Head Start to take applications
 PAMPA — Head Start will be accepting applications from 8 a.m.-4 p.m. July 17-21 at Community Day Care Center Head Start, 400 N. Faulkner. Children 4-years-old on or before September first of the current school year are eligible to apply for the child development program. To apply, bring the following: Child's birth certificate; child's Social Security card; child's immunization records; child's documentation of disability, if applicable; two-months income verification (check stubs, tax forms, etc.); and proof of any public assistance (WIC, Medicaid, etc.) For more information, call 669-3264.

City keeps up mosquito battle
 Another round of mosquito spraying will start after dark Sunday and continue nightly through the week, said Public Service Supt. Kimberly Lincycomb. Extra effort is being done to kill the night-feeding bugs as day feeder numbers are down. Residents can help ease the bug problem by emptying anything that holds stagnant water including buckets and old tires. A higher concentration of pesticide will be used this week and spraying will be in the alleys. Anyone who does not want their area sprayed should call 669-5760 ext. 3.

Pampa may get VA outpatient clinic

By NANCY YOUNG
 Managing Editor

Pampa is being considered for a community-based outpatient clinic with the Veterans Administration.

Bob Dixon, local Veterans Service Officer, said, if approved, the clinic would serve veterans within a 50-mile radius of Pampa, and would include veterans who live in the communities of Wheeler, Shamrock, Perryton, Borger, Stinnett, McLean, Lefors, and Canadian.

He said the clinics would provide medical care on an out-patient basis to those veterans who qualify for it. It is the goal of the VA to be able to provide medical care to all veterans within at least a 50-mile radius, he said.

Kaye Green, who is in charge of Strategic Plan Overview in the VA Health Care System, said the proposal is still in the planning stages in the network strategic plan.

Green said former veterans service officer John Triplehorn contacted her two-three years ago requesting an outpatient clinic for veterans be established in Pampa. She said it has been in the planning stages since then.

She said she will write a proposal to be submitted to the regional office of the VA Health Care System in Mesa, Ariz. If the Arizona office approves the request, the request must be approved by the headquarters in Washington, D.C. The U. S. Congress must then give final approval.

Green said while such proposals usually are not disapproved, the final approval of the establishment of a CBOC in Pampa has not been finally determined and must go through the government process. It is dependent upon budgetary considerations.

Green said there are 2,300 veterans in Gray County.

Triplehorn said Pampa would be an ideal location for one of the community-based outpatient clinics. He said it is centrally located for the many veterans in the areas adjacent to Pampa. He said Pampa would be in a position to attract more residents to move to the Pampa community because of the availability of VA medical care to a large number of veterans in the area. Local restaurants and merchants would also benefit.

Triplehorn said officials at the Pampa Regional Medical Center have responded very positively and have cooperated in the efforts to obtain a CBOC in Pampa.

Tirelessly pushing for the clinic to be established locally, Triplehorn said the clinic could serve the entire top of the Texas Panhandle and Oklahoma Panhandle. He said while Pampa is number one on the list for the location of a CBOC, the funding must also be approved for the medical project. Both Green and Triplehorn said they believe that consideration would be in October, 2000.

He said he has been in contact with U.S. Congressman Mac Thornberry numerous times about the project, and Thornberry is supporting the effort to locate the clinic in Pampa.

Triplehorn said the last time he talked with Green about the project, she told him the clinic could be established as soon as Jan. 2001. However, Green said the opening would probably not be opened before October, 2001, if all stages of the project are completed.

Rodeo lover ends attendance streak

Something was missing at this year's Top O' Texas Rodeo. Alice Ingram Gray wasn't in her customary seat in Box 8 and it was the first Pampa rodeo she's missed in 60 years.

Mrs. Gray, 87, is a patient at Coronado Healthcare Center where she has lived since being released from the hospital after suffering a fall in her home.

And because she's unable to attend the rodeo, on Thursday a touch of rodeo came to her when Miss Rodeo Top O' Texas Jaimie Reed and others paid a visit.

Mrs. Gray, who was the first sponsor of the barrel race, was a noted horsewoman in the 1930s and 40s. She is co-owner and co-executor of the Ingram estate which consists of farms and ranches in Gray and Roberts County.

She has two sons, Lee Y. Cockrell of Panhandle and G.O. 'Buddy' Cockrell of Pampa.

Besides being a familiar figure in her box seat, over the years she had participated in the rodeo as a contestant and a director.

Her interest in rodeos was certainly passed down to sons Lee and

Officials seek storm shelter spots for public

Pampa emergency management officials are looking for places to shelter the public if the city is threatened by severe weather.

"We want to see if there is anyone with a facility that's tornado survivable that they would be willing to open to the general public," said Ken Hall, Pampa Emergency Management Coordinator.

"It will take a big commitment on somebody's part," he said. "There will have to be someone there with a key to open the building and someone to stay there and manage until everyone is gone."

Also, he said, more than one such facility is needed, preferably in the north, central and south parts of the city, respectively.

Hall said that the Gray County Area chapter of the American Red Cross would assume liability for the facility owner. Red Cross workers would also be present to help manage the situation as needed, he said.

"An ideal location would be a single level facility with a big basement," he said. "Some two-story buildings would probably be okay."

Hall said anyone wishing to offer a building they own for this purpose can contact him at the Emergency Management office, 669-5820.

"We will come out and evaluate the building and discuss our needs with them," he said.

Hiring on Lefors ISD agenda

LEFORS — Key employee positions with the Lefors Independent School District are to be considered by the board of trustees at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 20, in the elementary school library.

Board members plan to consider hiring a head football/athletic director, head girl's basketball coach, business teacher and Spanish teacher at this week's meeting.

Also listed on the agenda are consideration of school property insurance, Region XVI contracts, and the 2000-2001 budget.

Financial matters to be heard include current billings, cash position of the district, a tax collection report and budget amendments.

Other agenda items are an executive session and superintendent's report.

It's parade time ...

There was lots of hustle and bustle Saturday morning as rodeo parade participants got ready to roll. Kountry the clown was busy getting the Shriner's float ready while Terry DeArmond of Dumas was mounted up on her Arabian gelding Chance. DeArmond was with a group of other riders from the Crown of Texas Arabian Club in Amarillo. All their costumes are hand made.

Boy in wreck critical with head injuries

A boy who was critically injured Thursday in an accident near Kingsmill has been identified by Department of Public Safety officials as Cuyler Sought, age 12. His address was still unknown late Friday, but investigating officers believe he is related to Tabitha Whittington of Amarillo, another passenger in the vehicle he was riding in. The boy was reported to be in critical condition in the pediatric intensive care unit at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo Saturday after undergoing extensive surgery for massive head injuries Thursday night.

News in brief ...

Big Tobacco optimistic despite landmark $145 billion verdict

MIAMI (AP) — Hit with the biggest jury verdict in U.S. history, the nation's top five cigarette makers remained hopeful they won't have to pay the full amount of the staggering $145 billion penalty to sick Florida smokers.

"There's probably not a country in the world that can withstand a verdict this size," said Philip Morris Inc. attorney Dan Webb, whose company on Friday was ordered to pay $73.96 billion. Defendants were confident that either the judge will gut the award or the entire case will be overturned on appeal.

Jurors took less than five hours to reach the decision following a two-year class-action trial covering 300,000 to 700,000 smokers.

They also ordered R.J. Reynolds to pay $36.28 billion, Brown & Williamson $17.59 billion, Lorillard Tobacco $16.25 billion, and Liggett Group Inc. $790 million.

"Finally they got tagged. Finally they got hit. The day of reckoning was delayed in coming and they should just take it," said smokers' attorney Stanley Rosenblatt, who hugged several clients after the verdict was read.

Tense moments as Camp David negotiators confront deep divides

THURMONT, Md. — The Mideast peace negotiations at the secluded Camp David presidential retreat are focusing on bedrock differences. So it should come as no surprise that by all accounts — and not much is being said publicly — that progress has been an uphill struggle.

President Clinton tried to help bridge the divide as he met separately Friday with Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak and then separately with Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat. Later all three delegations met for a traditional Sabbath dinner, hosted by the Israeli prime minister.

"These are intractable issues," said White House spokesman Joe Lockhart. "These are issues that go to the vital interests of both of the parties. So this is very serious."

What is clear is that tensions are rising at the retreat in the Catoctin Mountains 90 miles northwest of Washington. One report had Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat at one point earlier in the week threatening to pack his bags and depart.

After four days of talks, the core differences are said to remain: the status of Jerusalem, the drawing of borders of a Palestinian state and the fate of several million Palestinian refugees.

"There are tensions every day when you're working through these issues," Lockhart told reporters.

A diplomatic source told The Associated Press that at this stage, there was no indication either side had changed its positions on those issues that matter most.

Davidians' lawyer: further arguments would be 'lost cause'

WACO, Texas (AP) — An attorney for the Branch Davidians says it would be "a lost cause" to continue trying to convince a judge that federal agents fired on sect members as they tried to escape their burning compound during a 1993 siege.

An advisory jury hearing the Davidians' $675 million wrongful death lawsuit determined Friday that the government bears no responsibility for the deaths of sect leader David Koresh and some 80 followers in the final hours of the 51-day standoff.

U.S. District Judge Walter Smith will issue the final ruling, expected in the next month, and will also consider perhaps the most contentious issue — whether federal agents shot at the Davidians at the end of the siege. But Davidian lawyers, survivors and victims' family members say they aren't expecting any change.

"I think a vast majority of the American public will take this as the final word," Michael Caddell, lead counsel for the plaintiffs, said. "For most people that will be the finish to Mount Carmel."

Caddell said he doesn't plan to file any more documents in the case and will tell the judge to make his decision based on the evidence in hand.

"Given what's happened in Waco with Judge Smith, we don't see the point. It's a lost cause. Judge Smith obviously has an agenda. At some point, it simply becomes futile," Caddell told The Associated Press.

The siege began on a Sunday morning, Feb. 28,

1993, when agents from the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms tried to search the Davidian's Mount Carmel complex and arrest Koresh on illegal weapons charges. Six Davidians and four ATF agents were killed in the ensuing shootout that day.

Landing procedures dispute settled, averting possible travel problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commercial airline pilots have dropped their opposition to certain government-required runway procedures, ending a dispute with the Federal Aviation Administration that had threatened to disrupt travel in the busy summer season.

The FAA announced late Friday that an agreement has been reached with airlines, pilots and others in the aviation industry over so-called "land and hold short" procedures. The pilots had maintained the procedures were not safe in some cases, so the FAA said it would make changes that addressed the pilots' concerns.

As a result, the Air Line Pilots Association said that, effective July 17, it will lift its recommendation that its 58,000 members refuse to comply with landing clearances using that procedure.

Thailand battles against deluge of drugs — methamphetamines

BAN MAE LA NA, Thailand (AP) — In its opium-growing days, this mountain village was the target of a campaign to wipe out narcotics. Now its residents, rifles in hand, are helping wage Thailand's latest war on drugs — against a deluge of methamphetamines and heroin from neighboring Myanmar.

As in other areas of the so-called "Golden Triangle" in Thailand, fields where colorful but deadly opium poppies once bloomed have been converted to rice, soybean and corn cultivation under a successful foreign-aided effort.

