AMARILLO FOOTBALL fans back the Sandies to the limit, and they may know the boys well, but they're giving a lot of points for the Abilene game.

—and if you've failed to get a ducat for the Eagle-Sandie game you'll probably have to get next to a radio. The game is a re-cut. Abileneans, although feeling that they have very little chance of beating Amarillo, wanted the Eagles to play the Sandies rather than the Childress Bobcats.

LIKE THE rest, we wanted to see Amarillo in the race, but the executive committee of the interscholastic league gave the Childress team a sorry deal last night when they ruled Kilman of Amarillo eligible. They declared him eligible on the record of a family Bible. Such records had never been accepted before, so why start now. Not only that but other Amarillo records were fumbled. If Kilman had not been over age Amarillo authorities would have secured federal census records.

JUDE SMITH, former Lamesa high school basketball star, will probably be a regular this season on the John Tarleton Agricultural College Flonkey basketball team. The Powboys have sixty straight victories in three consecutive undefeated seasons.

THAT BRINGS to mind the state high school champion team from Lindale (a town of about 500 population) in 1923. Three Indians from Oklahoma and two stars from Missouri made up the winning combination. After Lindale had won the championship it was discovered that several of the players were ineligible.

RAZORBACKS MAY PLAY IN COTTON BOWL

MARQUETTE WOULD BE OPPONENT

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT
DALLAS, Dec. 11 (AP)—Officials of the University of Arkansas Southwest conference grid champions, are expected within the next 24 hours to accept an invitation to meet Marquette's Golden Avalanche in Dallas' Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day.

Sanford planned to confer with Arkansas officials, Athletic Business Manager Boyd Cyfert and Head Coach Fred Thomsen, here today. Cyfert and Thomsen are attending the annual meeting of the Southwest conference. Conrad Jennings, Marquette athletic director, informed Sanford by telephone Marquette was agreeable to the game.

Definite selection of an opponent for Marquette will be withheld until after the Texas Christian-Santa Clara game at San Francisco Saturday, it was reported. Texas Christian may get the call over Arkansas if it defeats the Brones, only major undefeated and untied team of the nation and scheduled to play Louisiana State in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl game.

Informed sources indicated Texas Christian, regardless of the outcome of Saturday's game, would close shop for the season. Sanford said he had been advised that Ray (Ruzz) Bulvid, Marquette's heralded all-American halfback, would decline an invitation to play in the East-West game at San Francisco on New Year's day to play with his team here.

Negotiations hit a slight snag when it was learned the championship game of the Texas interscholastic league may be played in Dallas on Oklahoma and two stars from Missouri made up the winning combination.

A CAMPAIGN is underway to place Odell Herman of Abilene on the high school all-state eleven. A jam-up performance against Amarillo tomorrow might do the trick.

Major League Front Is Quiet After Ten Days Of Bartering

Letters Are Given Twenty Devil Players

SW Conference Coaches Meet To Name Champ

DALLAS, Dec. 11 (AP)—Southwest Conference coaches and athletic business managers met here today in the preliminary to the annual session of the executive board tomorrow.

The University of Arkansas, deprived of a grid title in 1935 after a reserve lineman was found to be ineligible, was expected to be named official champions of the scrambled race.

The Razorbacks were chief topics of conversation, Business Manager of Athletics Boyd Cyfert expected to agree to a New Year's Day game here against Marquette's Golden Avalanche. The Cotton Bowl association was expected to tender the invitation within the next 24 hours.

Texas All-Stars Play Charity Game Tomorrow With St. Mary's Rattlers

AUSTIN, Dec. 11 (AP)—The University of Texas All-Stars looking like a well-coached college eleven in spite of the thinning gray hair of some members, prepared today for a final workout prior to a charity contest with St. Mary's university Rattlers here tomorrow.

Former "greats" of the gridiron, going back to 1915 in Rip Collins, famed Texas A. & M. punter, as well as present day stars, had worked up an offense which, while it may not function with machine-like smoothness, will not lack in individual brilliance.

Among the all-stars who will take the field Saturday are Bohm Hilliard, Jack Gray, Ted Twomey, Bill Pierce, Joe Smartt, Standard Lambert, Phil Sanger, Jack Chevingny, "Ox" Higgins, Patsy Allen, Charley Zunker, Sub Flyand, Mule Wilson and others.

Local Cagers To Lubbock

All-Stars Play Strong Texas Tech Red Raiders Two Games Tonight

LUBBOCK, Dec. 11 (Sp.)—The Big Spring Dukes will face a strong array of basketball talent here tonight when they take the hardwood against Coach Bert Huffman's Texas Tech Matadors for a double-header.

The teams played a similar series last season. The Tech "B" team was beaten, but the No. 1 line-up came through with a flourishing victory.

Huffman retains his starting lineup of last season, plus a star guard, Leroy Crews, who did not play last year but who had lettered twice previously. Curly Wilkinson, Lubbock boy, 6 foot 5 inch center, has rounded into shape and probably will retain his position.

BEARS IN HARNESS

WACO, Dec. 11 (Sp.)—With their first basketball engagement only a week away, the Baylor Bears have been set to strenuous intra-squad scrimmages by Coach Ralph Wolf.

The basket-shooting Bruins will blast the lid from their pre-season record in Abilene when they tangle with Hardin-Simmons goal-looping Cowboy quintet December 18 and 19.

JAP GOES AFTER BILLIARD TITLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 11 (AP)—Kinrey Matsuyama of Japan, who isn't as tall as some of the cues used by experts he defeated, goes after his first world's three-cushion billiards championship tonight.

The stout, round-faced Oriental who wears high heeled shoes when he plays to boost his height to five feet, opposes Welker Cochran of San Francisco, and if Matsuyama wins he will take the angle crown back to the land he last saw 16 years ago.

If Cochran wins, however, a three way tie for the title will result and necessitate a playoff, all because of the wizardry of Willie Hoppe of

Schmeling Is Ready To Try Jim Braddock

NEW YORK, Dec. 11 (AP)—Max Schmeling, the German heavyweight, sought a showdown today before the New York state athletic commission on a title fight with James J. Braddock.

Meln Herr Max was prepared to tell the flatie fathers he was ready to sign to meet Braddock any time the promoters can arrange the fight. Max didn't care whether it is staged here, in Miami or in Atlantic City.

Also, Der Moxie was set to tell one and all he is prepared to squawk both in German and English if Braddock fails to go through with his promise to give Joe Louis' conqueror first shot at the heavyweight crown.

Just a year ago Schmeling came to New York and the commission told him he would have to knock off Joe Louis before meeting Braddock. Schmeling agreed and came through with a 12-round knockout of Louis last June.

COAST QUINTET ON ROAD TRIP

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 11 (AP)—Coach Sam Barry and 13 members of University of Southern California's basketball team leave tonight for a barnstorming trip through Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

The Trojan squad will rate one of the best in the Pacific coast conference this season. The schedule for the trip includes: Dec. 14—New Mexico A. & M. at El Paso. Dec. 16—Texas Tech at Lubbock. Dec. 17—Southern Methodist at Dallas.

FELLER IS CLEVELAND PROPERTY

NEW YORK, Dec. 11 (AP)—Bob Feller was safely in the Cleveland wigwam, the rabbit ball was set for another riding spree over distant fences and the incomparable Dixie Dean still received orders from Branch Rickey today.

