniture reflect the increasing demand.

"The prices are outrageous," said Fauncine, who has several of Childs' pieces.

Little said he found places in Amarillo that were taking armchairs from Mexico, painting pictures on them and selling them for a couple of thousand dollars.

"I thought I can do better than that," Little said. But his cousin had other responsibilities.

"She bailed out," he said with understanding. "She had kids and a family."

Since he was already close to Pampa, he moved to Gray County and stayed with relatives here.

"I came to Pampa and stayed with my grandmother and got a job over at IRI making steel," he said. "THAT spawned a fascination with metal."

After he arrived in Pampa, he took a commission to paint a mural for a family in town. It was there that he met a friend of theirs, Debi Mack, and they became friends.

"She said come over and we'll talk about doing a mural for my house," Little said.

He started coming over and using her library to do research. Having studied art in Europe, Debi had an extensive art library, and they became best of friends.

"Before you knew it, they wanted me to stay out back and to this day there's no mural," Little laughed. "We've been collaborating and coming up with wonderful things to do."

Among those things was the studio on the property. Once a barn, it had also served as an office for Debi's mother, Fauncine, who is also enthusiastic about art.

In fact, it was about the same time, that Fauncine asked if Little would take a welding class with her. They signed up for a welding class at Amarillo College.

While still trying to figure out the intricacies of sculpting in metal, they began finishing the studio for Little's pottery work.

"My pottery will be the bread and butter," he said. "The pottery will teach me how to upscale. I want to do some larger sculptures in clay but you really have to become familiar with how it works."

But the pottery studio will not be an end. It is only a beginning. They are already planning bigger and better things.