"Domestic drug supply has been stopped, but the menace persists because supplies keep coming from next-door Myanmar," says Phornchai Khamkiew, headman of this frontier village astride a narcotics smuggling route. "We can't let problems brought in by outsiders ruin our community."

In one attempt to halt the inflow across a long, rugged and porous border, the Thai army has trained villagers in 29 remote areas to take up weapons against the traffickers. Fifteen men at Ban Mae La Na, 404 miles northwest of the Thai capital Bangkok, have been trained to use weapons and patrol the forests.

Their chief opponent is the United Wa State Army, described by the United States as the world's largest drug-trafficking organization.

The ethnic Wa guerrillas mass-produce heroin, which is synthesized from poppies, and methamphetamines in laboratories inside Myanmar and speed their penetration into Thailand.

The United States, Western Europe and others in the world community are deeply concerned because much of the heroin makes its way through Thailand to addicts on their own streets. The Thais, while also battling heroin, are focusing on methamphetamines, widely abused by everyone from wealthy teen-agers to slum dwellers and poor farmers.

Practically speaking, one gap closes on the Internet — gender

NEW YORK (AP) — For years, Marti McGee shunned the Internet.

Seeing only men talk about it on television, the Internet "didn't seem to be a mainstream thing for a woman," she said. It took her college-bound children demanding it for e-mail to get the Missouri teacher to sign on and become a regular.

McGee is contributing to an Internet phenomenon in which peer pressure and attitude changes are bringing millions of American women online, virtually wiping out the gender gap among U.S. Internet users.

Women now make up half the U.S. online population, up from about 40 percent in 1996. According to researchers at Jupiter Communications, that's nearly 61 million American women online.

McGee quickly found uses beyond e-mail. Last fall, she began surfing the Web to buy airline tickets. This summer, she went on eBay to find a pump for her backyard pond in Springfield, Mo.

Alice Ingram Gray, who will be 88 in December, was a noted horse woman in the 1930s and 40s. She has a record of long involvement with the Top O' Texas Rodeo. This year marked the first time in 60 years she was unable to attend the rodeo.

RODEO

Buddy as both received national attention for their own success in competition.

Lee started out with a win at the local rodeo in junior events by capturing the 1950 calf roping crown. He went on to become the 1954 College National Champion Calf Roper. On the PRCA tour he qualified for the National Finals Rodeo nine times and later took the championship in 1966.

Lee founded and incorporated the 500-member Legends of Rodeo Senior Tour and was a participant as well winning calf roping championships in their competition six times.

He is a member of the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame in Amarillo where he has operated Lee Y. Cockrell Enterprises for 35 years. He also farms near Panhandle. He has three daughters and three grandsons.

Buddy was a Pampa High School Hall of Famer in football, basketball and shot put. He was the starting center for the Pampa Harvester basketball team that won back-to-back Texas State championships. In 1953 Buddy was the state's high school champion bull dogger.

In college he played football at Oklahoma University and afterwards played professional football with the New York Jets for five years.

When his football career ended, Buddy built Cockrell Feed Lot and Cattle Co. east of Pampa and kept up his rodeo skills as evidenced by his top money winner position at the 1977 Cheyenne Frontier Days rodeo. The same year he won the PRCA champion steer roper title.

Buddy, who once was in the ranching business in Australia, continues to operate his cattle company and farm near Pampa. He has two sons, a daughter and five grandsons.

San Angelo citizens worry water table nearing bottom of barrel

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Some San Angelo residents are worried that a nearby city's plan to help rural citizens who depend on water haulers for water is threatening their water supply.

Last month, the San Angelo City Council voted to cut off the sale of water to water haulers, who resold it to customers living outside the city limits.

The town of Miles stepped in to help keep its rural neighbors from going thirsty by allowing haulers to purchase water from its wells.

But San Angelo residents now say the extra pumping by Miles, which has wells within the San Angelo city limits, is causing their wells to dry up.

"The level of water going down is horrific," resident Robin Sheen told the San Angelo Standard-Times in Friday's editions. "A lot of people in the area are very concerned."

Resident Dick Lee said he hasn't ever seen his water table as low as it has been in the last year.

"We're simply running out of water," he said. "Miles is not being practical. It seems there's got to be a cheaper source."

Miles Mayor Everett Dodson said he wishes there were other solutions, but there just aren't right now.

"We're trying to take care of our families and friends," Dodson said. "I don't want to hurt people, but I don't have proof that we're the cause."

Last month, the San Angelo City Council voted to cut off the sale of water to water haulers, who resold it to customers living outside the city limits.

Miles purchased the wells about six months ago when it was determined that the town's water source didn't meet water quality standards.

Miles pumps about 10 hours a day and uses between 120,000 to 150,000 gallons of water a day for its 792 residents.

Lee says the drought hasn't helped anyone. He says in January 1981, the water level in his well was at 27 feet below ground. In 1987, it had dropped to 30 feet, and by July 1994 it was at 34 feet. Three years later, he measured it at 37 feet and his latest reading this month showed his 75-foot well to be at 59 feet.

"I can't totally blame the Miles people with the water table being what it is, but some people out here are at the bottom of the barrel," he said.

Bummer. School starts August 16. Seems like youngsters don't get much of a summer holiday anymore. I know we had more time off when I was young.

And there were some schools that had split terms so the children could be out during the fall harvest to work in the fields. Then there are a few places in Arkansas that to this day let out for the opening of deer season. Administrators know the older youngsters won't come anyway.

Like many of you I would guess, I went to a small school in grades one-through-12 with the exception of a short stint in an Episcopal boarding school where the nuns got mad at me for saying "yes ma'am." Thank goodness I got to come home before too long.

It's not that I have anything against Episcopalians. I'm pretty liberal when it comes to religion. To each his own. Besides, I've had my fair share of Presbyterian church, Catholic summer camp, Church of Religious Science and I worked at a predominately Jewish camp in New York. At my grandmother's Baptist Church there was a Sunday School class named for her. I went with her sometimes. During church, our friend Miss Blimp used to go to sleep as soon as the first hymn was over... never rising again until the final chorus of the invitation hymn had been sung. I always thought that was so funny. Sadly, she was murdered some years later.

I digressed. Back to summer. Mostly, I spent every summer going to camp and riding my horses.

Then fall would roll around too quickly. Actually, it wasn't officially fall and there was nothing cool about the temperatures.

Our little school had no air conditioning and some of us would bring fans from home to provide a little air circulation. We'd also bring portable televisions from home to watch the space shots. And boys would sneak in portable radios to hear the World Series.

There were 26 or 28 of us in my graduating class and many of our faces were the same ones that looked out from our first-grade class composite pictures. I still have mine and I can still name most of us.

Naturally I chose to stand out. I wore my glasses for the picture. Now, I rarely wore them any other time but I did for the picture. Later, my mother always wanted me to wear my perfect attendance Sunday School pin when we had school pictures made. I didn't want to.

Sometimes I think I should have been a teacher... all that paid time off. Pretty good deal for the money but I am sure some teachers won't agree. And, I am not without sympathy for them given some of the types of children — and parents — with whom they must deal.

But, gee, they get summers off. What I wouldn't give to have summers off... even the abbreviated ones school children and teachers now get.

Recently, I was talking with a business acquaintance in Memphis, Tenn., about summer. Actually, he is a phone friend, too. You know, one of those people some of us talk with for a long time but never meet face-to-face.

Anyway, he was driving his little girl to school on her last day of either kindergarten or first grade. Day care plans for the summer had been made.

The child told her dad she didn't want to go to day care. She said she wanted to stay home with him so they could swim every day.

The man explained to his child that he couldn't do this... he had to go to his job.

It was then she looked at him, puzzled, and thought for a second or two before saying, "You mean you don't get summers off?"

Bummer.

Opinion

Kudos for Economic Development Corp.

A tip of the hat goes to the Pampa Economic Development Commission board and to Executive Director Susan Tripplehorn and Project Coordinator Andra Canady for all the work done to recruit United Medicorp, Inc., to Pampa.

Another tip of the hat is due Pampa's citizens who have supported the PEDC through the years with their votes and tax dollars. It's an investment that is paying off.

While most types of development would be welcomed here, it is especially heartening to see diversity from the traditional — and economically volatile — agriculture and oil-related fields.

UMI, which will initially employ about 40 people, processes medical bills, including Medicare and Medicaid, for hospitals and physician groups around the country. It also handles insurance claim processing and performs collection services.

The Dallas firm was looking for a new home — one in which they would have a more stable work force. With Dallas' large number of jobs available in its medical community, UMI was constantly dealing with job turnover. And that's something that's very costly to a company.

But had it not been for the effort and hustle on the part of the PEDC and its staff, UMI would be going elsewhere. For, you see, Pampa was at the bottom of their list... the company wanted to relocate within two hours of Pampa.

By using some creativity, the PEDC flew UMI officials to Amarillo from Dallas and drove them here — proving that Pampa, too, is within two hours of Dallas!

The available work force, its expected stability, the incentives offered by the PEDC all played a role in luring UMI here. Another large factor in Pampa's favor, we're told, is the existence of Clarendon College — Pampa Center and the potential there for training the company's workers.

While there are those who sometimes grumble at the incentives paid by the PEDC to land businesses, it is money well spent. Without the incentives Pampa would have little or no chance in today's competitive economic development environment.

And, if that happened, we'd all lose.

Domestic oil production too restrictive

Whether we like today's high gasoline prices or not, according to Vice President Gore they're good for us. In Gore's book "Earth in the Balance," he claims that the internal combustion engine is the single greatest threat to mankind and the way to combat that threat is with higher fuel prices.

Now that the OPEC cartel has managed to push oil prices from 1998's $10 a barrel to nearly $30, instead of Gore publicly thanking OPEC for helping to save the environment, he's calling for an investigation of "Big Oil" for price-gouging. That's standard for politicians — pointing fingers to divert attention away from the folly they created.

OPEC's supply restrictions no doubt account for part of the gasoline shortage problem, but it's the Congress and the White House who've made us more vulnerable to our Middle East "friends," for whom we fought a costly war to preserve their sovereignty.

We're vulnerable because of restrictions placed on domestic oil exploration. Congress has refused to authorize exploration in a small section of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge that in 1980 was specifically set aside by law for exploration. That site is estimated to contain 16 billion barrels of oil. The Clinton-Gore administration recently used its executive powers to lock up 43 million acres of government land in so-called roadless areas making oil exploration impossible. Plus, more restrictions have been placed on off-shore drilling.

Just recently, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that two oil companies which purchased oil and natural gas leases from the government, and later prevented from drilling, have to be compensated by the government. The bottom line is U.S. oil is in plentiful supply. Our dependence on imported oil reflects the power that environmental groups have in Congress to stifle domestic oil production. That benefits OPEC immensely, and I wouldn't be surprised if OPEC nations were major donors to environmental groups.

Another part of the problem is the 1990 Clean Air Act. Provisions of the Act allow the Environmental Protection Agency to mandate the use of reformulated gas. The National Academy of Science reports that the benefits to the environment of reformulated gas were trivial. On top of that, MTBE — a chemical used in reformulated gas — is showing up in our water supplies as a cancer-causing contaminant. Requiring companies to produce reformulated gas increases manufacturing costs and the price we pay at the pump.