As major league club owners and managers, worn to a frazzle after 10 days of bartering, headed for home, all was peaceful and serene in the baseball world.

Cleveland was happy and relieved by the decision of Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, who finally ruled that Feller, 17-year-old pitching wonder, was its exclusive property.

Club owners were triumphant. With the Feller decision behind them, they hoped ultimately to erase the statute which forbids them to sign sandlot players without minor league experience.

Because the majors had a big warehouse filled with rabbit balls, it was decided to use them up in 1937 and then talk about a deader sphere for 1938.

Since the big player mart opened in Montreal last week, these are principal moves of major league clubs to repair their baseball fences:

American league: Tigers—Released outfielder Chester Morgan to Toledo; recalled first baseman Rudy York, outfielder Chet Laabs, pitcher Claude Hatter and shortstop Wimpy Wilburn from Milwaukee; sent cash and catcher Clarence Phillips to Indianapolis for pitcher Paul Trout. Indians—Won clear right to pitcher Bob Feller.

Red Sox—Swapped infielder Bill Werber to Athletics for infielder Pinky Higgins. National league: Giants—Released Mark Koenig. Caseris—Sold infielder Charlie Gelber and catcher Virgil Davis to Cincinnati. Dodgers—Picked up outfielder Heine Manush, free agent; traded pitcher Dutch Brandt to Pittsburgh for pitcher Ralph Birkofer and infielder Cookie Lavay; swapped shortstop Lino Fry to Cubs for infielder Woody English and pitcher Roy Henshaw; sold outfielder Frenchy Bordagaray, infielder Jim Jordan and pitcher Emil Leonard to Cardinals.

Cubs—Purchased outfielder Joe Marty from San Francisco for cash and outfielder Johnny Gill, first baseman Gene Lillard and infielder Joe Vitter. Bees—Purchased outfielder Vincent DiMaggio from San Diego for cash, outfielder Rupert Thompson and pitcher Jim Chaplin. Cincinnati—Released infielder Tommy Thoenow.

PLAY TOMORROW NIGHT

COLLEGE STATION, Dec. 11—Having broken even in their initial appearances, the Texas Aggies will open their home basketball season on Memorial Gymnasium court Saturday night against the strong Second Presbyterian quintet from Houston. The Aggies lost 32-34 and won 26-24 in a double-header with the Sam Houston Bearkats the past Tuesday night at Huntsville.

Sandies, Abilene Clash Saturday

Kilman Is Ruled Eligible By League Heads

AUSTIN, Dec. 11 (AP)—The Amarillo Golden Sandies, schoolboy football champions for the last two years, remained in the thick of the state race today after the interscholastic league ruled out a protest by Childress.

Childress protested the eligibility of Bill Kilman, Amarillo guard, on the grounds he was over the league age limit of 18 years. The league ruled evidence presented by Childress school officials was not conclusive.

Amarillo defeated Childress 46 to 0 last Friday in a bi-district game and meets Abilene in the quarter-finals tomorrow.

Connie Goes Through Winter Meeting Without Taking A Cent

NEW YORK, Dec. 11 (AP)—Baseball sidelight: General Manager Slapnicka of the Indians whistling "You Belong to Me," as he wires the glad news to Bob Feller.

Post mortems: Connie Mack thinks the depression is on again. He actually came out of a mid-winter meeting without a cent (unless the Red Sox slipped him some on the side in the Higgins-Werber trade). . . . He aimed to call the boys together and stage an old fashioned auction. . . . He would get himself $200,000.

Aboard the Bremen: Max Schmeling demands of newspaper men, "Vot iss vot?" . . . Max gets his English twisted a bit and when he tells newsmen, "I demand Braddock fit me—dammit, fight me—first." Trainer Max Machon comments: "That feller always gets his English upside down, ain't it?" . . . Max featured the same hat he wore on his last two trips. . . . He swears he and Manager Joe (Yussel the Mussel) Jacobs are just like that. . . . Which is news.

Odds and ends: They're still talking about the party Horace Stoneham pitched for the National League clubowners. . . . Those who were present say it set a new high. . . . Pounds, Not Plums, Surprise The Modern Jack Horner Who Chooses Tempting, Rich New Concoctions

By MARTHA LOGAN

Little Jack Horner sat in the corner, but why repeat the rest of it—you all know it so well—and remember that when he stuck in his thumb he pulled out a plum. We hope that he wasn't disappointed at finding it a plum pie. That's one thing about these two crust pies—one never knows what lurks beneath that flaky top crust (we want it to be a flaky crust). Sometimes a delicious looking juice has found its sweet way out onto the crust and one can guess from its color what variety of goodness lies within. But even then there is a great element of doubt for peach juice looks very much the same as apricot, blue berry like blue plum or blackberry. And so it is that some prefer pies to be open faced and frank about their contents. But at that, most one crust pies conceal their secret beneath a snowy covering of meringue and so yet again one may be the pleasure of the unexpected.

One crust pie, having no pastry cover, are thought by some to be much less fattening than two crust pies. That all depends. Frequently the content of a one crust pie is much richer than the filling in a two crust pie and so it's six to one and a half dozen of the other. If you are really reducing, you had better just bring that will power of yours to the fore and say "no pie for me, thank you," and then sit in torture while others in the family cut down through a lusciously thick filling and "just right" crust and consume each tempting morsel, bite by bite.

No, it's no fun to reduce. And now that it's getting holiday time and our kitchens are fragrant with spice and all the other enchanting

Comrades Caring For Injured Boston Fire Fighter

A broken hose that thrashed about on a frozen Boston cobblestone street injured three firemen during a $150,000 blaze at a glass works. The pain on the face of Robert E. Fragrances that mean good things baking and brewing, it's more difficult than ever to say no. Why not treat yourself for a change and enjoy some of the good things you want—pie among them—pounds or no pounds?

Today, I am going to give you only pie fillings because I am sure you all have a favorite pie crust recipe that you know gives good results.

I suppose it's inevitable that I should mention apples when I am talking "pie." But did you ever make a Marlborough pie? It's made with a lattice top of pastry and peaks of meringue between the lattices. It's attractive looking and it's delicious tasting. Here is the recipe:

Marlborough Pie
Peel, core, and thinly slice enough apples to cover pie crust thickly. Cream 2 egg yolks, and 1-2 cup sugar; add 2 tablespoons melted butter; cream again. Add 1 cup scalded milk, pour over apples. Lattice top with pastry. Bake 10 minutes in hot oven (400 degrees F.), then reduce heat to slow oven (300 degrees F.) and bake 25 minutes. Drop spoonfuls of meringue made of 2 eggs white and 4 tablespoons granulated sugar, between lattices. Brown lightly in slow oven (300 degrees F.) for 15 minutes.

It always seems strange to me to learn how few people know of orange pie when it's so easy to make and such refreshing flavor with which to top off a meal. Try our recipe for orange pie and see how good it is.

ORANGE PIE
Heat 1 cup strained orange juice and 1 cup boiling water to boiling point. Mix 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup flour, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, and 1-2 teaspoon salt with a little cold water to form a paste. Pour boiling mixture on paste, stirring constantly. Cook in double boiler until thick. Pour mixture over 3 beaten egg yolks and add 4 tablespoons grated orange rind. Cook 5 minutes longer. Then add 1-4 cup strained lemon juice. Cool and pour into baked shell. Top with meringue made by beating 3 egg whites stiff and adding 6 tablespoons sugar. Brown in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit), 15 minutes.

