Once again The Palace Theater is open in Canadian after a nine-month renovation costing more than a half million dollars.

What's old, is new again Palace Theater opens doors

CANADIAN -- The good news is that admission to The Palace Theater tonight is free. The bad news is there are only 289 seats.

The theater, which officially opens tonight after a nine-month renovation costing more than half a million dollars, has been showing movies in Canadian since 1909.

"Thomas Edison was out in New Mexico shooting pictures then," said Chester Altman, a theater owner from Clarendon who was in Canadian to see the renovated theater Thursday. "Movies then were just a couple of minutes long. The first feature film didn't come out until 1915 with Birth of a Nation."

Originally the Pastime Theater, it became known in 1916 as The Queen Theater.

The first talking movies were shown here in 1929, but in February, 1931, The Queen burned to the ground leaving nothing but brick walls. It was rebuilt and reopened in February, 1932.

as The Palace Theater. It burned again in 1957. Rob Talley, a Canadian native took over the theater 14 years ago, showing movies on the weekend. Although he also held a day job, his passion for movies kept The Palace open until the repairs and upgrading of equipment became more than he could afford.

One afternoon about three years ago, Salem Abraham approached Talley in the parking lot of a local grocery store. He said he would be interested in perhaps buying the theater and leasing it back to

Talley if Talley would run it. "It was my wife's idea," Abraham grinned Thursday afternoon, standing in front of the authentic 1940s snack bar in the theater lobby. "She's the one that encouraged all this."

Salem and Ruth Ann Abraham bought the theater from Rob Talley in the summer of 1997.

Historical program on Oct. 25

A program on "Ft. Elliott and Old Mobeetic" will be narrated with slides by attorney Bobby Hill of Wheeler at 2:30 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 25 at the White Deer Land Museum. The program is sponsored by the Gray County Historical Commission and is open to the public.

Hill's grandfather came to Wheeler County in 1905, but the Wheeler native did not become actively in local history until she took one of Bob Lizzard's bus tours. She is a volunteer at the Mobeetic Museum and has helped assemble early photographs. She has made the slides and prints of some of the historical pictures from private collections, the Panhandle Plains Museum in Canyon and the National Archives in Washington, D.C. and keeps some prints on display in her

City-county fire committee reach decision

By JEFF WEST
Staff Writer

If all goes according to script, county residents won't have to worry about fire protection next year now that Gray County Commissioners have approved a new fire contract with the city.

All that's left is for the city to officially okay the pact which came out of a committee comprised of two city and two county commissioners.

It calls for county payments to go up by $25,000 in the next year. That will raise the current $105,000 paid by the county to $130,000. City negotiators had suggested the fee rising by $10,000 a year after that, but county commissioners say they can't obligate future commissioner courts.

Both sides also agreed that the 30-day notice to cancel the contract is not a long enough period of time and agreed that 90 days will be more appropriate.

The committee will now get together with City Attorney Don Lane and County Attorney Todd Alvey to draw up a legal contract to present to the City Commission and if that is approved then it will be formally presented to the county for ratification.

County Commissioner Jim Greene said the talks went well and he had learned things about the way the fire department operates. He

Consensus good for take-home car plan for patrolmen

"What better way to take community-oriented policing to the community than to have the neighborhood know where a police officer lives."

— Commissioner Jeff Andrews

Whether family members and friends should be allowed to ride in police cars if a squad car take home plan is approved was a point of concern for Pampa City Commissioners as they reviewed the proposal.

Also, commissioners want to make sure work time is documented properly for off-duty officers who may respond to a call when driving the squad car off shift time.

But, the consensus of the commission Tuesday was support for the program that's designed to increase the visibility of police presence throughout the city.

The plan was not scheduled for a vote, only a discussion.

"What better way to take community-oriented policing to the community than to have the neighborhood know where a police officer lives," said Commissioner Jeff Andrews. He was making reference to the fact officers will park their squad cars at home when not working.

Andrews noted an incident recently in which a girl who had been beaten went to the home of a police supervisor for help because she saw the squad car. Supervisors currently take their squad cars home. The proposal calls for 19 patrol officers to be assigned a car now

PALACE

They began remodeling the building and the sound and projection systems. At first it was a matter of small repairs and hauling away items that were no longer needed. In January, they closed the theater and began a major renovation project.

The goal was to create an atmosphere that is as enjoyable before the movie begins, as it is realistic when the curtain goes up and lights go dim," said Abraham. "The setting and decor were chosen to return moviegoers to a more nostalgic time, while technology was installed to carry us into the future."

A Dolby Digital sound system was installed along with a modern projection system. The theater has been THX certified by Lucasfilm Ltd., the only theater in the Texas Panhandle to have such a designation.

Originally, the theater was built for vaudeville and silent films. Today, it has one of the most sophisticated sound systems in the area, and that's not just Abraham's or Talley's opinion. It's been independently tested and certified.

The lighting fixtures along the wall are from Deming, N.M. The vertical Palace sign out front is from Colorado City. The theater seats are from Ajo, Ariz.

The seats, Abraham said, have to be at the right slope. They had found some other seats, he said, but the angle of the slope was wrong. Many theaters have a steep angle of slope to the floor, particularly theaters built after the mid-1920s with concrete floors, but the wooden floors of The Palace have a long gentle slope.

"I just didn't want to see the theater closed," said Abraham, a Canadian native who now manages a $55 million money fund out of his home town.

Abraham said he can remember coming to the theater on Saturday afternoons as a child in the 1970s when he still had to stand on tiptoe to reach the window of the ticket booth.

Now, his two oldest children are as excited as Abraham and his wife are about the old theater. The Abrahams, who celebrate their 10th wedding anniversary this year, have four children with another on the way.

No doubt, they'll all be movie buffs.

McDuff set for Nov. 17 execution

WACO, Texas (AP) — Serial killer Kenneth Allen McDuff has another date with death. Brenda Solomon, whose daughter was among McDuff's many victims, hopes this is the date McDuff keeps.

"I am going to be there, unless I am on my death bed," Ms. Solomon, of Eddy, told the Waco Tribune-Herald on Thursday after a judge ordered that McDuff be executed Nov. 17.

"I just want to make sure he's dead. I need to know he is dead, and the only way I'll know it for sure is if I witness it."

"I just want to make sure he's dead. I need to know he is dead, and the only way I'll know it for sure is if I witness it."

McDuff, 52, is suspected of killing as many as 14 people dating to the 1960s.