Some oil companies in some areas of our country blend their gasoline with ethanol, a corn derivative, as a means to meet EPA mandates. In 1999, for an equivalent amount of energy, ethanol was twice as expensive as gasoline. In addition, ethanol is extremely water-soluble and cannot be transported in pipelines. Instead, it must be trucked, barged or railed to distribution sites, where the finished product is then trucked to gas stations. That's more expensive. But what the heck! Congressmen from the farm states pushed for ethanol mandates to benefit their constituents. Whether it harms the rest of the nation is not much of a concern to them.

Another part of the high prices are federal, state and local taxes imposed on gasoline. The federal tax alone is 18.4 cents. State and local sales taxes can be as high as 30 percent of the selling price. That means that if gas costs $1.75 a gallon in your area, its pre-tax price might be $1.35. Your state legislators might pretend they feel your pain, but they love revenue. When gas prices are $1 a gallon, they extract 30 cents in tax revenues; when gas sells for $2, their take doubles to 60 cents.

Here's my bet: If Congress were to announce the ending of restrictions on domestic oil production, there'd be a fall in oil prices and the crumbling of OPEC.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, July 16, the 198th day of 2000. There are 168 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: One year ago, on July 16, 1999, John F. Kennedy Jr., his wife, Carolyn, and her sister, Lauren Bessette, died when the single-engine plane Kennedy was piloting plunged into the Atlantic Ocean near Martha's Vineyard, Mass.

On this date: In 1790, the District of Columbia was established as the seat of the U.S. government.

In 1862, David G. Farragut became the first rear admiral in the U.S. Navy.

In 1918, Russia's Czar Nicholas II, his empress and their five children were executed by the Bolsheviks.

In 1935, the first parking meters were installed, in Oklahoma City.

We should go back to public hangings

Charley Reese
 Syndicated columnist

Since the latest fad is decrying the death penalty, here's my take on the subject: Let's bring back public hangings in public parks.

The "green" crowd shouldn't have a problem with that, since a few reusable, natural-hemp ropes could send a large number of villains to their reward before the ropes wore out.

The argument that the death penalty isn't a deterrent has always been fallacious. The recidivism rate for executed murderers is zero, more than you can say for murderers who do hard time. In other words, the guy who gets whacked never again harms another person. By the by, the average prison time actually served by a convicted murderer is five years, 11 months.

But the deterrent effect would be enhanced if we would return to the practice of our ancestors and hang these villains in public in the areas where they committed their crimes. (OK, in the case of serial killers, pick one place.)

Large crowds used to gather for public hangings. Sometimes families brought picnic lunches. There simply has to be a salutary effect to watching the consequences of murder up close and in the flesh.

Hiding executions is just part of general public squeamishness, as is the growing use of lethal injections. After all, the people being executed were not sensitive souls who tried to spare their victims either pain or terror. It seems loony to me for people to be concerned that the person the state is going to kill is comfortable during the process.

The Russians and Chinese communists never were partial to hanging and usually favor a pistol bullet in the back of the head. This is simple and cheap. Since so many Americans seem to put a high value on Marxism, perhaps they'd prefer to adopt the communist form of execution. That would be OK with me, but more people could see the executions if we stick with hanging.

I'm assuming, of course, that all the people who favor the death penalty would have no objection to watching what they favor. The death penalty is, after all, no big deal. Everybody dies. The only thing unusual about the death penalty is that the government decides when and by what method. Hanging is certainly less painful than cancer.

As for those who profess sympathy for the killers, I think they are sick. They show no sympathy for innocent life when it comes to bombing Iraq or killing half a million Iraqi children via malnutrition and disease. Most of them have zero sympathy for the 100 percent-innocent children who are slaughtered in abortion clinics.

Oh, no, these characters reserve their sympathy for the criminal psychopaths and human monsters who destroy lives and families for usually the pettiest of reasons. Such people have a perverted sense of justice.

The only reform the system needs is to speed up the process. It is obscene that killers can live on death row for decades while foppish lawyers and judges play silly games that make a mockery of justice.

There is no reason why we can't execute a man within 12 months of his sentence, provided we rein in the lawyers and give the judges a hard kick in the rear. These delays are simply the result of pettifoggery.

Death-penalty cases should receive automatic top priority, which means that as long as one is on the docket, the judges don't get to play golf or take long vacations.

The alternative to fixing this broken system is to apply the Brazil Method, which is for the police, by accurate shooting, to eliminate the need for a trial. That would certainly save the taxpayers a lot of money.

Town bans use of hand-held cellular phones by drivers

MARLBORO, N.J. (AP) — Marlboro Township has become the first community in New Jersey to prohibit the use of hand-held cellular phones while driving.

The Township Council voted 4-0 Thursday night in favor of the ban. Mayor Matthew Scannapieco signed the ordinance a short time later.

Anyone caught driving with a hand-held cell phone is subject to a fine of up to $250. Hands-free cell phones are permitted, however.

"It is in the public interest to prevent injuries and save lives, and if I can save just one life with this ordinance, then I'll have done my job as an elected official," council Vice President Barry Denkensohn said.

The council's vote came two days after a

Pennsylvania judge struck down a similar ordinance, ruling that Hilltown Township did not have the power to pre-empt state motor vehicle laws.

Brooklyn, Ohio, enacted the country's first such law last March.

Opponents of the Marlboro ban called it a costly endeavor.

"Your hearts are in the right places, but it's not the purpose of government to protect everyone from everything in life," said resident Mark Rosenwald, 51.

A 1997 study published in the New England Journal of Medicine found that talking on a phone while driving quadrupled the risk of an accident and was almost as dangerous as being drunk behind the wheel.

Nine people gored by bulls

PAMPLONA, Spain (AP) — A fast sprint alongside some of Spain's biggest bulls left participants with only slight injuries Friday in the last bull run of the eight-day San Fermin Festival.

Hundreds of young men tripped over each other in their haste to escape the massive, speeding bulls during the 2 minute, 45 second run down Pamplona's cobblestone streets, Spanish television TVE1 reported. Four men, all from northern Spain, were treated for cracked ribs, sprains and a slight concussion, said Red Cross workers in Pamplona.

The bulls were the largest yet to participate in this year's runs: They weighed in at between 1,310 and 1,518 pounds. All six were to face matadors and near-certain death later Friday.

A total of nine men were gored by bulls' horns during the eight-day festival. Another 199 people were treated for mostly minor injuries suffered during the eight runs, according to Navarra government officials.

The eight days of partying that accompany the festival were to end Friday night, when revelers gather in the Plaza Santiago to light an artificial "Bull of Fire" before a midnight fireworks show.

People in the news ...

NEW YORK (AP) — It's one for the books. Jack Welch, one of corporate America's most admired chieftains, will get a $7.1 million advance for a tome due out next year, when he retires as chairman of General Electric.

The advance, which Welch intends to donate to charity, is believed to be the largest ever paid for a nonfiction book.

The winner of the bidding war, Time Warner Trade Publishing, predicted the book would become "a classic about business management."

Publishing executives considered the advance to be high but not unrealistic, given Americans' growing interest in business topics and the extraordinary stature of Welch, who has led a major transformation of GE in his 20 years as chairman.

Time Warner Trade Publishing would have to sell about 1.6 million copies to make back its advance, which only covers North American rights. Overseas rights could fetch even more.

The last major nonfiction book to fetch such a huge advance came when Random House reportedly paid about $6 million for Colin Powell's autobiography, "My American Journey," a 1995 best seller.

LONDON (AP) — As if millions of fans and millions of dollars weren't enough, author J.K. Rowling received an honorary doctorate from her alma mater Friday.

The creator of boy wizard Harry Potter told Exeter University's graduating class: "I am a little worried because you are not all 9-year-olds, but you at the back do look as though you have come as wizards, which is comforting."

Rowling, 34, earned a French degree at Exeter in 1986. "At my own graduation I had very little experience of personal failure or regret, I am pleased to say. I made up for that the moment I left university," she said.

Rowling, a former secretary, researcher and English teacher, wrote the first Harry Potter book as a cash-strapped single mother. It and its three successors have sold more than 35 million copies and earned Rowling an estimated $23 million. The latest book, "Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire," was released last week with record advance sales and a print run of 5.3 million copies.

She was honored in part because "what she writes makes the world a better place," Exeter professor Peter Wiseman said.

The Edinburgh resident also has an honorary doctorate from the University of St. Andrews in Scotland.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A musician already suing rapper Snoop Doggy Dogg filed a second lawsuit in federal court alleging copyright infringement over a song on the new "Snoop Dogg and The Eastsidaz" album.

Francisco Rodriguez says the rapper, born Calvin Broadus, took the music for the song "Dogghouse" from a cassette tape given to another member of his group.

The suit was filed Wednesday in federal court. Snoop Dogg attorney Hayes Michael declined to comment Thursday.

Rodriguez first sued the rapper in August 1999 for copyright infringement, alleging three pieces, from that cassette were lifted for two underground music videos and the song, "20 Minutes," released on the "Topp Dogg" album. That case is set for trial Nov. 7.

Parents in memory case can not sue

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A couple who claims their adult daughter falsely accused them of abuse based on repressed memories can't sue her psychologists for malpractice, a court has ruled.

The 4th District Court of Appeals decided Charlotte Johnson's parents had no standing to sue because their daughter had not joined the lawsuit or waived the confidentiality of her medical records.

The court said a patient's right to keep medical records confidential was paramount, and that without them, neither the Johnsons nor the therapists would have a fair chance to prove their cases.

Houston insists — it's not nation's smoggiest city

HOUSTON (AP) — Civic leaders want to clear the air about Houston's label as the nation's smoggiest city — they've taken another look at the data and say Los Angeles deserves the dishonor.

Harris County officials announced their findings Thursday using a study that indicated some air-polluting emissions were showing up at lower levels than in previous reports.

According to preliminary federal data released last year, the city for the first time had more dirty-air days than Los Angeles. The Environmental Protection Agency said Houston recorded at least 50 days in 1999 in which it exceeded federal health standards for ozone, a component of smog.

County officials conceded that Houston's ozone level is still too high to comply with the federal Clean Air Act, but said the air in Los Angeles has excessively high levels of particulate matter and carbon dioxide as well as ozone, making it the country's smoggiest.

Fourth state joins equine passport program

It's a done deal. The Texas Animal Health Commission (TAHC), the state's livestock health regulatory agency, reports Louisiana has joined the "equine passport" program for horses, donkeys, mules and asses originating within and traveling among the participating states: Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Mississippi and Louisiana.

"We are very happy to join the four states already using this six-month health document," said Dr. Maxwell Lea, Louisiana's state veterinarian. "We've received positive comments from equine owners about this program and think it will provide convenience and benefits for riders from all the states involved."

The six-month equine passport can be used for intra- or interstate travel, in lieu of a certificate of veterinary inspection (health paper), which is valid only 30 to 45 days, depending on the state in which it is presented. Equine that will be traveling under the equine passport program must be permanently identified with tattoo, brand or microchip implant. The animals also must be tested negative for the viral disease Equine Infectious Anemia (EIA), also called "Coggins," within 30 prior to being issued the passport. The official EIA test document, called a VS 10-11, must be presented with the equine passport when entering participating states.

"Under the passport program, equine owners need only the passport and an EIA test document for an entire season of travel to nearby states," said Dr. Lea. "It will save producers time and money and attract riders from other participating states."

