PAMPA — It's time for the parents of upcoming PHS grads to get together and plan the 1999 Senior Prom. There'll be a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 8, in the high school library. Parents are urged to attend. For more information call Kim Allison at 669-7632 or Susie Lindsey at 669-7563.

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A Texas A&M University freshman, distraught over his grades, leaped to his death Tuesday from the fourth floor of a campus parking garage. William E. Berry Jr., 19, jumped over a ledge of the Northside Parking Garage after police officers spent nearly 20 minutes trying to talk him out of suicide, said University Police Director Bob Wiatt. He was an agricultural engineering major from Hewitt, Texas. "He thanked them for trying to help and said he appreciated what they were trying to do, but he had his mind made up," Wiatt said.

Inside today — the Pride '99 edition

By KATE B. DICKSON
Associate Publisher

The Pampa News today brings you its biggest and best newspaper of the year — The 1999 Pride edition.

During the past four months, staff members have worked diligently on this most significant publication that profiles Pampa and the Gray County area's most valuable assets — its businesses, people and places.

This 76-page Pride '99 is about the spirit, strength and soul of our community.

The special sections are: From Whence We Came, The Learning Tree, Faith and Inspiration, Made in These Parts, A Walk With Friends, Images, Another Horizon, Columbia Medical Center, and the Pampa Economic Development Commission.

In each of the Pride '99 sections we have focused on the people who give their time and themselves for the good of their community and the concerns each of them represent.

Some of those featured are well-known because of their involvement in community affairs — others work less publicly, but all have contributed in significant ways, making our county and area unique.

A new section this year — Images — was created by our readers. It's a collection of photos divided into three categories, critters, friends and family and countryside.

Because the response to Images was overwhelming, we picked photos for the section but because so many good ones were sent, we'll continue to run them in The Pampa News during the weeks to come.

We hope that Pride '99 creates among our readers a sense of dignity and worth about the people in our area of the Texas Panhandle.

Pride '99 has required extra effort on the part of every member of the newspaper staff, from those in advertising, the front office, newsroom, composing, circulation and the pressroom where each copy was assembled by hand for you, our readers.

It has involved the assistance of many area merchants and businesses, as well as individuals, who allowed us to represent them in this special edition.

The Pampa News salutes you, Pampa and the Gray County area, with Pride.

Housing effort looks to increase affordable homes

By JEFF WEST
Staff Writer

The age-old question — which comes first, the housing or the tenants — has an obvious answer, according to Housing Conference Coordinator Charles Henry.

"If we can get houses built then possible industry that will be bringing employees with them will have a place they can afford to buy," he said.

In order to help get low-to-moderate income housing built in Pampa, the PEDC is helping sponsor a housing conference April 29 for federal, state, county, school and city officials as well as area business leaders. It's an effort to find ways to increase the availability of housing in Pampa.

Among those to be at the conference are representatives from the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs, HUD, PRPC, USDA, Panhandle Community Services and bank representatives.

Henry said there are probably enough multi-housing units

(apartments) available but if a large-to-medium company wanted to bring 30-40 or more employees into town "we couldn't house them."

The conference will look at various state and federal programs that help finance low-to-moderate housing.

Interim PEDC Director Susan Tripplehorn said there has been one house built in Pampa recently and it cost about $75 a square

Driver dies on I-40 No seat belt; man ejected

Another one-car rollover yesterday claimed the life of the fourth person to die in Wheeler County wrecks in two weeks.

The accident occurred about 11:30 yesterday morning on I-40 approximately five miles west of Shamrock.

Ronald M. Rothman, 66, of Girard, Ohio, was driving east on I-40 when he apparently drifted onto the center median, according to DPS Trooper L.B. Snider in Amarillo.

Rothman over corrected his 1997 Buick and ran into the bar ditch on the other side of the highway, Snider said. Rothman's car flipped three and a half times. Because Rothman was not wearing his seat belt, he was ejected.

He was taken to Shamrock General Hospital where he was pronounced dead at 11:55 a.m.

Snider noted that most of the fatalities in Wheeler County have involved ejections of people not wearing their seat belts.

Drivers cautioned

With three car/pedestrian accidents in two days this week Pampa Police want to advise drivers to watch for those on foot.

"There's been an unusual number of accidents involving pedestrians recently and we want to remind drivers to be careful and to really watch for small children as they can dart in the path of cars rather quickly," said Pampa Police Sgt. Terry Young.

Two accidents involved young children running into the path of cars, the third happened when a woman was hit on the Albertson's parking lot. That accident is still under investigation, Young said. All three pedestrians were treated and released.

What's up?

After years on the market, a sold sign has gone up in front of the old Coca-Cola Bottling Co. plant on Hobart Street. But just who the buyer is and what will be done with the building "can't be disclosed right now," says Gail Sanders of Corral Real Estate. A check at the courthouse reveals no property filings to date.

Thornberry has mixed emotions over Kosovo

By DAVID BOWSER
 Staff Writer

PANHANDLE -- Congressman Mac Thornberry said he initially disagreed with sending U.S. troops to the Balkans, but now he's not sure what to do.

"What are our options now?" he asked his constituents who gathered Monday night at the Square House Museum for a town meeting with the 13th District Congressman. "I don't see any options at all."

Thornberry said to back out now would send the wrong message to every would be despot around the world and paint the United States as a country that would never take action.

On the other hand, he said, to accomplish anything in the Balkans would require sending troops into Kosovo, something he adamantly opposes.

"This is a lose, lose, lose situation from here on out," Thornberry said.

In addition to the danger to U.S. personnel, Thornberry expressed the fear that fighting in the Balkans could cost the federal government its projected surplus.

"At a million dollars a missile, it's not going to take long," he said.

Thornberry said that to date, since the government is still operating in the 1999 fiscal year, the President is using monies appropriated for other military uses to fund military action in Serbia and Kosovo. Thornberry said that could impact other needs for the military, although he said in the budget Congress passed last Thursday, there is an additional $12 billion for the military next year.

In answer to questions from his audience concerning the President's authority to make war, Thornberry pointed to the War Powers Act passed by Congress in the mid-1970s. Under it, the President could send troops into conflicts but only with Congressional approval under certain conditions.