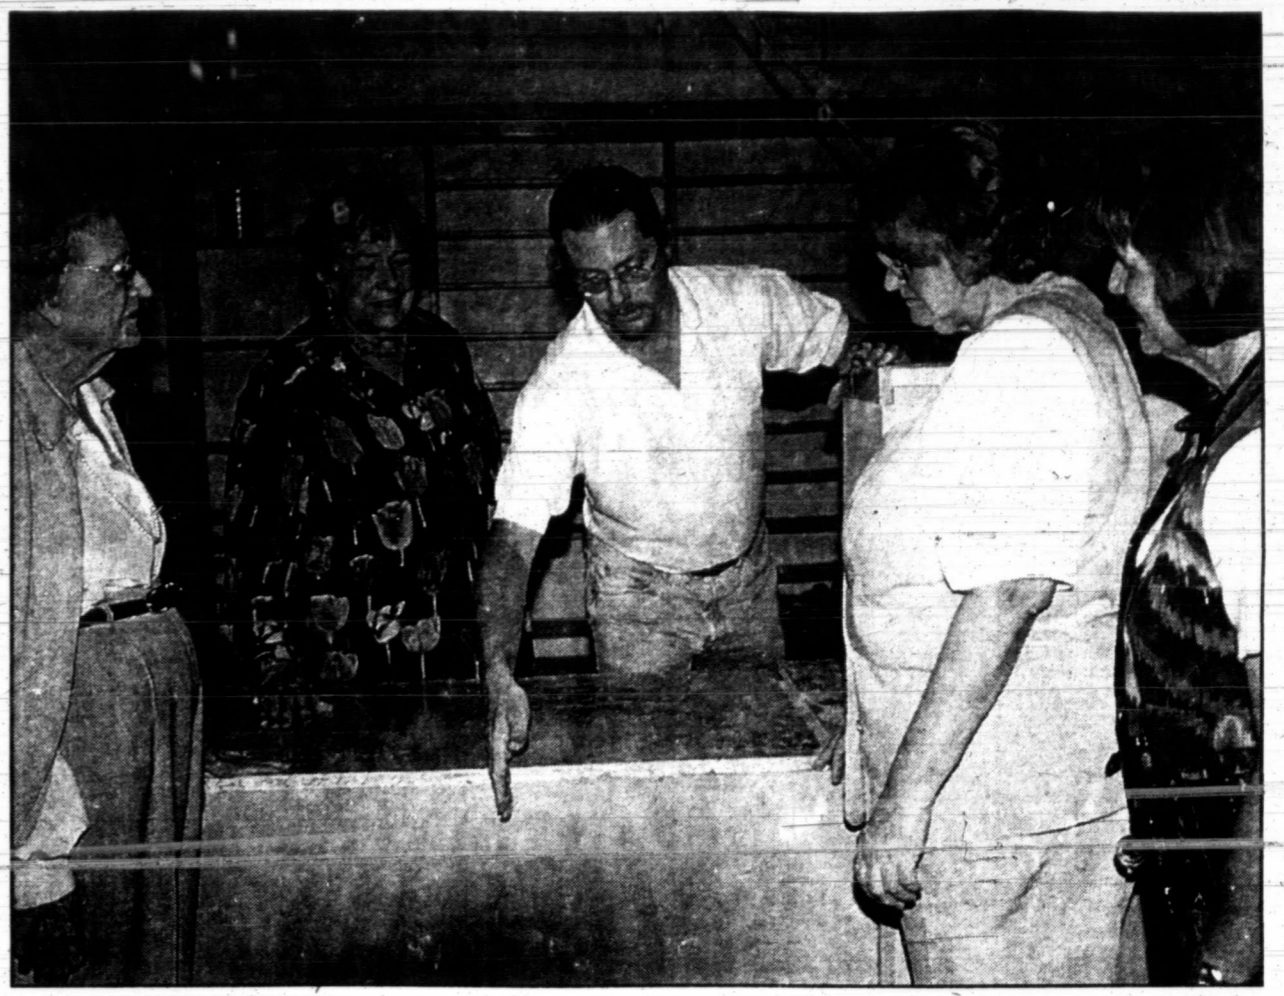

"I'm looking for a forge," said Fauncine. She's already picked out a place for it on the 120-acre budding artist colony north of town. In addition to Little, other artists including Pampa's Gerald Sanders and Pernie Davis have expressed an interest in casting bronzes there.

"Pernie and Gerald love to pour metal," Fauncine said.

Little has already started building up an armature for his first major sculpture, a torso, using layers of Styrofoam, a trick he learned from Sanders.

There is a broadening horizon on the Texas plains for Wrus Little. While the clay pottery pays the bills, his eyes already glint with the metal he intends to form into finished sculpted pieces.

"We're going to do BIG metal sculptures once we hone our skills," he grinned.

Progress on Lovett Library continues but delays in getting the elevator and furniture delivered means completion will probably not be until around the first of the year, according to architect Brad Waters who was in town last week. He gave a tour of the progress so far to library advisory board members Mrs. E.L. Green (left), Mary Helen Ellis, new Librarian Anne Stobbe, and Susan Dunigan who is chair of the Library Renovation Committee.

'The Little Wrangler' exhibit held over at AQHA museum

AMARILLO — Due to record attendance and wide community appeal, "The Little Wrangler" exhibit will be extended at the American Quarter Horse Heritage Center and Museum until the end of 1998.

"We want to give the schools and community one more chance to experience the exhibit," said James May, museum director.

More than 1,850 attended the record-setting grand opening of "The Little Wrangler" inside the Clarence Scharbauer Jr. Exhibit Hall February 28 and March 1. The exhibit was scheduled to close September 7, but the museum extended its run until the end of the year.

The exhibit features an animated talking horse; a bunk house with child-size vests, chaps and boots for the children to wear; a fully equipped chuck box and child-size saddles to sit on while watching classic Western movie clips.

"The great thing about 'The Little Wrangler' exhibit is that the kids don't just see it, they experience it," said May. "It's great to let these kids dress up, play and enjoy a museum exhibit."

"The Little Wrangler" exhibit is a journey that takes visitors through the life of a cowboy on a cattle drive. The exhibit is designed to give visitors a taste of life in 19th century Texas.

At the end of the trail, the little cowboys and cowgirls receive a certificate that designates them as an official "Little Wrangler."

Schools can book reservations for class tours. Fourth grade classes can tour the museum at no charge thanks to a sponsorship from Amarillo National Bank. For more information call toll free (888) 209-8322 or locally (806) 376-5181.

The museum is open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Museum admission rates are $4 for adults and $2.50 for children, five and under are free as well as AQHA and AQHYA members. All admission money goes to support the American Quarter Horse Foundation, a nonprofit foundation that manages the Museum.

Feds say they've busted 'over the hill' burglary ring

NEW YORK (AP) — Authorities say they've busted an "over-the-hill gang" of middle-aged burglars who filched as much as $10 million in furs, jewelry and silverware from luxury homes and estates.

Six men and one woman were arrested by the FBI and local authorities Monday and charged with racketeering, transporting stolen property across state lines and selling stolen goods.

The 35-count indictment accuses the gang of stealing $12 million in 20 burglaries. Investigators believe the suspects actually hit thousands of homes since the early 1980s, making off with up to $10 million in valuables, including $500,000 worth of jewelry in one haul, U.S. Attorney Mary Jo White said.

The burglars would stake out estates until the owners left. At nightfall, they would smash windows, grab valuables and flee by car to the Brooklyn apartment of the alleged ringleader, John Davis, 52.

The burglars would split any cash on the spot. Merchandise later would be sold to fences, White said.

Davis, who is unemployed and has a criminal record dating to 1968, drives a Rolls-Royce and owns a second home in Florida, Assistant U.S. Attorney Alexander Shapiro said.

Investigators found $11,000 in his apartment and believe he staged a break-in as recently as Saturday.

Over the years, local police made occasional arrests in the burglaries, but they never connected the crimes until accomplices began cooperating with investigators, White said.

Arrested along with Davis were Fyndle Brooks, 56, who recently suffered a stroke and lives in a nursing home; Jerry Richardson, 56; Freddie Young, 51; Goldie Willoughby, 40; and two alleged fences, Terry Kaplan, 41, and his wife, Martha Kaplan, 43.