Dr. Terry Beals, Texas state veterinarian and TAHC executive director, said about 50 passports have been issued for Texas equine. "It's early in the trail ride, rodeo and competition season, and I expect other owners who travel among the passport states will be contacting their accredited veterinarians for the document," he said. "The passport may not be used at Texas pari-mutuel race tracks, but all other major shows and events welcome the document."

For more information on obtaining the equine passport, owners or trainers may contact their accredited veterinarian or call their TAHC area office, or the Permit section at the TAHC in Austin at 1-800-550-8242, ext. 777.

Poll: Farmers not optimistic about economy

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Only about one out of eight Iowa farmers think the overall farm economy will improve in the next five years — the most pessimistic outlook in 18 years, according to Iowa State University Extension.

Just 12 percent of Iowa farmers think the farm economy will get better, according to the annual Iowa Farm and Rural Life Poll, while 64 percent think the economy will get worse and 24 percent expect it to stay about the same.

The previous low point was in 1994, when only 15 percent of respondents expected improvement.

"I think in general it's a shroud of uncertainty and concern that farm prices and the farm economy continues to languish behind the general economy," said Paul Lasley, an Extension sociologist.

A variety of issues, most of them beyond the control of farm families, contribute to the pessimism, including low commodity prices, rising interest rates and fuel costs, Lasley said.

A statewide sample of 4,977 Iowa farmers were sent mail questionnaires in February, with 61 percent responding. The figures represent the latest in a downward trend in optimism, despite a few peaks in 1988 and 1996, Lasley said.

Some of the respondents wrote comments on the questionnaires to highlight the grim situation.

"Individual owner-operators will become extinct very shortly without prompt and favorable government action," a Story County farmer wrote.

Michael Kiernan, spokesman for Iowa Secretary of Agriculture Patty Judge, says the numbers reflect a nationwide trend that can only be remedied by a new national farm policy.

The drought and low commodity prices a year ago contribute to that, Kiernan said, including the lowest corn prices in more than a decade, the lowest soybean prices in 27 years and the lowest hog prices since the Great Depression.

"We must move beyond the annual damage control to a policy that gives farmers the tools they need to thrive, not just basically survive from disaster to disaster," Kiernan said.

John Whitaker, president of the Iowa Farmers Union, says government subsidies farmers receive in bad times are helpful, but not the way they'd prefer it to be.

"Farmers would a lot rather have money from the marketplace and not the mailbox," he said.

In addition to low commodity prices, Whitaker says farmers are dissatisfied with the Freedom to Farm Act, which he calls a failed federal policy, and the large corporate agribusinesses, which farmers perceive as controlling certain segments of the market.

Ed Wiederstein, president of the Iowa Farm Bureau and owner of a hog farm near Audubon, says there's a tremendous pace of change right now in agriculture and that influences the way farmers perceive the future.

"Some people look at it as an opportunity and some of the things that can be done to create opportunity," he said.

Pesticide applicators need CEU credits

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs reminds pesticide applicators to check if they have the necessary continuing education units to renew their license. Many private applicators, as well as all commercial and noncommercial applicators, face a Feb. 28, 2001, renewal date. Private certificate holders face a Dec. 31, 2000, deadline.

"We will experience an especially large class of private applicators renewing their licenses this cycle," Combs said. "More than 26,000 private applicator licenses or certificates will be due for renewal, which is more than twice the normal number. We want to get the word out early for applicators to check if their license expires and if they need more CEUs."

"The CEU classes help applicators stay informed of changing regulations as well as new products and new application methods. Education is vital for proper and safe pesticide use," Combs said.

Applicators should provide TDA with any change of address to avoid a delay in getting their license renewed. Many rural addresses have changed with the implementation of the 911 emergency response system. Providing updates or address changes allows applicators to receive their renewal on time and keep their license current.

Private applicators must renew their license every five years and obtain 15 CEUs during that period. Two credits must be in integrated pest management and two in laws and regulations. Applicators must self-certify their credits by listing them on the renewal form that they should receive in December.

All private applicators may earn the required credits by passing a comprehensive recertification exam. This test costs $50 for each attempt. After passing, an applicator will receive a certificate of completion for 15 CEUs.

Licensed private applicators cannot retake the private applicator training course and test to renew their license in place of getting the CEUs. A license must have been expired for a year before an applicator can retake the private applicator training test.

Private certificate holders must also obtain 15 CEUs to keep their certificate current. While the certificate never expires, an applicator cannot purchase or apply restricted-use or state-limited-use pesticides or regulated herbicides unless the CEUs are kept up-to-date. A certificate holder who has never obtained a private applicator license may take the private applicator training and obtain a private applicator license instead of earning the CEUs. However, they will be required to earn 15 CEUs over the next five-year cycle.

Commercial and noncommercial applicators renew each year and must earn five CEUs annually, including one CEU in each of two of the following categories: laws and regulations, integrated pest management and drift minimization.

Pesticide applicators have several options to obtain CEUs. Self-study courses are available as well as courses through the Internet. Applicators can obtain a list of approved courses or other information on CEU courses by calling 1-800-TELL-TDA or (512) 463-7548 or by logging on to TDA's website (www.agr.state.tx.us/pesticide/ceuhome.htm).

Georgia has small peanut crop

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — Georgia farmers, hit by drought, cheap imports and low commodity prices, are looking to harvest their smallest peanut crop since 1982.

"At planting time we just didn't have many opportunities," Don Koehler, executive director of the Georgia Peanut Commission, said Monday. "They chose to do something different with their land resources."

Growers planted 510,000 acres of peanuts, 36,000 fewer than last year and 30,000 fewer than in 1998, according to a survey by the Georgia Agricultural Statistics Service. Georgia produces almost half the nation's domestic peanut supplies, much of it for peanut butter.

Prices on the world market, where U.S. peanuts have to compete with lower-priced peanuts from China and Argentina, have plunged in recent years. Domestically, 180,000 tons of U.S.-grown peanuts have been displaced by foreign peanuts after trade agreements opened previously closed American markets.

Koehler said Georgia's 2000 peanut crop may be worth less than $400 million, a plunge that will have a major economic affect on 70 south Georgia counties where peanuts are grown.

Alaskans want to sell more potatoes

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Alaska's farmers are trying to get consumers in the United States and abroad to buy more Alaska-grown potatoes.

Last year's potato production in Alaska was the second largest of the past decade. So farmers and the state Division of Agriculture are pushing spuds to make room in storage for this year's harvest.

"We have a surplus of potatoes in the state now. That's why it's so important to develop these overseas markets," said James Drew, a member of the board of directors of Alaska Agricultural Development and Marketing Inc., a nonprofit corporation that promotes marketing of Alaskan products to national and international markets.

The 1999 harvest yielded 18.5 million pounds. Alaska's largest potato harvest in the past decade occurred in 1995, when 22 million pounds were grown.

Hay, Grazing Hotline open

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs is reminding farmers and ranchers if they have pasture land with available water supplies for lease or hay to sell to call the Texas Department of Agriculture's "Hay and Grazing Hotline" at 1-877-429-1998.

"We are still receiving calls from ranchers in the Edwards Plateau and West Texas who need grazing acreage as well as hay to feed their livestock," Combs said. "Some areas of the state have not seen rain since early last year and are going into summer with forecasts calling for above-normal temperatures and below-normal rainfall."

Producers in and out-of-state can list their pasture for lease or hay for sale by calling the toll-free Hay and Grazing Hotline at 1-877-429-1998 or by visiting TDA's website at www.agr.state.tx.us. Ranchers or farmers needing a list of pastures for lease, hay suppliers or a hay transporter can also call the hotline number or visit TDA's website to obtain any of these updated lists.

Letters to the editor

Presence doesn't necessarily mean a suspect is guilty

To the editor,
 I hope this letter finds you both well. I am writing to correct the many false statements and misstatements of fact which have recently been printed in The Pampa News about the above referenced stories (RE: Recent stories about me, my case: 6/22; 6/25; 6/27; 6/29; 7/2). I would ask that you either make correction by allowing Dee Dee to write a story quoting me or by printing this letter. Either way is fine with me. I just want people to know the true facts and not John Mann's version of them.

1) DNA evidence did not "tie" me "to the murder scene and thus to the murders." It was my home, I had every right to be there, I've never denied being there. The state's own experts at trial conceded that the DNA evidence did not prove me guilty of anything, it proved only that I was present at the scene at a time after the victims became bloody. Texas jurisprudence is well settled that mere presence is never sufficient to prove guilt. Mann knew that and it is why he had Andrea Reed lie in order to gain a false conviction against me.

2) Scooter Caler was present just as I was, he escaped the house with me, he stumbled and staggered to a neighbor's house just as I did. He had the victim's blood on him. The police reports indicate that he was in close proximity to Twila when she was killed. Yet no one has ever suggested he killed anyone. I am not saying he did, just showing that if the same evidence isn't cause for accusing him, neither is it cause for accusing me. Anyone who was in our house that night and who survived to walk away would have some blood on them, just as Scooter did. Just as I did. It's indicative of presence, not guilt.

3) Every person who claims to have evidence that I am "guilty," such as Terry Young, bases it solely on their own biased and skewed subjective interpretation of what they think is evidence, not facts. I.E. Stubblefield's "feeling" that I was involved; McMinn's "belief" that I "had something to do with it," Young's "belief in" his "heart," based on the way I "acted," "attitude" and that I was allegedly "running."

That's a new one. I could hardly walk, being poisoned as I was. Andrea had to pick me up and carry me into the house, because I couldn't even stand upright (think what that means for the committing of the acts themselves; it took great coordination, dexterity and strength to do what was done in our house that night. I could not have done it and the facts prove that.) It's very curious that Scooter "managed to make it to a neighbor's where he collapsed" while I did exactly the same yet I was "running." If I was guilty, in a condition to have committed the crime, had done it and was running, do you seriously think that I would've stopped at Andrea's house? I'd have been as the movie, "Far and Away." Like Scooter, I just wanted help. I was not "running" from anything.

The reality is that anyone who question about this case who was involved in investigating it on the prosecution side cannot offer you a single fact that shows me to be guilty, simply because I am not guilty, so there is and never was such evidence in existence. They will instead tell you what they "think," "feel," "believe" or supposedly "know," but they cannot articulate or show any fact to back them up because it doesn't exist.

I get hate letters all the time, the most recent from Pampa Fireman Tim Kirkwood, which expresses this sentiment: "everyone in Pampa knows you killed the Busby family." When you ask how he "knows" that, he says "Well, I just do." I am supposed to die based on such evidence?!

4) As for Charlie Morris' statement that as far as he knows "there is no documentation that he (1) was not the right man" who committed the crime, read <http://www.cdinet.demon.co.uk> (The URL you ran was merely the testimonial section of character references, not the facts of the case section).

5) Contrary to David Bowser's assertion, via John Mann again, that "DNA tests showed Skinner had blood spattered from two of the victims on his shirt and pants," that is a lie.

The DNA tested stains were contact stains, meaning I fell on or otherwise came into contact with a bloody surface after the blood was shed, not that I killed anyone. It's these minor word alterations and tweaking of the truth that allows Mann to make these misleading statements about the case, to cover himself, because he can't answer on the facts, for the facts.

6) Mann's statements that there was blood on my shoes is false. I was in my stocking feet and there was some contact blood only on the bottoms of my socks, showing that I only walked through the blood after it was shed.