This death sentence, one of two pending against McDuff, is for the March 1992 kidnapping and murder of Ms. Solomon's daughter, Melissa Northrup, a 22-year-old pregnant mother of two.

UW holds check-in, luncheon

Pampa United Way held its first check-in meeting recently in M.K. Brown Room of Pampa Community Building. The United Way agencies providing the free luncheon were Pampa Meals on Wheels, Gray County Latch Key, Gray County Child Protective Services and High Plains Epilepsy Association.

Columbia Medical Center held a "Fun Run" at Chautauqua and donated all the proceeds — $1,126 — to the UW. Celenase Chemicals Division turned in a pledge which included corporate matching funds for a total of $109,139.50, exceeding last year's campaign donations. This accounts for 38 percent of UW goal. Including pledges received in mail and during the check-in, the total raised was $138,839.44, 41 percent of UW goal.

The UW more recently held a meeting at Genesis House Activity Building with Genesis House, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Pampa Community Youth Services provides the free meal.

GETTING HOMEWORK DONE
One measure of a good real estate agent is that he or she has done all the preliminary homework necessary for selling a house. This entails looking up the price that a prospective seller paid for his or her house, as well as how much must be paid in property taxes. The agent should also be prepared to present a list of recent sale prices of comparable properties, and be able to analyze the seller's home in light of this data. The agent should know what variables (such as recent layoffs of a key employer and new schools) might be affecting home prices. Beyond that, an agent should be able to offer at least three recommendations from recently satisfied clients.
At CENTURY 21 - PAMPA REALTY INC., 312 N. Gray Street, we can compare the attributes of your house to those that have recently sold in your neighborhood and calculate a fair market value. We'll also submit a picture of your home and a description to the Multiple Listing Service, providing the widest possible exposure of your house to all Realtors and potential buyers. For a free market analysis, call 669-0007 today.

Texas Editorials

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers: Abilene Reporter-News on right-to-die: The question of when life support should be removed from a patient is a painful and personal one, and Virginia Gov. James Gilmore has shown how the state can make it a whole lot worse.

Hugh Finn, 44, a Louisville TV newscaster, suffered severe and irreversible brain damage in a 1995 auto accident and had been kept alive by feeding tube in a Virginia nursing home. To use the ugly but accurate term, Finn was in a persistent vegetative state.

Finn's wife, Michele, came to the sad decision that the feeding tube should be removed and her husband allowed to die. Finn's parents and brothers and sisters were divided on the issue, and the case went to court.

The court ruled Michele Finn's decision met the terms of a state law and a 1990 Supreme Court decision that allow families to withhold treatment if there is no hope of recovery and it is in accord with the victim's wishes. It should be noted that, despite the disagreement, the Finns acted with compassion, dignity and a lack of animus throughout the ordeal.

Then Gilmore intervened, publicly, personally and, say his critics, with an eye on his restive political base on the right, to block Mrs. Finn's decision. He fought her through the courts until the state supreme court told him to butt out.

In the meantime, state social services investigators showed up at the nursing home to check out "complaints" that Hugh Finn was being mistreated, complaints her lawyer described as "bogus."

Finn died Friday, but Virginia wasn't through with him. A state medical examiner seized Finn's medical records and tried to commandeer his body from the funeral home for an autopsy. A judge had to step in to allow the body to be shipped home to Louisville for burial and to order the records returned.

The Finn case points up the growing importance of living wills, explicit written instructions and the power of medical attorney so that vital decisions about the fate of a loved one on life support are kept out of the hands of politicians and bureaucrats.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram on cleaner air:

TU Electric, flayed by environmental groups as one of the state's biggest industrial polluters, is finally taking a positive step by voluntarily cutting emissions for its 20 oldest generating plants that are exempt from state pollution regulations.

But it's only doing so after increasing pressure from Gov. George W. Bush, the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission and environmental organizations. And there's talk that the Texas Legislature, in its upcoming 1999 session, could tighten a loophole that has allowed much higher volumes of air pollution from the "grandfathering" of older power plants such as those at which TU Electric is planning to reduce emissions.

Nonetheless, TU Electric's move, which it promised to make within five years, means that the emission of nitrogen oxides and other pollutants at its Metroplex plants would drop by 8.5 million pounds a year. That would be one more step in helping ensure that Texans breathe cleaner air.

Bush has been pressing industries with grandfathered plants to voluntarily comply with newer clean-air standards. To achieve that goal, the TNRCC developed a plan to raise the standards for older facilities, which still would have more relaxed standards than those for newer plants.

Environmentalists reacted cautiously to TU's move, saying it appears to be a step in the right direction but comes from a company with a questionable environmental record.

It looks like a good move to us. But we'd like to see more similar action from North Texas' biggest provider of electricity.

Time to repeal Miranda law

In 1963, a 23-year-old man with a prior arrest record, who had dropped out of the ninth grade, was picked up by the Phoenix police for questioning in the kidnapping and rape of an 18-year-old woman. At the end of a two-hour interrogation, Ernesto Miranda orally confessed to the crime, described the rape and signed a statement certifying that the confession was voluntary, that no threats or intimidation had been used, and that he fully understood his rights. He was tried, convicted and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Miranda appealed his conviction on the grounds that his attorney had not been present during questioning and, accordingly, his confession could not be treated as truly voluntary. The Supreme Court agreed and in 1965 issued perhaps the most famous criminal decision in history, Miranda v. Arizona.

The Miranda warnings are familiar not just to lawyers and judges but to anyone who has ever watched a cop show or movie: "You have the right to remain silent. Anything you say can and will be held against you in a court of law. You have the right to talk to a lawyer and have him present while you are being questioned. If you cannot afford to hire a lawyer, one will be provided for you. Do you understand these rights?"

When Miranda was decided, supporters of the decision hailed its protections against coerced confessions and police brutality. But critics warned that the decision would make it more difficult for the police to solve crimes. (Miranda was retried — without the confession — and convicted. He was paroled in 1972 and was killed in a bar fight. Ironically, his attacker was questioned and released. That crime was never solved.)

Mona Charen

Now, more than 30 years later, the National Center for Policy Analysis has issued a report by Professor Paul G. Cassell of the University of Utah College of Law which argues that the critics were right: Miranda has hampered the ability of the police to solve crimes and has resulted in significant percentages of criminals going unpunished.

The statistics on crime clearance rates (or solving crimes) shows a marked decline in the years following the Miranda decision. Violent-crime clearance rates before 1965 hovered at around 60 percent. But in the years following Miranda, the rates dropped steeply, to 55 percent in 1966, 51 percent in 1967 and 47 percent in 1968. Violent-crime clearance rates have never rebounded to pre-Miranda highs. Property crimes are cleared at slightly higher rates than violent crimes but, again, nowhere near the rates that prevailed pre-Miranda.