Here is a recipe for Cherry Pie, and also one for Date Pineapple Pie which we have found to be favorites too. For variety, serve these to your family.

CHERRY PIE
Combine 1 cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, and 3 tablespoons flour. Add 4 cups cherries, 1-2 teaspoon almond flavoring, and 1-2 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Fill pie with mixture, then cover with crust. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) 15 minutes, lower temperature to 350 degrees Fahrenheit and bake 30 to 40 minutes.

DATE-PINEAPPLE PIE
Stone 1 package of dates and cut into small pieces. Put 1-2 cup sugar, 2 egg yolks, 1 cup sweet milk, 3 tablespoons flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, and 2 tablespoons melted butter in top of double boiler. Cook until thickened. Then add 1 small can crushed pineapple (the juice having been drained off), 1-2 cup chopped walnut meats, dates, and 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Cook 3 minutes longer so ingredients are thoroughly blended and remove from fire. When cool, put in individual

New King The Perfect Example Of Bulldog Grit Overcoming Many Obstacles—A Real Success Story

By ROGER D. GREENE
NEW YORK, Dec. 11 (AP)—Britain's new king "Bertie," who likes to knit and can cast an iron plate in a smelting factory, steps into the world spotlight today as a perfect example of bulldog grit overcoming terrific obstacles.

He had a brooding inferiority-complex. He was wretchedly thin. He couldn't make friends—just couldn't "warm up."

He excelled at nothing. Nobody noticed him, in a room or a crowd. Shy, he simply didn't "register."

Even now, at the glittering climax of his "success story," he gets the job only because his brother gave it up.

But down the years, doomed to under-study his glamorous brother, in his quiet, self-effacing way he perfected his role with a dogged courage that must command admiration.

Self-Made
Today, at the pinnacle, he has beaten the odds. If ever a man was self-made, the record shows it is Albert Frederick Arthur George, Edward—"king of God"—and King Edward—"king of Great Britain, Ireland and the dominions beyond the seas," king defender of the emperor of India. . . .

The story has few dazzling chapters. Albert, in the best British tradition, "muddled through."

He didn't stand out. During the World War, he saw action aboard the battleship Collingwood, at the battle of Jutland. After the smoke of battle cleared, all the officer in charge could recall about him was: "Oh, yes, I remember—he made cocoa as usual for me and the gun crew."

He was a studious type, but never a scholar; a hard-playing all-around athlete, but never outstanding.

Today, the tall, grave-mannered second of George V can look back on victory over all "bogeys."

He has trumped the inferiority complex to a point where he is perfectly at ease, level-gazed, commanding.

He stutters only occasionally. He is by far the most physically fit of the four royal brothers. He has learned to make friends. By grinding perseverance, he has become an excellent horseman, a crack shot, a strong swimmer, excellent tennis player.

And although Edward always received the publicity as the world's best royal golfer, if Edward would have to give him a couple of strokes, Edward's handicap is 11; Albert's has been newly-reduced to nine.

Finally, the crowning touch for the "understudy"—the son nobody noticed much today has the eyes of the entire world upon him.

Success story—he is the king!

SOME FISH STORY! BUT CARVETH WELLS CLAIMS IT'S TRUE

Ever hear about the fish that understand their own names in Spanish, will come when called, jump out of the water on a rock, permit themselves to be stroked and scratched, and munch dry biscuits while lying in the open air? Sounds like a tall fish story, but it's true, as Carveth Wells will tell radio listeners Sunday in the Continental Oil company's broadcast, "Exploring America with Conoco and Carveth Wells," which will feature Florida—"one of America's most fascinating playgrounds."

"To most people," says the famous explorer and radio star, "the name Florida at once suggests a winter playground with bathing beaches, golf links, big game fishing and palatial hotels." But this region's history is just as interesting as its all-year resorts are inviting, according to Wells, who will review the exciting episodes in Florida's exploration and development under 10 flags, in addition to describing the numerous attractions of "America's Tropics de Luxe."

High School Games On Air

Football fans who are following the Texas high school teams in the state football championship race will have a choice of four quarter-final games to hear over the radio Saturday afternoon, December 12, as 11 Texas stations will broadcast the games from the four different fields. Magnolia Petroleum company is the sponsor for play-by-play broadcasts of these critical contests.

All the Dallas, Fort Worth and other North Texas teams who have given North Side, Fort Worth and Gainesville their places in the quarter-finals will have the chance to hear the play-by-play broadcast from TCU stadium through KTAT, Fort Worth, and KRLD, Dallas. The Amarillo-Abilene game at Abilene will be broadcast through KGKL, San Angelo, KGNC, Amarillo, and KGKO, Wichita Falls, for the benefit of the entire West Texas territory represented by these teams. Runners-up and previous contestants in Districts 9, 10, 11 and 12, and their supporters, will have the opportunity to hear Lufkin and Keoville battle in the quarter-finals in a broadcast from Waco over four stations: KGKB, Tyler; WACO, Waco; KTTA, San Antonio, and KNOW, Austin. HORNED FROGS STOP IN OAKLAND

OAKLAND, Calif., Dec. 11 (AP)—Football players of Texas Christian university arrived here shortly after midnight today en route to San Francisco and their game Saturday with Santa Clara.

The Horned Frogs, determined to break the Bronco record as the only undefeated and untied major team in the country, rolled in by train from Fresno where they held a light workout.

COSDEN PROGRAM

With an augmented orchestra of 17 pieces, the Cosden Traffic Cop program goes on the air Saturday in a program calculated to please lovers of every style of music, from the hottest "swing" to the most beautiful symphonic selection. The Higher Octaves will open the program with "It's No Fun," Ted doing the vocal. "Prissy" will solo in "Love Marches On." Those Harmonizin' Humming Birds will sing "Lost In A Fog" and "You Dropped Me Like A Red Hot Penny," and Lee will sing with the Humming Birds in "Chapel In The Moonlight." The Higher Octaves will play a rumblying Rhumba, "Just Mention Joe" from "Calling All Stars" and their own beautiful symphonic interpretation of "Half of Me."

Due to the absence of Cy Leard who is in San Francisco covering the T.C.U.-Santa Clara game, the weekly football review will be handled by Ken Douglas who will give results of state high school championship games and a telegraphic review of the T.C.U.-Santa Clara game, the weekly football review will be handled by Ken Douglas who will give results of state high school championship games and a telegraphic review of the T.C.U.-Santa Clara game.

Reading And Writing

By John Selby

Although at the time this is written W. E. Woodward's "A New American History" has not yet been published, it is perfectly easy to see that its author will have to take a critical beating, no matter on which side of the social fence the reviewer has his wigwag. The Marxists, seclusion folk, will object to Mr. Woodward's frequent levity, even when this is pointed and thoroughly amusing. A fairly long acquaintance with communistic writing proves to me that the one universal lack in that group is a sense of humor.

And the orthodox historians will object because Mr. Woodward has written his book on the theory that what really has motivated our nation since its roots were somewhat roughly laid in the soil by England long ago is an economic theory and various protests against it. Some of these may also think Mr. Woodward dances too often in the market place.