Cable ONE reaffirms commitment to customer service

Reinforcing the important role of customer service plays in company's success, Cable ONE will recognize its associates for exemplary customer satisfaction efforts during its Customer Service Week Oct. 5-9. Five divisional Cable ONE associates and their supervisors will be honored in the company's "Whatever it Takes Superstar Contest" during the week, with winners nominated by fellow associates for demonstrating excellent service. "We know our associates often go above and beyond the call of duty to provide our customers with quality service that is responsive and timely," said Susan Winn, system manager. Cable ONE activities will include managers and associates switching roles as well as additional cross training during the week. The Pampa office at 1423 N. Hobart will also be serving refreshments to all our customers throughout the week. National Customer Service Week, observed throughout North America by companies such as Revlon, Shell Oil and Kinko's, is designed to increase awareness of the importance of customer service.

UT recruiting event slated in Amarillo

AMARILLO — Amarillo area students and parents are invited to learn about opportunities awaiting them at the University of Texas at Austin by attending "UT: On the Cutting Edge," an informational program about UT sponsored by the Amarillo Texas Exes at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 22 in the Oak/Acorn Room on the second floor of the College Union Building at Amarillo College, 24th and Jackson St.

"This is the third year we have sponsored this recruiting event for UT," said Benson Latham, president of the Amarillo Texas Exes.

Recent UT graduates will address the group including KAMR-TV news anchor and reporter Coco Douglas and Amarillo attorney Chad Pierce. Speakers will tell students what it's like to be a student at UT-Austin and about the vast array of opportunities and challenges awaiting them there.

Also speaking will be UT alumnus Neil Allen of Amarillo whose son, B.J., is a student at UT and currently drum major for the Longhorn band. A 15-minute video will also be shown. Augustine Garza, deputy director of admissions at the university, will be present to discuss admission requirements and answer questions from students and parents. Admission materials will be available for those in attendance.

Any student interested in learning more about UT is invited to attend this meeting along with their parents. Refreshments will be provided. A free drawing will be held for two tickets to the Texas-Texas Tech football game on Nov. 14 in Lubbock.

The Amarillo Texas Exes sponsor two $500 scholarships each year for area students who plan to attend UT.

Anyone wanting additional information concerning the program "UT: On the Cutting Edge" should contact Matney at (806) 371-5226 or Latham at (806) 372-6785.

West Texas A&M University to host family oriented Parents' Day 1998

CANYON — The West Texas A&M University Mom and Dad's Association will provide an opportunity for students to spend the day with their families at Parents' Day 1998 Saturday, Oct. 17. Events planned include President Russell C. Long presenting the 1998 Parents of the Year, brunch in the Dining Hall, open house at the residence halls and a tailgate supper before the WTAMU football game.

"This event is really important for parents to be able to come on campus and see what is going on in their student's life," Lila Vars, director of admissions, said. "The Mom and Dad's Association gives parents the opportunity to get involved and support functions of the University."

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Jack B. Kelley Student Center Commons. A parents' welcome meeting will begin at 10 a.m. and will include presentation of the 1998 Parents of the Year.

A Mom and Dad's Association meeting will take place from 11-11:30 a.m. for members of the group. Activities planned for this meeting include election of 1998-99 officers, briefing of the year's business report and reading of the 1998-99 activities agenda.

"The main project that will be discussed at the Mom and Dad's Association meeting is the plan to deliver gift baskets to students who are ill or deserve congratulations," Vars said.

A brunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the Dining Hall and is open to all families.

Cost of the brunch is $4.60 per person. During this time, the Virgil Henson Activities Center will be open to families at no cost.

Open house of the residence halls and the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum will take place at 2 p.m. and give parents a chance to see the WTAMU campus.

Parents are then invited to the annual tailgate supper from 5-6 p.m. in the south parking lot at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium, followed by the WTAMU football game against Texas A&M University-Commerce. The 1998 Parents of the Year will be recognized during half-time.

Reserved football tickets purchased by Friday, Oct. 16 are $10 per adult (ages 14 and up). Intercollegiate Athletics is using the athletic games Oct. 16-17 to support the general scholarship fund of the university. The tailgate supper is $5 per person. The Mom and Dad's Association is also accepting membership applications and dues.

For more information on Parents' Day 1998, call the Office of Admissions at 1-800-99-WTAMU or (806) 651-2020. For athletic ticket information, call (806) 651-2670.

Bill takes aim at Saddam Hussein

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to channel up to $97 million to Iraqi organizations seeking to topple Saddam Hussein is advancing speedily in Congress. The Clinton administration says it shares the legislation's goal, but has questions about how to carry it out.

On a 360-38 vote late Monday, the House voted to allow the president to direct the Pentagon to provide the assistance to rebel groups that would replace Saddam's regime with a Democratic government.

"Saddam is the problem and there will be no permanent solution so long as his regime remains," said the bill's sponsor, Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., chairman of the House International Relations Committee and sponsor of the legislation.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., has introduced a companion bill in the Senate.

The bill would also give $2 million to Radio

Free Iraq, set up under earlier legislation. It had wide bipartisan support.

"Almost all of us oppose Saddam Hussein and would like to see him out of power," said Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind.