Using standard statistical analysis techniques, Cassell argues that other factors, including number of police, money spent of policing, overall crime rate, number of juveniles in the population, the unemployment rate, disposable per capita real income, labor-force participation, live births to unmarried mothers, and levels of urbanization and the distribution of crimes in large and small cities have not had as measurable an effect on crime clearance as the Miranda decision.

According to Cassell, there were between 56,000 and 136,000 more unsolved and therefore unpunished violent crimes in 1995 because of Miranda. For property crimes, the figure is between 72,000 and 299,000. Since the Supreme Court recommended the Miranda warnings as a safeguard, not as a constitutional right, Cassell argues that the court might now wish to reconsider.

The irony is that in 1965, coercive questioning methods by police were already in desuetude. Even the court's opinion acknowledged that such practices were "undoubtedly the exception now." Besides, as Justice Harlan's dissent pointed out, the Miranda warnings would do nothing to cure police misconduct: "Those who use third-degree tactics and deny them in court are equally able and destined to lie as skillfully about warnings and waivers."

Since society is paying a heavy price in increased crime due to Miranda, and since Miranda was designed to cure a problem that was already solving itself, alternatives deserve new attention. Videotaping all interrogations, as Cassell suggests, would avoid the rubber-room problem. So would the presence of a magistrate. But the Miranda warnings have had the effect of discouraging all defendants — even those stricken with conscience or temporarily too scared to lie from confessing.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
 Today is Friday, Oct. 16, the 289th day of 1998. There are 76 days left in the year.
 Today's Highlight in History:
 On Oct. 16, 1978, the College of Cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church chose Cardinal Karol Wojtyla to be the new pope; he took the name John Paul II.

 On this date:

In 1793, during the French Revolution, Queen Marie Antoinette was beheaded.
 In 1859, abolitionist John Brown led a group of about 20 men in a raid on Harper's Ferry.

In 1916, Margaret Sanger opened the first birth control clinic, in New York City.
 In 1946, 10 Nazi war criminals condemned during the Nuremberg trials were hanged.

State controls won't end crisis

Steve Chapman
 Syndicated columnist

would allow interest rates to drop in these countries without the danger that investors would flee. Lower interest rates, in turn, would permit their economies to recover. But using capital controls to ameliorate a financial crisis is like giving a beer to an alcoholic who's trying to get clean — it provides momentary relief only by exacerbating the underlying affliction.

If the cause of the Asian crisis were that money was fleeing, then stopping the flight might help. But as University of Chicago economist Robert Aliber points out, the real problem was that these countries needed to attract steady inflows of new foreign capital to pay for big trade deficits.

What set off the panic was not old money departing but new money staying away. And there is no better way to scare off prospective investors than to restrict their ability to liquidate their investments when they choose. They can invest in plenty of other places without that hindrance.

Chile is often cited as a prime example of a country that has prospered while employing these controls. Its experience proves more than the advocates realize. Aliber notes that the Santiago government adopted capital controls for the express purpose of reducing foreign investment, which was driving up the peso and making Chilean exports uncompetitive.

This is exactly the opposite of the problems faced by Indonesia, Thailand, Russia and the like, which need outside capital to finance growth.

While outsiders are embracing Chile's approach, Chile itself has just finished junking it. Why? Because now it wants more foreign investment and sees that capital controls are to investors what insect repellent is to bugs.

There are plenty of other defects in this so-called solution. Krugman himself admits that they invite corruption and abuse. Exporters find ways to understate their income so they can leave some money abroad; importers inflate their payments to smuggle money out. "Every country that has tried to maintain exchange controls for an extended period eventually finds the accumulating distortions intolerable," he confesses.

Capital controls also do deeper damage by giving politicians one more reason to adopt bad policies. When governments manage their economies well, they can generally count on getting foreign investment. When the inflow stops or an exodus begins, you can be sure they're doing something wrong — like running a big budget deficit (Brazil, Russia), failing to clean up the banking sector (South Korea) or maintaining a government-decreed exchange rate at a level that can't be sustained (Indonesia). Preventing the exodus only preserves the errors and multiplies the harm they do.

The current financial turmoil roiling these economies is painful, but capital controls would turn a short-term crisis into a long-lasting calamity. For now and decades to come, the economies of poorer countries will need investment from home and abroad to make their way to prosperity. They won't get it by grabbing the nearest investors and holding them hostage.

He's not your regular Joe

He introduced himself as Joe and said he was riding the rails from his cabin home in Arkansas to a California veterans' hospital for an operation on a foot nearly destroyed during the Korean War. He wore an undersized overcoat on a balmy October day. His navy corduroy slacks were highwater high and his socks once belonged to a girl. Joe was gray-bearded but not shaggy, poor, but no dirtier than you'd expect of anyone who'd just jumped off a freight train.

I met Joe in front of the Salvation Army store in Amarillo. He and about a dozen other men, all holding sacks or backpacks and wearing way too many clothes for the day, were sitting on the concrete or lounging against the brick wall. It seemed they were waiting for an unknown something or someone to come just for them.

On the end of the block, nearer the cross street, were a couple of women. They, too, carried their lives in their sacks. Their conversations sounded sensible from my own square of concrete further down the block. They, too, shared the look of too many clothes for the day and the sense of waiting for something to happen.

Joe is 69 and a Navy veteran. It is a metal rod in his leg which gives him trouble. Actually, the rod holds his foot on. It was blown off by a land mine on a North Korean beach. Joe had completed a demolition job which took out a bridge and a battalion of Korean soldiers when he encountered the land mine. He said he picked up his foot and put it in his pocket for safe keeping while he waited for rescuers.

He's been a barge diver in New Orleans and a painter in Arkansas. When his wife died, he gave her children the car and truck they owned because he promised to take care of them. He lives in the woods in a log cabin next to a cemetery where his parents and siblings are buried.

That way, Joe explained, when Jesus comes he will see them rise heavenward from their graves.

"And I'm gonna be one of the first ones up there," he added. Joe seems to think hitching rides on a freight train is the most normal thing in the world. He has the route planned - Amarillo to Pueblo, Colo., Pueblo to Yuma, Ariz., and from there to San Diego.

He said he dreads Pueblo because the Salvation Army shelter is only open when the thrift store makes money and you can never tell when that will be.