Thornberry noted, however, that every President from Richard Nixon, when the act was first passed, through Bill Clinton has insisted the act is unconstitutional. The President, under the U.S. Constitution, is the Commander-in-Chief of the military, but, Thornberry said, only Congress can constitutionally declare war.

"As a practical matter," Thornberry said, "Congress doesn't have to pay for it."

Congress controls the purse strings under the Constitution.

"But the difficulty is what do you do once the troops are committed," he said.

The Constitutionality of the War Powers Act has never been tested although there have been several attempts. Thornberry acknowledged that there must be some sort of check over the deployment of troops in combat conditions, but in an emergency, the President can't have his hands tied too tightly. He said some sort of balance must be found.

"There's some big questions we've never answered," Thornberry said.

foot. That would make the cost of a 1,500-square-foot house about $112,500.

"Families making $30,000 a year can't afford that," she said.

Tripplehorn said this conference will hopefully bring business people and government agencies together to help finance the start of some construction.

Henry and Tripplehorn will address the Gray County Commissioners Court at 9 a.m. Thursday. They'll ask that the county, along with city and school officials, donate some delinquent tax properties to the housing committee to permit low-income housing to be built.

Orchestra announces final show

AMARILLO — The Amarillo Symphony's Randel Chamber Orchestra will present the third and final performance of their 1998-99 Season at 8 p.m. Friday, April 16. The concert will be held at First Baptist Church, at Eleventh and Tyler in Amarillo. Tickets will not be available at the door for this performance. They must be purchased in advance from the Symphony office. General admission tickets are $10 and senior citizen/student tickets are available for $5. A reception for the audience and artists will follow the performance.

Amarillo Symphony Music Director James Setapen will conduct the performance of the Chamber Orchestra and the combined performance with the Amarillo Symphony Youth Orchestra. "I'm looking forward to doing great repertoire with the Youth Orchestra," said Setapen. "It may be the first time many of these students have performed a major work by Beethoven." The Randel Chamber Orchestra will be also joined by the Grand Prize winner of the Amarillo Symphony Guild's Young Performers' Competition. The competition was held in January and violinist Ilana Setapen was chosen as the winner.

Ms. Setapen is a sophomore at Amarillo High School. She began studying the violin at age 3 in Denver, Colo. She is currently the concertmaster of her school orchestra and the Amarillo Symphony Youth Orchestra. For the past two years, she was concertmaster for the All-Region High School Orchestra and in the first violin section of the All-State Symphonic Orchestra in San Antonio. Ms. Setapen is the daughter of James and Carol Setapen. "Since this is the first time I've conducted my daughter in a solo performance with orchestra, it is one of the most special concerts of my life," said Setapen. "It is also specially important to me because I will be conducting my son in an orchestra and also the first time all four members of my family will be performing together in concert." (Adam Setapen, a cellist in the Youth Orchestra, is the younger son of the Setapens. Carol is associate concertmaster of the Amarillo Symphony.)

First Christian Church will present "Master, Is It I?," a special Easter program at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 1. Appearing in the program are (left-right) Duane Cash, Ron Hayes and E.E. Shulz.

First Christian to present Easter drama

Beginning at 7 p.m., Thursday, April 1, Pampanans are invited to watch as 12 ordinary men from the 20th century transform themselves into a dozen ordinary men from the first century. For a brief time, they will walk in the sandals of Jesus' disciples. "Master, Is It I?," a dramatic presentation based on Leonardo Da Vinci's painting "The Last Supper," is to be held in First Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) Sanctuary, 1633 N.

Nelson. The Easter drama is free and open to the public. Since 1986, Max Presnell has directed the performance of the 12 church members, many of whom have participated for 13 years. The drama, a tableau representing "The Last Supper," is an individual account of how Jesus affected the lives of each disciple. The disciples give insight into their day-by-day life with Jesus as a man and as the son of God.

"Master, Is It I?" is based on the Bible book, Luke. At the end of the presentation, the players strike the pose pictured in Da Vinci's painting — the moment Jesus reveals he will be betrayed by the disciples. Grouped in threes, each man reflects his inner thoughts while interacting with the men around him. For more information about "Master, Is It I?," contact First Christian Church at 669-3225.

CattleWomen to hold style show

Decision by China is hint to the U.S.

■ The time has come for American troops to get out of Macedonia.

By vetoing the U.N. Security Council's plans to keep peacekeeping forces in Macedonia for another six months, China recently did the right thing — even if it did so for the wrong reasons.

Speaking after the vote, Chinese representative Qin Huasun said that Macedonian peacekeeping goals had been accomplished, and that the Security Council should use its limited resources where they are needed the most, such as in Africa and other unstable regions.

Those arguments have some merit, but the real reason for China's decision is much more parochial: China is angry that Macedonia has established diplomatic relations with Taiwan, which Chinese officials claim is still part of China. The vote was widely viewed as a payback to Macedonia for that unrelated action.

Even so, this veto of an extended Macedonian mission should spur debate in America about our goals in that region. American troops are stationed in Macedonia, as part of a seven-year mission to monitor its borders, deter aggression from potentially hostile neighbors and prevent any ethnic skirmishes within the country.

This debate is unlikely to happen. After the mission was derailed — as a permanent council member, China has veto power — the United States was urging China to reconsider, and was lining up alternative means to accomplish the same ends, perhaps by putting the forces under a NATO banner.

U.S. officials, while admitting that tensions have decreased in Macedonia over the years, argue that hostilities in nearby Kosovo prove that international troops are still needed to prevent spillovers of ethnic tensions from one Balkan nation into another. The U.S. policymakers' "nightmare scenario," the Cato Institute's director of defense policy studies, Ivan Eland, said, is if the Serbs pursue the Kosovo Albanians, many may take refuge in Macedonia. That could incite Greece, which could intervene in Macedonia to protect its northern region and stop refugees from crossing its borders. Any aggression by Greece against ethnic Albanians could cause reprisals from Turkey, a traditional foe of Greece, and lead to a war.

Eland believes the Macedonia mission is out-of-date because the country no longer faces any grave external threats. And continued U.S. meddling in the Balkans not only endangers U.S. troops, but can cause unforeseen problems. In Kosovo, for instance, he explained that U.S. efforts may lead to the creation of an independent state. That could eventually cause widespread regional instability by encouraging other ethnic minorities to fight for similar status.