Still, Hamilton, senior Democrat on the International Relations Committee, said he had many concerns about the practicality of the measure. "No one should underestimate the difficulty of unifying the Iraqi opposition," Hamilton said. He said there are as many as 70 rebel and opposition groups.

Hamilton also said making Saddam's ouster the official U.S. policy might make it harder for the United States to persuade allies to keep sanctions on Baghdad.

A White House official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the White House has concerns about the legislation, including which opposition groups could qualify for funds and the scope of what would be given to those groups. "We certainly support the intent" of the legislation, the official said, and wants to work with Congress to "find mutually acceptable language" in conference.

Sponsors said the bill does not require Clinton to equip a rebel army, but gives him the tools to do so should he desire.

"We did not finish the job" in the Gulf War, said Rep. Dana Rohrabacher, R-Calif. He said the legislation would help to bring about a conclusion.

The president would determine just how much the rebels would get, up to $97 million. The money, to come from other programs, could go to defense services, military equipment and training.

Rep. Ron Paul, R-Texas, the only member to speak against the measure during Monday's debate, told the House: "This legislation is a declaration of virtual war. It should not be done casually."

Policeman Who Won't Call May Be Copping Out of Relationship

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old professional woman dating a 22-year-old police officer. In recent weeks, our level of communication has dropped. He tells me his schedule has been hectic and he has not been able to return my calls. Sometimes I don't hear from him for days.

When we began dating, we spent a lot more time together, but lately our togetherness has dwindled to almost nothing. He blames his work schedule. I want to believe him, but my friends say he's not being truthful with me and I should dump him. They say if he really wanted to call me, he would find a way.

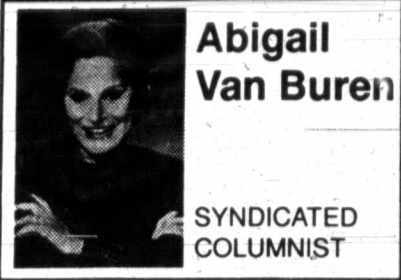

Abby, I think his profession makes their conclusion invalid, but I'm not sure. What do you think?

UNSURE IN UPLAND

DEAR UNSURE: I suspect your friends are correct. While your boyfriend may not be able to return your calls during duty hours, even police officers have some time off.

Ask him to be honest with you about his feelings so you'll know where you stand. Once you know, you can decide how to proceed.

DEAR ABBY: I'm having trouble getting my mind off this problem. My wife passed away four months ago. She dearly loved flowers, and everyone in the family knew it. I was very disappointed that with 35 relatives attending her funeral, only six sent flower arrangements.

Abigail Van Buren

I'd like to know the proper procedure for flowers at a funeral. If you attend the funeral, perhaps you don't need to send flowers. I have been to three funerals since my wife's death and sent flowers to each one. Please answer my letter to ease my mind.

MOURNING IN TEXAS

DEAR MOURNING: Please accept my sympathy for the loss of your beloved wife.

To answer your question, there is no "requirement" that those who attend the funeral must send flowers. It's a matter of personal choice. The trend at funerals in recent years has been away from masses of flowers. Often the family will request that in lieu of flowers, a contribution in memory of the deceased be made to a charity, hoping something positive will result from their loss.

If it's any comfort to you, in my opinion six floral arrangements were appropriate tributes to your wife's fondness for flowers.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to comment on two letters that have appeared in your column: one, from "The Last Nice Guy," whose 18-year-old girlfriend cheated on him while she was on vacation, and the other from "Feels Confined in Pacifica, Calif.," whose 19-year-old girlfriend is jealous when he wants to spend time with his friends.

Abby, they both need to find out that true love is built on trust!

I would like to remind "Nice Guy" that if the woman would cheat on you now, she could also cheat on you in the years to come, after you are married with children. There are nice women out there who want to find a nice man. I found one. And I'm sure that you'll eventually find a nice woman to spend your life with.

To "Confined," I'd like to say, this gives you an excellent opportunity to strengthen your relationship with your girlfriend. Be completely honest and kind, but tell her what you told Abby — that you care for her, but you occasionally need time by yourself. If she's a woman worth keeping, she'll understand.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 7, 1998

BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

* Emphasize money and work. Tighten your belt, and make sure your procedures work. Be realistic about a friend's unpredictability. Unexpected, positive news allows you more freedom to pursue your goals. Excitement surrounds a long-term desire. Tonight: Go shopping.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

* Your smile goes a long way in putting others at ease. Be more forthright in your dealings. Bosses give you more space than you need at work. Remain centered. Recognize your limitations with someone. Your steady work style wins friends. Tonight: What makes you happy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 Take a back seat, and stay mellow. Listen to someone's advice; the feedback enlightens you. Consider making a change in your personal life or style. Go within to make a decision. A new friendship could develop into a lot more, if you desire. Tonight: Curl up with a good book.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

* Aim for what you want; don't sell out. Remain positive, and be direct. Make calls, and reach out for others. A partner proves unpredictable, especially when the problem is a financial one. Question recent choices. Come from a secure, loving stand. Tonight: With your friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