The book is unquestionably the most entertaining American history we have. There is no good reason why the human side of history should not be written; there is no good reason, for example, why a historian should not say that the belief that Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was the "torch that fired the conflagration of the Civil War" is erroneous, and then describe the utter ignorance of the negro and the south, and the mystical monkey business that created the book.

There is also no reason why Mr. Woodward should not re-evaluate our presidents to suit himself, provided he does not escape the frame of justice. It seems to me that usually he does not, and that occasionally, as in the case of Lincoln, he does. One can hardly speak of Lincoln's "peasant brand of intellect, with its simple syllogisms" in one paragraph, and in the next paragraph declare him "astrewed and subtle" and full of "subtle maneuvers."

The advantage Mr. Woodward has is a vast appreciation of the value of incident in determining character and event. His picture of Coolidge seeing a man catch a trout in his stream and sending a man out to take it away from the poacher is a perfect example. Anybody has a right to his choice of the daily life of a historical character, tells as much as the state archives. Perhaps more.

"A New American History," by W. E. Woodward (Farrar & Rinehart).

Christmas Party Is Given For New Idea Members and Guests

Mrs. Grover Cunningham was hostess for a clever Christmas party Thursday afternoon when she entertained for the New Idea Sewing Club members and three guests at her home.

After the sewing session the women were invited into the dining room where the table was laid for luncheon. An Italian cut work cloth covered the table and a brightly decorated tree was the centerpiece. A gift for each one present was placed on the tree with streamers leading to the place card and with a pull each found her Christmas remembrance. Other seasonal symbols were placed about in the table to add to the yuletide spirit.

Guests were Mrs. Homer McNew, Mrs. Shine Phillips and Mrs. W. W. Inkman. Members present included Mrs. Adams Talley, Mrs. Lee Hanson, Mrs. M. E. Ooley, Mrs. Victor Flewelling, Mrs. Fred Stephens, Mrs. George Garrette, Mrs. M. K. House and the hostess.

Mrs. C. W. Cunningham will entertain for the club when they resume the meetings in the new year.

TO CONVENTION
Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Boykin plan to leave tomorrow for San Antonio where they will attend the state hotel men's convention to be held in that city on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. They will also pay a short visit to Mrs. Boykin's mother in Rochelle.

Brushers, Mrs. L. S. Enner, Mrs. Nell Thornton and Mrs. Viola McCormick, a guest.

Music Study Club Entertains For Friends With First Social Gathering At Settles

Members of the Music Study club were hosts Thursday evening to their friends for an evening's entertainment of music and reading followed by a general social gathering in the Settles hotel ballroom. The guests were received by Mrs. G. C. Schurman, Mrs. J. H. Kirkpatrick, Miss Elsie Willis, Mrs. Roy Carter, Mrs. Anne Gibson Houser and Miss Lucille Rix. After registration the following program was presented:

Greeting, Mrs. G. C. Schurman. Vocal selections, E. B. Bethel, "The Other Wise Man" (A Christmas story), W. T. Strange, guest. Piano solo, Miss Virginia Lois Ogden.

Vocal trio, Mrs. Willard Read, Mrs. R. E. Blount and Miss Ruby Bell.

At the refreshment hour Mrs. Clyde Angel and Mrs. P. W. Malone presided at the tea table, beautifully laid with Irish linen cutwork and centered with a mound of chrysanthemums. On either end green candles burned in silver candleabra which matched the coffee and tea service.

Those who registered were Mrs. Raymond Winn, Mrs. Robert Schermerhorn, Mrs. Walter Brough-

Christmas Program, Address and Business Discussion Feature West Ward P-TA Meet

West Ward Parent-Teacher association yesterday held the Christmas program, heard Rev. C. A. Bickley speak on "Friendliness" and completed plans for the organization's project and Christmas donations.

The meeting was opened with a sing-song led by Mrs. C. W. Watson and after a prayer, pupils of Mrs. H. H. Rutherford and Mrs. T. A. Stephens, who compose the rhythm band, offered several selections. This was followed by singing of Christmas songs given by the students of Mrs. Bill Gage and Miss Dorothy Driver. Joyce Clardy and Winelle Wilkinson read pieces pertaining to the holiday activities. Rev. Bickley interpreted the meaning of friendliness and gave the advantages of constructive cooperation through better relationship of people.

To Buy Radio
At the business meeting the group agreed to postpone the purchasing of schoolground equipment in favor of securing a radio for the school. They also appointed a committee to arrange for baskets of food, gifts and other necessities to be given to needy families whose children are students in this school.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. R. D. McMillan, Mrs. T. B. McGinnis, Mrs. I. S. McIntosh, Mrs. Raymond Winn, Mrs. L. R. Slaughter, Mrs. G. C. Potts, Mrs. L. W. $72,000 DAMAGE IN WICHITA FALLS FIRE

WICHITA FALLS, Dec. 11 (AP)—Fanned by a brisk, north wind, a $72,000 fire destroyed the Southwest Feed Mills property here at 1 o'clock Friday morning. J. C. Mytinger, president of the company, said the plant was last appraised at approximately $80,000, and that the stock was estimated at $12,000.

WHY PUT UP WITH PIMPLES, WRINKLES AND A SALLOW SKIN?

So many women throw their charm and beauty away—look years older than they are—because they neglect common constipation. They forget that badly balanced meals, over a period of years, can change how they look and feel.

Often their menus lack the "bulk" needed for regular habits. Then constipation, the beauty-killer, sets in. Other effects may be headaches, listlessness, sleeplessness.

Get "bulk" back into your meals with a delicious cereal: Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It absorbs moisture within the body, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the system.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily, either as a cereal or in cooked dishes. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Try it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Breakfast On Christmas Morning Should Be Occasion Of Merry-Making As Preamble Of The Day

By MARTHA LOGAN

That late Christmas morning breakfast strikes the keynote of Christmas day. It should be an occasion of real merry-making and should become one of the cherished memories of every Christmas morning.

With disregard for formalities the Christmas breakfast is the meal where every member of the family and each guest may feel that the real spirit of Christmas is set free.

Such a breakfast begins, of necessity, with fruit. It is winter, but only on the calendar, for what a choice do oranges, grapefruit, grapes, apples and bananas offer! Fruit juices, too, fresh or canned, are sparkling and tempting in their cool deliciousness. A steaming hot cereal, with plenty of cream and brown sugar, should follow the fruit course. And after the cereal, a number of delightful breakfast dishes may follow. Ham and eggs, fried to a delicious turn, are one of the best choices on a cold winter morning. Either pan-broil or ovenbroil ham slices, and if you cook them slowly they will be marvelous because of their tenderness and flavor.

Broiled Ham Slices
Select slices of ham one-fourth to three-fourths inch thick. Trim the rind and lean edges and cut fat into several pieces to prevent curling. To pan-broil, put the slices into an unheated skillet, slightly greased with a little of the fat from the ham, and cook slowly over a moderately low heat until done, allowing eight minutes to a side for a slice one-fourth inch thick, ten minutes to a side for a slice one-half inch thick, and twelve minutes to a side for a slice three-fourths inch thick. To oven-broil the slices, remove the broiler rack and pan from the oven and heat the broiling oven to a moderate temperature (350 degrees F.). Then place the slices on the cold rack and place the pan and rack in the oven so that the top of the ham is three and one-half inches below the flame or heating element. Turn flame up to 500 degrees F. Broil for the same length of time to each side as is specified for pan-broiling the slices.