It's very interesting that Mann would comment on my shoes, which after boot prints were discovered in blood at the scene, my tennis shoes mysteriously "disappeared" out of Randy Stubblefield's evidence vault at the sheriff's office (so no comparisons could be made?), to which vault only Stubblefield himself and Jess Wallace had keys. I'd really like to hear the explanation for this. (Incidentally, my tennis shoes were leather high-top Converse All Stars that were given to me by Twila's brother, Doug Ward, who had an identical pair in black and white. Mine were red and white.)

Lastly, the shoes had no blood, as they were under the coffee table where I'd taken them off before lying down. Secondly, the blood on the bottoms of my socks was never tested to determine that it came from "two of the victims" or any victims at all.

7) Mann's statements that other suspects were investigated is misleading at best. A few others were questioned and threatened by Mann's agents, who tried to get them to make false inculpatory statements about me. No independent suspect was ever investigated or questioned, even though known to Mann and McMinn.

McMinn interviewed Howard Mitchell in September 1994. Mitchell told McMinn on the record (we have the taped interview and transcript as proof) that he tried his best to wake me off the couch and got no response, that I was comatose. He told McMinn that he knew there was no way that I could've gotten up off the couch, recovered sufficiently from that condition to have killed anyone in the short space of time whereafter it happened (less than or, about, an hour).

Mitchell told McMinn that Twila's uncle, Robert "Bob" Donnell was stalking her that night at Howard's party, that Donnell had raped her in the past, that Donnell was known for and capable of strangling (such as was done to Twila), that he had a proclivity for knives and using them, threatening people with them, that he left the party at Howard's that night immediately after Howard left with Twila to take her home and, that no one knows where Donnell went or what he did after he left.

McMinn then told Howard on tape "that's the kind of information we didn't have, I am going to have to look into that." He did nothing. So Mann's statement that other suspects were investigated is misleading at best because the most likely suspect was never investigated at all.

8) Mann's allegation that "politics are behind the uproar over Skinner" and that the professor's actions are politically motivated are also misleading. I've been writing the professor for over two years. It just so happened that the statements made by George W. Bush that "there are no innocents on death row" in Texas are the catalyst that finally pushed the egg off the ledge and caused the professor to send his students here. The main reason he didn't do so previously was lack of funding. Once that was solved, they came on. That was a direct result of Bush's misleading statements, not "politics." We want truth. We are going to have it brought out once and for all.

9) Mann's allegation that Randy bled very little and his trying to use that as the excuse as to why Randy's blood was not on my clothes, is very misleading. Randy was stabbed through his heart, there was a great gout of blood from the wound. It hit the wall behind the bed and the wall opposite the bed, as the crime scene photos show. It pooled in the bed to the point that it ran off the edge and over the side of the bed, all contrary to Mann's statement "very little bleeding and no blood spatter patterns."

I would be more than happy to sit down with anyone, anytime, to go over the evidence piece by piece and show them what the truth of it says, how Mann has twisted and manipulated it to mean something else, by deceitful yet very artful misrepresentation. That offer remains extended to anyone who wishes to take me up on it. In the meantime, I'd appreciate a little more accurate reporting of the facts from The Pampa News.

Protecting the uninformed, the innocent is common sense

To the editor,
 So called "uneducated" cultures have always found a correlation between nature, time, calamity and sin. Jonah brought storm to his "ocean liner" by fleeing Nineveh. The crew of the ship ask why that prophet brought a storm to sea with him by disobeying God.

Of course, we're too sophisticated to believe our sins could cause a storm; yet, the furniture in the heavens moved Tuesday night and I couldn't help but think of the response I've been getting concerning saving children from drowning by Pampa's building a fence to keep a toddler from entering the park creek.

Quote: We don't need a fence, we need to prosecute parents who fail to watch their kids.

That attitude is an insult to child survival and human intelligence. Protecting the uninformed and innocent is common sense. Have we become so corrupt that we protect the environment but not the children. How we as a city can discard a child's life over a $5,000 fence is appallingly incredible.

Ronnie Barton

Something must be done about desecration at cemetery

To the editor,
 Pampa has many things of which to be proud. However, there are other aspects that need to be improved.

First, the playground. I read both letters in last Sunday's paper dated July 9, 2000, from Mrs. Chris Mitchell and Mr. Ronnie Barton. Both Mrs. Mitchell and Mr. Barton basically said the exact things I was trying to tell this community a year ago. I agree with Mrs. Mitchell when she challenged anybody to go to the playground and pick out one child, and keep constant sight of them for 20 minutes. I can't. Mrs. Mitchell couldn't either — even with two other women with her, and neither can you — unless you are "superhuman" as she suggested.

I, too, agree that it is time to name the playground. I agree with Mrs. Mitchell that "The Ethan Anderson Memorial Park" would make an outstanding name for that park. It would certainly ease the pain that James and Angela have had to endure a little. Nothing will ever bring Ethan back. However, God did send a new baby sister to this family. Thank you, Father!

And as Mr. Barton suggested, a simple three foot fence would have prevented another death had he not been at the right place, at the right time when he almost witnessed another tragic drowning of an innocent baby.

And desecrating graves. On July 4, I bought a red heart-shaped balloon that had written on it "I Love You" and I went and tied the balloon ribbon around the flower vase on Ethan's grave. I can't do much for him now. I noticed that his favorite John Deer tractor he played with while he was on this earth was missing from his grave and as I noticed that, I was hopeful that Angela had taken it for safe keeping and that someone had not stolen it. However, the horror had only just begun.

The next day when Angela went to Ethan's grave, someone had cut the ribbon and taken the balloon, or perhaps let it rise into the heavens. Two crosses, of all things, have also been stolen. In either case, I can't say what I would really like to you. It wouldn't be prudent and God would not approve! Whomever did this, may God have mercy on your soul when He comes back to this earth.

I know there are other graves being desecrated at Fairview Cemetery. Why on earth doesn't this cemetery do something about this?! I will volunteer a couple of nights a week to sit out there beside Ethan's grave to make sure nothing else is stolen. Anyone else interested?

Sexually Active Teens Must Take Responsibility for Health

DEAR ABBY: I am a third-year medical student completing my pediatrics rotation. I recently saw a 14-year-old girl who thought she might be pregnant because she was experiencing symptoms of morning sickness. As her mother and I listened, she described having had unprotected sex for several months.

I knew she needed a pregnancy test, pelvic exam, a Pap smear to check for cervical cancer, and special tests for various sexually transmitted diseases (STDs). When I explained this to the patient and her mother, they both seemed shocked that we could perform a pelvic exam on such a young teen. (There are smaller instruments made especially for younger girls.) It took much reassurance before we could proceed.

Abby, please inform sexually active teen-age girls that they need a pelvic exam and Pap smear at least once a year. The best time to start is before having sex so the teen can learn about "safe sex" — and lower the risk of pregnancy and STDs.

Most states allow teen-agers to receive confidential medical care and information regarding contraception, pregnancy and STDs without parental permission. Teens can seek free or low-cost treatment from local health departments and family planning clinics.

Of course, sexual activity involves more than one person. Teen-age boys also need to take responsibility for their health and the health of their partners.

If teens are too embarrassed to talk to medical providers about preventing pregnancy and STDs, they are too young and immature to have sex.

MED STUDENT IN RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR MED STUDENT: I agree. Thank you for your information and insight. It's unfortunate that many young adults engage in sexual relationships for which they are neither physically nor emotionally ready. They need to know it's all right to say no. A mature sexual relationship involves not only taking care of oneself, but also taking care of the partner.

P.S. You are going to be a wonderful doctor!

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 and have written a poem. The facts in this poem are real. This happened to someone I know.

SAD FOR MY FRIEND IN LA.

DEAR SAD: Your poem is an eye-opener, and I'm sure it will generate comment.

SHE'S 13 YEARS OLD

She used to tell me, "When you are ready." "Take your time." "Don't rush things." "Enjoy life as it is." Look who's talking ... She's 13 years old and she's having a baby.

She would say, "It won't happen to me. I'm smart and won't make the wrong decisions."

Now look at who's the smart one ...

She's 13 years old and she's having a baby.

She would say, "It'll be so much fun in high school. I'm going to go to all the dances and proms."

Now she'll be stuck at home because ...

She's 13 years old and she's having a baby.

She would say, "I'll go to all the parties and stay out until 2:00 in the morning."

She'll be home at 2:00 in the morning, trying to keep her baby from crying.

She's 13 years old and she's having a baby.

She would say, "My baby will grow up with a father. Not like me." Now where's the father? He's moving out of state.

She's 13 years old and she's having a baby ... alone.

proves to be more than challenging. Take a step back. Think through your decisions. You might not be sure about a money venture, so don't do anything yet. Express your affections to a loved one. Tonight: Let it all hang out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 Not everyone has your perspective, so continue to be careful with money and friends. Either could backfire in the next few weeks. An associate might think he is presenting the complete picture, but it's not so. Your good intentions win someone over. Tonight: Be your easygoing self.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

 Stay in charge at work as pressure builds. You might be reacting but not saying much. Take a deep breath and discuss what is going on with you. Caring emerges once you discuss a problem with a family member or dear friend. Nurture yourself. Tonight: Go for a walk or a swim.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 A child or loved one adds fuel to an already explosive situation. You put another on a pedestal and have a difficult time seeing reality. News comes forward that either was delayed or that clears out a problem. A late-day discussion opens doors. Tonight: Playtime, even if it is Monday!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

 Clear out confusion of recent weeks. Another might not agree with you, but he has good intentions. Use special care with family and a domestic matter. What looks good proves to be a bit of a problem. Lighten up about a boss, who means well. Tonight: Mosey on home. Put your feet up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 You reverse gears and listen to a partner in order to keep communication flowing. A friendly, effusive style warms the cockles of another's heart. This person becomes a lot easier to deal with. Use your imagination when seeking out special solutions. Emotions spiral in many different directions. Tonight: Visit with a friend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 Expenses radiate left and right, and you might not be sure what to do. Curb risks and do only what seems secure. A partner attempts to seduce you into thinking like him. Remember that even if this person is willing to risk, your funds are still involved. Tonight: Think through a decision.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 Allow others to see more of the real you. Drop unnecessary defenses. Your ability to zero in on basics helps get you where you want to be. A partner pitches in to become a bigger part of a project. Be careful with a distracting element. Stay anchored. Tonight: Follow your whims.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 Say little. Absorb and observe. Your psychic abilities skyrocket. Your intuition comes through for you. A boss allows you to express more of your ideas. Reorganize your work. Make an appointment to see a doctor or specialist. Just don't let a checkup wait. Tonight: Relax.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 Challenge yourself to remain focused. Others toss monkey wrenches into your work and ideas. What appears to you to be an excellent idea could be put on the back burner by another. Think about this person's perspective, and you'll understand which way to go. Tonight: Lobster up with your friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

 Pressure builds, problems appear with finances and/or communications. Hold on tight for the next few weeks. A family member does his best to distract you. A partner helps you get down to basics. Keep the big picture in mind. Tonight: Work late if need be.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 Your clarity and precision confuse some. You might not be aware of how nebulous you seem. Your mind wanders. A partner tries to anchor you. Rather than reacting in frustration, stay centered. Write down good ideas and work them out with greater precision over the next few weeks. Tonight: Let your mind veg to a movie.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

 Dealing with others, especially about a financial or emotional issue.