But Joe looks forward to San Diego. I get his foot fixed at the hospital which first gave him hope of walking after the demolition job in North Korea and for a few weeks he will get a little TLC while he recuperates from surgery.

Joe has a hundred stories about the war, his late wife, his Pentecostal faith and an invalid granddaughter lost to irreversible brain injury. He has 50 cents in his pocket and caramel popcorn in a cup.

Joe is not hopeless and in a sense he is not down and out. He has his cabin, his faith and his mission to get his foot fixed. He lives like he wants to, where he wants to and comes and goes when he pleases.

I talked to Joe on Monday. He is probably in Pueblo by now where cold weather is predicted for this weekend. I hope the Salvation Army shelter is open.

Zion Lutheran Church dedicates new windows

Last Sunday Zion Lutheran Church dedicated two stained glass windows in its sanctuary. These windows were a project that took 10 months to complete.

A member who designed, built and installed them, gave the windows to the church. Several other members helped with the completion of the project.

"It's really wonderful to see all of these people using their God given unique talents, to cooperatively complete a project that honors and glorifies God," said Pastor Leif Hasskarl of Zion.

One window depicts the Holy Trinity. On it is the hand of God the Father. The hand is pointed downward and is open to signify God as the creator. Centered in the window is the cross of Christ, the Son of God. It is done in red to represent the blood that was shed on the cross for humanity's salvation. The descending dove represents the Holy Spirit that has now come into this world following Jesus' ascent into Heaven. The dove recalls the events of Jesus' baptism and the festival of Pentecost.

The second window depicts the methods through which God gives His loving grace and forgiveness to humanity. The open book represents the proclaimed and read Holy Scriptures. Through the Bible God makes His will and love known to all. In the center is the cup and host of the Sacrament of Holy Communion. In this sacrament the faithful receive forgiveness for their sins and are reminded of Christ's sacrifice for them. The shell represents Holy Baptism. The three drops of water underneath the shell recalls that baptism occurs in the name of the Holy Trinity according to Matthew 28:19.

According to Pastor Hasskarl, "Stained glass windows have long been used to fulfill two purposes in churches. First they allow light to be brought inside in a majestic and peaceful manner. Second, they visually tell and emphasize the teachings of Holy Scripture." These windows certainly accomplish both of these purposes in a dramatic, yet orthodox fashion. Zion Lutheran Church is at 1200 Duncan Street.

Churches plan to pray for every American by end of year 2000

• The Lodges are a small part of a huge effort called Celebrate Jesus 2000. The goal is to say a prayer for every American by the end of the year 2000.

By AMY BURKDOLL
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Out for an evening stroll, Fred and Valeria Lodge slowed their pace as they approached the home of a family that recently had moved to their neighborhood. The couple prayed their new neighbors would be comfortable.

Then the Lodges walked on, their schnauzers Gretchen and Heidi trotting contentedly at the ends of their leashes. They said another prayer at the next house and, farther down the street, prayed for a woman recovering from surgery.

Lodge, a pastor, and his wife prayed for about 25 more families before returning home.

The Lodges are a small part of a huge effort called Celebrate Jesus 2000. The goal is to say a prayer for every American by the end of the year 2000.

Across the country, 176,000 churches are involved. "This is God's children of all denominations, races and everything else finding a common theme to rally around," said Lodge, pastor of Una Baptist Church in Nashville. "It's a way to pull down a lot of the walls and magnify the things that unite us."

The idea for Celebrate Jesus 2000 was hatched about four years ago by Mission America, an evangelism coalition based in Minneapolis. Churches of various denominations have signed on, and are encouraging their congregations to participate.

"People without Christ need to know about him. That is the common ground that has brought us all together. There is a sense of desperate need for spiritual revival," said Larry Lewis, the national facilitator of Celebrate Jesus 2000.

Leaders of "CJ2K," as the movement sometimes is called, estimate the undertaking will cost $100 million, with a large portion of that going to buy thousands of copies of a $250 CD-ROM that allows churches to target their prayers.

The CD-ROM was produced by a group of computer programmers and system designers who work full-time at the Mapping Center for Evangelism and Church Growth, an organization in Kansas City, Kan., affiliated with Mission America. It includes demographics and street maps to help churches identify the people for whom they will pray.

In Nashville, 22 religious leaders have united to mobilize the city's churches. Known as the Nashville Bridges Coalition, the organization assigns churches to specific neighborhoods and monitors progress.

Similar assignments are being made by organizers in cities across the country.

Volunteers walk the streets, maps in hand, going down the list of names one by one. Others designate their own households as "houses of prayer," promising to pray for each resident in their neighborhood.

Organizers hope volunteers eventually will form a relationship with those they pray for. They are encouraged to knock on doors along their prayer walks, telling residents how long they've been praying and asking what to pray for next.

"Something like, 'I'm your neighbor, I've been praying for you, and if there's anything you ever need, let me know,'" Lewis explained.

Churches also plan community events, such as revivals and barbecues, to mark the beginning of the new millennium. Once the year 2000 comes and goes, the plan is for church members to follow up on their neighbors regularly.

The goal is not to convert anyone or solicit money, Lewis said.

"That's the furthest thing from our minds," he said. "This is an evangelism effort. Basically we go as a good neighbor. We offer to pray for them and any need they might have in their home and family. If people are already involved in church, we just encourage them to continue with their local church and be active in it."

Bishops urge promotion of women

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholic authorities must do more to speed up the promotion of women in the church, according to a policy statement by the U.S. Bishops Committee on Women in Society. But the bishops did not challenge the church's position prohibiting women's ordination.

The statement released Oct. 12 calls on church leaders to "appreciate and incorporate the gifts of women in the church," to appoint women to church leadership positions such as administrative posts in Catholic schools and hospitals. It also urges efforts to "promote collaboration between women and men in the church."

The document suggests that lines of authority in the parish be clarified and discussions be held about the changing roles of women and men.

Black churches and philanthropies unite

BOSTON (AP) — At a time when government aid to low-income families is shrinking, black churches and secular foundations are working together to tackle social problems.

Boston-based Hyams Foundation oversees the effort, known as the Black Church Capacity Building Program. Last year, $177,000 was funneled through it to area churches.

Other cities, including Miami, Denver, New Orleans, Los Angeles, Detroit and Jackson, Miss., have programs to link black churches and foundations.

But Boston's program is focused on developing technical and computer skills and is being watched by national specialists.

"In many ways American philanthropy has been rediscovering religion," according to Peter Frumkin, an assistant professor of public policy at Harvard University.