The answer is to pull U.S. troops out of the region, and let regional players and European powers deal with the hostilities. China's veto, though employed for unusual reasons, should encourage U.S. policymakers to think about our long-term policy.

Clinton and Milosevic test wills

Can air power do it? If not, what then? These were the core questions nagging at U.S. military leaders as they began attacking Serbian forces, not only in Kosovo province, but elsewhere in Serbia.

They were worried much more deeply than they were saying publicly. Privately, they expressed their concerns, frequently and in no uncertain terms, to President Clinton and key members of Congress.

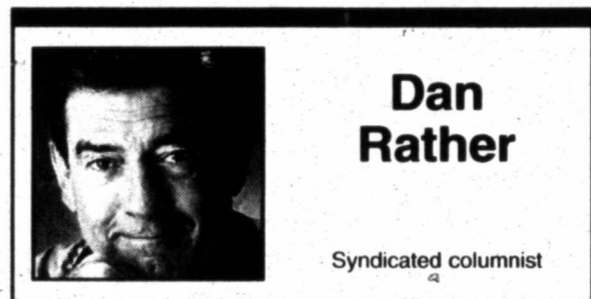

"The president was told repeatedly that we probably needed sustained aerial bombardment for three to four weeks to even know whether air attacks alone could get the Serbs to do what the president wanted," a top U.S. military leader told this reporter.

And what, exactly, is it that the president wants Serbia's dictator, Slobodan Milosevic, to do?

"At a minimum, sign an agreement to stop slaughtering ethnic Albanians in Kosovo," came the answer. But, the American military man added, "that's the least. Better, of course, would be to demand solid evidence that Milosevic was actually withdrawing his forces from Kosovo."

So, he was asked, is it a twin goal? "Frankly, the president seemed a little vague about the second part."

Other leading Defense Department and military people, while insisting on anonymity, also spoke of what they called "vagueness about what, exactly, would be the objective" of bombing raids.

Until recently, Pentagon planners believed they had been given the green light by the president for several weeks of bombing, if necessary. They were confused and irritated when word was passed that "the president now may want only a few DAYS" of bombing runs.

Start-stop — first yes, then no decision-making always makes military people nervous and irritable. And it did in this case.

But what worries them to the point of anger is lack of clear objectives, an inability to answer the question: "How do we know when we've won?" Otherwise stated as "Let's don't launch off into something, ANYTHING, until we have a clear definition of WIN."

In fairness to President Clinton, some of the defense authorities with whom this reporter has spoken point out that Republican congressional leaders have not been giving Clinton much help in all this. Instead, they've been giving him fits.

The clear signal from Congress to Serbian leaders has been, "America is NOT united in this." Which many observers at home and overseas say they are convinced gives encouragement to Milosevic that he can, in the end, win.

For example: After President Clinton decided air strikes were necessary, Republican congressional leaders were publicly saying a version of, "OK. We reluctantly go along with the decision, although we don't agree with it. But don't even think about committing any additional U.S. ground troops."

All in all, and taken as a whole, not exactly the kind of performance by the U.S. government that figures to strike terror in the heart of Milosevic. No wonder he continues to think he can play it hard and tough, and win.

He knows that he has, by far, the largest ground force in the area, and that the terrain and the weather favor his troops. He is being aided and abetted by Russia, which has historical and cultural bonds with Serbia.

And some who have seen Milosevic recently say he is convinced that the United States hasn't the heart for this operation or enough stomach to see it through to his defeat.

So, can air power, quick and mighty, do it? Doubtful. But we're now in the dangerous process of finding out.

Today in history

The decline of public political speech

The insolence of demagogues, Aristotle said, is generally the cause of ruin in democracies.

It is appropriate, therefore, as the season of demagoguery begins, to look at a few techniques employed by post-modern American demagogues.

By far, the current favorite technique is to simply express concern about common problems. Vice President Al Gore, for example, dropped these tidbits in formally beginning his campaign:

"The person who deserves to be our next president is the one who understands how tired working parents are."

"We're seeing the daily commutes get longer and longer. And for people who don't think that it's a problem that parents are caught in traffic jams that are lengthening each day, I'll tell you, they haven't been in traffic jams and they don't know what it does to the desire to balance work and family."

"Let's be sensitive to the problems that real families have."

"It's not only the beginning of a new century and a new millennium, it's the beginning of a whole new era in human history."

What are needed, he said, were "new approaches for the new century."

Mr. Gore also said he favored civil rights for minorities and women's rights.

So, then, let's see. Presumably Mr. Gore is against local traffic jams. Local traffic, of course, is not a presidential duty. He's also in favor of sensitivity, civil rights and women's rights.

Now that's the information he provides to people so he can be elected to an office whose duties involve being commander in chief of the armed forces, conducting foreign policy and making appointments. You will notice there is nothing about those topics.

Presumably everyone is against traffic jams and for sensitivity, civil rights and women's rights. As for new approaches to a new era, that's all meaningless gobbledygook. What new era? How does he define this new era? And what new approaches? He doesn't say.

Not being specific is an important tool of the demagogue. He wants to leave the impression that he has a nice, warm, cuddly concern for all your problems, implying that he will solve them without, of course, saying how.

I picked on Gore just because a report of his speech happened to be handy, but you will see the same pattern in many speeches by both Democrats and Republicans.

Stating a problem is not the same as proposing a solution. To use that unctuous word so favored by politicians and editorialists, "we" can all agree that traffic should flow smoothly, that there should be a balance between work and family, that schools should educate, that the environment should not be destroyed, that people should not go hungry, that women and children should not be abused, etc., etc. and so forth.

The real question, which demagogues avoid answering, is how specifically can these desirable ends be attained within the parameters of the Constitution.

Another technique demagogues use is to create imaginary opponents. You will often hear a demagogue say, "We're going to fight for good schools (or whatever)." Fight whom? There is no army of villains anywhere opposed to good schools. The problems in the government school system are all internal, not external.

The decline of public political speech is a symptom of a decline in morals. The second choice is made to deceive rather than enlighten, the devil gains another soul.

Texas round up ...

Governor pushes 'personal responsibility' message at youth conference

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. George W. Bush, wife Laura and former Reagan Cabinet member William Bennett are among the speakers for the close of the Governor's Conference on Right Choices for Youth.

The conference, which is ending today, is the latest part of the Lone Star Leaders initiative to help young Texans make the right choices about drugs, tobacco, alcohol, sex crime and all the other hurdles that teens face today.