* Respond to the moment. You want to make a major expenditure. But consider how many hours it took you to make this amount of money. Assume a leadership role. A partner balks but eventually comes over to your way of thinking. Tonight: Compliment someone you love.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

* Reach out for others, and be willing to take a risk. Your high energy makes a big difference. A coworker first reacts negatively to an idea. The unexpected occurs. Your willingness to spend money on a project cheers up the people working with you. Tonight: On the computer.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

* One-to-one relating works. Listen to a loved one who expresses feelings outrageously. You might not like what you hear, but you know how to talk to the person. Your softer side emerges with someone. Inject more romance into your relationship. Tonight: Spice up your life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

* Others present another point of view. Expect teamwork to bring you the results you want. A family member creates an uproar. Listen carefully to your intuition regarding this person. Be understanding, and follow through with a caring gesture. Tonight: Do what you want.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

* Dig into work. Your decision to cruise through projects upsets someone who has a harder time accomplishing things. Screen out superfluous chatter, to get the job done. A friend comes through for you. Make time for an important meeting. Tonight: Work late, if needed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

* Let your creativity come out. Reach out for someone, and make long-distance calls. Finances take wild swings. Be a careful investor. A boss or someone who respects you applauds you. Accept the compliments and acknowledgment. Tonight: Go with excitement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

* You unpredictability shakes people up, whether you intend to or not. A partner comes to the rescue and is more than willing to chip in. Be more in touch with your feelings. Explore a new idea. Join in, and take off. Adventure suits you fine. Tonight: Happy at home.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 Unusual insights have you acting strangely. Calm down, and have a long-overdue discussion with a dear friend. Listen carefully to the feedback, and keep communications flowing. Others are finally prepared to be more assertive. Tonight: Chat up a storm.

FOOTBALL

WACO, Texas (AP) — Former Alabama and Texas A&M coach Gene Stallings has been named the head coach of the United States team that will compete in the first World Cup of American Football next summer.

"I'm excited about the opportunity," said Stallings, who retired from Alabama after the 1996 season. "Football is truly an American sport, and I'm looking forward to assembling a team that will represent our country and our game on a world stage for the first time."

The U.S. team will be made up of college players from all divisions who complete their football eligibility this season. Players will be picked beginning in December.

The eight-team tournament will be held June 21-July 4, 1999 in Palermo, Italy. The other countries in the field will be Australia, Canada, Finland, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Sweden.

BASEBALL

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Attendance figures to pick up considerably at the St. Louis Cardinals Hall of Fame now that Mark McGwire's 70th home run ball is going on display.

While the fan who ended up with the record ball sits through offers, he's giving others a chance to see it. Phil Ozersky, a 26-year-old DNA lab researcher at Washington University, on Monday loaned the ball to the Hall of Fame across the street from Busch Stadium.

"When I caught the ball, the first thing I thought was that if I was just a fan, I'd want to see it," Ozersky said. "It's a great idea to have it here. I hope everybody comes down and sees the ball."

The display opens next Monday, and it might be a limited engagement. Gerald Baltz, the museum's executive director, said he didn't expect to have the ball for more than a month or so.

Ozersky's attorney, David Krathen of Miami, said his client has received countless proposals since snaring No. 70 in the St. Louis Cardinals' finale Sept. 27. There's been everything but a call from McGwire, who has said he's not interested in paying for the ball.

"He's been besieged by agents, auction houses, individuals," Krathen said. "You name it, they've contacted us."

"I think the right thing to do is take your time, take a deep breath, step back and see what the various options are."

Ozersky would like the ball to end up at the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., but he's not as willing as some of the other ball recipients to just give it away.

The Baseball Hall of Fame is a non-profit organization and does not pay for items displayed. Perhaps that's why it doesn't have Hank Aaron's 715th, which broke Babe Ruth's career record.

Pampa hosts 'Horns'

Pampa senior Lisa Dwight tries to keep the ball from going out of bounds in the District 3-4-A match with Palo Duro last weekend. The Lady Harvesters travel to Borger for junior varsity and varsity volleyball matches tonight.

Groom stays perfect at 5-0

GROOM — Groom remained unbeaten last weekend after a 53-6 victory over McLean in six-man action.

Groom is 5-0 for the season while McLean is 2-3.

Quarterback Josh Evenson threw three touchdown passes to lead the Groom offense.

Jamie Shuck caught two TD passes while Wyatt Weinheimer had one.

Dean Fields was Groom's leading rusher with 74 yards on five carries and a touchdown. Also scoring TDs were Wade Ritter, Alberto Vega and Daniel Treadwell.

Evenson also ran for a touchdown. Shuck added two conversion kicks.

McLean's only score came an Ike Hanes' pass to Frankie Spurling covering 28 yards.

Groom jumped out to an early lead by scoring 28 points in the first quarter. It was 47-6 at halftime.

Going into the McLean contest, Groom was ranked No. 8 in the state's six-man football poll. The Tigers host Follett on Friday night.

By the Associated Press

Class 2A Holliday and 1A Frost were the only teams joining The Associated Press high school football rankings this week, moving into the No. 10 spots.