"For years, the philanthropic sector turned its back on religious-based nonprofits, saying they weren't professional enough, not universal enough," he added.

Now, he said, "private foundations are realizing they must act in ways that we have thought of for the past 50 years as public responsibility."

"And they are finding that churches are the only stable institutions in the neighborhoods."

Lawyer says bah-humbug! to Christmas

CINCINNATI (AP) — Richard Ganulin, assistant city solicitor who says he is a non-Christian, is suing in federal court to end Christmas as a federal holiday. He argues that Congress violated the separation of church and state when it declared the holiday years ago.

In a response filed in early October, the government said the courts have repeatedly recognized secular aspects of Christmas, including holly, ivy, Christmas trees, Santa Claus, snowmen, jingling bells and presents on Christmas morning.

"Christmas owes its status as a national holiday to the fact that most Christmas symbols are either unrelated to Christianity or are no longer associated with Christianity in current culture," wrote Donetta Wieth, an assistant U.S. attorney.

Ganulin, who filed the suit Aug. 4 as a private citizen, said, "The fact that it has a secular dimension does not in any way change the fact that Christmas is the second most holy day of the year on the Christian calendar." Easter, observed on a Sunday, is not a federal holiday.

Lawyers for the American Civil Liberties Union and an arm of the Southern Baptist Convention put little faith in his chance to succeed.

"The courts don't want to get rid of Christmas in public life. That position is probably inconsistent with the First Amendment, but it's reality," Scott Greenwood, general counsel for the ACLU's Ohio chapter, said.

Will Dodson, legal counsel for the convention's Ethics and Religion Commission, added, "Recognizing a Christian holiday or any other faith is simply respecting the religious beliefs of others."

No court date has been set to hear Ganulin's complaint.

Parents' Preplanning Marks Mother's Passing With Grace

DEAR ABBY: My mother recently passed away. She had led a long, happy life and was greatly loved. Years ago, both my parents had the foresight to preplan and prepay all of their funeral arrangements. All Dad and the family had to do for Mother's service was order the flowers; then we were able to welcome and share condolences with more than 500 guests. It made her funeral a beautiful time of reuniting old friends and family.

Our freedom to share great memories was exactly what Mom and Dad had planned. The arrangements were impressive. Their gift of preplanning and prepaying is something we all should consider doing for our loved ones.

A LOVING, GRATEFUL DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Please accept my condolences on the death of your beloved mother. Although it's difficult to contemplate death, facing the fact that no one lives forever and planning ahead can prevent a world of confusion for grieving relatives at a time when they are most vulnerable.

As your letter illustrates, your parents' preplanning was wise, thoughtful, and a godsend during your time of grief.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the gentleman in Redwood City, warning women to be more careful with their purses while shopping. While rolling my shopping cart along in my favorite supermarket with my purse resting in the child's seat, I was shocked to see a man's arm reach around from behind me and grab it. I whirled around to see my son grinning at me. He handed me my purse, gave me a big hug and said, "Let that be a lesson to you, Mom!"

Since then, I always loop the strap of my handbag over my arm, rest it in front of me on the child's seat, and never let go of the shopping cart.

B.J. IN ARKANSAS

DEAR B.J.: That's good advice. Here's another one you might find interesting:

DEAR ABBY: I go shopping with my wife quite often, and when she puts her purse in the shopping cart we use the child safety belt to run through the handles of the purse. The little extra time it takes to put the belt through the handles is nothing, and the belt acts as a deterrent to purse snatching. I hope this bit of information will be helpful.

ROY A. MCMULLEN, OKLAHOMA CITY

DEAR ROY: Although not all shopping carts are equipped with child safety belts, many are. Thank you for a good suggestion.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your discussion with "Interested Bystander" about the age a youngster is old enough to go to a public rest room alone, may I share a humorous incident on that subject?

When I was a college student, I worked as a weekend salesman in the boys' department of a local department store.

One day, a woman approached me with a little boy about 4 years old in tow. She asked, "Do you have a rest room someplace? My boy has to go."

"Yes, we do," I replied. "There's a men's room on this floor, but if you want to go with him, there's a ladies' room on the floor below."

"Oh, no thank you," she said. "I went before I left the house."

PAMPA — Hidden Hills Seniors held a 4-man net tournament earlier this week. Results are as follows:

First place: Jack Combs, Carol Petit, Howard Buckingham and Nathan Lancaster 261.

Second place: Jerry Dorman, Oscar Sargent, J.T. Lamberson and Bill Brown, 262.

Third place: Dale Haynes, Bob Young, Doug DuBose and Gabe Crossman, 263.

Fourth place: Ralph Wilson, Jack Mitchell, Jack Davis and Joe Wheeley, 281.

Closest to the pin: Travis Taylor, No. 15.

Sam Haynes shot a 71, his best-ever score. He had a 32 on the front nine. His playing partner was John Haynes.

PAMPA — Cory Fowler, Pampa, had a hole-in-one Wednesday at the Pampa Country Club. It was his first hole-in-one.

Fowler's hole-in-one came on the No. 12, 203-yard, par 3 hole. Witnesses were Daniel Heuston, Trevor Stowers and Ryan Black.

FOOTBALL

PAMPA — Palo Duro defeated Pampa, 12-2, in a freshmen football game Thursday.

Pampa's only points came in the first quarter on a safety by Justin Lemons.

Defensively, Jake Bolin and Terrell Jennings each caused a fumble.

Coach Andy Cavalier said the offense, led by quarterback Randy Tice and Oscar Ortega, was able to move the ball, but just couldn't penetrate the end zone.

Pampa's next game is against Amarillo High Black next Thursday at Harvester Stadium.

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Never one to follow the crowd, Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes is once again showing his rebellious spirit.

Texas Tech was picked to finish fourth in the Big 12 South Division this season, but the Red Raiders (6-0, 3-0) are riding atop the standings and bring a No. 22 ranking into Saturday's game against No. 19 Colorado (5-1, 2-1).

"Spike is the only guy I know who can go to a Nike event and wear Reebok golf shoes," Colorado coach Rick Neuheisel said.

"Maybe I'm playing favorites because I like him so much. He's done a great job. His teams are hardly ever given much recognition at the outset of the season but almost always find a way to make noise in the conference."

Texas Tech's unanticipated perfect start can be traced to running back Ricky Williams and a swarming defense that ranks 10th nationally in rushing defense (92.2 yards per game).

Williams, often mistaken for Texas' talented tailback of the same name, is averaging 171 yards behind an offensive line that averages 323 pounds.