"Many major threats to our children today are not a matter of chance, but a matter of choice," Bush said in announcing the conference.

Bush's address is sure to contain a message about personal responsibility, something the Republican governor has been pushing since his first run for the top spot in Texas. Bush says he has moved the state toward that goal of personal responsibility by approving major changes in welfare and juvenile justice programs.

Bush spokeswoman Karen Hughes said Bush has succeeded in efforts relating to welfare and juvenile justice.

Abortion-rights group expands ads targeting Bush and Dole

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An abortion-rights group is airing TV ads in California accusing GOP presidential front-runners George W. Bush and Elizabeth Dole of masking their anti-abortion positions.

"Which Republican presidential hopeful said 'I will do everything in my power to restrict abortions?' one ad asks viewers, flashing pictures of Bush and GOP rival Steve Forbes. The answer was Bush.

"Like the rest of the Republicans on the far right, Elizabeth Dole is anti-choice," the other ad declares.

The National Abortion and Reproductive Rights Action League began running the TV spots in New Hampshire and Iowa about a week ago and expanded the campaign to Los Angeles on Monday. The California ads appear primarily during local and national news broadcasts on network and cable outlets.

Mrs. Dole has declined to discuss her abortion views in any depth since entering the presidential fray. Her spokesman, Ari Fleischer, says she is "pro-life." Fleischer condemned the commercials as "negative attack ads."

Fight is brewing over tobacco windfall

AUSTIN (AP) — A proposal in the Texas Legislature to back-bonds for roads, bridges and other facilities with at least half of the money the state is due from its settlement with the tobacco industry is kicking off a debate over where the billions of dollars should go.

Under bills pushed by House Appropriations Chairman Rob Junell and Senate Finance Chairman Bill Ratliff, the Legislature in the upcoming two-year budget would spend the state's tobacco money exclusively on health care.

But after that, the settlement proceeds would be up for grabs by future legislatures.

A proposal by Sen. Buster Brown, R-Lake Jackson, and Sen. Tom Haywood, R-Wichita Falls, would allow the state to issue bonds for roads and bridges and other infrastructure needs, including health care facilities. The state would pay off the bonds with annual income from the tobacco settlement.

Brown's proposal represents the first legislative effort this year to try to use tobacco proceeds for something other than health care, according to the Austin American-Statesman.

Judge wants law passed to allow donations as probation

HOUSTON (AP) — A state judicial committee has ruled that judges can't order defendants to make charitable donations as part of their probation, but a Houston-area judge who believes in the practice is taking her case to lawmakers.

Harris County Judge Diane Bull is leading an effort to create legislation that would allow defendants to donate to the poor or infirm as part of their probation, according to The Texas Journal of the Wall Street Journal in today's editions.

The newspaper reported that Ms. Bull is looking for a lawmaker to sponsor the measure.

Current state law permits donations only to the Crime Stoppers program and charities that are "related personally to the rehabilitation of the defendant."

Earlier this month, the state Judicial Ethics Advisory Committee, which interprets judicial rules for judges, ruled that judges can't order those convicted of petty crimes to make charitable donations as a condition of their probation.

Other kids OK after woman found confined to crib for 18 years

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The younger siblings of a retarded woman found severely underweight and living in a crib appear to be well taken care of, child welfare officials say.

Staff members were sent to evaluate the condition of the minor children in the home where 18-year-old Vanessa Isela Marquez was found naked in a crib without a mattress in a tiny room without heat or air conditioning, said Eddie Wilson with Child Protective Services.

The teen weighed 54 pounds. "They found that those children (her brother and sister) were not being victimized, abused or neglected," Wilson said Tuesday.

Vanessa's parents, Jose Luis Marquez and Paula Marquez, recently immigrated to the United States with their three children, their court-appointed lawyer Albert Beil said Tuesday.

Pit bulls seized from dogfighter

HOUSTON (AP) — More than a dozen pit bulls are now in custody of the Houston Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals after authorities determined that the dogs were being abused by their former owner.

Justice of the Peace Mike Parrott ordered the dogs turned over to the SPCA on Tuesday. The dogs, eight males and eight females, were seized last week in the Houston suburb of Channelview at an address that law officers described as a dogfighting camp.

The dogs' owner, Preston McEachern, reportedly fled prior to the raid. He was later arrested and charged with felony dogfighting. Authorities said there also is a misdemeanor warrant against another man in the case.

SPCA officials would not disclose what would happen to the dogs or whether they would be available for adoption.

Police searching for two men in shooting that left four women dead

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A woman's refusal to help conceal her boyfriend's criminal activity may have led to a massacre in which four people were shot at close range, police said.

"Why?" asked the mother of one victim, choking as she tried to hold back tears. "It doesn't help to know why when it doesn't make any sense," said Juanita Valdez.

Her pregnant 21-year-old daughter, Penny Estrada, was one of the quartet gunned down Monday evening. Police accuse Arthur Goodman, 19, in the rampage.

Police and state troopers were looking for Goodman, who was charged Tuesday with capital murder. They also want to question Goodman's 16-year-old brother, who might have been with him when the shooting occurred.

Police said both could be in Fort Worth.

The motives behind the shootings began to unravel Tuesday as police questioned friends who seemed to know that violence was brewing.

Goodman may have killed his 20-year-old girlfriend, Sandy Witt, in her apartment because she wouldn't give a false alibi for him in connection with at least one crime of which he was suspected, or because she was planning to go to police with details, police said.

The other three women slain — Naomi Martinez, 23; Erica Arispe, 21; and Ms. Estrada — were "in the wrong place at the wrong time," police said.

"Given what the motive seems to be, four people did not need to die," said Detective Jay Hatcher. "One person was too many."

A maintenance man, Larry Hammond, 36, was shot in the abdomen and was in critical condition Tuesday night at Hendrick Medical Center. Hammond was running to Ms. Witt's apartment to investigate the commotion.

Officers also suspect Goodman in the Sunday night shooting of 16-year-old Jimmy Estrada at his home, but police wouldn't say if that was among the crimes to which a possible motive might be linked. Authorities said Estrada is not related to victim Penny Estrada.

Mrs. Valdez was one of dozens of relatives and friends who visited the duplex Tuesday to pray, leave flowers or poetry and light candles in memory of the victims.