Eggs may appear in so many other ways than fried—as omelets, either large or in individual size, brown and golden, puffed, served with canned figs, with orange slices, with grapefruit sprinkled with sugar, or with a little jam folded in. Especially intriguing to the eye and promising to the palate is a surprise omelet, an omelet seasoned and beaten to a degree of perfection, and then made superlative with some tangy bacon or crisp and piping hot sausages. I must stop to give you my favorite recipe for a delicious and easy way to make Cheese Omelet:

Cheese Omelet
Make white sauce of 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon salt, and 1-3 teaspoon pepper. Add 4 egg yolks beaten until light. Fold in 4 egg whites beaten until stiff. Melt 1 tablespoon shortening in frying pan, and when hot, turn in the egg mixture. Put into lower part of hot oven (225 degrees F.) until well puffed up. Then put on top shelf to brown lightly. Spread 6 tablespoons finely shredded cheese over omelet. Fold and

'Human Mole' Digs Under Prison Walls; Caught Emerging

Fred Turner (left), Missouri penitentiary convict, spent 64 days tunneling from his cellhouse to what he hoped would be freedom outside the prison wall, but guards met him as he emerged. He started digging Oct. 4. Deputy Warden Tom Scott is shown emerging from the tunnel, as Warden J. M. Sanders looks on. Two fellow convicts supplied Turner with food and blankets. U.S. May Lose Gold Flecked Dust In Mint

Old San Francisco Coining Plant Soon Will Be Abandoned

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11. (UP) With the new United States mint rapidly nearing completion, a peculiar question has arisen as to what is to be done with the old building that has served for generations.

The only unsolved problem is the simple one of gold.

The old mint where gold coins have been minted by the million is known to be permeated with gold dust. That gold dust belongs to the federal government. The problem is how to dispose of the old building without giving away all of Uncle Sam's gold that is known to have filtered into the ancient beams and seams and crevices and almost every square inch of the interior.

Gold Dust Everywhere
The extent to which the old building is permeated with gold dust is indicated by several experiences that have occurred in the past. At one time a janitor performed the strange task of wiping the dust off a transom. The dust was processed and $100 worth of gold was extracted.

On another occasion the mint superintendent placed a new rug in his office. The old rug was cleaned before it was thrown into the rag pile and a total of $200 in excess of the cost of the new rug was extracted.

Gold is known to cling to the cloths and shoes of the workers. Gold dust is known to filter through the air. Gold collects in corners and on the face of the woodwork.

In fact, it is believed, that if the old mint could be taken, tossed into a big kettle and given a thorough boiling there would be enough gold found in the bottom of the kettle to make the pot of gold that usually is supposed to lie at the end of the rainbow look like a penny savings bank.

Mint Of Massive Timbers
Unfortunately, the old mint, which was constructed with ideas of solidity far exceeding those employed in the construction of a prison or a penitentiary, isn't exactly the lightweight class that could easily be tossed into a kind of a refining plant.

However, one thing seems to be serve at once. A cheese that melts easily is best to use.

Then there are scrambled eggs and bacon—an old idea but how new when shredded dried beef is added to the eggs. Use plenty of cream and butter and much parsley, salt and pepper, of course. Have the toast golden brown all buttered, ready to be covered with these creamy scrambled eggs and surrounded with curls of crisp bacon.

Sausage must be mentioned again, for what is better when the snow flies and the frost tingles in the air, than good sausage with fried apple rings? Or baked apples stuffed with sausage? And then there is that ever popular combination of pork sausages with griddle cakes, baked on a griddle high, with butter and brown sugar or maple syrup between, cut into wedges like a pie and eaten with more syrup. Remember plenty of butter and syrup. And here is a recipe for some delicious golden brown corn meal griddle cakes:

Corn Meal Griddle Cakes
Sift one cup of flour, add 1 cup of corn meal, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon salt, and sift again. Combine 1 egg well beaten, 2 cups sour milk, and 4 tablespoons shortening (melted). Add to flour mixture. Stir until blended. Bake on hot, greased griddle.

If one wants to try out the new waffle iron, waffles may be readily made at the table and eaten "hot off the waffle griddle." Here again one may choose from ham bacon, or sausage for all are wonderfully good with waffles.

The Christmas dinner is a great feast but this holiday breakfast, a lesser feast, should have its place in the sun, as pleasant and glowing in anticipation, realization and retrospect as any part of Christmas day. From year to year we may count it an unalloyed delight to be called to breakfast just with the family on Christmas morning.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
"God the Preserver of Man" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, December 31.

The Golden Text is: "Preserve me, O God: for in life do I put my trust." (Psalms 16:1).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: For I am the Lord thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Saviour" (Isaiah 43:2,3).

The lesson-sermon includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The divine mind that made man maintain His own image and likeness" (page 151).

Advocate Cut In Crop Land Agencies Favor Reduction Below Average For 1928 To 1932

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (AP) A survey by four government farm agencies recommended today a reduction in harvester crop lands of from 15,000,000 to 50,000,000 acres below the 1928-32 average.

Any attempt to expand farm cultivation to the 365,000,000-acre average of those years, it said, "would result in a sharp decrease in agricultural income so long as the level of domestic purchasing power and foreign demand does not exceed that which is probable in the next few years."

Some increase in farm products hard hit by drought, however, was viewed as wise.

Federal farm programs and droughts which reduced farm production from $5,400,000,000 in 1932 to an estimated $9,200,000,000 this year.

Reduction in a period of industrial improvement, the survey said, boosted

WOULD HAVE GARNER JOIN PRESIDENT FOR INAUGURATION RITES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (AP) Vice President Garner probably will be inaugurated in the senate chamber, as usual, although a proposal has been made to the committee in charge that he be sworn in with the president on the front steps of the capitol.

The usual procedure in the past has been for the vice president to take his oath before the senate just before the inauguration of the president on March 4. It was suggested that this year, with the change in the date of inauguration, the president and vice president be sworn in in the same ceremony.

While Garner has taken no action on the proposal, he has disclosed he is opposed to any change. His wishes probably will govern and he will be inaugurated as usual at his desk in the senate chamber.

BEFORE THE REMEDY CAN BE APPLIED

In declaring the 30-hour week to be "the paramount objective of the labor movement," the convention of the American Federation of Labor at Tampa committed itself to the attainment of that objective in a more definite way than before. Most Americans, we believe, are in sympathy with the general idea. It does not follow, however, that the problem of unemployment, for which the 30-hour week is presumed to be the solution, is going to be readily solved in any such way.

The New York Post points out some of the difficulties in the way of applying that solution. First, it says, we must know how many employable jobless persons there are; we must know what kind of work they can do; we must know how they are distributed geographically, how many of them are victims of seasonal trends, how many the victims of technological developments. There is no authentic data on these points. The estimates of the number of unemployed vary very widely. The country is going to have to find out a great many things that it doesn't know, about unemployment, before it can commit itself to any formula for remedy.