"Their line is how big?" Colorado defensive tackle Aaron Marshall asked this week.

Nicknames along the Tech line include "The House" and "The Shack," and Dykes admits they sometimes move at the pace of their monikers.

"The minus are that, the bigger you are, the slower you are," Dykes said. "I think you have to be athletically inclined. That's the problem you have if you get too big is the fact that you lose your quickness."

Injuries have prevented Colorado from evaluating its overall team speed. The Buffaloes have started six different lineups on offense and defense through the first six games, and 13 first- or second-team players have missed games due to injuries.

Safety Rashidi Barnes (torn knee ligament), tailback Marlon Barnes (sprained knee) and offensive guard Ben Nichols (sprained ankle) are questionable for Saturday's game.

Bucks favored

WHITE DEER — Harris Ratings has White Deer favored by 17 points over Highland Park in a District 6-2A football game tonight at Highland Park.

White Deer is 4-2 overall and 1-0 in district. Highland Park is 4-2 and 0-1.

The Bucks are currently ranked No. 45 in the Class 2A state poll by Harris.

Highland Park will be hard-pressed to stop the Bucks' high-powered offense, which is averaging five touchdowns per game. The Bucks won last year's meeting, 14-0.

Bucks' running back Craig Urbanczyk has rushed for 1,146 yards and 10 touchdowns. Quarterback Jeremy Crook has passed for 423 yards and two touchdowns.

White Deer opened the district season with a lopsided 49-14 win over Clarendon last week. Urbanczyk scored four touchdowns and rushed for 243 yards. He's averaging an outstanding 9.0 yards per carry.

White Deer's offense is averaging 422.2 yards per game. Its defense is giving up 306 yards per game.

Highland Park's offense is paced by Terry Foster, who has rushed for 795 yards and seven touchdowns. HP is averaging 312.8 yards per game and is allowing 211.5 yards.

The Hornets lost to Quanah, 27-0, in their district opener last week.

Highland Park is ranked No. 135 in Class 2A. Stanton is 2A's top-ranked team. Brookshire Royals is second and Mart is third.

Tenaha is unanimous

DALLAS (AP) — Tenaha is the only team in Texas high school football this week to receive every first-place vote in a poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Tenaha (6-0) tries to keep its perfect record intact in Class A with a game this week at Mount Enterprise. A stumble would likely propel second-ranked Iola, third-ranked Aspermont or fourth-ranked Era into consideration. They're all unbeaten also.

Longview was the only No. 1 team to fall last week, dropping a game to Marshall, which earlier had beaten Killeen. Ellison, knocking it out of the top spot in Class 5A. Marshall went from being unranked to being sixth, just behind Ellison in No. 4 and Longview No. 5.

Katy got 12 No. 1 votes in this week's 5A poll, Converse Judson got 5, and Aldine Eisenhower, Longview and Marshall got one first-place vote each.

In Class 4A, top-ranked La Marque received 17 of 20 first-place votes this week, while West Orange-Stark 2 votes and Andrews got 1.

Katy is at Alief-Hastings this week, and La Marque hosts Santa Fe.

In Class 3A, Breckenridge is ranked No. 1, with 16 first-place votes. Breckenridge will be at Dublin Friday night.

Class 2A powerhouse Stanton will try to stay atop Class 2-A in a game against Seagraves.

It's crunch time in Big 12

DALLAS (AP) — It's crunch time in the Big 12 Conference, where most schools have at least five conference games left to play and the hunt for more victories becomes important in the search for North and South division champs.

The North and South winners will play Dec. 5 at St. Louis in the Big 12 championship game.

Family competition takes precedence on Saturday, and division leaders have their work cut out for them.

North leaders Kansas State (5-0, 2-0), ranked fourth nationally, plays Oklahoma State (2-3, 1-2). Missouri (4-1, 2-0) plays Oklahoma.

South pacesetter Texas Tech tries not to be a one-week wonder in the national rankings, going against 19th-ranked Colorado.

Texas Tech, ranked 22nd nationally, got into the rankings this week for the first time of the year after beating Oklahoma State. Colorado fell out of the unbeaten ranks last week, losing to Kansas State.

Texas and Iowa State are idle this weekend.

Here is this week's slate of games:

— No. 10 Texas A&M (4-2, 2-0) at Baylor (2-3, 1-2), 6 p.m. Saturday. The Aggies have dominated this series, going 11-0-1 since 1985. They lead the Big 12 in turnover margin. A&M linebacker Dat Nguyen needs to average only 4.8 tackles in the Aggies' last six games to become the school's recordholder in tackles. Baylor wide receiver Morris Anderson has established career highs in receiving yardage two straight weeks.

— No. 22 Texas Tech (6-0, 3-0) at Colorado (5-1, 2-1), 12:30 p.m. Saturday. Raider running back Ricky Williams is fourth in the nation with 171 yards a game. Wide receiver Donnie Hart has caught a touchdown pass in all six Tech games. Colorado's Buffs are second nationally in kickoff returns, averaging 30.6 yards a return. Buffs receiver Darrin Chiaverini is second in the Big 12 with 5.3 receptions per game.

Wells: Yankees will win in five — well, maybe

NEW-YORK (AP) — It's the New York Yankees in five, according to David Wells.

Well, that's only because Howard Stern asked.

"As he put it, he's our savior. He's good luck for our team," Wells said of the radio star Thursday, two days before the World Series opener against the San Diego Padres.

Wells, scheduled to pitch Game 1 against Kevin Brown, then said he only made the prediction to be as outrageous as Stern.

"Just for the record, I'm not predicting anything," Wells said. "I would like to wrap it up in four. Four would be better. But it's going to be tough to do that."

If they Yankees win, they think they'll be considered the greatest team ever.

"Since everything is based on the bottom line, I guess so," Yankees manager Joe Torre said. "It's tough to look back at the '27 Yankees and say we're better position by position, but everything is based on bottom line. If we get to four more wins — 121 wins is pretty mind-boggling, 125 would be the ultimate."

After going 114-48 during the regular season, sweeping Texas 3-0 in the first round and beating Cleveland 4-2 for the AL pennant, the Yankees are a heavy favorite against the Padres, who at 98-64 had the worst record of the three NL division winners.

Yet, the Padres beat Houston 3-1 — defeating Randy Johnson twice — then upset Atlanta 4-2, with two wins over Tom Glavine and one over Greg Maddux.