"It didn't help him (Goodman) do what he wanted to do," she said. "Now they're just going to catch him and kill him. It just doesn't make any sense."

Order sues for nun's estate

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Sister Sean Condon honored her vow of poverty, living for decades in a modest, shared apartment and dedicating her life to teaching kindergarten in a working-class town.

She honored her vow even after her parents died and left her a small fortune.

But Sister Condon's order, the Sisters of Mercy of Providence, has no intention of rejecting the money. As nuns across the nation deal with dwindling ranks and treasuries, the Roman Catholic order in Rhode Island has sued Condon's estate to pay her medical and burial expenses. Sister Condon died of leukemia in 1996 at age 53. Until her death, she never touched her share of the fortune, which is now worth about $500,000.

Representatives of the 400-member order insist their finances are strong and that the lawsuit is not aimed at shoring up their accounts.

"This is not an effort to find a new way to bolster finances," said their lawyer, James Sloan III.

RANDEL

The Randel Chamber Orchestra will open the concert with "The Virtuous Wife Suite" by Henry Purcell, as arranged by Gustav Holst. The second selection is Cherubini's "Symphony in D Major."

The Purcell and Cherubini give our audiences an opportunity to hear works that were written for a smaller orchestra and composed earlier than many of the standard works for full orchestra," said Setapen.

The second half will begin with "Gypsy Airs (Zigeunerweisen)" by Pablo de Sarasate featuring violinist Ilana Setapen. After the solo work the Amarillo Symphony Youth Orchestra will join the Chamber Orchestra in excerpts from Georges Bizet's "Carmen Suite" and the "Egmont Overture" by Beethoven.

The Amarillo Symphony Youth Orchestra was prepared for this joint performance by their music director, Paula Fishman. The Youth Orchestra is led by a volunteer committee, chaired by Penelope Davies, and funded by the Amarillo Symphony.

Woman Learns That No News Can Sometimes Be Bad News

DEAR ABBY: I am 31 years old and have been healthy all my life — or so I thought.

I have annual physical examinations and PAP smears. I trusted my doctor to let me know about any abnormal test results and thought that "No news is good news." Well, I don't think that way anymore.

Last April, I had a physical, and because I heard nothing from my doctor, I assumed everything was OK. However, in July, I had a minor problem and called for an appointment. My regular doctor couldn't take me so I was seen by another doctor in the same group.

The new doctor asked why I hadn't returned for my "pinch biopsy." I was startled — remember: No news is good news. My doctor had failed to notify me that my PAP smear showed level-three dysplastic cells on my cervix. It seems that for three years, my PAP smears had shown precancerous cells, but the test results had been simply filed in my chart and nothing was said to me about them!

I was frightened and angry that this had slipped by my doctor. What is the annual exam for, if not to catch such things at an early stage?

Biopsies were done the next day and surgery was scheduled for two weeks later. Part of my cervix was removed to eliminate the precancerous cells, but the new doctor warned me that the cells may appear again in the future. He said I would probably be able to get pregnant and carry a baby to term.

Abby, I wonder what would have happened to me had I not had that minor problem that caused me to see another doctor? Would my regular doctor have caught the oversight at some point or would the reports have remained unnoticed in my file? His negligence could have cost me my life!

Abigail Van Buren

I now have a new doctor. Abby, please warn your readers not to buy into the adage that no news is good news and to call their doctors for test results. Ignorance of the results could cost a life while knowledge of them could literally save one.

LUCKY IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR LUCKY: You are indeed fortunate that your condition was discovered before it became life-threatening.

In these days of managed medical care, doctors are seeing far more patients than they used to — and many of them expect their patients to be more sophisticated and responsible about their health than a generation ago. And part of that means shouldering the responsibility to call the doctor for test results instead of waiting to be notified. Your letter illustrates how important it is to take the initiative.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: Easter will soon be here, and although I've cautioned you before, I must caution you again: If you plan to surprise a child with a live rabbit, baby duck or chick, please consider that living creatures need proper care. Unless you are absolutely certain that the little creature will receive the care it needs to survive, please give a stuffed bird or animal instead. Regardless of how cute baby animals are, they should not be given to children on impulse.

THURSDAY, APRIL 1, 1999

BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic, 4-Positive, 3-Average, 2-So-so, 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Trust in your abilities and unusual luck. A little spontaneity goes far to get you what you want. Surprises come through friends and unexpected benefits. Let others express their aspirations and needs. Working with others, you are quite a team! Tonight: The party goes on.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Pace yourself and stay in the forefront of key projects. Your instincts remain excellent. Discussions with someone you care about prove enlightening and successful. Share and express reservations, as well as ideas. Be more in touch with the capricious nature of a boss or higher-up. Tonight: Let it all hang out!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

As an ever-social person, you might have a difficult time buckling down to work. Right now, your mind goes here, there and everywhere. Do what is easiest first. If concerned about a friend or loved one, make contact rather than brooding or daydreaming. Tonight: Where the fun is.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Talk about goals, especially personal ones. You can create what you want through accepting additional responsibility. Career options are more numerous than you realize. Listen and evaluate. A partner's behavior with money is quirky. Tonight: Happy at home.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Chat up a storm. You understand what others can't even conceive; this keeps you ahead of the game. Listen carefully to your sixth sense with a partner. He certainly adds excitement to your life! Trust your ability to look at the long term. Tonight: Make calls.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Indulge and lighten up. A partner knows what he is doing when it comes to making money. He is full of good ideas and is able to come up with incredible financial schemes. A loved one clearly goes overboard. Tonight: Go for closeness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

Your smile draws others. You gain through your associates and their willingness to reach out. Examine long-term goals. Be direct in all dealings. A child or loved one touches your heartstrings. Think before you leap into action. Tonight: Let your naughty spirit come out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

Maintain a distance from the activity around work. You could find that your plate is too full. Others clearly want to nudge you into action; consider the implications first. Let your sense of humor take over. Changes on the homefront are inevitable. Tonight: Get a good night's sleep!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Success lands on your doorstep. The unexpected occurs out of the blue. Start brainstorming, with an ambitious goal in mind. You get what you want and need because of your unusual ingenuity. A relationship feels wonderful! Tonight: Where the gang is.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Your position is solid. Be sure of yourself. Think about improving your home life, perhaps buying a new home. New beginnings are possible. The unexpected occurs financially. Build a better business or work image. You are in the limelight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Opportunity strikes when you least expect it. Communication is rather intense; you act in a different, skewed manner. Make and return calls, reach out for another. Listen to your inner voice regarding publishing, writing and foreign elements. Tonight: Catch up on reading or update information.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

A money offer might be too good to pass up. Enjoy the lucre and sense of well-being, but don't go off spending just yet! A partner wants to help and gives you good counsel. Listen to his ideas and comments, but keep your opinions to yourself. Tonight: To the gym.