It is known that there is a serious shortage of skilled labor in some industries. A 30-hour week in such industries might be disastrous to both labor and capital. Undoubtedly there are among the unemployed many whose earning power has been lessened, if not destroyed, by technological changes. The problem of finding something that such workers can do, of adjusting their lives to changed conditions, must be solved and the 30-hour week will not even begin to solve it.

There is no panacea for unemployment. The 30-hour week, judiciously adopted in some industries, would be a great help. To attempt to apply it indiscriminately, without any regard to conditions, could do more harm than good. — (Wichita Times).

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—It was a gusty day in Manhattan, gales of wind howling across the harbor and causing the waterfront to fret and sigh. For once the gulls were tired of wheeling and huddled in the lee of the ferry-slips. The mournful wail of an ambulance siren drifted across the steel-girt city, brushing against the skyscrapers and seeping in under windows and doors.

It was at this moment that I cancelled an interview with the skipper of a whaling vessel and opened a book that, between then and midnight, was to acquaint me with scores of diverting characters, romantic divas and international jewel-thieves...adventurers whose bones lie scattered from here to Scholapur.

Seen By Roaming Writer

This was the diary of a foreign correspondent who moved with the seasons from Aix-les-Bains to Monte Carlo to London in the days when Caruso was alive and Sarajevo was just a name on a map.

Melba, for instance, liked to shock her public by giving interviews in bed... After becoming freed from an annoying "entanglement," Caruso triumphantly explained: "I am not a singaire; I am a bachelaire..." One day in Paris the editor of a paper was startled to see a curious fellow "who spoke with an accent but claimed to be an American" enter his office... He was a magician, he said; quite a good one. He would be glad to give an entertainment in return for a little publicity... That was the man the world now remembers as Harry Houdini.

Mary Garden in those days "was a sort of chrysalis" from which the fascinating personality we know was later to emerge... At that time she was singing "Louise" in the Opera Comique... A. J. "Tony" Drexel was in London and distinguishing himself by chasing down four-alarm fires in a top hat... Sir W. S. Gilbert could not appear in public without being widely applauded.

Where They Gathered

A favorite gathering place for writers was the Pilgrims' club, and Rudyard Kipling was frequently there. Also Conan Doyle and Hall Caine, who looked like "a bust of Shakespeare"... G. K. Chesterton, "a great tub of a man who never seemed comfortable in his dress suit," was another of the literati who enjoyed the humor of the Pilgrims' council chambers, as was James M. Barrie, whom James Gordon Bennett once attempted to lure into a literary contest... Bennett wanted sensational stuff for his papers and he guaranteed the playwright $25,000 if he won, $10,000 if he lost... Barrie, in a rage, advised Bennett to go-you-know-where!

Henry Irving, Ellen Terry, Lilly Langtry, Austin Breton (who was Irving's Boswell), Duse, the Grand Duke Cyril (now Czar of all the Russias), all pass in review, spilling anecdotes and rosemary for remembrance.

So, one comes back to the New York of the present, wondering whether the Cornells and the Hayeses of now will intrigue future gadabouts as the Duses and the Langtrys do us today.

Furore over Simpson affair laid to war fever.
 Moves to keep out foreign capital expected.
 Loydas frightened by destructiveness of airplanes.
 But authorities doubt war will come in year.

Temper
 WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Ridiculous aspects of the Simpson affair have impressed statesmen here. How anything like that could have occurred in a major nation supposed to be as calm and firm as the rock of Gibraltar is something they cannot understand.

Ten years ago, they say, the matter would have been handled summarily, without such a public display.

The answer suggested by one official, recently returned from abroad, goes deeper than popular conception of the situation. It is this:
 The fever of a majority of people in England is running at wartime temperature. It is even more pronounced in other nations of Europe. They only thing they seem to be interested in is armaments. They get that idea from statesmen at the top. Anything old, such as customs or ideals, are secondary to immediate necessities, such as govern their lives in war times. The only really important thing is guns, guns, guns. They think guns will make them safe.

Gold-action
 The interpretation is tremendously important to the United States, not because it indicates war but because of present economic effect. It means those gold imports which were worrying President Roosevelt so much before he went to South America are not going to diminish and probably will increase. With all Europe in its present state of mind, there is no logical place for investment to go, except into the United States, where comparative security is offered.

A very good reason exists for suspecting that the authorities here have consequently decided to approach Britain and invite her to take some action to restrict the export of her capital to this country. It may not be done openly. Such things seldom are. But there are ways for Treasury Secretary Morgenthau to communicate with foreign officials outside official channels.

Such a step would offer much better possibilities than amending the capital gains tax or putting new domestic tax on foreign investments. One competent authority says a tax was tried once and resulted in 80 per cent evasions.

Gun Range
 Loydas reason for banning further insurance against war damage is the same as is causing secret concern in every war office in the world, the airplane.
 Technical improvements in war planes are coming so fast that professional war makers, as well as insurance adjusters, have had to revise their plans constantly. No one knows where the improvements will stop. Old conceptions of the relative value of men, ships, guns are being changed daily. Old limited fighting zones have been expanded limitlessly. Places formerly considered remote from danger have become vulnerable. The destructive effect of bombings of Madrid is said to have frightened Loydas managers, who envisioned what could possibly be done to London.

However, you may have noticed Loydas is still continuing anti-war insurance on the high seas. Apparently the managers did not fear an immediate war as much as the devastating possibilities of the airplane, if there is a war.
 The authorities here are some what skittish about what will happen next April, when the thaw sets in along the Russian border in the Far East, but they are still banking on war next year.

Dissatisfaction
 Some talk is heard about Chester Davis resigning from the federal reserve board and taking Redford Tugwell's vacated job as under secretary of agriculture. It may not work out that way. M. L. Wilson, now an assistant secretary, seems to be the first choice.
 It is not yet known on the outside, but Davis offered to resign during the presidential campaign.

O. K. with FRANCE
 PARIS, Dec. 10. (UP)—Officials stated today that France received news "of the end of the British crisis" with "extreme satisfaction," viewing it as "the best possible solution."

SEES REGULATION OF HOLDING FIRMS FOR THE RAILROADS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (UP)—Disclosure that the interstate commerce commission was following the senate railroad financing investigation brought a prediction today from Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) of possible federal regulation of railroad holding companies. These holding companies—the means used by the late Van Sweringen brothers to knit together a 23,000-mile transportation system—are not subject to supervision by any government agency, said the chairman of the investigating committee. His testimony, he added, will be turned over to the interstate commerce commission for further study.

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

Chapter Three
TERRY ASKS A QUESTION
 Sally was soon so busy she forgot everything but her work. A few minutes before one the phone rang and Sally, answering in her newly acquired business-voice, was greeted with a hearty laugh from Terry Maynard.

"Not an item for the paper," said Terry. "Will you have lunch with me in ten minutes?"

"Of course. I was just wondering where and when I'd have it."

"Good. There's something important I want to ask you."

"You mustn't ask me important things at lunch. She was alarmed whenever Terry hinted at important questions. She was not ready for him to ask her to marry him, but she liked knowing that he disappointment. "Listen, Sally, this is what I wanted to ask you—will you go with me to Greensboro Thursday night while I talk to old Cates? Will you, Sally? I can talk him into anything if you're along."

"Oh, Terry—? Sally, remembering her promise that morning was swept by depression as swift as Terry's.

"You won't do it, then," Terry gloomed at her, hurt and angry. "You don't care whether I get the job or not."