LETTERS

Letters summed up situation at play ground perfectly

To the editor,
I write this today for two reasons. First of all, someone has been totally disrespectful and cruel and continues to lie to several families — whoever you are that think you can go steal things from graves are a sick and heartless individual.
Unfortunately, I have three loved ones in Fairview Cemetery. When I went to visit my nephew, Ethan Anderson, 18-months-old, on the Fourth of July, someone had taken a cross and a tractor from his grave site. Why? Is nothing sacred? I read of several others who have experienced this disrespect. I too understand and my heart goes out to you. So to you that take from the graves, please, please stop and God forgive you.

Okay, the second reason I write is in response to last week's two letters.
Mrs. Mitchell our toes are not stepped on. I agree with each word you wrote 100 percent so does my entire family. A year ago our lives were forever altered and I try every day to figure out why.

Nothing ever makes sense of it. I cry a lot over Ethan, for Ethan. He has a new baby sister. He would've loved her so much. His big sister just graduated kindergarten. He would've been proud. He would be turning three in a couple of months but he never had a chance. A few hundred dollars to a few thousand dollars for a fence the city just can't seem to find. I just don't get it. I never will.

To you, Mr. Barton, I say God bless you for saving another family the hell we experienced. You, sir, are a hero. I'm sorry you weren't there March 14, 1999, but Ethan made sure you were there for this child.

Yes, a fence could and would've saved Ethan, that I am sure of. The city won't do anything but put in benches and make plans for restrooms. I guess they can sit back and watch an 18-month-old die and then go to the restroom to hide and make themselves feel better if they don't have to see it.

I too have seen young children near the creek. We can't save the world but putting an appealing attraction (the playground) near the creek was a mistake and the city won't accept that.

To me, it's like putting a gun in one room and the bullets in another, telling a child don't play with these they are separate, yet the instant you look away the gun is loaded for a while. But I haven't let this issue die. I never will. Ethan is gone and I can't change that. I can try to prevent someone else from dying, too.

Thank you for caring those of you who do.

Children and adults should never tease animals ...

To the editor,
I just like to express my views on the dog issue that has been in your paper.

Over the years, I have owned many dogs. It never fails that when I get a new dog there are several children and, yes, adults that tease my pet. I have asked them not to do this. It makes a dog mean. Nonetheless they keep on teasing them.

As a child, I was taught to respect other peoples' pets. I have never teased or thrown rocks or other objects at other peoples' pets. I do not yell or make noises at them either. A dog can not say to them leave me alone. They do bark and this should be a warning to the passerby as saying "this is my home, please leave me alone. Do not torment me." But humans will not listen. They keep doing this.

I have had people walk their pet up to my fence and they want their pet to get to know mine. In the meantime, my dog is warning them to stay back. They stand there until I walk out and ask them to please don't do that. Why are humans so irresponsible in their actions towards pets of others?

I would hate for my dog to get out and grab these people who time after time I have told them to not tease my pet. I would be held responsible for the damage. But a dog bite is not a happy thing to have. I would have to have my beloved pet put to sleep because of the irresponsibility of this person who had been warned time and time again. What a heartbreak this would be to me.

I am an animal lover and I am a people lover, but something has to be done to make us humans realize that animals have feelings too and if they bark or growl it means leave me alone. I don't tease you so you don't tease me. It's not funny watching a dog trying to get at the person doing this. What would that person do if while teasing this animal it got out and said "Hear I am now out and what are you going to do to me now? What am I going to do to you?" Treat animals with respect. They might respect you.

Community loses great sportsman, volunteer

To the editor,
Pampa lost a very giving member of our community Tuesday when Dick Henley passed away.

Dick was an enthusiastic supporter of activities for youth in Pampa. "Dick's life revolved around the kids he coached," said his wife of 15 years, Cel. "He coached both our boys, Chance and Dylan, in baseball, football and basketball. He also attended Calee's softball games."

Dick has been very active in Optimist Club activities for the last 15 years. He was a coach of the Operating Company Cowboys in the Optimist Tiger League Football program for 14 years. Mondo Ramirez handled the offense. Dick coached the defense. During the last five years, their record was 48-10. Dick coached over 200 fourth, fifth and sixth grade boys in the last five years in the Optimist football program. His players will remember his enthusiasm and the many times he lead them in their team's cheer. He had a positive impact on their lives.

This season Dick was the manager of the Celanese Corporation team in the Optimist Cal Ripken 11-12 Baseball League. He coached Optimist baseball for 15 years. He has worked with the all star team several times including the past three years. He also coached in the Optimist basketball program for four years and was a soccer coach for two years.

When my daughter was the director of Tralee Crisis Center, Dick was the only male volunteer to serve as a rape crisis counselor. He had great empathy for people.

He was active in the Central Baptist Church. He worked for the Jordan Unit as a food service sergeant for the last six years.

I will remember Dick most for his characteristic smile which was so large it seemed as though his whole body was smiling. I will also remember him as a patient teacher. Just the other day he was showing the 11-12-year-old all stars how to get a better jump on the ball by being on their toes. He prepared his players well for each game. He taught them to play the game fairly.

He was a great competitor. He was my friend. I will miss him.

FPC names new dean

Jacobs plans to continue his current involvement in selecting, training, placing and evaluating faculty, staff and administrative personnel in instructional services.

BORGER — After conducting a nationwide search for a vice president/dean of Instruction, Frank Phillips College selected Duane Jacobs, pending official approval by the board of regents at the next scheduled meeting. Jacobs has been interim vice president/dean since Dr. Herbert J. Swender was promoted president in February.

Jacobs plans to continue his current involvement in selecting, training, placing and evaluating faculty, staff and administrative personnel in instructional services. In addition, he will devote his energies to developing, maintaining, implementing and evaluating the district's and service area's educational offerings in academic, vocational (WECM-based) and continuing education.

Other responsibilities include: 1) insuring the approval and accreditation of instructional programs within the college, state, regional and national guidelines for degree or certification requirements and 2) developing and implementing short- and long-term instructional planning related to instructional personnel, facilities and curriculum development.

Jacobs holds a bachelor of science degree in mathematics, a minor in physics and a master of arts degree in mathematics from Eastern New Mexico University in Portales. He has completed requirements for Texas Teaching Certificate from West Texas State University in Canyon where he began his career as an instructor of mathematics.

From 1973-84, Jacobs taught mathematics and coached at Sanford-Fritch ISD. He has served at FPC as an instructor of math, physics and computer information systems since 1984. In 1991, he also had duties as coordinator of Instructional Research and served as division chair of math, science and physical education prior to being interim vice president/dean of Instruction.

TCTA holds summer leadership conference at state capitol

AUSTIN — About 300 members of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association gathered recently at the state Capitol in the chambers of the House of Representatives to discuss education issues and hear the views of three state legislators.

TCTA's top three priorities for the 77th legislative session include a trio of educator compensation packages: health insurance, salaries and retirement benefits. At one legislative briefing, TCTA member's heard from three legislators who have played critical roles in these areas — Rep. Sherri Greenberg, D-Austin; Rep. Jim McReynolds, D-Lufkin; and Rep. Ruth Jones McClendon, D-San Antonio.

Most school districts in Texas do not provide health insurance for employees, and one of TCTA's top legislative priorities for the upcoming session is to seek a state-funded health insurance program to benefit every school employee in the state.

In her address, Rep. Greenberg agreed this is a critical issue for Texas teachers. She cautioned, however, that many issues must be resolved for a program to win legislative approval. Prior to her address, TCTA presented Greenberg a certificate for her years of service in the Legislature and public education advocacy. The Austin representative did not run for re-election to her legislative post.

Rep. McReynolds shared his perspective as a member of the House Appropriations Committee, discussing educator salaries. During the last session, the Texas Legislature spent more than $2 billion to provide an across-the-board increase to Texas teachers, and bills providing similar increases are expected to be filed in the next session, which begins in January 2001.

Rep. McClendon discussed the Teacher Retirement System and announced her commitment to file a bill to increase the TRS multiplier from its current 2.20 percent to 2.25 percent. She filed a bill in the last session to provide a 2.25 percent multiplier, but the measure failed after actuarial projections indicated the system could only afford a 2.20 percent multiplier.

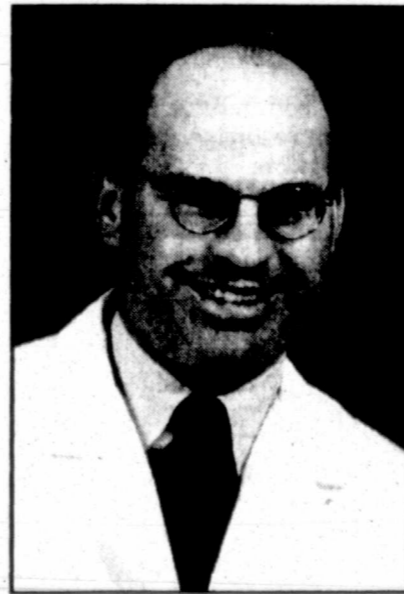

"Even after the benefit improvements of last session, the TRS fund is performing so strongly with its investments that it is overfunded by more than $1 billion," TCTA President Cathy Hord said. "TRS officials are concerned about the increasing costs from benefit enhancements such as a multiplier increase, but the fund is exceedingly healthy and should be able to afford the 2.25 percent multiplier without endangering its fiscal well-being."

The teachers attended the legislative briefing as part of TCTA's summer leadership conference. TCTA, which has 40,000 members across the state, is a nonunion professional association for teachers and is the only Texas educator group that limits members to public school teachers and related nonadministrative education personnel.

OLYMPICS
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Jackie Joyner-Kersey, bidding for her fifth Olympic team, returned to competition after a two-year absence and qualified for the long jump final in the U.S. Olympic trials.

Marion Jones won her first-round heat in the 100 meters in 10.92 seconds, then joined Joyner-Kersey in Sunday's long jump final, soaring 21-6 3/4 twice before fouling.

Maurice Greene, who failed to make the 1996 team, won his 100 meters heat in 9.93, only 0.02 seconds off his world-best this season.

Gail Devers, the two-time Olympic gold medalist, broke 11 seconds for the first time this year, winning her heat at 10.99.

Jeff Hartwig, the American record-holder in the pole vault and the world leader this year, missed three times to clear his opening height of 18-2 1/4 and failed to advance to Sunday's final.

BASKETBALL
LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Free agent Tracy McGrady, who was courted by three NBA teams in the past week, announced he is choosing the Orlando Magic because he wants to play close to home.

The native of Auburndale, Fla., about 40 miles southwest of Orlando, will likely sign a six-year deal worth $67.5 million. NBA rules prohibit him from signing until Aug. 1.

GOLF
GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Notah Begay and Tom Lehman shot 3-under par 68s to join Ernie Els in the third-round lead of the Loch Lomond invitational.

They were at 8-under-par 205, a stroke ahead of defending champion Colin Montgomerie, who moved into contention with a 68 and Nick Faldo, who had a 70.

BASEBALL
NEW YORK (AP) — After listening to an analysis of their economic problems, baseball owners voted to put off realignment until 2002 at the earliest.

Owners unanimously adopted the return to an unbalanced schedule, in which teams play more games against their division rivals. The American League had gone to a balanced schedule in 1977 and the National League followed in 1993.