"Not many people gave us a chance against Houston, or against Atlanta," said Tony Gwynn, back in the World Series for the first time in 14 years. "There are guys over in our clubhouse that believe that we've got a shot. As long as we believe we have a shot and we go play like it, we think we're going to be fine."

New York has 23 Series championships, San Diego has none.

The Yankees have won 113 Series games. The Padres have won one.

"I've never been to Yankee Stadium," Gwynn said. "You've probably going to hear some stuff out there you probably haven't heard for a while. And to me, that's part of the game. They're trying to take your mind off what you're supposed to be doing. But 17 years of experience, I hope, will help get me through it."

The Yankees, who finished off the Indians on Tuesday, resumed workouts Thursday. San Diego, which beat Atlanta on Wednesday, planned to practice at Yankee Stadium today.

While the stands were empty as the Yankees practiced, the ballpark was surrounded by thousands of fans buying tickets for the first two games of the Series.

Inside, workers were repainting walls in preparation for Saturday night's game.

"We'll be the best ever if we win the World Series," Chili

Mills could make first 1998 start

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The greatest day of Ernie Mills' career turned into the worst.

Playing in the January 1996 Super Bowl with the Pittsburgh Steelers, Mills was the game's leading receiver and was doing a good job returning kickoffs — until the fourth quarter, when he tore a ligament in his left knee.

Mills spent the next two years trying to regain his pre-injury form but couldn't, neither in Pittsburgh nor Carolina. This year, playing in Dallas, he's finally done it.

Through six games, Mills is second on the Cowboys behind Michael Irvin with 17 catches for 329 yards, and he's tied with former college teammate Emmitt Smith for the team lead in touchdowns with four.

Mills put an exclamation point on his comeback last Sunday by burning his former Panthers teammates for five catches, a career-high 110 yards and an amazing, backwards-leaning touchdown catch in Dallas' 27-20 victory.

"Things are going pretty good," the humble, soft-spoken Mills said Thursday. "Overall, I'm pretty pleased but there are some things I'm still trying to improve on."

Mills could make his first start of the year Sunday against Chicago as Billy Davis, his tag team partner as the Cowboys' No. 2 receiver, has a sprained left foot.

Davis has been upgraded to questionable from doubtful, but said Thursday he considered himself probable. He ran for the first time this week and said if the next three days go as well as the last three he'd expect to play and possibly start — even though Mills has seen all the action in practice.

"If coach (Chan) Gailey feels like the person whose been in there all week should be in there, then I can't do that," Davis said.

Mills had a breakout year in 1995 when he caught 39 passes for 679 yards and eight touchdowns.

Detroit's defense shuts down Favre

By HARRY ATKINS
AP Sports Writer

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — What's wrong with Brett Favre? Probably nothing a little run support wouldn't cure. Look what Barry Sanders did for rookie Charlie Batch. Sanders ran for 155 yards, including a 73-yard touchdown sprint, against Green Bay on Thursday night. As a result, Batch looked like anything but a rookie as the Detroit Lions beat the Packers 27-20. The Lions (2-4), thanks mainly to Sanders, rushed for 186 yards. The Packers (4-2) could muster just 93 rushing yards, 69 by Travis Jervey.

"We have a long season ahead and we have two ways to go — up or down. I know I'm not giving up."

— Brett Favre

The result? Detroit's defense constantly kept the pressure on Favre, ultimately intercepting three passes. Opponents couldn't be quite so daring before Packers running back Dorsey Levens sprained his right ankle and broke a bone in his right leg. "We have a long season ahead and we have two ways to go — up or down," said Favre, who has thrown nine interceptions in his past three games. "I know I'm not giving up." Green Bay coach Mike Holmgren suggested Favre was pressing, trying to do too much by himself. "We're not going to panic," Holmgren said. "He's still the best quarterback in football, in my opinion. We have to get out of this little slump right now." Batch, a second-round draft pick out of Eastern Michigan, played his third consecutive error-free game. He completed 16 of 19 passes for 218 yards and two touchdowns, with no interceptions. "From the day he arrived at training camp, he's shown poise and composure," Sanders said. "He's really relaxed. He's beyond what a lot of us expected from a rookie quarterback. "I'm thrilled to play with him, and hopefully he will get better from this point on." Still, it was Sanders' running that forced Green Bay to quit stacking eight and nine men near the line of scrimmage. That, in turn, gave Batch a little more time to spot receivers. "It's always tough," Holmgren said. "Anytime you play Detroit you start with Barry. We've had some good games against him, and he's taken it to us a little bit. Tonight he was special. "It's nice to hand the ball to No. 20." It was the 10th time in 19 regular season games that Sanders has rushed for 100 or more yards against the Packers, including seven of the past nine. "I've got Barry Sanders, and they don't," Batch said. It was the second straight loss for the Packers, who fell further behind the unbeaten Minnesota Vikings (5-0) in the NFC Central race. The Lions fought back from a 10-0 deficit and outscored Green Bay 17-7 in the fourth quarter. "The good thing about this is we're 4-2 and not 2-4 or 1-5," Favre said. "We can play a lot better and I can play a lot better. That's the upside of this, if there is one." The Packers took a 10-0 lead on Favre's 67-yard touchdown pass to Antonio Freeman and a 28-yard field goal by Ryan Longwell in the first quarter. The Lions answered in the second quarter with a 25-yard field goal by Jason Hanson and Batch's 3-yard scoring toss to Pete Chryplewicz, and it was 10-0 at halftime. Longwell's 40-yarder was the only scoring of the third quarter, but Detroit ran off 17 points in the fourth quarter to take a 27-13 lead. Batch passed to fellow rookie Germane Crowell for a 68-yard touchdown, Sanders — who had an 80-yard touchdown called back — scored on his 73-yarder, and Hanson kicked a 36-yard field goal with 2:08 left. Favre and Freeman hooked up for a 14-yard TD with three seconds to go. "Charlie really seems to step up to every challenge," Detroit wide receiver Herman Moore said. "He has really taken control of our offense, to the point where we aren't waiting any more for him to catch up with us. He's already there, and he's not making mistakes. "It was really good to see the ball go down the field." Notes: Batch, 23, became the youngest NFL quarterback to complete 11 consecutive passes in a game since Favre, who was a younger 23 in 1992. ... Sanders extended his NFL record of touchdown runs of 50 yards or more to 15. Jim Brown is second with 12. ... Sanders went over the 100-yard mark for the 71st time, putting him six behind Walter Payton's record of 77. ... Detroit offensive guard Jeff Hartings went out with a sprained left knee. His status for next week's game with Minnesota is questionable.