"You don't understand. I promised Mother—"

"Oh, hang! What's the matter with her, now? Does she think I'm going to tailspin with you all the way to Greensboro?"

"It's—It's Tip," said Sally miserably. "She's afraid I'm getting Tip wanted to ask her.

"I promise not to spoil your appetite," said Terry. "Let's celebrate and go to the Lanier—what say?"

"That's extravagant. A drug store would do."

"The Lanier—I'll pick you up in ten minutes."

At one Sally followed the girl reporter, Lola Hopkins, to the small washroom at the back of the building. It was dirty, but Lola didn't seem to mind. While Sally pinned up her hair, Lola splashed about washing her face and rubbing it briskly with a paper towel. When Sally powdered her nose, Lola looked on with some scorn.

"Never use make-up," she said, "unless it's a little powder in hot weather. Never found it improved my looks any."

"They went down the stairs together. "Take you anywhere?" offered Lola.

"Somebody's coming for me," said Sally. "Thanks just the same."

"I get you," said Lola. "Here he is. See you another time."

Terry Maynard was unmistakably heading for Sally. His disreputable old car was panting at the curb.

"Hi there! How does it feel to be a working woman?" Terry called. "Not so loud, Terry," said Sally, who could never calm him down into a semblance of respectability. "I'll let you know when I get my first pay check."

"Well, go on a spree," said Terry. Terry's "Big News"

They went off gaily to the Lanier Hotel. Warrenton's one big hotel and Terry ordered lunch extravagantly.

"At least I'm glad I didn't offer to feed you out of my first pay check," said Sally. "Now tell me what's the news?"

"Big news. You know I wrote to old man Willis Cates who was born in Warrenton and who's all mixed up with this line in South America and asked him for a job?"

"Yes—yes," said Sally breathlessly.

"Well, he's on his way now to New York. He's going to fly through Greensboro Thursday night, and he'll spend his half hour stop-over at the airport with me!"

"What does it mean, Terry, for you?"

"Maybe I can talk him into a job. If I don't—it's the army for me."

"You want to go away, don't you?"

"You're the only thing that's been keeping me," said Terry.

"Don't—now, Terry, please," said Sally.

"All right. I promised not to spoil your appetite, didn't I?" His face lost its good humor and he played with a fork sulkily.

Sally thought how like he was to Kray when something crossed him. She loved him for being boyish and rough—and for being large and blond and unlike the men in her own family. But she was not ready to say she loved him.

"Don't be silly."

"All right," Terry threw off his interested in flying."

"What if you are? Snap out of it, Sally. The kids are big enough to do what they please, now. Show a little will of your own, why don't you?" Terry spoke ferociously.

"Let's," said Sally. "We can't quarrel in here."

Without speaking, they left the hotel and got in the car. When they reached the Courier building, Terry said, "My big news didn't get much of a break."

"Don't, Terry. You know I didn't mean to—"

"If you change your mind about going," said Terry, "you can call me up tomorrow at the airport or the garage. So long."

Without a smile, he got into the car and drove off, leaving Sally staring after him.

Hampered by Her Promise

Work, Sally discovered, cannot absorb all one's thoughts, even though it be interesting. All next morning while she typed and took telephone messages at her desk, she heard those parting words of Terry's: "If you change your mind—"

She did want to go. Of that Sally was sure. She had not been flying with Terry many times, but she trusted him utterly. Besides, Terry had said he needed her to stand by him while he interviewed old Mr. Cates for the South American job. Sally was used to Terry's need for her. Since their high school days when she had helped him with his English and talked him into having confidence in his debating powers, Terry had relied on Sally's advice and support. Sally, in turn, had found a warm excitement in Terry's boyish admiration for her. Her occasional flights with Terry had been a welcome break in the routine of her tedious home duties and the round of village parties.

Always when Sally went up in Terry's plane there was conflict at home. Mrs. Warren had never approved of Terry. She did not think flying a career, and she was alarmed at the interest Tip showed in it. She blamed Sally for the times Tip slipped away and went flying with Duke Adams, a younger boy who worked in the Maynard garage. Useless to explain to Tip that Duke Adams was less skilled and less responsible than Terry Maynard. Because Sally knew Tip was developing a mania for flying, she had impulsively promised her stepmother not to go up herself with Terry, without permission.

Yet it was absurd that Sally Warren, at 22, should not be free to decide things for herself. One moment Sally had her hand on the telephone, ready to call Terry and say she would go up with him. The next instant she would push the phone from her, unable to endure the prospect of another row at home.

Sally risks a family row tomorrow and starts for the airport with Terry Maynard.

Crawford And Gable Starred

Appear in Comedy Romance, 'Love On The Run,' Ritz Sunday

Joan Crawford and Clark Gable, one of the brightest starring combinations of the films, go in for light comedy in their new co-starring picture, "Love On The Run," which plays Sunday and Monday at the Ritz following a midnight showing Saturday night. The story is marked by brightness and gaiety.

The supporting cast includes Franchot Tone, Reginald Owen, Mona Barrie and others.

Miss Crawford, turning from the dramatic role she enacted in "The Gorgeous Hussy," appears in a light role of the American heiress who, on the verge of marrying a nobleman, finds out just in time that he is a swindler rather than her selfish no to her.

In an attempt to escape interviewers, she rushes pell-mell into the arms of Gable playing an American newspaper correspondent, and subsequently finds herself immersed in a series of hairbreadth escapes involving Franchot Tone as a rival reporter, and a pair of clever Continental swindlers.

In the tangled events that follow, Gable captures not only a first rate story for his paper, but also a charming bride.

W. S. Van Dyke, responsible for such pictures as "Rose Marie" and "San Francisco," demonstrates his ability as a director of comedy in his supervision of "Love On The Run."

STARS OF FEATURE AT THE RITZ

Randolph Scott and Binnie Barnes, as they appear in the film version of the popular James Fenimore Cooper novel, "The Last of the Mohicans," which is featured at the Ritz Friday and Saturday. Scott is starred as the heroic Colonial scout, Hawkeye, in this story of early Continental days.

Oregon, Utah, Virginia, Wyoming, white on black; Montana, black on gray; Nevada, blue on silver; New Hampshire, North Dakota, green on white; New Jersey, apple green on black; New Mexico, Navajo red on turquoise blue; New York, black on orange; North Carolina, gold on black; Ohio, South Dakota, maroon on white; Oklahoma, yellow on black; Pennsylvania, gold on blue; Tennessee, Texas, ivory on black; West Virginia, black on national yellow; Wisconsin, white on royal blue.

The District of Columbia's 1937 color combination will be chrome yellow on black; Alaska, white on blue; Hawaii, blue on white; and the Panama Canal Zone, white on green.

In Canada, Alberta will have black on orange; British Columbia, black on cream; Manitoba, white on green; New Brunswick, white on black; Nova Scotia, brown on yellow on black; Ontario, white on military scarlet; Prince Edward Island, black on white; Quebec, white on brown; and Saskatchewan, black on white.

John Wayne Starred In Western Picture At Queen Theatre

The second of John Wayne's new series of western action stories for Republic Pictures comes to the Queen theatre Friday and Saturday. The film is called "Lawless Range."