PAMPA — Pampa will host a middle school boys' track meet Thursday at Randy Matson Field. Team entered include Pampa, Dumas and Borger.

The meet begins with the field events at 4 p.m.

BASEBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Umpires don't like baseball players rating them.

"I give no credence whatsoever to those ratings," umpires union head Richie Phillips said Tuesday. "I think they're patently absurd. I've even been told that some players had their kids fill them out."

Tim McClelland and Jerry Crawford are the top umpires, according to a survey by the players association, and Ken Kaiser and Charlie Williams are the worst.

Players rated umpires on physical condition, physical and mental toughness, accuracy of calls on the bases, accuracy of calls at the plate, consistency, temperament, respect for players and overall capacity.

Harvesters win District 3-4A opener

PAMPA — A home run barrage lifted Pampa past Caprock 14-4 in a District 3-4A opener Tuesday at Harvester Field.

Brandon Hill, Casey Owens, Kaleb Snelgrooves and Brent Phelps all hit homers as the Harvesters sent Caprock packing after five innings, courtesy of the 10-run rule.

Pampa lefthander Brent Coffee pitched four scoreless innings to notch his fourth mound win against two set-backs. He struck out seven, walked two and scattered seven hits.

"We got fantastic pitching from Coffee. He gave up seven hits, but most of them were scattered," said Pampa coach Dennis Doughty. "He pitched really well."

Hill, the Harvesters' designated hitter, started the home run assault with his seventh round-tripper of the season, a two-run shot in the first inning to give Pampa a 3-0 lead.

Owens, who was a perfect 4 for 4 at the plate, delivered a two-run shot in the second to push Pampa's lead to 8-0.

Snelgrooves and Phelps had leadoff homers in the fourth and fifth innings, respectively.

The Harvesters pounded 14 hits, 10 off Dumas ace Kenny Baldwin.

"We hit a good pitcher in Baldwin. Hill hit his seventh homer, Snelgrooves his second and Owens and Phelps their first. "I'm proud of the whole team," Doughty said.

Third baseman Greg Lindsey added to his team-leading .509 batting average with two hits in three times at bat. Lindsey's RBI-double in the fifth gave him 27 runs batted in for the season, also tops on the team.

Pampa is now 10-9 for the season and 1-0 in district. Caprock falls to 4-8 overall and 0-1 in district.

The Harvesters travel to Dumas for more district action at 1 p.m. Saturday. Pampa defeated Dumas 16-14 in the Snyder Tournament earlier in the season.

AHS edges Pampa in local tennis tourney

PAMPA — Pampa finished a close second to Amarillo High in the Pampa Tennis Tournament last weekend.

Amarillo High finished first with 106 points, followed by Pampa varsity, second, 104; Altus, Okla. third, 97 and Pampa varsity Two, fourth, 55.

"I was real pleased with many of the players' performances, especially the two boys' doubles teams. They are really coming together. Matt Rains and Bryce Jordan are gaining confidence and playing well," said Pampa coach Carolyn Quarles. "Mandy Wells also played well, losing only to a very good player, Courtney Wright, of Amarillo High. We dropped three matches we should have won, but we just didn't play our best in some spots. Amarillo High is a solid team however and I congratulate them on winning the tournament."

Quarles also congratulated nationally-ranked Lee Gregg of Altus, the boys' singles champion and Courtney Wright (Super Champion), the girls' singles champion.

Pampa varsity plays in the Eagle Invitational in Abilene on April 9-10 and then enters the District 3-4A Tournament in Hereford on April 15-16.

PHS girls turn back Borger in district softball

PAMPA — The Pampa Lady Harvesters extended their win streak to seven by downing Borger 11-6 in softball action Tuesday at Optimist Park. Pampa's win streak dates back to March 6. The last time Pampa lost was to Borger in extra innings, 8-7.

With the win over Borger, the Lady Harvesters improve to 8-1 in district and 10-2 overall.

After a scoreless first inning, Borger drew first blood as their leadoff batter in the second inning reached on an error and scored before the side was retired.

In Pampa's half of the second, Kristi Walling reached on a leadoff walk, stole second, then took third on a sacrifice fly to right field and was awarded home on an obstruction call to tie the score at 1-1 after two innings. In the third, Borger plated two runs on two hits and an error to lead 3-1 going into the bottom of the third. During Borger's at bat, with the wind blowing in, Cali Covalt made two difficult catches in right field. Pampa would fail to score in the bottom of the third. In the fourth, Borger added one run on two hits to take a 4-1 lead.

The Lady Harvesters scored eight runs in the bottom of the fourth on five hits, two walks and an error. Stephanie Cameron delivered an RBI triple for the only extra base hit of the inning. Pampa led for the first time 9-4.

Borger added their final two runs of the game in the fifth on three singles and a base on balls to pull within three 9-6.

For Pampa in the fifth, singles by Stephanie Clark, Covalt and Cassi Scott helped produce two runs to extend Pampa's lead to 11-6. Pampa failed to score in the sixth.

Borger was retired in order in the sixth and seventh innings. Kimberly Clark struck out the final batter she faced to bring her strikeout total to 100 for the season.

For the game, K. Clark struck out six, issued two walks and scattered eight hits. K. Bailey of Borger struck out three, issued four walks, hit one batter and surrendered eleven hits.

K. Clark led Pampa at the plate, going 3 for 4 with three singles. Cameron had a triple and single while Covalt added two singles. Lisa Kirkpatrick tripled and Scott, Lisa Dwight, Kelsey Yowell and S. Clark each singled.

The Lady Harvesters have the weekend off, then travel to Dumas next Tuesday for a 4:30 p.m. game.

Pampa's final three games will be played at home, beginning April 10 when Randall comes calling.

A non-district clash with West Texas High is scheduled for April 13. Pampa concludes its regular season play by hosting district foe Frenship.