Baseball admitted its clubs had a collective $1.4 billion in operating losses since the start of the 1994-95 strike and are a collective $2.1 billion in debt. Only three teams — the New York Yankees, Cleveland and Colorado — have been profitable since the strike.

Baseball panel urges increase in revenue sharing

NEW YORK (AP) — After concluding baseball is drowning in red ink, the sport's latest economic study committee recommended a huge increase in revenue sharing, and perhaps even moving franchises.

As part of the panel's report, baseball admitted its clubs had $1.4 billion in operating losses since the start of the 1994-95 strike and are $2.1 billion in debt. Only three teams — the New York Yankees, Cleveland and Colorado — have been profitable since the strike.

The four-man group didn't say the sport needs a salary cap and didn't recommend changes to free agency or salary arbitration.

Instead, the committee urged a 50 percent luxury tax on payrolls above $84 million; proposed sharing 40-50 percent of local revenues after ballpark expenses; and recommended that new national broadcasting, licensing and Internet revenue be distributed unequally to assist low-revenue clubs, provided that they meet a minimum payroll of $40 million.

"We do not pretend to believe these changes will be easy or universally popular," said former Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, one of the panelists. "We do believe them to be a solution to the alarming disparities between baseball's haves and have-nots."

Also on the panel were former Federal Reserve board chairman Paul Volcker, Yale president Richard Levin and political commentator George Will.

The Yankees, with a payroll of about $115 million including benefits, would have to pay a tax of about $15 million this year under the committee's proposed formula, and their revenue-sharing bill would increase from $25 million to $40 million or higher. Minnesota has the low payroll, about $20 million.

No changes are possible until after baseball's current labor agreement expires. Union head Donald Fehr said the union is likely to exercise its option to extend the current labor contract through the 2001 season, a decision that must be made by Aug. 31, but said he needed time to study the 87-page report before responding in detail on its findings.

"There is no hard cap. Obviously, that is good," Fehr said. "Hopefully, that issue is behind us."

The union agreed to a luxury tax for the 1997-99 seasons, but it affected only the top five teams by payroll each year at a rate of 34-35 percent and had only a slight drag on payroll growth.

During the 232-day strike, which wiped out the World Series for the first time in 90 years, the union resisted any attempt to impose a salary cap or a tax that would have a large impact on slowing salary growth.

To back up its contention that disparity between the large and small markets has grown, the committee cited statistics showing that teams among the top 50 percent of payrolls won all 158 post-season games in the last five years and that nine of the 10 teams in the World Series were among the top 25 percent of payrolls.

The suggestion that baseball study relocating teams is likely to stir the most debate. Baseball has not moved a team since the Washington Senators became the Texas Rangers after the 1971 season.

"If an area doesn't want to support a team, that answers itself," Volcker said.

Montreal, Florida, Minnesota and Oakland all have run into problems obtaining new ballparks.

"Clubs that have little likelihood of securing a new ballpark or other revenue-enhancing activities should have the opportunity to relocate," Mitchell said.

For now, the committee opposed eliminating teams — an idea being discussed by some owners.

It also mentioned that moving additional teams to large markets — such as New York, Chicago and Los Angeles — "could serve to reduce the revenue disparity."

The Yankees, who have won two straight World Series and three of four, generated the most revenue last season, $177.9 million, while Montreal generated the least, $48.8 million.

According to the report, only the Yankees ($64.5 million), Cleveland ($45.9 million) and Colorado ($12.4 million) generated an operating profit from 1995-99.

San Francisco's $97 million operating loss from 1995-99 was the highest. As an industry, baseball had an operating loss of $212 million last year on revenue of $2.787 billion.

The panel recommended that players born outside the United States be included in the amateur draft, that the eight playoff teams lose their first-round draft picks the following year and that high school and college players be forced to declare themselves eligible for the draft, which would decrease their bargaining leverage.

It also said there should be an annual "competitive balance draft" in which the teams with the worst eight records take a player not on a 40-man roster from a postseason team.

The Pampa Sidekicks, an Under 14 Boys outdoor soccer team recently won first place in the Amarillo Classic XV tournament. Over 106 teams competed in the overall event, eight in this division alone. Sidekick members are, back row from left, assistant coach Robert Doss, Joshua Tabor, Derrick Lewis, Louis Campos, Eugene Abernathy, Adam Brown, Mateo Campos and head coach Benny Silva. Center row, from left, Drew Morrison, David Burns, John Doss, Andrew Fraser, Manuel Navarret, Mark Murray and, front row from left, Dusty Lenderman, Dennis Shuck and Sammy Silva.

Armstrong goes to mountains intent on increasing his lead

DRAGUIGNAN, France (AP) — Lance Armstrong is going back to the mountains, intent not only on holding his Tour de France lead, but increasing it.

Armstrong finished a strong second in the tour's two mountain stages at Lourdes-Hautacam and Mont Ventoux. On both occasions, he had energy to spare, while the winners struggled across the line.

The 28-year-old Texan held a 4-minute, 55-second lead over Jan Ullrich going into Saturday's 14th stage, which heads into the Alps and includes a giant climb up the 8,000-foot Col d'Izoard.

Sunday sees another climb further into the Alps. Ullrich gave up any chance of winning the race after Friday's stage, which was won by Jose Vicente Garcia-Acosta of Spain.

"I think that Armstrong will be first in Paris. I am just going to concentrate on second place," Ullrich said.

U.S. Postal rider Cedric Vasseur said his teammate deserves to retain the title.

"Lance has shown what a great climber he is," the Frenchman said. "The win last year gave the whole team so much confidence. The team is physically better than it was last week and we are in a great state of mind."

"On Saturday, the objective is to lead Lance as far as possible."

Armstrong finished 27th in the 13th stage, 10:06 behind the winner, and crossed the line in the same group as Ullrich.

Though his main challengers have given up hope of winning the tour, there are plenty of chances for other riders to get some glory with stage wins.

Friday's leg saw a third success for Spain, after Once's team trial win and Javier Otxoa's success at Lourdes-Hautacam.

Banesto's Garcia-Acosta broke away from the leading riders with seven miles to go and brilliantly held off the challenges of two Frenchmen, Nicolas Jalabert and Pascal Herve, to win in 4 hours, 3 minutes, 2 seconds.

Jalabert came second in the 115-mile route from Avignon to Draguignan, 25 seconds back, with Herve third, a further two seconds behind.

"To win a stage of an international race is a lot, but to win a stage in the tour is a dream," the 27-year-old Garcia-Acosta said. "The route went well. I attacked at the right moment and went through 'til the end."

As it was Bastille Day, France's national day, the thousands of fans that lined the hilly route to Draguignan in southeast France had high hopes.

In warm, sunny conditions Frenchman Didier Rous made a brave bid to be the first home winner of a Bastille Day stage since 1997 by storming to a 5-minute lead.

He was caught, and with 37 miles to race, he was among a group of 13 riders, seven of them French, with a 6:30 lead over the U.S. Postal-led group.

With 32 miles left, Garcia-Costa made a sterling break. Jalabert and Herve, roared on by French fans, went in pursuit, but weren't strong enough, and Garcia-Acosta rode the final seven miles alone.

Armstrong will have plenty of competition in Saturday's tough 155-mile climb from Draguignan to Briancon.

"I think that there will be some real competition in Saturday's stage," said France's Richard Virenque, who has won the King of the Mountains prize in four of the last five years. "I am really looking forward to it because I like the style of legs that are coming up."

PUC adopts Retail Electric Provider regulations

■ The PUC adopted new rules that define the conditions REPs must meet before they may provide retail service to customers. Under these rules, only a company that has the technical, managerial and financial capability to operate reliably in a competitive market will be granted a certificate as a REP.

AUSTIN — The Public Utility Commission recently established standards for retailers of electricity to operate in the competitive electric market that begins in 2002. The standards will ensure competitive retailers, called Retail Electric Providers, are capable of providing reliable electric service in the competitive market.

The PUC adopted new rules that define the conditions REPs must meet before they may provide retail service to customers. Under these rules, only a company that has the technical, managerial and financial capability to operate reliably in a competitive market will be granted a certificate as a REP. Additional detailed rules for customer protection will be developed in later regulations.

Under Senate Bill 7, the electric restructuring law passed by the Texas Legislature and signed by Gov. Bush in 1999, competition in the retail sale of electricity will begin Jan. 1, 2002. This bill requires investor-owned utilities to split their operations into entities that produce electricity, deliver it to customers and sell electricity at retail. In addition, other companies are expected to enter the business of selling electricity at retail. All of these companies will be required to obtain certification from the commission as a REP in order to compete for retail customers.

The key elements of the rules set requirements for REPs for financial and technical capability. To be initially certified, a REP must hold an investment grade credit rating, have $50 million of net worth or have cash resources of $100,000.

The rules prohibit transmission and distribution utilities from imposing further credit requirements unless a REP defaults in payment or the transmission and distribution utility is billing to recover securitized assets.

REPs must have the technical capability to procure and schedule power for their retail customers and provide customer service and protection in accordance with commission rules. REPs will be subject to PUC enforcement actions including penalties, suspensions and revocations for violations.

The credit standards for REPs who bill and collect charges for securitized funds were recently adopted in several financing orders issued by the commission. The commission has incorporated the standards in the rules so the standards will be the same for all Texas utilities that collect charges for securitized funds.

The rule is designed to encourage entry in the competitive retail electric industry by removing barriers to entry and promoting a vibrant, diverse and dynamic market of REPs competing for retail customers' business.

The rules become effective Sept. 1 and are posted on the PUC website at www.puc.state.tx.us under Project No. 21082.

Local 4-Hers participate in livestock judging contest

Gray County 4-H and Hutchinson County 4-H earned top recognition at the Seward County Community College Livestock Judging Camp and Competition held recently in Liberal, Kan. Seven Gray County and two Hutchinson County 4-Hers competed. Participants from six states attended the event.

Courtney Crawford of Gray Co. 4-H competed in the intermediate level and placed second over-all with a perfect score of 50 in Bulls, Heifers and Hogs.

Shelby Clements of Hutchinson Co. 4-H placed second over-all in the Junior Division, scoring a perfect 50 in each of four categories — Bulls, Heifers, Market Lambs and Market Hogs. He missed the first place standing by two points. Clements is the grandson of the late Ed Brainard of Pampa.

Lindsay Price competed in the senior level division and scored two perfect scores in Bulls and Heifers. Courtney Crawford and Drake Jackson competed in the Intermediate Level. The remaining participants competed in the Junior Level: Misty Parish, 50 in Market Hogs and Heifers; Jessica Baggerman, 50 in Bulls and Heifers; and Meagan Crawford, 50 in Bulls.

Center for Rural Health Initiatives announces public hearing on health care issues in offing

HEREFORD — Rural community representatives, health care providers and citizens will have an opportunity to comment on rural health care issues and concerns at a public hearing slated from 1-3 p.m. July 21 in the City of Hereford Community Center in Hereford. All comments expressed at the hearing will be considered for possible inclusion in an upcoming report to the governor and the 77th Legislature.

The full report, due out in January 2001, will be written and published by the sponsor of the hearing, the Texas State Office of Rural Health, the Center for Rural Health Initiatives. The center is responsible for providing feedback to the legislature through its biennial report to the legislature, which serves as a guide for addressing rural healthcare needs.