Hard-riding, gun-toting John Wayne battles a gang of desperadoes who are trying to gain control of a secluded valley by driving out its inhabitants. Wayne hits upon the ingenious idea of concealing a large number of men in a covered wagon and using it as a decoy with only a couple of men guarding it from the outside. When the bandits attack, the hidden men open fire and overwhelm the outlaws.

But Wayne has only partially solved the troubles of the ranchers in the valley. They must drive their cattle to market, but fear attack by the outlaws. John tells them that he will lead the cattle out of the valley, but on the night of the drive, he disappears. How he returns and succeeds in establishing peace in the valley makes the picture's climax. Romance has its share of plot interest, with Sheila Mannors appearing opposite the cowboy star. Other members of the cast include Earl Dwire, Frank McMillan, Jr., Jack Curtis, Yakima Canutt and Wally Brown.

Music is introduced into the picture by a quartet, "The Wranglers," which features cowboy songs.

A western action picture, "Roaring Lead," will be the feature for Friday and Saturday at the Lyric theatre.

Famed Story Of Colonial Days Filmed

'Last Of The Mohicans' To Play At The Ritz Friday And Saturday

About two years ago, two motion picture producers, Harry M. Goetz and Edward Small, dug the old, familiar "Count of Monte Cristo," out of the library shelves and produced it with fidelity for one of the major productions of the year. This season, this same pair are repeating with another familiar classic, "The Last of the Mohicans."

The story that has delighted millions in book form, is delighting more millions as a screen play. The Cooper novel, with its elements of suspense, hairbreadth escapes, the lone scout battling his way through hordes of savage enemies, the chase, the hand-to-hand combat—is accepted as ideal movie material.

"The Last of the Mohicans," a monumental piece of fiction, is brought to life in the screen version. Its chief characters—Hawkeye, Uncas and Magua—are full-blooded characters, and the lesser characters are carefully depicted.

Randolph Scott heads the cast as Hawkeye, the handsome and daring Colonial scout hero of the story, while appearing in important roles are Binnie Barnes, Henry Wilcoxon, Bruce Cabot, Heather Angel, Phillip Reed, Robert Barrat, Hugh Buckler and Willard Robertson.

Highlights in the action melodrama include the defense of Fort William Henry against the French legions; the eleventh hour rescue of the savage Hurons; the barbaric lance of the Indians preparing for battle and the hand-to-hand tomahawk battle to the death between the renegade half-breed and "The Last of the Mohicans."

Black And White Leading Colors For 1937 Motor License Plates

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11. (UP)—Every state will change automobile license plate color combinations for 1937, with the exception of Arizona, according to announcement of the California state automobile association. Arizona still will use its present color scheme of black on copper.

Nineteen states, as well as the District of Columbia, Alaska, and the Canadian provinces of Alberta, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, merely will make next year's plates look different from those of this year by reversing the color scheme.

In all, however, 27 different shades of color will go into the manufacture of 1937 plates in the United States, including Alaska, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, the Panama Canal Zone, and Canada.

The color combinations will be as follows:

Alabama, purple on white; Arizona, black on copper; Arkansas, Maryland, Rhode Island, South Carolina, black on white; California, orange on black; Colorado, Idaho, black on silver; Connecticut, Minnesota, black on aluminum; Delaware, colonial blue on old gold; Florida, white on emerald green; Georgia, blue on orange; Illinois, black on canary yellow; Indiana, old gold on black.

Iowa, Vermont and Washington will use white on blue; Kansas, lemon yellow on black; Kentucky, blue on white; Louisiana, gold on maroon; Maine, Massachusetts, Mississippi, white on green; Michigan, yellow on blue; Missouri,

FAMINE AFTERMATH OF ISLAND FLOODS

MANILA, Dec. 11. (AP)—Famine stalked flood-ravaged Cagayan valley today.

Government officials rushed supplies into death-ridden areas to check hunger and disease. Relief officials asked the government to provide rice and medicine to the Echague sector, Isabela Province where "famine is evident." A relief ship bearing rice and other supplies leaves tomorrow for the stricken valley.

Doctors and nurses who reached parts of the valley by Cagayan river boats were inoculating survivors against typhoid fever and cholera while soldiers buried the dead.

Commonwealth President Manuel Quezon issued an order from China setting aside $500,000 from the government's gasoline fund for flood relief.

With the communication facilities still severed, all authorities said it was impossible to even estimate the number of dead. All agreed casualties and damage would be "considerable."

Mrs. R. L. Minter, who accompanied Mrs. J. L. Prichard here from Fort Worth, will return to her home Friday afternoon.

TIME EXTENSIONS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (AP)—The interstate commerce commission gave the Gulf and West Texas Railway company an extension of time today to March 31, 1937, to complete construction of a line of railroad from Fredericksburg, Texas, to Brady, Texas.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (AP)—The Texas and New Orleans Railroad company was given an extension of time to Dec. 18, 1937, by the interstate commerce commission today to make an offer to acquire the properties of the Fredericksburg and Northern Railway company.

APPLICATION FOR RADIO WITHDRAWN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (UP)—The communications commission said today the Gulf Broadcasting company, Corpus Christi, Texas, had withdrawn its application for a new radio station. Oral argument on a favorable examiner's report set for today was cancelled.

The commission said the application had been abandoned in favor of KGGT, an existing station on the same frequency, operating on 1,330 kilocycles.

FA'S SON-IN-LAW

"If you change your mind about going," said Terry, "you can call me up tomorrow at the airport or the garage. So long."

Without a smile, he got into the car and drove off, leaving Sally staring after him.

Hampered by Her Promise

Work, Sally discovered, cannot absorb all one's thoughts, even though it be interesting. All next morning while she typed and took telephone messages at her desk, she heard those parting words of Terry's: "If you change your mind—"

She did want to go. Of that Sally was sure. She had not been flying with Terry many times, but she trusted him utterly. Besides, Terry had said he needed her to stand by him while he interviewed old Mr. Cates for the South American job. Sally was used to Terry's need for her. Since their high school days when she had helped him with his English and talked him into having confidence in his debating powers, Terry had relied on Sally's advice and support. Sally, in turn, had found a warm excitement in Terry's boyish admiration for her. Her occasional flights with Terry had been a welcome break in the routine of her tedious home duties and the round of village parties.

Always when Sally went up in Terry's plane there was conflict at home. Mrs. Warren had never approved of Terry. She did not think flying a career, and she was alarmed at the interest Tip showed in it. She blamed Sally for the times Tip slipped away and went flying with Duke Adams, a younger boy who worked in the Maynard garage. Useless to explain to Tip that Duke Adams was less skilled and less responsible than Terry Maynard. Because Sally knew Tip was developing a mania for flying, she had impulsively promised her stepmother not to go up herself with Terry, without permission.

Yet it was absurd that Sally Warren, at 22, should not be free to decide things for herself. One moment Sally had her hand on the telephone, ready to call Terry and say she would go up with him. The next instant she would push the phone from her, unable to endure the prospect of another row at home.

ANTILYNCHING LAW IS SOUGHT BY GOPs

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (UP)—A determined drive to obtain antilynching legislation at the next congress was planned today by senate republican leaders in a move to recapture the potent negro-vote of the north.

Disturbed by evidence of wholesale desertions by negro voters in the last election, the republicans decided on the antilynching move as the mostly likely to regain for the party the strength it once held with the negro race.