Pampa defeated Borger in junior varsity softball 5-3 for the second time this season.

Stephanie Clark picked up the mound win, striking out five, issuing two walks and allowing three hits through five innings.

Jessica Conner, Cali Covalt, and Charity Nachtigall each had a single to lead Pampa at the plate.

Spurs' defense stifles SuperSonics

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — If defense wins championships, the San Antonio Spurs have a shot at their first NBA title.

San Antonio's defense continued its stifling effort Tuesday night in a 95-87 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

With the No. 2 field-goal percentage defense in the NBA and a league-leading 7.45 blocks per game, San Antonio limited Seattle to 38.8 percent shooting in winning for the 14th time in 16 games. Only three teams in 30 games this season have topped the 100-point mark against the Spurs.

Tim Duncan had 26 points and nine rebounds, while David Robinson added 18 points and 10 rebounds.

"We started out sharp, got the lead and just kind of parked it. We spent the rest of the night trying to get the momentum back,"

San Antonio coach Gregg Popovich said. "The games are always in question until they're over, and that's especially true this year."

San Antonio's double teams made it difficult for Seattle all-star guard Gary Payton, who averages 21.6 points, but managed only 15 on 5-for-13 shooting.

"Gary Payton is a great player, so we wanted other people to have the ball and make decisions," said Popovich, whose team force 17 turnovers. "We were going to double-team him from the beginning to the end of the game and just hope that the others didn't make as good decisions."

San Antonio never trailed in handing the Sonics their 10th loss in 14 road games.

After leading 49-41 at halftime, San Antonio was outscored 19-13 to start the third quarter as Dale Ellis brought the Sonics within 62-60 on a 16-foot jumper with 3:36 left in the period.

Avery Johnson answered with six straight points for San Antonio, pushing the lead to 68-60 with 2:21 remaining. The Spurs led 74-67 going into the fourth quarter.

Seattle got no closer than seven points in the final period as Robinson had five points to keep the Sonics at bay. Jaren Jackson's 3-pointer gave San Antonio its biggest lead, 95-81 with 59.2 seconds remaining.

"Avery's play really sparked us and got us over the hump," Popovich said. "Without him we would have been in trouble. He was the catalyst."

Johnson finished with 14 points, nine assists and only one turnover, and Payton had seven assists and three turnovers.

Jordan may return to play for Charlotte club

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Jordan playing again? Wearing teal? That's the latest buzz surrounding Jordan's possible purchase of part of the Charlotte Hornets.

Fox Sports, citing anonymous sources close to Jordan, reported Tuesday night that said one scenario being considered by Jordan, who led the Chicago Bulls to six NBA championships, would involve him playing one full season for the Hornets while his ownership shares were held in a trust or deferred.

The report cited anonymous sources close to Jordan, one of whom apparently heard Jordan say he "has to stay in shape."

Jordan's agent, David Falk, could not be reached for comment. Team spokesman Harold Kaufman had no comment.

It was already known that Jordan, who earlier this year pronounced himself "99.9 percent" retired, has held preliminary talks with the Hornets and NBA officials about purchasing a 50 percent share of the team.

The possibility of him playing again next season is a new twist. That scenario also would include Phil Jackson being brought in to coach the team for one year and Dean Smith, Jordan's college coach at North Carolina, being brought aboard as team president, Fox said.

Jordan issued a statement Monday confirming his interest in owning half of the team. He met last week with commissioner David Stern and current Hornets owner George Shinn.

"At this stage," Jordan said, "the discussions are very preliminary and I am unsure whether I will be able to make an investment on terms that are acceptable to me."

Jordan, who grew up in Wilmington and starred at North Carolina, said staying involved in the NBA "would be a fulfilling personal and business challenge."

"In addition, as a North Carolina native, I would welcome the opportunity to be involved in growing the Hornets into an elite NBA team," Jordan said. "It would be premature to comment any further."

Jordan declared himself "99.9 percent" retired. He previously gave up basketball in October, 1993, to pursue a career in professional baseball, then unretired in the spring of 1995.

Baseball teams scrambling to fill holes

By The Associated Press

With the start of the major league season less than a week away, teams are scrambling to fill holes created by injuries and making decisions on which players to cut before their salaries become guaranteed.

Today is the deadline for teams to release players on their 40-man rosters without paying their full salaries, and there was a flurry of moves on the eve of the deadline.

In Tuesday's biggest news, the Anaheim Angels found out shortstop Gary DiSarcina will be sidelined 3-4 months because of his broken left forearm instead of returning around opening day, as originally thought.

DiSarcina was struck by a fungo bat during batting practice on Feb. 21. A CAT scan Monday showed the bone has not completely healed. DiSarcina, 31, will have a plate screwed into his forearm to allow for proper healing.

The New York Yankees traded right-handed reliever Darren Holmes and about $1 million to the Arizona Diamondbacks for pitcher Ben Ford and minor league catcher Izzy Molina.

The trade will save the Yankees $527,000 in luxury tax and reduce their major league-high payroll to about $85 million.

Earlier in the day, Arizona traded pitcher Clint Sodowsky to the St. Louis Cardinals for right-hander John Frascatore.

"They were in a group of four or five that we were really actively talking about," Arizona general manager Joe Garagiola Jr. said, "and I'm really happy these are the two we would come out of this with."

Anaheim dealt switch-hitting infielder Dave Hollins to Toronto for minor league infielder Tomas Perez. Troy Glaus, the third pick overall in the 1997 amateur draft, will play third for the Angels, who also released infielder Andy Stankiewicz and right-handed reliever Rich DeLucia — eating DeLucia's guaranteed $700,000 salary in process.

Cleveland traded first base prospect Mike Glavine, the younger brother of Atlanta pitcher Tom Glavine, to the Braves for future considerations.

Oakland traded right-handed pitcher Jay Witasick to Kansas City for a player to be named and cash.

Also, Boston asked for unconditional release waivers on outfielder Midre Cummings, who led AL pinch-hitters with a .346 batting average last year. He became expendable when Boston obtained outfielder Jon Nunnally from Cincinnati last Thursday. Cummings gets $110,656 in termination pay instead of the $450,000 he was awarded as a loser in salary arbitration.

Right-hander Marc Pisciotta was placed on unconditional release waivers by the Chicago Cubs and will get $51,147 in termination pay instead of his $208,000 salary.