There was minimal movement in the poll released Monday and none among the No. 1 teams. Few changes were expected following a weekend in which only four ranked teams lost.

The highest-ranked team to lose was 3A's No. 2 Sweeny, which fell 30-24 in overtime to 4A Brazosport. The loss sent Sweeny to No. 8, opening up second to four-time defending state champion Sealy, which had been third.

There was only minor reshuffling in 4A, with Schertz Clemens going from ninth to seventh, shoving both Corsicana and Brownwood down one spot.

Thorndale, which had been ninth in 2A, lost 34-12 to Franklin, opening the door for Holliday to move into the poll. One spot ahead of Holliday is Italy, which dropped to ninth from fifth following a 24-8 loss to Pittsburg.

Sudan, which had been eighth in 1A, fell 34-0 to Canadian and dropped from the rankings. Frost (5-0) gladly moved into the poll at No. 10.

In 5A, the top 10 teams stayed in the same order, led by No. 1 Longview.

Braves' bullpen makes the grade so far

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves bullpen passed its first postseason test with an A-plus. Will this no-name group of relievers make the grade in the NL championship series against Trevor Hoffman and Co.?

Hoffman is baseball's most dominant closer, converting 53 of 54 save chances for the San Diego Padres. His Braves counterpart is Kerry Ligtenberg, who was pitching in the Prairie League just three years ago.

But Ligtenberg and the other Atlanta relievers — fellow rookies John Rocker and Odalis Perez, along with journeyman Rudy Seanez — were Hoffman-like in the first-round sweep of the Cubs, allowing only two hits in 6 1-3 scoreless innings.

"Our bullpen hasn't given up a run in the playoffs, and no one seems to know about it," said John Smoltz, who will start against San Diego's Andy Ashby in Game 1 on Wednesday night at Turner Field. "Sure, we're facing a dominant closer and a great bullpen. But the same can be said for us."

Ligtenberg, Seanez and Rocker have been highly effective this season, but they're still cited incessantly as the most likely reason Atlanta won't reach its fifth World Series in the 1990s.

The Padres' bullpen, on the other hand, is viewed as a strength, even though Randy Myers was ineffective (1-3, 6.28 ERA) after being acquired from the Toronto Blue Jays.

Ligtenberg, who assumed the closer's role in Atlanta basically by default after Mark Wohlers' meltdown, became the first NL rookie in a dozen years with 30 saves — 21 coming after the All-Star break.

"Everybody is making a big deal about the inexperience," Ligtenberg said Monday. "They can't believe we didn't give up any runs against the Cubs. But we knew we had the talent. It's just a matter of being comfortable and doing what we've done all year. It's time to have fun."

Tony Gwynn is ready to have some fun, too. At age 38, he's returning to the NL championship series for the first time in 14 years.

"This is the biggest thrill of my career," said Gwynn, the lone player left from San Diego's last NL pennant-winning team. "Going to the World Series in 1984 was great, but the long wait in between makes this really nice right now."

The Braves rolled over the Cubs to earn their seventh straight trip to the NLCS. San Diego needed four tense games to finish off Randy Johnson and the Houston Astros, clinching the best-of-5 series with a 6-1 victory Sunday night.

"We just won a series nobody gave us a chance to win and now we're playing Atlanta," Gwynn said. "In spring training our goal was to try to get to the World Series and win it. It has not changed."

With Smoltz (17-3 during the regular season), Tom Glavine (20-6) and Greg Maddux (18-9) set to start the first three games for Atlanta, Gwynn knows the San Diego hitters must improve their production. They went 17 games without scoring more than four runs until Game 4 against the Astros.

"This next series is not going to be easy," Gwynn said. "We're going to have to pick it up offensively, and that's the hard part with their pitching staff."

The Padres pitchers were brilliant in the division series. Kevin Brown struck out 16 in the opener and Sterling Hitchcock had 11 strikeouts in the clinching game. Hoffman saved the first two wins and wrapped up Sunday's with a perfect ninth.

Brown is set to pitch against the Braves on Thursday, likely to be followed by Hitchcock when the best-of-7 series switches to San Diego on Saturday.

If the Braves are the favorite based on their 106-regular season wins and unprecedented run of postseason appearances, the combined karma of Brown and Jim Leyritz might be enough to even things up for the Padres.

Leyritz turned the 1996 World Series with a three-run homer against Mark Wohlers, and the New York Yankees went on to beat the Braves in six games.

"Some guys always seem to rise to the occasion," said Denny Neagle, the Atlanta starter in that game two years ago. "He's one of them."

Last year, it was Brown's turn to break Atlanta's heart. He had two wins for the Florida Marlins in the NLCS, including a Game 6 triumph that ended the Braves' season.

"I think this whole series hinges on whether we beat Kevin Brown or not," Atlanta third baseman Chipper Jones said.

The Braves failed to sell out one of their first-round games against the Cubs and, as of Monday, more than 5,000 tickets remained for all NLCS games at Turner Field.