The focus of the hearing includes the following subjects:

—the mission, goals and objectives of how the center can work to assist rural communities in meeting rural health care needs;

—ways for the state to effectively and creatively address the unmet health care needs of rural communities; and

—ways to coordinate the administration and delivery of rural health care service with federal, state and local public and private programs that provide similar services.

"These hearings are a tremendous opportunity for rural Texans to be active participants in the planning process for their health care future. Everyone is invited to express their views and suggestions," explained Robt. J. "Sam" Tessen, executive director of the center.

For more information contact Nora Cox Taylor at the center at (512) 479-8891, toll-free 1-877-839-2744, or e-mail the center at crhi@crhi.state.tx.us.

Anyone who wishes to testify may sign up at the hearing site to do so. Written testimony may also be submitted to: Center for Rural Health Initiatives, P.O. Drawer 1708, Austin, TX 78767-1708.

3rd Annual Water Garden Show

This unique pond at the Gary and Donna Stevens residence at 1019 N. Frost is one visitors will find fascinating on the Third Annual Water Garden Show and Pond Tour on Aug. 5. The Stevens' built the pond with 30 tons of rocks which were brought in for the project. The soothing sound of a large waterfall will be a welcome feature to visitors. Many of the aquatic plants in the pond are native to this area.

Cannas provide bright colors in the backyard area at the Gary and Donna Stevens residence. Visitors will be able to enjoy the beautiful flowers on the Aug. 5 tour.

This small pond is nestled in a corner of the Loyd Waters' backyard. An old fashioned pump, provides a decorative touch to the water garden area.

This spectacular view of the backyard of Lance and Brooke LeFevre can be seen Aug. 5 during the Third Annual Water Garden Tour sponsored by the Las Pampas Koi and Water Garden Society.

A small bridge allows visitors' access from the patio area to the small pond area of the Harlen and Christy Hoganson residence. The shaded area provides a respite during the hot summer days.

Exotic Koi fish enjoy the waters of the pond at the Loyd and Thelma Waters residence. The Waters' residence is one of 17 locations on the Aug. 5 Third Annual Pond Tour.

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Beautiful water gardens and ponds are snuggled in many backyards of several Pampa residences, are immensely enjoyed by their owners. The local aquatic enthusiasts will open their yards for the public to enjoy the 3rd Annual Water Garden Tour on Aug. 5.

Exotic Japanese and domestic Koi fish swim throughout the ponds which have countless gorgeous aquatic plants including water lilies, cattails, papyrus, water canna and pennywort. Additional aquatic plants in the ponds are horsetail rush, umbrella palm, parrot feather, floating heart and iris.

Pampa and area residents will be enthralled at the lush beauty of the water gardens and ponds located in the heart of the Texas Panhandle.

Los Pampas Koi and Water Garden Society was formed locally in 1998. A small group of pond buffs formed a club to share ideas and information about water gardening and fish health, and to hold a pond tour.

The first tour was in September, 1998, and featured six ponds. In 1999, 14 ponds were featured on the popular tour. Proceeds from that tour were used to defray the cost of the materials for a water scape just east of the entrance of the Clarendon College Pampa center. The project was designed and built by Paul Coronis.

The "Book of Knowledge" is made of concrete, and lays on a pedestal standing five feet tall at the center of the of the area.

Proceeds from the 2000 tour will be used to complete the project to include shrubs, benches, rock work around the base of the fountain and flower beds. The patio area around the water scape will also be completed.

Ponds on the tour range in all sizes. Some are small with a 150 gallon capacity while others will hold over 6,000 gallons of water.

The owners have designed, built and provided the finishing touches on the water garden areas. A rapidly growing interest across the country, ponds and water gardens often begin as hobbies and grow into profitable ventures.

Local residents of all ages have become involved in the ponds and water gardens. Interest in the water gardens continues to grow as more and more people are becoming involved in the avocation.

The objective of the local society is to promote interest, appreciation and enjoyment of water gardens and their surrounding natural habitat through education, exchange of information, ideas and experiences. The annual tour helps to promote community awareness and interest in water gardening.

Soothing waterfalls in many of the ponds provide a relaxing atmosphere. Many tropical plants and statuary also stand in the water garden and pond areas.

Benches located in the areas give their owners and visitors a place to sit while enjoying the breathtakingly beautiful water gardens and ponds. Exotic fish as well as native and tropical plants are found in the water areas.

Fourteen residential ponds and water gardens will be on the tour for the public while three commercial ponds have been added to the list this year.

The Clarendon College project is one of three commercial locations new to the 2000 water garden tour. Fairview Cemetery and Watson's Garden Center are also new sites to be enjoyed by those participating in the tour.

The tour has been changed from Sunday afternoon to 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday to expand the hours available for public viewing.

Meetings are held the second Monday of each month at the home of different members of the society. Anyone interested in becoming a member may contact Lance DeFever, 665-0205.

Members of the Las Pampas Koi and Water Garden Society encourage those touring the ponds to ask questions while enjoying the tour. People who are interested in stalling a pond along with the Koi and exotic plants will find the August 5 tour a perfect opportunity to learn about the water projects as they visit with the owners.

Pampa youth attends Camp Sweeney

GAINESVILLE — Megan David of Pampa recently attended Camp Sweeney, located east of Gainesville. Camp Sweeney is a camp for young people who have diabetes. Each summer, Camp Sweeney offers over 600 youth, between the ages of 6 and 18, a fun and educational atmosphere to help them grow and develop an active, responsible lifestyle to manage their diabetes.

With its 340 acres, including Lake Dealey, the camp offers a life-time foundation in such vital needs as blood-glucose monitoring, insulin injections, diet and exercise. Around-the-clock medical attention is offered by the 80-member staff including training on the importance of a healthy lifestyle in coping with diabetes.

Camp Sweeney offers many activities including: horseback riding, soccer, crafts, swimming and publications. Camp Sweeney operates a radio station at KPFC 91.9 FM and can be found on the worldwide web at www.campsweeney.org.

Camp Sweeney began as the dream of Dr. J. Shirley Sweeney, an endocrinologist, and has grown since 1950 to meet the ever-increasing demand for its special programs. It has now served over 12,000 youth.

About 95 percent of the campers receive scholarship aid to defray tuition costs. Camp Sweeney is funded from individuals, foundations and the United Way. The camp is operated by the Southwestern Diabetic Foundation, Inc., P.O. Box 918, Gainesville, TX 76241, (940) 665-9502.

Bobby Glenn Walton

The United States Achievement Academy recently announced United States National Award Winners from the area. The following Pampa students were chosen USAA award winners in various categories: Bobby Glen Walton, Pampa High School, "Honor Roll".

The Academy recognizes fewer than 10 percent of all American high school students. The PHS student was nominated for the award by counselor Starla Kindle. All USAA award-winners will appear in the USAA Official Yearbook, published nationally.

The Academy selects USAA winners based upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors and other qualified sponsors and upon academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit and dependability.

Walton is the son of Randy and Pam Carter of Pampa and is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby J. Brazil and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carter, all of Pampa. His honors, activities and accomplishments include: Who's Who Among American High School Students; Distinguished Achievement Program; D-Fy-It Advisory Board; Theater 1,2,3; Theater 2 play "There's Something Rotten in Denmark"; Theater 3 UIL one-act play "A Thrusting Place"; and mission trips to Mexico, 1998, and Guyana, South America, 1999-00.

Holden is the daughter of Kim Holden of Pampa and Steve Holden of Houston and is the granddaughter of Buster and Jodi Bachtell and Don and Wynelle Holden, all of Tulsa, Okla.

LAWRENCE, Kan. — The University of Kansas recently announced students named to its honor roll for the 2000 spring semester.

Students named to the honor list include: Christa Cher Jefferis of Pampa. Honor roll criteria vary among the academic units of the university. Jefferis is a senior enrolled in KU's School of Pharmacy.

DENTON — Among a number of new initiatives at Texas Woman's University that celebrate the school's upcoming Centennial in 2001 is the prestigious TWU Centennial Scholarship program, which provides Texas state legislators with an opportunity to nominate two outstanding students from their district to attend TWU. Pampa resident Ashley Laycock, nominated by Rep. Warren Chisum of District 88, is the recipient of a TWU Centennial Scholarship for 2000-01.

Laycock, who plans to major in dental hygiene, will begin her college career at TWU during the fall 2000 semester. The scholarship will provide her with $1,000 for each academic year toward her educational expenses, to a maximum of four years. Chisum already has presented Laycock with a certificate for her TWU Centennial Scholarship.

According to criteria for the TWU Centennial Scholarship, recipients: must be new students, beginning in fall semester 2000; must be full-time students; must have a minimum grade average of "B" or 3.0 on a 4.0 scale in high school or in previous college work to be eligible; must maintain a grade point average of 3.0 for undergraduates or 3.5 for graduate students to continue the scholarship after the first year.

CANYON — West Texas A&M University held commencement ceremonies at the conclusion of the 2000 spring semester.

Students awarded diplomas included: Jay F. Belcher, bachelor of science degree; Kelley B. Bilyeu, BS, magna cum laude; Jessica A. Dawes, BS, magna cum laude; Kelley M. Ford, master of science degree; Evelyn K. Horst, BS; Mitzi R. McClelland, master of arts degree; Matthew J. Melao, BS, cum laude; Barry M. Richards, bachelor of applied arts and sciences degree; and Chad E. Ziegelgruber, BS, all of Pampa.

CANYON — West Texas A&M University recently announced students named to its President's and Dean's Lists for the 2000 spring semester. To be eligible for the President's List, a student must maintain a 3.85-4.0 grade point average while enrolled in 12 or more semester hours. Students named to the list include: Jessica A. Dawes, Victoria L. Fossett, Lara L. Hampton, Christopher R. McKean, Tammy D. Parsley, Adrienne K. Ragsdale, Aubreanne E. Ward, Brenda V. Zedlitz, all of Pampa; and Cathryn F. Pesch of Skellytown.

To be eligible for the Dean's List, a student must maintain a 3.25-3.85 GPA while enrolled in 12 or more semester hours. Students named to the list include: Tami R. Brookshire, Annie M. Carlisle, Eric M. Cochran, Charles A. Dallas, Ryan C. Davis, Shawn L. Dawes, Derahian T. Evans, Karen L. Gordy, Cory L. Griggs, Justin L. Hampton, Shawn M. Harris, Evelyn K. Horst, Joshua M. STOP SMOKING with HYPNOSIS 110% Seminar Guarantee

Regardless of your past experience trying to quit, no matter how long you've been smoking or how many packs a day you smoke, this program is designed so you can stop smoking tonight with no anxiety, no irritability and no weight gain. Yes, that's right. You can stop smoking, not just cut down, but stop smoking by seminar's end. 110% seminar guarantee.

You will experience two hypnotic sessions this evening to eliminate your desire and craving for cigarettes. With Our Method of Clinical Hypnosis, you enter a deep, relaxed state of hypnosis where you are awake, aware and IN CONTROL.

By tapping the power of your subconscious mind, the hypnosis is designed to eliminate your craving for cigarettes in everyday life situations - in the morning, at work, while driving, on the phone, in the presence of smokers.

Will it work for me? Whether you are a casual or long term smoker, the hypnosis is designed so you will leave this seminar as a NON-SMOKER with no anxiety, no irritability and no weight gain.