Right-hander Aaron Small met a similar fate. Arizona placed him on release waivers, meaning he gets $51,147 in termination pay rather than his $250,000 salary.

In other moves, Oakland claimed left-hander Ron Mahay off waivers from the Red Sox, and Texas agreed to a minor league contract with infielder Rafael Bourgnal. Florida put outfielder Cliff Floyd on the 15-day disabled list because of a sprained left knee.

In games Tuesday:

Mets 2, Marlins 0
 At Port St. Lucie, Fla., Orel Hershiser allowed two hits in five shutout innings, improving to 2-0 since signing with New York last week.

Devil Rays 5, Twins 3
 At St. Petersburg, Fla., Rolando Arrojo, making his first appearance in 12 days after recovering from a strained back, allowed one run and four hits in four innings.

Expos 7, Orioles 6
 At Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Orlando Merced drove in three runs with a double and a homer. Jose Vidro also homered and had three RBIs. Montreal's 12 wins this spring are its most since 1993.

Reds 4, Yankees 2
 At Sarasota, Fla., Dmitri Young had another two-hit game and doubled home the tiebreaking run.

Red Sox 7, Rangers 1
 At Port Charlotte, Fla., Pat Rapp gave up one run and four hits in 5-2-3 innings, allowing a solo homer to Juan Gonzalez.

Braves 3, Indians 2
 At Winter Haven, Fla., rookie Odalis Perez allowed one hit in five shutout innings, and Eddie Perez and Bret Boone hit solo homers off loser Bartolo Colon.

Astros 6, Tigers 3
 At Kissimmee, Fla., Richard Hidalgo hit a two-run homer and Sean Bergman allowed two runs and six hits in six innings.

Royals 5, Phillies 4
 At Clearwater, Fla., Glendon Rusch, competing for a spot in Kansas City's rotation, allowed two runs and six hits in five innings, and Scott Leius hit a three-run homer.

Pirates 6, Blue Jays 4
 At Bradenton, Fla., former No. 1 draft pick Kris Benson allowed one run and five hits in six innings, then learned he won a spot on Pittsburgh's rotation.

Jordan Unit: Forty-two inmates graduate from Kairos Five

By JERRY GUTHRIE
Jordan Unit reporter

Kairos Five, enveloped 42 Jordan Unit inmates during a three-day inside walk. March 19-21 proved to be a life changing event for many of the chosen 42 inmates. Kairos, similar to an outside Walk to Emmaus, is a ministry directed at giving, teaching, and showing inmates God's love.

Charles Cooke, event rector proved to be a "champion" in directing Kairos Five. The Holy Spirit guided the event as area Kairos volunteers gave their time, wisdom and knowledge to help inmates experience unconditional love.

Kairos lay-men gave talks ranging on topics from "choices" to the "church." Each talk was wholeheartedly filled with personal testimony of life changing love from listening to God and doing his will.

Each Kairos is an amazing event. Men, women, and children from all over the world sponsor each walk in prayer prior to and during the entire walk. Prayer chains are an integral part of Kairos and ensure the success of each walk.

Small groups consisting of six inmates and two or three laymen share a table throughout the event. During the first day, men who had been bound in earthly chains by fear of man, self-will, loneliness and pride learn a new will. Just as the wind blows unseen men's lives were changing. Attitudes of difference are let go and new friendships forged by the integrity of honesty and love. God's presence turns day one frowns and shyness into smiles and hugs.

Day two: the atmosphere changes as the inmates let go of their will and let God guide them. Men who once stood on shaky ground find themselves rock-solid as their old sinner's life is given to God. Renewed in hope and faith, the promised "new creature" evolves as a loving member of the body of Jesus Christ.

Throughout the day the chapel is used for inspirational talks and prayer. Inmates are encouraged to discuss any concerns or doubts they had with the laymen. During these prayer opportunities, inmates are consoled by the word of God. Lives are changed.

Kairos is a spiritual event not a forced religion spectacle nor is it a psychological ploy to manipulate inmates into submission. Simply, Kairos is an event directed toward inmates to show that God's love includes them!

Many of the select 42 made personal choices and accepted their Lord and Savior for the first time in their life. Gang members denounced their affiliations and gave away the hate that had dominated their old life. Racial barriers were bridged by love and men of all races joined together in proclaiming Jesus as Lord. These inmates now are in victory of God's prosperity and are all bound by the pure virgin whiteness of eternal glory of agape love.

Day three: Men sense a new awareness of peace as they all had been justified by faith with God through Jesus Christ. The men of Kairos Five sang many praises for the Glory of God.

Kairos Five closing ceremony was an Oscar winner. Each inmate was given time to tell the audience of how the event changed them, of that they learned, and what they were leaving with. All inmates echoed one common sentiment. They all agreed they learned what unconditional love was and how Jesus was part of their new life. Over 50 free world guests attended the closing ceremony along with inmates from Kairos one, two, three, four. As each inmate gave his testimony, tears of joy were shared by all in attendance, in fact, tissue became a true commodity.

Jordan Units Warden Smith gave the closing group words of wisdom and inspired many of the inmates with this heartfelt talk concerning Christianity and truth. Kairos Five wishes to express all the gratitude to those whom made this walk a life changing experience. Much gratitude goes to all of the people who were involved in prayer chains and without mention much do to all the women on the cooking team. The men also wish to thank the group of young adults who baked over 500 dozen cookies.

As the weekend came to a close and the finale was near, Kairos has just begun for the 42 new brothers in Christ.

Watercolor artist to come to Pampa

Ginger Test, watercolor artist from Novice, Texas, will be in Pampa April 7-8 teaching a two-day watercolor workshop. Test has been teaching classes in Pampa each spring and fall for the past 10 years. Students will work on two 11" x 17" painting projects — a still life with pitchers, lemons and pears and a mountain range with a blooming yucca in the foreground.

Reserve your painting space by calling Dorsey at the Hobby Shop, 217 N. Hobart. He has a list of supplies needed in class and sketches of the painting projects. Beginning watercolor students can view a video by Test outlining her techniques and painting philosophy.

Classes are scheduled from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 300 W. Foster. Lunch both days will be brown bag affairs. Class size is limited. The cost for the two-day workshop is $65. For more information contact Kayla Pursley, 665-8848.