After watching some 65,000 people turn out for both division series games in San Diego, Smoltz hopes the fans of Atlanta will take notice.

"I hope they understand how hard it's going to be," he said. "I hope they understand how important they can be."

Indians-Yankees ready for battle

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees are still angry at the Cleveland Indians for beating them last October, and still mad at Jaret Wright for beating Luis Sojo last spring.

The Yankees have waited an entire year for payback against Cleveland, and more than six months for a chance to beat Wright. Tonight, the Yankees will begin trying to even both scores.

Put on your game faces, everyone. This year's AL championship series could be wild. One tight pitch a little too close to someone's chin and Bob Sheppard, the Yankees' P.A. announcer since 1951 may follow his "Welcome to Yankee Stadium" salutation with "Let's Get Ready to Rumble."

Much of the pregame talk before Game 1 centered around the acrimony between the teams stemming from Cleveland starter Wright breaking Sojo's left hand during spring training.

To this day, many of the Yankees think Wright was intentionally throwing at Sojo, a charge Wright, Cleveland manager Mike Hargrove and the other Indians dismissed on Monday during workouts.

"Jaret is not a head hunter, but to be effective, anybody has to throw inside," Hargrove said. "I don't think we should all get carried away in dragging out old grudges or new grudges. As far as I know, there is no bad blood between these two teams."

Harvesters host Dumas in District 3-4A tennis activity

Mandy Wells is Pampa's No. 1 singles player in the girls' division.

PAMPA — Pampa hosts Dumas in a key District 3-4A tennis match at 4 p.m. today at the PHS courts.

PSA soccer teams open division play

PAMPA — In Pampa Soccer Association Under 12 girls soccer this past weekend, Kids Stuff met Computer Sales and Technology head on to start division play.

CST got off to a quick start with goals by Vanessa Resendiz and Beth Adams to lead 2-0 after 10 minutes of play in the first half. Forwards Michelle Adams and Jennie Rogers of Kids Stuff had several attempts on goal, but could not beat the stingy defense of CST led by Diana Resendiz, who stopped many of Kids Stuff runs at the goal. Chera Chavado closed out the scoring in the first half with another goal to give CST the lead at 3-0.

Second-half play had both teams putting forth a tremendous defensive effort and not allowing more scoring in the game. Kids Stuff's goalkeeper K'Leigh Sweeney and Carissa Snelgroves each had two saves on goal, with Brooke Colton playing a solid game at sweeper, and Suzanne Parks played good defense at fullback.

Leading CST to victory with outstanding defensive plays were Kerri Terrell (3 saves on goal), Autumn Darden (3 saves on goal), Darby Snow and Diana Resendiz with a strong game at fullback and sweeper.

Coaching CST this year are JoLinda Childress and Ed Resendiz. Kids Stuff is coached by Dee Orr and Jerry Rhoades.

In other under girls soccer action, Pampa Pool and Spa led by Terryn Garner's three goals, shut out Pampa's under 12 girls' Sun Bank team by a score of 3-0. Pampa Pool and Spa had strong defensive efforts by goalkeeper Megan Jouett with four saves on goal and Ashley Garner with two saves. Jenee Watson and Heather Balay, who returned from a broken bone in her leg, each had good defensive games to help secure the victory.

Panhandle's Sun Bank players having good defensive games were Summer at goalkeeper with four saves on goal, Josie Dudenhoefter, Jessica Rodriguez and Kandus Meaker with good all-around efforts on both offense and defense.

Coaching Sun Bank is Dave Henderson. Pampa Pool and Spa is coached by Ron Jouett and Mary Anne Vinson.

Division play for boys' and girls' Under 6 through Under 19 continues each Saturday until Nov. 7 at the association's soccer fields, 248 South Naida Street.

The public is invited to come out and watch these young soccer athletes in action.

Vikings storm by Pack

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Reggie White has seen a lot of Randall Cunningham's magic, but he never expected anything like this.

"He played out of his mind. This is the best I've ever seen him play," White said after his former Philadelphia teammate threw for 442 yards and four touchdowns in the Minnesota Vikings' 37-24 rout of the Green Bay Packers on Monday night.

White wasn't alone. In the franchise's 80-year history, no quarterback had ever torched the Packers for that many yards. The loss snapped their 29-game home winning streak that included four playoff victories.

"He did a great job dropping back and just slinging it, and he just killed us," White said. "Their receivers outjumped our corners, we didn't do a good enough job getting pressure."

White saw a reformed scrambler stay in the pocket — for what seemed like forever — and pick apart the league's No. 1 defense with deep jump-ball passes that All-Pro receiver Cris Carter, rookie sensation Randy Moss and forgotten man Jake Reed wrested away from deflated defensive backs.

Back when White and Cunningham were with the Eagles, the athletic quarterback used to take off at the first sign of trouble, but no more.

"They're stressing to him to stay in the pocket, and he's doing an excellent job back there," White said.

And his receivers are doing a first-class job, too.

They were the chief reason the Vikings (5-0), the NFC's only unbeaten team, ended the Lambeau Field streak by the Packers (4-1), who last lost here on Sept. 10, 1995, to St. Louis.