Faithful fans can turn ugly in a hurry

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

It didn't take long for the faithful to turn on their heroes. It never does. Barely an hour passed between the time the San Diego Padres knocked Atlanta out of the postseason and the time someone identifying himself as Chief Noc-a-Homa (the name also used by the politically incorrect mascot the Braves retired a few years ago) left this entry on a message board on the Internet: "I feel your pain Indian fans. Your legacy of postseason chokes is almost half as impressive as ours." No one should be surprised to learn that the message got uglier from there on out. "Need a fat, washed-up first baseman making $8 mil?" the message continued, singling out Andres Galarraga for scorn. "We've got to dump him on someone." We could go on, but you get the point. Raise the bar the way Cleveland and Atlanta have, then fail to make the jump to the next level, and the folks back home don't want to hear about how the runway is covered with banana peels. They want somebody to blame.

In the case of the Braves, finding that somebody wasn't a problem. The big three on the mound, starters Greg Maddux, John Smoltz and Tom Glavine, were a combined 0-3 in the National League championship series. Of the big three bats, Galarraga, Chipper Jones and Ryan Klesko, only Galarraga had more than one RBI and only Jones (.208) hit anywhere near his weight. "We've had a great run. We've been in a position to go to the World Series eight years in a row," said Glavine, opting for the glass-is-half-full perspective. "I guarantee if you took a poll of every major-league player and asked if they'd rather be in our position, they'd say yes." This is not an exaggeration. As an organization, the Braves rank among the best and brightest, in part because they're also always among the richest. At a time when expansion has put a premium on quality pitchers, general manager John Schuerholz has spent plenty of owner Ted Turner's money to lock up baseball's best throughout the 1990s. And there was enough left over to acquire Galarraga when the Braves decided they needed a right-handed bat for the middle of their lineup. Ultimately, though, you have to wonder whether that willingness to shell out so much money for a handful of stars hasn't been the Braves' undoing. With the addition of the wild-card and a round of divisional playoffs, baseball's postseason has become more like the NFL, NBA and NHL. Not once this decade has the team with the best regular-season record gone on to win the World Series. A deep roster has become a necessity. To win it all, a team has to have more than the usual production from its stars; somewhere down the long postseason road, it needs a big night or two from fringe performers and a fair share of the breaks. In that sense, the Braves' breakdown was total. Cleveland's setbacks are the result of an entirely different philosophy. Indians general manager John Hart looked at the free-agent landscape a long time ago and took the opposite tack from Schuerholz. He figured pitching would be too expensive to lock up, so he spent most of owner Dick Jacobs' considerable funds on position players. The Indians have had remarkable success for a team without an established No. 1 starter — four straight

Oregon-UCLA have high-powered offenses

By The Associated Press

Don't be surprised if the final score of the Oregon-UCLA game looks like it belongs on a basketball court instead of a football field. The undefeated teams, who meet in a Pac-10 showdown Saturday at the Rose Bowl, are each averaging about 50 points. No. 11 Oregon (5-0, 2-0) is second nationally in scoring at 50.6, while No. 2 UCLA (4-0, 2-0) is third at 48.0. "They're very explosive," said UCLA coach Bob Toledo, a former offensive coordinator at Oregon. "Every time I turn on the film in the first quarter, it's 21-0. It's frightening." Oregon beat Washington State 51-29 last week for its best start in 34 years, while UCLA downed previously unbeaten Arizona 52-28. "They've been putting up a lot of points," UCLA quarterback Cade McNown said. "They're a solid team and they're undefeated." UCLA has won 14 straight games, the longest streak in the nation. If the Bruins continue to win, they could be headed for a national title shot in the Fiesta Bowl. McNown said the No. 2 ranking "is nice and everything, but it's just speculation on how things are going to turn out. We want to be No. 1 at the end of the season, when it's all finished." Oregon has been a major surprise this season. Unranked in the preseason poll, the Ducks

AL Central titles, a place in two of the last three World Series — but that's the same reason they've also begun their last eight postseason series by losing the first game. Climbing out of a hole all the time is tough enough. And once it became clear that 22-year-old Jarret Wright couldn't handle the No. 1 role this postseason, manager Mike Hargrove found himself juggling the rotation to find a pitcher to stop the Yankees' momentum. That's even tougher against the Yankees than most AL teams, because they play "small ball"; that is, they steal bases and hit-and-run, manufacturing runs like the clubs in the National League, where manager Joe Torre served his apprenticeship. The other reason it's tougher to stop the Yankees is that they appear to have struck, at least this season, an unusual balance. They didn't win 114 games during the regular season by being lucky. They have an excellent starting rotation and bullpen, a full complement of front-line players and a deep bench. "What they did was really tough," Hargrove said, "because everybody and their dog expected them to win. And they started expecting that in June." This is like a wilderness experience, or whatever you want to call it," Tigers coach Terry Bowden said. "There's no doubt we're being tested." Playing with young quarterbacks and an injured offensive line, Auburn has been plagued by turnovers the last three games. LSU and Tennessee returned interceptions for touchdowns on Auburn's opening drive, and Mississippi State recovered a fumble on the opening kickoff and ran it into the end zone. "This is a year we've tried to run the ball to protect the quarterback, but injuries have left us with no blocking schemes at all," Bowden said. "Then you get turnovers at the beginning of the game on top of that. All you can do is try to work your way through it." MIAMI (AP) — Baseball great Joe DiMaggio is being hospitalized Monday. DiMaggio was the choice of New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner to throw out the ceremonial first pitch for Game 1 of the World Series, but the commissioner's office announced today the honor will go to Chicago Cubs slugger Sammy Sosa. Hospital officials declined to comment on the condition of DiMaggio, a Yankees' Hall of Fame center fielder. Engelberg said DiMaggio has a pacemaker to correct a heart condition and has had pneumonia before. "He should be out this coming

Former members of 35th Fight Control Squadron hold reunion in Amarillo

Deck Woldt, former Pampa High baseball and golf coach, and his wife Eloise, hosted the 17th reunion of the 35th Fighter Control Squadron, which was active during World War Two.

The reunion of ex-servicemen and their wives was Sept. 24-27 in Amarillo. Woldt, who still lives in Pampa, said the squadron was a radio operator communications outfit, made up of 85 soldiers. Only 41 are still alive today and live in 21 different states, he added.

Woldt served with the 13th Air Force, which took part in the Solomon Island campaign in the South Pacific from 1942 to 1945.

The squadron has held reunions in 13 different states. The 18th reunion will be in North Carolina.