"Everyone's a little down," said Brett Favre, who had three interceptions. "It's been a long time since we've lost at home. We were just hoping it wouldn't happen during our career."

And to think the guy that did it to them retired two years ago.

"I love playing the game again," said Cunningham, who signed with Minnesota as a backup last year. "I'm around great people and great coaches and a great offensive line."

And, of course, three great receivers, who dominated on a muddy field, as the Vikings rolled up 545 yards in intermittant rain and occasional showers against a defense that entered the game ranked No. 1 in the NFL.

Cunningham, who is replacing the injured Brad Johnson, had TD passes of 52 and 44 yards to Moss, 56 yards to Reed and 24 yards on a screen pass to Robert Smith. Three of the TDs came in the second quarter as the Vikings broke a 3-3 tie to lead 24-10 at halftime.

Cunningham, who was 20-of-32, has 10 TD passes without an interception since replacing Johnson, who broke his right leg in Week 2.

"Any team that plays the Vikings better get some pressure on the quarterback," said Packers coach Mike Holmgren, whose team didn't get a hand on Cunningham. "Those big receivers are going to cause a problem unless you do, and we didn't get any pressure tonight."

Cunningham also had a 75-yard TD pass that was wiped out by a holding penalty and had what would have been a 66-yarder slip off the fingers of Moss, the rookie who dropped to 21st overall in the draft because of personal problems. Moss finished with five catches for 190 yards.

"This was Randy's coming-out party, and Randall Cunningham did a great job," Vikings coach Dennis Green said.

"I don't know what he means about my coming-out party. But I'm going home to a party," Moss said.

Packers cornerback Tyrone Williams could be the guest of honor, too.

"Somehow we got figure out a way when they throw it up like that, we've got to climb that ladder," Williams said. "I was in position, the guy just went up and got it."

The only Green Bay touchdown until the game was decided came on a 101-yard kickoff return by Roell Preston.

More than the Packers' pride was hurt, too.

Receiver Derrick Mayes sustained a serious knee injury on a punt return. Also hurt were Doug Pederson (broken jaw), LeRoy Butler (ankle), George Koonce (hamstring), Jeff Thomason (concussion), and Ross Verba (ankle).

"We're going to have to bounce back some kind of way," White said. "We can't play this way no more if we want to get where we want to get."

Baylor will start Alfred at qb

WACO, Texas (AP) — Jermaine Alfred, who guided Baylor's second-half comeback that fell just short against Texas Tech, will be the Bears' starting quarterback against Kansas.

Baylor coach Dave Roberts said Alfred "earned the right" to start ahead of sophomore Odell James, but both quarterbacks will play.

"I talked to (James) after the game and said, 'Hey, I thought you played fine, but Jermaine gave us a spark,'" Roberts said Monday. "And that's what we need right now. We need a spark offensively. And (Alfred) deserves a right just like Odell deserved the right after spring."

In Saturday's 31-29 loss to Texas Tech, Alfred came off the bench late in the third quarter and completed 14 of 23 passes for 225 yards and one touchdown.

"We haven't seen him play that way since we've been here," Roberts said. "We were thrilled that he gave us that spark, because it gave us a chance to get back in the game."

U.S. envoy warns Yugoslav president of NATO strikes

PRISTINA, Yugoslavia (AP) — Searching for a breakthrough to avert NATO airstrikes, a senior American envoy said today that President Slobodan Milosevic has not met the terms laid down by the United Nations to prevent a NATO military intervention in Kosovo.

Envoy Richard Holbrooke, after meeting with diplomatic observers in Kosovo's capital, said Serb military police maintain a strong presence in Kosovo despite repeated international demands for them to ease their crackdown on separatists.

"U.S. diplomatic observers are doing a terrific job bringing us information, and the information is not good," he said before heading for talks with ethnic Albanian leaders. He was expected to return to Belgrade for another meeting with Milosevic tonight.

Despite Holbrooke's shuttle talks, the likelihood that Milosevic would make concessions or agree to a deal that would satisfy Western leaders appeared limited.

Milosevic told Holbrooke late Monday that his government is willing to seek a "political solution" to the seven-month crisis in Kosovo, where ethnic Albanian rebels are battling for independence.

He also called the threats of aggression against Yugoslavia "a criminal act" that provided "support for the Albanian villains, not the Albanian people," according to state media.

"If he thinks NATO is bluffing, if he is willing to take that risk, all I can do is convey the views of the U.S. government," Holbrooke said Monday.

Kosovo is a province of Serbia, the main republic of Yugoslavia. But ethnic Albanians make up 90 percent of the province's 2 million people, and many of them favor self-rule. Milosevic's crackdown on the separatists has left hundreds dead since February and forced 275,000 villagers to flee their homes.

Holbrooke, who negotiated the 1995 agreement that ended the Bosnian war, was dispatched to the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade in what appeared to be a last-ditch effort to persuade Milosevic to halt his crackdown and enter talks with ethnic Albanians on the future of the province.

There was no sign of the diplomatic deadlock ending.
